PRETTY WEDDINGS OF POPULAR YOUNG PEOPLE ARE SOLEMNIZED

POPULAR TOWN OF AUBURN PEOPLE WED
The St. John's Lutheran church, New Fane, was the scene of a very pretty wedding when Miss Marie Schultz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schultz, became the bride of Otto Dickmann, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Dickmann, both of the town of Auburn, last week Saturday, September 15th.

HAIR MIRACULOUS ESCAPE FROM VERY SERIOUS INJURY
Henry Peterman, a young farmer residing in the town of Auburn, had a narrow escape from serious injury and possible death on Monday afternoon at about six o'clock. Mr. Peterman was assisting in filling a silo at the Chas. Biegel farm, located about two miles north of Kewaskum. The unfortunate man was standing on the front axle of the gasoline engine, while oiling the machine, when Henry Schultz, a neighbor, who was also assisting in filling the silo, drove up along side of the engine, with a load of corn stalks, evidently not seeing Mr. Peterman, and in trying to drive along side the feed cutter as close as possible, came too close to the engine, the corn stalks pushing Mr. Peterman onto the fly wheel which whirled him once around, landing on his feet with the corn stalks of the load pressing him against the fast revolving fly wheel.

PLYMOUTH SELF-FEED ENSILAGE CUTTERS

"Plymouth" Feed Cutters are the result of twenty-five years' experience and practical study of silage making needs in the farm and dairy field. They embrace every advantage known to other silage machines, and many vital features which are original with us and can be had only in the "Plymouth Self-Feed." Below are some mighty strong points for you to think about before buying a feed cutter.

Automatic Self-Feed—This feature consists of a traveling feed chain, made of heavy iron slats riveted to a chain which passes over the lower feed roller. Throw the fodder into the hopper and the "Plymouth" does the rest.

Proof Self-Feed Rollers—Here's another strong feature original with the "Plymouth." It consists of four large rollers of cast iron. The traveling feed chain passes over the lower hind roller passing the lower front roller, which is six inches in diameter, and smooth. The two lower hind rollers are ribbed. The 8-inch automatic roller at the top, to the rear, is a feature of the "Plymouth." It acts as a lever or weight to keep the fodder passing continuously, depending on its own gravity to keep the material going through without stopping. Two coil springs serve to exert an even and steady pressure on the automatic roller as the amount of fodder increases in going through. The spring feature is entirely automatic, and is held in the "Plymouth." It absolutely prevents clogging.

Farmers' Opinions on Stock Feeding

Obtaining Feed Economically Is Most Troublesome Problem of Breeders.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Producing or otherwise obtaining their feed economically is the most troublesome feeding problem of farmers who keep live stock. This was brought out emphatically through a questionnaire sent out by the United States Department of Agriculture which was answered by nearly 500 farmers scattered over the country. The replies showed that general economy of rations, the cost of grain, and the cost of protein represent about 52 per cent of the difficulties in feeding. These men classed balancing of rations next in importance. Other problems, such as labor, increasing production, difficulties in wintering stock, short pastures, and variety and palatability of feeds apparently were thought of only in connection with the principal difficulties. That these opinions are worth considering is borne out by the fact that all of the men questioned were progressive farmers and breeders, and the average period of their experience was 20 years.

Adopt Balanced Rations.

During the two decades these stock raisers have been working to get ahead, many changes have taken place in the ways of feeding animals. The outstanding progressive step taken has been the wide adoption of the balanced ration. Other improvements in the order of feeding by most of the five hundred farmers are more liberal feeding, feeding more legumes, better water supply, providing minerals, feeding according to production, feeding more protein, and more regular feeding. At the same time they list the common errors in feeding which are responsible for poor results, poor combinations of feeds being the one most frequently mentioned, followed by underfeeding as the next most effective reducer of profits. Following these in regular order, based on the number of times mentioned in the answers, come lack of protein, lack of water, lack of legumes, sudden changes of feed, poor housing parasites, lack of salt, waste of feed, poor equipment, and overfeeding. Practically all of these troubles are easily preventable.

Almost all of these 500 farmers had raised at one time or another scrubs, grades, and pure breeds, and almost to a man they joined in a paean of praise for the pure bred. Only 1 per cent of them reported that they had failed with improved stock. Most replies contained specific estimates showing the superiority of well-bred over run-downed animals, and when averaged 40 per cent better returns on feed used than common stock. It is interesting to note here that another questionnaire sent out by the department a year ago and answered by several hundred farmers showed that in their opinion pure breeds have a general utility value a little more than 40 per cent greater than common stock.

Many Use Self-Feeders.

The report prepared by the department on the results of this feeding investigation contains many more interesting sidelights on feeding and corroborates a number of tendencies that good observers must have suspected. For instance, of 400 who answered questions regarding the use of self-feeders, 41.5 per cent had used this method of feeding, leaving about three-fifths yet to take up this economy. At present the self-feeder seems to be used mostly in hog raising districts and for poultry. In the Middle West more than half the farmers reporting used it. The general sentiment seems to be that this piece of equipment is especially suited to hogs and chickens, but a few farmers used it for feeding calves and sheep. Nearly all of those who replied made comment on the feeding of silage and practically 50 per cent of them use this feed. In the north-eastern states, where dairying is very generally followed, two-thirds of the farmers in the list have silos. Although most of the silage is fed to dairy cows, the list of animals to which it is fed, according to the questionnaire, includes also steers, breeding ewes, and brood sows. A few men reported feeding it in limited quantities to hogs, hogs, and lambs.

It is worth while to note that more than 22 per cent of those farmers who answered the government questions credited farm papers as the principal source of their knowledge of feeding problems. Other important sources mentioned were experience on home farm, general observation, bulletins, and books and records.

Pure Strain Selections of Tubers are Superior

Cornell university plant breeders have found that pure-strain selections of potatoes are much superior to those ordinarily grown by farmers in New York. Plants of the pure strain, developed from a single tuber, produced 48 more bushels to the acre than seed potatoes selected by farmers in a two-year commercial test.

Darken Cots' Stall to Lessen Fly Irritation

Leave the cots in the barn while their mother is working in the field. Darken the cots' stalls to lessen the irritation from flies and give them access to clean feed at all times. This will give them a chance to develop and grow into much better individuals.

Dehorning Cattle.

The problem of dehorning cattle is one on which all authorities are not agreed, but if properly done the dehorning process in many cases will result in improvement.

Profitable to Cull Flocks.

It is just as profitable to keep the farm flock culled for wool and mutton as for eggs and white meat.

Worm Causes Heavier Losses Than Cholera

Biggest Part of the Damage Comes From Wasted Feed.

Swine raisers suffer greater loss from round worms than from hog cholera, according to the department of animal husbandry of the New Jersey agricultural experiment station, but they do not attract so much attention because few hogs actually die from worms. The damage comes from the amount of feed wasted in feeding the worms and the loss of utility of the animals. Many lung diseases, especially pneumonia, occur as the direct result of worms.

To combat the round worm successfully its life cycle should be thoroughly understood. Six to eight million eggs a year are laid by the worm in the feces of the hog's intestines. The eggs come out with the manure, infecting every particle of food on the surface of the hog lot. They will survive most conditions for at least a year.

The eggs are swallowed by the pig in feeding and hatch in the intestines. The young worms then work their way through the walls of the intestine, and into the liver and blood stream, by which they are carried to the lungs. While in the lungs they may cause "chumps" or heavy breathing. Here they become active, crawl up the windpipe and cause coughing. Some are expelled from the mouth at this time, but most are swallowed and then remain permanently in the intestines.

Several treatments for worms may be followed:
Withhold feed from the hog for 24 hours and give a capsule containing two grains of santoni, three grains of aloin and eight grains of soda bicarbonate. Do not feed for eight or ten hours after treatment, and then give one to two tablespoonfuls of epsom salts or glauber salts in the feed for every 100 pounds live weight of the hogs. One capsule is sufficient for a pig weighing up to 75 pounds.

If santoni cannot be procured, oil chenopodium, also known as "oil of worm seed" may be used. Four teaspoonfuls mixed with one ounce of castor oil is the usual dosage. The results will be most satisfactory if the oil is given alone rather than with the feed. Each pig should be fasted 24 hours before treatment.
If necessary, repeat the treatment in four to six weeks.

Late Built Houses May Cause Colds and Roup

Many poultrymen are finding that poultry houses built too late in the fall are apt to result in colds and roup. Before the birds, especially pullets, are put in a new poultry house the floor as well as the lumber used in construction must be thoroughly dry. The essentials of a good poultry house are, dryness, as this prevents colds and roup; fresh air, which keeps the birds in good health; sunlight, nature's best disinfectant, and floor space so that during confinement the birds will have room to exercise.

For the best results a poultry house should be built for units of 200 birds. This requires a house 20 by 40 feet. It should face southward and should be located on high dry ground, and where it gets some shelter. Glass windows on the east and west sides with curtain windows in the front will allow all the sunlight and fresh air that the birds require.

Protection of the flock against daily and seasonal changes of weather and climate is the purpose of a poultry house.

High Feeding Value of Buttermilk and Products

The feeding value of buttermilk and buttermilk products, such as condensed or dried buttermilk, is not generally appreciated. At any rate, creameries are unable to get as much out of their buttermilk as its feeding value indicates they should be able to realize. Farmers who live close to the creameries take their own share of the buttermilk back home as a feed for hogs and chickens. They derive much value from the product, provided it is fed in an economical manner. Buttermilk is relatively rich in protein and its protein has a high feeding value because of its animal origin. For that reason, if it is supplied more liberally than it is needed for balancing the grain ration fed, part of it is wasted and, as a result, its full feeding value is not realized.

Disposing of Produce to Commission Merchant

Selling to commission merchants is the simplest method of disposing of the produce, as it does away with the expense and trouble involved in a private trade, but the returns are usually not so great, except when dealing with certain commission houses that have built up a fine trade along certain lines.

Clean Hands Necessary.

Clean hands are necessary to produce the best milk, and soap and water should not be spared. Many dairies use small-mouth pails. This reduces the amount of surface exposed to the air and dust.

Accessories Are Important; Hat and Scarf Sets Stay

STYLES in clothes may come and go, making transitions from one extreme to another, but accessories of dress—the fans, combs, earrings, and jewels that tone up dress for women and harmonize it with different backgrounds, seem to be less susceptible to change than other things. Novelties that appear in accessories are added to the store of feminine knick-knacks that every woman appears to gather about her and cherishes whether their money value is great or small.

Hence the ostrich fan, tortoise shell comb and drop earrings of an earlier day are still fashionable in the present day of grace. In fact, old-fashioned jewelry of all descriptions is staging a spectacular comeback—if it is sufficiently old. Many old designs have reappeared in modern jewelry and the effect they give is quaint and charming. This is particularly true of the combination of diamonds with jet, in brooches, chains and earrings, which has reappeared in ornamentation and jewelry.

Displaying Latest Accessories.

The young lady in the picture is wearing earrings of an old design. Her comb is golden shell, to match the blonde of her hair. The ostrich fan is also in a color that harmonizes with the color of her gown and bracelet shown is of white vegetable ivory. It is very prettily set with brilliants. In accessories for less formal wear there is a fad for "tinkle bracelets" of thin glass made in all sorts of brilliant colors. Several of these are worn on the wrist at the same time and the faint music of their clashing gives them their name. A brand new idea in swaggar sticks has recently come out. These sticks are made of a composition resembling celluloid and come in all colors. Generally they have tips and heads of gold or silver, or they may be finished with the same substance in a different color.

Two of the Latest Hat and Scarf Sets.

Head necklaces are still the most popular item in costume jewelry and just now rose-colored glass heads appear to be in every woman's mind as more to be desired than any others. These red-brown tones harmonize with all the colors most fashionable for dresses and suits, and lighter tones ranging into amber, share their popularity. The color of the costume dictates what that of the necklace should be, but fine white crystal and good strands of pearls are worn with everything.

That Cellar Light.

In our home we were forever neglecting to turn off the cellar light, says a writer. This is my reminding plan: I have a good-sized pasteboard board on which is printed in black letters, "The Light Is On," hanging to the cellar light switch in the kitchen. Now, when a member of the family turns on the switch he removes the card before descending to the cellar. Upon returning he sees the card, is reminded of the burning light, hangs up the card, and turns off the switch.

Alabama Mayor Out With Strong Facts

Judge G. W. Thomson, Mayor of Tarrant City, Alabama, widely known and highly esteemed pioneer citizen, recently gave his unqualified endorsement to the Tanlac treatment.

"Chronic indigestion brought me to the verge of a general breakdown three years ago," said Judge Thomson, "and nothing seemed to afford much relief. I was eating scarcely enough to keep going on, and food stayed in my stomach like a rock, causing pain and extreme nervousness. Sleep was often impossible, and I gradually weakened so I could hardly attend to my office duties.

"The first bottle of Tanlac improved me wonderfully, and each successive bottle gave added impetus to my returning strength. I felt ten years younger when I finished the sixth bottle a short time later. Tanlac gave me new zest in life that still remains with me."

Tanlac is for sale by all good drug-gists.

Strange Experience.
One day a friend wanted to go swimming and asked me to keep $30 for him until he returned. I wrapped it in a handkerchief with $20 of my own money and planned it inside my dress. An hour later I went to the post office and upon returning, saw something lying on the sidewalk. I picked it up and discovered it to be my handkerchief containing the $50.
