cupful of mustard seed, one tablespoonful of celery seed, one table spoonful of freshly ground pepper, one cupful of olive oil. Slice the wellwashed cucumbers without peeling, add the sliced onions-a small onion will make a better looking pickieone may use a dozen or more; sprinkle with salt and set aside to stand over night. In the morning rinse off the salt and drain the cucumbers and onions. Place in a jar, add the seasonings, oil and vinegar, mix well, let stand for a day or two, then put into jars and seal. Keep in a cool place.

Cucumber Catsup.—Peel and grate ripe cucumbers, squeezing out as much of the juice as possible. To a pint of the unsqueezed pulp use a cupful of good strong vinegar, a grated onion, one red pepper finely chopped and salt to make palatable. If the pepper is not hot add a half-teaspoonful of cayenne pepper. Bottle and seal. This is delicious with fish in the winter when such foods are high in price.

Wild Grapes With Orange Rind .-Put the peeling of two oranges through the meat chopper, add three times as much water as ground peel, let stand over night. Simmer for two hours the next day and let stand again over night. Simmer one quart of wild grapes, adding all the green ones. Put through a fruit press to remove seeds. Combine the pulp with the orange rind and to every three cupfuls of the mixture add two and one-half cupfuls of sugar; simmer until it jellies, then pour into glasses.

Mustard Pickles.-To a gallon of rinegar add one-half cupful of mustard and one cupful of salt, two cupfuls of brown sugar. Mix cold and grop in the well-washed cucumbers as they are gathered; cover with horseadish leaves.

"My trip was all without accident or mishap of any kind, although I had several narrow escapes," said Judge Dustin. "In China, I was on one steamer that had shortly before been captured by pirates and hence was provided with an armed guard. "I was also a passenger on the celebrated 'Million-Dollar Train,' which was, two weeks later, captured by bandits and its occupants robbed and held for ransom. And, strangely enough, that train was held up at about the same locality, not by bandits, but by a wreck. We were detained for 12 hours and hundreds of natives came down from the mountains and looked us over, finally concluding that we were not worth robbing and let us alone.

"I was in Peking when the police struck because their wages had not been paid, and in Yokohama, Japan, when there was a very distinct earthquake shock. While I was in Java there was an upheaval and an island thrown up in the neighboring sea over which I had but recently sailed.

About the only tax which it is able to collect and use for the most necessary purposes is the 'salt tax.'

Will Hunt for Pirate's Gold

Aged Resident of Lewiston, Me., Says He Saw Captain Kidd's Chest in Sheepscot River.

Lewiston, Me.-Moses King, Jr., minety-odd years of age, of this city, has seen part of the lost treasure of Captain Kidd and has now invented a dredge with which he expects to recover the lost gold from the mud of the Sheepscot river, Maine. The construction of the dredge and the proposed expedition in search of the buried treasure is being financed by a Dr. Wing, whose place of residence Mr. King refuses to divulge at this time.

"When I was about twenty years of age," tells Mr. King, "I was one of the company which my father took to the gold of Captain Kidd. With him, beand a professional diver. While gold. father was the head of the expedition, the whole program originated from the story Trask told my parent.

This brought it down to the man who went with father and me to hunt for it more than seventy years ago. According to the map and will, or whatever other directions Trask had, the spot where the treasure was buried was about four miles above the town of Wiscasset, Me., in the bottom of the

He was interested and sought Mr. King and told him that he would finance experiments in the building of a machine for grappling for this treasure and for an expedition to get it. The offer was accepted and the machine now being experimented with in the vacant lot near the home of Mr. King in Lewiston's suburbs is the re-

Like Looking at the Sum

Looking into one of the huge rotary kilns where the raw materials for cement are burned into clinker is just like looking at the noonday

The terrific heat required makes a glare of light so intense that the glowing flame would temporarily blind you.

But borrow the workman's colored goggles to protect your eyes while you take another look into the kiln. Then you will see a tornado of powdered coal—or gas or spraying oil-bursting into a sheet of sunwhite flame.

Into the other end of the kiln flow the powdered limestone and shale [clay]—the raw materials for cement.

As the slowly revolving kiln tumbles the materials about, they are subjected to gradually increasing heat. During their three-hour journey through this inferno, moisture and gases are first given off. Finally as the powdered materials reach the sunwhite flame, they half melt into glass-hard balls called "clinker." This clinker, an entirely new chemical compound, when finely powdered is portland cement.

Portland cement kilns consume great quantities of fuel -- 30 pounds of coal or its equivalent for each 94-pound sack of cement. For the whole cement making process the consumption of coal is approximately 50 pounds a sack — more than half a ton of coal to a ton of cement.

McCormick-Deering 10-20 Two-Plow Tractor

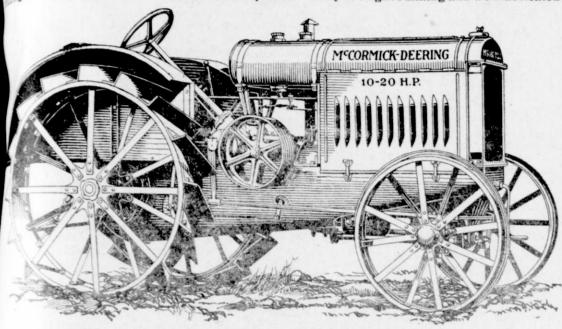

ck" and "Deering" have been household words on farms and in agricultur-"McCormick" and Deering have been nousehold words on farms and in agriculturities for nearly a century. They have stood for the best in harvesting machines and sepresented good service and dependability. Many a farmer has purchased a major it carried the name "McCormick" or "Deering." They knew from past experience with these names would be machines of highest quality and maximum value. The mick-Deering has now been given to a farm tractor. This tractor is built of the best roughout and with the utmost care so that in performance and service it will main-utation and standing of the names---McCormick and Deering.

Built for Hard Work and Real Service

Made Engines. Removable Cylinders. Dependable Magneto. Flyball Throttle Governor. Dependable Lubrication. Efficient Cooling. Dry Disk Clutch. Serviceable mission. Enclosed Final Drive. Large Belt Pulley. Easy to Steer.

Ball and Roller Bearings at 29 Points

onless ball and roller bearings are used at 29 of the most important points---at the experience shows that a ball or roller bearing gives the best service to the tractor ese bearings reduce friction to a minimum which results in more power delivered to and to the belt. As everyone knows, rolling friction is less than sliding friction, or, rds, it takes less power to roll an object than to slide it. For this reason, these high and roller bearings are efficient and serviceable. Ball and roller bearings are more d very seldom, if ever, have to be replaced. They are light running and well lubricated

Completely Equipped

nick-Deering 10-20 tractors are sold completely equipped with all the essential features be on a farm tractor. Experience has shown that every farm tractor should be with---fenders over rear wheels, platform, brake, belt pulley, throttle governor, and reugs. These necessary features make the McCormick-Deering 10-20 a more serviceable d enable it to successfully meet farm conditions.

Special Tractor Warranty

agrees to replace free the Two-Bearing Crank Shaft in any 10-20 McCormick-Deeror, should it break during the life of the Tractor, provided the broken parts are prompted to its factory or one of its Branch Houses. Further -The seller agrees to replace y Crank Shaft Ball Bearing in the 10-20 McCormick-Dering Tractor, which may break, at or burn out during the life of the Tractor, provided that the defective ball bearing is ly returned to its factory or one of its Branch Houses. Quality and durability, not price, will ely control the tractor business and we are assured of these features in our present models.

LLOYD GEORGE IS EGG TARGET

Irish Republican Outbreak Mars Rousing Welcome at New York.

HAS NO MISSION, HE SAYS

Gang of Disturbers Carry Banners Blaming the Former Prime Minister of England for "Ireland's Woes" -Clash With Police.

New York .- David Lloyd George, former prime minister of Great Britain, veteran of seventeen years of strenuous activity in the labyrinth of Old World politics, came to America and found in a whole heartedly enthusiastic welcome tendered him by New York a series of humanly potent thrills.

So delighted was the little Welshman who had guided the British ship of state through the tumultuous years from 1916 to 1922 that his demeanor was more often that of an interested schoolboy and of a deeply touched human being than that of a blase statesman.

The former premier first saw American soil from the deck of the Mauretania early Friday morning. His passage from the great ocean liner in the police boat Macom to the Battery and thence by motor to the city hall and through the streets of the metropolic was almost a triumphal procession, marred by street disturbances precip- Englishman Tells Delegates Western itated by Irish Republican sympathizers.

He came, he said, with no political status, and no official credentials, but as a private subject of the crown to express to Canada his personal thanks for the volunteer aid she unstintingly had offered the British empire in her time of need.

To the United States, he explained, he brought thanks for the army that had come like the sword of Excalibur in the Arthurian legend from out the waters of the Atlantic when the horizon of the allied powers was blackened with despair.

Coming as a climax to a day of extraordinary welcome to Lloyd George on his first visit to this country, a gang of disturbers who had marred the receptions by carrying banners blaming the former prime minister for "Ireland's woes," threw eggs at the visitor and his party as they left a theater after attending a musical

Police had clashed several times during the day with representatives of the Association for Recognition of the Irish Republic, arresting several women and dispersing the turbulent groups along the line of march.

At night the same band of men and women was waiting outside the theater, and bystanders were spattered by the eggs before the police routed the group and escorted the British statesman and his wife and daughter to their automobile.

"Do you not know that she can tell you nothing?" Tommy's heart beat a little faster.

Would he succeed in coming face to face with the girl he was seeking? "I shall not ask her to tell me anything," he said quietly. "Not in so many words, that is."

"Then why see her?" Tommy paused.

"To watch her face when I ask her one question," he replied at last. Again there was a look in the German's eyes that Tommy did not quite understand.

"She will not be able to answer your question."

"That does not matter. I shall have seen her face when I ask it." The German looked at him searchingly. "I wonder whether, after all, you know as much as we think?" he said softly.

Tommy felt his ascendency less sure than a moment before. His hold had slipped a little. But he was puzzled. What had he said wrong? He spoke out on the impulse of the moment.

"Perhaps."

"Come," said Conrad harshly. Tommy rose obediently. Outside the door his jailer motioned to him to prison. It was a smaller room than the one downstairs, and there was something peculiarly airless about the atmosphere of it. Then he realized that there was no window. He walked round it. The walls were filthily dirty, as everywhere else. Four pictures hung crookedly on the wall representing scenes from "Faust." Marguerite with her box of jewels, the church scene, Siebel and his flowers, and Faust and Mephistopheles. The latter brought Tommy's mind back to Mr. Brown again. In this sealed and closed chamber, with its close-fitting heavy door, he felt cut off from the world, and the sinister power of the arch-criminal seemed more real. the ever-present chores.

This width makes the framing less an expense than it otherwise might be, the storage of hay becomes more unsatisfactory and the light is cut off from the inside to a great extent. Of course the objection to width does not apply to length. This latter dimension can be made to fit the herd requirements, and the barn even carried around in an L or U shape, to give a more sheltered yard.

Observe that the cows face a central feed alley, equipped with steel carrier tracks. This gives entrance by two doors, and lessens the danger of crowding in and out, there is better light for milking, the gutters get the sanitation value of sunlight, and the ventilating system does not present any particular problem in order to function satisfactorily. The litter alleys have steel carrier tracks which make this part of the chores something taken care of easily and with dispatch.

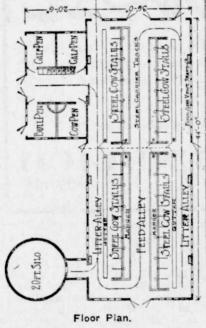

The stalls are 3 feet 6 inches wide; the length of stall platform from curb to gutter is 4 feet 8 inches. The mangers can be of metal, wood or concrete, and of a style, width and height which discourage bossy from snouting too much feed into the alley. The

Your Church Bells Argue Point For You

Sometimes, when a man refuses to advertise, the explanation is his own personal vanity. That sounds strange, because we more often hear men accused of being self-advertisers BECAUSE of their vanity. Yet the fact remains: Vanity keeps many a man from advertising as much as his business requires. He regards himself as so important that every. body must know about him. Therefore, surely, he figures, he doesn't need to advertise. The truth is that the biggest enterprise in the world could not survive a lack of the right kind of publicity. Even the President of the United States, if his name were never mentioned in the papers, would soon become a nonentity. Recently a very convincing argument was addressed to a man who had an exaggerated idea of the farflung fame of his own business establishment. The selling talk was brief. It was made by the elephant-banner man attached to a circus. It was the province of the elephant-banner man to induce a local merchant to pay a suitable sum of money for having a short, snap, y adver. tisement painted on banners to be draped on the sides of one of the big elephants that marched in the parade. He went to see the proprietor of the town's biggest dry goods store. This man was pleased over his own business success and was as sure of himself as the Angel Gabriel. "No," declared the merchant, "we don't need any elephant to tell the people where our store is. Every man, woman, or child for miles around knows where Brown & Brown are located. It isn't necessary to advertise much any more." "How long have you been in business?" inquired the elephant-banner salesman. "About eighteen years," was the proud reply. "And how long has the Methodist church been here?" "The Methodist church?" repeated the merchant, wondering what that had to do with it, "why, I guess there's always been a Methodist church in this town. Oh, that church up on the hill has been there ever since the town was laid out—sixty years, I reckon, anyhow." "All right," went on the circus man, "and now let me ask you one more question: "Isn't it a fact that the Methodist church, after sizty years of successful operation here in town, still rings its bell regularly every Sunday morning?'
