Find Defects in Most Children

University of Iowa Physicians Give Results of Free Clinical Examinations.

SEEK TO HELP THE SUBNORMAL

Over 90 Per Cent of Defects Found Declared to Be Totally or Partially Correctable—Malnutrition Is Common.

Don't you think the kiddies ought to be given every chance to develop into worth-while citizens? What do you think of this campaign?

Iowa City, Ia.—An average of one physical defect for each of 906 Iowa children examined since September 21 has been found by Dr. John W. Prentice and Dr. Florence W. Johnston, University of Iowa physicians in the division of maternity and infant hygiene, who have been conducting free clinical examinations in various parts of the state. Their work, however, has been aimed at the observation and suggested treatment of the physically subnormal rather than the normal child.

Over 80 per cent of the defects found were declared to be totally or partially correctable. The percentage of possible corrections decreases with the increasing age of the child.

One of 956 children examined 952 defects were found. The defects multiply with the age of the child. It has been Doctor Prentice's observation that rural children have as many physical defects as do city children.

Malnutrition is found as often among Iowa children as among city children. Several reasons were ascribed to this; among them lack of variety in diet and defective teeth. The most frequent defects among rural children were found to be malnutrition, enlarged adenoids and enlarged, diseased tonsils.

Need Variety in Food.

"Children need a variety of food elements as do livestock," said Doctor Prentice, referring to the well-balanced diet for farm animals that experts have prepared. "The rural children seem to get food in sufficient quantity but not the variety or balanced diet that enables all tissues of the body to develop properly. In other words, they live on a 'meat' diet. Children with bad teeth fail to masticate and digest their food well and they absorb all the harmful poisons that come from the decayed teeth."

Children examined at the clinics are scheduled in advance if possible. Their histories are taken, they are examined, a chart of their physical state is made, a summary drawn and treatment recommended for defects. This record is kept by the county or school nurse with the name of the family physician. A copy of this record is given the parents and they are instructed to take the child along with the record to the family physician.

About 50 per cent of the cases in communities where clinics have been held have reported to the family physicians as instructed, according to reports of nurses and physicians. It is believed this proportion will be greatly increased as the work advances.

Gives Advice on Diet.

In order to reach the children clinics are held in various towns and cities under the auspices of local physicians and county and school nurses. Doctor Prentice examines the children and Doctor Johnston acts as adviser to the mothers on questions of child diet, prenatal and postpartum care. The university physicians are trying to make assets instead of liabilities out of the subnormal children of Iowa by pointing out possible corrective measures.

Results have indicated that the money, time and effort have been well expended, report division officials. "The success of this great work," said Doctor Prentice, "has been made possible by the splendid cooperation of the doctors and county and school nurses in the various communities where clinics have been held.

"During recent years the general health and physical condition of our city children have been greatly improved by the work of infant welfare stations, children's clinics, school clinics and many other such organizations. Likewise the maternity clinics have done much for mother and babe. And now we have the same opportunities brought to our rural communities through the work of the division of maternity and infant hygiene of the University of Iowa which is carrying out the provisions of the Sheppard-Towner law in Iowa. We need only to improve the high percentage of physical fitness among our rural boys as found by the army examinations in the recent war to realize the importance of this work."

HER LOVE ALIENATED?

CAREFUL MAN IS INCUBATOR NEED

Success Depends Greatly on Paying Attention to So-Called Small Details.

CARE FOR EGGS FOR HATCHING

Machine Should Be Carefully Cleaned and Disinfected Previous to Placing of Every Hatch—Follow Directions.

No incubator can be expected to take the place of a mother hen without some intelligent help from outside. Nor should any poultryman expect to raise vigorous birds from inferior eggs, for even now one does not gather flies from thistles. Success in chick raising depends on the ability of the poultryman to take pains with the small details.

Eggs for Hatching.

Only those eggs should be considered for hatching that come from the strongest and most vigorous stock possible. If they are not normal in shape and size, the chicks will be small and abnormally shaped. If possible, eggs should not be kept longer than two weeks before they are incubated, and should be stored in a temperature not higher than 60 degrees, and turned at least once a day after they are a week old.

As disease may be communicated from one hatch to the next by lack of proper sanitation, the incubator should be carefully cleaned and disinfected previous to the placing of every hatch. Heat must be kept uniform and absolute certainty established that this important detail is never overlooked. The directions with regard to temperature and moisture that accompany each machine also should be carefully followed.

Another important detail to be observed is that of turning the eggs. After the third day the eggs should be turned each morning and night, and this practice continued until the end of the eighteenth day. Cooling the eggs serves to produce slightly heavier chicks, but does not influence the percentage to hatch. If the eggs are not cooled the chicks will come off a day sooner than the regular time.

Darkening the incubator by having a cloth over the front will keep the chicks from crowding toward the light when the hatch begins. Under all circumstances should the chicks be taken from the incubator under 24 hours after hatching, as they need to sleep and rest and become thoroughly dried and fluffed out before being removed. At the end of 24 hours all chicks worth trying to brood will be strong and vigorous and able to stand squarely on both feet. All others not coming up to this standard should be killed immediately. With these important details carefully followed the chicks should have a vigor and stamina that will make toward ease and success in brooding.

FARMER WARNED NOT TO TRUST HIS BULL

More Vicious and Treacherous Than Many Wild Animals.

Safest Way Is to Lead Them on Staff Fastened to Ring in His Nose—Pen Can Be Arranged to Avoid All Handling.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture. Farmers who keep bulls might learn from flier trainers a valuable lesson that if put into practice, would make them better life insurance risks. No man trusts a tiger until it is dead.

Safe Way to Handle a Bull—The Staff Prevents the Bull From Charging—A Rope or Chain Does Not.

different method, can do just as much damage as any animal in the zoo or in the jungle. He is more vicious and treacherous than most of them, and with such a reputation no man should trust him for a minute, no matter what his record for good behavior has been. "Mean" bulls perhaps have killed fewer men than those considered safe.

There are few rural neighborhoods without a list of tragedies and near tragedies resulting from putting trust in "perfectly gentle" animals. Only a few weeks ago an employee of the United States Department of Agriculture, visiting in New York state, was so badly injured by a dairy bull that he died a short time later. The owner let out the animal, always considered gentle, to have its picture taken. Without warning the animal knocked down his owner and then gored the department employee who had rushed to the man's assistance.

Had this bull been led on a staff attached to the ring in his nose the tragedy could not have happened. Better still, it might have been kept in a pen so arranged that handling would not have been necessary at all. Plans for constructing safe bull pens may be obtained from the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Every farmer who owns a bull would do well to put up this warning in his barn: Don't Trust the Bull.

DOUBTFUL EGGS HURT TRADE

More Attention to Careful Candling Will Help Farmers, Merchants and Shippers.

Farmers, merchants and shippers in the country districts will improve the reputation of the market egg if they give more and more attention to careful candling of eggs before they let them go any farther on the way toward the consumer. The presence of doubtful eggs hurts the reputation of all the eggs marketed and has a corresponding effect on the price. The man responsible for the saying "a doubtful egg is a bad egg even if it is a good egg," said something no poultryman or egg dealer ever should forget.

Candling is the surest way to take doubt out of the egg case. The United States Department of Agriculture has a bulletin on the best methods and equipment for doing the work. Those who desire it should write to the department at Washington, D. C., for Department Bulletin 565, How to Candle Eggs. It contains descriptions of candlers for the handling of small numbers of eggs and for handling large quantities.

SWEET CLOVER GAINS FAVOR

Crop Has Found Real Place on Thousands of Farms Where It Was Formerly Tabooed.

It looks as if sweet clover has come to stay. It started with the handicap of being called a weed, but it has outgrown that and has found a real place on thousands of farms where it was tabooed a few years ago.

As a forerunner for fall wheat and for corn it is proving a very useful crop, and its hardiness and capacity to yield remunerative crops of seed are giving it front rank as a crop for soil improvement. But its greatest usefulness has been clearly demonstrated again in many regions, where red clovers have gone back as a dependable and lasting pasture crop. Some who have been trying it out for two or three years are very enthusiastic and are about prepared to seed it exclusively with small grain, instead of red clovers, and use it as pasture. It is not uncommon to hear of sweet clover pastures carrying two to three head of mixed stock per acre, and even then the growth is not kept down.

DANGER FROM TUBERCULOSIS

Diseased Hens Do Not Lay, but Spread Infection to Cattle by Roosting on Mangers.

The danger from tubercular chickens lies not in the eggs, for tubercular hens do not lay, but in the spread of the disease to cattle through chickens roosting on mangers. Dairy cows infect human beings through their milk.

Hen Cares for Eggs.

The hen that steals her nest makes a slight depression in the bay or on the ground. She steps over on the eggs but does not jump down upon them.

Formula for Best Feeding.

The importance of sound food cannot be overestimated. Moldy grain or litter will make trouble. Abundance of food of the right kind, and work on the part of the man to get it, is the formula for successful feeding.

THE TIMID JANEY

By JANE GORDON

"You will not be afraid," they said to Janey as they left her alone in the big silent house. Stephen lingered. "I hate to leave you," he regretted, and sighed wearily.

"It's that everlasting business, interfering even with my pleasure in your visit. The office men will not work overtime—so I have to." Janey reached up to help her fiancé on with his fur coat. "Is the revolt as bad as ever?" she asked.

"Worse," Stephen Ware told her. There are two or three men among the workers who are firebrands. It taxes all my diplomacy to deal with them.

Mrs. Ware turned back to chide her son. "If you are going to drop us at the reception, Stephen, you will have to hurry. The car is at the door. You will not be afraid, Janey?" she repeated her question. "I am sorry this sudden cold of yours prevents you from going with us."

Janey, the guest of her fiancé's mother, fled bravely. "Oh, I shall not be afraid," she said.

The auto rolled out of the drive. Janey, humming in an assurance which she did not feel, went back to the comfortable chair by the fireplace and endeavored to become interested in the book which Stephen had told her would make her forget her solitary condition.

Amused at her own cowardice, Janey sat up to listen. Eleven o'clock! The book dropped from her grasp. Sniffing, she reclined it, pausing before resuming her reading to adjust her hair before a panel mirror against the wall opposite.

A man, back in the shadows of the music room passed too, breathlessly. He was a broad young man with a cap pulled down over his eyes—watching the girl's every movement.

The man crept toward the impressive dining room. His buffet was laden with costly silver; the silver candlesticks at either end bore the "Ware" monogram. He advanced toward the silver-lined buffet. Then, threateningly, he swung around. The heretofore absorbed young woman was staring at her feet. Through the curtained doorway the burglar watched her move toward the telephone.

She seated herself so composedly before the telephone stand that the man hesitated.

Janey gave a number. "Taxi service," she explained to central. The burglar waited, his threatening revolver in his hand.

"Yes, please," the girl's voice was saying. "I would like to be called for at once. I am going on to a dance after the reception. Have just decided to go. Hurry over at once, to 48 Park lane—48 Park lane—in five minutes? All right."

Joe Gant drew back against the wall as she passed him on her way to a clothes closet which opened from the living room. She found there an opera cloak and a small hat which she adjusted, sitting down, then, to await the expected taxi.

Joe decided to wait too, until she should be gone. Then the house to himself—Stephen Ware's house—to plunder.

She would have to pass this curtained recess on her way to the door. Joe moved stealthily toward the dining room; he looked back—and encountered the girl's eyes in the panel mirror. Something in her gaze told him that she had discovered him in that manner a short time previously.

Boldly he stepped out into the light. "I don't think," he said quietly, "that I will let you go. You've been too clever. Your taxi man can ring."

"He won't ring," Janey heard herself coolly answering. "The man will force entrance, for it was not a taxi that I called, but the police."

The burglar came forward menacingly. "I heard you say—" he muttered. "You heard me," she explained. "When I covered the telephone mouthpiece, you also heard me when I asked the police to hurry over at once—in five minutes. They knew what that meant. I think I hear them now. It will make it harder for you." Janey hastily added, "to be found with that pistol."

The burglar stared at her, his attitude quickly changing. "You've got to let me out of here," he demanded. "I did not come of my own account. I was sent by our society. We work for Stephen Ware, and he gets rich out of our labor. We wanted to take from him some of our earnings—let him see how it feels to be robbed. I've got a mother who will go crazy when she reads this, in the paper—and I've got sisters at school. I'm telling you the truth."

"Then," Janey said, "you are one of the firebrands that are ruining Stephen Ware's men. You are most unjust. I happen to know, straight, conscientious work will bring you the reward that you prefer to fight for. Will you be Stephen Ware's friend or tonight? Will you be your own friend? I shall claim your promise."

"I will," breathed Joe Gant. Janey was greeting the police officer. "I must beg your pardon," she said ruefully. "I am from Lynden village. I called the police station tonight when I should have called a taxi."

"And there was something about her," the officer later explained to his mates, "that would make a man forgive her if she'd called out the whole force."

The Essential.

Yes, and if you be sure that your part be good, and another hold the contrary, yet if it be a thing that maketh no matter, you will laugh and let it pass, and refer the thing to other men, and stick y^e stiff and stubbornly in earnest and necessary things.—William Tyndale, Sixteenth Century.

Pills and salts give temporary relief from constipation only at the expense of permanent injury, says an eminent medical authority. Science has found a newer, better way—a means as simple as Nature itself.

In perfect health a natural lubricant keeps the food waste soft and moving. But when constipation exists this natural lubricant is not sufficient. Medical authorities have found that the gentle lubricating action of Nujol most closely resembles that of Nature's own lubricant. As Nujol is not a laxative it cannot gripe. It is in no sense a medicine. And like pure water it is harmless and pleasant.

Sheds New Light on Egyptology

Unearthing of Royal Tomb Greatest Archaeological Discovery of Modern Times.

SEPOLCHERS CUT IN HILLS

Tomb of Tutankhamen, 1350 B. C., Not Only Yields Vast Treasures, but Is Expected to Reveal Historical Lore.

London.—That the recent unearthing of a royal tomb near Luxor is the greatest archaeological discovery in Egypt in modern times already is certain. How great, in the light which it throws on the vanished civilization which made the wisdom of Egypt prevail down all the ages, the discovery may prove to be—this remains for the secret of the still unopened inner chamber to reveal.

The story of the discovery, made by the earl of Carnarvon, whose wealth has enabled him to devote himself to the costly hobby of Egyptology, and Howard Carter, perhaps the finest living archaeological draughtsman, reads like a romance. The valley of the tombs of the kings, where the find was made, is a desert ravine lying behind the barren cliffs and hills, which form the mighty walls of the Nile valley on the western bank of the river, some 450 miles above Cairo.

CARS ROT AS BOARD SQUABBLES

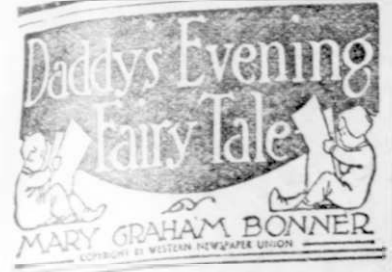

Commission Unable to Apportion Rolling Stock of the Former Austrian Railroads.

Vienna.—While the members of the Austrian rolling stock commission are making efforts to decide how the equipment of the former Austrian railroads shall be divided among the newly-made states, thousands of locomotives and freight cars are rotting on the sidings of central Europe. The commission, which is composed of one representative of each of the seven states erected from the old Austrian empire, was appointed under the treaty of St. Germain to dispose of the railroads and rolling stock under a plan favorable to the allies.

The commission has so far been unable to come to a decision, and it has had to dismiss its staff of engineers and experts because of lack of funds. The British government has been advised to loan any further amounts until repayment was guaranteed. The mission has been unable to do this, although the rolling stock in question is said to be worth $500,000,000.

GOODIES THAT WILL KEEP Stuffed dates, figs and prunes are always a dainty enjoyed by young and old.

Ginger Dates.—Remove the stones from large dates and fill with equal quantities of chopped ginger and nuts, using the preserved ginger and moisten with a little of the ginger sirup.

Fruit Rocks.—Cream two-thirds of a cupful of butter with one cupful of sugar, add two beaten eggs and when well mixed add one and one-half cupful of flour which has been sifted with one teaspoonful each of cinnamon and cloves.

Tutti Frutti Candy.—Dissolve one-half pound of granulated sugar in three-fourths of a cupful of water, bring to the boiling point and boil in the soft-ball stage.

Cinnamon Cakes. Take one-half cupful of butter; work until creamy; add one-half pound of sugar and gradually three beaten eggs.

Sea Foam.—Take two cupfuls of sugar, one-half cupful of corn sirup and one-half cupful of water. Boil to the soft-ball stage, add almond flavoring and pour over ten stiffly beaten egg whites; beat until stiff, add chopped almonds and finely-minced candied cherries.

Nut Cookies.—Cream one-half cupful of butter with two cupfuls of sugar; add one cupful of sweet milk, three eggs, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one cupful of walnut meats, broken in bits.

The man who is ever seeking to do his best is the one who is least active, wide awake and aggressive. He is ever watchful of himself in speech. His standard is not what will the world say? but "What is worthy of me?"

SEASONABLE DAINTIES During the winter months when fruit, such as oranges, lemons and grapefruit is plentiful, most delicious candied sweets may be prepared from the peel.

Candied Orange Peel.—Cover the peel of four oranges with two quarts of water; bring slowly to a boil and simmer until the peel is tender. Drain and let stand for two hours. Remove all the white inner skin and when the peel is dry cut into strips.

Candied Cranberries.—Put two cupfuls of sugar on to boil with three-fourths of a cupful of water. Boil slowly for five minutes. Wash and dry two cupfuls of large, hard, dark red cranberries, pierce each with a darning needle, then spread the berries in a single layer on a granite pan.

Fruit and Nut Paste.—Take two cupfuls of dates after stoning, one cupful of peanut butter, one teaspoonful of salt. Wash and dry the dates and put through a meat chopper, add the peanut butter and mix well with the salt.

Raisin Pie.—Line a pie plate with pastry. Put one cupful of seeded raisins add the grated rind and juice of a lemon; beat two egg yolks and mix with one-half cupful of sugar, add a cupful of water, a bit of salt and a few bits of butter. Put into the pastry shell, cover with a crust and bake thirty-five minutes.

South Sea Islands. Polynesia, from two Greek words meaning "many islands," is the name generally applied to the South Sea Islands. The chief group embraces Hawaii, the Ellice, Phoenix, Union, Manihiki and Marquesas group.

Perhaps. Old Dobbin might have remained popular if there had been some place for him to fasten $200 worth of accessories.—Dulwich Herald.

DISCOVERED ERROR TOO LATE

Rash Husband Jumped to Conclusion as to the Meaning of His Wife's Mutterings.

Gov. Ephraim Morgan of West Virginia was talking at a dinner about certain coal-mine complications. "Well," he said, "let us hope nobody does anything rash."

"A certain man got married, and one night on the honeymoon he was awakened by the voice of his young bride talking in her sleep. "Roland," she sighed, "Roland—Roland! Over and over, you know, like that. It was terrible.

Filter Is Self-Cleaning. In a new clearest filter, shown in Popular Mechanics Magazine, water entering at the top from a down-spout flows over a slanting screen, which allows leaves and coarse material to be washed out through an outlet near the top.

For Friendship's Sake. It was during a lively skirmish between the irregulars and the Free Staters. One of the latter, it being his first engagement, was very nervous.

In this world the hardest knocks we get are delivered by our supposed friends.

Laugh at other people's jokes. It is the most tactful compliment—and good-hearted.

BROKE BOTH THEIR RECORDS SUNELY WAS BRIGHT YOUTH When It Came to Bible Reading, Last Corner 'Put All Over' His Friends.

Greenberry Lowe, settlement clerk in the state auditor's office, and a statehouse friend one day were discussing their early religious familiarity with the Bible.

"I read the Bible through before I was fourteen," said the friend. "Yes, but I read it through before I was twelve," said Lowe.

The Modern Phase. "You say she's intellectual?" "Very." "In that case I'd better memorize a little something from Shelley and a little something from Keats. It might help if the conversation lags."

If a rolling stone likes to roll, it doesn't care for moss. Any scheme that doesn't earn its way is predatory.

Off to school on a winter morning —fresh and rosy—or pinched and chilly? That's a matter for Mother to decide.

Children, as well as grown-ups, need a hot mealtime beverage that is wholesome, invigorating, and free from harmful after-effects.

Coffee is known to be harmful—especially to children. That is why so many thoughtful mothers give their children delicious Postum.

BUYS ELECTRIC SHOP

Harold Petri, who is employed by the Badger Public Service Company, as maintainer, on Tuesday purchased the electric shop owned by Messrs. P. J. Haug and N. W. Rosenheimer, located in the Haug jewelry store on Upper Main street. Mr. Petri was given possession immediately, and will continue to conduct the electric shop in said building. He will keep in stock an up to date supply of all electrical supplies and materials, such as lights, sockets, switches, wires, motors, irons, etc. Anyone in need of these supplies can call at the Petri Electric Shop, where their wants will be taken care of. Any one having trouble with their light and power plant can get in touch with Mr. Petri at his shop, for it is Mr. Petri's intention to give the best of service in the electrical business to his customers. We feel confident that he will be successful in his new undertaking, for he is a young man full of ambition and always willing to do his best. Good luck to you Harold, is the wish of the Statesman and its many readers.

IN MEMORY

In loving remembrance of Simon Sommers, who passed away three years ago January 15th, 1920. In his lonely grave he sleeps. As the shadows onward fall, And our loving hearts are weeping, No more his presence we can call. Do not ask us if we miss him, For there's such a vacant place. Oh, we think we hear his footsteps, Or we see his confiding face, A loving father, true and kind, No friend like him on earth can find. God called him home, it was his will, But in our hearts he lingers still. Tho, he is gone, love lingers still. For all of us, he did his best, May God grant eternal rest. Sadly missed by his children.

WITH THE LEGISLATURE OF WISCONSIN

Madison, Wis.—Senator Henry Huber, Stoughton, has introduced a memorial to congress for amnesty for In asking President Harding for the immediate release of these prisoners, Senator Huber pointed out in his resolution that war time offenders in other countries have long since been given their freedom.

Senator Huber also introduced an amendment to the constitution providing for the initiative and referendum.

To Ask Vote on Dry Laws Senator George Czerwinski, Milwaukee, has prepared a bill providing for a referendum in April, 1924, on prohibition. The bill will present two questions:

First, whether the people of Wisconsin favor the Volstead law in its present form or modification to legalize beer and light wines.

Second, whether the people favor the eighteenth amendment or want it repealed.

Hits at Utility Debts Apparently for the purpose of forcing public utilities in the state to retire their bond issues within a given time, the same as cities and counties, Assemblyman Duncan, socialist, introduced a resolution calling upon the railroad commission to furnish certain information to the legislature.

Budget Cuts Indicated That the 1923 legislature will use the pruning knife freely on appropriation requests was indicated when the state board of public affairs made known the gross requests in comparison with the estimated expenses for the present fiscal year.

Assemblyman Oliver introduced a bill which provided that judges will automatically vacate their office in the event they become a candidate for any political office other than a judicial one.

Assemblyman Gauer would repeal the statute which prohibits the county board from paying where the per foot frontage is assessed at upwards of $20 per foot.

Blaine Asks Tax Law Changes

Sweeping changes in the state's system of taxation constitute the outstanding recommendation in Gov. Blaine's annual message to the Wisconsin legislature...

Most important of the changes which the governor proposes is that by which the amount of money raised by taxes on real property and on incomes "be in a definite ratio."

The governor suggests that thought should be given to a plan for ultimately repealing the personal property tax and substituting therefor the income tax.

Other recommendations of the governor with regard to taxation are: Exemptions of the state income tax to be increased to approximate exemptions of the federal income tax.

Repeal of the secrecy clause of the state income tax law. Repeal of the law exempting corporation dividends from taxation.

Exemption from property taxation up to a specific value for home owners. Amendment of the statutes to allow the tax commission to audit income tax returns back as far as 1915, when the state income tax law was passed.

Chas. E. Backus

Health is the Most Valuable Asset You Have

Newago, Mich.—"Some years ago I was troubled with dizziness, palpitation, loss of appetite and sore and painful stomach. I tried the best physicians I could hear of, and also several put-up medicines, but nothing did me any good. Some physicians said it was my stomach; while others said it was my nerves. I got so bad I could not work very steadily, when a friend came to see me and insisted upon my trying Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I was discouraged, but tried it anyway, and after taking the second bottle I felt much better. I then bought six bottles and I believe the 'Discovery' saved my life. It was rightfully named 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I would recommend it to all who need such a medicine—Chas. E. Backus.

In Nursing Sick, Mrs. Patten States, She Often Recommends Tanlac—Thinks It Wonderful.

"I firmly believe Tanlac is what keeps me so well and strong," is the high tribute paid the medicine, recently, by Mrs. Edith J. Patten, widely known and esteemed resident of 500 Cumberland Ave., Portland, Me.

"When I began the use of Tanlac I had not felt right for a long time and was all run down. After persistently taking the treatment considered best for such a condition I got no better. In fact I seemed to be growing worse until a lady friend insisted on me trying Tanlac.

"At that time I took two or three bottles and was perfectly well again. Since then I have taken a bottle two or three times a year and no one could feel better. I have done lots of nursing of the sick, and since Tanlac did so much for me I have been the cause of many others taking it—always with splendid results. It is with this knowledge and experience that I recommend Tanlac as a wonderful medicine."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Over 35 million bottles sold.—Advertisement.

HIGH SCHOOL DRAWS CONFERENCE

The students of the Kewaskum High School, as well as the citizens of this village and community, will witness a great deal of excitement, along the line of athletics and debates within the next few months. Through the untiring efforts of Principal Rich, he has been successful in having a basketball conference held here on March 15th and 16th, in which teams from six different schools will participate.

A Tri-County Interscholastic Association has been formed for that purpose with H. M. Guskow, Principal of the Campbellsport High School as secretary. The counties included in this association are Washington, Dodge and Fond du Lac. The schools to take part in same are: Lomira, Oakfield, Rosendale, Campbellsport, Slinger and Kewaskum.

The association will stage three big events, basketball conference, which will be held at the Opera House on the above dates mentioned, a track meet which will be held at Campbellsport, in which each school will be represented by one team. The debates will all be held the same evening on the same question by a home team and a visiting team from each school. The dates for the latter two contests have as yet not been announced. More particulars of the three big events will be published next week.

LET US BE YOUR SALESMAN

It matters not whether it is a promoter putting on a world's championship boxing bout or a prune peddler trying to sell a few pounds of his produce to a public that demands raisins and yeast cakes, it takes publicity to get the goods started to moving, and the man who advertises the most religiously, gets the kind of results he has started out to get.

And the KEWASKUM STATESMAN is right on the ground, week in and week out, year in and year out, giving the advertiser his money's worth. All we have to sell is publicity, and no matter what one of our readers have to sell, we are in a position to tell our particular part of the world what it is, and the results are always gratifying.

There isn't a rural reader on our list who does not have some article he or she would like to dispose of, and there are undoubtedly hundreds of other readers who want exactly what you have to sell.

You can spend as little or as much as you like to advertise the article you wish to dispose of, and you can depend upon it, if it's sellable, the STATESMAN will sure make the sale.

And it isn't only the rural readers who have something to sell. The readers right here in town have any number of things to dispose of and they can "get shed" of their overflow on the same plan. The STATESMAN has plenty of personal friends but shows no favors in a business way, so the rural subscriber has the same opportunity as the city dweller, and vice versa.

Our rates for advertising, in the Classified Column, is 5 cents per line (count 6 words to the line), cash or stamps with order, no order less than 25c. This part of the paper is as carefully read as any other part. Every advertisement get a reply, and when it has done that, then we have given value received.

Write your ad—or phone it—or come to the office and tell us what you have to sell, and let us do the rest.
