

TUB FROCKS AND OTHERS; SMART CROCHETED HATS

The streets of the cities bear evidence that women have decided to wear clothes that look comfortable and are comfortable in the hottest days of summer. All those cool and colorful frocks that are a joy in the country, and at summer resorts, have come to town and are making themselves very much at home on the streets and everywhere else. Crêpe de chine, that comes in such and multiply every little bit, other crepes, printed silks and ribbons and the sheer cottons, make a landscape of color in the shopping districts and tea rooms, set off by transparent black, pale gray, beige and a generous proportion of white touched with color. In dresses of silk, for all-day wear, crepes are by far the most popular of materials. These utility dresses are simple, elegant. White skirts with colored tops or tuxedo sweaters, or the reverse order, colored skirts with white coats or sweaters, prove themselves a boon for the street, and the combination of black and white is as well considered as ever for warm summer days. The afternoon finds promidiers in more elaborately made frocks which just now are gracefully

It remained for some one to figure out a way to support the crocheted hat and keep it in shape, and now this has been accomplished, and it is here it is a beautiful and distinctly American creation, and aristocratic affair, with all the class and informality combined, that belong to the aristocrat. These hats are made of several materials and supported by very fine, invisible silk wires. Wool yarns, chenille, silk fiber braids and specially made fabrics, are used for them and very often their decoration is crocheted in the body of the hat, or separately and sewed on. In the simple models pictured of wool yarns, the braided collars, balls and pompons are made separately. On two of those hats French knits of heavy yarn decorate the crowns. Very beautiful flowers and fruits crocheted or made in other ways of yarn, chenille, heavy silk floss, or hand-made and hand-colored blossoms and fruits of velvet or silk, appear on the dressier crocheted hats of chenille and silk. All colors are unusually rich in these materials. The crocheted hat is not an inexpensive item since it is made by hand and cuts up time and line stuffs. These hats, in white yarn, chenille or silk fiber, and in white with a color, as white and emerald green, white and red, make lovely additions to late summer millinery.

Black and Silver a New Note. As a variation of the black and white combination which has been seen so much in millinery in the last several seasons, attractive hats are now being offered in which black and silver are the dominant color notes. The use of silver with white is also worn, but this seems to be confined more or less to models made of fur. Another novelty that has added its appearance is the use of flesh toned fabrics on both black and white hats. Among the new materials offered to stir up buying of hats is beaded satin duchess. In the newest trimmings are seen fringes of culture feathers for use on popular-priced models. Quills are also proving a strong trimming item, especially in colors that match the body of the hat.

Summer Fad. Gingham handkerchiefs of saucer checks are quite the fad. Whip the edges in colors. For the very dainty "best" hankie use a round center and whip colored tulle around the edge.

RAW FOODS

The raw-food enthusiasts make some remarkable statements in regard to the value of raw foods. They claim that all diseases of man have their beginnings in waste matter accumulated in the body.

They also tell us that fatigue is caused only by poison instilled into the blood by improper food, and that no one can possibly feel fatigued, however hard he or she may be worked, unless that poison is there. One becomes sleepy, but fatigue and sleepiness are quite foreign to each other. With proper food, the muscles may be worked indefinitely and yet not realize any sense of fatigue or stiffness.

Horace Fletcher, at the age of sixty-seven, is said to have outclassed the finest trained college athletes, who became fatigued and whose muscles grew lame; yet he sensed no fatigue, lassitude or stiffness though he submitted himself to a longer and harder strain than the students against whom he competed.

This all sounds interesting and is easy enough for anybody to put to the test.

Another good salad is cold cooked cauliflower placed on lettuce with small strips of pineapples to add to its appearance. Serve with French or mayonnaise dressing.

A main dish is prepared as follows: Equal parts of chopped green peas and sweet corn pressed from the kernels, chopped raisins and dates mixed with honey and olive oil, pressed into cups to mold and then served with a rich sweet cream sauce, made with cream, honey, maple syrup and nut meal made from Brazil nuts.

By this time the novice is well satisfied for it takes far less raw food to satisfy the appetite than cooked food. These foods are easy to prepare, easy to obtain, and economical when compared with the average diet. One can live anywhere in the world on such fare, and it is at least worth giving a fair trial. A month or two would show a vast saving of time in food preparation and the advocates of the diet promise much more perfect health.

In the world that lies before you there is much for you to win. But beforehand you must conquer. Foes without and foes within. And if now your tasks can't wait you, then when life's real battles call, will you, in their heat and struggle, victor stand, or vanquished fall!

IF YOU HAVE HONEY

Honey eaten in its natural state is so healthful that any, who can, should keep a hive of bees to provide this delectable sweet. Cakes, cookies and other such foods retain their freshness much longer when honey is used for the sweetening.

Honey Tea-Cake.—Take one cupful of honey, one-half cupful of sour cream, two eggs, one-half cupful of butter, two cupfuls of flour, scant one-half teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Bake thirty minutes in a moderate oven.

Soft Honey-Cake.—Put a teaspoonful of soda in a measuring cup, add five tablespoonfuls of hot water to the soda, then fill the cup with extracted honey. Take one-half cupful of softened butter and one egg; eat well, add two cupfuls of flour and a teaspoonful of ginger, stir all together and bake in a slow oven.

Crackerjack.—Take one cupful each of brown sugar and extracted honey, boil until it hardens in cold water. Remove from the stove and stir in one-half teaspoonful of soda; add all the popcorn it will take, with a handful of shelled peanuts. Press into a greased dripping pan and mark in squares.

Potato Cake.—Take two cupfuls of mashed potato, one cupful of sugar, one cupful of honey, one cupful of butter, one cupful of sour milk, four eggs, two teaspoonfuls of soda, one-quarter of a cupful of grated chocolate, one teaspoonful each of nutmeg and cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful of cloves, two cupfuls of flour, one cupful of chopped nuts and two cupfuls of raisins. Beat the butter, sugar and honey to a cream, add the beaten eggs, then the chocolate, milk, soda, flour, mashed potato, spices, nuts and raisins. Turn into a well-greased and floured tin and bake in a moderate oven.

Honey Ginger Snaps.—Take one pint of honey, three-fourths of a pound of butter, two teaspoonfuls of ginger; boil together for five minutes, then cool; when nearly cold add flour to make a stiff mixture, roll very thin and bake quickly.

Two thousand feet below the surface of the earth, and 8,000 feet long, will be the longest tunnel of its kind in the world, now being run in the Star mine, in the Coeur d'Alene district in Idaho. The tunnel has been advanced a little more than 3,000 feet.

The Red Poppy Fields. According to the history of European wars, it has been found that the red poppy grows in fields where blood has been shed. They flourish in England, Belgium and France.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

BLACKSNAKE GOSSIP

"There was once someone," said the Blacksnake, "who talked to some people about gossip. This talker told the people that it was bad, to gossip, and that they must keep from talking about others."

"The talker told how it got people into trouble and caused unhappiness and sorrow. And then the talker told the people to each take the talk to themselves and not think it was intended for their neighbors."

"But siss and aiaak, the people talked of how the talk had been just such a talk as their neighbors needed, and didn't take the lesson to heart as they should have done."

"Now I am hoping that people will take my lesson to heart, and I hope they will not say that they do not gossip but will listen to my talk and will take pains to undo the harm that has been done and not gossip ever, ever again."

"Such gossip has gone about regarding me and regarding my family. 'But by bit I shall talk of the stories that have been told about me, and I will tell of how untrue they are.'"

"In the first place of all I do not squeeze my prey until it is killed. I am not a constrictor, and a constrictor does that."

"I have never done that and I will never do that, though people will often say that the Blacksnake does so that."

"In the second place I do not attack the rattlesnake, and why should I? He is a bigger creature than I am. I am a good-sized creature, it is true. In fact, I am very long and I'd be considered anywhere a good-sized snake."

"But Mr. Rattlesnake is not an interesting snake to me. He is too big. I prefer nice little snakes of smaller size."

"I'm not above eating a smaller snake. Oh, no, I'm not above that. And I suppose that is the way the story got about that I attacked the Rattlesnake."

"That is the way with stories. They're founded, perhaps, on just a little scrap of truth and then they are added to and added to until they're nothing at all like the story was in the first place."

"I suppose some one said that we ate smaller snakes than ourselves. And then the story was spread about and added to until it was said we even ate Rattlesnakes."

"I admit that we do like smaller snakes. We haven't any reason for not liking them. They're very good little snakes; that is, snakes smaller than we are we consider very good."

"But we don't go after Rattlesnakes. We keep away from them, hiss, hiss. We don't like Rattlesnakes. No, no indeed hiss, hiss, hiss."

"Then it has been said about us that we go after people and jump for them. This is not true at all."

"If we are cornered we will fight bravely, but we do not go after people."

"We're not fond of them and we keep out of the way of them. And yet this untrue story has gone about that we go after people and that we are very dangerous to them because we go seeking them."

"I hope that all this gossip will be stopped before long, for it is most unfair."

"I like to have the truth known about me, but I do not like to hear gossip."

"I don't gossip about other snakes and I don't gossip about people. So I wish they wouldn't gossip about me!"

"I wish that tremendously. I have also heard that I can look at a bird so that the bird doesn't know which way to move, and that I make the bird stay quite still just by looking at him."

"They say that I do this so as to capture the bird quite easily."

"But I can't look at a bird so he'll stay quite still. I can't do anything like that. That is a most untrue story."

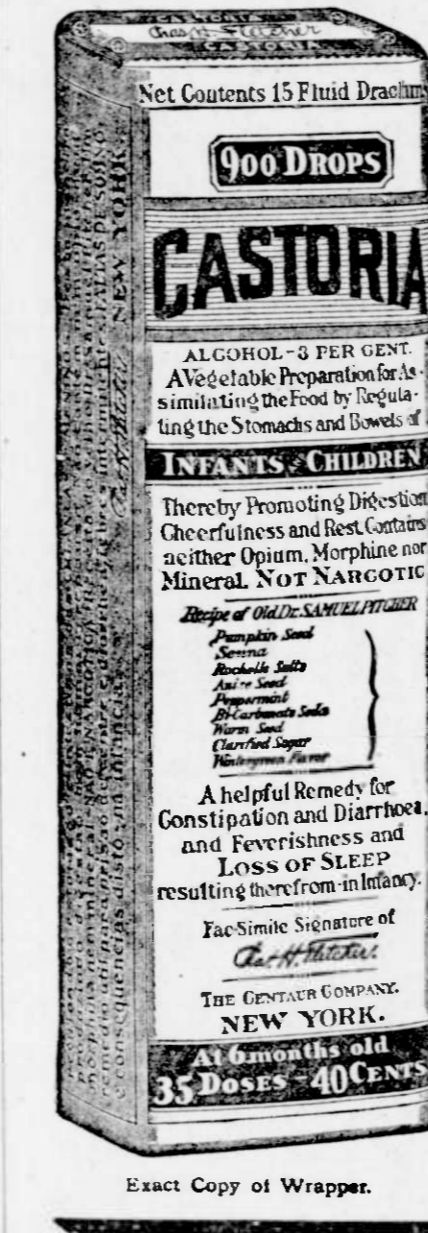

"If I looked at a bird he wouldn't stay quite still until I caught him, no indeed. I know better than that."

"So, everybody, please remember what I've said, and don't gossip about the poor old Blacksnake. It is most unkind for what you say isn't true!"

When Baby Complains.

THERE ARE MANY WAYS a baby has of expressing any pain or irregularity or digression from its normal condition of health and happiness. A short sharp cry, a prolonged irritated cry. Restlessness, a constant turning of the head or of the whole body, fretful. In these and other ways a baby tells you there is something wrong. Most mothers know that a disordered stomach, or bowels that do not act naturally are the cause of most of baby's sufferings. A call for the doctor is the first thought, but in the event of any delay there should be ready at hand a safe remedy such as Fletcher's Castoria.

Castoria has been used for baby's ailments for over 30 years and has merited the good will of the family physician in a measure not equaled by any other baby's medicine because of its harmlessness and the good results achieved. And remember this: Castoria is essentially a baby's remedy and not a cure-all for every member of the family. What might help you is too often dangerous when given to a babe.

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Let's Think It Over. There is such a thing as saying too much on any subject, and the "grand-stand" talker sooner or later becomes a bore. The truth is always welcomed, and the truth reiterated and confirmed is more than welcome—it reaches your innermost soul. Fletcher's Castoria is all its advertising has claimed for it. Scrutinized by the microscope of public opinion and used for over thirty years it stands without a peer in the hearts of thoughtful, cautious, discerning Mothers. And once used, mother love—there is no substitute for mother love—will scorn to try a "substitute" or a "just-as-good". Masquerading under many names drugs that are injurious to the tender babe have found their way into some households, but the light of experience soon casts them out. Are they cast out before it is too late? MOTHERS SHOULD READ THE BOOKLET THAT IS AROUND EVERY BOTTLE OF FLETCHER'S CASTORIA. GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

London Papers. How many morning dailies are now published in London? Most people, journalists included, would answer off-hand that there are not more than a dozen. Actually the addition of the Westminster Gazette to the list brings the total number up to 30. London's morning publications are considerably in excess of the evening issues, whose number is 12. A few of the constituents of the latter list are also to be found in the ordinary book stall.

Reaches Away Back. A baldheaded society man tells this one on himself. He was at a lawn party, and a matron who thought he was too busy talking to a pretty girl to notice what she was saying remarked in a low voice to another matron, "What a nice face Mr. Blank has."

Beginners Encouraged. First Young Doctor—How are you coming along? Making good? Second Young Doctor—Fine! I'm thankful I didn't begin to practice in the days before prohibition, though. "Same here."—Judge.

Lost His Spokes. Charles had taken part in some holiday exercises. It was his first appearance on the stage, and he had shown considerable nervousness. His mother said to him: "I think you did well, Charles, even though you did get scared!" "Oh, I wasn't a bit scared," he hastened to assure her, "but I think my voice was."

Sporty! "Boss, I'm hungry." "Here's a nickel." "Thanks, boss. Are you a sport?" "I hope so."

Must Be Partnership. Often and again, a man who falls in his scheme of life could be made a success if some capable man would take him in hand; but he'd have to be willing.

It takes a tremendous lot of religion to convert a man's pocket.

The Big Muskeg by VICTOR ROUSSEAU Illustrations by R.H. Livingstone

"JOE'S DEAD!" ... Looking over Big Muskeg's ... "I'm going on to Clayton. I'm feeling better. No, listen, Molly! I didn't tell you, but my arm was swollen from the bandages. They had tightened and stopped the circulation. I'm better without them. I'm feeling stronger—and the pain's less. We can go on. We've got to go on."

going to pay, it's going to pay. Ye know Joe and Will Carruthers went up to look the line over. Give 'em a chance!"

The inspector turned his puzzled glance on the girl. Mechanically his hand went up to his cap in salute. Then he looked at the sleigh again.

CHAPTER VI

An Unexpected Development. For weeks thereafter he was only faintly conscious of his surroundings at intervals. Once, roused by some injection, he was aware of making a brief deposition for use at the coroner's inquest, and once Molly's face appeared, wet with tears, out of the shadows, and her lips touched him.

He was mud and blood from head to foot. His face, covered with a bristly growth of beard, was white as a specter's, and the skin, drawn tight as parchment over the cheeks, revealed the contour of the bones beneath.

was dressed in black; her fair hair was tangled about her neck, and her blue eyes were reddened and tear-stained. She glanced uncertainly about her, saw Wilton, and ran to him. "Joe's dead!" she cried. "Will—oh, Will!"

A loud cry broke from Phayre. His face was transformed; his lips were working with rage. "You heard that?" he shouted conclusively. "Joe Bostock's dead! It's a put-up scheme! We've been tricked into voting confidence in him, and he's dead! It's a fraud and a lie! How can a dead man vote?"

CHAPTER VII

Severely injured. In the plan for settlement as contemplated by the President when he concluded conferences with railway and union officials he suggested peace terms for all matters of dispute, it was learned.

It was at first planned to leave the question of seniority to the Chicago Railway Labor board for decision. Under the terms of his new proposal this question is to be settled in conferences. Neither the railway executives nor the shop craft would consent to have it adjudicated, the President was told.

With matters in this shape, President Harding sent a call for Ben W. Hooper, chairman of the Railway Labor board to meet him here. It was at this conference, lasting nearly two hours, that a final draft of the proposal was approved and sent forward.

A Noise Outside; the Door was Flung Violently Open, and Wilton Stood in the Room.

—McDonald's angry protest—and then a cry from Molly!

YES, OF COURSE SHE HEARD HIM!

Any way it is a Mean Man Who Would Set Such a Trap for His Better Half. Hubby was reading aloud from the newspaper to his wife. Now and then he paused and asked a question, but her replies indicated that she was not listening very closely. When he reproached her she indignantly retorted that she was listening most intently.
