GOOD THINGS TO EAT

It is hard for the busy mother, who has everything to do, to find time to vary her cookery by garnishing or variety in combinations when expense is one of the all-important items, which it is in most households.

Some time when the children are clamoring for cinnamon rolls try making them with a baking powder biscuit dough, rich enough to be wholesome and digestible. Roll out, spread with butter and sprinkle thickly with cinnamon, brown sugar and raisins or currants. Roll up and cut into half-inch biscuits by slicing with a sharp knife. Bake in a hot oven and serve hot.

When making bread or rolls, the sponge used for cinnamon rolls makes a more palatable roll. Turkish Rolls.—Work one-fourth of a cupful of almond paste into one cupful of rolled butter, add a tablespoonful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one cake of compressed yeast, softened in one-fourth of a cupful of lukewarm water, and add three or four cupfuls of flour. Mix all together and knead to a soft dough. Let stand in a warm place to double its bulk. Shape into rolls. When light, brush over with milk and bake in a hot oven.

Cup Cakes.—Take one-third cupful of shortening, add one cupful of sugar, creaming the mixture well. Add two eggs well beaten, one and two-thirds cupfuls of pastry flour sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder; alternate the flour with one-half cupful of milk, beating the batter well. Bake in gem pans and frost with:

Seven Minute Frosting.—Put one egg white, unbeaten, seven-eighths of a cupful of sugar, three tablespoonfuls of water over rapidly boiling water. Begin to beat immediately with a Dover egg beater and beat constantly for seven minutes. Remove from the heat, add a teaspoonful of vanilla and twelve marshmallows cut into small pieces. Beat until the marshmallows are dissolved, then spread on the cakes.

Prune and Almond Salad.—Stew large prunes, remove the stones and stuff with shredded almonds. Arrange on tender lettuce and serve with a French dressing. Prunes or dates added to sections of orange and served on lettuce with French dressing is a good salad combination.

Ecru Lace Effective Ecru lace on black satin is a pleasing thought of the moment. A black satin frock of simple lines has its round neck trimmed with wide ecru lace, while the tiniest of lace ruffles, in rows of three, are placed up and down the side of the skirt.

Decorate Wood Ornaments One of the smartest street frocks of busy charwomen has for trimming frothed flowers of white and red. These consist of a flat red annella and two white gardenias placed on the left shoulder. A similar arrangement appears on the right hip. Occasional Wide Hat While the majority of hats are high-crowned and small-brimmed, one now and then sees a hat of the picture variety. In brown felt, with sweeping incurved plumes of orange a hat of this sort worn recently was as wide of brim as Gainsborough himself could wish.

The KITCHEN CABINET

A man, to be greatly good, must imagine intensely and comprehensively, he must put himself in the place of another and of many others; the pains and pleasures of his species must become his own. The great instrument of moral good is the imagination.—Perry P. Shelley.

DISHES IN SEASON

For those who cannot eat rich pastry, but enjoy the filling of a pie, the following will be enjoyed:

Pumpkin Ramekins.—Take one and one-half cupfuls of steamed strained pumpkin, add two-thirds of a cupful of brown sugar, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-half cupful of cream, one-half teaspoonful of salt, two eggs and one and one-half cupfuls of milk. Mix the ingredients and fill ramekins, which have been rinsed in cold water—fill two-thirds full. Bake in a moderate oven and when a golden brown cover with a meringue and brown, or serve with whipped cream.

Cranberry Jelly.—To one quart of cranberries add just enough cold water to float the berries. Cook until the berries swell and burst; take from the fire and put through a sieve. Return to the pan and add two cupfuls of sugar, cook five minutes and turn into a mold. Serve cold.

Fruit Cocktail.—Take one large grapefruit, two large oranges, one can of sliced pineapple, one-half cupful of white grapes, one cupful of white cherries, one small bottle of maraschino cherries and one cupful of sugar. Remove the seeds from the grapefruit and oranges and scoop out the fruit with a spoon. Cut the pineapple into small pieces, remove the seeds from the white cherries, cut grapes into half and remove the seeds. Pour over the sugar and let stand in an earthen dish at least twenty-four hours before serving.

Creamed Celery.—Remove the outside stalks, scrape and cut into inch lengths. Let stand in cold water for fifteen minutes. Drain and drop into boiling water; cook until tender; drain and add to a well-seasoned white sauce, using one cupful of sauce to one cupful of the celery before cooking.

A little ham left from baking, or broiled ham, put through the meat chopper and added to an omelet just before it is folded to serve, makes a hearty dish for a luncheon or supper.

Bobbed Hair Not New Idea

Bobbed hair is ancient, according to discoveries made in the little town of Wymington, Northamptonshire, England. The restoration of the parish church there has revealed a painting depicting women with their hair bobbed in the style of 1924. Hidden under a coating of thin plaster were discovered wall paintings representing the resurrection and the judgment. The plaster has now been carefully removed to show the decorations. Most of the figures in the paintings are women. Some have their hair falling about the shoulders, but the artist has given the majority short hair, cut exactly in the manner of the modern girl's coiffure. The view believes the paintings are the same age as the church, which was built in 1350.

Moose in Battle Royal It isn't every one's luck to see two moose battling in the forest, but to see three locks engaged is something extraordinary. Seven hunters from Waverly, N. Y., were out recently after moose up in the Adirondic district in Canada, and while following moose tracks they saw ahead two bull moose charging at each other. A third moose of the moose weakened during the fight and the others charged him viciously. The men, who had been watching the battle, then shot the three.

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Stopped Her Suffering and Restored Her Health

Morocco, Illinois.—"I surely can recommend your medicine to other women who have female weakness, as it has helped me very much in every way possible. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for her, and it has surely done wonders for me. I hope all women who suffer will take my advice as the Vegetable Compound has done so much to bring back my vigor and strength."—Mrs. ALBERT E. DESCHAMPE, Morocco, Illinois.

Over 121,000 women have so far replied to our question. "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?" 99 per cent. of these replies answer "Yes." ## The High Cost of Postponing Permanent Highway Building

Poor motor roads stifle industry and agriculture; waste huge sums annually in high maintenance costs; and greatly increase gasoline, tire and repair bills.

There is not a state, not a county, not a community, that isn't paying a heavy price for having too few permanent roads.

There are still many sections of the country—even whole states—that are trying to operate twentieth century traffic over nineteenth century roads.

This is costing millions of dollars every year, and will keep on costing millions until we have well developed permanent highway systems everywhere.

Even what we often call the more progressive communities are far behind the demands of modern highway traffic with its 15,000,000 motor vehicles.

From the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from Canada to Mexico, unimproved roads—concrete roads—the roads for twentieth century traffic.

Your highway officials want to be of the greatest possible service to you. Get behind them with ways and means that will provide more concrete roads and streets. Such an investment will pay you big dividends year after year.

RADIO

(Edited by G. Douglas Wardrop, Editor of Radio Merchandising)

Eria Superflex. With Its Five Tubes and "Push-Pull" Audio Amplification, Is One of the Most Powerful Sets That the Amateur Can Construct.

The reflex type of receiver is daily gaining in favor with all classes of listeners. The user of a reflex circuit is enthusiastic on account of the beautiful tone quality and absence of distortion. The next best neighbor is in favor of the reflex due to the fact that it does not cause squeals and howls in his set.

The regenerative type of receiver, when improperly operated, causes no end of interference with every set in the neighborhood. Regenerative sets, and even radio frequency receivers, when operated in an oscillating state, not only interfere with surrounding sets but reproduce music and speech in such a way that it is extremely trying to listen to.

In the reflex type of receiver the crystal is used to enhance the current from radio to audio frequency. The Eria reflex circuit with a stage of push-pull amplification makes a reflex receiver that has sufficient volume and power to bring in the most distant stations on a loud speaker, and selective enough to cut through powerful local stations. The receiver has but two controls, one for wave length and the other for volume. This makes it easier to handle than sets having three tuning dials to adjust. The circuit can be lagged.

The 25-plate variable condenser for tuning is placed across the selectometer, the fixed condenser that replaces the usual variocoupler or variometer in other circuits. In this way the troublesome taps and switch levers and the extra control dial are eliminated. The apparatus you will need to construct the circuit is as follows:

- 2 audio frequency transformers, 3 1/2 to 1 ratio.
- 1 Eria input push-pull transformer.
- 1 Eria output push-pull transformer.
- 1 selectometer.
- 1 No. 1 reflex transformer.

Storage "B" Battery That Can Be Recharged

The larger radio sets, using from three to eight tubes, have become increasingly popular, due to their wide range, power and receiving qualities. When a number of tubes are used the drain on the "B" batteries becomes proportionately greater. For this reason the storage type of "B" batteries which can be recharged are now widely used, due to their economy and steady, dependable operation. The home type tangle battery chargers, which are so popular for charging "B" batteries, can be adapted for charging storage "B" batteries by means of a simple device, the "B" battery attachment.

This attachment is hung on the side of tangle and the short lead is clipped to the line tap in the five-ampere tangle, or the soldered joint on the right of the transformer in the two-ampere charger. The long lead from the attachment is connected to the positive terminal of the "B" battery and the negative tangle lead goes to the negative terminal of the battery. The positive tangle lead is not used and should be kept apart from the battery while charging. A 24-volt battery may be charged to 0.2 ampere and a 48-volt battery may be charged 0.1 ampere.

Higher voltage batteries can be charged by using additional attachments. For instance, a 96-volt battery should be divided in half and the two negative terminals connected to the negative tangle lead. Two attachments are used, the short leads being both connected to the tangle as before and one long lead going to each positive battery terminal. Thus the two sections of the battery are charged in parallel.

The operation of the "B" battery attachment can be easily understood. When charging a six-volt "A" battery connections are made to the positive and negative tangle leads. The current is supplied by the left-hand coil on the auto transformer, which is the low voltage side. In the case of the "B" battery, connections are made so that current is supplied by the right-hand coil.

On Sunday evening a large number of people gathered in the street and enjoyed a sermon by an eminent divine in Denver. The speaking was highly praised, the songs by the choir, and then the announcement that a collection would be taken up. The audience at once began to disperse, so realistic was the announcement.—News Item.

Average Annual Loss on Wheat

Various Forms of Damage Occur Before Crop Finally Reaches Market.

The average annual loss in the winter wheat belt on account of various forms of damage occurring to wheat between the time it matures and the time it reaches the market, amounts to approximately $5,000,000, or two cents on every bushel grown. In Kansas alone the loss amounts to over $2,000,000, or 27 cents on every acre harvested. Colorado's loss is in proportion.

Figures Are Given.
These figures come from a bulletin by H. M. Bainter, a former Colorado Agricultural college agronomist who is now with the Southwestern Wheat Improvement association, engaged in educational propaganda for cutting down waste in wheat production and marketing. The bulletin quotes figures furnished by the Kansas City office of federal grain supervision showing that out of a total of 41,924 carloads of wheat marketed at Kansas City from July 1, 1923, to April 30, 1924, 40 per cent fell below Grade No. 3.

Other data indicate that in inspecting on appeals or for checking purposes, 7,500 cars, almost 68 per cent of hard red winter wheat was graded down one grade or more on account of low test weight per bushel. One grade difference in test weight equals at least two cents a bushel difference in price. Over 11 per cent was graded down one grade or more on account of excessive moisture—damp wheat, heat-damaged, sprouted, musty, sour and hot wheat. Over 2 1/2 per cent was graded down one grade or more on account of rye. Almost 3 per cent was graded down to sample grade or more on account of live weevil or other insects injurious to stored grain.

Bulletin Is Free.
The bulletin, which may be had on application to the Southwestern Wheat Improvement association, New York Life building, Kansas City, Mo., makes suggestions for proper handling of wheat to avoid these losses to the grower.

Should Buy Fertilizer for Delivery in March

"Buy your fertilizers in January and February for March delivery," says E. Truog of the soils department of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture.

"Farmers will want acid phosphate and lime. General farmers may use the complete fertilizer and in most cases one containing considerable nitrogen.

January and February orders should be made because of the seasonal supply which is treated by manufacturers through the first three months of the year. The 'aging process' puts the fertilizer in mechanical condition and reduces its acidity. By ordering early the farmer is assured of properly 'aged' fertilizer. When all sold out manufacturers are tempted to sell insufficiently 'aged' material.

"The kind of fertilizer to buy should depend on the type of farming—dry, general, or truck farming. The amount should depend on the condition and the abundance of the soil materials, and the kind of crops grown on the particular fields," he declares.

Take Time to Get Into Sheep Raising Business

High prices for both wool and mutton have kept the sheep industry in the limelight the last two years and have caused a strong demand for breeding stock of all ages.

Some farmers who have had no experience as sheepmen are rushing into sheep. Austin A. Dowell, live stock specialist with the agricultural extension service at University farm, St. Paul, Minn., believes the best plan is to grow gradually into the business of sheep raising.

"Not every farmer can handle sheep successfully, and those without previous experience should go slowly in investing their funds in this class of stock," says Mr. Dowell. "It always pays to be conservative in a period of high prices, consequently we advise starting with a small flock of grade ewes and gradually getting into the business. By using pure bred rams and keeping the best ewe bands, it is possible to develop a high-class flock at comparatively little expense."

Make an Early Start to Have Year-Round Garden

The garden is an essential part of the home, and one should not be discouraged because of an unfavorable season. If it did not pay last season, it was probably because of unusual weather conditions or improper handling. So make an early start and lay the foundation for a year-round garden, advises A. E. Schilleter, extension horticulturist, Clemson college, who gives below five fundamental factors for a successful garden.

1. Good seed.
2. Thorough preparation of soil.
3. Liberal fertilization.
4. Frequent cultivation.
5. Protection from insects and diseases.

Do not depend on cheap seed or those that are easy to get. Order from a reliable seedman, because if you start out with poor seed, all of your later efforts will be wasted.

Give Attention to Horses in Winter

Need Sufficient Exercise to Keep Muscles in Shape.

Horses and mules that are to do hard work during the spring and summer break in best if they have had sufficient exercise during the winter to keep their muscles in shape. Enough feed so they become readily accustomed to a full ration and are in good flesh, is also important, says E. A. Trowbridge of Missouri.

The amount of feed required varies, the feeds with the condition and individuality of the horse and the work done. A safe rule to follow, however, is to feed 10 to 12 pounds of grain and 40 to 45 pounds of hay to 1,000 pounds of live weight. For example, a horse weighing 1,200 pounds would need 12 to 15 pounds of grain per day and 14 to 15 pounds of hay. The following rations have proved satisfactory. All parts are by weight:

- Ration 1.—Mixture, one-half oats, one-half corn; feed 11 or 12 pounds daily for 1,000 pounds live weight. Mixed hay, clover and timothy; feed 42 pounds daily per 1,000 pounds live weight.
- Ration 2.—Mixture, 9 parts corn, 2 parts bran; feed 11 or 12 pounds daily per 1,000 pounds live weight. Mixed hay, clover and timothy; feed 12 pounds daily per 1,000 pounds live weight.
- Ration 3.—Mixture, 18 parts corn, 3 parts bran, 1 part alfalfa; feed 11 pounds daily per 1,000 pounds live weight. Mixed hay, clover and timothy; feed 12 pounds daily per 1,000 pounds live weight.

In case only timothy hay is available, a grain ration composed of 3 pounds of corn, 2 pounds of bran and 1 pound of alfalfa is better when fed at the rate of 11 or 12 pounds per day per 1,000 pounds. Sound certain animals score on that much alfalfa, but it is half. In all cases the feeder must consider the individual under his care.

Scratching Litter Best to Use in Poultry Pens

Nowadays any poultry owner that even pretends to be up-to-date and progressive uses a scratching litter and feeds the grains in it. But many people are not so careful to keep the litter in good condition as they should be. The litter should be from 8 to 10 inches deep, and when fresh straw is put in all the old should be cleaned out and the floor swept.

During the months when the fowls are confined, the floor will need cleaning frequently, though it is impossible to give any set rule for this. Do not wait until there are enough droppings on the floor to cause an unpleasant odor.

If rain or snow blows in on the litter it should be changed as soon as possible before roop appears.

Corn will do for a scratch feed for evenings, but is too fattening to feed all the time; besides, it is too easily found to provide enough work and exercise. If corn is fed in the evening, oats may be used for the morning feed.

Best to Winter Horses in Large, Open Spaces

When rooms have only such hauling as must be done and the man handling horses to handle, the most economic way to winter them is to turn them out whenever possible and let them live in the open in a large lot, or even in a pasture if it does not become soft under foot.

The stabled horse has the brighter color, but the work of caring for him offsets any advantage gained in this respect. We have always fed large quantities of rough feed such as coarse fodder, which is bad to handle in the morning, in the open and make one operation of the feeding for the day instead of doing it three times a day as some farmers do.

The horses, living in the open air, get long coats, it is true, and have an unkempt appearance that is not attractive, but they are really in better shape for the following season's work than the animal which has been pampered and fed full feeds of grain all through the winter.

Avoid Damp Hen Quarters

You can no more house chickens in damp quarters and expect to avoid disease than you can deliberately expose them to any of the contagious or infectious disorders and expect them not to acquire it. Roup and its kindred diseases flourish wherever dampness prevails and all the respiratory troubles are the forerunners of more serious difficulties. It is utter folly to attempt to maintain a flock in health unless the quarters are dry.

Farm Hints

Truck growers cannot afford to overlook the fall or winter "clean up."

Soy bean, cowpea and clover hays do well and make excellent roughage for all classes of live stock.

Most for your money

Women prefer Monarch and Farm House Cocoa for two reasons. First, because they cost only about half as much as other brands of similar quality. Second, because it is hard to find better cocoa, regardless of cost. Always ask for Monarch if you prefer Dutch Process Cocoa—or Farm House if you like the American Process better.

Some people prefer the flavor of Dutch Process Cocoa. Others like the taste of American Process better. For those who favor American Process Cocoa, Farm House is especially recommended. This choice cocoa is a quality product in every respect. The unusually low price is an added advantage that everyone appreciates.

The favorite of home bread-makers Yeast Foam

Manure exposed to the weather in loose, shallow piles for a few months may lose more than half of its fertilizing value through fermentation and leaching.

A farmer who does not know if he won or lost at the end of a year's work cannot be expected to win much. It pays to keep a record of all incomes and expenditures. It's the business way.

Do you know how you stand? A good time to make a complete inventory of the farm is near the close of the year; then start the new year right with a farm account book.

In general, fall plowing, cover crops, and cleaning up crop residues and weeds or rubbish about the fields in fence rows, or on terrace banks, pays for itself in insect control.

McCormick-Deering FEED GRINDERS

are our specials for this week. Now is the time to begin to think about your stock feed. Do you know that you can economize by feeding ground grain? Do you know that animals get much greater nutriment from grain that is ground? These facts have been proved dozens of times. If you will come in this week we will show you these long-lived, efficient grinders. You will soon see why they are so popular among stock raisers and dairymen.

ECONOMY URGED BY COOLIDGE

President Covers a Wide Field in Outlining Policy for Next Four Years.

Washington.—President Coolidge advised congress in his annual message that perhaps the most important work it could do at its present session would be to practice such economy as to make possible a reduction of taxes for the next fiscal year.

The government can do more to remedy the economic ills of the people by a system of rigid economy in public expenditures," he said, "than can be accomplished through any other action."

The President renewed his plea for American adherence to the Permanent Court of International Justice; declared the United States would not join the League of Nations; appealed for support for the European reparations settlement plan, and repeated his declaration of opposition to cancellation by the United States of the debts owed the country by foreign nations.

The text of the President's message, which was read to congress, in part follows: The nation holds a position unsurpassed in all former human experience. This does not mean that we do not have any problems.

Our domestic problems are for the most part economic. We have our enormous debt to pay, and we are paying it. We have the high cost of government to diminish, and we are diminishing it.

We still owe over $21,000,000,000, the cost of the national government is still about $5,500,000,000, and the national taxes still amount to about $27 for each one of our inhabitants. There yet exists this enormous field for the application of economy.

In my opinion the government can do more to remedy the economic ills of the people by a system of rigid economy in public expenditure than can be accomplished through any other action.

For Repeal of Publicity Act. Combining discussion of tax revision with his statement on economy, the Executive declared publication of income tax payments to be "detrimental to the public welfare and bound to decrease public revenues."

Wage Earner Aided. Two very important policies have been adopted by this country which, while extending their benefits also in other directions, have been of the utmost importance to the wage earners.

Recommendations Made by Coolidge

Recommendations contained in President Coolidge's message are: Rigid economy. Reduction of the cost of the government. Repeal of the income tax publicity law.

Further tax reduction effective in the next fiscal year, provided congress helps create the necessary treasury surplus.

Reduction of the surpluses on large incomes. Improvement and flood control on inland waterways.

Continued negotiations with Canada for the building of the St. Lawrence waterway.

Enactment of the reclamation legislation called for by the fact-finding commission.

Legislation relative to agriculture as soon as the new agricultural commission can make recommendations.

sale or lease of Muscle Shoals and creation of a subcommittee of the committee on agriculture of congress to negotiate with possible purchasers.

Establishment of a national police bureau. Amendment of existing law relative to relations of railroads to labor.

Amendment of federal election laws to provide equal representation of all parties at the ballot box and on registration boards.

Establishment of a national police bureau. Amendment of existing law relative to relations of railroads to labor.

Protection of the negro in his full constitutional rights.

Adequate national defense and preparation.
