J. F. CAVANAUGH IS PROMOTED

James F. Cavanaugh, principal of the Green Lake County Training School, for the past three years, and who for ten years was principal of the Kewaskum High School, was elected Kewaskum superintendent of schools at a meeting of the board of education held at Kewaskum on Friday afternoon.

Mr. Cavanaugh was the choice over ten other candidates for the office. The Kewaskum Journal of last week (Thursday) gives a very creditable account of Mr. Cavanaugh's regime as principal of the Green Lake County Training School, and of his accepting the position as superintendent of schools at Kewaskum. The article is as follows:

"J. F. Cavanaugh, for the past three years principal of the Green Lake County Training School, located in this city, has today accepted the position of city superintendent of schools at Kewaskum for the coming year.

The training school, which was first established and growing under the successive regimes of Principals Edgar Furbush and C. D. Lambertson, has gained notably in strength and effectiveness under Principal Cavanaugh. This may be ascribed in part to improved teaching conditions and to the enthusiastic efforts and widespread influence of an able man at the head of the institution.

For ten years J. F. Cavanaugh was superintendent principal of the high school at Kewaskum, Wis. This followed a two year term as principal of the Manchester State Grade school at Manchester. From Kewaskum he went to Iron River, Mich., where he served for six years as superintendent of schools. He resigned this position in 1918 to enter service during the war.

As principal of the local training school, Mr. Cavanaugh received a yearly salary of $3,200. His salary as superintendent of schools at Kewaskum will represent a substantial increase in the journal has been informed.

The total enrollment of the training school for the present school year is 92. Graduation at the end of the year, however, removed a number of these students. While sixteen others, who have already completed the required course and who will graduate in June are at present filling teaching positions. Forty-four of the new graduating class, which numbers thirty-three, are high school graduates.

The many friends of Mr. Cavanaugh are indeed glad to learn of his moving, and join the Statesman in extending heartiest congratulations and best wishes for his future career.

HOME TALENT PLAY AT ST. MICHAELS

"Lighthouse Nar", a three act comedy drama, will be given by the St. Michaels' Dramatic Club on May 10 and 13th. Rehearsals are well under way and the players are making good progress.

It is a powerful play, portraying the joys and the sorrows of life; the audience is made to feel that they have actually known and lived among the characters, smiling at their joys, sympathizing with their sorrows and rejoicing in the happy ending.

The play opens in a rough lighthouse on the Carolina coast, Ned Blake, from the city, is spending his vacation here and has been captivated with the cheerfulness and artless simplicity of a young girl, Nan, supposed to be the grand daughter of Ichabod Buzzer, the old lighthouse keeper. Nan has grown up in her rough surroundings, as a wild flower, beautiful and innocent, with no knowledge of the great world that lies over the mountains. Ned Blake has taught her to read and succeeds in winning her girl's heart. A party of Ned's friends come to visit him and spend several days at the lighthouse. In the party is Mr. John Enlow whose baby has been abducted many years before by Injun Jim, the son-in-law of Ichabod Buzzer. Jim's wife, Liza Buzzer, returns the baby to Enlow after Jim has been sent to the penitentiary, but instead of returning the rightful heir, she substitutes her own child and Lighthouse Nan proves to be John Enlow's daughter.

Injun Jim meets Hortense Enlow, who is really his own daughter, and tells her the secret of her birth. She bribes him to obtain the proofs of his story from old Moll Buzzer, Ichabod's wife. He attempts to steal these papers at night but is frustrated by Nan, who rings the alarm bell and awakens the village. John Enlow has taken a fancy to Nan, not knowing that she is his real daughter, and offers to send her away for two years to a boarding school.

The last act reveals the library in Enlow's city home. It is Christmas Day and Nan is coming home for a vacation. Ned Blake, still in love with Nan, has become suspicious of Hortense, who shows an unexplainable interest in Injun Jim, her real father, who again has been sent to the penitentiary. Ned, suspecting the truth, sends for Ichabod and Moll Buzzer in an effort to clear up the mystery of Nan's birth.

In the mean time Hortense has secretly wedded an Englishman, and when the truth is known that she is really the child of Injun Jim and Liza Buzzer, John Enlow kindly conceals this fact from her husband and they depart to begin life in the old world. Enlow tells the world that Nan is his adopted daughter and heiress and the play ends happily with a chime of Christmas bells and "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men."

Reserve the dates, May 10 and 13, for St. Michaels' Dramatic Club play.

The different schools are hard at work getting in trim for this big event, which will no doubt be very interesting and exciting.

THE GRIM REAPER CALLS MANY

MRS. EMELIE L. KOEHN
Mrs. Emelie L. Koehn (nee Suemnick), beloved wife of Albert Koehn, and a prominent resident of Dundee, died at her home, Monday at midnight after an illness of 7 1/2 weeks with a complication of diseases brought about by the infirmities of old age. She was born Sept. 18, 1846 in Damerau Pammerin, Germany. In Aug. 1869, she immigrated to this country settling in the town of Mitchell, coming to her present home 15 years ago. On Sept. 5, 1869, she was married to Albert Koehn, who together with the following children survive: Anna (Mrs. Fred Swinn) and Ottilie (Mrs. Harlos) of Milwaukee; Emelie of Pasadena, Calif.; Minnie (Mrs. Bernhard O'Brien) of Chicago; Richard of Sturgeon Bay; William of Milwaukee; Emma of Milwaukee; Edward of Osceola and August of Dundee. Two sons Charles and Albert died several years ago. The funeral was held Friday afternoon, April 27 at two o'clock with services in the Luth church at Dundee. Rev. Aepler officiated. Burial took place in Pleasant Hill cemetery.

Mrs. Koehn was one of the first settlers of the town of Mitchell, she was a kind and faithful woman to the end. She was always ready to assist those in need. She was a hard worker, before coming to Dundee fifteen years ago, she resided on a farm 1 1/2 miles east of Dundee, which is now managed by her son Edward. Mrs. Koehn was a good christian, and well liked by all who knew her. Besides her husband and children she leaves to mourn her demise, two sisters, Mrs. E. Buchholz of Missouri and Mrs. Otto Hellmer of Cascade; three brothers Chas., William and Albert Suemnick of Cascade.

The winners in average places will compete in the city contest to be held at Fond du Lac on Saturday, April 28th.

HER AMBITION TO BE THE GREATEST OF MOTHERS

With an ambition to be the greatest mother in the world rather than the greatest actress, Mrs. Mary Carr, the charming artist who essays the role of Ma Benton in the William Fox film presentation "Over the Hill", says that for her the playing of such a part is merely transferring her household duties from the home to the screen. Six little Carrs and the father, Wm. C. Carr, are in that happy home, and four of the children acted with their mother in "Over the Hill", which will be shown at the Opera House, Saturday and Sunday evenings, April 28 and 29.

"I have three boys and three little girls", Mrs. Carr explains, "and I am determined to bring up three gentlemen and three ladies. If I accomplish this my fondest ambition will have been realized. At least six fine young women and young men should make any woman feel that she had been a success as a mother."

Mrs. Carr, under her maiden name of Mary Kennevan, began her stage career in a stock company in her home town of Philadelphia. One of her earliest engagements was in ingenue parts in stock with Valerie Berge. Later she appeared as Louise in "The Two Orphans" and as Carey in "Alabama". After her marriage and a brief service in pictures, when the babies began arriving she decided to give all her time to her home.

"But I went back to pictures when ever I got the chance," she explains, "and was always happiest when playing mother roles. I had such roles in 'The Flames of Johanna', 'The Light of Dusk', 'The Barrier', 'Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch', and 'The Lion and the Mouse', but enjoyed none of them half so much as my latest picture, 'Over the Hill', under the direction of William Fox.

DOUBLE WEDDING AT KEWASKUM

The Holy Trinity church of Kewaskum, was the scene of a double wedding on Tuesday morning, when Miss Margaret Gruber, daughter of Mrs. Lena Gruber of this village, was united in marriage to Wm. R. Stern of Kenosha. And Math. Gruber, a son of Mrs. Gruber was married to Miss May A. Schmidt, daughter of Gust Schmidt of West Bend. Both couples were attended by Miss Olive Gruber, as bridesmaid, and Anton Gruber as best man. The former bride was dressed in a white sleeveless silk dress, trimmed with silk lace panels. She wore a white veil, and carried a showy bouquet of roses and sweet peas. The latter bride wore a white crepe de chine dress, and white veil. She carried a bouquet of roses and sweet peas. The bridesmaid wore a yellow bloused organdie dress, and carried a bouquet of red roses. After the ceremony the newly weds with about 45 invited guests repaired to the home of Mrs. Gruber, where the event was most enjoyably celebrated. The home was prettily decorated with American beauties.

Mr. and Mrs. Stern left the same day for Kenosha, where they will reside and where the groom is employed as a mechanic.

Mr. and Mrs. Gruber will reside in this village in the upper flat of the Kewaskum Bakery. The groom is employed as baker.

The Statesman joins the many friends of the contracting parties in extending best wishes for a happy and prosperous married life.

KEWASKUM CREAMERY SOLD

The Kewaskum Creamery, which for the past twenty years was owned and efficiently managed by S. C. Wollensak, was this week disposed of by Mr. Wollensak to William B. Wells, wholesale milk and cream dealer of Chicago. Mr. Wells has been in the milk business for the past forty years, and is well posted with the business. He is an honest and upright man, and comes here with the best of recommendations. He will take possession of the plant on May 1st.

Mr. Wollensak, as yet undecided just what he will do in the future. He will however, reside in this village. He wishes to express his sincere thanks to all his patrons and customers, for the liberal patronage extend to him while in business, through whose support he was successful in building up a large business and also to produce a quality of butter and cheese that gained a wide reputation for its purity and quality. He hopes that his patrons will continue to give their liberal patronage to his successor, who will do everything in his power to work for the welfare and interest of his patrons.

WORK STARTED ON HIGHWAY 55

The Froemming Construction Co., of Milwaukee, moved their machinery to the north end of the Washington County line, this week, where they have started to pave Highway 55, a stretch of road about a half mile long, which was left unfinished last year. They will work as far south as they can at this time, when they will go west of West Bend, where they will do cement work on Trunk Highway M and on the Cedar Lake road. Upon the completion of this road, they will pave the relocation between Kewaskum and West Bend. It is expected that this stretch will be started toward the latter part of the summer. The reason for not finishing this road at this time is to give the foundation a good chance to settle before the concrete is poured upon it. The detour, which is the old Fond du Lac road is in good condition, so none of the tourists need be alarmed over same.

The Washington County State Road and Bridge Committee in company with a state engineer made a tour of inspection where the overhead bridge is to be built, on Wednesday, and report that the land necessary to be used for the approach of the bridge will undoubtedly be bought some time next week. After this is done, bids will be let, and the construction of the bridge will then be started.

The County has appropriated $4,000 to the town of Kewaskum, which will be used for the maintenance of highway 26, west of this village.

GETTING READY FOR FIELD DAY

A meeting of the executive and publicity committees for the Wisconsin Dairyman's Field Day, to be held on the C. A. Schroeder farm south of West Bend on June 16, was held at the court house in West Bend on Monday afternoon. This event, the second to be held in this state, is of such magnitude that it will be no small matter to make complete arrangements. The committee, however, has general plans outlined and it is hoped that this meeting will set an unprecedented mark.

The meet of last year was held on the Erickson & Son farm near Waukegan and was attended by approximately 12,000 people. Due to the location of our county there should be no reason why there should not be an equal or larger attendance. The day will be featured by many events, talks by Gov. Blaine, members of the staff of the University of Wisconsin and of the College of Agriculture, and of the foremost of the state's stock breeders.

Placing this meet in Washington county is one of the greatest distinctions that has come our way for many years, and with good, whole-hearted get-together spirit between the farmers and businessmen of the county we will put this meet across strong.

The meet will be for all farmers and breeders, regardless of the kind of stock bred. Several of the neighboring counties will be represented by thousands of people, and the cities of Chicago, Milwaukee and Fond du Lac will send large delegations.

Therefore let's talk field day and make such a success of this meet that Washington county will be proud of the event for years to come.

NEW FANE TO HAVE BASE BALL TEAM

At a base ball meeting held at New Fane at Nic. Schiltz's hall on April 14, a base ball team was organized. Wm. Garber was elected chairman and Jac. Schiltz secretary of the meeting. The following officers were elected: Wm. Garber, manager; Clarence Wernert, captain; and Jac. Schiltz secretary and treasurer. If weather permits, players should turn out for a try-out. A committee of three has been appointed to pick the players for the season, this gives everyone a chance to become a player on the team. Manager Garber has secured a strong battery which will make things look interesting for the visiting teams. Some good players have also signed up. All good teams wishing a game, write Wm. Garber, Manager, Kewaskum, Wis.

On Friday, May 11, a benefit dance will be held at Nic. Schiltz's hall. Everybody is cordially invited to attend. Lunch will be served and good music will be furnished.

ALLOW $50 FOR BURIAL EXPENSES

Madison Counties now must expend $50 over the burial of deceased inmates of their insane asylums. Governor J. J. Blaine announced his signature to the bill by Senator Herman T. Lange, Eau Claire, providing for the increase in the amount of county money available for notification of relatives and proper expenses of the burial of inmates of insane asylums.

WILL PRESENT PLAY

KEEP OFF YANK TOE, PARLEY TOLD

United States Backs Open Door at the Lausanne Conference.

SCRAMBLE FOR OIL IS ON

Joseph C. Grew, Uncle Sam's Representative, Makes America's Position Clear in a Brief Inaugural Speech.

Lausanne, April 24.—Safeguarding of the legitimate national interests of the United States and of the principle of commercial opportunity for all nations was officially set forth as the guiding rule of the American representatives when the near east peace conference resumed its labors in an endeavor to restore peace between the allied powers and Turkey and between Greece and Turkey.

Joseph C. Grew, American minister to Switzerland, and head of the delegation made this clear in a brief inaugural speech following similar addresses by leaders of the other delegations. The conference then divided itself into three committees, each of which will take up subjects in dispute, and tomorrow active discussions on concrete topics will be begun.

Minister Grew said the United States welcomed the resumption of the conference. It had recognized on a substantial basis; an understanding had already been reached on a variety of important subjects, and upon this firm foundation the United States expected soon to see erected that edifice of a just and stable peace for which the world was waiting with eagerness.

"We are here for the same purposes and in the same capacity as before the adjournment, participating not in the footing of a belligerent against Turkey nor as a party to the treaty of peace under negotiations between the allied powers and Turkey, but none the less in a fully representative capacity and with full authorization and competence to speak on behalf of the government of the United States."

The question of the near eastern oil fields, especially those covered by the Chester concession, was in the foreground as the conference opened.

Whether the general subject of concessions comes before the conference formally seems to depend on the success of direct negotiations between British and French concession holders and the Turkish government.

Developments indicate that soviet Russia will decline to be eliminated as a factor in the present negotiations but will insist on having something to say, as one of the states invited to the original conference.

Railroad Expressmen Seek Pay Raise of $18,000,000

Chicago, April 24.—Seventy-two thousand railway workers, members of the Order of Railroad Expressmen, filed a plea with the United States Railroad Labor board for a wage increase to approximate $18,000,000 annually.

U. S. INDICTS 92 MEN

Oil Promoters Face Serious Charges in Texas.

Federal Prosecutor Says They Have Obtained About $7,000,000 in Cash.

Fort Worth, Tex., April 21.—A federal grand jury indicted ninety-two oil promoters on charges of using the mails to defraud.

United States District Attorney Henry Zweifel declared that investigation has disclosed that the oil firms involved have obtained more than $7,000,000 in cash by sale of stock.

"Three of the companies are mergers of 458 firms which had sold $136,000,000 in stock," said Mr. Zweifel. "The companies named in the indictment and those companies which later were merged have had about 2,064,000 stockholders."

Indictments of the following persons were made public: S. E. J. Cox, aviation promoter and oil man, employee of the Petroleum Producers' association.

E. C. Kingsbury, Republican choice for postmaster at Fort Worth. Gen. Robert A. Lee.

Dr. Frederick A. Cook, polar explorer who once claimed discovery of the North pole; president and sole trustee of the Petroleum Producers' association.

There are said to be about 704,000 investors in the companies named in the indictments. Mr. Zweifel estimated that the Revere company had obtained $1,500,000 in cash; Dr. Cook's company, $500,000; Carruth company, $800,000; Consolidated Producing and Refining company, $950,000; C. Madrid, April 24.—Alexander P. Moore of Pittsburgh, the new United States ambassador to Spain, arrived here. He will present his credentials to King Alfonso at the end of the week.

17 inches of Snow in Wyoming

Cheyenne, Wyo., April 24.—Seventeen inches of wet snow has fallen at many points throughout Wyoming since Saturday night. Never before, it is said, has so wet and heavy a snow fallen this late in the season.

WISCONSIN HAPPENINGS

Important News of the Badger State Arranged in Condensed Form

Madison—Public institutions of the state held 13,322 inmates on March 31, as compared with 13,184 at the same time a year ago, according to the report of the state board of control made public. State institutions hold 5,227 while all county institutions have a total of 8,095 inmates. There are 2,772 on parole this year as against 3,185 a year ago and 248 on probation compared with 225 a year ago. Women inmates number to between one half and a third of the number of men in state institutions and men are also more numerous in institutions maintained by counties. The population of penal institutions has decreased from 1,247 to 1,125 during the last year. Tubercular patients are about the same in number.

Madison—The poultry industry in Wisconsin for the past year was valued at nearly $30,000,000. This is the statement of J. E. Hayes, poultry department at the University of Wisconsin. Hayes declares that farm poultry industry in the Badger state is growing rapidly. The number of fowl kept on the farms is increasing rapidly. With the increase in numbers, there is also a very appreciable gain in production. There are now sixty-eight hens as an average for each farm in Wisconsin. Latest census reports show that on Jan. 1, 1923, there were more than 13,613,000 hens in the state.

Stevens Point—Claims totaling $18,500 have been presented to the Portage county board of supervisors by four young people of Waupaca county who were injured last summer when their car plunged through the railing on the bridge on state trunk highway 18, near Amherst Junction, and rolled end over end to the Soo line tracks 30 feet below. The bridge has long been regarded as a danger point in central Wisconsin and that the occupants of the car were not killed was considered a miracle.

Fond du Lac—B. F. Sheridan of Fond du Lac, a leader in dairy activities, and F. G. Swoboda of Plymouth, general manager of the Wisconsin Cheese Producers' federation, have been named as members of a committee of twelve from the Farm Bureau of Federation of America to organize a central co-operative sales agency for the states of Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio.

Kenosha—Six Catholic charitable organizations are to benefit from the bequest made in the will of the late John McNulty, pioneer resident of Kenosha, who died recently and whose will was filed for probate. They are the House of the Good Shepherd, St. Amillan's Orphan Asylum, St. Joseph's Orphan Asylum, St. Rose's orphanage, St. Vincent's Orphan Asylum, and the Little Sisters of the Poor, each to receive $200.

La Crosse—Jack Daley, proprietor of Cliffwood Inn, a roadhouse outside of La Crosse, was shot and killed by his wife during a quarrel. According to her story, Daley came home from the city intoxicated, abused and threatened her and she picked up the revolver and pointed it at him to subdue him, and the revolver was discharged accidentally, she said.

Madison—H. R. Trumbower, member of the Wisconsin Railroad commission, has resigned his position to accept a position with the United States Department of Agriculture. Trumbower will take charge of the federal department's reserve and the problems of motor transportation.

Green Bay—One of the finest Y. M. C. A. buildings in the northwest will be constructed in Green Bay within a short time as the result of a week's strenuous canvassing which pushed the city over the top to raise $426,280—or $75,000 more than the original quota.

Manitowoc—After serving more than nineteen years as Manitowoc street commissioner, Emil Volleendorff was defeated for reappointment by Edward Fricke. Only one ballot was taken, the vote of the aldermen being 7 to 6 in favor of the new candidate.

Plainfield—Paul Zacharias, a farmer residing near Puckaway lake, south of Plainfield, lost 10 cows and one horse in an unusual way. His cows and horses were standing on the top of the Fox river dike, when the ice suddenly gave way and all were drowned.

Kewaunee—While driving his father's team across a creek on their farm near Kewaunee, Emil, the 4-year-old son of Frank Bostedt, fell into the water and drowned before he could be reached.

Prairie du Chien—Carroll Russell, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Russell, Copper Creek, met death when he slid from a hay stack and fell onto a hay knife. The knife penetrated his body nearly 10 inches, and he died before a physician could be called.

Ladysmith—While excavating on the site of Hintz Bros.' new shingle mill in Ladysmith, workmen unearthed bones of a human being, together with a copper arrow head. The relics were found about four feet below the surface of the ground.

Fond du Lac—Six head of valuable cattle were burned to death in a $10,000 fire which completely destroyed the barn, toolshed, machinery and an automobile on the Fred Schwartz farm.

Lime Ridge—Mrs. Paul Franks of Lime Ridge was severely burned as the result of an explosion which occurred while she was filling the lamp of an incubator. She thought she was using kerosene, but the can had been filled at a local store with gasoline instead.

Beloit—Mrs. Anna Lytle Tennahm, dean of women at Beloit college since 1919, will retire at the end of the present school year. Her resignation was accepted by the board of trustees.

Appleton—Appleton lodge of the Loyal Order of Moose acquired a building for a clubhouse through purchase of Bushey Business college at a price of $19,000. The three-story building will be remodeled for lodge and recreational purposes. The school has been discontinued.

Baraboo—Mr. and Mrs. James D. Gilbert, who conducted a business college at Baraboo for several years, have closed the school and will move to the south.

With the Wisconsin Legislature

Madison, Wis.—The state board of education was saved by the assembly by the scant margin of one vote. The lower house voted, 43 to 42, to non-concur in the Gary senate bill abolishing the board.

The vote came after more than an hour's debate. Proponents of the bill based their support largely on economic grounds. Opponents acknowledged the economical advantage of the bill, but expressed opposition to economizing at the expense of efficient management of the state school system.

Gov. Blaine openly advocated abolition of the board of education in a special message to the legislature, and had his entire office force on the floor working for passage of the Gary bill. The closeness of the vote indicates, the friends of the governor said, that an attempt will be made to reconsider the vote.

Charges against the normal schools for their "political influence," against a board which supervises their expenditures, were made by several members during the debate. Those supporting the governor's stand declared that the state board of education was useless.

Regulations to Guard Incomes. Regulations that will govern the disclosure of information concerning income tax returns of Wisconsin individuals and corporations will not lift the lid on secrecy so that all may see, it was learned from tax commission officials following Gov. Blaine's signing of the Severson bill repealing the secrecy clause.

Thomas E. Lyons, chairman of the commission, has announced that a definite procedure will be outlined for obtaining income tax information. He intimated that the rules of the commission will be drafted to prevent, as far as possible, the promiscuous use of tax information by irresponsible persons.

Members of the commission are of the opinion that rules can be put in force that will safeguard the earnings of individuals and corporations in Wisconsin, unless there is reason for their disclosure.

For Higher Compensation. Higher rates of compensation will be given employees in Wisconsin than any other state if a bill prepared for introduction in the legislature is passed, providing for amendment to the workmen's compensation act.

The measure increases the indemnity that can be given for permanent total disability from $10,500 to $16,300 by increasing the basic figures for the maximum from a percentage of the wages for 900 weeks instead of 780. The indemnities for partial disability would be increased proportionately and slight increases are reported to be made in the indemnities for minor injuries.

The maximum of a widow's allowance is increased from $5,200 to $5,600 and provision is also made for indemnities for children of a deceased employee. The scope of the present compensation law is said to be materially increased by this measure, which was drafted after conferences between the groups affected.

Blaine Vetoes $17,000 Request. Gov. Blaine vetoed an emergency appropriation of $17,000 allowed the Wisconsin tax commission by the legislature, declaring that "the obligation of the executive to the taxpayers of the state clearly demands the disapproval of this bill."

As far as he could ascertain, the governor said, the deficit had been occasioned by increases in salaries and postage, necessitating an emergency grant of funds.

Gov. Blaine took occasion in his veto message to advocate a one-man tax commission as provided in his general income tax bill now before the legislature.

Purchase by the state of the North-east Lakes park, comprising 8,000 acres of virgin timber land in Price and Sawyer counties, is called for in a bill introduced in the senate by Senator Herman Bilgrien, Iron Ridge. An appropriation of $200,000 would be authorized by the measure. A similar bill was passed by the 1921 session of the legislature and vetoed by Gov. Blaine on the ground that it called for too large an expenditure of public funds.

The Severson bill increasing the size of the board of regents of the University of Wisconsin to give farm-labor representation finally passed the state senate and went to the assembly. The measure, which has been a center of bitter controversy in the upper house several weeks, went through its final stage by a 15 to 9 vote.

A resolution demanding impeachment and punishment of judges and other public officials, who, during the war, caused American citizens to be sent to prison for exercising their right of free speech, was adopted by the assembly by a vote of seventy-three to thirteen. The house also adopted a resolution praising Eugene V. Debs as an outstanding American. There was laughter when the resolution was read in the senate and the upper house adjourned without voting upon it.

SESSION SIDELIGHTS. The assembly passed, 51 to 30, and sent to the senate the Oliver bill prohibiting instruction in art, music or agriculture in state normal schools. The bill was aimed particularly at art courses in the Milwaukee Normal school.

The assembly advanced a bill appropriating $100,000 annually for the state superintendent of public instruction for the operation of his department. This is a cut of about $10,000.

Senate Defeats Eight-Hour Bill

By a vote of 18 to 14, the Tucker eight-hour bill was rejected by the senate. This bill, which had passed the assembly, was recommended in two successive memorandums by Gov. Blaine, and was regarded as one of the conspicuous planks in the Progressive platform. It is generally believed that it will be impossible to revive it in discussion.

On a vote just previous to the bill's defeat its supporters seemed to have victory in their hands. On a motion for nonconurrence, the vote resulted in a tie, 16 to 16. Lieut. Gov. Comings then asked for a decisive vote in favor of the bill. Senator Huber moved for engrossment, expecting that the vote would be the same and that Lieut. Gov. Comings would decide for the bill, but two senators changed their votes.

Before the final vote the senate had adopted the Johnson amendment providing for a referendum in the 1924 election. This was adopted, 20 to 12. Previously the senate had defeated two substitutes, one by Gettelman for a general eight-hour day referendum, and another by Gary establishing a basic eight-hour day, but permitting overtime.

The Tucker bill sought to apply the compulsory eight-hour day to all industries in the state.

No Changes in Blue Laws

The assembly went on record as opposed to any change in the Wisconsin Sunday blue law. By a vote of 48 to 39, it killed the Grahn bill which would have legalized Sunday shows, games, entertainments, dancing and other diversions.

In killing the bill the assembly overrode its judiciary committee, which had recommended passage. A bill by Assemblyman Holly, seeking to bring legal holidays within the application of the blue law, is pending in committee. Enactment of this measure would make it illegal for anyone to "keep open his shop, warehouse, or workhouse, or do any manner of labor, business, or work, except only works of necessity or charity, or to be present at any dancing or public diversion, show or entertainment, or to take part in any sport, game or play on the first day of the week or any legal holiday."

The Wisconsin blue law has been on the statute books of the state nearly 75 years, but there are reported to have been few convictions during this period for its violation.

Fourth Auto Bill Introduced

Assemblyman Robert Caldwell Lodi, has offered another "automobile tax" measure in the legislature. His is the fourth such bill now before the state lawmaking body.

The Caldwell bill provides that in addition to the weight and gasoline tax, a $10 license fee be paid by each motorist.

The weight tax schedule follows: Cars of 1,800 pounds or less, $10; 1,800 to 2,500 pounds, $20. Cars over 2,500 pounds, $5 for each additional 500 pounds.

For the registration of each trailer or semi-trailer, a fee equal to one-half the fee of the truck would be charged. Cars used by municipalities and counties would be assessed a $1 fee.

Under the Caldwell bill, all of the money raised would go to the state and counties. Not more than $400 per mile for road construction would be allotted each county.

Senate Kills Three Dry Measures

The senate of the Wisconsin legislature conclusively showed its colors on wet and dry legislation when by a 2 to 1 vote it killed measures intended to repeal or modify the Severson state prohibition enforcement act.

By a vote of 18 to 10, the upper house killed the Gettelman bill to repeal the Severson law; by a vote of 19 to 9, it killed the Czerwinski bill to repeal the search and seizure clause of the same law and then by a vote of 18 to 11 sent to its death the Polakowski bill to wipe out the state enforcement act.

A resolution urging the United States government to acquire all refineries and pipe lines of the country was introduced in the legislature by Assemblyman Frank Weber, Milwaukee socialist. The resolution said that the LaFollette investigation in the United States senate indicates conclusively that competition in the oil industry is at an end and that production and distribution of oil and gasoline are absolutely controlled by private monopoly.

The senate voted to extend provisions of the Wisconsin women's hours of labor law to employees of hotels, when it sent to third reading the Killian bill already passed by the assembly. The proposal was amended to establish a nine instead of an eight-hour day for women employees of hotels. A maximum 54-hour week is established by the bill as amended.

The senate passed the Heck joint resolution asking congress to call for a constitutional amendment providing for a referendum on war. Before war could be declared voters of the country would have to demand it except in cases of actual invasion, according to the Heck measure.

Two bills by the committee on public welfare preventing the employment of diseased people in hotels and restaurants and giving the state health department the power to force examination and treatment of venereal diseased persons went to third reading.

The Duncanson bill providing an authorization fund for the city of Milwaukee, which it is planned will eventually make the city free of bonded indebtedness, went to a third reading.

Gov. John J. Blaine vetoed the Lange bill prohibiting fraternities in high schools and elementary schools with the announcement that school authorities now had full control of pupils and their school activities and that such legislation is not needed.

The Teasdale bill, prohibiting minors under 18 from frequenting pool halls, was killed with Assemblyman F. J. Peterson declaring that it was "another long faced puritanical measure."

WHISKY RUNNERS

John Bartley, noted criminal investigator, recently returned from New York to investigate the case of a man who had been shot in the woods near Lake Michigan. Bartley was called to the scene by a man who had heard a shot and had seen a car in the woods. Bartley found the man dead and a car nearby. He investigated the case and found that the man had been shot by a man who was a member of a gang of whisky runners. Bartley was called to the scene by a man who had heard a shot and had seen a car in the woods. Bartley found the man dead and a car nearby. He investigated the case and found that the man had been shot by a man who was a member of a gang of whisky runners.

"What's that?" he asked in a low voice.

"I listened a moment, but the only thing I could hear was the horn of a distant automobile."

Bartley continued, "I thought I heard a car in the woods, there on the left."

Currie, who was a few feet in front of us, laughed. "John," he said, "you're hearing things. No car can be in those woods. Those are the trees you see from my house, and they stretch for some miles without a break. Slyke owns this part of them. You could not have heard a car."

Bartley placed his hand on his friend's shoulder. "That's what I thought, Bob. But I did hear a motor of that I am sure."

He paused, then added suddenly, "Listen! There it is once more."

This time we all heard the faint sound of a motor running slowly and with difficulty. There was no doubt of it; it came from the woods before us. It sounded as if a car were running a few feet, then stopping, as if it would go on a very bad road when having difficulty in getting through.

As we stood listening to the strange sound coming through the woods, Bartley said: "You say, Currie, that there is no road there, yet by the sound of it I should say that was a truck. What do you say to going and finding out what it means?"

Currie gave an exclamation of disgust. "But it's none of our business, John."

"Just at the present moment, everything that takes place on Slyke's estate is our business. I want to know what a car is doing in those woods at this time of night."

"Oh, I'm game if the rest of you are," Currie responded.

With a caution from Bartley not to make any noise, we left the road and entered the woods. It was lucky for us that there were not many vines or much underbrush, or we should not have gotten very far. There was no path, and we fell over stumps and broken branches and bumped into trees at almost every step. Bartley had a pocket torch with him, but he did not want to use it. Once or twice, though, he did flash it for a second so that we could disentangle ourselves from the vines that had wrapped themselves around our feet.

We had not heard the motor for several moments when a car loomed so suddenly out of the shadowy darkness ahead of us that we almost fell over it. It was a great truck, loaded with small cases. Upon its top, a little darker than the night, we made out the figures of two men, while a third disengaged himself from the gloom in front of the car with a hurried oath, and climbed to the driver's seat. The car started forward with a lunge along the road, if it could be called such, that had been made by felling trees and leaving their stumps still standing. The driver must have been familiar with it, for no one who was not could have driven that truck over it without lights.

"I want to get the number," Bartley whispered, as it lurched ahead.

He crept softly up behind the slowly moving car. For the faintest part of a second I saw the flash of his light. The next he was back at our sides.

"There is no license plate on the car. There's something wrong there. Come along!"

As the truck, lurching from side to side, was not going faster than three miles an hour, we had no difficulty in keeping up with it. We had followed it for perhaps five minutes when it came out suddenly onto the road that Currie said led to Slyke's house. Here it paused, the motor running softly.

We crept closer and heard a voice say, "Well, Jim, here's to luck. We will make a run of it."

Just at this moment Currie tripped over a root. He tried to save himself, grabbed at my arm, missed, and went to the ground with a loud crash. As he fell, Bartley jerked me to one side and threw us on my face. The sound of Currie's fall was like a young earthquake, and did not escape those on the truck. As I went down I saw one of the men turn and fire. The next second, gaining speed with every foot, the truck shot down the road.

With the truck gone we no longer needed to hide; we rose and rushed to Currie to see if he were shot. As Bartley's light flashed over him, we discovered that he was sitting up, and swearing to himself. His face was covered with dirt and one eye was beginning to turn black, but he was otherwise unharmed.

"John," he demanded, "what the devil made that tire explode?"

"That was not a tire, Bob. Someone on the truck heard you as you fell and took a shot at you."

"Took a shot at me?" cried Currie, in utter disbelief. "My G—, why?"

Bartley helped him to his feet and brushed the dirt from his clothes before he answered: "It's a damned good thing they missed you. Those men on top of the boxes were there to protect them. I wonder what was in them."

Bartley was anxious to learn what that truck was doing in the woods, and why the men on it were so determined that no one should know what they were carrying, that they were willing to turn upon anyone who interfered. As we followed the tracks with the aid of Bartley's pocket torch, we saw that the wheels had sunk a foot into the sod in places, and that more than one heavily loaded truck had passed this way.

We followed the road for about half a mile before it ended in a clearing, a quarter of an acre square.

Bartley examined the four sides of the clearing carefully before he came back to us and said, in a voice that sounded strange in the darkness,

"The road ends here. I have an idea that this is where they got their load."

Currie had been peering through the darkness as the flashes of Bartley's light shot between the trees. "I have a fool idea where we are."

"You do?" came the eager response.

"Yes. If I am not mistaken, we are within a hundred yards of the old cemetery that is on Slyke's ground. It must be over a hundred years old, and was founded by the early settlers. Several years ago Slyke showed me the place. We had the devil of a time reaching it, for there was no path to it. All there is left of it is an old vault and half a dozen stumbling tombstones."

I was unable to see Bartley's face, but his voice was eager.

"A vault! What kind?" he asked.

"Why," replied Currie, "just a vault. One of those things dug into the side of a hill where dead bodies are placed. If I am right, there is a small hill only a few yards from here."

Bartley turned and, flashing his light on the ground, moved it slowly back and forth as he advanced. He paused and bent to examine the ground.

"I guess I have it," he called to us. "Here are footprints."

Without giving us time to examine them, he went deeper into the woods,

"That's What I Expected," Bartley Commented.

and we followed. Some fifty feet from the clearing, the little path we were on ended abruptly in a small mound.

"It's your vault, Currie," said Bartley.

His light rested on the massive wooden door of an old-fashioned vault dug out of the hillside and fastened securely by a large lock. As Bartley examined it, he gave a little whistle. "Well, Currie, that may be an old vault, and an old door, but the lock on it is modern. It has been placed there within a short time. I am going to open it."

With a bit of wire and a bit of steel, Bartley poked the lock, then flung the door open and turned his flashlight into the darkness within.

I think that Currie and myself both held our breath as the light swept back and forth over the walls and floor. It disclosed nothing more startling than a number of boxes, similar to those we had seen on the truck, piled one on the other against the walls. It was plain enough where the load had been gotten.

Bartley led the way in and closed the door behind us. Once more he swept the vault with his torch, and this time we noticed a lantern on a box and lit it.

The vault was about twenty-five feet long and had been dug into the side of the hill, but the sides and roof were of stone. Along the walls were niches for coffins, and these were piled high, and the floor as well, with hundreds of small boxes. The flame of the lantern flickered in a draft and queer shadows danced on the walls. As while a musty, earthy smell rose half chokingly. It was not the most pleasant place to be in.

But Bartley did not seem to mind it. He stood in the center of the floor, glancing around the vault with such an amused smile that I knew that something had pleased him particularly. Suddenly he went to the nearest box, ripped off the cover, and drew out a bottle. We crowded around him as he removed the paper and disclosed the label of a well-known brand of imported whisky.

"That's what I expected," Bartley commented. "We know now what was on that truck. Captain Lowe won't have to hunt any longer for the place where they hide smuggled whisky."

Currie cried, "Why, it's Slyke's chauffeur!"

The Falling Star.

A star fell, leaving a trailing line of light in its wake, and suddenly I felt a little sad, for a Siwasu Indian chief had told us that when a star fell it was a flower tossed by the hand of a good spirit from Paradise to ease the pain of a soul passing out into the Great Darkness.—From "The Wild Heart," by Emma-Lindsay Squier.

Under Local Anesthetic Tumor Is Taken From Skull of Man Given Up to Die.

What do you think of this man's experience? Would you like to duplicate it?

New York.—To have a portion of his skull removed, a four-inch tumor cut off and the skull bone restored to place, and to be fully conscious all the time, able to answer "I'm all right" to the surgeon's inquiries as to whether he hurt, was the experience of Henry A. Brown at the Beth Israel hospital. The operation, wholly successful, is said to be remarkable in medical history. Only a local anesthetic was applied.

Immediately afterward the patient, who had been suffering for a year from intense headaches, accompanied by gradually increasing delirium and partial coma, declared he felt a great relief from the pain. The operation was performed some weeks ago. The officials of the hospital have just made the facts known as the patient had completely recovered his faculties and was already enjoying the comforts of convalescence at the Burke foundation in White Plains.

Operation Takes Two Hours.

The operation was performed by Dr. K. Winfield Ney, assisted by Dr. Emil Altman, attending neurologist of the Beth Israel hospital, and Dr. Bernard Davidson, the house surgeon. It lasted two hours.

The life of the patient had been despaired of. His grave had been purchased, and his family reconciled to the fact that he could not live. He is married and has four children. With hope of his recovery under the usual treatment entirely given up, the physicians at the Beth Israel called in Doctor Ney and consulted as to an operation. It was agreed that the general condition of the patient was such that he could not survive a long period under ether, but that an operation under a local anesthetic might possibly be successful.

They put it to the patient himself. Would he consent to the local anesthetic? Would he submit willingly to the operation while fully conscious? Brown said he would take the chance.

So they placed him on the operating table, and did not even strap him down, in order that he would retain the consciousness that he was doing it all of his own accord.

"It was not auto-suggestion," said Louis J. Frank, superintendent of the hospital, explaining it, "but we knew that the chances of success were much better if the patient were co-operating of his own free will."

Talks During Operation.

Questions and little words of cheer from the doctors accompanied the operation.

"Does this hurt?" the surgeon would say.

"No, I'm all right," the patient would answer. Or else he would wince and admit that he "felt it that time."

"Well now, that's too bad. We need a little more cocaine then," the doctor would say. "There won't be any more of that. We're almost through."

The technique of the operation, as described by Doctor Frank, was as follows:

"After the necessary skin incision was made, a number of holes were bored into the skull. The holes were connected, and the bone and overlying structures were turned down. The dura, or covering of the brain was incised. The tumor was visualized and then carefully incised.

"It was necessary to sacrifice the anterior portion of the frontal lobe of the brain, but this will not affect the mentality of the patient. After this the osteo plastic flap was turned

Holdup Victim Sues Bandit for Damages

Paso, Texas.—Attorneys for J. E. White, proprietor of a gasoline filling station here, said that a suit would be filed at once against the "unknown highwayman" who robbed White of $10, and thereby submitted him to "mental anguish, humiliation and danger." The petition will ask for $10,000 damages on these grounds.

The procedure is an innovation in Texas courts, attorneys here say.

Police engaged highwaymen who robbed White in a gun battle, and forced them to abandon an automobile. It is believed that if White wins the damage suit he will get legal possession of the car.

back and the scalp sutured. The tumor which was removed was 4 inches long and 2 inches wide and 1/4 of an inch thick. It was of the benign type and self-contained. Great care was exercised during this entire procedure. No unnecessary manipulation of any of the vital structures was performed.

Doctor Ney, who performed the operation, had wide experience during the war in the removal of shrapnel from the skulls of soldiers under local anesthetics. He served in the French army and later in the American Expeditionary forces. Since then he has advocated the use of local anesthetic for brain surgery.

The operation he performed at the Beth Israel is not the first of its kind, though the tumor removed was unusually large.

Seattle Scribe Forgot to Count Meridian Day

Seattle, Wash.—The meridian day when crossing the Pacific ocean is one long to be remembered by the traveler. Steaming westward he loses an entire day from his calendar. Steaming eastward there is one day on the calendar, 48 hours long. This odd occurrence in mid-Pacific is at the 180th meridian of longitude, commonly called the "international date line." All ships crossing it lose a day going westward and gain a day east-bound.

Sidereal time, used by astronomers, is exact for its purpose, but is not suited to every-day business on earth. Consequently, man invented mean solar time by which an hour is lost

May Be Deepest River in World

Scientific Survey Asked for Natural Phenomena on Upper Ottawa River in Canada.

Toronto.—The Canadian government has been asked to make a special survey which it is expected will prove the possessor of the deepest river in the world.

Hidden beneath the amber waters of the Upper Ottawa river is one of nature's most curious phenomena, rivaling in its way the Grand Canyon of Colorado, the Natural Bridge of Virginia, the Falls of Niagara or Zambesi. It is a gigantic chasm cleft in the surface of the earth in a period which must have approached the earliest in the earth's history, for the bed reveals sandstone of the Paleozoic age.

If the Ottawa river were to dry up, the chasm with its walls 6,000 or 7,000 feet high would eclipse the wonder of Colorado. As it is, the Deep River reach of the Ottawa claims the distinction, which it is hoped will soon be scientifically confirmed, of being the deepest river in the world.

5,000 Feet and "No Bottom."

In several places over a distance of 23 miles, 5,000 feet of tow boat lines have failed to given an anchorage.

By comparison the Great Lakes are but duck ponds and the famous Bords of Norway and the East American Atlantic coast are quite eclipsed. Lake Erie has a depth of only 272 feet. Lake Ontario is not much better with 738 feet. Lake Michigan has 789 feet. Lake Superior, the deepest of all the great inland seas, is only 1,007 feet, or about one-fifth as deep as the Deep River reach which probably proves to be. One of the East Atlantic floods shows 3,000 feet, and the Sogne fiord of Scandinavia is 4,000 feet.

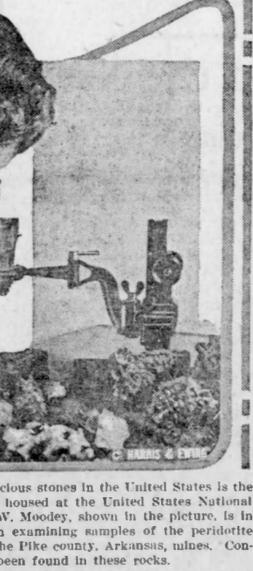

Deep River reach of the Ottawa is north of Pembroke and is traversed by serviceable steamers. The southern stretch of it is found identified on most maps as Upper Alouette lake. This part of the river course is dotted with hundreds of beautiful islands furnishing summer homes for urban residents.

They are at this point of the northwest edge of civilization. Toward the North Star and Hudson bay lies only wilderness broken only at one midway point by the National Transcontinental railway, which with its still rustling rails will one day give Canada depth as well as breadth. To the southwest lie the Plains of Petawawa, famous as a military training ground, particularly for artillery during the war.

Farther on you enter Oiseau lake (locally called "Weese"), surrounded by a series of the most picturesque mountain peaks to be found anywhere in the whole Laurentian range. Prospect succeeds prospect in a never ending panorama, while the tang of the wilds is like wine in the veins.

A point called Des Jo Achin is the upper limit of the Great Chasm. Here the river makes a right angled turn, and is transformed from a madly surging rapids to the restful, slow moving deep current of the Grand Chasm.

She May Find Arkansas Diamonds

Probably the finest collection of precious stones in the United States is the one known as the Isaac Lea collection, housed at the United States National museum, Washington. Miss Margaret W. Moody, shown in the picture, is in charge of the collection. She is shown examining samples of the peridotite rock, grayish and crumbly, taken from the Pike county, Arkansas, mines. Considerable quantities of diamonds have been found in these rocks.

Census Takers Meet Violence in India

London.—The trials and tribulations of a staff of some 2,000,000 census takers, to find out there were approximately 310,000,000 people in India in 1921, have been related by J. Marten, census commissioner for India.

The employment of this huge army of enumerators, said Mr. Marten, was necessitated by the fact that, owing to the illiteracy of the population, the

MAKES NEW DISCOVERY

Prof. Albert Einstein, whose theory of relativity made him famous, has just announced a new discovery. He is withholding the details, but it has to do with the connection between the earth's power of attraction and terrestrial magnetism. The picture shows Professor and Mrs. Einstein.

for each 15 degrees (or 1,000 miles) traveled westward, or 24 hours in all during the 360-degree circuit of the globe. Going east 24 hours are gained. As they have to be accounted for somewhere to keep the world's time from chaos, the 150th meridian was chosen as the spot. It is half way around the earth from Greenwich, the longitude of which is 0, and is an appropriate place to lose or gain a day because there is very little business going on in mid-Pacific. The meridian passes through the Fiji Islands, and about 10 miles east of New Zealand.

Odd things happen in connection with the meridian day. Recently a Seattle reporter ran afoul of it and wired a story all over the continent to the effect that the Admiral Oriental liner "President Grant" had broken the trans-Pacific record of 8 days, 18 hours and 31 minutes from Yokohama to Race Rock quarantine station, Victoria, B. C., made by the Canadian Pacific liner "Empress of Russia" in 1914. The time claimed for the President Grant was 8 days, 10 hours and 44 minutes, but the reporter forgot to count the meridian day, east-bound, as 48 hours, consequently that ship's actual steaming time was 9 days, 10 hours and 44 minutes. As the Empress of Russia counted the meridian day as two days, she still holds the record.

Service is the Great Demand.

Unselfishness inevitably connotes service, and service is the solution of the entire vexatious problems of man.—Jack London.

MOTHER OF LARGE FAMILY

Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to Other Mothers

Windom, Minn.—"I was so run-down that I was just good for nothing. I was to become the mother of my ninth child, and I thought I did not have the strength to go through with it. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has surely done all I could ask it to do and I am telling all my friends about it. I have a nice big baby girl and am feeling fine. You may use this letter to help other sick mothers."—Mrs. C. A. MOEDR, Box 634, Windom, Minn.

My First Child

Glen Allen, Alabama.—"I have been greatly benefited by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for bearing-down feelings and pains. I was troubled in this way for nearly four years following the birth of my first child, and at times could hardly stand on my feet. A neighbor recommended the Vegetable Compound to me and I had taken doctor's medicines without much benefit. It has relieved my pains and gives me strength. I recommend it and give you permission to use my testimonial letter."—Mrs. L. A. RYE, Glen Allen, Alabama.

Laxatives Replaced by the Use of Nujol

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe. When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication. Try it today.

SPHON'S DISTEMPER COMPOUND

CHAPTER VI

The Vault in the Woods.

John Currie waiting for us in the side of the large cars, with his chauffeur. There were few cars on the road and in a very short time we arrived in Saratoga.

We left the car before one of the boys and followed Bartley to the public library. Bartley spent several moments glancing through the card catalogue before he crossed to the book desk, and asked the pretty young librarian for "Griffith's Mysteries of Crime." She returned in a moment with two volumes, bound in red cloth. Bartley opened one to the place where he knew a book is taken out to see if there was only one date on the white slip, and Bartley copied it in his notebook. Then, turning to the librarian, he asked her how they had happened to buy the book, and she knew who it was that had bought it from the library the one time it had gone out.

Looking through her cards, she told him that the book had been a gift, and that the only person that had ever taken it out was James Driffridge. Bartley raised his eyebrows in surprise but did not ask her anything more.

As soon as we were again on the street, he told us so far as he knew the only account of the Edlingburg burglary, other than the one in the new pamphlet that he owned, had been published in the volumes he had been glancing at. Currie, of course, did not understand what he was talking about; and Bartley gave him the account of the English crime, and pointed by saying that, from the very name it had been his opinion that who had taken the burglary at Slyke's house was the account of the English crime. Then, with a little useful remark, he added that the one person who had taken the book from the library was Slyke's chauffeur.

"He might have said more had we reached Currie's club just then," Bartley said, and talked until about eleven o'clock; then we started to walk home.

As we were leaving the club, we saw a young man whom Currie introduced to us as Captain Lowe, commander of the local branch of the police. As he was going in our direction, we fell into step together;

He said, "You're Hearing Things."

He told us of his work and how the Chicago congress had reduced crime and that farmers had now had security, even in the most lawless country districts. The great trouble they had at present, he said, was with a laugh, was only the matter of whisky, not only into the hands of the law, but even as far as Albany, New York. Though they knew that a deal of whisky was getting smuggled into the country, they could not discover who was doing it. At the barracks he saw the driver of the truck that led us to the woods before it reached the clearing. We were about a thousand yards beyond the entrance when Bartley suddenly stopped.

He said, "You're Hearing Things."

FAVORS QUICK TARIFF ACTION

President Harding Will Be in Personal Control Over Investigators.

FLEXIBLE PROVISION IS CITED

Official Statement Issued at White House Announces Policy Agreed Upon at Conference With Members of Tariff Commission.

Washington, April 23.—President Harding intends to keep personal control over investigations by the tariff commission under the flexible provisions of the tariff law.

This was indicated in an official statement made public by the tariff commission announcing the policy agreed upon at the conference with the president. It was stated in the announcement that such investigations as are made without any formal application as a basis will be launched only after conference with the president. This means that the president will have the power to change duties is vested in the president.

The effect of the president's position is to nullify the action taken by the commission at the instance of W. C. Culbertson, vice chairman, on March 2 ordering broad investigations into all duties on such commodities as wool, steel, pottery, and glassware. Under the Culbertson program the commission would have gone ahead on these investigations.

It will be necessary for the commission to make a preliminary survey in cases where no application has been filed for a change in rates before consulting with the president as to whether formal investigations will be ordered under section 315, the flexible provision of the tariff law. The preliminary survey would be conducted under section 318 for the information of the president and congress.

The formal statement follows: "At a conference Friday afternoon at the White House, President Harding considered with the tariff commission a program to put into effective operation the flexible provisions of the tariff act of September 21, 1922. The president laid stress upon the usefulness of this statute and indicated a strong desire to see it fully applied.

"Petitions and applications for increase or reduction in rates are to be considered by the commission in accordance with the executive order of October 7 to determine whether formal investigations are warranted.

"In cases where no petition has been filed, whenever a preliminary inquiry or survey discloses sufficient grounds, under the law, the commission, after conference with the president, will order such formal investigations as the facts may warrant.

"Each formal investigation, however instituted, will begin with an order giving public notice to all interested parties."

Harding Tells Navy to Fight Off Rum Fleet

Washington, April 21.—The navy arm of the United States navy is to reach out into the Atlantic and sweep it clean of rum runners and rum pirates, it was revealed at the White House. This decision was reached at a meeting of President Harding with his cabinet. It was decided that the government must take extreme measures to protect its coast from wholesale liquor smuggling.

QUACKGRASS CAN BE CONTROLLED

Noxious Plant Can Rarely Be Extirpated on Large Areas, Says Recent Bulletin.

PLOW UNDER IN HOT WEATHER

Weed Works Its Way Into Fields, Becoming Thoroughly Established Before Recognized—It Resembles Wheat.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Quackgrass can rarely be exterminated on large areas, but it can be brought under reasonable control, says the United States Department of Agriculture. The best plan, according to Farmers' Bulletin 1367, "Quackgrass," by L. W. Kephart of the bureau of plant industry, which has just been published, is to allow it to form a sod and then plow it in midsummer during dry, hot weather. After plowing, the field should be harrowed frequently until winter and the following year planted with a cultivated crop.

Quackgrass occurs in this country most abundantly in the region north of the Ohio and east of the Missouri rivers, but during recent years the weed has been found invading the valley lands and irrigated soils in the Pacific Northwest where it promises to be as troublesome as in the East.

One of the principal reasons for the wide and continued distribution of quackgrass is the fact that it does not look like a weed. There are no bright, showy flowers; coarse, ugly leaves; or other features by which weeds are distinguished. To the casual observer the plant is simply a grass, and thus it works its way into the fields, becoming thoroughly established before it is recognized. It is most important, therefore, that the farmer should be able to recognize quackgrass at sight.

Closely Related to Wheat

In general appearance quackgrass resembles a thin-headed variety of wheat. The plant is, in fact, closely related to wheat, and as there are no many wild grasses which resemble that cereal, the occurrence of a wheat-like grass in the field should be regarded with suspicion. The grasses which might be confused most commonly with quackgrass on this account are western wheat-grass, slender wheat-grass, and wild rye, in the western states, and Italian rye-grass and perennial rye-grass in the eastern states. None of these grasses is hard to destroy. Positive identification of quackgrass can be secured by examining the seed heads, the leaves, and the rootstocks. The bulletin on the subject contains photographic plates and detailed description of the weed at its different stages of growth that make identification easy.

While there is no quick and easy method of controlling quackgrass, and different methods have to be employed under varying conditions, experience has shown that certain fundamental phases of control are constant and dependable, and may be accepted as principles upon which the practice of control is based.

Quackgrass control depends more than anything else on the character of the season and fair weather is absolutely essential if any progress is to be made. Cultivation in wet weather merely encourages the weed to spread. Wet weather, of course, cannot be foretold, and it often happens that rainy weather sets in after a campaign of eradication is well under way. Under such circumstances the only thing to do is to accept the situation philosophically, abandon the work temporarily, and await a more favorable season.

When it is possible to plow a quack-infested field so that the roots can be covered to a great depth, as is sometimes practiced, using two plows, one following the other in the same furrow, this method has been found very satisfactory. The work requires skillful plowmen, however, and special types of plows, and the soil must be deep and easily turned.

Work Must Be Thorough

To be effective against quackgrass, cultivation and harrowing must be thorough, frequent and persistent. Half-way cultivation is worse than none. Certain systems of cropping are suggested in the bulletin as a means of holding quackgrass in check on large areas. The use of smother crops that make a heavy, dense growth, and kill the weeds by drowning and shading is also suggested under certain conditions. Miscellaneous methods of control for small areas are discussed. On small patches tar paper covering can be used effectively to smother the quackgrass, but this method is too laborious for large areas.

Those interested in the method of quackgrass control may have the bulletin free of charge by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

PROPER CARE OF MACHINERY

Time for Making Repairs is When Trouble Starts, Not When Impement is Wrecked.

A machine is not a living thing, yet, like a person, it has its ills and troubles and, like a person, it needs the doctor and needs him at the proper time or else its mechanical life is shortened or lost. The proper time for the doctor is just when the trouble starts and not when life is gone.

MANY BULLETINS ASKED FOR

Demand is Greater in Counties Employing an Agricultural Extension Agent.

Counties employing an agricultural extension agent call for approximately twice as many bulletins from their state agricultural college as do counties having no agent, a study made in Kansas shows, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture.

COST OF MARKETING HOGS IN CORN BELT

About One-Third of Total Is Terminal Charges.

Crippling Loss Found Heavier in November to March Than in Other Months—Seasonal Variation Found in Shrinkage.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

About one-third of the total cost of marketing hogs by co-operative shipping associations consists of terminal charges, such as commission, yardage and feed, the United States Department of Agriculture has learned in a cost of marketing study in the corn belt. Commission comprised about 50 percent of the terminal charges, yardage about 26 per cent and feed 25 per cent. On the average the terminal costs at all markets for straight shipments ranged from $1.50 to $2.23 per 1,000 pounds, the average being about $1.90 per 1,000 pounds. By individual associations the lowest cost was $1.35 and the highest cost was $2.43.

Losses from crippling were found to be heavier in November to March, inclusive, than during other months of the year. The loss on account of killed hogs was found to be greater in the spring months, particularly May and June, than in other months. Both crippled and dead hogs were more numerous in mixed shipments than in straight shipments.

A seasonal variation in shrinkage was also found, the highest percentage of shrinkage occurring in August. From July to October, inclusive, shrinkage is greater than from November to March. Although mixed shipments showed greater shrinkage than straight shipments, the department points out that this may simply indicate that the organizations shipping mixed cars were not as efficient as others, or was due to the type of animal usually shipped in mixed cars.

The study consisted of data collected from 237 live stock shipping associations in the ten Middle Western states, which shipped more than 600,000 hogs in 1921. The carload or shipment was the unit used. A detailed report of the study is contained in a mimeographed pamphlet, entitled "Costs of Marketing Live Stock in the Corn Belt—1921," copies of which may be obtained upon request of the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

TIMBER IS CASH FARM CROP

Extension Workers Urge That Farmers Be Advised as to Attention Needed in Woodlot.

That farm woodlot extension work should be undertaken at once was the opinion expressed at a recent meeting of state specialists in forestry and state foresters from 11 Northeastern states and representatives of the United States Department of Agriculture in New Haven.

Timber is coming to have an important place as a cash crop for the farmer and woodlot owner, it was pointed out, and the department workers urged that plans to assist the farmer with advice as to the starting and tending of his woodlot crops be made a part of their program.

Census figures show that, in 1919, 95,000 farmers in New England, or about 60 per cent of the total, harvested $31,350,000 worth of forest products, an average of about $330 per farm. The average farm income is between $600 and $1,000.

HARDEST OF LEGUME CROPS

Given Right Soil Sweet Clover Will Thrive Almost Anywhere—Crop Makes Good Feed.

Sweet clover is considered the hardest of the legume crops. Given a sweet soil, it will grow almost anywhere. It is particularly desirable for redeeming fields which have been badly washed, and are not in condition for other crops. Sweet clover quickly puts a field in shape for alfalfa by loosening and inoculating the soil.

This crop makes good feed if cut before the stems are too mature. It yields heavily, even on thin soil. Like all legume crops, it is a big help in enriching the soil. The farmer who wants to improve his soil, and expects to do it with legume crops, will do well to include sweet clover.

FRESH EGGS FOR INCUBATOR

Poultryman Has Better Chance of Obtaining Good Hatch and Strong, Vigorous Chicks.

The fresher eggs are when they are put into the incubator or under the hen, the better the chances are for good hatch and 14 days should be the limit, because the risk in keeping the eggs longer than that is too great.

Good Lettuce Varieties

Grand Rapids and Big Boston are two varieties of lettuce that have been giving good results in Chicago gardens during the last few years. They are worth trying.

Right Kind of Cow Pays

The right kind of a cow, kept in the right kind of a way, in the right kind of a place, by the right kind of a man, pays her way and yields a good profit besides.

Advertising Pays Farmer

Truthful and timely advertising pays the farmer—and never does the well-displayed sign pay better than when used in promoting a farm sale or a purebred stock sale.

Critical Time for Lamba

The first few hours of the lamb's life are the most critical; keep it from getting chilled.

Time to Set Strawberries

Early spring beats summer or fall for setting out the strawberry bed.

PIGS' PASTIME

"Grunt, grunt," said Grandfather Porky Pig.

"Can't you think up anything new to say?" inquired Miss Ham.

"Nothing," said Grandfather Porky Pig, "which better tells the way I feel than those two expressive words, 'Grunt, Grunt.'"

"Well," said Miss Ham, "I will admit that 'squeal, squeal,' are two words of which I'm particularly fond, but still you begin all conversations, it seems to me, with 'Grunt, Grunt.'"

"Perhaps we should not call them two words. After all, they're only one."

"Now be careful," said Grandfather Porky Pig. "Don't try to be too fussy about words or you'll get all mixed up. You were getting in pretty deep when you were saying that the two words, after all, were only one. Curious speech, that."

"What do you mean by saying I was getting in deep?" asked Miss Ham. "Deep in what?"

"Deep in mistakes," said Grandfather Porky Pig. "You were getting beyond your depth in what you know. That can be done. Oh, yes, one can get beyond one's depth in more than the water."

"When people try to talk about something which is beyond their knowledge they get in too deep, too. They get all confused and mixed up."

"That is what I mean."

"You said I began all conversations with 'Grunt, Grunt.' Maybe I do. I can think of no better way of beginning a conversation, and surely a conversation must be begun somehow.

"I Can Always Be Sure of Myself."

"You can't just plunge into a conversation right in the middle. That isn't polite, and it wouldn't be fair to the conversation."

"It would surprise it too much."

"Yes, the best way is to have a good beginning. Now, I say 'Grunt, Grunt' just as some would say:

"How-do-you-do?"

"That's my way."

"You almost speak as though a conversation had feelings," said Miss Ham.

"A conversation," she continued, "wouldn't care if you did jump right into the middle of it."

"You can't tell," said Grandfather Porky Pig. "Very strange things happen. 'But you're not letting me get far in my talk,' he added.

"Dear me, did you have something else to say?" asked Miss Ham.

"Of course," said Grandfather Porky Pig. "I have something else to say. I merely begin by 'Grunt, Grunt' and then I grunt a long, interesting conversation."

"I'd let some one else call it interesting," said Miss Ham.

"Perhaps no one will," said Grandfather Porky Pig. "I thought I'd make sure of some one and so I said it myself. I can always be sure of myself."

"It's something that you're pleased with yourself," said Miss Ham, as she twisted her little tail.

"Well, let me hear what you have to say," she added. "I know you want to tell me."

"Not unless you want to hear," said Grandfather Porky Pig.

"If I should say I didn't you'd be a sad pig," said Miss Ham.

And, as Porky knew that was the truth, he didn't say anything more about being anxious that she should want to hear him, but began to talk right away.

"I heard the other day that everyone had a favorite pastime."

"That meant that everyone had a favorite amusement or way of passing time pleasantly and enjoyably."

"And so I decided we should have a pastime—we pigs."

"The pastime which we would decide upon as our favorite would be the result of a vote, and so I'm going to ask all the pigs to vote on what they think should be considered our favorite pastime."

"The pastime which receives the greatest number of votes will be chosen."

"So all the pigs were called, and they all voted on the favorite pastime of pigs."

And every one voted for the same pastime—the delightful pastime of eating."

Yes, every one of them voted for that!

More and More—Er—Mrs. John Barrymore said at a dinner on the Mauretania: "Woman's dress grows more and more—er—more and more less."

"A pretty girl in a wisp of silver gauze that she called a dinner gown, sauntered into her mother's bedroom before going down to dinner.

"I do wish you'd dress more modestly, dear," her mother said.

"But, mother," said the pretty girl, "I'd look so conspicuous if I dressed modestly."

The KITCHEN CABINET

EVERYDAY GOOD THINGS Dishes that are economical, nourishing and at the same time attractive are the popular ones...

Creole Soup Meat—Take a cup of ordinary soup from the leg, rub pepper, salt and a little garlic into it and put it into an iron kettle with no water...

One of the essentials in any family is a small Scotch kettle such as used in our grandmothers' day for frying doughnuts. An iron cover should fit it tightly and meat or foods cooked in it will conserve all their flavor.

Holiday Jelly.—Take one and one-half tablespoons of gelatin and one-half cupful of boiling water. Scald two cupfuls of milk with one cupful of sugar and add to the gelatin...

New Orleans Pork and Cabbage.—Buy two pounds of the shoulder of pork as lean as possible. Shred one hard cabbage and place in the bottom of a well-greased kettle.

Can you hear the tiny raindrops? Over the meadows fertile spaces, softly falling, faintly calling...

SIMPLE ECONOMICAL DESSERTS

In every home there should be a good-working ice cream freezer; two sizes or three are convenient...

Lemon Milk Sherbet.—Take a quart of good rich milk, add one and one-half cupfuls of strained honey or two scant cupfuls of sugar, one cupful of lemon juice...

Quaker Pudding.—Take three cupfuls of stale bread, three eggs, one-third of a cupful of honey or one-half cupful of sugar, salt and nutmeg to taste...

Ham With Scalloped Potatoes.—Arrange a baking dish of scalloped potatoes and over them lay a slice of tender ham; bake until the potatoes are done and serve from the baking dish.

Chicken Soup.—Take the broth from a large fowl that has been parboiled before roasting. Add a slice or two of onion, the chopped giblets, and one-fourth of a cupful of rice.

Ham With Scalloped Potatoes.—Arrange a baking dish of scalloped potatoes and over them lay a slice of tender ham; bake until the potatoes are done and serve from the baking dish.

Printed Silks.—Printed silks in unusually attractive colors and patterns have been chosen for smart little frocks made on simple lines and with the handkerchief touch in sash and bertha.

Scarfs Fashionable.—Scarfs are a part of nearly all the elaborate evening frocks for the season. Often they are of gold or silver and are fastened to the costume as an accessory.

Immortal Songster.—Who is known as "The Father of English Song"? Cædmon, an Anglo-Saxon poet who flourished about the middle of the Seventh century, is known as the "Father of English Song."

Travel Note.—It is said that most of Tokyo's criminals belong to the intellectual classes. When in Tokyo, therefore, beware of the stranger who begins to quote Homer to you.—Boston Transcript.

She Figured It Out. A youth in an Indianapolis school was absent from school for a number of days. A teacher, who shows real interest in the progress of her pupils, called the mother on the telephone and inquired concerning the lad.

Perplexed, the teacher for a day or two wondered what could have put that silly notion in the boy's head. Then she remembered. Some days before she had told that class some recalcitrants had been absent more days than good scholarship permitted.
