AGED MAN BREAKS NECK

Andrew Weinert of Marshfield was killed instantly near Boltonville last Saturday evening. Mr. Weinert and his daughter Marie had been visiting relatives in various parts of the county since Nov. 6, and on Saturday had spent the day with the Peter Feiten family near Boltonville. In the evening Nic Gross, a relative of Mr. Weinert, called for the latter and his daughter, and while these and one other person—John Schaefer—were on their way to the Gross home, traveling in a carriage drawn by two horses, the team became frightened at some object about a quarter of a mile from the Feiten home, and ran away. The horses ran over a fence and this caused the carriage to be upset. Mr. Weinert landing upon his head, his neck being broken. The others in the carriage escaped serious injuries. The remains of the unfortunate man were taken back to the Feiten home, from where the funeral was held Wednesday morning, interment being made under the auspices of the Catholic church at Hartford. Mr. Weinert was born in the town of Germantown 76 years ago. He resided for 25 years in the town of Barton, and the past 12 years was a resident of Marshfield. He married Miss Margaret Bevel, who preceded him in death 30 years ago. He is survived by four children: Casper, Peter, Marie and Tillie, all of whom are residents of Marshfield.—West Bend Pilot.

WHEN SHOULD ALFALFA BE CUT

The College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin will have an official display at the International Grain and Hay Show which will be held in connection with the International Live Stock Exposition in Chicago, Dec. 1-8, and will vividly depict the results of experiments which will answer the question of the proper stage at which alfalfa should be cut. The Wisconsin educational exhibit will join that of Kansas and deal with the same general subject. Both agricultural experiment stations have found that the commonly accepted practices of cutting alfalfa can be improved upon. The displays at Chicago will show the effects of cutting alfalfa for hay at different periods during its growth, and should prove of great interest and value to the large number of visitors who are expected to view the varied features of the International Live Stock Exposition in Chicago during the first week in December.

DO NOT TRY TO BILK YOU

There are some associations that are not for the benefit of the individual. One of the most outstanding of these in Washington County is the Holstein Calf Club. Its membership is composed of nearly all the Holstein breeders in the county. No one not closely connected with its work can fully estimate the big things it does to keep the county in the buying of cows. It has rendered a most valuable service to every one who has bought with the least strain of blood in her. The association is holding a sale at Stock Pavilion, West Bend on Nov. 27. Some of the products of the county's best breeders will be sold on that day. The Dairy Man.

Heavy clouds of gloom that have been hanging over the farm industries are being lifted. There is a better day coming. It is here—today, now. It will continue to heap up more and more, but they are the men who are growing. Short comings, and they never lead us anywhere, except to bankruptcy. And "I can't" and "you can't" has been the cause of many bankruptcies than a lack of money. Twenty two years ago a young man paid $270 for two pure bred heifers. His neighbors said "You can't afford such high priced cattle". And "I can't" and did, John Puls put $500 into Pet Douglas. He said, "I am going to succeed, to grow." Pet Douglas is a common stock. She is preferred to Mr. Puls has been cutting cows from this investment for several years. How many of you? Any gloom, John Puls? No, but there is a lot of sunshine and confidence. HIS MAJESTY, THE TURKEY

A Thanksgiving Acquaintance

By FRANK HERBERT SWEET

ONE year ago Charlie had come to the city to make his fortune. He was fond of farming and farm stock; but they were a slow means to wealth. He would go to the city for the fortune, and then would come back and purchase the best farm in the vicinity and have fine horses and big meadows and—envious neighbors.

Now he was standing on a street corner, with hands thrust deep down into his pockets and wearing the same clothes he had brought from home. But the clothes were soiled and worn threadbare and shiny, and the shoes were unblackened, and the hat lacking part of its brim; and long ago he had discarded such extras as collars and cuffs. The fingers of one hand played idly with his last two half dollars, both of which were owed for the poor little room he rented on one of the back streets; and the other fingers touched several pawn tickets, which he had no expectation of redeeming. Indeed, he was wondering dully if there were anything else in his trunk that could be pawned. He had had no breakfast, and there was no prospect for a dinner—and this was Thanksgiving.

A few yards away, a street boy was sitting on a drygoods box, swinging his bare feet rhythmically to the tune he was whistling. But his eyes were fixed on the listless figure of his neighbor.

"Say, Country," he called, suddenly, "what you thinkin' of?"

Charlie flushed but did not answer.

"Come, don't make an owl of yourself," the boy went on. "There ain't nothin' in this world to fret over. Look here," swinging his legs upca the box—"no clothes to spare, an' what there is ain't much for cold weather. An' my jacket's lost an arm, an' my shirt most of one shoulder. An', furthermore," pausing to indulge in another bar of the street ditty he was whistling, "I ain't had no breakfast, an' only a cold pertater for supper last night; an' still I ain't no split milk to cry over." His legs swung back into space and beat a lively accompaniment to the conclusion of the tune. Then he looked at Charlie.

"Now, what's broke with you?" he demanded. "You ain't stilled, an' you got shoes on your feet."

"But I can't eat my shoes," Charlie retorted. "And the two coins I have left are to pay for my room. And—what's more, I'm out of a job. 'Twasn't much—sweeping out offices—but it meant a roof, and something to eat."

The street boy stopped drumming and looked at him with more interest. "This sort o' bad," he acknowledged.

TABLE LINEN IMPORTANT

THE real, original and genuine Thanksgiving dinner must boast a turkey and cranberry sauce if it is to be strictly orthodox in regard to the menu. Tradition demands this. Good linen plays a very important part in the way the table will look when set. It is always advisable to buy as good linen as you can possibly afford, for it proves a wise investment in the long run.

An embroidered monogram is a handsome finish to a good cloth, but it is less noticeable there than on the napkins which for dinner should be large and square. For embroidery the long slender letters are preferred. It is a pretty sentiment at a Thanksgiving dinner to use dishes which are heirlooms for one course.

"An' you're hein' from the country an' knowin' nothin' makes it worse. What'd you come for?"

"Why, to get rich, of course," Charlie answered. "What does anyone come to the city for?"

"Huh!" derisively, "an' here I've been lookin' ahead, goin' into the country to get rich. Say, do you have fellers like me, an' like that crowd on the sidewalk, up in your country?"

Charlie looked at him, and then at the half-dozen disreputable men who were smoking in front of a billiard room opposite, and the two or three women sorting over an ash-barrel, and the squalid, dirty-faced children playing and fighting along the gutter, and answered with an expression of disgust:

"No, indeed!"

"Thought so. Then the country's the richest and best place." He looked at Charlie a little anxiously.

"Say, you got horses an' cows an' dogs an' chickens, an' a pa an' ma, an' green grass an' fishin' up there?" he demanded.

"Of course," with eager recollection in his voice; "and miles and miles of woods where we go after chestnuts and grapes in the fall, and big ponds to skate on in the winter."

"An' you run away from them—for this?" snatching his fragment of a cap and hurling it into the gutter as expressive of his unutterable disgust. Then he stood upon the box and stretched himself to his full height, raising his hand as though to invoke a benediction.

"My son," he said, solemnly, "go home an' eat the fatted calf an' your ma's doughnuts. Tarry not. Haste to pastures new where the calves flourish as the green bay tree. If it be fifty miles, walk, an' run when you get tired; if a thousand, walk an' run an' beg, an' steal rides on freight trains—only go, as my fallin' tears implore. An' now—here a paper boy, attracted by his gesticulations, darted up and tipped the box so that the orator slid idly into the mud. Charlie laughed in spite of himself, then his face became grave. Beneath the lightness of the speaker's words had been an undercurrent of seriousness which appealed directly to his discouragement and homesickness. Yes, he would go home.

As the street boy rose and wiped the mud from his face, Charlie stepped up to him.

"Thank you for your advice," he said. "I'm going to take it."

"Honest?" with a ring of satisfaction in his voice. "Then, fare ye well, an' if forever—but say," as Charlie was starting down the sidewalk, "give me a tip to your barrel, an' maybe I'll come out an' spend my vacation with you next summer."

Charlie laughed, and then, on a sudden impulse, he wrote his address and gave it to the boy.

A PRAYER

We thank Thee, Father, for the care That did not come to try us. The burden that we did not bear. The trouble that passed by us. The task we did not fall to do. The hurt we did not cherish. The friend who did not prove untrue. The joy that did not perish.

We thank Thee for the blinding storm That did not lose its swelling. And for the sudden blight of harm That came not nigh our dwelling. We thank Thee for the dart unsped, The bitter word unspoken, The grave unmade, the tear unshed. The heart—thou still unbroken.

—Clarence E. Flynn.

"We'd like first-rate to have you come," he said heartily, "and we'll try to give you a good time."

This seems the proper end for the story; but I want to add that the

Gave It to the Boy.

MOST TO BE THANKFUL FOR

Shall we not remember that the thing most to be thankful for, most to be anxious about, is not the meat that perishes, but the salvation which results in everlasting joy and felicity, the redemption which enables us to enjoy for evermore the presence of the great Almighty God along with all the blessed, the best, the bravest, the purest, the sweetest the world has ever known! Ay, we must needs remember that, for there comes that harvest which is the end of the world, and we all pray that we may have good reason to be thankful then for the life to be lived in eternity.

OLD ENGLISH THANKSGIVING

The American Thanksgiving day is without doubt the offspring of that feast which in England is known as "Harvest Home," and in Scotland is called "Mell Supper." But the giving of thanks to some god at the close of the autumn season for the fruits of the earth is ageless, and can be traced back as far as civilization goes. In Exodus the Israelites are commanded to keep an autumnal feast, more explicit details for such a feast being given in the book of Leviticus. The feast was to last seven days, and on the first day the people were to gather boughs of cedars and willows of the brooks.

WASHINGTON'S PROCLAMATIONS

Washington issued a proclamation for a general Thanksgiving by the continental army Thursday, December 18, 1777, and again at Valley Forge May 7, 1778. A few days before the adjournment of congress in September, 1789, Representative Elias Boudinot moved in the house that the president be requested to recommend a day of thanksgiving and prayer in acknowledgment of the many signal favors of Almighty God, and especially his affording the opportunity of establishing a constitution of government for their safety and happiness.

Best Results in Raising Alfalfa

Tests Have Demonstrated That Southwestern Seed Is Unsuitable in North.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Winter hardiness is an important consideration in growing alfalfa in the country from central Pennsylvania northward, cautions the United States Department of Agriculture. Practically all state agronomists and others who have made careful tests and observations conclude that seed of northern-grown strains or varieties of alfalfa is much more certain of producing satisfactory results, especially in the matter of stand, than seed of some other strains or varieties. Tests at the department's station at Elvira, Ohio, give evidence that this conclusion is sound, and even tests at Arlington Farm, Virginia, support it. The department has conducted more extensive tests in the northern plains than it has in the northwest, but such tests as have been conducted in the northwest indicate clearly that the results obtained in the northern plains with regard to hardiness of alfalfa apply very directly to the northwest.

Regional Strains Undependable.

It is considered entirely safe to conclude that seed of regional strains of common alfalfa even from as far north as Kansas is not as dependable for the region in the northeast from Pennsylvania northward as is the seed of the Grimm or northern-grown common alfalfa, and that seed from the southwest is quite undependable.

There seems to be little doubt that alfalfa is a plant in which regional strains develop and that these strains have quite definite latitude relations apart from their temperature relations. There seems to be a tendency of northern-grown strains to produce more heavily in the north than southern-grown strains, and vice versa. While this point is regarded as important, it is not as important as the matter of hardiness.

Seed Cost Small Item.

The cost of seed is a relatively small item in the growing of alfalfa, and northeastern farmers cannot afford to take a chance with seed of southern strains even if offered at a much lower price than seed of Grimm or northern-grown common alfalfa.

The various strains of alfalfa are discussed fully in Farmers' Bulletin 757, issued by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Destruction by Rats in United States Is Great

Do you realize that you are helping to pay a $200,000,000 animal feed bill for the rat alone? This is the estimate placed upon the destruction brought about each year by rats in the United States.

By the proper construction of buildings and the use of preventive methods this bill could be greatly reduced.

The best exterminative methods to use are the modern rat trap and domestic animals such as the cat and dog. Poison is an effective means, but the odor of the dead animals makes its use impracticable in occupied houses. Barium bicarbonate is the most effective poison to use because of its power to dissolve the flesh of rats quickly.

Properly constructed buildings will exclude the animals from shelter and food.

If the nation as a whole were to expend one-half the money now spent in feeding the rat, in destructive processes, it would be possible within a few years to rid the country of our worst pest.

Importance of Feeds in Getting Egg Production

Indications used for culling out the good producers from the poor are brought about through the actual process of egg production itself. Hens cannot produce eggs, no matter what their natural ability for production may be, unless they are given the proper feeds from which to make eggs. A hen may have the ability to be a 250 egg producer due to her good blood lines. However, if she is not getting the proper feeds from which to make these 250 eggs she may only lay 50 eggs and when culled will only measure up to a 50-egg bird and would go in with the culls.

In order to accurately cull your flock they should be fed a good egg-producing ration at least a month before doing the culling. If this is not done many birds which have the ability to produce will go in with the culls.

Wheat for Chickens Is Favored by Ohio Expert

Wheat is a good feed for young chickens and laying hens and may be fed with profit when the price is low, says D. C. Kennard, associate in animal industry, Ohio experiment station.

The grain mixture may be of equal parts of corn and wheat, and the mash back as far as civilization goes. In Exodus the Israelites are commanded to keep an autumnal feast, more explicit details for such a feast being given in the book of Leviticus. The feast was to last seven days, and on the first day the people were to gather boughs of cedars and willows of the brooks.

Minor Ailments of Hogs Often Treated by Owner

When there is any deviation from the normal in the gait of hogs, appetite, or digestion, it is time for the owner to take measures to prevent possible losses. Minor ailments often can be successfully treated by the owner, but in case of doubt it is the part of wisdom to call for a veterinarian.

Great Quantities of Dairy Products Used

One-Fourth of Supply Consumed in United States.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The great care given in the United States to the wholesomeness of milk and other dairy products is frequently commented upon by world travelers. That the people of this country appreciate the efforts made to protect the health of cattle and to keep milk sweet and clean from the farm to the consumer is shown by the quantities of dairy products they use.

Figures compiled by the United States Department of Agriculture, and recently called to the attention of the World's Dairy Congress at Washington by Dr. John R. Mohler, chief of the bureau of animal industry, show that in this country there are approximately 25,000,000 dairy cows, one-fourth of all the milk cows in the world, and we consume all the product of this great herd, although we have only about one-sixteenth of the world's population. Uncle Sam's best recommendation for the milk, butter, cheese, and condensed milk produced here is the fact that he uses them himself.

Now and then we have exported 1 or 2 per cent of our dairy products, but information now available indicates that this year imports will exceed exports. We are frequently urged to eat more cheese and drink more milk, but it looks as if our appetite for these products keeps up with the cows' capacity to gratify it. One of the big reasons for this condition is that the Department of Agriculture, the states, various organizations, and thousands of individuals are constantly working to reduce diseases of cattle and improve the conditions under which dairy products are produced and handled.

Farmers Doing a Retail Milk Business Increase

Forty-one farmer-owned associations engaged in the retail distribution of milk are now serving 138,600 customers with approximately 126,000 gallons of milk a day, the United States Department of Agriculture reports. Twenty-three of the organizations were formed since 1920. The 41 associations are located in 22 states. There are also six regional milk marketing associations that operate over large areas and perform all activities connected with the marketing of milk, such as collecting at country stations, operating creameries, cheese factories, condenseries or ice cream plants, supplying milk dealers on a wholesale basis, and operating retail distributing enterprises. There are also 30 or more farmers' associations primarily engaged in collecting and distributing milk at wholesale, in addition to 20 or more price-bargaining associations formed by milk producers for bargaining collectively with dealers.

Smut in Silage Is Not Always Dangerous Feed

Those who may hesitate to feed their cows silage because the corn was badly smutted will be interested in the results of a South Dakota test.

Two barrels were filled with corn plants on which ears were growing that were partially or wholly smutted. The stalks and ears were cut with a hand cutter and packed in the barrels exactly like silage. This furnished a feed that contained a larger percentage of smut than is ever encountered in a cornfield. A third barrel was filled with badly smutted ears.

Four cows that averaged 1,066 pounds in weight were fed two to five pounds of smutted silage for 26 days in their grain ration. In addition, they were eating two pounds daily per head of the smutted ears.

At the close of the test the cows had gained 285 pounds, were in a thrifty condition and evidently enjoyed their feed.

Getting Eggs in Winter Is Not Difficult Task

"A hen will lay nearly as many eggs a month in the winter as in the summer if she is properly handled," says the University of Wisconsin. "This is the time that farmers should secure their greatest profit from poultry due to the fact that winter eggs are nearly twice as high in price as summer eggs."

"Spring and summer is the natural time for a hen to lay her eggs and if winter laying is expected summer conditions must be copied as far as possible.

"To do this keep the house warm, light and airy, and have the floor covered with at least ten inches of litter. Keep plenty of pure drinking water in the pens as well as self-feeders filled with oyster shells, charcoal and ground limestone."

Ventilation Is Needed in Hog House in Winter

Fresh air should be supplied to hog houses. There are many of them practically air-tight. Placing galvanized aerators on the ridge of the house will not ventilate the building when the door and windows are closed for stormy weather, and it is on the cold nights when the house is shut up tight that ventilation is most needed. If doors are kept open the result is a draught on the pigs. Fresh air inlets may be installed at slight expense for bringing the fresh air into the house during such times without producing a draught on the pigs.

Actual Value of Straw Stack Is Not Realized

Many farmers do not realize the true value of the straw stack. The fertilizing value of the straw from a ten-acre wheat field is from $25 to $40. If the straw is used as bedding and the manure used, this value of the straw is saved and in addition will absorb a large amount of liquid manure that might otherwise be wasted.

USE RADIO IN RESCUE WORK

Series of Experiments Are Being Carried on at Colliery in England.

In the near future radio telephony will probably play an important part in the work of colliery rescue. In the rescuers carry out their work constant communication will be kept up with those directing operations from a base. That is the object underlying a series of experiments being conducted at Ashington colliery in England. A considerable measure of success has already attended their efforts, and quite recently speech and music were successfully received underground. A party equipped with a three-tube receiving set descended the shaft of the Carl pit and fixed a 20-foot aerial on the bulks supporting the roof. Only one head phone was used, but so clear was the reception that the five men composing the party all heard distinctly. Experiments have already been carried out to test reception at depths of 1,000 yards.—Scientific American.

Test This Out for Yourself—

MANY people who drink coffee regularly are troubled with insomnia; or they feel nervous, "headachy," or suffer from indigestion.

It may be hard for such men and women to believe that coffee is responsible for the way they feel. Because they have always drunk coffee, it hardly seems possible that this old habit could cause trouble.

But there is one sure way to find out whether coffee is harming you. Just stop its use for a week or so, and drink Postum.

Postum is a pure cereal beverage—absolutely free from caffeine, the drug in coffee, which disturbs the health and comfort of many.

After a week or two on Postum, you will sleep better and feel better; then your own good judgment should decide whether you go back to coffee or continue on the Road to Wellville with Postum.

Are You Using this Free Service?

It comes with every sack of cement. It has been made possible through the Portland Cement Association by the eighty-six cement manufacturers who are its members.

They realized that important research and educational work was necessary to give people the best information on how to use cement. They also realized that this could be done better by unified effort than by any individual company alone.

As a result, you may have for the asking the benefit of this Association's long and exhaustive studies on how best to use cement for the most satisfactory results in concrete construction.

Whatever use you plan to make of cement—whether you are building a concrete hog house or concrete dairy barn, a stretch of concrete walk or a concrete road, a silo or a skyscraper, a home, workshop or a factory—you needn't guess. You can know.

If you want information about the usefulness of concrete under certain conditions, how to mix or place it to get the greatest value out of every sack of cement—you can get it by writing any one of our 28 offices listed below.

Supplying dependable information without charge by booklet, by letter or by personal conference when necessary, is the work of this Association. Millions of helpful booklets, covering a multitude of uses of concrete, are distributed annually to people who know they needn't guess—who know they can get the facts from us.

One of our new booklets, "Concrete in Home Sanitation," will surprise you with the number of easy ways in which concrete can be used to make the home healthier and happier. Address our nearest district office for your free copy.

Smart Jacquettes of Fur; Hats for Street Wear

IT IS not always safe to forecast fashions very far in advance, unless one is willing to admit the mistake when the forecast fails to materialize. In furs, for instance, every indication during the early part of the season was toward longer and longer coats. Jacquettes and three-quarter length models were not featured and the return of these styles was not anticipated for a year at least. Now there is a sudden demand for them in some form to bid for popular favor. It so happens that this season inaugurated a vogue for batters' plush and, naturally, this material is the most generally used for hats of the tailored type. Velvet and satin appear in many of the new models, but as yet have not challenged the supremacy of plush.

shape developed in black batters' plush and trimmed with a brown or tawny plume. The upturned brim recommends it to those women who find off-the-face hats most becoming. The large satin hat, shown at the left, has a series of beautiful feathers which turn up sharply at the back; the trimming is a single poupon of clipped ostrich. Shown at the right is a black velvet model which reflects the influence of Paris in the high cuff which extends from the crown to the edge of the brim. Two feather fanes, of burnt goose, extend from the brim at the sides. The hat shown below should find favor with movie fans, since it is called "The Valentino" and has for its inspiration the vaquero hat, worn by the actor in one of his most popular tion depicts a model characteristic of the later styles. It is of dyed squirrel made in a house effect with wide kimono sleeves and a wide shawl collar. Two celluloid buttons and a large silver buckle provide the fastenings. The favorite furs for coats of this character are squirrel, raccoon, muskrat caracul and broadtail. Hudson seal and dyed ermine are confined to very dressy models, and the less expensive furs find a place in short coats for sports wear.

Fashions may come and fashions may go, but it seems that there is always a place in the hearts of American women for the tailored, or semi-tailored hats, and each year they appear. It is, of course, designed simply as a riding hat and has a most practical feature in the strap which buttons under the chin.

Sailors and batters' plush always go hand in hand, for there is no medium in which the trim sailor looks better than in plush. This material is brilliant and wear resisting and has made its appearance in several colors, but brown and black are so pre-eminent that the others are hardly in the running. Certain types of faces look better in the sailor than in anything else.

Fancy Handkerchiefs. From crepe de chine blouses, cambriles, and underthings that seem hopeless for anything but dusters, little handkerchief squares can be cut from good parts of all of them. Old waists will yield a square from the back, and one from the top of each sleeve. The bits of silk can be tinted in many lovely shades with dye-soaps, or even tinted and dyed to secure odd and interesting pattern effects. A pretty finish is made by rolling the hem and over-casting in two directions to give the

The KITCHEN CABINET

The true patriot is the man who can eat an imitation beefsteak with a smile on his face, and tell the woman who prepared it that it is as good as the real thing.—Mrs. Burnett-Smith.

COLD-WEATHER DISHES.

The chilly days speed up the appetite and we enjoy foods that are heavy and richer than those served during the warm weather. Casserole dishes are especially favored with those who like to put a whole roast into the oven or fireless cooker and go off for a ride in the bracing air, coming back with an appetite equal to a good nourishing dish of vegetables and meat. When one lives where chestnuts are to be found at a reasonable price in the market the following dish will not be an expensive luxury.

Cassoleet Castelnau.—This is a famous historical dish. Soak a quart of lima beans in a successpan with water to cover; put over the heat and let them just come to the boiling point and then set them aside for an hour. Drain the beans, add fresh boiling water and set them over the fire and cook until nearly done. Place in a casserole two cupsful of cooked chicken or duck, turkey or any fat fowl, add the drained beans, and onion sliced, half a cupful of strained tomato, a quart of chicken broth and a teaspoonful of kitchen bouquet. Bake one hour, uncover, sprinkle with buttered bread crumbs, chopped parsley, brown and serve.

Oyster Cocktail Sauce.—For five oysters use a teaspoonful of tarragon vinegar, a tablespoonful of tomato catsup, a teaspoonful of lemon juice, four drops of tabasco sauce and a pinch of salt. Mix all the seasonings thoroughly, add the oysters and chill before serving. Chili sauce, grapefruit juice or oyster liquor may be added if desired.

Chestnut en Casserole.—Remove shells from three cupfuls of chestnuts, put into a casserole and pour over three cupfuls of highly seasoned chicken stock. Cover and cook in a slow oven for three hours; then thicken with two tablespoonfuls of butter and one and one-half tablespoonfuls of flour, season well with salt, pepper and a little grated onion. Combined with chicken this makes another delightful dish.

We shall advance when we have learned humility, when we have learned to seek truth, to reveal it, and to publish it, when we care more for that than for the privilege of arguing about ideas in a fog of uncertainties.—Walter Lippmann.

WHAT TO EAT

Canned corn is such a wholesome vegetable and is so well liked that a few dozen cans put on the cellar shelf will be enjoyed during the winter. After serving the corn with butter, cream and seasoning of salt and pepper, if any is left over make some fritters to serve with the fried chicken.

Peas a la Francaise.—Cook three tablespoonfuls of butter with one slice of bacon for five minutes; remove the bacon and add two cupfuls of peas and eight small peeled onions. Cover with boiling water and cook until the vegetables are soft. Drain, add one-fourth of a cupful of cream and one egg yolk slightly beaten. Season well with salt and pepper.

Mushroom Soup.—Brush one-half pound of mushrooms, break caps into small pieces and chop the stems. Add to three pints of chicken broth, bring it gradually to the boiling point and let simmer thirty minutes. Cool and clear with the whites and shells of two eggs. Season to taste and serve hot.

A platter of overlapping slices of cold roast lamb may be garnished with mounds of hot cooked spinach in which is placed a seasoned poached egg—the whole finished with a border of watercress.

Allen Potato Salad.—Cut cold boiled potatoes into one-half-inch cubes. Take one and one-half cupfuls. Add three chopped hard-cooked eggs, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of chopped pickles, one-half tablespoonful of finely chopped onion. Moisture with a cream salad dressing and serve in nests of lettuce.

A New General Motors Achievement

The public has long looked forward to the day when a six-cylinder automobile could be had in the low price field. Manufacturers, knowing that the six-cylinder principle is the most popular, have long aspired to produce a car to meet this insistent public demand.

The immense facilities and vast resources necessary for such a big task have made individual makers hesitate to attempt such a gigantic job as would be necessary to properly develop and finally produce, in volume, such an ideal car.

But the great General Motors Corporation, with its almost limitless resources in men and money, its big experimental and development engineering laboratories, its great purchasing power, and its many big manufacturing plants, has at last achieved what has long been recognized as the ideal car—a six at a low price.

The Olds Motor Works, the oldest manufacturer of motor vehicles on a commercial basis in the United States and one of the oldest Divisions of the General Motors group, was selected to produce this wonderful car. With its immense modern plant, and with a factory force long trained in the making of quality automobiles, the Olds Motor Works is the natural and logical choice.

Never before in automobile history in this country has such an important and far reaching announcement been made. Never before has the American public been able to buy, in the low price field, a six-cylinder car, with its smoothness of operation, its flexibility its economy, its ease of handling and its low up-keep cost. Until now, six cylinders have meant relatively high initial cost. Now, in the Oldsmobile Six, all these things, plus Oldsmobile beauty and Oldsmobile quality, can be had at a price never before possible.

MEDICAL LIQUOR FOR MILLIONS

New York State Leads in Prescriptions for Rum, Says Official Report.

ILLINOIS SECOND IN 'PATIENTS'

Washington.—Retail druggists of 27 states, the District of Columbia, Porto Rico, and Hawaii, where the law permits prescriptions of liquor for medicinal use, filed 11,268,469 such prescriptions during the fiscal year ended June 30, according to the first summary of this kind issued by the prohibition bureau. A total of 1,400,614.9 gallons were thus sold.

New York led all states in the number of prescriptions issued with 3,638,751. Illinois was second with 2,168,788 and California third, with 759,742. Tennessee, with 171, was the lowest.

The first three named states also led in the amount of whiskey sold on prescription. New York selling 442,906 gallons, Illinois, 269,070, and California 89,764 gallons.

Massachusetts was second to New York in wine sales, its total being 4,923 gallons. New York's total was 10,027 and California's third, 4,704.

Massachusetts led in brandy sales with 2,840 gallons. New York was next with 2,110, and Wisconsin third with 782.

New York also sold more gin than any other state, 2,710 gallons, compared with 1,619 in Massachusetts and 703 in Illinois.

Leaders in alcohol sales were: New York, 482 gallons; Pennsylvania, 247, and Vermont, 184. Massachusetts sold 1,448 gallons of rum; New Hampshire, 154, and New York, 112.

Hawaii, the summary showed, issued 8,665 prescriptions during the year for 463 gallons of liquor. Porto Rico, with 1,278 prescriptions, sold 147 gallons.

About 50,000 physicians, or one-third of the total number in the United States, prohibition officials estimated, have availed themselves of the liquor prescription privilege.

Washington.—An illustration of the possibilities of judicial short cuts was given in the Supreme court of the District of Columbia by Justice Stafford. A verdict for the plaintiff was granted.

Washington.—By January 1 the world will have in operation 17,000,000 automobiles, passenger cars and trucks, according to an estimate by M. H. Mospell, chief of the automobile division of the Commerce department. Of that total he says 14,000,000 will be running in the United States, or about one to every eight persons, whereas in the rest of the world the proportion will be about one to 112 persons.

WON'T PAY WAR DEBTS

Poincare Says France Will Wait for German Settlement.

Paris.—Premier Poincare consolidated his position before a cheering chamber of deputies by practically repudiating allied debts.

"The allied debts were the price paid for a common victory," stated the French premier in the midst of cheers and violent applause by all parties. "We shall pay them with Class C bonds when Germany has paid, and not before."

The Class C bonds represent the figurative debt of Germany over and above the $12,500,000,000 in cash which experts agreed was the absolute limit of the reich's capacity to pay.

These bonds will probably never be paid, or at least the minimum time which must elapse before Germany is in a position to pay them will be 75 years.

According to Premier Poincare's speech, America must wait nearly a century before being paid, during which the interest will continue to pile up until payment will be a physical impossibility.

His speech may be taken as an absolute indication of the opinion of all French parties, including the Socialists and Communists, since all applauded wildly.

Woman and Three Men Slain in Quarrel Over a Girl

Bonifaj, Minn.—A quarrel over a girl in a farmhouse near Kellier, 50 miles north of this city, resulted in the murder of four persons and the wounding of a fifth. France Stays in Ruhr Until Paid in Full, Says Poincare

Paris.—"France will remain on the Rhine until every clause of the treaty is fulfilled and she is secure against aggression," Premier Poincare said in a speech at Neuilly-sur-Seine. The declaration is taken to mean that the Ruhr and the Rhineland will never be evacuated by France.

GOV. J. C. WALTON IS FOUND GUILTY

Oklahoma Senate Votes Unanimously to Oust the State's Executive.

M. E. TRAPP HIS SUCCESSOR

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Charged with corruption in office, neglect of duty, moral turpitude and general incompetence, Governor Walton was impeached by the senate by a unanimous vote. The decision of the senate automatically advances Lieut. Gov. M. E. Trapp to the governorship.

The formal verdict ordering the removal of Governor Walton from office followed after he had been found guilty on 11 of 16 charges presented. Six of the original 22 charges constituting the impeachment bill were dropped by order of the court.

The vote electing the governor from office was 41 to 0. One senator was not present. By a standing vote the court denied a new trial, which was asked by defense counsel when the verdict was rendered.

Articles of impeachment against Governor Walton were filed almost two months ago following the warfare between the chief executive and the Klux Klan, which the governor tried to drive from the state. Since the charges were filed, counsel for Governor Walton has tried numerous plans of stopping the proceedings, but they all failed.

Governor Walton was not in the senate chamber when the court of impeachment handed down its verdict. The governor charged that it was impossible for him to get justice in a court which he charged was made up wholly of Klansmen.
