

LINCOLN ADMITS SLAYING WIFE

Says He Beat Her With Poker as She Shot Her Brother.

Chicago.—Warren J. Lincoln, attorney, horticulturist and distant kinsman of Abraham Lincoln, confessed that he had killed his wife, Lora, and burned her body on January 10, 1923, at their Aurora home.

He confessed, also to burning the body of his wife's brother, Byron Shoup, but insisted his wife had killed Shoup with a revolver. Then, he said, he knocked the revolver from her hand and hit her over the head with a stove poker.

He dismembered both bodies with a hacksaw before burning them, he stated, buried the ashes and destroyed the clothing of both, washed away the blood stains and went to a picture show that night. He confessed to arranging the set of conditions that at first made it appear he had been murdered, his object being to throw suspicion on Mrs. Lincoln and Shoup, he said.

From his son by his first wife, John Lincoln, aged twenty, police obtained information tending to show that Lincoln had premeditated the killing, and also tending to strengthen the belief that he had in fact killed both Shoup and Mrs. Lincoln.

A week before the two deaths, John said, his father had directed him to write a letter to Ralph Shoup, Mrs. Lincoln's brother, at Mount Pulaski, Ill., telling him to meet Mrs. Lincoln and Byron Shoup were in both father and son. The father dictated the letter and he wrote it, the son said.

Lincoln, in his confession, also told in detail how he had observed with satisfaction the apparent police and newspaper acceptance of the theory that he had been murdered on April 20, the old of traveling about the country in faded security and of his return because he needed money.

Family of Six Killed as Train Hits Their Auto

Becknell, Ind.—An entire family of six persons was killed when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by Chicago & Eastern Illinois train No. 92, at a crossing near here. The machine was thrown 30 feet against an iron semaphore post and was hit a second time and carried 50 feet farther before the train was stopped. Following are the names of the victims: Claude Whittenmeyer, thirty-four; Mrs. Lulu Van Meter Whittenmeyer, thirty-four; Helen Whittenmeyer, sixteen; Mabel Whittenmeyer, eight; Lorenz Whittenmeyer, four; Charles David Whittenmeyer, three.

Japan Hit by Another Disastrous Earthquake

Tokyo.—Six persons were killed and 200 injured in Yokohama, and four were killed and about twenty injured in Tokyo by the second disastrous earthquake to strike Japan in recent months. One report said that more than 900 houses were destroyed in Yokohama. Water mains were ripped from their places and smashed by the quake and hundreds of homes were flooded.

I. C. C. Changes Engines on the Penna. Railroad

Indianapolis, Ind.—A large number of Pennsylvania railroad locomotives have been ordered out of service at the result of investigations by inspectors of the interstate commerce commission. About 50 locomotives were taken off at Fort Wayne when an inspection by the officials showed them to be in an unserviceable condition.

Safety Devices Ordered for All Roads in U. S.

Washington.—Practically every large railroad will be required before February 1, 1925, to equip with automatic train control devices under the terms of an interstate commerce commission order issued here. The step was taken as a result of several recent wrecks of a type which the automatic control is designed to prevent, such as that of the Twentieth Century Limited.

LEIGH C. PALMER

Leigh C. Palmer, formerly an admiral in the United States navy and in charge of the bureau of navigation during the World war, who is reported as being considered by President Coolidge for appointment as chairman of the shipping board. Mr. Palmer is a native of Missouri.

Couzens Challenges Mellon on Tax Issue

Washington.—Senator Couzens of Michigan challenged Secretary of the Treasury Mellon to debate the secretary's plan of tax reduction and his assertion that the government is losing large sums through the investment of capital in tax-exempt securities. The senator says that he paid more than $7,000,000 in federal taxes in 1920. Under the Mellon plan, he said, he would have saved nearly $4,000,000 on his 1919 taxes and nearly $2,000,000 under the present law.

House Insurgents Win Rule Test Vote; Affects Tax

Washington.—In the first test of strength in the fight to liberalize the house rules the old guard went down to defeat before a coalition of Democrats and insurgent Republicans. By a vote of 208 to 177 the House adopted an amendment offered by Representative Garrett (Dem., Tenn.) Democratic leader, repealing the so-called Underwood rule, put into effect by the Democrats ten years ago. This rule prohibits the offering of amendments on the floor to tariff and revenue bills unless they were germane to the particular section to which they were offered.

Woman Rescued From Chinese Bandit Gang

Peking.—Mrs. Julia Kilen, American missionary kidnaped by bandits who raided Tsaoyang, Hepeh province, two weeks ago, has been rescued, according to advices from the American legation. Major Magruder, an attaché, recently went to the bandit-infested province to demand action against the kidnapers. He said Mrs. Kilen was well and the leader of the gang had been killed.

Charge Banker's Son Stole $1,000,000 Will

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Charges that Glenn Stewart, son of the late David B. Stewart, banker, stole his father's will disposing of a $1,000,000 estate, were made here during a hearing brought to contest the will. It is alleged that the will mortgaged the bequeathed hundreds of thousands of dollars to charity not mentioned in the will filed. Glenn Stewart denied the charges.

Six Killed in Oil Explosion

Port Arthur, Tex.—Six persons are dead, two are missing and twenty-eight are injured, six of them seriously, as the result of an explosion at the Texas company refinery here Monday afternoon.

Kellogg Meets King

DAWES' SPEECH OPENS INQUIRY

Chicago Banker Speeds German Quiz; Would Make Common Sense King.

Paris.—Brushing aside formality and European diplomacy in a speech characteristic of both his own personality and the country he represents, Brig. Gen. Charles G. Dawes started the reparations experts' investigation on the way by stating that the crux of the question before the committee was to "help Germany get well," saying: "Any common-sense individual can estimate the distance a well man can run, but 50 medical experts gathered round the bedside of a dying patient will give 50 different estimates of how far he can run if he gets well. The reparations commission and the world, regarding the question of Germany's capacity to pay, thus far have been listening to medical experts. Let us first help Germany get well."

Emphasizing how he and his colleague, Owen D. Young, viewed the committee, General Dawes went on to say it was not their concern at the moment what Germany's capacity to pay has been, but her "present capacity and the courage of this committee to act."

General Dawes said that "all the world has seen the economic life of Germany ebbing away. With it the credit of all the European allies suffers, because the world realizes that if the Germans lose their capacity for work, Germany loses her capacity to pay reparations."

"The re-establishment of German productivity is the starting point of European prosperity," he said. "General Dawes then started the European members of the commission by privately declaring: "I propose to work day and night with you, and will take only half an hour for lunch—in fact, I will go without lunch if necessary. I shall expect the commission to do the same."

General Dawes had not spoken more than five minutes when he reached into his pocket and pulled out his famous brain pipe, which he puffed through the rest of his speech. For eagerness in entering with moderation, nothing like General Dawes' opening speech had been heard in Europe since America withdrew from its affairs. The arbiter of this conference—for such he is acknowledged by even Poincaré organs here—got right down to brass tacks. No body had expected such a speech. But, presiding just as he did over the budget situation in Washington, General Dawes, with the agents of every government in Europe hidden behind pillars and hanging off his words, said in reply to the usual formal European utterances of President Louis Barthou of the reparations commission that he and his associates had come here unprejudiced, not to discuss the legality of the occupation of the Ruhr, but to suggest a plan for the stabilization of the German currency and the balancing of the German budget.

While the light of authority thus cleared away the fog of ancient treaties belonging to a princely line, his friends in many quarters revealed how the forty-year-old count had come to this country with only $5,000 of capital, but upon trading a Belgian count's title for a fortune that ran into the millions class.

Allies Close the Frontier Except for Rail Business

Paris.—General De Metz, the Rhine-land commissioner at Speyer, says a dispatch to the Echo de Paris, has closed the frontier between the Palatinate and unoccupied Germany except for railroad business and food supplies. He has also put on the curfew.

United States Public Debt Is Now $32,786,715,000

Washington.—The public debt of the United States was more than four and three-tenths times as much at the close of 1922, as it was in 1912, according to a report of the census bureau. The present debt of the entire country at the end of 1922 was set at $32,786,715,000.

Women Ask World Debt Settlements for Peace

Washington.—The executive board of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom adopted a resolution urging President Coolidge to call "a conference of the debtor and creditor nations to make definite settlement of reparations, interrelated debts and disarmament, to achieve a new peace."

Danish King Rescues Queen in Plunge Through Ice

London.—Queen Alexandra of Denmark had a ducking in the icy waters of The Sound between Sweden and Zealand, according to the Copenhagen correspondent of the Daily Mail.

Want Government Ownership

Washington.—The radicals in the senate disclosed their attitude on railroad legislation, when Senator Norris of Nebraska introduced a bill providing in effect for government ownership of the railroads.

BEATRICE HENNING

Miss Beatrice Henning, daughter of the assistant secretary of labor and Dr. E. J. Henning, whose engagement to George Shaw of Washington was announced recently. Miss Henning graduated last June from George Washington university with the degree of bachelor of arts and she is now taking a course in playwriting.

HOOGSTRAETEN IS A DIVORCED NOBLEMAN

American Heiress Repays Belgian's Golden Quest.

New York.—Count Ludwig Salm van Hoogstraeten holds himself in the quarters of his bride, the former Miss Millicent Rogers, granddaughter of the late H. H. Rogers, one of America's money kings. Meanwhile a world procession of former loves and heart complications began forming a line in the wake of the count's capture of the $80,000,000 Standard Oil heiress.

Three women who did not go to the altar with him nursed their personal views out of range of the honeymoon and the couple upon whom it shed its rays. And with the breaking of the gentle tidings that the count had played fast and loose in love in many directions, with many counties yet to report the returns, there came the cold blasting of his pretense to succession to the "ancestral estates" of the Salm regime.

Descending, as he did, from a morgue match belonging to a princely line, his friends in many quarters revealed how the forty-year-old count had come to this country with only $5,000 of capital, but upon trading a Belgian count's title for a fortune that ran into the millions class.

Beaver Dam—Building permits issued since May 25 call for an expenditure of $343,232. Much of the building for the year was started before that date, when the council first made building permits compulsory, and it is conservatively estimated that $50,000 were spent in new homes, office buildings, and repairs of existing buildings at Beaver Dam.

Green Bay—Recent cold spells have laid a cover of ice ten inches thick over the waters of Green bay, and ice men are preparing "to make ice while the sun doesn't shine." Reports indicate it will be about two weeks before the actual cutting will take place. The ice is being scraped of snow in order to hurry the freezing.

Star Lake—It is reported that a new summer resort to cost about $25,000 will be erected in the Star Lake district next spring. The resort will consist of a main lodge building and about a dozen cottages. Chicago men are said to be interested in the project.

Antigo—A light motor fire truck has been bought for the Antigo fire department and will be put into service the latter part of January. Its use will make it unnecessary to send the heavy fire truck, weighing twice as much, to chimney fires and other minor blazes.

Sturgeon Bay—With a total of fifty-four calls for the fire department during 1923 in Sturgeon Bay, the aggregate loss was only $6,950, according to the annual report of Fire Chief Frank J. Stroh, who has been head of the department for twenty-two years.

Madison—There is $1,500,000 available this year for county loans for school purposes in the state, Supt. John Callahan announced recently in letters to county superintendents. There are now applications of $182,500 in school loans, leaving about $1,317,500 still to be applied for.

Toniah—George Emmons, Elroy, shot a timber wolf weighing 75 pounds near the L. Dietzmann farm, Kendall neighborhood, a few days ago and collected the $30 bounty.

Madison—Wisconsin recorded 58,63 births in 1922. Tabulations for that year, completed this week by the bureau of vital statistics, show a birth rate of 21.7 to each 1,000 of population. The figures indicate a decline over other recent years. Of the 1922 babies, 30,950 were boys and 28,504 girls.

Madison—Henry Taylor, brakeman on the Milwaukee road, was seriously injured when he was thrown out of the top of a freight car at Mazomanie, 25 miles west of Madison.

BADGER STATE HAPPENINGS

Madison—Traders have been placed with state printers for 500,000 copies of the state road handbook which the secretary of state is required to publish under the motor vehicle license act. The booklet this year will be composed of about thirty pages and will contain a synopsis of the state highway regulations, explanation of highway signs and signals and map of Wisconsin with the entire state highway system. Under the motor act, these booklets will be sent to each person obtaining a set of motor license tags. Approximately 400,000 tags are expected to be issued this year and the remainder will be distributed to tourists and others.

Madison—More than $2,000,000 is lost annually by Wisconsin farmers through activities of the pea aphid, according to C. L. Fluke of the entomology department of the college of agriculture, Madison. At least 90 per cent of the aphid must be killed before any noticeable control is effected. The aphid winter on clover and alfalfa in the form of eggs, migrating to the pea fields about blossom time, according to Prof. Fluke. The insect does its work by sucking the life sap from the peas, he stated.

Kenosha—A new record in building was set in Kenosha in 1923, according to the report of City Building Inspector J. M. Albers, just filed with the city manager. He declares that permits were issued for the construction of property valued at $5,301,437, the largest amount in the history of Kenosha. The record before was in 1919 when permits were issued for $4,223,600 worth of buildings.

Madison—The Wisconsin highway commission has accepted bids on 1,625,000 barrels of Portland cement at $1.85 net per barrel f. o. b. Burlington or La Salle, Ill. This price is five cents a barrel above that of last year. Because of the present market conditions and the tremendous program of construction, the commission believed that it was justified in accepting the advanced figure.

Sheboygan—Otto Armbruster of Sheboygan Falls suffered an unusual accident while sitting in his home reading when his artificial eye exploded. Optometrists were asked how an artificial eye, which is composed entirely of glass, could explode, and it was explained that there is a vacuum in the middle of most of them, and that a sudden change of temperature might cause it.

Sturgeon Bay—An early morning blaze destroyed the home of D. S. Crandall at Sturgeon Bay and valuable personal effects, including the records of half a century of active newspaper work. Mr. Crandall was prominent in that section many years ago and was connected with pioneer publications in that section. Mr. Crandall is now 90 years old.

Green Bay—Recent cold spells have laid a cover of ice ten inches thick over the waters of Green bay, and ice men are preparing "to make ice while the sun doesn't shine." Reports indicate it will be about two weeks before the actual cutting will take place. The ice is being scraped of snow in order to hurry the freezing.

Madison—Henry Taylor, brakeman on the Milwaukee road, was seriously injured when he was thrown out of the top of a freight car at Mazomanie, 25 miles west of Madison.

Madison—A struggle which has continued for two weeks in an attempt to save the life of Leonard Ott, 9-year-old Monroe boy, from whose brain a piece of a gun bullet was removed Dec. 29 at Madison hospital, was lost when the boy died Jan. 10. The boy had been in an unconscious state since he was shot a short time ago and his case had puzzled medical authorities. It is believed by those who attended the boy that a portion of the bullet was not reached at the initial operation and that the remaining missile caused his death.

Madison—After falling from the top of the fifth floor of the Piper hotel, which is under construction at the north corner of the Capitol square, William Schaus, 22, sat up in bed at the Methodist hospital and declared he wasn't hurt. But attendants said he would be confined to a ward for the day to have several abrasions on his head dressed. Schaus slipped off the scaffolding at the top of the fifth floor, struck it again on the second floor, and dropped to the ground. He was conscious all of the time.

Madison—Wisconsin's fur bearing animals must tread carefully these days to continue their existence because there are 674,000 traps lying in wait for them in the woods and marshes of the state. There are a total of 49,000 trappers licensed in the state. A trapper must pay a license fee of one dollar and then pays five cents for each trap tag. The trap program has netted the state about $33,700 in additional fees, making the total revenue from trappers $73,700.

Lancaster—Hugh Harper, secretary of the Grand County Farm bureau, has purchased 115 cars of South Dakota alfalfa which is being shipped into Wisconsin to be distributed over five counties. A meeting was held at Cuba City recently to discuss means of raising more alfalfa on Wisconsin farms. Liming of the soil is the first important step, and there will be available for use this spring in Grand county alone from 15,000 to 20,000 tons.

Oconto—The Oconto branch of the Marinette Knitting mills has decided to close its plant for a period of sixty days. This action was made after the cancellation of several months' orders for knitted goods by a large concern, due to adverse business conditions. Ten of the large machines used in the Oconto mills now are being prepared to be shipped to the Marinette mills.

Eau Claire—Frozen pipes and not fire set off the automatic sprinkling system in the plan of the Eau Claire Warehouse Co., formerly the Multi-ton Manufacturing Co. of Salsstad fame, and also the fire alarm, and when firemen arrived they found water had deluged large quantities of sugar in the basement and damaged furniture stored on the second floor.

Evansville—Chester Long, 20, who made his escape from the Evansville jail Jan. 6th, and was captured a few hours later at Stoughton, has been returned to the state reformatory at Green Bay, to complete serving a three-year sentence for burglary in the city of Evansville. He was sentenced from night time. He was sentenced from night time. He was sentenced from night time.

Janesville—The Tilden nine hundred sixty acre farm, one of the famous places in Watworth county, formerly owned by Edward Tilden, then connected with the Fort Dearborn National bank of Chicago, and a part of the Tilden estate sold for $185,000 to Dr. E. J. Robertson, by E. D. Lackey, acting for the Tildens.

Madison—Unemployment in Madison reached its peak for 1923 in December, according to the monthly report of John F. Brahaney, superintendent of the city employment bureau. In December, he reports, 562 persons applied for work. The closing of the United States Sugar Co.'s plant put 300 out of work.

De Pere—The question whether the east and west side high schools at De Pere should be consolidated was defeated at a special election. The east side voted against the consolidation by a large majority. The west side school district, which has just completed a $150,000 high school building, voted for consolidation.

Manitowoc—Mrs. Maren Hanson, 86, widow of Adolph Hanson, founder of the old Hanson Wagon Works, Manitowoc, is dead. During the last year and a half she had been confined to her bed with a broken hip. She was born in Norway and came to Manitowoc in 1855.

Wausau—An ice famine is possible in Wausau next year. There is only about three inches of solid ice and three inches of frozen slush on the Wisconsin river. Ice in branch rivers is a little thicker but of poorer quality.

Barron—Elmer, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Shackleton of Barron, was fatally wounded by his own gun while rabbit hunting with Vernon Carr, a neighbor boy. The boys were jumping over brush piles to scare out the rabbits when young Shackleton fell in such a way that his gun was discharged, wounding him so severely that he lived but a short time.

Algona—The population of Algona has increased from 1,911 in 1920 to 2,400 in 1923, a survey revealed.

Eau Claire—Attorney J. E. Hughes, New Richmond, Wis., was disbarred for one year and his license to practice law in any Wisconsin court suspended by Judge James Wickham in circuit court following his trial for misappropriating funds belonging to his clients.

Birchwood—In one week state bounties were issued by E. W. Hill, Rusk county clerk, for four wildcats and five wolves. Six trappers claimed the bounties on nine animals.

MRS. YOUNG ENTHUSIASTIC

Cannot Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Enough. Sick Women Read This Letter

Charleston, S. C.—"I was completely run-down and not able to do my housework. I just dragged myself around and did not have any energy enough to get up when I sat down. I read advertisements of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in your books and learned about it. I got benefit from the very first bottle. I continued to take it for some time, and now I am doing all my own work, even washing and ironing, and never felt better in my life. I tell all my friends that the change in my health is due to but one thing and that is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I cannot praise it enough."—Mrs. ANNE YOUNG, 16 Amherst St., Charleston, S.C.

The reason for such a letter from Mrs. Young is apparent. She got well and is grateful. Recently a nation-wide canvass of women purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was made, and 98 out of 100 reported that they received benefit from taking it. Just because the Vegetable Compound has been helping other women is a good reason why it should help you. For sale by druggists everywhere.

LINING UP JIM

SYNOPSIS.—Jennie Woodruff refuses to marry Jim Irwin, young farm hand, because of his financial condition and poor prospects. He is intellectually above his station, and has advanced ideas concerning the possibilities of school teaching and farming, for which he is ridiculed by many. In short, Jim is an off ox. He backs by himself and reads books and has a philosophy of his own. But there are latent powers in him unsuspected even by himself and Opposite comes knocking at his door. Jim is nominated for school teacher, as a joke. The joke results in his election. He visits the school. Jennie is nominated for county superintendent of schools. Jim speaks at a public meeting, concerning rural school methods. Prominent women condemn Jim's method of teaching; they demand "culture." His pupils defend him.

CHAPTER VIII—Continued.

Jennie blushed, and to conceal her embarrassment, got out of the room by the door. "But if I cannot line him up?" said she.

"I think," said Haakon, "if you can't line him up, you will have a chance to revoke his certificate when you take office."

Jennie thought of Mr. Peterson's suggestion as to "lining up" Jim Irwin as so thoroughly sensible that she gave it a good deal of thought that day. To be sure, everybody had always favored "more practical education," and Jim's farm arithmetic, farm physiology, farm reading and writing, cow-testing exercises, seed analysis, corn clubs and the tomato, poultry and pig clubs he proposed to have in operation the next summer, seemed highly practical; but to Jennie's mind, the fact that they introduced dissension in the neighborhood and promised to make her official life vexatious seemed ample proof that Jim's work was visionary and impractical. Poor Jennie was not aware of the fact that new truth always comes bringing, not peace to mankind, but a sword.

"Father," said she that night, "let's have a little Christmas party."

"All right," said the colonel. "Whom shall we invite?"

"Don't laugh," said she. "I want to invite Jim Irwin and his mother, and nobody else."

"All right," reiterated the colonel. "But why?"

"Oh," said Jennie, "I want to see whether I can talk Jim out of some of his foolishness."

"You want to line him up, do you?" said the colonel. "Well, that's good politics, and incidentally, you may get some good ideas out of Jim."

"Rather unlikely," said Jennie.

"I don't know about that," said the colonel, smiling. "I begin to think that Jim's a Brown Mouse. I've told you about the Brown Mouse, haven't I?"

"Yes," said Jennie. "You've told me. But Professor Darbishire's brown mice were simply wild and incorrigible creatures. Just because it happens to emerge suddenly from the forests of heredity, it doesn't prove that the Brown Mouse is any good."

"Justin Morgan was a Brown Mouse," said the colonel. "And he founded the greatest breed of horses in the world."

"You say that," said Jennie, "because you're a lover of the M-ran horse."

"Napoleon Bonaparte was a Brown Mouse," said the colonel. "So was George Washington, and so was Peter the Great. Whenever a Brown Mouse appears he changes things in a little way or a big way."

"For the better, always?" asked Jennie.

"No," said the colonel. "The Brown Mouse may throw back to slant-headed savagery. But Jim . . . sometimes I think Jim is the kind of Mendelian segregation out of which we get Franklins and Edisons and their sort. You may get some good ideas out of Jim. Let us have them here for Christmas, by all means."

There is no doubt that on Christmas day Jennie Woodruff was justified in thinking that they were a queer couple. They weren't like the Woodruffs, at all. They were of a different pattern. To be sure, Jim's clothes were not especially noteworthy, being just shiny, and frayed at cuff and instep, and short of sleeve and leg, and ill-fitting and cheap. Jim's queerness lay not so much in his clothes as in his personality.

On the other hand, Jennie could not help thinking that Mrs. Irwin's queerness was to be found almost solely in her clothes. The black alpaca looked undeniably respectable. Jennie felt it must have a story—a story in which the stooped, rusty, scowling old lady looked like a character drawn to harmonize with the period just after the war.

But Jennie had the keenness to see that if Mrs. Irwin could have had an up-to-date costume she would have become a rather ordinary and not bad-looking old lady. What Jennie failed to divine was that if Jim could have invested a hundred dollars in the services of tailors, haberdashers, barbers and other specialists in personal appearance, and could have blotted out her record as her father's field-hand, he would have seemed to her a distinguished-looking young man. Not handsome, of course, but the sort people look after—and follow.

"Come to dinner," said Mrs. Woodruff, who at this juncture had a hired girl, but was yoked to the ox nevertheless when it came to turkey and the other fixings of a Christmas dinner. "It's good enough, what there is of it, and there's enough of it such as it is—but the dressing in the turkey would be better for a little more sage."

The bountiful meal piled mountain-high for guest and hired help and family melted away in a manner to delight the hearts of Mrs. Woodruff and Jennie. The colonel, in stiff starched shirt, black tie and frock coat, carved with much embellishment, and Jim felt almost for the first time a sense of the value of manner.

"I had bigger turkeys," said Mrs. Woodruff to Mrs. Irwin, "but I thought it would be better to cook two turkeys instead of one great big gobbler with meat as tough as tripe and stuffed full of fat."

"One of the hens would 'a' been plenty," replied Mrs. Irwin. "How much did they weigh?"

"About fifteen pounds apiece," was the answer. "The gobbler would 'a' weighed thirty, I guess. He's pure Mammoth Bronze."

"I wish," said Jim, "that we could get a few breeding birds of the wild bronze turkeys from Mexico."

"Why?" asked the colonel.

"They're the original blood of the domestic bronze turkeys," said Jim, "and they're bigger and handsomer than the pure bred bronzes, even. They're a better stock than the Northern wild turkeys from which our common birds originated."

"Where do you learn all these things, Jim?" asked Mrs. Woodruff. "I declare, I often tell Woodruff that it's as good as a lecture to have Jim Irwin at table. My intelligence has fallen since you quit working here, Jim."

There came into Jim's eyes the gleam of the man devoted to a cause—and the dinner tended to develop into a lecture. Jennie saw a little more plainly wherein his queerness lay.

"There's an education in any meal, if we would just use the things on the table as materials for study, and follow their trails back to their starting points. This turkey takes us back to the chaparral of Mexico."

"What's chaparral?" asked Jennie, as a diversion. "It's one of the words I have seen so often and know perfectly to speak it and read it—but after all it's just a word, and nothing more."

"Ain't that the trouble with our education, Jim?" queried the colonel, cleverly steering Jim back into the track of his discourse.

"They are not even living words," answered Jim, "unless we have clothed them in flesh and blood through some sort of concrete notion. 'Chaparral' to Jennie is just the ghost of a word. Our civilization is full of inefficiency because we are satisfied to give our children these ghosts and shucks and husks of words, instead of the things themselves, that can be seen and hefted and handled and tested and heard."

CHAPTER IX

The Brown Mouse Escapes.

Jennie looked Jim over carefully. His queerness was taking on a new phase—and she felt a sense of surprise such as one experiences when the conjurer causes a rose to grow into a tree before your very eyes.

"I think we lose so much time in school," Jim went on, "while the children are eating their dinners."

"Well, Jim," said Mrs. Woodruff, "every one but you is down on the human level. The poor kids have to eat."

"But think how much good education there is wrapped up in the school dinner—if we could only get it out."

Jennie grew grave. Here was this Brown Mouse actually introducing the subject of the school—and he ought to suspect that she was planning to line him up on this very thing—if he wasn't a perfect donkey as well as a dreamer. And he was calmly wading into the subject as if she were the ex-farm-hand country teacher, and he was the county superintendent-elect!

"Eating a dinner like this, mother," said the colonel gallantly, "is an education in itself—and eating some others requires one; but just how 'learnin' is wrapped up in the school lunch is a new one on me, Jim."

"Well," said Jim, "in the first place the children ought to cook their meals as a part of the school work. Prior to that they ought to buy the materials. They'd like to do these things, and it would help prepare them for life on an intelligent plane, while they prepared the meals."

"Isn't that looking rather far ahead?" asked the county superintendent-elect.

"It's like a lot of other things we think far ahead," urged Jim. "The only reason why they're far off is because we think them so. It's a thought—and a thought is as near the moment we think it as it will ever be."

"I guess that's so—to a wild-eyed reformer," said the colonel. "But go on. Develop your thought a little. Have some more dressing."

"Thanks, I believe I will," said Jim. "And a little more of the cranberry sauce. No more turkey, please."

"I'd like to see the school class that could prepare this dinner," said Mrs. Woodruff.

"Why?" said Jim, "you'd be there showing them how! They'd get credit for getting the school dinner—and they'd bring their mothers into it to help them stand at the head of their classes. And one detail of girls would cook one week, and another serve. The setting of the table would come in as a study—flowers, linen and all that. And when we get a civilized teacher, table manners!"

"I'd take on that class," said the hired man, winking at Selma Carlson, the maid, from somewhere below the salt. "The way I make my knife feel my face would be a great help to the children."

"And when the food came on the table," Jim went on with a smile at his former fellow-laborer, who had heard most of this before as a part of the field conversation, "just think of the things we could study while eating it. The literary term for eating a meal is discussing it—well, the discussion of a meal under proper guidance is much more educative than a lecture. This breast-bone, now," said he, referring to the remains on his plate. "That's physiology. The cranberry sauce—that's botany, and commerce, and soil management—do you know, Colonel, that the cranberry must have an acid soil—which would kill alfalfa or clover?"

"Read something of it," said the colonel, "but it didn't interest me much."

"And the difference between the types of fowl on the table—that's breeding. And the nutmeg, pepper and coconut—that's geography. And everything on the table runs back to geography, and comes to us linked to our lives by dollars and cents—and they're mathematics."

"We must have something more than dollars and cents in life," said Jennie. "We must have culture."

"Culture," cried Jim, "is the ability to think in terms of life—isn't it?"

"Like Jesse James?" suggested the hired man, who was a careful student of the life of that eminent bandit.

There was a storm of laughter at this sally amidst which Jennie wished she had thought of something like that. Jim joined in the laughter at his own expense, but was clearly suffering from argumentative shock.

"That's the best answer I've had on that point, Pete," he said, after the disturbance had subsided. "But if the James boys and the Youngers had had the sort of culture I'm for they would have been successful stock men and farmers, instead of train robbers. Take Raymond Simms, for instance. He had all the qualifications of a member of the James gang when he came here. All he needed was a few exasperated associates of his own sort, and a convenient railway with undefended trains running over it. But after a few weeks of real culture under a mighty poor teacher, he's developing into the most enthusiastic farmer I know. That's real culture."

"It's snowing like everything," said Jennie, who faced the window.

"Don't cut your dinner short," said the colonel to Pete, "but I think you'll find the cattle ready to come in out of the storm when you get good and through."

"I think I'll let 'em in now," said Pete, by way of excusing himself. "I expect to put in most of the day from now on getting ready to quit eating. Save some of everything for me, Selma—I'll be right back."

"All right, Pete," said Selma.

Mrs. Woodruff and Jim's mother went into other parts of the house on research work connected with their converse on domestic economy. The colonel withdrew for an inspection of the live stock on the eve of the threatened blizzard. And Jim was left alone with Jennie in the front parlor.

Scanning him by means of her back hair, Jennie knew that in another moment Jim would lay his hand on her shoulder, or otherwise advance to personal noariness, as he had done the night of his ill-starred speech at the schoolhouse—and she rose in self-defense. Self-defense, however, did not seem to require that he be kept at too great a distance; so she maneuvered him to the sofa, and seated him beside her. Now was the time to line him up.

"It seems good to have you with us today," said she. "We're such old, old friends."

GOOD SAMARITAN'S HARD LUCK

Noted Cartoonist Failed to "Stay Put" When Conveyed to His Home by Good Friend.

Mr. Ward tells in his "Recollections of a Savage" how Mr. Odell took Phil May home on one occasion, when it became quite obvious that the best and only place for him was bed. Without disturbing Mrs. May, he got the artist onto a couch in the hall, and left him asleep. Mr. Odell, having spent all he had on the cab, set out and tramped back to the Savage club—comforted by the reflection that he had rendered a service to an old friend. Arriving eventually at his destination, footsore and exhausted, he dragged his weary way up the stairs leading to the bar, where he was saddened and surprised to see the triumphant figure of Phil May, glass in hand held aloft, flushed with the joy of having defeated the designs of his Good Samaritan by a swift recovery from the ruse of the sleep on the couch, where Odell had deposited him, and by catching a smart hansom which returned him to the club to put a finish to a great evening.

Sure Enough.

"Well, seemingly the fools are not all dead yet, and—" began Tennyson J. Daff, the versatile versificatorist.

"What are you kicking about?" impolitely interrupted J. Fuller Bloom.

"If they were who would read your poetry?"—Kansas City Star.

Winter Coats Pass in Review

For Small Girls' Wardrobe

IN SHOPS and showrooms the long procession of winter coats nears its end. It has been an exhibition of unusual excellence in design and craftsmanship, and interesting from start to finish because of the endlessly varied ways in which approved styles have been developed. The last coats like them in all main points, as in silhouette, materials and trimmings. They merely offer diversity in minor details, such as combinations of materials, choice of color and management of trimmings.

The call has been for quiet shades and mostly for sedate colors that blend in well with fur which has been universally used in collars—very often in cuffs and trimmings as well. This restraint in color has made for stability in style. Beige, taupe, gray, brown, tan and black have been favorites throughout the season.

Two very handsome coats, typical of the season, are shown in the picture. The model at the left in a rich taupe pile fabric with dyed fox collar and cuffs has its slenderizing lines emphasized by pipings and strap trimmings. It is the sort of coat that can be worn everywhere and in the fabrics in good qualities stand any amount of service. Plain and brocaded materials, also in pile fabrics, make the rich, black coat at the right, cut on lines that reveal a Russian inspiration. The dress is a slip-over, with a short neck opening at the left side where the velvet ribbon is edged with small knots and one of the embroidered motifs placed like a bright pendant jewel.

Party Bandoau.

For the schoolgirl's dances, she treasures a silver bandoau strewn with little flat yellow daisies. Less than a yard of silver ribbon is required, and the flowers can be applied with a thin skim of liquid glue.

Missses Velvetreen Frocks.

Little black velvetreen frocks for the school and college girl are quite charming when they are made very simply and have a touch of petit point embroidery on the single pocket.

To Simplify Making Buttonholes.

Buttonholes can be made more comfortable in tweed, willow or serge if soap is rubbed on the fabric before cutting the buttonholes. The soap prevents the fraying which is so annoying.

SAUCES FOR MEATS AND FISH

There is an art in the preparation of sauces and a science in combining flavors that is only discovered by the cook who has the touch, the taste and the consciousness of the importance of good cooking and serving.

A French sauce is a thing of surpassing delicacy. It is expensive, too, for it takes time to collect ingredients and prepare them. No chef who smokes or indulges in alcoholic drinks can ever attain perfection in sauce making. One must have a very sensitive sense of taste. There are few who can equal the French in the making of sauces. The flavoring or seasoning is the thing most conspicuous.

Sauces are a thickened fluid flavored in various ways with vegetables, meat boned and spiced with all sorts of herbs and aromatics. The thickening consists of starch in some form, either flour, cornstarch, arrowroot, prepared in the form of a roux, which may be any of these cooked in butter; for brown roux the flour is browned. Egg yolks are also used as thickening.

The liquid for the sauces may be stock, milk or butter, or in cold sauces, oil. The vegetable flavors are onions, leeks, garlic, peppers, green, red and hot; carrots, turnip, celery and mushrooms. Zest is sometimes added from the rind of lemons or oranges.

Herbs and aromatics are thyme, marjoram, bay leaves, parsley and chervil. The bones used for the sauces for meat are preferably veal bones, crushed and roasted. Fish heads and fish bones are used for fish sauces. We have a basic sauce prepared with flour or starch of some form with butter, milk or stock, called white sauce. The brown sauce is prepared by browning the flour, or in an emergency adding color in the form of caramel.

Tomato sauce is prepared much like soup. The object of all sauces is to serve a savory fluid appropriate to the dry dish with which it is to be eaten.

Back, clouds, away! and welcome day
With night we banish sorrow,
Sweet air, blow soft; mount, lark,
Alight!
To give my love good morrow!

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS

A collection of small cakes or cookies is always an addition to any cooky jar.

Nuremburgs.—Take one pint of sugar, honey and molasses; one tablespoonful of butter and one of lard, two tablespoonfuls of soda, one pint of sour cream, one-half cupful of candied orange peel, lemon peel and citron finely chopped; one cupful of one tablespoonful each of nutmeats, one-half cupful of cloves and cinnamon. Mix and warm the molasses, honey, sugar, butter and lard; add the soda in the sour cream. Mix all the other ingredients and add flour until a stiff dough is formed—a little stiffer than that used for cookies. Let stand until morning. Roll out and cut into any desired shapes. Frost with powdered sugar moistened with lemon juice. Pack in a jar and keep a month. This recipe makes about seven pounds of cookies.

Peffernuesse.—Take one pint each of corn sirup and New Orleans molasses, one-half pound of shortening, one-half pound of brown sugar, two and one-half pounds of flour, one teaspoonful of soda, two teaspoonfuls of cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful of cloves, one-fourth of a pound each of almonds and citron chopped fine, one lemon, rind and juice. Warm the sirup, add the shortening and lemon juice and the remaining ingredients, the soda mixed with the flour. Roll into little balls the size of marbles, brush with white of egg and bake until brown. These will keep indefinitely.

Ginger Ale Salad.—Soak two tablespoonfuls of gelatin in one-half cupful of warm water until dissolved, or place it over hot water. Add one-fourth of a cupful of ginger ale. To three-fourths of a cupful of ginger ale add three-fourths cupful each of diced canned pineapple and chopped grape fruit pulp, one-third cupful of blanched shredded almonds, one-fourth cupful of seeded mung bean sprouts, a little salt and a few grains of paprika. Add the gelatin mixture, stir well and pour into individual molds which have been dipped into cold water. Chill thoroughly, unmold and serve on lettuce leaves garnished with mayonnaise.

Orient Cookies.—Beat three eggs, add three tablespoonfuls of honey, one teaspoonful of allspice, one-fourth teaspoonful of cinnamon, one teaspoonful of soda, one-half lemon juice and rind. Mix, roll and cut and decorate with almonds.

A Banker's Grace.

A gentleman in the banking line was asked to say grace, and this is what he said: "Dear Lord, we thank Thee for all Thy favors of recent date. Permit us to express our heartfelt gratitude. We trust that we may continue to merit your confidence and that we shall receive many more blessings from you in the future. Amen."

Through ignorance of what is good and what is bad, the life of man is greatly perplexed.

In writing novels, the authors usually write what they please and trust to the readers liking it.

Wise is the man who lets his wife have her own way just to spite himself for having married her.

Smiling can be a habit. However, those smiles that are not the result of habit are still the most valuable.

It is disadvantageous to know what is to happen, for it is wretched to be grieved without the power of changing events.

A fool and his money are soon parted—and a wise man soon dies and his heirs take what the lawyers leave. So take your choice.

The only happiness a brave man ever troubled himself with asking much about was happiness enough to get his work done.

It is an interesting fact that a man who chooses his work because he loves it, often chooses a kind at which he can make no money.

The fuel of the ancient Romans was almost exclusively charcoal. This was burned in open pans, without grate or flue, and gave economical heat for living rooms and baths.

The cocklebur, troublesome as a weed because of its stiffly armed burrs, has been definitely demonstrated to be poisonous to live stock in the early stages of its growth.

To be happy is not only to be freed from the pains and diseases of the body, but from anxiety and vexation of spirit—not only to enjoy the pleasures of sense, but peace of conscience and tranquility of mind.

Gold valued at $1,806.89 was recovered from a trunkful of black mud purchased at a sale of unclaimed express by a buyer in Omaha, Neb., who was ridiculed for his purchase until a chemist's analysis proved its value.

The geological survey says that the latitude of the magnetic north pole is 70 degrees 05 minutes and the longitude, 96 degrees 46 minutes west. It is nearly 1,400 miles south of the north pole. True north is the point on the true meridian directly north. The true north means the geographic north pole.

LAST Spring a total of 350,000 people were disappointed in not being able to obtain deliveries of Ford Cars and Trucks, as orders were placed faster than cars could be produced.

The demand for Ford Cars and Trucks this Spring will, according to all indications, be far greater than last Spring.

Winter buying has been increasing at a greater rate than ever before.

Actual retail deliveries the past 60 days totaled 308,170 Ford Cars and Trucks, an increase of 1961 a day over a year ago.

Over 200,000 people have already ordered Ford products on our purchase plan, the majority of whom will take delivery in the Spring.

The above facts are given with the suggestion that you list your order promptly with a Ford dealer if you contemplate the purchase of a Ford Car or Truck for use this Spring or Summer and wish to avoid delay in delivery.

Shoes of Skeleton Identify Lost Boy

Parents of Jersey City Child End Eight-Year Hunt.

Greeley, Pa.—The markings on a pair of child's shoes made it nearly certain that the small skull and other bones found to underbrush not far from Greeley were the remains of Jimmy Glass, the four-year-old boy whose disappearance on May 12, 1915, caused a worldwide search.

Charles L. Glass of Jersey City, father of the boy, washed the clay from the shoes and found the maker's name cut on the bottom of the shoe under the insole. The boy had worn a pair of penny-sole shoes of this make when he disappeared. The only other relics of clothing that were found were rusty metal buttons and buckles from the overalls.

How he came to his death is not known, but it is thought that he had died of fright, exhaustion and hunger after losing his way and wandering through a thick maze of scrub oak, maple and other underbrush. His body was less than 100 feet from a wood road and about a mile from the main road. It was found there by Otto Winkler, who was hunting deer.

The bones were all found in a small space between the skull and the shoes, indicating that the body had been undisturbed since his death. The only wild animal that might have attacked him is the bear. It is years since bears have been seen near Greeley, but they are sometimes reported only a few miles from here.

Whole World Combred for Him. The boy and his parents had been at the Fox farm, Greeley, about a mile from the place where the body was found. Miss Glass left Jimmy playing outside the house when she went to the village to mail a letter. He was gone when she returned. From that day until now no trace of him was found.

The search was carried on first in the village, then among neighboring villages, then all over the United States and finally abroad. The boy's picture and description went all over the world. Positive identifications were made again and again and the parents experienced many times an agony of suspense followed by the disappointment of discovering that the identified child was not theirs after all.

Death From Exhaustion. Dr. J. H. Ross gave the certificate of death, which he wrote was due to "exposure and exhaustion, being lost in the woods and having wandered from home."

Capt. Joseph Rooney, who has traveled a total of 45,000 miles to look at scores of boys erroneously thought to be Jimmy Glass, said that there was no doubt that the search was now at an end.

"I am still convinced," he said, "that the story told by Edward Faust, the boarding-house keeper, and Fred Luckey, a boy, is true, and that is that they saw two men and a woman in an automobile carry the boy away after wrapping him in a robe. I believe that he must have died, either from exhaustion or from fright, and that they then took him to this place in the woods and planted the body there."

Mother's Mind at Peace. Dr. J. H. Ross said that no inquest was necessary and gave the father and mother permission to take the relics away. They were placed in a separate box and carried by Captain Rooney of Jersey City.

On arriving at Jersey City, Mr. and Mrs. Glass were escorted to their home.

"We had hoped until the very last," said Mr. Glass, "that the boy would be found alive. Since that was impossible, we are glad that the search is finally at an end."

The mother showed five large boxes of letters which had come to her from every state in the country and many parts of the world. Most of the letters were written by persons confident that they could lead the parents to the missing child. At times the family was trying to follow seven or eight of these false trails at once. Some of the letters were written with such detail and positiveness that the relatives of the boy had their hopes raised to the highest point. Years of crushing disappointment had not taken away their capacity to be tortured in this way, and plausible reports had within the last year caused the mother and father to go through all this emotional stress again.

"My mind is at peace, now," said the mother, pointing at the heaps of letters. "We had hoped so that we would have him again. Since that could not be, it is a consolation to have the body."

Danube Being Dredged. Vienna.—Bridges have been at work on the Danube, and this natural route through Central Europe to the Black sea, Constantinople and Odessa has been greatly improved and developed. New boats with larger carrying capacity are being built for the spring trade, and transshipment facilities are being developed. Completion of the Danube-Rhine and the Danube-Elbe canals also will add to the river's importance as a shipping route.

Six Diseases Still Puzzle to Doctors

Cures Being Sought for Cancer, "Flu," Etc.

Detroit.—Medical science has made tremendous strides in the last century in conquering diseases. In times past the cure of disease was given over to sorcerers, magicians and astrologers with their charms and weird potions. In the last century, however, medical scientists have elevated medicine from an art to a science and they have discovered both cause and cure for many ailments.

For three generations laboratory workers all over the world have wrestled with the problem of influenza, both from the standpoint of cause and cure, but very little more is known about the disease than at the beginning of the inquiry. It is assumed, of course, that the disease is caused by a germ which, so far, has never been isolated.

Cancer, since the enlightenment of civilization, has been the pre-eminent mystery of medicine. Not only has its cause never been satisfactorily determined nor a specific cure for it discovered, but in spite of the concerted endeavor of the medical profession it steadily increases. Some insist that it is purely a disease of civilization and a result of wrong methods of living, attributing it chiefly to errors of diet. Others assert that it is a germ disease, and two or three investigators at different times have declared their belief that they had isolated the particular species of bacteria responsible for it. Others assert (and this theory has

Many Adherents That Cancer is Manifestation of Embryonic Cells Run Riot

(many adherents) that cancer is the manifestation of embryonic cells run riot; that when subjected to prolonged irritation—to heat, for example, as in the case of pipe smokers—the cells develop abnormal growth and carry on their work of devastation.

Among the known purely epidemic diseases none is anticipated with greater dread or occasions more alarm in this country when it gains a foothold than poliomylitis, known to physicians as "polio" and to the laity as infantile paralysis. That it originates from a germ—a variety of bacterium named Serpentococcus, so-called from its shape and arrangement—is the belief of the majority of physicians.

Takes Heavy Toll.

The historic epidemic of 1916 in this country, which began in Brooklyn, totaled some 27,000 cases with a large number of fatalities, leaving behind it a pathetic trail of paralyzed and otherwise crippled children. No specific remedy for it is known; the treatment is symptomatic only, and partial recovery from its disabilities is painfully slow.

Pellagra, long known in different parts of Europe, and which has afflicted sections of Italy for 300 years or more, has been one of the big mysteries of the medical profession. For more than a decade it has prevailed in the South to a greater or less extent, the patients in a single year running as high as 50,000 and filling hospitals to a severe degree with pellagra present in a pathetic picture. Not only do they develop loathsome skin lesions, but their nervous systems are shattered and in many cases insanity develops.

When Dr. Joseph L. Goldberger of the United States public health service took charge of the federal government's investigation into the cause of pellagra a few years ago, after a few months' work he arrived at the conclusion that the disease resulted solely from dietetic errors. Those who studied his experiments and their results for the most part agreed with him; but it is not too much to say that vast numbers of the world's population the disease is still a mystery.

On the basis of Dr. Goldberger's conclusions, the remedy, of course, is a properly balanced diet. Still, however, cases of pellagra are found in the South year after year, just as sporadic cases of infantile paralysis are continually occurring since the historic epidemic of 1916.

The most recent visitant to this country in the way of mysterious disease is encephalitis lethargica, to which the name "sleeping sickness" has erroneously been given, for it is a distinct malady from the true sleeping sickness of Africa, of which the cause is known as well as well defined methods of dealing with it.

Ration Devised for Dairy Calf

Substitute Suggested Where Whole Milk Is Profitably Disposed Of.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In dairy herds whose entire output is sold as whole milk at high prices, there is need for a means of raising the calves on other feeds. A number of substitute rations have been worked out at various experiment stations which have proved fairly satisfactory. On the experimental farm of the United States Department of Agriculture, at Beltsville, Md., a mixture has been devised as the result of experience, which is suggested for use in raising calves where the whole milk is more profitably disposed of through other sources.

Department's Ration. The department's recommended ration is as follows: Take 50 parts finely ground corn, 15 parts linseed oil meal, 15 parts finely ground rolled oats, 10 parts dried blood flour, 10 parts skim milk powder, one-half part salt. Stir up with warm water at the rate of 1 pound of the meal mixture to about 6 pounds of water. In essence gradually as the whole milk is decreased, until at the time the calf is fifty days old it should be getting only the gruel. At this time 1 1/2 to 2 pounds of the meal mixed with water will constitute a day's feed. The total quantity of milk used is about 300 pounds; if less is fed the calves are likely to be unthrifty.

The time at which calves can be put on milk substitutes alone, say department dairymen, depends upon the same factors as in the use of separated milk, namely, the breed, development, and vigor of the calves, etc. It is hardly safe, as a rule, even with the most vigorous ones, to attempt to put them on milk substitutes alone within one month after birth; and with calves below normal in vigor some milk for two months or more may be necessary to raise them.

Feeding Schedule. The department suggests, as a guide for feeding the above substitute to large, vigorous calves, the following schedule: First 10 days, 10 pounds of whole milk daily; second 10 days, 8 pounds of milk and 0.4 pound of meal (colked up in 2 times its weight of warm water); third 10 days, 6 pounds milk and 0.8 pound meal; fourth 10 days, 4 pounds milk and 1.2 pounds meal; fifth 10 days, 2 pounds milk and 1.6 pounds meal; after 50 days, 2 pounds meal and no milk. Smaller and less vigorous calves should be fed somewhat less, and the milk feeding should be continued a little longer. In any event, a total of 300 pounds of milk should be sufficient. Grain and roughage should be fed with milk substitutes the same as with separated milk.

Whole milk is the best food for a calf; skim milk ranks second. Calves fed the substitute as started above have been subject to no more digestive troubles than the skim milk fed calves and the gains in weight have not been materially less.

Clover or Alfalfa for Boars Is Satisfactory

Herd boars are more often overfed than underfed, say Iowa swine experts. When an animal enters the breeding season overfat, the results are seldom satisfactory.

For the young boar, provide a ration high in protein and mineral matter, so he may develop a large frame. Clover or alfalfa in a rack makes a satisfactory winter feed and will keep the animal in good condition.

A ration consisting of 40 pounds of ground oats, 40 pounds of corn, 15 pounds of wheat middlings and 5 pounds of tankage is good. Make a slop of the ground feed by mixing it with warm water. A boar should drink ten pounds of water for each 100 pounds of body weight, but will not do so unless he has part of it furnished in his feed.

Plenty of exercise and sunshine pay. Boars dislike cold, stormy weather and it is usually necessary to place the feed trough at the opposite side of the pen in order to make them stir themselves.

Henhouse Ventilation Is Quite Serious Problem

Much of the sickness and loss which occurs in poultry flocks during the winter from roup and colds is due to flocks being confined in houses that are close and damp, or that permit the other extreme of being cold and drafty because they are too high and the openings are improperly placed. The ventilation of the poultry house has to be solved differently for every type of house and locality. Also poultry-house ventilation has been subject to much change in the last decade, going from extreme closed warm houses to extreme open-front houses. The tendency now is to modify the notion and the tendency is to strike a course that is rather medley.

Economical Practice in Feeding Mature Horses

It is an economical practice to feed mature idle horses largely on fodders, straw and hay during the winter, but the same practice is poor economy when applied to growing colts. Colts need a large supply of available protein and mineral matter to develop their muscles and bones. If these nutrients are not supplied at this time, when the incentive for growth is greatest, the result will be small and weak animals.

Feed Chicken Flock Warm Mash on Cold Mornings

A warm mash on cold mornings will help the chicken flock. Mix your regular mash with equal parts of chopped beets or sprouted oats. Do not feed over two ounces per bird. When this is done feed a quart and a half of straw per 100 hens at ten o'clock and all they will clean up in an hour before dark. Keep dry mash before them all the time.

Continued Spread of Alfalfa Pest in West

Damage by Weevil Cause of Apprehension.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Continued spread of the alfalfa weevil throughout the Great Basin states and the increasing damage which it is causing in some of these states, notably Idaho, have caused great apprehension, especially throughout the more newly infested regions. The insect, according to the United States Department of Agriculture, now occupies practically all the alfalfa-growing regions of Utah and Idaho, and is found in parts of Colorado, Wyoming and Nevada. It has also been discovered in eastern Oregon and more recently has been reported from Sierra county, Calif.

An efficient means of control has been evolved by the bureau of entomology of the department in the use of an arsenate of lead spray which usually gives satisfactory control when applied once during the season. In southwestern Idaho, however, it was discovered that two sprayings are necessary in order to obtain satisfactory control, because of the fact that the weevil continues laying eggs throughout a longer period than elsewhere. The one thing apparently needed in the aid of artificial control of the pest, says the department, is some more efficient means of placing the available information on control before the alfalfa growers who are most vitally concerned.

As an additional means of control, insect parasites of the alfalfa weevil will be introduced from Europe. An expert who was sent to France to complete arrangements for the introduction of these parasites has recently returned after accomplishing his mission, and shipments of parasitic material will begin to arrive in this country next spring. It is hoped by these means to supplement the good work of a parasite already introduced from France, and thus eventually to restore the balance of nature and secure natural control.

Favor Cultural Method for Eradicating Garlic

The cultural method for the eradication of wild garlic that is advocated by the Purdue University Agricultural Extension department has been used with marked success by Walter Landers, Indiana.

At a recent field meeting called by County Agent Horace Copeland, Mr. Landers explained the method to the farmers present. The meeting was held in a field heavily infested with garlic a year ago. According to Landers, he plowed the field in November, being careful to turn the tips of the garlic plants completely under in order to kill the tops. During early April he plowed again and planted the field to corn. By this means he has reduced the amount of garlic about 75 per cent.

Three years of plowing and cultivation are necessary to eradicate the garlic but the results secured by Landers are very striking. Details of the cultivation method of eradicating wild garlic can be secured by addressing the Purdue Department, Lafayette, Indiana. The work should be started about the middle of November.—Indiana Extension Dept.

Worthless Filler Adds to Cost of Plant Food

The farmer who wishes to buy plant food for his crops most economically will consider three things—filler, freight and fertilizer. This is a statement from the New York College of Agriculture at Ithaca. The soils men at the college point out that farmers who buy low-analysis fertilizers not only pay a good round price for the filler, which of course contains no plant food, but they also have to pay freight on this worthless material, thereby making it a double liability.

The use of high-grade acid phosphates, where phosphate alone is needed, the purchase of high-composition chemicals for home mixing, and the use of high-analysis mixtures when factory mixed goods are used, will go far to eliminate freight and fillers and at the same time furnish the best of fertilizers.

Orchards Benefited by Using Nitrate of Soda

Available nitrogen is soluble in water. Nitrogen is the element most needed in starting plant growth. Most of it has been washed out of the surface soil during the fall and winter rains. Soil bacteria that make nitrogen available do not become active until warm weather, writes Rachel Rae in Farm Life. Nitrate of soda furnishes nitrogen all ready for the plants to use. Applied when seeds are planted or when the plants are small, it will supply the needed nitrogen and they will grow off as readily as later if of a hardy variety. Even when the warm weather starts, it is yet best to furnish some nitrate of soda to supplement that which the bacteria are furnishing as they seldom supply all the plants can use until well along in the summer. Orchards especially are benefited by an early application of nitrate of soda.

Heavy Grazing Produces Most Beneficial Results

In some cases, according to investigations of the United States Department of Agriculture, heavier grazing produces better results than lighter grazing of pastures. At McNeill, Miss., where the department maintains an experiment station, records were kept of the gains made by native cattle grazed on pastures burned over each winter. When they were allowed 10 acres per head they made good gains until the middle of June and then barely maintained their weight until frost. When heavier grazing was practiced the same rate of gain was maintained for a longer time because the maturing of the grasses was retarded.

Ocean Currents.

Knowledge of the direction and speed of ocean currents is of great importance to navigators. Since it is very difficult to measure these directly, the United States hydrographic office accomplishes it approximately by means of what are known as "bottle papers." These are small paper slips with directions for their return to the proper authorities printed in the principal languages of civilization. They are given to vessel captains, sealed in bottles, and thrown overboard with the time and place they were put over noted on them. After months or years they come back to Washington. One drifted nearly across the Atlantic and back. Another made a drift across the widest part of the Pacific, taking more than two years. Another dropped near the Cape of Good Hope and was picked up on the west coast of Australia.

May Build Large City on Old Sagebrush Land

Seattle, Wash.—A city of 50,000 persons engaged in electro-chemical industries may rise on 6,000 acres of sagebrush beside the Columbia river, to exploit water power rivaling that of Niagara falls, if success follows plans referred by the federal water power commission in Washington, D. C., to Col. W. J. Borden, army engineer for this district. Such a city would stand at Priest Rapids, Wash., 350 miles east of Seattle. A subsidiary of the General Electric company has applied to the commission for a license to construct a dam two miles long and 90 feet high. It is proposed to develop 750,000 horse-power from the rapids, and to irrigate 100,000 acres in eastern Washington, where now only sagebrush and bunch grass grow, but capable, according to experts, of yielding unsurpassed crops under irrigation. The soil is volcanic lava, ground to powder by age-gone glaciers.

THE ROMANCE OF WORDS

"TEETOTALER"

UPON the tombstone over the grave of Richard Turner, an English temperance orator who glorified the virtues of prohibition during the early part of the last century, there appears the inscription: "Beneath this stone are deposited the remains of Richard Turner, author of the word Teetotaler as applied to abstinance from all intoxicating liquors, who departed this life on the 27th day of October, 1846, aged 56 years."

The story goes that Turner, who was troubled with a slight impediment in his speech, always spoke of "teetotal abstinence" and that his followers were derisively referred to as "teetotalers." But Rev. Joel Jewell, secretary of a temperance society formed at Hector, New York, in 1818, claims that the word was used in the United States before it was in England.

SOME CASSEROLE DISHES

CASSEOLE cookery is especially popular with the busy housewife, for she may prepare a good dish for the first course and put it into the oven and know that in a few hours piping hot appetizing food will be ready to serve.

Hungarian Goulash.

Put three tablespoonfuls of fat, fried out of salt pork, into a frying pan with a sliced peeled onion; cook until brown. Remove the onion and put in a pound and a half of lean uncooked veal cut into small pieces. Stir and cook the meat until slightly brown, then reject the fat and place the meat into a casserole. Add about a pint of boiling water or broth, a teaspoonful of salt, a few dashes of pepper. Cover and place the casserole in the oven. Brown in hot fat in the frying pan a dozen balls cut from potatoes with a French cutter and a dozen small onions of the same size. As soon as the onions are well browned, add them to the casserole and when the meat has cooked an hour, add a teaspoonful of salt to the potato balls, two tablespoonfuls of flour mixed with cold water. Let cook about two hours. Serve from the casserole.

Casserole of Rice and Chicken.

Wash and boil one cupful of rice, drain in a colander. The rice should be tender but whole. Put a part of the rice in the bottom and around the sides of the casserole. Take one pint of cold cooked chicken and run it through the meat grinder. Mix it with three well-beaten eggs, three tablespoonfuls of bread crumbs, two tablespoonfuls each of chopped parsley and onion, a sprig of thyme with salt and pepper to taste. Mix thoroughly, add sufficient gravy or cream to make it quite moist. Mold the loaf to fit into the center of the casserole. Spread over the top the remainder of the rice, cover closely, and place in a moderate oven for an hour. Serve from the casserole with tomato sauce.

Veal Hearts.

Veal hearts properly cooked have a flavor much like venison. Fry four slices of bacon to a crisp, remove from the pan and add a small sliced onion; fry until brown. Trim four veal hearts, slice them, roll them in highly seasoned flour and fry in hot fat. Place the hearts in a hot casserole. Add to the fat in the pan one cupful of stock or water, a minced plume, a teaspoonful of salt and one-half a bay leaf. Pour the mixture over the hearts and cook two hours. Just before serving add the slices of bacon.

Newago, Mich.—"Some years ago I was troubled with dizziness, palpitation, loss of appetite and sore and painful stomach. I tried the best physicians I could hear of, and also several put-up medicines, but nothing did me any good. Some physicians said it was my heart; some said it was my stomach; while others said it was my nerves. I got so bad I could not work very steadily, when a friend came to see me and insisted upon my trying Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I was discouraged, but tried it anyway, and after taking the second bottle I felt much better. I then bought six bottles and I believe the 'Discovery' saved my life. It was rightfully named 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I would recommend it to all who need such a medicine.—Chas. E. Backus.

Get rid of constipation by internal cleanliness

There is no reason why you should suffer from constipation. Headaches, biliousness, sleepless nights, heaviness, are nature's warning that intestinal poisons are flooding your system. If allowed to continue, you may become a victim of serious organic disease.

In constipation, say intestinal specialists, lies the primary cause of more than three-quarters of all illness including the gravest diseases of life.

Laxatives Aggravate Constipation
Laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, says a noted authority, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition and often lead to permanent injury.

Why Physicians Favor Lubrication
Medical science, through knowledge of the intestinal tract gained by X-ray observation, has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage out of the body. Thus Nujol brings internal cleanliness. Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water it is harmless.

Get rid of constipation and avoid disease by adopting the habit of internal cleanliness. Take Nujol as regularly as you brush your teeth or wash your face. For sale by all druggists.

Take your choice and suit your taste. S.B.—or Menthol flavor. A sure relief for coughs, colds and hoarseness. Put one in your mouth at bedtime. Always keep a box on hand.

They build their lives without a God, Perhaps forget, may even doubt Him, When blue the sky, when green the sea.

Get very well along without Him. And then the path dips down the vale, The way of life has left the ridges, And then they falter, then they fail— They build their road, all but the bridges.

"Modern" Women of Rangoon. Women of the Orient have reached their greatest emancipation in Rangoon, the capital city of Lower Burma. In some respects she has outdone her Western sisters, for her street clothes are virtually those of the man, and she wears his hair long and carries a sunshade, as she does. She puffs her "wajackin' white cheroot" as publicity and as nonchalantly as he. Often she transfers the lighted cigar to the mouth of the child in her arms.

What the Railroads Accomplished in 1923 Under the Transportation Act

THEY carried the largest traffic in history without transportation difficulties and with virtually no car shortage.

THEY placed in service nearly 200,000 new freight cars and nearly 4,000 new locomotives.

THEY expended for equipment and other facilities, $1,076,000,000, and paid as taxes over $300,000,000.

THEY expended for fuel, materials and supplies used in current operation and maintenance almost $1,800,000,000, and paid their employes average annual wages equal to almost double the amount of the average annual wages paid in 1915.

THEY returned to the people by way of wages, purchase of supplies and materials, taxes, interest and rentals 95 per cent (estimated) of the gross income received from transportation.

THEIR efficiency helped all business and all credit by making turn-overs more rapid.

THE Transportation Act provides that the railroads may earn a 5 3/4% return. None of the different groups did so in 1923, the average for all Class 1 roads being 5.11%, while the North Western Region group earned less than 4%.

"A COMMON COLD DESERVES YOUR PROMPT ATTENTION"

TAKE FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE

"A common cold deserves your immediate and serious attention"—so writes a well-known physician, in pointing out the danger of neglecting a cold.

"Early treatment of a cold will spare you days of suffering and danger," he says. "Doctors will tell you that colds are very likely to develop into serious and even fatal diseases if they are neglected. Many doctors prescribe Father John's Medicine because they know it has had over 18 years of success for colds and coughs. It builds new strength to throw off the cold and prevents its development into more serious troubles."
