COUNTY SCORES WITH APPLES

Washington county can be proud of the excellent showing of apples at the 1924 Washington County Fair held at West Bend from October 7 to 19. This year's exhibit is especially noteworthy and the largest display of home-grown fruit ever shown at the Washington County Fair. Over 340 plates of fruit, besides the 15 trays of sprigged apples, served to the old farm products building one of the most interesting exhibits on the fair grounds. Probably nowhere else could one hear more exclamations of joy, pleasure and admiration. It was an impressive lesson never to be forgotten. Also a demonstration that it can be done in Washington County. No one left this hall without feeling that it pays to spray and care for the home orchard even if the orchard happens to be an old neglected, possibly the most neglected spot on the farm. The fruit shown was fully the equal of some of the best fruit grown in the country, possibly not fully so in size but certainly in quality and in appearance.

A large quantity of the milk was spilled. From reports received it appears that a Chevrolet truck driven by Nick Krull of Newburg, tried to pass the Wondra truck and by so doing the latter entered the scene at the point, forcing Wondra to drive into the ditch to avoid a collision. Both trucks were on their way to the A. and P. condensery at West Bend.

SUFFERS HEAVY LOSS BY FIRE

Fire of unknown origin completely destroyed the barn on the Henry Garzes, located in the town of Ashford, at about one o'clock last week Friday afternoon. The loss is estimated at $6,000. The building and contents were insured for $4,000 in the Ashford Mutual Fire Insurance company. Mr. Garzes hitched up a team of horses in the barn just before the fire started. He drove to the farm home of G. C. Backhaus, his father-in-law, to help dig potatoes. He had proceeded down the road about a mile when neighbors saw smoke coming from the barn. Mr. Garzes was notified, who was unable to save any of the contents of the building, which was filled with hay and machinery. Luckily the wind blew the sparks away from the house, otherwise that too would unquestionably have been destroyed. The Garzes farm is located at Third's corners.

CHRIST TISCHHAUSER WRITES

This office is in receipt of a letter from Christ Tischhauser from Mandak, South Dakota, in which he writes the Statesman as a weekly letter and the 50th anniversary of the L. Rosenheimer interests in Kewaskum. The letter reads as follows: "Mason, S. D., Oct. 20, 1924. Dear Editors of Statesman, and friends: I just have to write as my heart is too full to keep silent. Being an old stander, ever since the valuable paper started (was the first correspondent of the Elmora news) and my love for the Statesman which prints full details of news from the north all news and dear old friends, I so much appreciate to see about today (Friday) Oct. 20th, when my welcome visitor came with the news item of my dear old time friends, Moritz and Adolph Rosenheimer, made my thoughts wander back when I, as a 15-year-old boy, and to take my brother Andrew's place in the fall of 1887, the year he died, and drive eighteen miles to our market at Sheboygan. I can see old "Daddy Rosenheimer" yet, like a little general giving his orders to his little army of employees. All business, why shouldn't Moritz and Adolph be the same, as they are chise from the old block, I hope and am well satisfied that their boys will be the same now and in the future. The publishers surely could not publish anything better last week than just what they did. As I am sure letters will be received by the Statesman from all over the United States, with best and kindest wishes to the Rosenheimer brothers, Moritz and Adolph. And may a hearty hand shake they will get with best wishes on their fiftieth jubilee. I wish I could be there, as a number of years, wishing them and their families good luck and good health. As these lines leave me late and heavy, I passed my 73rd mile stone in September. With kindest greetings to all of my dear friends and relatives, I remain your loving friend, Christ Tischhauser.

MAKE CLEAN SWEEP

Present Bros. Washington County's reliable horse men again made a clean sweep in prizes on their car load of Louisiana horses which they showed at the Washington County Fair, Oct. 7 to 19. The judge awarded them every first and 2nd prizes in all classes that they showed with the exception of one second prize won by a prominent farmer. Their horses were praised by all who saw them, and deserved to be present at the Washington County Fair. A six horse team driven by Ben Present and a team of seven horses driven by Dave Present for the benefit of the grand stand people were the best ever seen. They also received much praise from the horse judge, who claimed he judged horses at eight county fairs this fall, and that Present Bros. displayed the best team of horses he saw at any fair this fall. This surely is a credit to our county to have such horse dealers as Present Bros. of West Bend.

WESTERN COMEDY DRAMA

A story of the West, unique, amusing, romantic, dramatic and at times highly humorous. Such is "The Huntress", a First National picture which will be played at the Opera House on Sunday evening. "The Huntress", which was directed by Lynn Raynolds, is a comedy-drama of the Northwest and offers an ideal starting vehicle for Calleen Moore, the newest First National star, who plays the titular role, that of a tough, vivacious and mischievous white girl who has been reared among Indians. The story centers around this Peggy and the heart of the woods, who goes to marry a white man, Linnage a handsome, bashful young man from a city who has come into that country prospecting. It is a delightful romantic comedy, with the girl's love for the boy, the heaven of patios. Its action is swift and its plot unique. Lloyd Hughes plays the leading male role and Russell Simpson and Walter Lane will be seen in the principal heavy parts. The entire series of "The Huntress" were taken in the most picturesque sections of the California and Nevada high Sierras, among the mountains and lakes of the Mann Lake district. This is the territory where Mark Twain had the scenes of "Roughing It", his famous story of the gold-rush days. Without doubt the location is one of the most scenically beautiful of the whole Sierra range, and until chosen for the locale of "The Huntress" still to have remained undiscovered by the motion picture makers.

KEWASKUM TO HAVE BASKET BALL TEAM

Kewaskum will be coming winter in line for the indoor sport of basket ball. Arrangements are now well underway for the organization of a strong team, consisting of all the old time players. The team will be under the name of "Spauld Miller and His Gang of Artists". Practice work will be started as soon as possible. The following will be the lineup: Maurice Rosenheimer, Walter and Carl Schaefer, C. Schurr, Eldon Rasmussen, Alvin Rasmussen and "Spauld Miller". Carl Schaefer was elected secretary and treasurer and "Spauld" Miller captain and manager. That Kewaskum will be represented by one of the strongest teams in its history now looks very favorable, as all of the players are old time players who have met and played against some of the best basket ball players in the state. Games are now being scheduled for the season, and the opening game will be played here with the creek Legion team of Sheboygan, date will be published later. All news about the basketball team will be given in the Statesman.

GERMAN DEACONESS TO SPEAK IN EV. PEACE CHURCH

Let all members and friends of the Evangelical Peace church take notice that there will be no regular services in said church next Sunday morning, Oct. 27, instead there will be services at 2:30 p. m. Deaconess Marie Anna Waasleben of Muenster in the Ruhr Province will speak of the distressing conditions still prevailing and of the atrocious acts committed in said church next Sunday morning. The course will be in German. Members and friends let us all turn up and hear her. Come and hear the truth. From the associated press you hear little or nothing and what you hear is not the whole story. An offering will be taken at the close of the services for the benefit of those now suffering people. There will be Sunday school next Sunday at the regular hour 9 a. m. I have instructed every scholar to bring either a spoon of thread or a bar of soap, articles mostly needed. God bless a cheerful day.

MEETS WITH FATAL ACCIDENT

John Petersik, Sr., a well known and prominent farmer, residing about four and one-half miles west of Kewaskum on Trunk Highway 28, met with an accident on Wednesday morning, October 22, 1924 at about 11:30 o'clock which resulted in death. Mr. Petersik, who would have been 77 years of age on Thursday, was at work raking hay in a field a short distance west of his home. According to neighbors, close by who saw Mr. Petersik at work, state that he had steered his team of horses to adjust something on the neckyoke, they then paid no more attention as to what was going on until a few minutes later when they saw the horses running loose about the field. Suspecting that something was wrong, they immediately went to the home of Mr. Petersik to notify the family, who together with the neighbors went into the field to investigate. Finding the horses in one part of the field, the hay rake which was turned upside down in another part, but nothing could be seen of Mr. Petersik until after a thorough search had been made the mangled body of the unfortunate man was found lying in a corner of the field a short distance from the rake. Medical aid was immediately summoned. Upon the arrival of a physician it was learned that Mr. Petersik had sustained a broken left leg and left arm, his chest was crushed and his severe bruises and cuts about the head and body. He was dead when found. According to an investigation made it appears that the unfortunate man after he had adjusted the neckyoke, climbed onto the rake, and in so doing stepped onto the pole which broke and fell to the ground causing the horses to become frightened and run away dragging the wrecked rake and Mr. Petersik around the field, until the rake finally upset and the horses tore loose from same drawing Mr. Petersik with them for about forty rods, when the helpless body became loosened from the entanglement and was thrown to one side.

RADIO

(Edited by G. Douglas Wardrop, Editor of Radio Merchandise.)

This Diagram Illustrates How the Double Pole, Double Throw Switch Is Employed. Wave Lengths Depend Upon Position of Switching Device.

By FRANCIS H. ARMSTRONG
One of the problems troubling many radio fans at the present time is the adjustment of their sets to cover the higher wave lengths, especially of 402 and 525 meters. One method that may be applied to most receivers in present day use, and particularly those of the two variometer and variocoupler type, is by the addition of instruments called condensers. Where such loading of capacity is resorted to great care must be exercised in securing regeneration over the wave length bands desired.

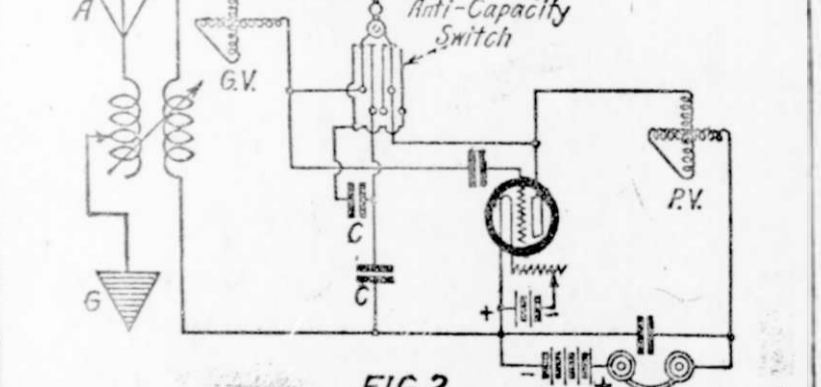

In some cases where a loop aerial is employed in conjunction with a radio frequency set more turns of wire on the loop may have to be added in order to secure sufficient added inductance in this part of the circuit to reach the wave desired. The reason for this is that the loop acts in this case as a tuning inductance. Should the loop aerial be deficient in its inductance value, then there is no resonant point to work on for the higher wave lengths. Better service may be had if the original loop is supplied with a sufficient number of turns on its frame, which are then varied by means of a suitable tapping or a switching arrangement.

Leading Three-Circuit Tuner.
Under this type of regenerative circuit the well-known two variometer and variocoupler circuit. This type of apparatus has become the prime receiver of many a radio fan, since it contains the elements which give a set selectivity, but since some new stations were injected into the ether it seems that most of the variometer sets fall short of bringing in concerts on the longer waves. With this set an arrangement can be made to secure sharper waves with their maximum signal strength as efficiently as when using the longer wave length bands.

This arrangement consists of employing a double pole, double throw switch, or by the use of an anti-capacity switch. The first arrangement would be the better of the two for the beginner or novice, since it appears to be much simpler. In the accompanying diagram (Figure 1) one may get an idea how the double pole, double throw switching arrangement is employed. The wave lengths depend entirely upon the position of the switching device.

In Figures 1 and 2 the condensers are represented by C. These condensers may be made at home or they can be purchased at any radio shop with the option of the builder. If purchased the fixed type condenser is to be preferred. In shopping around the fan will run into various types of fixed condensers, many of them consisting of paper and tinfoil. This type of condenser should not be considered, as its capacity is not uniform.

In recent tests some of these paper condensers gave no fixed reading whatsoever; capacities varied anywhere from 400 to 1000 mfd, merely by pressing the condenser together with the fingers. Due to their loose

Cam Switch or Anti-Capacity Switch Arrangement Is Merely a Method of Accomplishing Same Result as Double-Throw Switch.

Always Remember It Is Worth Your While—

To remember to connect the rotary plates of the variable condenser to the ground in order to eliminate hand capacity effects.

To make your single circuit receiver more selective and at the same time change it into a double circuit by connecting the aerial and ground wires, winding six turns of wire in the same direction as the primary coil and to this connect the A and G binding posts. You will be thereby changing your circuit into a much better one and one that will not radiate to the extent that it previously has.

To reverse the connections of the variometer in your regenerative set and the tickler in order to improve regeneration and the quality of reception.

To solder all connections in the best manner possible. If at present they are not soldered it pays to do this. Remember, an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

To take a little more time in wiring your set and make a perfect job of it. Bear in mind that the success of your receiver depends upon such little things as this.

Drilling Holes in Panels

When drilling the holes in a panel for the shafts of instruments, do not drill the hole the same size as the shaft, but make it large enough so that the shaft will not stick or bind if it does not run exactly true, or if you have not drilled the holes that mount the instrument exactly in the right place. Leave about an eighth of an inch leeway all around. The dial will hide the larger holes, anyway.

Range on Crystal Sets

Don't expect to get a reliable range of more than 15 miles out of a crystal receiver. Under extremely favorable conditions you may get much greater distances, but this is not usual and the consistent range that you will get will be no more than the distance mentioned.

Coats Achieve Varied Styling; Winter Hats to Suit Everyone

IN COATS the mode continues to show more partiality for simplicity and even severity of line, and there is no question that the straightline outer garment is "correct." This is reassuring knowledge, but every woman morepires to own a coat that is even more than correct—she wants one that is distinctive. Designers strive by different means to achieve this desired "edge"—through the use of novel fabrics or by unusual decorative features or originality in design and management of styles.

The creator of the charming coat shown here chose unusual decoration could be said of them for there was never so much diversity in headwear as there is now. Or perhaps it seems that way since the reaction came and we turned our backs on the small cloche so universally worn.

A CHARMING COAT

to place it in the ranks of those that claim distinction. Like many winter coats it fastens to one side and is made of wool velours, with straight, standing collar of fur. Loops of broad placed in rows, in a novel arrangement, make a beautiful finish for it and one that has the additional feature of being thoroughly practical as well.

To be chic and practical at the same time, is all that any coat needs, to be popular as well. This is a consummation devoutly to be wished—the end that all designers strive for. Beautiful fabrics that wear well help solve the problem for manufacturers, and there are novel stripes and plaids, new patterns in flannel cloth, corded silks and fabric furs that need almost nothing in the way of decorations, being highly decorative in themselves. Fur bandings are liked for their color and cuffs, and occasionally bordering the neckline or front fastening. When plain materials are used the styling is varied by ingenious collars, jabots, three-tiered capes or odd front openings.

Here are five winter hats, each one beautiful and interesting, but each entirely different from all the others. If the group contained fifty hats it is likely that the same things

Canary Yellow Much in Use

For frocks, sports suits and hats, a deep canary yellow is extensively featured as one of the smartest colors for summer. Entire costumes carry out this single color scheme and it is also used in conjunction with white.

Earrings That Charm

A pair of earrings that are slightly different are of white jade. The pendants are very long and are carved to suggest baskets of flowers.

Valuable Timber Trees Destroyed

Practically All of Blight-Infected Areas of Chestnut Has Been Killed.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
That the natural replacement of blight-killed chestnut by other valuable species is assured, is the opinion of C. F. Korstian, associate silviculturist at the Appalachian forest experiment station, United States Department of Agriculture, Asheville, N. C. Mr. Korstian has just returned from an extended investigation of blight-infected areas of southern New England, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, where practically all of the valuable chestnut timber has already been killed.

The unsightly gaps in the green cover of the forest that have become so conspicuous in chestnut regions as a result of the ravages of the blight mean a great deal more to the forester than the marring of woodland scenery, according to Mr. Korstian. They represent an economic loss of forest productivity, which is especially serious on account of the alarming timber scarcity which is confronting the nation.

Of Nature-Wide Importance.

"What nature is doing to recast these gaps with young trees or by increased growth of the surrounding old timber is a matter of more than local importance," said Mr. Korstian. "In southern Connecticut all of the mature chestnut is dead and the third generation of sprouts is now dying. Here detailed studies of reproduction and growth were conducted on permanent plots, on some of which records are available as far back as 1904, the same year that the blight was first discovered in Bronx park, New York. In this study it was found that the smaller blanks left in the forest through the death of the chestnut are fortunately being filled by the extension of the crowns of adjacent trees, principally oaks. These trees have shown an increased growth nearly twice as great as for the same length of time before the death of the chestnut."

The larger openings are for the most part being filled by seedlings and sprouts of valuable species, such as the oaks, white ash, and hickory. In northern New Jersey pine also is coming in naturally in the larger openings. Of all the species replacing chestnut, the chestnut oak is one of the most abundant and widely distributed from Connecticut to North Carolina.

Salvage Losses in Connecticut.

"In Connecticut the greater part of the chestnut has been salvaged at a satisfactory profit. In many cases the salvaging of the chestnut has been accompanied by an improvement cutting applied to the remaining hardwoods. By cutting at the same time some of the oaks which are lacking in vigor and otherwise undesirable from the standpoint of growth and future development of the forest, a nucleus of vigorous seed trees is left from which to reseed the area. The utilization of this material often makes it easier for the owner to sell the chestnut. In some of the more inaccessible parts of New Jersey and Pennsylvania timberland owners are not always finding it easy to market the dead chestnut."

Horses Work Cheaper on Alfalfa Hay and Corn

Eight teams of horses, each annual weighing from 1,500 to 2,000 pounds, and ranging in age from three to fifteen years, were used in the alfalfa tests conducted at the Michigan Agricultural college this past year, under the direction of R. S. Hudson. One horse in each of these teams was fed corn and alfalfa hay, while his mate received the usual feed of corn, oats and timothy.

Keeping accurate tab on the feed and weighing the horses each two weeks furnished information of real interest to all who use horse power. The teams did field work, heavy hauling and such other work as would be required upon the average farm.

The eight horses eating corn, oats and timothy lost during the test a total of 570 pounds, while their mates, fed on corn and alfalfa, lost a total of only 20 pounds. The cost of feeding a horse per day, as compared with 37.2 cents when supplied with corn and alfalfa. Reduced to hours of work, the cost was 6 cents for the corn, oats and timothy ration and 5 cents for the corn and alfalfa combination.

Cull Unprofitable Ewes

The flock owner should go over his flock from time to time, to determine their condition and if some of the ewes are a little thin in flesh, they should be separated and given extra feed, in order to get them in the proper condition by lambing time. Many flock owners have a tendency to overfeed the breeding ewes, and by the lack of exercise get them too fat, and consequently they do not produce strong lambs. The amount and kind of feed to give the pregnant ewe will depend on the condition of the ewe and the feeds available.

Green Feed for Fowls

Green feed during the fall and early winter are essential for both egg production and growing chickens. It can be easily provided by sowing wheat or rye at this season of the year. The bare yards about the poultry buildings and adjacent territory could not be put to better use than the raising of this succulent, vitamin-rich, green feed for the poultry.

Cabbage Ranks High in Vegetable Group

Has Become One of Most Important Crops.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Cabbage, with a market output of more than 30,000 carloads a year, has become one of the three most important vegetables in the United States, ranking next to potatoes and tomatoes. About two-fifths of the market crop is early Southern cabbage mainly from Florida, Texas, South Carolina, Virginia and Alabama. Three-fifths is shipped from the North and West, mainly from New York, Wisconsin, Michigan, Colorado and California.

These facts are brought out by the United States Department of Agriculture in a new department bulletin entitled "Marketing Cabbage." Cabbage manufacturers take about one-seventh of the commercial crop, it is said, the quantity varying greatly according to production and market conditions. Kraut is made from northern cabbage of the large Domestic type, and the factories are located mainly in New York, Wisconsin and Michigan.

New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Chicago are said to be the largest consuming centers, the four cities averaging one-fourth of all crops of cabbage used. Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and Kansas City lead in pounds of cabbage per capita shipped to these markets. Cabbage consumption in the leading cities is said to be about the same in quantity year after year, but there is a tendency toward increased production, especially in the early shipping seasons.

Copies of Department Bulletin No. 1242 entitled "Marketing Cabbage" may be obtained free upon request to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Tests Show Markton Out Free From Covered Smut

The Markton oat is the first variety of common oat with high-yielding ability and fairly satisfactory kernel characters which has been found to show complete immunity from covered smut, says the United States Department of Agriculture, in a new publication.

The development of this new variety of oats is described in a new publication just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture as Department Circular 324. A copy may be secured upon request, as long as the supply lasts, from the Department of Agriculture at Washington, D. C.

Time and Way Soy Beans Are Harvested for Hay

The time and the way they are cut have much to do with the value of soy beans for hay, it is pointed out by S. S. Carney, crop production specialist at the Illinois College of Agriculture. It is best to cut them when the pods are well formed, although they may be harvested for hay from the time the pods begin to form until the leaves begin to turn yellow. It is true that the hay has a higher percentage of protein if the beans are cut early, but they are harder to cure and yield less. Early cut soy beans also have a tendency to be laxative.

Those who have grown both cowpeas and soy beans agree that the soy bean hay is much more readily and easily cured than cowpea hay. Cutting usually is started as soon as the dew is off and continued the rest of the day. When the best quality of hay is wanted the beans are raked into windrows as soon as they are thoroughly wilted, and then after a day or two the hay is cooked or hunched. Most of the curing takes place while the hay is in the cook.

Sweet Clover Does Best on Well Fertilized Soil

Sweet clover, like all other plants, will do better on well fertilized soil than upon poor ground. However, it seems to be less dependent upon a fertile soil than is alfalfa. If the soil is sweet and the proper inoculation is used, reasonable success can be expected from sweet clover, even on the poorer class of soils.

The best success has been usually had with seeding sweet clover with grain in the spring, using from eight to twelve pounds of seed per acre. We recommend the use of the biennial white sweet clover where it is desired to pasture this crop. In writing for seed, mention that you desire the scarified biennial white sweet clover. Sweet clover seed has a tough, resinous coat.

A building worth building is worth planning.
Pink cheeks from drinking milk will not rub off.
Hens need more fresh air in proportion to their weight than any other animal or bird.
One way to get the better of a dragging hog market is to produce more pork from fewer sows.
If you feed rats they will make themselves at home. Make your buildings as near rat-proof as possible.

NERVOUS & HALF-SICK WOMEN

Relieved by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

These Three Letters Prove It

Lowell, Mass.—"I am sending you a few lines to let you know what good your medicine has done for me. I want you to let every one know that it has helped me in nervous troubles. I have five children and you know there is a lot to do where children are. They would come in from school and they would start telling me about their little troubles but I could not stand it. I had to send them away. I could not even walk on the street alone I was so nervous. I found one of your books and read it and then I saw in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I got it and had taken one bottle when I saw a change in myself. I was surprised. The children can talk all they want to now and it does not bother me. I am still taking the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. JOSEPH LEMERE, 34 South Street, Lowell, Mass.

Felt Like A New Woman
Springfield, Missouri.—"For four or five months I was run-down, nervous, my back ached and I did not feel like doing a thing. Sometimes my legs ached and felt like they would break and I had a hurting in my sides. I had been reading in the newspapers the letters of other women who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the advertising of it appealed to me so I bought some and saw results in a few days."—Mrs. MARY E. SANDY, 438 W. Franklin Street, Hagerstown, Md.

40 Years Old, Feels Like 20
Hagerstown, Md.—"I was very bad off with backache, a bearing-down feeling in my body and a pain in my left side. I could not be on my feet at times and once I was so bad I walked bent over to one side for three weeks. My sister read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got me a bottle. I got so much relief that I took more until I was well. I am 40 years old and feel like 20. I am sure, this medicine will help all women."—Mrs. MARY E. SANDY, 438 W. Franklin Street, Hagerstown, Md.

Over 100,000 women have so far replied to our question, "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?" 98 per cent of these replies are "Yes." Men of Prominence Enormous Feeders

Sports writers who see Firpo eat are astonished at the quantity of meat consumed by the Wild Bull.

I doubt if he holds a better record in that respect than did some Philadelphians who were assembled in other ways as Firpo in the ring.

Senator Penrose was a prodigious meat eater. I saw him at breakfast devour two eggs, a large broiled fish and a handsome beefsteak, says the Philadelphia Inquirer.

At dinner two ducks were for him not an unusual chase after oysters and fish.

J. De Witt Cuyler matched the senator as a hearty eater. At the Rittenhouse club it was quite the customary thing for him to follow half a dozen oysters with a large fish, an extra big porterhouse steak and top them off with a quail.

John G. Johnson did as well as that and I saw him begin a meal with a dozen big oysters.

Henry F. Wallton, former speaker of the Pennsylvania assembly was another famous diner. His physician once ordered him to walk a mile instead of eating lunch.

Reflections of a Bachelor Girl

YOU can always tell a bachelor from a married man by his responsiveness.

Jeniousy is the autonomy of the heart; and the surest way to lose your dominion over a man's affections is to let him feel the weight of the scepter.

A man is always grateful for the gift of a woman's friendship, but he regards her love more as a "souvenir" or a "premium" than as a gift.

Neither fear nor conscience ever made a man true to a woman; a man may smoke because he wants to, or drink because he likes to; but when he loves a woman it is because he can't help it.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

RUB OFF THE DUST

TO KEEP your mind bright, your conscience clean and your vision clear, rub off the rust. Let no day pass in which you have failed to do some vigorous rubbing.

If you cannot recall past impressions in the most vivid way, your memory is rusting. Seek the rust spots, give yourself no rest until they have been found and rubbed out.

The need for diligent action is imperative. And this activity must be your own. No one else is qualified to do the work.

If there be an impoverishment of thought, rub off the gathering rust by reading instructive books, by calling up scenes from other days, by taking solitary walks along hillside paths and in the leafy aisles of the woods.

As you go from place to place keep your eyes open. Train your faculties to recall what you have seen so that you may be able at some other time to describe the mental pictures to your friends.

Stop in the fields of daisies, pluck one of the flowers, pull it apart, contemplate its exquisite formation, its dainty coloring, and let your thoughts run free with a loose rein. Do not pause until you have become fully impressed with the perfect handwork of Nature—with never a blemish or a speck of rust.

Listen to the music of the birds! There are no rusty notes in their praiseful songs that glint and shine like streams of gold as they flow from their sweating throats.

Think whence the tuneful melodies come. Rub the rust off your intellect until it shall gleam like a mirror, reflecting the beautiful all around you. It will do you good, stir your imagination and make of you a nobler being.

To make ourselves better, to make ourselves worthy of respect, we must fight against the rust that dulls minds and darkens visions. Without active and penetrating visions, we have no real existence. Let us raise our eyes to the heavens and think!

Let us try to vision the vastness of space, what lies millions, billions and trillions of miles beyond. Let us get away from the eating rust and rank decay.

And above everything else, let us thank God for the wonderful things which human greed and selfishness cannot control—free as the ambient air to the humblest creature of His creation.

Neither fear nor conscience ever made a man true to a woman; a man may smoke because he wants to, or drink because he likes to; but when he loves a woman it is because he can't help it.

Contrary to the weather reports, this is the time of year when an eligible bachelor is most apt to get cold from skating on the thin ice of flirtation.

When a man tells you that you remind him of some other woman, it is foolish to feel flattered; because when a man is in love with you, dearie, there is no other woman in the whole world just like you.

The man who lies under the car trying to fix the engine, while his wife sits back comfortably and tells him how things "ought to be done," can sympathize with all the women who ever tried to keep house or to cook for a man, since the dawn of civilization.

Oh, yes, there is a vast difference between knowledge and wisdom. Knowledge is what enables a woman to converse brilliantly in several languages; wisdom is what enables her to think in one language, and not tell anything in ANY.

FRUIT FOR THE FAMILY

FRUIT should be served freely in any family, and especially where there are young children. Canned fruit in winter takes the place of the fresh fruit, which is much more desirable when it can be obtained.

A bit of pineapple added to almost any fruit combination is an improvement, as the pineapple flavor seems to enhance the flavors of other fruits. Pineapple is good for the digestion, as it contains a pepticin all its own.

Tapioca Pudding.

Drain the sirup from one can of peaches or pineapple, add enough water to the sirup to make three and one-half cups of liquid. Bring to the boiling point and add one cupful of minute tapioca and cook, stirring until clear. Pour one-half constantly in a baking dish, cover with the fruit, adding a handful of dates or raisins; pour over the remaining tapioca and bake in a moderate oven 45 minutes. Serve with cream and sugar.

Add sliced peaches, pineapple or any desired fruit to a cottage pudding and bake in gem pans. Serve with the fruit sirup, thickened slightly and with a bit of butter and a dash of lemon Juice added.

Shortcake need not be confined to the strawberry season, for many fruits are delightfully served in that way. Even canned fruits are well liked, and when thinking of something for a change, try sliced oranges; they are delicious. Pour the Juice and all over the hot buttered cake.

Brown Betty is another pudding which need not be reserved for the apple. Any fruit with crumbs, sugar and seasoning baked in layers, makes a most tasty dessert.

THEIR RAPS

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

A KIND of boy I do not like When playing ball you often strike Who always takes his turn at bat And then runs home right after that And doesn't stay till Jack and Jim Have had their raps the same as him.

You see, in playing work-up you First field, then catch, then pitch a few.

Until the boy at bat flies out And then it's your turn, turn-about. They all should stay, the other chaps. Till all the rest have had their raps.

My father says that you can tell, Tell pretty sure and pretty well, The kind of man a boy will be: The way he plays at work-up, see? He says if boys are fair in play They likely will grow up that way.

And I intend while I'm a boy To see that others have their joy: And I intend, when grown up, too, To always try that way to do— When I'm a great big man perhaps To see that others get their raps.

Wisconsin Taxes Are Too High

EVERY citizen, whether a property owner or not, is a stockholder in Wisconsin. As such, he should learn the facts about taxes, because part of the cost of government comes out of his pocket. We all know that taxes are high for everybody. Tax burdens can be reduced if we adopt a program of:

1. Economy in Government, State, County, Local.
2. Spread the tax load by increasing property values through the promotion of agriculture and industry.
3. Solve tax problems by economic facts and not politics.

What Wisconsin needs is not higher taxes on any person or class, but lower taxes for all. The way to solve our tax problem is to cut the burden and not shift it onto industry. Wisconsin industry now pays higher taxes than in any other industrial state. Special taxes on corporations in Wisconsin are twice as high as in Michigan, four times as high as in Ohio and twelve times as high as in Illinois.

Indiana, Iowa and Minnesota do not levy any special corporation tax. These are nearby competitive states. All Wisconsin industry asks of our people is a square deal, so that it can hold its own in competition with 47 other states of the Union. Wisconsin Manufacturers are placing these facts before the people so that we can all work together in promoting better conditions in agriculture and industry. This will mean prosperity for every citizen.
