WELCOME BUDDIES

LEGION ALL SET FOR BIG PICNIC TOMORROW

All is now in readiness for the Big Legion Day Picnic, to be held under the auspices of the Kewaskum Post No. 384 of the American Legion. From reports received by the local post, and the Second District Legion being held here tomorrow's event will prove to be the largest that has ever been held in the village of Kewaskum. Preparations have been made to accommodate from 8,000 to 10,000 people. Every post registered is coming strong with band or fife and drum corps to win one of the cash prizes given away. Kewaskum this week has been one of the busiest places in this section of the state. The festivities will begin tonight (Saturday) when a band concert and contests for children will be held on Main street from seven until ten o'clock. Tomorrow (Sunday) at 11 o'clock, a meeting of the delegates of the 40 posts comprising the second district will be held at the M. W. A. Hall, at which time arrangements will be made to attend the state convention, which will be held at Chipewah Falls on August 14 and 15. At 9:00 o'clock posts will begin to arrive from which time on there will be plenty of excitement, until the big parade at one o'clock when the picnic commences. The parade will be formed on Midland avenue in the new installation, and will proceed north on Center street to Elm street, east on Elm to Fond du Lac avenue, down the avenue to Main and east on Main to the park, where the festivities will be celebrated in a most elaborate manner.

All concession stands, merry-go-round, and other stands for amusement are now in their places. An admission of 25 cents will be charged to the park. Children under fifteen years of age free. This admission is charged for seasons given in last week's issue of the Statesman. Dancing after an evening. Admission 75 cents, which holds good for both afternoon and evening in case of accident.

The village of Kewaskum is now in gala attire. All the principal streets have been decorated with the National colors. The new uniform flag decorating system will be put in place. All business houses and dwelling houses are decorated in honor of the great event.

Reduced fares on the Chicago & Northwestern line from Milwaukee $2.25 for round trip.

The Kewaskum Post has extended an invitation to the Washington County Chapter, American Red Cross, to be represented at the Second District American Legion Picnic. This invitation has been accepted and officers of the chapter and branches in the county will be present to distribute Adjusted Compensation Checks and to give information. The Red Cross has also made arrangements to have a nurse present to give first aid in case of accidents.

Due to the fact that a large number of our citizens together with farmers, went west to see temporary exhibitions on Thursday and Friday, all highways leading to Kewaskum are again open to traffic.

The program as arranged by the executive committee is as follows: Saturday Evening, 7 p. m. Tests for children below 16 years of age. Band concert on Main street from 7 to 10 p. m.

Sunday: 11 a. m. 2nd District Convention M. W. A. Hall. 1 p. m. Grand Street Parade as follows:

1. Spirit of 1776.
2. Civil War Veterans.
3. President of Village and State Officials of American Legion.
4. Legion Color Guard.
5. Spirit of 1918.
6. American Legion Posts.
7. p. m. Entertainment at South Side Park.

7 p. m. Address by State Commander and other Legion Officials. 8 p. m. Flag of War Veterans. Dancing after an evening.

As a last word the Kewaskum Post goes to the citizens of the village with a welcome home to one and all. Come and have the time of your lives.

PLYMOUTH PRIZES
The Ladies' Zirkgraf Post of Plymouth is going to make a strong bid to win some of the cash prizes given away. The post is all set to come with a large number of buddies in uniform. The Plymouth Reporter of last week's issue gives the following account of the preparations made by the Plymouth Post:

"According to indications seen at the last meeting of the Ladies' Zirkgraf Post of the American Legion of this city held in Banquet Hall on Tuesday night, a large number of members of the Post will attend the Legion picnic to be held at Kewaskum on Sunday, August 10th, and it is quite possible that the Plymouth Post will win one of the prizes offered for large attendance of Legionaries in uniform. A considerable number have of recent cars in which the attending members can travel to the picnic. All who expect to go should be at Legion Club Rooms at 10:00 o'clock on the morning of the 10th. Rudolph Donath and Adjutant N. F. Hoyt were appointed color guards for the picnic and Clarence Brockman and George Hand were appointed color bearers. Adjutant Hoyt read a letter from State Commander Vilas Whaley, saying that a report on the membership campaign in the Second District would be made at the picnic."

Kewaskum Experiences Cloudburst and Flood Which Does Thousands of Dollars Worth of Damage to Bridges and Crops

For the first time in its history has Kewaskum been the center of a cloudburst, which proved over this section Sunday night, doing damage amounting to thousands of dollars to homes, grain, stock, highways, bridges, telephones and telegraph companies. The rain commenced to fall early Sunday morning, and continued to do so for several hours when the sky cleared up until five o'clock in the afternoon, when it again commenced to rain, and by eight o'clock the rain fell in torrents, this was kept up all night accompanied by a heavy electrical storm. At about four o'clock Monday morning, a large lake. Practically all basements were over flowing with water, and in some places the water was standing several inches deep on the first floor.

The water in the Milwaukee river rose from eight to ten feet, overflowing its banks, and flooded acres of land, placing buildings close by in grave danger of being swept away by the terrific torrens. The minnow creek at the south end of the village lim rose to over five times its normal size not only overflowing its banks but also covering highway 55, so that only the top part of the railing of the concrete bridge near the Roman Backhaus farm home, could be seen. The torrens was so strong that trees, shrubs, cornfields, chicken coops, etc. of buildings were torn away. When the high pressure of water commenced to eat away the high banks of the Northwestern railway the large stone bridge gave way, causing a complete wash out of the tracks for a distance of over a hundred feet. The same was also true with the minnow creek at the north end of the village limits, here the water flowed over highway 55 to a depth that only the top part of the railing showed on the concrete bridge at Schrauth's pond washed out, and the water in the river rose two feet more causing the large new concrete bridge near the John Fellens farm home about a mile and a half north of the village on highway 55 to wash out, and traffic on the old iron bridge was then resumed, but this only lasted for a few hours when that bridge gave way, and traffic on highway 55 north of Kewaskum was at a standstill.

The northbound express train No. 125, consisting of three coaches, three baggage cars and two milk cars, due here at about 5:20 a. m., was derailed just north of the overhead bridge at the north end of the city limits. The engine and tender plunged down a fifteen foot embankment, into a deep hollow, half full of water. Two milk cars were the only part of the train that left the track with the engine and tender. About six rods of rails were torn up and twisted in all angles imaginable. The cause of the wreck being due to the ground having been washed out on the tracks to a depth of about a foot.

The train was in charge of Conductor J. W. Harrison of Milwaukee. Louis Guel of Fond du Lac was engineer and Con. O. Morgan of Milwaukee fireman. In an interview with Mr. Morgan by one of the Statesman reporters, had the following to say: "Nobody knows how it actually happened, but I think it was a very lucky escape. We were certainly congratulate ourselves that we are still here to tell the story. Though we traveled at a very low rate of speed at the time of the accident, after the engine left the track, there was no time left to think of our plight before we had already landed in the ditch below. When we crawled out of the cab, we stepped into water over our hips. We then crawled back into the cab to get out the fire in the fire box, and realizing the danger that the engine might tip completely over on its side, we let well enough alone and climbed out to safety. We then walked back to the coaches to the rest of the train crew some of whom had walked down the track towards the village, to notify headquarters of what had happened. But when they arrived at the 19th they found that same had been washed away. They then walked to nearby farm homes to give the alarm. The only thing that we believe which saved us, is the fact that the track was covered with ground, the engineer seeing the danger, and the breaks as tight as he dared to, and we were moving along slowly, and while the engine and tender plunged into the ditch the rest of the train was held back by the ground washed out on the tracks, thus preventing the cars piling up in a heap."

Emerson Olvin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Olvin of this village, was one of the firemen on the train. He was in the rear coach at the time of the accident. Emerson said: "I was in the rear coach, and I believe that the bridge had already commenced to wash away before the engine and tender had passed over it, as it seemed as though we were traveling up a steep hill. No matter which way one looks at the situation, we were lucky; 'Oh Boy' were we ever lucky, to come out of it without loss of life or injury." The only one who suffered injury was fireman Morgan, who received a slight burn just above the wrist of his right arm.

All traffic on the Northwestern line was suspended through Kewaskum on Thursday morning, when train service was again resumed from the south. The first mail reaching this village was on Wednesday noon, when it was transferred from the north.

On Tuesday morning a large crew was washing away the siding at certain places.

FLASHES FROM THE STORM DRIVEN AREA

Roman Backhaus, a farmer residing just south of the village limits suffered the loss of a number of pigs and chickens which were drowned when the flood swept down upon his farm buildings, and completely surrounded them.

Julius Dreher, and Herbert Backhaus, who reside close to the minnow creek, suffered a heavy loss in personal property by the flood.

Clemens Reinders, undertaker and furniture dealer, without doubt, suffered the heaviest loss in the village, the water had overruled the basement of his dwelling and was standing over a foot deep on the first floor of his home, spoiling rugs and furniture.

Marooned tourists cursing the weather were common sights Monday morning.

People from neighboring villages drove in to see the train wreck and the washouts. The stream of cars up and down Highway 55 on Monday morning was no indication that we were marooned. As it was said, "people were going but had no place to go." Illinois tourists carried the majority by unofficial count.

The South Side Park was flooded under three feet of water. Tuesday the Legion boys pumped the water out of the park with the fire engine.

On Thursday morning a large number of local citizens together with farmers were busily engaged building temporary bridges. All bridges now are now being replaced and traffic on all highways leading to the village has again been resumed.

The principal deluge was followed by a fairly heavy shower and thunder storm Tuesday afternoon and a slow drizzle Wednesday morning. During the storm Tuesday afternoon lightning struck in an arc light on West Water street and completely demolished it. A mild bolt struck the Ev. St. Lucas church. No damage was done to the church building. Mrs. Kruse, attending the funeral of Mrs. William J. Schultz, was standing in the vestibule of the church and received a slight shock from the bolt which entered the church along the electric wiring.

Reports from Waukega and surrounding territory seem to indicate that the storm was equally as disastrous as in this community. It is said that people living along the shores of the Milwaukee river in Waukega were seeing their houses in ruins on Monday evening. The streets in certain sections of Fond du Lac were turned into a Venice. Raft boats were the only means of transportation for some time.

The water level had lowered slightly by Monday evening but during the night the Campbellport dam gave way and a slight raise was reported Tuesday morning. A section of the dam at Barton also broke. Serious washouts along the West Park road out of West Bend cut off all traffic on Highway 68 to the west.

The Main street bridge was closed to traffic Monday afternoon and Tuesday. It was feared that the heavy traffic would jar it loose from the abutments. Pedestrians were allowed to cross, however. Many curious sights could be seen while standing on the bridge watching the seemingly eternal flow of water. One of the most interesting being a chicken coop mysteriously riding a wave with a lone hen as the only pilot. At another time an old stump was seen floating down stream, and as it passed the bridge a woodchuck popped his head out of the hollow, just seeing the water immediately submerged in his "stateroom". Perhaps in these political times, some politician lost his campaign stump.

Repeated floods from dams breaking to the north raised the water at intervals and made the 41 year old structure strain to the utmost to withstand the floods caused by the breaking of the dam at Schrauth's pond, later when the Campbellport dam gave way another raise of a foot was to be contended with. While all the other bridges on the Milwaukee river in this territory were being taxed as hard, some of the newer structures gave way and others remained.

When the old county line bridge near the J. P. Benz farm washed out Monday afternoon a small dog chanced to be on it as it tore loose from the foundations. Some of the buddies among the tourists had been so deep and long, when beheld the little fellow had managed to get out of the tangle of marks and girders and safely made shore.

The wrecked train carried mail consigned to Menominee, Michigan, Green Bay and Appleton. Several guards were conscripted in the village to enforce the regular guard during the delay.

The new swamp road on Highway 55 was under from one foot to a foot and a half of water for over forty-eight hours. It is remarkable that no more damage was done to it other than washing away the siding at certain places.

Finds Inspiration in Cabin in the Woods

Back from the river two miles, in a swamp intervenered by brush and fallen trees, John Burroughs bought two or three acres of land. Here he spent many enjoyable days clearing and draining the swamp in order to get use of the rich corn, celery and potato soil.

At one end of the swamp on a massive rock, Burroughs built with his own hands a cabin, the sides being of slabs of different species of wood that grew about the swamp, with a big stone fireplace in one end that Burroughs ranked as a great piece of masonry.

He would stay at Slabside for weeks at a time, but each day visited his vineyards to get his mail from the post office. He would walk leisurely along, observing the wild creatures and flowers that bloomed by the side of the woodland road.

Peaks in the East Have Famous Names

Up in the White mountains of New Hampshire rises what is known as the Presidential range. There stands Mount Washington, whose bleak summit is higher than almost any other mountain east of the Rockies.

There is another Presidential range more complete than this hidden away among the covers of the New York telephone directory.

Crop Rotation Is Quite Important

Wise Plan Not to Use Plants of Same Botanical Order in Same Positions.

Pay especial attention to companion and follow crops. A companion crop is one that grows simultaneously with another. A follow crop is, as its name indicates, something to follow and use the same soil after the first crop is harvested.

Example of Companion Crop. Early cabbage plants set at intervals of 18 inches among rows of early radishes or young onions to keep growing when the radishes and onions have been pulled give another example of the companion crop.

Rotation of crops is important. It is wise not to plant plants of the same botanical order in the same positions year in and year out.

Rotations of crops is important. It is wise not to plant plants of the same botanical order in the same positions year in and year out. Beans and peas should move across the garden and back from year to year.

Avoid Cutting Corn for Silage When Immature

One of the few cases where a man had better be too late than too early is in the time of filling the silo. By all means avoid cutting silage corn too early.

Legumes produce class of feed high in protein. There is a greater choice among legume crops than there was a few years ago, when clover held so prominent a place.

Pasture Sow and Litter. The sow and litter should be on good rape pasture and, immediately after weaning, the sow's ration should be increased so that she will gain at least one pound per day until breeding.

FARM NOTES

Remember to make successive plantings of snap beans and corn. Late blight of potatoes may be tardy in reaching, but it is quick in finishing the crop.

The United States uses 640,000,000 pounds of wool a year. The per capita consumption is about six pounds.

At this time of the year the poultryman begins to realize the value of producing fertile eggs. It's time to think of culling the flock, too.

There is no doubt but that much of the abortion in live stock which occurs on the higher mesas is due to a deficient diet.

The new need is not so much to make two blades grow where one grew before as it is to make one blade twice as good as half what it cost before.

Spraying milk cows thoroughly before each milking pays well. Using a large orchard sprayer is a quick and easy job over using the hand sprayer.

Sudan hay is equal in feeding value to timothy hay. When it is threshed for seed the straw is equal in feeding value to oat straw.

Lamb raisers need not expect the best returns from their lambs unless they are docked and castrated. In many cases, wether lambs have returned as much as $2 a hundred pounds more than ram lambs.

Cattle Ranching Is Becoming Intensive

Methods Changed Considerably in Past Few Years.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Cattle ranching methods in the United States have changed much within the last few years, with the passing of land and private ownership and the fencing of ranges. It will become very intensive, says the United States Department of Agriculture, as capital accumulates, prices of beef rise, and the importance of producing enough range and providing sufficient range to keep the cattle through the winter becomes more pressing.

Ranches, says the department, must be big enough to carry from 100 to 300 head of cattle. This means that in many cases a ranchman must have permits to run a good share of his live stock on forest ranges. It is predicted that large ranches will be divided, and that on the other hand, small ranches will be consolidated into units of sufficient size for economical operation.

Ranchmen are now mainly concerned with improvement of the carrying capacity of forest ranges. It is to their interest, says the department, that the ranges, instead of being exploited, should be made more productive.

Bordeaux Adds Greatly to Yield of Potatoes

All farmers specializing in potatoes are advised by G. R. Bishy, until recently of the Minnesota College of Agriculture, and A. O. Tolans, in charge of potato section in Minnesota, to use bordeaux mixture for spraying purposes.

Prevents late blight of potatoes. Reduces losses from other leaf diseases, and repels certain insects. Tends to produce more vigorous tubers, as shown by their performance in various parts of the state.

Increases yields under farm conditions in various parts of the state. Messrs. Bishy and Tolans have collaborated in preparing Bulletin 102 of the agricultural experiment station of the state university.

Economical to Use Best Kind of Oil on Tractor

Rapid deterioration, lack of power, overheating, consuming more fuel and rapid carbonizing of the cylinder, are some of the inevitable results when a cheap grade of tractor oil is used.

The cost of lubricating oil is a very small part of the total cost of operating a tractor, including repairs, interest on investment and depreciation. The difference in cost between cheap oil and the best oil is, in most cases, not more than 2 or 3 per cent of the total cost.

Duffie finds that the recommendations of the manufacturers had best be followed as to just what oils are suited to their machines. Reliable manufacturers are highly interested in the life and satisfaction of their machines and go to considerable expense to determine the best oils to use.

Pasture Sow and Litter

The sow and litter should be on good rape pasture and, immediately after weaning, the sow's ration should be increased so that she will gain at least one pound per day until breeding.

Legumes Produce Class of Feed High in Protein

There is a greater choice among legume crops than there was a few years ago, when clover held so prominent a place. Now there are several crops suitable for fodder and at the same time valuable for restoring nitrogen by plowing under.

Uses for Sweet Corn

Sweet corn will be all right cracked for chickens, and it is also all right for cows if the quality is good. The kernels are usually harder and tougher than ordinary corn and for that reason it is best to crack or grind them when feeding.

Lamb raisers need not expect the best returns from their lambs unless they are docked and castrated. In many cases, wether lambs have returned as much as $2 a hundred pounds more than ram lambs.

Operation for Lambs. Lamb raisers need not expect the best returns from their lambs unless they are docked and castrated.

SOUND VALUE

Sound products evolve from sound principles. Dodge Brothers Motor Car is the product of an institution whose principles have always been conceded to be pre-eminently sound. Sound manufacturing methods that place infinitely more importance on quality than quantity. Sound financial standing, which permits uninterrupted development and adherence to the policy of constant improvement. A sound method of selecting dealers, from which an organization has grown that enjoys the complete confidence of the public. A sound sales and service policy, through which buyers are assured full value for their investment. These basic principles being sound, it follows as an obvious consequence that Dodge Brothers Motor Car represents sound value.
