One of the Present Day Wonders

PASSENGER TRAIN STRIKES AUTO

The Main street railway crossing at Barton was the scene of a serious automobile accident last Sunday evening at 8:30 o'clock, when a special passenger train crashed into a Ford touring car driven by Dan Survis, who suffered a broken left leg and crushed foot, broken nose and badly cut face. His wife sustained bruises on both knees, and their son, four years of age received a cut on his lip. Mr. and Mrs. H. Koenig, and two children and Eugene Lodes, all of West Bend, were the other occupants of the car. Mrs. Koenig sustained a burst blood vessel. Her husband and Mr. Lodes escaped injury. The unfortunate people were out joy riding when approaching the crossing, which is obstructed by trees and buildings, they did not hear or see the oncoming train until the glare of the head light of the engine gave them the first warning of the approaching accident. The front wheels of the car were on the tracks, and in an effort to reverse his gears to back the machine off the tracks, Mr. Survis killed the motor. The occupants of the car jumped out of the car, except Mrs. Survis and son, who were unable to do so before the train struck the machine. Mr. Survis was removed to the Merten hospital at West Bend, where he was given medical attention. Mr. Survis is employed at the Gehl silo yard, Mr. Koenig at the Gehl Bros. factory and Mr. Lodes is employed at the West Bend Equipment Corp. plant.

Flesh Scraper Cuts Fingers
Henry Conrad, employed by the W. B. Place & Co. tannery, received an ugly cut to the backs of three fingers of his right hand last Monday, when while setting the cutting surface of the knives he failed to shut off the power and the backs of the fingers came in contact with the revolving blades, gouging off the flesh to the bone. The fleshing knife is used to remove flesh from hides and is a slick machine for that purpose but it cannot differentiate between fingers and hides, and when Henry got his hand in the way he was soon advised of this fact. The injury was immediately given medical attention and Mr. Conrad is taking a short vacation. —Hartford Times.

Bee Stings Poison Farmer
One of the strangest cases of insect poisoning on record in the county, occurred one day last week when Bern Knight, of Kingston, was attacked by a swarm of bees while he was working near his house. With no provocation it seems, the insects settled upon Mr. Knight while he was working not far from his house. Despite his frantic efforts to escape, many of them managed to sting him seriously upon the temple and about the head. It was a few minutes before he began to feel a powerful nausea, and he was coupled with a puckering and strong itching sensation all over his body. The customary local remedies were applied as soon as possible, but they failed in effecting relief, and Mr. Knight rapidly became unconscious. His worried family immediately called a doctor, who was able to rouse him with restoratives and ultimately succeeded in counteracting the worst effects of the insect poison, which found in Mr. Knight a person unusually sensitive to its influence. Improving was at first slow, but he has practically recovered from the effects of the incident. —Randolph Advance.

Rushing Work On 26.
Work on highway 26 north of the city is being rushed to completion by the Tillman Construction Co. and the contractors are at present working on the second stretch of pavement between the north limits of Watertown and the five-mile house. Elimination of a bad detour in Juneau is expected the first of next week so that tourists will be able to strike concrete in the business center of the county seat. —Juneau Independent.

The rest of the teachers who were here last year were re-engaged.

PAVING FINISHED THROUGH SWAMP

The Froemming Bros. Construction Company finished pouring cement on the relocation of Highway 55, leading through the swamp between Kewaskum and West Bend, on Monday. The company has moved their outfit to the lake shore where they will start work on Highway 17, putting a three mile stretch for Ozaukee county between Port Washington and Cedar Grove. It will be about three weeks before the road will be open for traffic, as all of the shoudering will first have to be finished before any motoring is allowed. With this new road completed there will be no more railroad crossing for tourists to contend with between this village and the County Seat, and after the entire highway has been finished, only one railroad crossing between Milwaukee and Fond du Lac, that being at Menomonee Falls.

The work on Highway 55 in Fond du Lac county is also progressing very nicely. About a mile and three-quarters remains to be paved south of Waucousta, and about two miles north of that village, all of which will be completed some time this fall if weather conditions will permit. The road is now open for traffic from Kewaskum north to Wm. Hintz's farm.

1924 FORDS ARRIVE

The first of the new type Ford cars which recently arrived in this village are now on display at the show room of Kewaskum Motor Co., garage.

The higher radiator, now standard in all Ford types, has brought a general improvement throughout the entire line and the new radiator apron blending with similar apron effects on the fenders gives the front of the cars a highly finished appearance.

The touring car shows a decided improvement, having a more streamlined effect, it is lower in appearance, a feature adding much to the attractiveness of the slanting windshield and one-man top.

The Ford runabout is likewise much improved and looks more sturdy.

The coupe is entirely new in body design and construction. There is a more trim exterior appearance, more comfortable seating arrangement and greater luggage-carrying capacity. From the dash there is a graceful sweep in the cowl to the radiator. The doors are wide and heavily framed. A larger compartment at the rear gives increased room for luggage and the new type rear fender is more secure. Ventilator in the cowl and a vision device are added to the exterior appearance, effecting a high quality aspect.

Interior arrangements is most convenient and the upholstery is choice. The seat is deeply cushioned and the cushions are divided making it easy for filling the gasoline tank which is under the seat. A small recess shelf at the rear of the seat is handy for small parcels. The door windows are equipped with revolving type window regulators permitting any desired ventilation. Doors are provided with locks.

THE LITTLE MINISTER

It was necessary to construct an entire Scotch village of "Thrums," for the filming of "The Little Minister," a Paramount picture produced by Penrhyn Stanlans with Betty Compson as star in the role of "Lady Baulie," which will be the attraction at the Opera House on Sunday evening, September 9.

This is the second time Paramount has constructed this picturesque bit of Scotland on American soil. In 1920 "Thrums," "Sentimental Tommy," "Now Kierriemuir," for that is the modern name of the little Scotch town, rests quietly in the shadows of the California hills.

Experts on Scottish architecture and landscape, who saw "Sentimental Tommy," were unable to discern any difference between the "Thrums" they saw on the screen and the Kierriemuir of their own remembrance. Robert M. Haas, Paramount art director, who built the village for "Sentimental Tommy" also supervised the construction of the setting for "The Little Minister."

In detail of treatment this newest Thrums is far superior to the former village which was constructed in the East. Nannie's home, the town hall, the town hall and the public square. Lovers of Barrie's story will get the thrills of their lives when they see the reproduction of this quaint village on the screen. An extra special attraction for this picture will be a five piece orchestra.

MEETS DEATH NEAR FREDONIA

A sad accident befell John Freimann, age 59 years, a farmer residing near Fredonia, last week Wednesday forenoon at about eleven o'clock, when he was killed when a team of horses he had hitched to a corn binder arm away. Mr. Freimann was alone at the time of the accident.

The unfortunate man had gone to the machine shed, where, after he had hitched the horses to the binder, it is thought, he was making adjustments on the machine, when the horses started to run away and he was caught with head to the ground, and the broad wheel passing over it. Shortly after the accident the family saw the runaway team and rushed out to investigate, finding the lifeless body of Mr. Freimann near the shed, with his head crushed. Deceased leaves to mourn, his wife, two sons and two daughters. The funeral was held on Saturday morning with services in the St. Rose of Lima church, Fredonia.

ITALIANS KILL 15 CORFU CIVILIANS

Many Others Wounded When Warships Shell Ancient Greek Fortress.

USE WARSHIPS AND PLANES

Commander of Italian Destroyer Premuda Gives Greeks Half an Hour in Which to Surrender the Fort.

Paris, Sept. 1.—The Italians have bombarded the fortress and school at Corfu. An Italian destroyer, the Premuda, arrived at the island first under a white flag. The commander went ashore and demanded the surrender of the Greek garrison. The commander of the ancient obsolete fortress refused. Under a half hour's armistice the Italian naval officer rejoined his ship. Other ships came in and the bombardment began.

A few shells from the Italian warships silenced the old, ineffectual artillery in the fort and permitted the landing party to disembark practically without casualties and to seize the strategic points of the postoffice and official buildings, after which they captured the fortifications and imprisoned the Greek garrison.

Airplanes flying over the town and harbor aided through observation and bombing. There were no Greek airplanes.

The occupation of the fortress was effected by a small detachment of cruisers, according to a communique issued in Rome. About fifteen civilians were killed. The main parts of the fleet are operating in the Aegean islands and at Athens. The police school at Corfu was destroyed by flames after the bombardment.

A proclamation was made to the people of the island that the Italian occupation is purely pacific and there are no hostile intentions, admonishing the people not to resist.

Between 25,000 and 30,000 refugees were lodged on Corfu on American Near East relief doses after the Greek and Americans were driven from Asia Minor by the Turks. Grave fear is felt here that the hungry refugees may precipitate the further anger of the Italians. The population of the island is swollen now to about 60,000 by the refugees.

STRIFE IN WEST INDIES

Trouble in Cuba, Haiti, Porto Rico and Virgin Islands.

President Zayas Proceeds to Take "Silent and Efficacious" Means of Suppressing Demonstrations of Cuban Veterans Organizations.

Washington, Aug. 20.—Reports that Cuba is on the verge of a revolution which might impel the United States to intervene for the restoration of order and stable government under the terms of the Platt amendment were given additional significance here by the action of President Zayas in clamping a censorship on press dispatches from the island.

Official advices indicate that Zayas is proceeding to take "silent and efficacious" means of suppressing the demonstrations which for several days have been stirring the people to protest against his regime.

Other evidences of unrest in the Caribbean region added to the picture of Uncle Sam beset on all sides by his refractory wards.

New York, Aug. 31.—In the wildest disorder incident to Ku Klux Klan activities yet known in the East, a mob of 6,000 persons in Perth Amboy, N. J., overcame the combined police and fire departments of the town and broke up a meeting of 150 members of the "invisible empire."

For a time the mob held the city helpless in its grip, while heavy reinforcements of the state constabulary were being rushed from the nearest stations in response to an emergency call to Trenton, capital of the state.

During that period the attacking forces dealt severely with the hooded knights, forcing them to flee in confusion from Old Fellows' hall where they had gathered, driving them on the run through the streets, and kicking, stoning and beating them.

The great majority of the klansmen stood not on the order of their going. Some, cornered, or unwilling to join their fellows in fleeing for safety, showed fight. Many such had their white shrouds and much of the rest of their clothing ripped from them, and some were rescued by policemen only after they had been beaten severely.

The storming forces likewise suffered from some casualties, particularly in their earlier encounter with the police, but they greatly outnumbered the members of the secret order and came off victorious.

The police fought with clubs until they were outnumbered and overwhelmed. Then they resorted to tear gas bombs, which they tossed into the midst of the mass of Klan enemies.

The mob met both attacks with stones and the whole city fire department was summoned to back up the police.

The firemen, 150 strong, turned every stream they could into the attacking forces, but the bolder members of the mob, advancing under a barrage of stones from their comrades, slashed every hose line with axes and knives and the last line of defense for the klansmen gave way. Fourteen state troopers were on hand.

The Secret Adversary by Agatha Christie

CHAPTER VII Julius Tells a Story.

Julius tells a story about his adventures. He describes how he was kidnapped and taken to a place where he was held captive. He talks about the people he met there, including a man named Tommy and a woman named Nurse Edith. He also mentions a man named Whittington and a woman named Mrs. Vandemeyer. The story is filled with suspense and mystery, as Julius tries to uncover the truth about his situation.

my trees, into one of my newly planted flower-beds. "I liked the man. He seemed to have a sense of humor. I felt sure that he, at least, was plain straight. 'Sure, doc,' I said, 'I'm sorry about the tree, and I guess the new bulbs will be on me. But perhaps you'd like to know what I was doing in your garden?' 'I think the facts do call for explanation,' he replied. 'Well, to begin with, I wasn't after the spoons.' "He smiled. 'My first theory. By I soon altered my mind. By the way, you are an American, are you not?' I told him my name. 'And you?' 'I am Doctor Hall, and this, as you doubtless know, is my private hospital.' "I made up my mind in a flash. 'Why, doctor, I said, 'I guess I feel an almighty fool, but I owe it to you to let you know that it wasn't the Bill Stokes business I was up to.' Then I went on and mumbled out something about a girl. I trotted out the stern guardian business, and a nervous breakdown, and finally explained that I had fancied I recognized her among the patients at the home, hence my nocturnal adventures. "I guess it was just the kind of a story he was expecting. 'Quite a romance,' he said genially, when I'd finished. 'Now, Doc, I went on, 'will you be frank with me? Have you had here at any time a young girl called Jane Finn?' He repeated the name thoughtfully. 'Jane Finn?' he said. "I was chagrined, and I guess I showed it. 'You are sure?' 'Quite sure, Mr. Hershheimer. It is an uncommon name, and I should not have been likely to forget it. "Well, that was flat. It told me out for a space. I'd kind of hoped my search was at an end. 'That's that,' I said at last. 'Now, there's another matter. When I was lugging that darned branch I thought I recognized an old friend of mine talking to one of your nurses.' I purposely didn't mention any name because, of course, Whittington might be calling down here, but the doctor answered at once. 'Mr. Whittington perhaps?' 'That's the fellow,' I replied. 'What's he doing down here? Don't tell me his nerves are out of order?' "Doctor Hall laughed. 'No. He came down to see one of my nurses, Nurse Edith, who is a niece of his.' 'Why, fancy that?' I exclaimed. 'Is he still here?' 'No, he went back to town almost immediately.' 'What a pity!' I ejaculated. 'But perhaps I could speak to his niece—Nurse Edith, did you say her name was—' "But the doctor shook his head. 'I'm afraid that, too, is impossible.

With an Almightly Crash, Down It Came, and Julius P. Hershheimer With It." Nurse Edith left with a patient to-night also. "I seem to be real unlucky," I remarked. "Have you Mr. Whittington's address in town? If I guess I'd like to look him up when I get back." "I don't know his address. I can write to Nurse Edith for it if you like," I thanked him. "Don't say who it is, please. I'd like to give him a little surprise." "That was about all I could do for the moment. Of course, if the girl might be too cute to fall into the trap, but it was worth trying. My foot soon got all right. I said good-bye to the little doctor chap, asked him to send me word if he heard from Nurse Edith, and came right away back to town. Say, Miss Tuppence, you're looking mighty pale!" "It's Tommy," said Tuppence. "What can have happened to him?" "Back up; I guess he's all right really. Why shouldn't he be? See here, it was a foreign-looking guy he went after. Maybe they've gone abroad—to Poland, or something like that." Tuppence shook her head. "I've seen that man, Boris something, since. He died with Mrs. Vandemeyer last night." "Mrs. Who?" "Mrs. Who?" "I forgot. Of course you don't know all that." "I'm listening," said Julius, and

CURIOSITIES OF MATERIA MEDICA

Cobweb Pills Supposed Good for Ague, and Snake's Head Broth for Various Diseases. The heads of venomous serpents have held an important place in medicine. A strong broth made from them and mixed with salt and spices, and one hundred other remedies, was employed under the name of 'serpentina' cure for every conceivable disease. Curious survivals of this old belief in the efficacy of certain reptiles and insects as cures for human ills occasionally come to light, even in this advanced age. In New England, cobweb pills are supposed to be good for the ague, and in the South a certain snake-bone in a pig's foot is a cure for rheumatism. If it be carried in the

Knitted Togs for Kiddies; School Hats Are Jaunty

SINCE "comfort first" is baby's plea, small wonder is it that the softest and faintest of knitted garments occupy the place of honor in childhood's realm. It is generally conceded that for baby's tender skin there is nothing so "comfy" as knitted wool, lacking, as it does, the irritating qualities of the harder woven fabrics. Then, too, with knitted art responding so generously to childhood's needs, one readily appreciates why doting moth-

For babies' wear, white naturally holds sway with pink or blue trimmings. An attractive yoke distinguishes the ordinary, the little crocheted sacque here pictured and with lower ripple flange in pure white, adds to its loveliness. Contrary to expectation this adorable little garment fastens in the back with two pearl buttons, while a little plink (or blue if occasion demands) bow adorns the front. beginning of September. School hats, of course, should be severely plain and the hats shown in this group denounce that idea in mind and still have a jaunty charm that is all their own. For the high school girl the hat shown at the top is made of braided ribbon with a ribbon trimming in the form of rosette and cascade at the front side. Below at the left is shown a little model of pilot-edged ribbon sewed raw on row and trimmed with a hat rosette of the same ribbon in a lighter tone. The two hats shown at the right and below reflect the popularity of knitted goods in junior outfits. These are of knitted brushed wool in contrasting Plastered Walls Are Soiled. White plastered walls are almost impossible to clean, as they seem to absorb any soot or dust. If you decide to paint the walls, apply paint direct, and give three coats. If you prefer, give a coat of glue size first, made by dissolving a quarter pound of glue in one gallon of water. Well finished walls are a great satisfaction.—Housewife. A Season of Navy Blue. Dark blue is the leading color for street and morning wear. There is no dissension about this, all the couturiers being agreed, even Paul Poiret, whose creations differ so strikingly from all others. The light Havana brown claims a certain popularity. Gray and beige are very good for the tailcoats and dresses designed to be worn in the summer. These are the leading colors, black having very little place in this class of garment. Dark blue in combination with widely varying detail differs according to the house which shows it.

The Kitchen Cabinet

Beautiful hands are those that do deeds that are noble, kind and true. FOR WINTER FRUIT CLOSET

Where mushrooms are plentiful they may be canned, pickled or made into catsup, which will make a most delicious flavor for sauces, gravies and salads during the winter.

Mushroom Catsup.—Wipe the freshly-picked mushrooms; if perfectly clean they are much better if not washed. Put in layers into a stone crock with a sprinkling of salt. Cover with cloth folded to keep out the dust and let stand in a warm place for 24 hours. Put into a colander to drain off the salt and dash over them cold water to rinse. Put the mushrooms through a coarse sieve and to every quart of the liquor add an ounce of peppercorns, and simmer for 30 minutes. Then add one-fourth of an ounce of whole allspice, one-half ounce of sliced ginger root, one dozen whole cloves, three blades of mace, and cook 15 minutes. Put into small bottles, cork and dip into sealing wax or paraffin.

Company Sweet Pickles.—Take one pound each of candied cherries, a layer of raisins, left in clusters of two or three on the stem, six dozen of the tiny cucumbers. Put a quart of the best cider vinegar into a porcelain lined kettle, add one pound of granulated sugar and boil to a sirup, with two teaspoonsful each of nutmeg and white pepper, one teaspoonful of mace and one-half teaspoonful of ground cloves. Bring the sirup to a boil, then add the cherries; when they are plumped, remove with a skimmer and add the cucumbers. When boiling cook two minutes; they should be tender but not soft. Fill glass jars with the cucumbers in layers with the cherries and raisins. Four over the sirup boiling hot and seal.

Pepper Jam.—Wipe, remove the seeds from six sweet red peppers. Put through the food chopper, sprinkle with salt and let stand for three or four hours. Drain, rinse in cold water and put into a saucepan. Add one and one-half cupsful of sugar, one cupful of vinegar, and boil all together until of the consistency of jam. Pour into glasses. When cool cover with paraffin.

Into whose heart Love enters, there is Fairy and magic dust; a glance of the eye she hath blinded thee; and by the eyelids taken the incantation without ransom, and naught else.

EVERYDAY DISHES.

The canned blueberries, currants and cherries will make delicious pies this winter, so it is wise to provide plenty to supply the family. A few currants added to the blueberries when making the pies will add to the flavor.

During the summer and fall one is more apt to have an influx of cold weather. An emergency pudding which may be safely given to the children is prepared as follows:

Blueberry Pudding.—Lay slices of stale bread into a deep dish after spreading them with butter. Pour boiling hot blueberries, juice and all, over the bread, using as much of bread and berries as is needed. Cover and set away to chill. Unmold and cut into slices or serve from the dish, passing sugar and cream for sauce.

Apples and Onions.—The green apples early in the fall are very good for this dish. Slice them after washing and coring, without removing the peel. Put into a hot frying pan in which two or three onions have been cooking in sweet pork fat until a light brown. Now add the apples which cook quickly, season with salt, sugar, and cook until a golden brown. Serve as a vegetable with pork chops.

Savory Spinach With Ham.—Use slices of ham from the small end, cut very thin. Crisp in a hot frying pan and remove to the center of a hot platter. Pour into the pan one cupful of thick, rich tomato sauce and stir well, scraping off all the browned fat from the pan. Mix two cupfuls of cooked spinach with a teaspoonful of salt, a tablespoonful of butter and pepper to taste, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of sugar, and one beaten egg. Form into egg-shaped balls, place in a greased pan; sprinkle the tops with grated cheese and brown in a hot oven. Arrange around the ham as a border.

Cream of Cauliflower Soup.—Heat a pint of chicken or veal stock, one pint of milk and one-half cupful of sweet cream. When boiling stir it into a ribblespoonful of butter and four cooked together. Cook one-half cauliflower in salted water until tender, cut off the little flowerets and add them to the thickened stock. Serve hot.

Overcomes Shipwreck Terror. It is claimed that one of the terrors of shipwreck—darkness—is overcome by a new invention consisting of powerful electric lights which can be attached to lifeboats, and which will automatically be switched on as the boats touch the water. Two lights thoroughly illuminate the whole boat.

Concrete Stoves. Concrete stoves are made in Germany and are said to be unusually economical of fuel, due to the heat-insulating properties of the material.

PLYMOUTH SELF-FEED ENSILAGE CUTTERS

Plymouth Feed Cutters are the result of twenty-five years' experience and practical study of conditions and needs in the farm and dairy field. They embrace every advantage known to other similar machines, and many vital features which are original with us and can be had only in the Plymouth Self-Feed. Below are some mighty strong points for you to think about before you buy a feed cutter.

Automatic Self-Feed—This feature consists of a traveling feed chain, made of heavy iron slats, which is revolved by a chain which passes over the lower feed roller. Throw the fodder into the hopper and the "Plymouth" does the rest.

Proof Self-Feed Rollers—Here's another strong feature original with the "Plymouth." It consists of four large rollers of cast iron. The traveling feed chain passes over the lower hind roller and lower hind rollers are ribbed. The 8-inch automatic roller at the top, to the rear, is a feature of the "Plymouth." It acts as a lever or weight to keep the fodder passing continuously, depending on its own gravity to keep the material going through without stopping. Two coil springs serve to exert an even and steady pressure on the automatic roller as the volume of fodder increases in going through. The spring feature is entirely automatic, and does not require any adjustment. It absolutely prevents clogging.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

SMILES BENEFICENT

THEY are like the beaming beacons, blazing through the night over sparkling waters hiding perilous reefs. The pilot of a soul may be momentarily undecided as to the course that should be taken, but when a kindly smile sends its radiant rays across the somber sky, all doubt flees before it. What is more touching and cheering than the smile of a child? Who does not feel its uplifting influence? Observe the careworn as they move slowly down the street! See them turn their heads, or sometimes pause in the presence of a face illumined with a beautiful smile. How quickly their burdens are lifted! How wonderfully bright becomes the arch of the heavens under the magic touch of the wand that summons sweet smiles. In a moment everything in nature is supremely glad. The winds cease their growlings and pipe up merry tunes; people step more considerately to avoid jostling those near them, impelled suddenly to be on their best behavior; jangling noises become mellifluous under the spell of a soul alight with love, mirrored in sparkling eyes, dimpled cheeks and winsome lips.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

HARD LUCK

"I HAVE had," says Benvenuto Cellini, recounting his benefits, "many inestimable evils." Cellini as you know was a talented goldsmith, with such a high opinion of himself that nothing daunted him. He quarreled with everybody around him, fought valiantly in as many of the wars of his time as he could get into, and all the while toiled uncomplainingly at his trade. He narrowly escaped being one of the great artists of his day. In the autumn of his life he wrote his reminiscences, in which he tells of the evils he encountered, and rightly characterizes them as inestimable. Hard luck is nearly always a blessing. It is always very successfully disguised, but after it has passed the disguise falls away and we can calculate its true value. The intrigues of his fellow craftsmen who sought to supplant him in the favor of the pope, infuriated Cellini at the time. He was constantly in fear that they would succeed and he would lose much valuable work. But he toiled all the harder to establish himself, and soon discovered that the intrigues had really benefited him. Often he laid aside his goldsmith's tools to take up the sword, and complained bitterly about it at the time. But his heroic fighting disposition won him new and powerful friends, and through them more work. Constantly in fear that he might be thrust aside by other craftsmen who

GOOD-BY

By GRACE E. HALL

WE MEET and pass and speak one word unheeding, Though any hour may rob us of our friend; The voice that now in merry tones is speeding, With the eternal echoes soon may blend; We clasp today a hand that's warm and living, And gaze in eyes that hold a merry gleam; Tomorrow, the farewell look we may be giving, And hear a blithe "good-by" as in a dream. We hope and plan and play, and part with laughter, Unthinkingly, we use one word always; And give no thought to what may follow after, As though we were assured of endless days; Too oft we part when hearts are sad and aching, And speak in tones that cause a smothered sigh; Oh, let us but remember we are taking, What, anytime, may be our last good-by!

MEN YOU MAY MARRY

By E. R. PEYSER

Has a Man Like This Proposed to You? Symptoms: Sluggish hair, tie always a bit awry, writes poetry and essays—lives at libraries and literary gatherings when he is not lazing out his wares at "lily" ladies' afternoons. "He says such witty things." Every one wonders why his book doesn't sell. "Of course it's too good!" he says, "editors are not up to me." Every one praises him, he knows very few great people. "Can't abide them—they are really not great—just money makers." You like him because he is not mercenary and you think he's very real.

Cuba's Fresh-Water Fish

The fresh waters of Cuba are inhabited by fishes unlike those found in the fresh waters in the United States. Some of these are, evidently indigenous, derived in the waters they now inhabit directly from marine fauna. Two of these are eyeless species, inhabiting streams in caverns. They have no relatives in the fresh waters of any other region, the blind fishes in American caves being of a wholly different type. Some of the Cuban fishes are common to the fresh waters of the other West Indies. Of northern types, only one, the alligator gar, is found in Cuba, and this is evidently a filibuster immigrant from the coast of Florida.

SUMMER SOUPS

COLD soups of various kinds are very popular for a beginning at luncheons this season.

Jellied Chicken Bouillon

Take a pint of hot chicken soup well seasoned. Soak one tablespoonful of gelatin in one-fourth of a cupful of cold water and then add to the hot soup. Add a fourth of a cupful of boiling water and when cool add chopped parsley. Chill. Beat slightly with a fork and serve in bouillon cups with wafers.

Cherry Soup

Cook two tablespoonfuls of sago in one cupful of boiling water until tender, adding more water as needed until the sago is perfectly clear. Cook one quart of pitted cherries in one quart of water and one-fourth of a cupful of sugar, one-half a lemon finely sliced and three or four inches of stick cinnamon. Boil fifteen minutes; add the cooked sago and boil up; pour slowly over two well-beaten egg yolks and chill before serving.

Any berry may be used for this soup, following the above directions.

Mushroom Soup

Put a quart of milk and one cupful of cream in a double boiler, add two bay leaves, and a tablespoonful of flour mixed with some of the cold

Many Join Drive for Better Sires

In Three Months Total of 1,433 Persons Agreed to Use Pure Bred Males.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The planting of crops and the rush of work on the farm seems to be no obstacle in the drive for better live stock through the use of better sires. Although the three months of April, May and June are the busiest months of the year for most farmers, more persons were enrolled in the "Better Sires—Better Stock" movement during those three months in 1922, than during any similar period since the drive began in 1919. During the period a total of 1,433 persons agreed to use pure bred sires only in all breeding operations. This new high record is 256 more than the preceding quarter's total, which was itself a record up to that time.

Enrollments From Many States

Officials of the bureau of animal industry at Washington, who sponsor the campaign, are highly gratified at the sustained and increasing interest that is being shown. Although the five states of Kentucky, Vermont, West Virginia, Ohio, and Virginia, were most active, in the order named, enrollments were received from 14 states and 74 counties during the three months. The state of Vermont, which stands fifth in number of persons enrolled, with 75,000 head of live stock and poultry listed, is showing uniform interest in pure bred sires. Applications were received from every county in the state in which better-sires work had previously been started, 13 in all. This is a record for state-wide activity, as there is but one county in the state (Essex) which had not been heard from.

Kentucky Leads All States

Kentucky, however, leads all the states during the quarter in total number of enrollments, 427 applications being received. An attractive sign, bearing the words "Pure Bred Sires Exclusively Used on This Farm," has been prepared by the department for display by those who enroll in the better-sires drive. The sign is lithographed on cardboard in several colors, and resembles an embossed metal tablet. Each one distributed will bear the official enrollment number of the person to whom it is sent, as authority to display the sign. It is distributed free of cost, and persons who have already enrolled in the "Better Sires—Better Stock" campaign, as well as those who will enroll in the future, are eligible to receive it.

Harvesting Soy Beans With Ordinary Binder

Soy beans can be easily harvested with little loss to the grower if they are cut and bound with an ordinary grain binder according to F. S. Wilkins of the Iowa experiment station. Since the plants branch close to the ground, about one-fourth of the guards of the binder should be equipped with lifter guards, such as are used for lodged small grain. If these guards are used only a small percentage of the beans will be left on the ground. It is best to cut the beans when the pods are nearly ripe. The crop shatters rather easily when the pods are dead ripe. Most of the leaves will have fallen when the beans are ready to cut. The beans are easily shocked, but the shockers should be provided with gloves, since the dry, brittle stems injure the hands.

Grit or Oyster Shell Necessary for Chickens

Ground feeds are necessary for most efficient digestion in poultry. Hopper feeding saves labor and furnishes the necessary supplementary feed at all times. There is no danger of poultry overeating on ground feeds fed dry in a hopper. Limestone grit or oyster shell is also necessary for laying hens. A laying hen requires large quantities of shell-making material. Nearly all of this must come from the grit and shell she eats. It is poor economy not to keep a liberal supply accessible. One extra egg a year will pay the bill. It returns the money invested a hundred-fold.

Good Opportunity for Growing Timber Crops

Farm woodlots offer a splendid opportunity for growing timber crops, according to statements from the forest service, United States Department of Agriculture. It is estimated that there are 150,000,000 acres now in farm woodlots which if placed under sound forestry methods would yield substantial revenues to their owners, as well as lumber to help relieve the timber shortage which has already begun to be felt.

Tankage Will Satisfy Appetite of Hungry Hog

John Evans, an Illinois farmer, writes to the Farm Journal that he was working in the hog lot one day recently, and every little while would hear a pig squeal loudly. He watched and noticed that one of his pigs would go up behind another pig and bite off its tail. John began to look around and saw that nearly the whole herd was detailed. Moral: Feed your hogs tankage, to satisfy their most appetite.

Horses and Mules May Be Safely Fed Silage

Teams of horses and mules used around dairy farms in hauling feed may be safely fed silage, but never moldy silage, because they are particularly susceptible to mold. Some molds that develop in silage which is not properly cut and packed are deadly poisons to horses and mules. Frozen silage in winter causes colic. Corn silage is best for either horses or mules, experts say.

Veterinarians Fight Cattle Tuberculosis

Unanimous in Report That Work Is Good Thing.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Practicing veterinarians in regions where the United States Department of Agriculture, the states and counties are carrying on campaigns against cattle tuberculosis report almost unanimously that the work is a good thing and should be encouraged and increased. These facts were brought out through letters sent out by the Department of Agriculture to a large number of veterinarians. Four hundred and ten replies were received. Out of this large number only 27 spoke unfavorably of the work and 369 were definitely in favor of carrying it on according to present plans. Sixty-five veterinarians said that their practice had been reduced as a result of the campaign, but, nevertheless, more than half of them, in spite of this loss, gave their approval.

Many of the Veterinarians Say That cleaning out tuberculosis from the herds in their communities has been a good thing for their business, and scores of them mention the general improvement in live stock which has resulted, the reduction of losses and the increasing prosperity of farmers. It is apparent from this investigation that the co-operating agencies' policy in the fight against cattle tuberculosis has not been a detriment to the local veterinarian.

Diversified Crops Aid Weed Control Campaign

Weed control through the growing of diversified crops is now being practiced successfully, as a result of agricultural extension work, in Kiltson county, Minn., and other parts of the Red River valley, to further the state's efforts in that direction, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture. The growing of clover and rye, particularly, is taking the place of the former practice of summer fallowing in combating the sow thistle (which has developed into a menace, as rye is cut before the sow thistle seeds), while the clovers, especially sweet clover, making a rank growth, crowd out the weeds.

Sweet clover has only been grown for pasture from Cape Colony, South Africa, which is far, far away from here. There are nine zebra cousins here in the zoo, which is a splendid number. Of course I think eleven would be a nice number of zebras to have here, and perhaps

BABY ZEBRA

"I've named you Julia," said Queen Bess to her child.

"Of course it was the keeper in the zoo who told me that he thought that would be a nice name for you, and I think so, too. I thought so the moment he spoke of it."

Now, Julia was a baby zebra, and her mother was a grown-up zebra.

A zebra, as you know, is something like a horse with stripes.

"I suppose there are some people who wouldn't think a baby zebra was the sweetest thing in the world, but I do," Mother Zebra said.

Sometimes now she was called Mother Zebra, though, of course, Queen Bess was her real name, as I've said before.

"Your father, Julia Zebra, is known as George First. Does not that make him sound regal?"

"Regal means kingly, of course. You're enjoying lay, too, now. Oh, yes, you're eating very grown-up food, and yet you are only a little girl, only a little girl."

"Your father is eleven years old. You see, that makes him very wise and important."

"There are creatures of eleven years old who may not be wise and important, but to my zebra mind there is nothing much finer in the way of an age than the age of eleven."

"The King, your father, thinks that my age is a fine age. I am nine years old."

"We are both from Cape Colony, South Africa, which is far, far away from here. There are nine zebra cousins here in the zoo, which is a splendid number. Of course I think eleven would be a nice number of zebras to have here, and perhaps they'll send for two more some time to make the number eleven.

"I really think, though, that nine is all right as a number when it means the number of cousins we have here."

"And eleven is the finest age to be. Two of our babies have been given to other zoos, which is quite fair, I suppose. We were given something in this zoo in exchange."

An exchange is fair? Even if it means exchanging zebra and other fine beasts.

"One of the young zebra children was sent to Belgium, which is far, far away, across an ocean, and then still more of a distance."

"To be sure I do not think so much of the distance, for I came here from a greater distance still. But people think that is far away."

"The other baby zebra was sent to a zoo in this country. But you are to stay here with your mother, for you are your mother's Julia baby girl!"

"I knew you were going to look just as you do."

"How did you know that, Mother Zebra?" asked Julia Zebra.

"A little bird told me," said Mother Zebra.

"A little bird?" repeated Julia.

"Yes," said Mother Zebra, "a little bird. But when I say that I say it as people do who use that expression."

"When some one knows a nice secret they are apt to say: 'Oh, a little bird told me.' They mean that it is a very nice little secret—just such a one as a dear little bird would tell."

"Dear me, dear me," continued Mother Zebra, "what a handsome bumble-bee I do see over yonder."

"He's handsome, but I hope he's not coming to call on me. He has a most magnificent black and golden suit. It looks like a very expensive and rich and magnificent bumble-bee suit."

"He must have paid a great deal of bumble-bee money for it."

"Ah, he's not coming to call here. He sees a flower over yonder. Well and good, well and good."

"It's a nice world, isn't it?" asked Julia as she looked about her.

"Couldn't be better," said Mother Zebra. "Couldn't be better!"

Big Risk Taken By Engine Crews

Men Who Pilot Trains Through Tunnels Literally Take Lives in Their Hands.

Washington.—The engine crews who drive the modern monster types of locomotives through the longer tunnels of American railroads are frequently exposed to the presence of deadly carbon monoxide gas and to withering temperatures ranging up to 136 degrees Fahrenheit, states the Department of the Interior, as the result of an investigation conducted by the bureau of mines in Utah and Wyoming. Hot exhaust gases are the source of danger from exposure to tunnel atmospheres. Many serious accidents have occurred in these tunnels due to asphyxiation or exhaustion of the locomotive crews, caused by exposure to atmospheres containing carbon monoxide, or to atmospheres of a high temperature and saturated with moisture. These hazards are accentuated by a group of less important consisting of sulphur dioxide, hydrogen sulphide, soot and steam, accompanied by the decreased oxygen content of the air.

Suggested Remedy.
The Interior department recommends the use of smoke deflectors on locomotives operating in tunnel districts as a means of reducing the hazard due to high temperatures, and the use of the train airbrake line as a source of air for breathing purposes for members of engine crews. The object of the Interior department's investigation, conducted by the bureau of mines in co-operation with the Union Pacific railroad, was to determine the cause of gassing accidents by examining into composition of the air in locomotive cabs while passing through railroad tunnels; to learn the effect of these conditions on the engine crews, and to provide a means of protection for the men so exposed. Gas samples and temperature readings taken in the cabs of locomotives were used in studying the atmospheric conditions to which the locomotive crews were exposed. The symptoms and the physiological effects produced in men exposed to the atmospheres encountered were studied. The pulse rates and body temperatures were taken and determinations of the carbon monoxide content of the blood were made. Various methods for the prevention of gassing and for the protection of men therefrom were considered and tested, among which were the use of mechanical devices for deflecting the smoke away from the engine cab and the use of various types of gas masks and breathing apparatus. Of forty trips conducted in cabs of locomotives while the trains were passing through tunnels, carbon monoxide was found to be present on thirty-four trips.

Extreme Temperature.
The operation of 24 trains of approximately 2,000 tons each, in a normal running time of six minutes through the Aspen tunnel in Wyoming showed air temperatures of 114 degrees Fahrenheit (dry bulb), 111 degrees (wet bulb) and a relative humidity of 90 per cent. The maximum dry-bulb temperature recorded on any of the forty tests conducted was 136 degrees, while the maximum wet-bulb temperature was 124 degrees. The time consumed in the passage of the trains varied from 4 1/2 minutes to 25 minutes. Results of physiological tests over periods of ten minutes showed that the conditions in the cabs might be severe enough to cause asphyxiation or exhaustion in periods of 20 minutes, especially in cases where the engine is stalled. Pocket respirator and other types of gas masks, packed with soda-lime charcoal mixtures, afforded protection against smoke and sulphurous gases. Carbon monoxide masks afforded protection against all of the gases encountered. Some discomfort was experienced in wearing gas masks in atmospheres of high temperature and humidity, however. Mechanical methods for deflecting the smoke, by using the force of the exhaust in conjunction with a hood or

Pink Slip Shows Who Will Be the Boss

A youth and a maiden were in the marriage license bureau, at San Francisco, Cal. When they left, with a marriage license in the youth's pocket, clerks found a small pink paper on which was written the following: "Henry, get haircut and manicure; get fun-dress suit; wash head; don't put water on head; get a pair of garters; perfume nicely; don't eat onions; get full-brass collar and necktie; get shoes; get hat; get a new tooth brush; get the license; get flowers; be on time for wedding; don't forget the ring, Mary."

elbow attached to the top of the locomotive stack, for throwing the smoke back over the top of the cab were found very effective in reducing the temperature and improving the atmospheric conditions in the cab.

Romance in an Old Gray House in New York City

New York.—Up on Central Park West, in the middle 80s, there is a boarding house that is unique—absolutely different from every other boarding house in the manner in which it is run and the sort of people who live there. It is an old-fashioned gray brick house with a corner tower and it was "founded" for it is an institution by three southern sisters.

During the twenty-something years they have been taking "paying" guests they have introduced a modicum of sympathy and understanding and friendliness into their home far above most boarding houses.

Two of the sisters have gone to their reward, but the third sister remains at the helm.

The house has a reputation in the South, from Washington, D. C. to Key West; from White Sulphur to Galveston. And many a southern father who would not otherwise let his daughter come along to visit New York, feels that she is perfectly safe at the old gray house in Central Park West.

Jungle Hides Ancient City

Place in Ceylon Was Founded 437 B. C., and Covered Area of Sixteen Square Miles.

Boston.—Of the buried cities of Ceylon, the most fully excavated to date is Anuradhapura. Not that excavation can be said to be at all complete, but as the present stage starting facts are revealed. Here, says a writer in the Christian Science Monitor, was an ancient city, a contemporary of Rome, which for extent quite dwarfs it. "Road-building Rome" was built on seven small hills—Anuradhapura's splendid structures cover an area at least sixteen miles square. At least—for neither the out city walls nor its exact boundaries have as yet been determined. Decipherable "Asoka" characters place its founding as a royal city at 437 B. C.; its desertion as such did not take place until late in the Nineth century.

Twelve hundred years of splendor, of luxury, of splendid architecture—and yet the western world knows of it nothing. Attacked by the moment the nightfires of civilization flickered out, like the vast ruins of Aztec culture in Yucatan, its part is as legendary, its wonders as mythical as Ilion, Troy, or pent-up Utopia.

Pair Die at Same Time While Seeking Health

Scranton, Pa.—Mr. and Mrs. John Perry, parents of nine children, died at exactly the same hour on a little farm at Forest Lake, where they had moved in the effort to regain their lost health. Perry was fifty-one years old and his wife was forty-five. The woman died of a complication of diseases. The husband succumbed to miners' asthma. The couple lived at Scranton until two years ago, when Perry decided to move to the farm near Montrose, Pa., in an effort to fight off the ravages of his ailment.

Hen Has Record for Big Eggs.
Ashland, Ore.—Mrs. J. E. Ramsay of Ashland claims to have a world's champion hen when it comes to laying large eggs. All eggs laid by this hen are unusually large, but one egg which measured 8 1/2 by 7 1/2 inches, is believed to be one of the largest ever laid in Oregon. The hen is a Barred Rock, from the famous Oregon Agricultural college strain, and is three years old.

Birds in Abandoned Farms.
Naturalists have noticed that the abandoned farms offer great opportunity for the study of bird life, and the birds seem to frequent these localities for some reason. Edmund J. Sawyer of Syracuse, N. Y., who has commented on this fact in articles for various publications, says that while the birds to be found at these places are mostly of the commoner varieties, for purposes of close observation the abandoned farms offer great advantages because of the numbers to be encountered. Within 300 feet of one of these houses he found nests with eggs and young of eleven species.

Royal School Masters.
Prince Max of Baden, who is said to have started a boarding school, is not the first royal personage to become a schoolmaster when down in the world. Louis Philippe taught mathematics at a school in Switzerland, during the early years which the French revolution compelled him to spend in exile.

The average man wastes a lot of wind siring his views.

A SCHOOL GIRL'S SUCCESS

Everything Depends upon her Health

Mrs. George E. Whitacre Tells of her Daughter's Breakdown and How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her a Healthy, Happy, Strong Girl

Every mother possesses information of vital importance to her young daughter, and the responsibility for her future is largely in her hands. When a school girl's thoughts become sluggish, when she suffers the consequences of wet feet, pain, headaches, fainting spells, loss of sleep and appetite, and irregular, her mother should have a thought for her physical condition and try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which has proved a reliable aid to nature for just such conditions in so many cases.

This Mother Writes:
Mahoningtown, Pa.—"I would like to say a few words about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. About a year ago I thought it would be necessary for me to take my daughter out of school. She was losing weight, was nervous, and when she would come home from school she would drop into a chair and cry, and say, 'Mamma, I don't believe I can go to school another day.' I gave her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now she is a healthy, happy, hearty, strong girl and weighs 120 pounds. She has no difficulty in doing her gym work, and she works at home every night and morning, too. I am a mother who can certainly praise your medicine, and if it will be of any benefit you may use this letter as a reference."—Mrs. GEORGE E. WHITACRE, 321 W. Madison Avenue, Mahoningtown, Pa.

Every girl ought to be healthy and strong, and every mother wants her daughter to do well in school and to enjoy herself at other times. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine for young women just entering womanhood. Mothers can depend upon it. It is prepared from roots and herbs, contains nothing harmful, and has great power to tone up and strengthen the system, so it will work in a healthy and normal manner. For nearly fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been used by women of all ages, and these women know its great value. Let it help your daughter and yourself.

COTTON CROP IN AUSTRALIA

Shows Fine Staple in Pod, Though Growing Almost Wild in the Northern Territory.

Cotton in Australia has been found showing a very fine staple in the pod, though growing almost wild in the northern territory. Queensland is leading the way thoroughly and well in this matter. Expert and official opinion holds that a large portion of Western Australia is as suitable for cotton production as Queensland. Queensland is showing the pace. Last year 7,000 acres were under crop; this year the area is estimated between 80,000 and 100,000 acres. In two of its subtropical districts 3,000,000 acres are being opened up under the cotton prospects and 200,000 acres in another. The government is guaranteeing a minimum price of 5 1/2d (11 cents) per pound for seed cotton. If cultivation responds the guarantee holds good for three years. The British Australian cotton association is helping with the creation of 48 ginneries. America demands more cotton; Great Britain is hanging for it. The world is looking for it. If Germany restores her prewar industry, then clearly the world's demand for some considerable time will be far ahead of the supply. Here is another golden opportunity for Australia.—A. S. Ledger, in Current History Magazine.

The first Bible printed in Scotland was issued complete in 1579. In the same year, by act of parliament, every man, householder, and others—"Worth three hundred marks of yerlie rent or above" into every yeoman and burgess a penalty of 50s, "a Bible and psalter bouque in vulgare language in their houses for the better instruction of the people and their families in the knowledge of God." And to see that the provisions of the above act were carried into effect, the following year a visitation was appointed with power to search the houses of these persons by the act, "and to require the sight of their Psalm Books and Bibles."

Call for Affidavit. I had been on a visit to my father and was returning home with an expensive typewriter he had given me. He insisted I write my name and address on the bottom. I put it in the rack on the train, forgot about it, and got off. A few days later it came to me by express. I never knew who found it and was so kind to return it.—Chicago Journal.

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased. Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble. Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions. Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

Of Course She Didn't Ask for It.

Evelyn had been instructed by mother not to ask anyone for a penny. Later her aunt opened her purse to take a nickel to use in the telephone, and Evelyn shyly glanced in. Seeing one lone penny, she remarked that she thought pennies were such a nuisance in a big lady's purse.

Tact points out the "psychological moment."

The Studebaker Light-Six
Five-Passenger Touring Car

$995

Don't Experiment Buy a 1924 Studebaker

The 1924 Studebaker Light-Six Touring car, with its refinements and improvements, offers the closest approach to mechanical perfection in moderate priced cars yet produced.

It continues to set the pace in the amount of value for the money invested. No radical departure from approved design has been attempted. There's nothing experimental about it—everything of recognized merit. Every vital unit has proved its satisfaction in the public use.

No matter how much money you expect to invest in a car, by all means see this Light-Six Touring car, ride in it—and drive it yourself. It is then that you realize the difference.

Comparison with other cars costing more—or less—will provide convincing proof of its greater dollar-for-dollar value, its dependable performance, ample power, extreme comfort, and many other desirable features.

The Light-Six is practically free from vibration because Studebaker machines the crankshaft and connecting rods on all surfaces. No other manufacturer follows this practice on a car at anywhere near the Light-Six price. This is just one of many superiorities.

After seventy-one years, the name Studebaker enjoys confidence and respect more than ever.

New steel body of striking beauty. One piece, rain-proof windshield with attractive cowl lights set in base. Quick-action coil ventilator. Door curtains, bound on three sides by steel rods, open with doors. Removable upholstery in tonneau. Door pocket flaps with weights hold them in shape. Upholstered in genuine leather. Large rectangular window in rear curtain. This proof transmission lock.

Railways of the United States

RAILWAY TRAFFIC: Freight traffic throughout the United States has been the greatest ever known for the first half of the calendar year. The railroads prove their efficiency by handling it promptly even though the freight rates are not such as to yield a fair interest rate upon the investment in railroad property, and this is particularly true of the roads in the northwestern region.

RAILWAYS—THE BASIS OF COMMERCE: Transportation is a factor in all commerce, a primary necessity for the exchange of products. Adequate transportation in the United States has played a large part in making possible the accumulation of more wealth in the United States during the last twenty years than the British Empire has accumulated in its entire history.

REST CURE FOR THE RAILROADS: The railroads have helped to make the United States great. They should receive fair treatment at the hands of the Government and its various commissions which control their activities. A "railroad legislative holiday" should be proclaimed throughout the United States. The fact that for many years the railroads have received, as net income, less than is now recognized as a fair interest upon their property value, is a challenge to our form of regulation. Notwithstanding increases in rates since 1917, the railroads are now and have been for some time, handling freight at the lowest rates in the world.

RAILWAY SERVICE: Railway service in the United States has reached a state of efficiency not equaled anywhere else in the world. We have become so accustomed to this that we are forgetful of the effort required to maintain and operate this service and the real unity of the transportation system which enables one to ship goods over any and all lines at will; opens a world-wide market to the producer, and permits travel to any accessible station. The comfort and luxury of our passenger service would have been inconceivable fifty years ago.

FAIR TREATMENT TO RAILROADS: The railroads of the United States, while contributing freely to the prosperity of the Nation, have not been allowed an equitable share in that prosperity. They have been slandered by self-seeking and unscrupulous politicians. They have also been subjected to a form of restrictive regulation which has not been applied to business generally. Notwithstanding all the adverse conditions under which the railroads are placed, the Chicago and North Western Railway System continues to maintain a service, both passenger and freight, of the highest standard.

Autoist Runs Down Farmer's Pig

Albert Gesko, a farmer residing near Hard Scrabble, was driving along the concrete, near Meeker, when, without any warning, a car here down on him, striking the burg, throwing him out and killing the horse. In the mishap the auto driver got away. Mr. Gesko, while not injured, did not get his auto number. Such road boys ought to be given a six months term in jail. It would help to cure reckless concern for life and limb.—Hartford Press.
