ZIMMERMAN AFTER AUTO LICENSE DODGERS

"We mean to make a determined effort to catch the auto license dodgers," said Fred R. Zimmerman, Secretary of State. "The number of people who either deliberately or because they are not informed regarding the requirements of the law escape their just contribution to the license fund, is greater than the average citizen suspects. I am convinced that many fail to pay in accordance with the law because of misunderstanding, although there is also a considerable number who deliberately attempt to defraud the state."

CELEBRATE SILVER WEDDING

An article appeared in the Chilton Times recently giving an account of a silver wedding celebrated by Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Carney of Hillport, Wis. Mrs. Carney was formerly Miss Rosetta Campbell of Kewaskum, daughter of the late Peter and Mary Campbell, and a sister of Edward Campbell, now residing on the homestead, about four miles southwest of this village. The article reads as follows:

LOADS THAT ARE LIGHT

"OH, MICKEY, WE GOT MORE A BUSHEL, HONES 'T' GODNESS!" "AW, WHATCHA WANTA TELL 'M FOR!" "HERE SHEP! HERE SHEP! HE-E-R SHEP!" "AIN'T GONNA RAIN NO MO"

LOCAL TEAM WINS AND LOSES

"Spats" Miller and his gang of basket ball players opened the season at Sheboygan last week Friday evening when they played the storied Matthewson team of that place, and met defeat by a score of 41 to 24. The game which was witnessed by a large crowd, was fast and clean. The locals had hard luck finding the hoop and were at the short end of the scoring at the end of the first half 18 to 3. The second half was very exciting, the locals made 21 points to the Matthewson's 23.

MAN WHO SHOT AT YOUTH IS CAPTURED

Police records show that Angelo Macucci alias Macucci is wanted at Syracuse, N. Y., on the charge of first degree murder, being charged with the slaying of Thomas Procius Feb. 16, 1921. Macucci was born in Bari, Italy, 41 years ago. He served five years for stabbing a man. Macucci was brought to the jail in Irons from Milwaukee.

STATESMAN PUBLISHED LATE LAST WEEK

Due to the fact that Kewaskum was without electric lights and power last week Thursday night, until three o'clock Friday afternoon, The Statesman was not published until twelve o'clock Friday night. On account of the short space of time left, quite a number of articles could not be published and other items were cancelled. If one of your items did not appear in last week's issue, it is because we were out of space or if it was cancelled, it is because we were out of space.

BARN DESTROYED BY LIGHTNING

Mayville, Wis., Nov. 1.—The third barn on the Franklin Koch farm three miles south west of Mayville, to be destroyed within the past few years, was burned to the ground Thursday evening when struck by lightning shortly after 9 o'clock. In the barn were grain and hay, the entire season's crop and some small pieces of machinery, all of which were a complete loss. Horses in the structure were led to safety before flames had reached that part of the barn. The building which was approximately 30 by 55 feet had been completed but a year ago to replace a barn destroyed in a wind storm. It had just been given a new coat of paint by Mr. Koch. A few years ago a barn on the same location was destroyed by fire.

LOST PURSE AND SMALL FORTUNE

Mrs. Katherine Moser of this city is looking around and causing investigations to be made to locate a purse containing approximately $1407.50, which she lost on Oct. 22, and which she did not observe until this week. Mrs. Moser, according to her own story, states that she went to Milwaukee some time about Oct. 22, and visited with relatives. At that time she claims she placed her purse containing the money, into her handbag, and did not think of it again until the latter part of last week, when she wanted to get the money to do some shopping. Searching through the handbag, she found that it was devoid of the purse and money. Mrs. Moser is at a loss to explain the disappearance of the purse, which she claims was either lost or stolen. She maintains that she placed the purse in the bag before leaving Milwaukee. In that case, it may be possible that the handbag was pilfered during the trip to Hartford. Mrs. Moser is making every effort to locate the purse, and has notified the officials of the C. & M. St. Paul road, since it is possible that she may have carried the purse and left it on the train—Hartford Times.

MISS THE HOME PAPER

This office is in receipt of a letter from Ulrich Kuntz of Kingfisher, Okla., who is an old time subscriber of the Statesman. Mr. Kuntz has been a subscriber of the local paper ever since it was published, and says he misses it very much if he does not receive it regularly. The letter reads as follows:

THRILLING NEW "AFTER THE BALL"

Would you marry a man with a prison record? That is a problem which has been the pivotal point for hundreds of heart tragedies that the world has never known, and some that have caused endless discussion pro and con. It bobs up again in the newest Anderson picture.

Mohr of Milwaukee, decided that the accident was unavoidable, and Mohr was absolved from all blame by the jury and witnesses.

MEETS WITH FATAL AUTO ACCIDENT

William Johns of Milwaukee was instantly killed on Highway 55, near Lake Geneva and his companion H. Kiebahn was seriously injured on Monday afternoon, when the car left the road and crashed into a tree. It is reported that the car was going at a rate of between 50 and 60 miles an hour.

CELEBRATE SILVER WEDDING

An article appeared in the Chilton Times recently giving an account of a silver wedding celebrated by Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Carney of Hillport, Wis. Mrs. Carney was formerly Miss Rosetta Campbell of Kewaskum, daughter of the late Peter and Mary Campbell, and a sister of Edward Campbell, now residing on the homestead, about four miles southwest of this village. The article reads as follows:

DEATH OF MRS. JOHN SCHWINN

Mrs. Sebastian Casper of here received the sad news of the death of her mother, Mrs. John Schwinn, which occurred at her home last week Friday, November 7th, 1924, at Newburg, after a short illness. Deceased was born in Westphalia, Germany, on December 31, 1848, and immigrated to America with her parents when a young girl, settling on a farm in the town of Trenton. On February 13, 1870, she was married to John Schwinn, the couple lived on the farm until eight years ago when they retired and moved to Newburg, where they have since resided. She leaves a mournful loss, her husband and the following children: Mrs. A. Casper and Henry and Joseph Schwinn of Newburg; John Schwinn of West Bend; Mrs. S. Casper of Kewaskum; Mrs. M. Theisen of Barton; Theodore Schwinn of Armstrong; Richard Schwinn of Freedom; Minna and Amanda Schwinn of Milwaukee. Four sisters and one brother, thirty-three grand children and two great grand children. The funeral was held Monday, with services in the Holy Trinity church, Newburg. Rev. Francis Schwinn of Watertown, assisted by Rev. Joseph Heide of West Bend as deacon with Rev. Philip Wagner of Holy Cross as sub-deacon. Burial was made in the adjoining cemetery.

BELL-WIDERRICH WEDDING

At the St. Mathias Ann church, town of Auburn, on Wednesday, Nov. 12th, 1924, occurred the marriage of Miss Gertrude Bell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Bell, of the town of Auburn, to Joseph Widerrich, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Widerrich of Grandview Center. Rev. J. P. Bernier performed the ceremony. The couple were attended by Miss Mary Bell, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, and Ray Widerrich, cousin of the groom, as best man. The bride wore a white silk dress trimmed with lace, and carried a bouquet of white roses and ferns. The maid of honor wore a beaded yellow, silk crepe dress. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride with about 35 guests in attendance. Mr. and Mrs. Widerrich will make their home on the groom's farm. They have the best wishes of their many friends for a happy and prosperous married life.

Showing Design Providing for Use of a Type "C" Baldwin Phone and a Three-Inch Diaphragm. Could Be Modified for Other Combinations.

By A. V. LOUGHREN

Before taking up the actual design details of a loud-speaker, which may be adapted from a standard phone unit, it is instructive to study the several types of loud speakers which are on the market. These fall, naturally, into three classes:

(a) The magnetic diaphragm type.
 (b) The moving coil type.
 (c) The "Baldwin" type.

The magnetic diaphragm type is of very common occurrence. It is essentially similar to the ordinary head phone, having a permanent magnet whose poles are placed close to the diaphragm. A magnet coil carrying many turns of wire is mounted on each pole of the permanent magnet. When an current is passing through the coil the iron diaphragm is, nevertheless, attracted by the permanent magnet. If a direct current is sent through the coils in the direction which strengthens the permanent magnet the diaphragm is pulled down more, and with current in the opposite direction it is pulled less strongly and springs up a little bit. Thus, with an alternating current, which flows first in one direction, then in other, the diaphragm is pulled down, then partially released, and in this way sound waves are produced.

This construction, properly handled, will lead to a very satisfactory loud speaker. But it has its drawbacks for the constructor, as he must secure a perfectly smooth iron diaphragm of a larger diameter than usual. Also it is essential that the diaphragm be mounted in the proper relation to the poles of the magnet.

The moving coil type is represented by the Magnavox instruments. Here a small coil, very light in construction, is fastened to the diaphragm. This coil is suspended in the magnetic field of a strong electro-magnet. The magnet consists of a large number of turns of wire on an iron core. A small current, usually somewhere near 0.5 ampere, is drawn from a battery of the receiving set to excite this magnet. Now, when an alternating current flows through the suspended coil the effect of the magnetic field is to make the coil move up and down, thus causing the diaphragm to vibrate as in the other type. So far as I know, there is no head phone on the market of this type.

What I have called the "Baldwin" type is a loud speaker using a Baldwin phone, as an adaptation of it. Figure 1 shows the fundamental construction of this instrument. In the actual commercial product certain changes are made for compactness which are not shown because of difficulty of reproduction. In the figure M is the permanent magnet, with north and south poles at N and S, respectively. P, P' are the two pole pieces, between which the armature A is suspended. The armature is pivoted at its center. At its right end the lever L is fastened, and it is by this that the motion of the armature is communicated to the diaphragm B. At the other end of the armature a small spring T is provided to maintain a slight tension on the diaphragm. The coil C is wound large enough to leave the armature room to vibrate within it, yet small enough to fit inside the pole pieces.

The operation is as follows: When a current flows in the coil C the armature is thereby magnetized, one end becoming a north pole, the other south. Now, each pole piece is magnetized throughout by the permanent magnet, the upper being north, the lower south. And since like poles repel, while unlike ones attract, the end of the armature which has become the north pole will tend to move up, while the other will at the same time try to move down. Thus, both will contribute to exert a force on the diaphragm and to move it in accordance with the current.

Cause of "Chattering." Practically, the Baldwin phone is very satisfactory as a head phone, but sometimes fails to deliver sufficient volume, when operated as a loud speaker, without "chattering." Chattering is caused by sending so much current through the coil that the armature strikes the pole pieces as it swings. This disturbs the sound badly, as it prevents the diaphragm from responding fully to the current.

There are two methods of decreasing this tendency to chatter. First, a horn may be placed in front of the diaphragm. Under this condition the diaphragm has to move a much longer column of air with it, and hence a given current will produce as much swing of the armature, thus lessening the chattering. The second method is to increase the size of the diaphragm, so it must again move more air, which results in less chattering, as before. These methods may be used independently, or together. There is at least one loud-speaker on the market using a Baldwin phone attached to a plaster "horn," with the standard size diaphragm. At the other extreme, I know of a speaker (see page 10) using the stretched head of a kangaroo-skin as the diaphragm, no horn at all being used.

It is probably better to combine the two methods if a large sound output is desired. To do this satisfactorily, the new diaphragm must be supported in the proper position relative to the rest of the phone. A small brass frame is best used for this purpose. Drawings for such a frame are reproduced herewith. The parts consist of two disks, a bar and the necessary machine screws, bushings, etc. This particular design is for a type "C" Baldwin phone and a three-inch diaphragm. It could be modified for other combinations.

Description of Parts.

The parts may be best described by taking up the assembly of the device. Disk A is 3/4 inches in diameter, with four holes around the outside through which machine screws pass to hold A and B together. There is a deep groove turned in A as shown, in which a piece of fine rubber tubing is laid to form one support for the diaphragm. This groove is deep enough so that the diaphragm will be very close to A. A one-half-inch or five-eighths-inch hole is drilled at the center of the disk for the sound to come out. The horn used must come to this size at the small end, without any sudden changes in size, and must be firmly attached. No specific directions regarding the horn will be given, as some will wish to mount the unit directly on a phonograph tone-arm, while others will prefer a regular horn. Disk B is also 3/4 inches in diameter, and is tapered to receive the machine screws which hold A and B together. A groove is cut in the center of B, as the air must not be confined behind the diaphragm. The bar C is fastened to B in the same way as A is. The Baldwin phone unit is removed from its case and fastened to C by small bolts through the holes S. The lever connecting the armature to the diaphragm goes through the hole T. The spring should be quite thick, say between 0.08 inch and 0.125 inch.

It is necessary, of course, to remove the old diaphragm from the Baldwin phone, and the old lever.

Most diaphragms may be purchased already cut to size, and one-eighth inch rubber tubing is also easily purchased.—New York Sun.

WINSOME CLOTHES FOR GIRLS; SMALL BUT BRILLIANT HATS

"DIFFICULT" and even "awkward" have been applied to the age of the young girl who has passed eleven and is still on her way to seventeen, and sometimes "difficult" at least, is a business to create who make it a business to create clothes for the young have turned out some winsome things for this between-times period that charm replaces awkwardness and difficulties disappear.

To begin at the beginning, they start out with carefully selected patterns in popular materials. This season they are giving much attention to plain and striped flannels, twills, calicoes, velvets and many dependable woolsens. After fabric they consider color, which and are worn with linen collars and cuffs as a habit.

"When she will she will, and when she won't she won't"—of wearing simplified her intention of wearing small, or at most small to medium-sized, hats, with her winter furs. Therefore designers of headwear are busy with these small but important affairs, packing brilliant sparks of millinery, as full of life and sparkle as jewels. Their task is to take the popular, becoming shapes and vary them endlessly, by means of materials and trimmings, so that "age cannot wither nor custom stale" their infinite variety.

It seems a little absurd to speak of age in reference to anything so brief as the career of a dress hat for mid-winter. But, as things are, it does its bit for two or three months, before spring turns all heads away from winter. A group of new models, just launched, is shown here. The shapes are almost identical, but each hat has an individuality that gives it distinction. At the top a brilliant satin elite in black makes a background for a shaped band of leopard skin brocade, ending at the sides in metallic ribbon bands that terminate in hanging loops. This is certainly a very original conception and most becoming to certain types of faces.

The bit of splendor at the left is made of velvet, with an aimless pattern of gold braid making a tracery over it. Colored jewels are scattered about in the pattern and, just to show that there is no end to its affluence, a long ostrich fancy falls like a scarf from one side. One can imagine this hat in the rich fuchsia shade, or any other of the season's favorites.

and metallic threads—and thereby langes a role. In this instance several tails of brown fur are posed at each side, where two or three of them snuggle against the puff of hair that peeps from under the turban.

A very regal looking affair occupies the center of the group, made of satin, with sectional crown and rich embroidery of colored silk, which probably reveals the glint of metal threads. A close-fitting turban finishes the group, with embroidered crown and facing of metal tissue, which makes a background for ornaments of embroidery and fur.

The all-fur hat is, so far, conspicuous by its absence, but bands, fringes, ornaments and tiny pelt are plentiful in trimmings, which include furs dyed in pastel colors.

Bengaline Is Modish

Bengaline bids fair to become more than a passing mode. This ribbed silk is so well suited to a number of uses that daily its place becomes more firmly established.

Trying Shade of Red

The almost universal touch of red continues much in favor. But it is only the woman with a good complexion who can successfully wear Venetian red.

Brightens Costume

With the black evening gowns which are to remain in favor, the smart woman is wearing black velvet slippers and stockings in some brilliant shade. For this purpose, venetian fuchsia is good.

Gay Color and Design

Light wool stockings in such striking patterns as a royal blue check upon a yellow background are now seen. Wool sports stockings come in brilliant but "plain" colors.

STUFFING FOR TURKEY

As a stuffing for turkey for Thanksgiving there is no forementioned more popular than oysters. Chop a dozen good-sized oysters, add them to the bread crumbs, melted butter and seasoning of salt and poultry dressing and stuff in the usual manner.

Oyster Stuffing De Luxe.—Drain a quart of large oysters, rinsing them well. Dry them on a cloth, looking them over carefully to remove any bits of shell. Dip each oyster into cracker or bread crumbs, then into melted butter and again into well-seasoned crumbs. Fill the turkey with these oysters instead of the usual bread-crumbs dressing.

Chestnut Stuffing.—This is one of the most delicious of fillings. To prepare it cut a pound of lean uncooked ham into dice, cover with cold water and simmer until tender. Meanwhile slit a quart of large chestnuts, peel them, then boil in salted water and press through a sieve. Mix them with the ham, one-fourth cupful of butter, a tablespoonful of onion juice, a pint of fine bread crumbs, a tablespoonful of chopped parsley, with salt, pepper, paprika and sweet marjoram to taste.

If the giblets are to be used in the gravy, put them over the heat with cold water to well cover and simmer until very tender, adding salt at the last. Remove, reserving the liquid and chop the giblets in a chopping bowl until very fine. After the turkey has been removed from the roasting pan, pour off part of the fat, leaving the remainder, to which add two tablespoonfuls of flour. Place over the heat and stir, scraping the crumb from the bottom of the roasting pan, being careful not to scorch the flour. Now add the liquor from the cooked giblets, and cook to a thick sauce. Add such seasonings as are needed, the chopped giblets, and serve in a sauce boat.

When purpose becomes as strong as necessity, then does man achieve. Vigor is contagious. Associate with vigorous people.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS

Before the ripe tomatoes are all gone, try this new sort of chili sauce, a form of chutney:

Chili Sauce.—Take fifteen ripe tomatoes, nine apples, four onions, three red peppers, all chopped fine. Add a scant pint of vinegar, twelve tablespoonfuls of sugar, two and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt, and one-half teaspoonful each of cloves, cinnamon, ginger and allspice. Cook until thick, then seal in bottles or cans. As Thanksgiving will soon be here save a few of these recipes from which to choose when stuffing the turkey.

Vegetable Pie.—Have ready one pint each of mashed potatoes and carrots well seasoned with cream and butter. Mix with the carrots two tablespoonfuls of scraped onion browned in butter in a hot pan. Mix with the potatoes one-fourth of a cupful of peanut butter with a tablespoonful or two of minced parsley. Place in layers in a baking dish and cover with a mixture of one cupful each of green peas, and tomatoes with buttered crumbs on top. Bake until well heated through in a hot oven.

Cranberry and Apple Mound.—Cook together one pint of cranberries and four good-sized apples in barely enough water to keep from burning. As soon as the apples are soft, sift both through a colander, measuring the pulp, and to each pint add one and one-half cupfuls of sugar and the juice of a lemon. Return to the fire and stir until the sugar is dissolved and simmer five minutes. Let cool, add the unbleached whites of two eggs to the mixture and beat long and vigorously until stiff. Pipe into sherbet glasses or mold in fancy shape. Serve with a custard sauce made of the egg yolks.

Quince Pudding.—Take three pounds of quinces, scald them until they are very tender, then pare them very thin and scrape off the white part. Add sugar to make them very sweet, adding a little ginger and cinnamon. To a pint of cream add four eggs, then add the quinces. Bake a baking dish and bake until firm.

Chauriere Salad Dressing.—Blend one-half teaspoonful of salt with a grain or two of cayenne, one-fourth teaspoonful of white pepper, a teaspoonful of powdered sugar, one-fourth cupful of olive oil, one-fourth cupful of pineapple juice and orange juice. Shake or beat until a thick emulsion is formed and add a dash of lemon juice if to be used on a vegetable salad.

Little Dolly was having a great treat. It was Saturday morning, and her mother had taken her out into the town to help her with the shopping. Among the shops they went to was the grocer's, which was kept by a man who was very fond of children. With a smile he gave the little girl a big red apple.

The child took it, but not one word of thanks passed her lips. Dolly's mother, embarrassed by her little girl's lack of manners, said:

"Dear, what are you going to say?" Dolly held out the apple to her benefactor as she said briefly: "Peel it!"

George took one piece. "George," said his mother, "when Aunt Emma passes the cake, just take one piece."

George took one piece; then when Aunt Emma passed the cake again he took another piece and so on till he had six pieces.

"Well," said mother, "did you just take one piece of cake?"

"Yes, but mother, I might as well have taken six at one time and saved Aunt Emma the trouble."

THE GROWING CITY

"I'm tired," said the city, "and discouraged."

"What's the trouble?" asked the Queen of the Fairies as she perched upon one of the high buildings.

"Oh, it is hard," said the city, "to be a city. You never seem to please anyone."

"They build you up and tear you down and change you about until you are worn out."

"Oh, but they do like you, City. I know they do," the Queen of the Fairies said.

"Well, sometimes they don't show me that they do," the city answered.

"They will never let me add any charm or any manners—you know a city can't get its best manners in a short time. It takes a long, long time for a city to really be gracious and lovely."

"Now it is different with the country. The country can be far simpler in its ways."

"The country is naturally so beautiful. The country doesn't have to depend on handsome buildings and quaint places."

"The country has sunsets and sunrises and trees and fields and wild flowers and lots of color."

"Of course the sun rises over in the East and sets over in the West here, but it's not the same as in the country—the buildings almost crowd it out of the way."

"And the sun feels that you know."

"The sun doesn't show himself nearly so much in the city for just that reason."

"But I wish they'd let me rest for awhile. I feel so like a child during the ages when he or she is growing so very fast."

"I feel as though they were constantly letting down my skirts, or making something over again for me."

"And I will not have any charm of my own, any particular attractiveness of my own, if I have to be rushed so."

"Now there was a lovely building down one of the streets and it would always have been beautiful to see.

"I was very fond of that building. It was a 'touch' to my city costume that I liked immensely."

"But they tore it down—or partly tore it down. They did enough to it so that none of its beauty was left. And they changed it all about—did horrible things to it. And that was one of my very best buildings."

"And it does tire me so. Of course I am growing, and of course my city buildings are being stretched and added to, all the time."

"But when they destroy what few beautiful old (old to me, at any rate) landmarks I have, I feel so sad."

"I feel so weary then."

"I feel like giving up the whole job of being a city and moving out to the country myself. I feel as though I could just let them shift for themselves, so that it would be neither city nor country."

"But I suppose I'll keep on being a city, though it is a rushing, hard life at times."

"Particularly when they won't let me have nice manners. They will pull me down and build me up and make me appear awkward and ill at ease."

"I appear awkward and ill at ease then."

"Oh, I am so very tired."

"And the city sighed a great sigh. "Poor City," said the Queen of the Fairies, "don't sigh. So many love you. So many love to poke through your queer, dear, different streets."

Applicants for Insurance Should Use Swamp-Root

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is a preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview of the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

on the panel. It is desirable to have a grid leak which can easily be varied, as a slightly different setting will be required for D and local stations. The grid leak resistance is made by soaking a strip of cloth in India ink and letting it dry. This resistance is then mounted on a piece of insulating material, bent at right angles as shown in the illustration. This is best constructed of a piece of hard rubber about 4 1/2 inches long and 1 inch wide. This piece of hard rubber is easily bent at right angles 1 1/2 inch from one end by immersing it for a couple of minutes in boiling water, to soften it. A bushing, such as that used in an ordinary jack, is obtained. This bushing serves as a bearing and also holds the insulating bracket to the panel. A hole is bored through the short end of the bracket and threaded to take the bushing. If it is not possible to thread the bracket it may be held in place by means of a nut. The resistance is varied by means of a piece of spring brass which is bent to the shape shown. When the knob is turned a cam made of hard rubber or bakelite and fashioned as shown, gradually depresses the spring, thereby shorting more or less of the resistance. Two binding posts are fastened to the base of the instrument for connection.

GREGORY'S RELATIVES

WHEN Gregory was growing up, he had two grandmothers to visit. One lived in a great big house in town. Gregory remembered that house stuffed full of the spoils of yearly trips "to the other side." There were cabinets and shelves and tables cluttered with dust-covered objects of art, some had been shipped by careless housemaids, some broken and glued hastily so that the edges showed black and sticky. No one knew anything about any of them; some were presents of the white elephant variety, and some priceless antiques. His other grandmother lived in the country. In his school days when things went wrong, he would imagine himself back in the green-shuttered white cottage, where, in the low-ceilinged parlor, a fire on the hearth threw its light over the orderly room, and touched the Chinese chess men and the Eighteenth century cup and saucer and all the other distinct things he remembered, each with its fascinating story. He knew why a certain plate had been riveted, and he liked the pattern of the carefully darned handkerchiefs on his bed upstairs, and he knew that the lemon drops would always be in the blue glass jar. Then Gregory grew up. It was a question in his own mind, as in every one else's, which of two nice girls he was going to marry. Even after his wedding he would ask himself why it had been Mary. Not that there was the least doubt in his mind that it was Mary he wanted. But why? Gradually he satisfied himself with the happiness of his life, and left the question blissfully unanswered. Then he and Mary went to visit his old dame and her husband. He returned home again with a breath of relief. His host and hostess were happy together—no doubt of that, Gregory was glad to know—but they lived in a turmoil, a hurly-burly of undrinkings half begun and never finished, that left Gregory speechless. There were magazines and piles of unsorted letters on the desk; one drenched one's coat and hat anywhere; everyone was late to everything; Gregory was warned against two weak-legged chairs that had never been mended; the children came to the table, and their manners were atrocious. "Bolshevism" was the way Gregory summed it all up to himself on his first evening home. Then he looked across at Mary reading on the other side of the table. There was a dignity about her that took him back to his grandmother in her little white house. Suddenly he recognized a quality that went a long way toward answering that unsolved question of his early married years—he recognized the habit of personal and material upkeep. HAVE YOU THIS HABIT? (© by Metropolitan Newspaper Service.)

TOO MUCH

You paid the minister five dollars when we were married. Yes, I am very careless about money matters; ought not to have given him more than two dollars and a half.

Mother's Cook Book

Even the cleverest and most perfect circumstantial evidence is likely to be at fault after all, and therefore ought to be received with great caution. Take the case of any pencil sharpened by any woman; if you have witnesses you will find she did it with a knife, but if you simply take the aspect of the pencil, you will say she did it with her teeth.—Mark Twain.

FOOD FOR THE FAMILY

EVERY one likes fresh, crispy rolls. These are fine when properly risen and well baked.

Potato Rolls. Mash four small-sized potatoes add one-half cupful of milk heated hot; to another half cupful of milk add two compressed yeast cakes, one tablespoonful of sugar, the same of lard, one teaspoonful each of butter and salt; flour, four cupfuls. Add the yeast when the mixture is cool enough; mix all the ingredients and beat well. Set to rise at ten in the morning. Roll out at four, cut and place in pans to bake at six o'clock.

Flemish Fish. This is a good way to use leftover fish. Flake it and put a good layer in to a baking dish, then cover with a layer of buttered browned crumbs, three-fourths of a cupful of finely chopped onions, browned with the crumbs and bread in three or four tablespoonfuls of butter, two-fourths of a cupful of white sauce. Stand in oven until piping hot, then serve at once.

Apple-ettes. Line deep individual tins with good pastry, fill with sliced apple, sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon and bake. Serve with dots of whipped cream sprinkled with grated cheese over the top.

Queer Treatment for Ills

In some parts of Ireland a spider's web is believed to charm away fevers, and the spider itself, if soaked in treacle, is given as a cure for ague. A badcock's bone is hung round the neck by the Indians of Labrador to exorcise toothache; and there is Bacon's authority for "the wearing on the finger rings made of seal-bone teeth" as a charm against cramp. Study of the migration of English sparrows is now being conducted by the zoology department of the University of Wisconsin.

Autoists Carry Goat
Goat milk en route was enjoyed by a Colorado motor party recently. The camping party fixed a stall for a milk goat on the running board of their medium-sized auto and consequently had a supply of the milk on their trans-continental trip. The goat would eat leisurely even while the car was in motion. Too much care may weaken work.

Laxatives do not overcome constipation

LAXATIVES and cathartics provide temporary relief only. Their continued use leads to permanent injury. In time, says an eminent physician, an almost incalculable amount of harm is done by the use of pills, salts, mineral waters, castor oil and the like.

Physicians advise lubrication for Internal Cleanliness

Medical science has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus, Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water, it is harmless.

Take Nujol regularly and adopt the habit of internal cleanliness. For sale by all druggists.

HUNTERS START BLAZE ON FARM

Oakfield—The Oakfield fire department responded to an alarm Sunday night at 7 o'clock turned in from the Otto Wiegert farm in the town of Byron. Hunters had started a fire in a tract of timber south of the farm buildings and Wiegert, fearing that the blaze would get in a stubble field next to the buildings, called for help. The fire was extinguished within an hour after the arrival of the department.

WASHINGTON CO.'S DAIRY POPULATION ON INCREASE

Washington county's dairy cow population is increasing according to figures announced by the Blue Valley Creamery Institute. The statement covers an area embracing approximately one-eighth of the state in this section, and is believed to hold true for the county proper.
A 40 per cent gain in the number of dairy cows two years old and over is noted for the district over the preceding year, while the increase for the state as a whole was 43 per cent as compared with 1923. The entire United States shows an increase amounting to 6 per cent, government figures show.
The number of heifers 1 to 2 years old as compared to the total number of cows in this district seem to be above the average, indicating the intention to bring more young stock to milk in the near future.
In citing these figures the Institute calls attention to the fact that the United States needs 320,000 more cows every year if production is to keep step with the normal growth of demand for dairy products. There are 1,412,000 more mouths to be fed in the United States with every passing year and with the increased consumption of dairy products per capita, this added number to the nation's milk supply will barely suffice to meet the increased demand.

Babies Fed by Force.
In some African tribes when the baby is a few months old it begins to be fed on a preparation of coarse meal. The mother hits her hand with the meal, pushes it into the baby's mouth and holds his nose until all the food is swallowed.

Scagliola.
Scagliola is an imitation stone consisting of a substratum of finely ground gypsum mixed with glue, variegated on its surface with soft with marble, spar or granite dust, and subsequently polished. It is used for floors, columns and other ornamental interior work.

Murder Rate is High.
Every hour somewhere in the United States, a man's life is taken. There were more than 9,500 "unlawful" homicides in this country in 1921; one of every 12,000 Americans is murdered every year, whereas the figure in Europe is one out of every 624,000.

Life of Crank Axles.

STATE TABOOS AUTO STICKERS

The practice of automobilists who put silhouettes of bathing girls on windshields and rear windows may be stopped in the near future. It is understood that there is considerable agitation in the office of the state registrar of automobiles to abolish the nuisance and that some action will be taken in the near future. In Massachusetts and other eastern states the bathing girl stickers are taboo. If an autoist disregards the warning his license plates are revoked and he cannot drive his car for the rest of the year. The eastern authorities base their rule on a law which forbids placing on an automobile anything which may interfere with or impede the proper operation of the vehicle.

City of Canals.
There are 127 canals in the city of Venice. They measure 28 miles. There are five openings in the 30-foot masonry wall, which admit the tide. The Grand canal is two miles long and 77 yards wide. It was probably at one time the bed of a river flowing into the lagoon near Mestre. Another canal divides the island of Giudecca from the rest of the city. It was once the bed of the Brenta. The southern canal serves as arteries to the Grand canal.

Abuse of Stomach.
The stomach is mated by the majority of men, who disregard the laws of digestion and seemingly forget their stomachs have a teeth. As a result, the organ is subject not only to indigestion and its accompanying disturbance, but to several disorders which are all serious and some fatal.
—R. K. Daniels, M. D.

The Juggernaut.
"Juggernaut" is one of the principal heathen deities of India. This god was taken out in procession periodically, and many of the faithful prostrated themselves before his car, which was of great weight, and were crushed. This practice was abolished by the British government.

Aspirin for Flowers.
A Paris savant says that an ordinary aspirin tablet dissolved in warm water will freshen the most delicate cutflowers in vases, while a piece of cotton soaked in a similar solution and wrapped around the stem of a flower worn in the boutonniere will keep it fresh for a long period.
