

MELLON GIVES TAX-CUT PLAN

Secretary of Treasury Details Proposed Slashes, Totalling $323,000,000.

ELIMINATES SOLDIERS' BONUS

Washington.—In a letter to Representative William Green of Iowa, acting chairman of the ways and means committee, Secretary Mellon pointed the way to a substantial reduction of the tax burden now borne by the people of the United States and issued a warning that the enactment of a soldiers' bonus law would not only prevent reduction but would necessitate increases.

Mr. Mellon recommended a net reduction of $323,000,000, and showing how it can be made and yet effect an improvement of the present revenue enactments. He would make the following changes:

- 1. Reduction of 25 per cent in taxes on earned income, $97,000,000.
2. Reduction in normal tax from 4 to 3 per cent and from 8 to 6 per cent, $92,000,000.
3. Readjustment of surtax rates, $162,000,000.
4. Repeal of telegraph and telephone tax, $30,000,000.
5. Repeal of admissions tax, $70,000,000.

These reductions would amount to $281,000,000. As an offset and to give a better balanced tax law, Mr. Mellon urged the following increases:

- 1. Capital loss limit of 12 1/2 per cent, $25,000,000.
2. Interest and capital loss deductions, $45,000,000.
3. Community property amendments, $8,000,000.

The total increase would be $88,000,000. Having made these recommendations, Secretary Mellon asserted that, although the burden of taxation is heavy and the revenues are sufficient to justify substantial reductions and the people of the country should receive the benefits, no program, however, is feasible if the government is to be committed to new and extraordinary expenditures.

United States Course Ignoble, Says Former President Wilson

Washington.—Woodrow Wilson, addressing the American people directly, via the radio, for the first time since he left the White House, declared America's attitude after the World War was "deeply ignoble, cowardly and dishonorable." France and Italy, Mr. Wilson declared, in a discussion of world affairs, have made "waste paper of the treaty of Versailles." The former president said the only way in which the United States could show its true appreciation of the significance of Armistice day was by resolving to put self-interest away and to formulate and act upon the highest ideals of international policy.

Whatever else fate may hold in store for Germany, the country at least will be rid of the man who probably more than any other single individual has been a source of conspiracy and intrigue against the republic ever since its establishment.

MRS. STOKES WINNER

Single Ballot by Jury Exonerates Millionaire's Wife.

New York.—Mrs. Helen Ellwood Stokes won her fight to defend her character against charges of infidelity brought against her by William Earl Dodge Stokes, her seventy-three-year-old husband.

The jury refused to grant Stokes a divorce which he had asked on allegations his wife had been intimate with Edgar T. Wallace, California oil promoter.

The jury was out an hour and seven minutes. Only one ballot was taken and that unanimously in favor of the pretty defendant.

When the jury filed in there was a tenseness in the courtroom. For the contending sides it meant the culmination of five years of the bitterest fighting.

The clerk of the court asked Foreman Hitchcock of the jury whether the jurors had reached a verdict.

"What is your verdict?" the clerk then asked.

"We find Mrs. Stokes not guilty on count nine," Hitchcock said.

This was the issue of whether Mrs. Stokes had been guilty of infidelity with Wallace in his apartment at 13 East Thirty-fourth street, New York.

This was the sole issue left to the jury to decide.

Stokes, sitting alone at his table, appeared much affected by the jury's announcement. Tears were in his eyes. He was asked if he had anything to say.

"That's all," the aged financier said. "I have no statement to make."

BAVARIA REVOLT IS BIG FLIVVER

Ludendorff and Hitler in Jail and Probably Will Be Shot, Says Report.

GERMANY UNITED BY MOVE

Munich.—Bavaria's royalist revolt died in less than twenty-four hours after its birth in a local beerstube. Its leaders, Adolph Hitler and Gen. Erich Ludendorff, have been arrested.

Deserted by the federately appointed dictator, Von Kahr, whom they had considered faithful to their cause, the Fascists met the reichswehr in street battles, in various sections of the city throughout the day, causing a number of deaths and casualties on both sides.

Hitler was seriously wounded while his "die hard" troops, after they had been forced from a brewery, where they were besieged for hours by the reichswehr with bayonets and bombs.

General Ludendorff surrendered in the office of General von Lossow, who had promised to take up his duties immediately as Bavarian minister of war. Instead, von Lossow, unknown to the Hitlerites, got into communication with reichswehr officials in Berlin, Nuernberg and other cities and swore fidelity to the republic.

Former Dictator von Kahr simultaneously announced he had been forced, with a pistol at his head, to accept Hitler's coup d'etat temporarily, and that his speech, wherein he proclaimed his confidence in the return of the ancient German regime, was his only alternative to immediate assassination at the hands of Hitler's bodyguard.

Martial law was declared for the whole of Bavaria. Death sentences will be executed within a few hours after being pronounced.

In Augsburg Herr Hitler's troops attempted a coup similar to that in Munich, but they were met by police and disarmed.

The unsuccessful attempt to overthrow the republic has cleared the political atmosphere and made Chancellor Stresemann's position incalculably stronger.

Wreck survivors tell how tobacco kept them going

When food and water gave out on third day, they smoked until rescued

Perhaps they were only pirates of the sea, and deserved no great charity from the hand of Fate. Nevertheless, they were found themselves in a predicament when they found themselves miles out to sea adrift in an open boat.

With two days' supply of food and water, they confidently expected to be rescued in plenty of time. But when the third day passed and no friendly sail appeared on the horizon, it began to look like a case for Darry Jones' locker.

One of the victims, essay with thirst, suggested that they divide a bottle of iodine and end the agony quickly.

"The tobacco hasn't given out yet," said another. "Let's stick it out a while longer." And they did.

Late in the afternoon of the fifth day a tramp schooner saw their distress signals and came valiantly to the rescue.

"The only thing that kept us going at all was tobacco," one of the survivors admitted when he was safely deposited on dry land again. "We smoked and chewed, and that sort of kept us up."

Tobacco is certainly a great substitute for food and water—under the circumstances, smoking a pipe is a big help.

Use of Pullets as Breeders Not Wise

Practice Frequently Leads to Use of Immature Birds and Poor Results.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The hatching results for the season of 1923 were very poor throughout most parts of the United States. There are doubtless a number of contributing causes and, according to Dr. M. A. Jull, in charge of poultry investigations of the United States Department of Agriculture, one of the causes of poor hatching has been the use from year to year of pullets as breeders.

In a general sense it is apparent that the instability of eggs depends upon the constitutional vigor of the breeding stock producing the eggs. If the breeders are healthy and vigorous and are kept in comfortable quarters, then the eggs should hatch well, providing the conditions of incubation have been satisfactory. Taking the country as a whole, however, Doctor Jull believes that the hatching results from one season to another are not as good as might be expected.

The use of pullets as breeders may affect this situation in the following manner: The practice of using pullets as breeders frequently leads to the use of immature birds. In this way hatchling results are affected because the young pullets do not seem to have the abundance of constitutional vigor possessed by older birds. Moreover, all birds as pullets usually lay a smaller egg than as yearlings. Since the size of chick hatched depends to a considerable extent upon the size of the egg producing the chick, it is obvious that, as a rule, larger chicks are produced from the eggs of yearlings. Then again, it has been a matter of common observation among poultrymen that the chicks from yearlings are usually stronger and grow better than the chicks from pullets.

Another very important matter to which poultrymen should give more attention is the influence of forced feeding on hatchability. Many flocks of pullets are fed heavily throughout the fall and winter to induce heavy egg production, and then in the hatching season the eggs from these pullets are used for incubation purposes. This is a questionable practice, says Doctor Jull, since heavy egg production is a heavy strain upon the stamina of the hen and the eggs from birds that have been fed heavily are very apt to be low in hatching quality. Finally, it would seem that all factors point to the advisability of the use of yearling birds as breeders rather than pullets.

Complete Hurry Periods From April Until Winter

In the growing of such tree fruits as apples, peaches, pears and cherries there are two periods when nothing may be allowed to interfere with the orchard work if there is to be success. April, May and June the various operations of plowing, spraying and cultivating must be done at the proper times. Other work may be run in between, but these have the first call. In July the cherries must be picked. Apple thinning should be done in July to be of great value, although it will have some effect if done later, provided weather conditions are right. About the first of September Bartlett pears must be picked. From the middle of September until late in October peaches must be handled as they ripen. Kieffer pears must be picked just when Baldwin apples are in best condition to handle. From the middle of September until about the middle of November the apple crop must be harvested, whether anything else is done or not. If Dutchess apples are grown this period is about two weeks longer. It will be seen that peaches and Kieffer pears do not work in well with a large apple orchard, and in practice they prove to be a very great nuisance. Cherries, Bartlett pears and apples work together very well. Where there is a market for raspberries and plums this combination. The growing of hays, oats, wheat and corn will fill the gaps and make practically a complete hurry time from April until winter sets in (usually the latter part of December).

Fight on Tuberculosis Is Progressing Rapidly

Nearly 5,000,000 cattle are under supervision for the eradication of the tuberculosis, according to a statement of the status of the work just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. A total of 651,230 cattle, including both beef and dairy breeds, are in fully accredited herds, while nearly 3,000,000 more have successfully passed the first test in the process of becoming accredited. There is a waiting list of more than 145,000 herds that will be tested as soon as federal and state veterinary inspectors can get to them.

Sweet Clover Excellent Pasture During Summer

Blue grass grows near the surface, consequently it dries down quicker during July and August, and this habit has become pretty well fixed. Sweet clover has different characteristics of growth. Its roots strike deep, and so it can endure hot, dry weather. Dairy-men and others who need summer pasture should become better acquainted with sweet clover.

Soy Beans Quite Useful Legume for Any Farmer

Soy beans were grown on over 50,000 farms for the first time in 1922 or the method of cultivation modified, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture, through the efforts of cooperative agricultural extension workers. The use of this legume as a green manure for increasing soil fertility and a protein supplement for live stock feeding.

Legumes Keep Up Milk Production

Crops Also Increase Soil Fertility.

Dairy farmers are learning more and more each year how much they are dependent upon the legumes. It is a fact that no section is a successful producer of milk, butter and cheese until some of the clovers or allied crops have become abundant. Cows will keep up their milk production during the winter when fed legumes with a small grain ration. Half the amount of grain seems to answer the purpose when the animals are changed from a cheaper roughage to the clover, alfalfa or soy bean hay. These homegrown feeds are a boon to the dairyman and every farmer with a few head of dairy cattle should plan to grow legumes to the fullest extent. Remember that the legumes also increase soil fertility and they supply protein and mineral matter in larger percentage than any other form of roughage.

Tests made at the experimental farms show that the farmer with plenty of soy bean hay, alfalfa or clover in his barn will not have to dig down for so much grain, and still will lose nothing in the way of production. Legumes largely take the place of high-priced concentrates like cottonseed meal and wheat bran, thus lowering the cost of producing milk. Dairyman with silage and legume roughage can go light on grain and be little out of pocket when the milk or cream checks arrive.

If legumes are not available this winter, plans should be made to remedy the defect before another winter. Soy beans are being grown almost everywhere with success, clover of some variety will grow on any soil with proper treatment, alfalfa is a more difficult proposition, but its possibilities should be tried out before failure is admitted. Alfalfa has been considered the best of the legumes, but experiments have proved that clover as a part of the ration for dairy cows is fully equal. Clover and alfalfa cannot be made to produce a crop of hay the first year, but soy beans planted in May should yield at least two tons of hay per acre next summer. If clover and alfalfa are not grown on the farm, steps should be taken without delay to remedy the defect. Some soils require liming before the legumes can be successfully grown. There are also many farms, on which a few legumes are grown, but which are all ready to produce these crops abundantly if given the chance.

Proper Feeding During the Time a Cow Is Dry

It is false economy to keep a good cow on dry corn fodder, just because she is dry, and will not freshen for a few weeks, say specialists from the department of dairy husbandry of the state agricultural colleges. Proper feeding during the time a cow is dry will have a great effect on her milk flow during the following lactation period. When a cow is carrying a calf and is producing a large quantity of milk, she is under such a tremendous strain that during her rest period she must be fed a ration that will allow her to build her body as well as maintain the calf.

Some cows have a tendency to milk nearly up to the date of freshening, and it is often a belief that they cannot be dried off for a sufficient rest period. Expert husbandmen, however, find that no injury results from drying up a cow which gives as much as five to eight quarts daily, if one milking a day is omitted for several days and the animal then partly milked out after skipping an entire day.

Partnership Bulls Will Make Profitable Return

Hard stress spread co-operatively do not tend to spread contagious abortion, as is sometimes supposed, say the animal men at the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca. In many parts of New York two or three men who live near together and think alike about the proper breed and handling of herd stock have bought them together and bred their herds at comparatively small expense. Many New York farmers have bought co-operatively, say the college workers. Bulls bought in this way have proved better herd stock than individual farmers could have gotten in any other way and each farmer has paid less than the cost of an inferior animal. The result has been bigger milk checks and more valuable herds.

Formaldehyde Treatment for Smutty Wheat Seed

Wheat seed which has smut should be treated after it has been carefully cleaned, using the formaldehyde-sprinkling method. This consists of mixing one pint of full strength formaldehyde with 40 gallons of water for treating 50 bushels of wheat. The solution is applied by means of a sprinkling can. The seed is covered over night, after which it is ready for planting. Treated seed should not be planted in dry soil. The rate of planting should be increased about one-half peck to the acre.

Good Mash for Pullets Can Be Easily Prepared

A good mash for pullets can be prepared by grinding equal parts of corn and oats, using 80 pounds of this mixture to 20 of high-grade tankage. This should be fed in a hopper available at all times. In addition, the pullets should receive a search grain, either corn, wheat, kafir, or barley, twice daily, at the rate of 12 pounds per 100 hens.

Vast Lake of Pitch. In the thirteen odd million square miles of territory which comprises the British Empire there are many remarkable phenomena, one of the most interesting being the Pitch Lake of Trinidad, in the West Indies. It is a natural reservoir of valuable mineral pitch, 100 acres in extent, from which 200,000 tons of asphalt are exported annually. About half way across Kenya colony, in British East Africa, is Mazadi Lake, a vast natural deposit of soda. The lake is ten miles long, two or three miles in width, and seen from the mountains that surround it, it has the appearance of an immense ruffled white sheet.

ROOM WITH GREWSOME MEMORY

Wholesale Murders Committed in Chamber in What Is Believed Oldest Inn in England.

The oldest inn in England is believed to be a certain hostelry at Colnbrook, Buckinghamshire. This place has a very black history, for here, many years ago, 60 murders were perpetrated by the landlord and his wife before the crimes were discovered.

In this gloomy abode there is, on the first floor, a large room known as the "Blue Room." Formerly it contained a number of persons slept their last sleep. The part of the floor on which the bed rested was really a hinged trap-door fixed above the brew-house.

Guests who were known to be wealthy always slept in the Blue room. When the innkeeper had made sure that the guest was asleep, the trap-door was drawn, and the unfortunate bolts tumbled into the vat.

quently drove straight on; while on another occasion when he stayed at the Inn the Blue room was occupied by someone else. But at last his time came, and his body was found later in a brook.

Jumping to Conclusions.

We had recently moved from a large city, where no one thought of calling on his new neighbors, to a small town infested with peddlars and agents. Upon answering a knock at the screen door I came face to face with a woman carrying a large hand-bag.

She greeted me with a friendly "How-do-you-do," and then waited for me to invite her in, which I did not do. I finally broke the silence by asking, "Well, what are you selling?"

Julius Takes a Hand.

In his suite at Claridge's, Kramennin peddled on a couch and dictated to his secretary in sibilant Russian.

Presently the telephone at the secretary's elbow purred, and he took up the receiver, spoke for a minute or two, then turned to his employer.

"Some one below is asking for you," "Who is it?"

"He gives the name of Mr. Julius P. Herberford."

"Herberford?" repeated Kramennin thoughtfully. "I have heard that name before."

"I'll get it," said Mr. Herberford. "I'll get it," said Mr. Herberford.

"And It Is This—Boy Who Will Defeat the Master Criminal!"

A New General Motors Achievement

The public has long looked forward to the day when a six-cylinder automobile could be had in the low price field. Manufacturers, knowing that the six-cylinder principle is the most popular, have long aspired to produce a car to meet this insistent public demand.

The immense facilities and vast resources necessary for such a big task have made individual makers hesitate to attempt such a gigantic job as would be necessary to properly develop and finally produce, in volume, such an ideal car.

But the great General Motors Corporation, with its almost limitless resources in men and money, its big experimental and development engineering laboratories, its great purchasing power, and its many big manufacturing plants, has at last achieved what has long been recognized as the ideal car—a six at a low price.

The Olds Motor Works, the oldest manufacturer of motor vehicles on a commercial basis in the United States and one of the oldest Divisions of the General Motors group, was selected to produce this wonderful car. With its immense modern plant, and with a factory force long trained in the making of quality automobiles, the Olds Motor Works is the natural and logical choice.

Never before in automobile history in this country has such an important and far reaching announcement been made. Never before has the American public been able to buy, in the low price field, a six-cylinder car, with its smoothness of operation, its flexibility in economy, its ease of handling and its low up-keep cost. Until now, six cylinders have meant relatively high initial cost. Now, in the Oldsmobile Six, all these things, plus Oldsmobile beauty and Oldsmobile quality, can be had at a price never before possible.

SECRETS OF HEALTH

Headaches are in the majority of cases, caused from Eye Strain. Normal eyes use 15 per cent of the vital energy generated by the human system—Strained eyes must use more. Daily they rob some other organ of its share—but not without protest—for headaches and "sickness" are but nature's warning abuse. LOOK WELL TO YOUR EYES.

Don't Trifle With Your Eyes

DOZEN GOOD REASONS WHY YOUR ENGINE Should be an International

- 2. It is backed by a Company that is in business to stay.
- 3. It is simple in construction and has few wearing parts.
- 4. It is a safe engine--fuel is pumped to mixer, excess is returned to fuel tank.
- 5. FOUR piston rings hold compression perfectly.
- 6. It is reliable--you can depend on it to do your work when you want it done.
- 7. A farmer--his wife or his boy can operate it with ease and safety.
- 8. It is economical--it cuts your fuel bills in half because it operates on KEROSENE.
- 9. The fly wheel keys are so protected that they cannot catch clothing.
- 10. Ignitor points are easy to set at--easy to adjust.
- 11. All working parts are readily accessible and all are thoroughly oiled.
- 12. It can be equipped with speed reducing gear for operating small machines--the small engine can be mounted on hand trucks, the large on horse trucks. Made in three sizes, 1 1/2, 3 and 6 Horse Power.

Widow Finds $60,000

Husband Had in Box Syracuse, N. Y.—Cash to the amount of $60,000 has been found in a safe deposit box of the Watertown National bank in the name of Jay F. Wafel, who died here several weeks ago.

His will, filed for probate soon after his death, left an estate estimated at $25,000, but no mention was made of the Watertown bank. His widow, believing that something of importance was in the deposit box, received authority from the court to have the box opened, which was done a week ago, but the find was kept secret until now.

Mr. Wafel at one time held a post in the Treasury department at Washington and later was a member of the federal prohibition forces.

Billions Due U.S. From 10 Nations

Number of Indebted Countries Do Not Even Acknowledge Their Obligations to Uncle Sam.

Washington.—The American debt funding commission met recently and approved the form of its annual report to congress, which contained the significant statement that the commission "hopes to obtain further adjustments with the various debtor governments at the earliest possible date."

While there was no elaboration on the expression from any member of the commission, the statement was regarded in many quarters as the first hint from official circles that another communication may be sent to debtor nations advising that the American government awaits their funding proposals.

The report recites the negotiations and settlements with Great Britain and Finland and the full liquidation of Cuba's debt, but as for the others little progress is reported.

One U. S. Over $7,000,000,000. The commission now has to deal with debts of foreign countries amounting to $5,570,417,427, on which interest amounting to $1,088,457,478, has accrued.

Internal cleanliness protects against disease

IT is but a step from those immediate results of constipation—headache, heaviness, loss of appetite—to serious disease. Such minor ailments are a warning that poisons from food waste are flooding your body. Keep clean internally.

In constipation, say intestinal specialists, lies the primary cause of more than three-quarters of all illness including the gravest diseases of life.

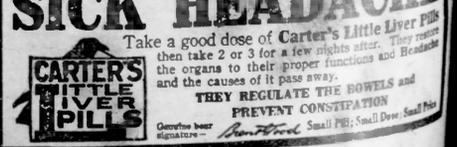

Laxatives Aggravate Constipation

Laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, says a noted authority, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition and often lead to permanent injury.

Medical science, through knowledge of the intestinal tract gained by X-ray observation, has found at last in Nujol a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage out of the body. Thus Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

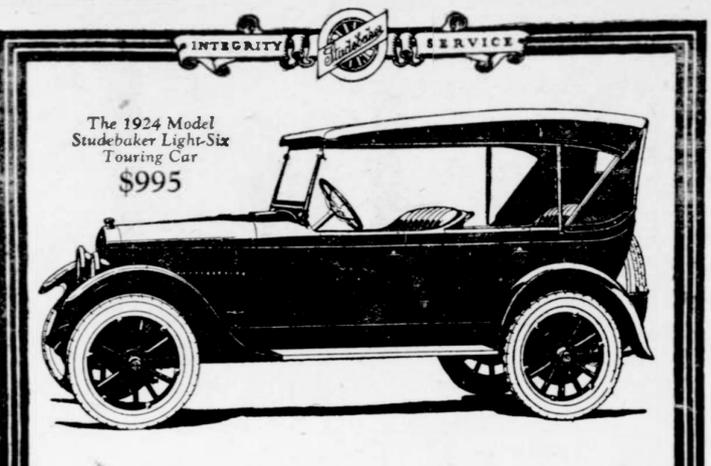

Nujol is not a laxative and cannot gripe. Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world.

Don't give disease a start. Adopt this habit of internal cleanliness. Nujol is not a medicine. Like pure water, it is harmless. Take Nujol as regularly as you brush your teeth or wash your face. For sale by all druggists.
