BRANDON HIGH WINS CHAMPIONSHIP

The Brandon high school basketball team won the championship in the Tri-County basketball tournament held at Fond du Lac, last week Thursday, Friday and Saturday. This is the second consecutive time that the above named team has won the silver loving cup. Should Brandon win again next year, the trophy, which is a traveling cup, becomes the permanent property of the Brandon high school. Rosendale High School won second place and was awarded a fine banner. Oakfield won third place.

The Kewaskum High School basketball team made a better showing at the tournament this year than last year, winning one game that being against Campbellsport High School team on Friday evening by a score of 6 to 12. This victory gave them another chance, which game was played on Saturday afternoon against the Slinger High School, in which contest our boys lost by a score of 5 to 35. Had our boys won this game, they would have been in line to play for third place. Victor for the locals was not only the star performer for the local quintette, but won the distinction of being the best dribbler of any player in the tournament.

With the Brandon, Oakfield, Rosendale and Lomira teams breaking up for reason that most of the players are going to graduate this spring, and with some good reinforcements being added to the local squad next year, Kewaskum ought to stand a very good show of winning second place if not first in the annual Tri-County tournament next year.

The results of the games as played on each day are as follows:
Thursday's Games:
Brandon 33, Slinger 18.
Oakfield 12, Glenbeulah 3.
Lomira 24, Kewaskum 7.
Rosendale 16, Campbellsport 6.
Friday's Games:
Kewaskum 12, Campbellsport 6.
Rosendale 15, Lomira 8.
Slinger 15, Glenbeulah 3.
Brandon 34, Oakfield 16.
Saturday's Games:
Slinger 26, Kewaskum 5.
Oakfield 18, Lomira 10.
Brandon 48, Rosendale 8.
The All-Tournament team picked is as follows:

FIRST TEAM

In sad and loving memory of our dear mother and wife, who died two years ago, March 26th, 1923:
We miss thee from our home dear mother,
We miss thee from our place,
A shadow o'er our life is cast,
We miss the sunshine of thy face,
We miss thy kind and willing hand,
Thy fond and earnest care,
Our home is dark without thee,
We miss thee everywhere.
Sad and suddenly was the call
One so dearly loved by all,
Gone took her home,
It was his will,
But in our hearts she lingers still,
Sadly missed by her husband and children.

Mystic China! Elaborate, colorful settings! Prolonged costumes! Excitement! Drama! Romance! The story deals with an American, who, through the duplicity of the girl to whom he is engaged, abetted by her lover, sinks to degradation in China. Through circumstances he is forced to masquerade as a Chinese overlord and then meets romance in the shape of a white girl, who had been reared as Chinese.

HOW TO TILE EARLY

It isn't too late to think of tiling the wet spot in the field of oats or peas or corn where the crop drowned out last year. Of course the tile can't be laid till the frost is out of the ground, but everything can be put in readiness. That includes (1) examining the area to find out how much tile you need; (2) buying the tile and hauling them; and (3) engaging the tiler who is to lay them.
E. R. Jones of the department of agricultural engineering of the College of Agriculture will survey the fields of farmers desiring early service and give them an estimate of the amount of tile needed. Generally it will be less than a carload and two or three farmers are advised to consolidate their orders and divide the carload among them. This is simplified by the delivery of the tile by truck from the factory.
The County Agent Mr. Batton has a list of tilers ready to go to work as soon as the frost is out of the ground. Any farmer wanting early tiling can get it.
Mr. Jones cannot be in this county all of the time, but has arranged to have W. T. Leins look after the surveying and inspection work during his absence. No charge will be made for this service. It is a demonstration by the county agent showing the methods and benefits of drainage and the value of good engineering in drainage practice.
All farmers desiring this service should get in touch with County Agent Batton at once.
Tile laid before seeding time may pay for themselves this year.

COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT IN SCHOOLS

Feeling that the children of each community should become acquainted with the growth and development of their community, together with the pleasures and trials of early days, a project in local history is being worked out in the schools. Early settlers, in each community will come to the schools and tell the children of early incidents in the life of the community. It is suggested that each school prepare a booklet, to be exhibited at the Fair next fall, which would present in a rather complete way the story of that community. Such a booklet might include actual photographs of early settlers, buildings, scenery, present day structures, such as churches, schools and factories with a story of each.
"If the financial measures now before the Legislature are enacted into law, they will not only prevent the development of the University, but they will also cripple it beyond recognition."
No such recommendations have ever been made to any Wisconsin legislator during the past sixty years, nor so far as I know to any legislator in the group of states to which Wisconsin belongs.—C. A. Engle, Pres. University, Wis., from Alumina Magazine.
This week the parents of every child in the rural schools will receive a letter urging them to do their utmost to keep the children in school during the bad weather, muddy roads, and spring's work of the approaching season. Every teacher will tell you that if there is any one thing that makes schoolwork hard for teacher and pupils alike it is poor attendance. It is understood that one hundred and eighty days shall constitute a school year and in order that the essentials required for promotion be met it will necessitate a very good attendance on the part of the children. With very few exceptions due to sickness the attendance has been very good this year, so let us keep it so.

People were hurrying out on the road, north and south, with a few belongings clutched in their arms.

I went directly to the schoolhouse, after running and walking two and a half miles, and the first thing I saw there was the bodies of about twenty little children laid out on mattresses and blankets.

The principal of the school was trying to identify the bodies of the pupils. He also was worrying over the safety of two girl teachers who were unaccounted for.

Carried Bodies From Ruins. About twenty-five bodies of school children were piled up just outside the playground, and a search was being made for others in the ruins.

TO CUT INCOME TAX NEXT YEAR

Surplus Assured by Total of $430,000,000, Mellon Declares.

Washington—Reduction of taxes in the next congress along the lines laid down by the administration is foreshadowed in the tax receipts from the March 15 payments, as announced by the treasury.

Secretary Mellon said that these receipts would total more than $430,000,000, which shows that the surplus at the end of the present fiscal year will be fully as large as estimated.

Secretary Mellon and his assistant conferred with Representative Green, chairman of the house ways and means committee, and the latest reports of the receipts were given over.

The chairman said that hearings on the new tax bill probably would commence October 15. The secretary said the treasury would have its suggestions ready for submission at that time.

Senator Smoot of Utah also commented upon the proposed reduction of taxes during the day when he called upon the President at the White House.

The senator announced himself as in favor of a reduction of the maximum surtax rate to 25 per cent or less, as Secretary Mellon has advised.

The senator also suggested some sort of mutual arrangement between the federal government and the states under which the income tax field would be left to the federal government and that of taxation on inheritances and estates be left to the states.

These views are in accord with those of Mr. Mellon, who has intimated that he believes the federal estate tax should be gradually reduced and finally eliminated.

Dr. Fullerton, Educator, Ends Life by Hanging. Poughkeepsie, N. Y. — Professor George Stuart Fullerton, famed authority on the philosophy of life, decided that all the philosophy he had learned and taught for 25 years was futile.

U. S. FARM PRODUCTS GREATER IN 1924

Crop and Live Stock Values Put at $12,404,000,000.

Washington—With the exception of dairy interests and live stock products, the farmers generally realized better profits in 1924 than in 1923, according to estimates of total values of farm products made public by the Department of Agriculture.

The combined value of crop and live stock production in the United States last year was $12,404,000,000, which was $56,000,000 more than in 1923.

Live stock and live stock products are given a farm value of $5,951,000,000, compared with $6,223,000,000 in the preceding year, nearly all animal products having decreased in value.

A decrease of $66,000,000 in the farm value of dairy products produced in 1924 is shown, the department placing the 1924 valuation at $2,580,148,000, compared with $2,646,148,000 in 1923.

The value of the cereal crops in 1924 was $5,220,000,000 or 45.9 per cent of the total of all crops.

The value of the corn crop last year is placed at $2,890,000,000, as compared with $2,588,000,000 in 1923, when $1,331,000,000 compared with $743,000,000 and oats $799,000,000 as compared with $554,000,000.

Hogs Reach $14.60; Cattle, Lambs Down. By Bureau of Agricultural Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Chicago Union Stockyards.—In sympathy with a sluggish dressed beef trade, even moderate receipts were in excess of trade requirements so far as fed steers were concerned.

Under the impetus of extremely urgent buying, fat values sought higher levels and the top was pushed from $13.85 on Saturday to $14.60 on Wednesday.

With Colorado feed lots disgorging increasing numbers of lambs that were heavy and generally unattractive kinds, together with a badly congested and sharply lower eastern dressed trade, the local trade on fat lambs broke sharply and values were precipitated downward $1.00 to $1.25.

Couple Drown When Auto Plunges Off Lake Bridge. Forrester City, Ark.—Mr. and Mrs. Otto Schwarz of 57-40 Walthrop avenue, Chicago, were drowned when a closed car in which they were driving plunged off a bridge over Burnt Cabin lake on the Bankhead highway about eleven miles east of this city.

LOOKING IN ON THE LEGISLATURE

Madison, Wis.—The bill sponsored by the Izak Walton league to ratify a federal act giving the government power to purchase Mississippi river bottom lands as a game refuge and as a fish reclamation project has met formidable opposition with a probability that the measure will be killed when it comes to a vote in the legislature.

Gov. Blaine has joined with Congressmen Peck and Peavey in urging the defeat of ratification of the federal act on the ground that the state should not forfeit its sovereign right to its own territory.

Under the federal act, the government, through the bureau of fisheries, would buy lands for ordinary use, practically valueless situated along the river from Rock Island, Ill., to Wabasha, Minn. Under government regulation, this land, which is flooded annually, would be used to propagate fish.

Wets and Drys to Clash. Wets and dries of the Wisconsin legislature are set for a battle before the senate state and local government committee tomorrow when the bill, proposing repeal of state penalties for the manufacture of home brew and light wines exclusively for use in the home, is scheduled for hearing.

The measure, favored by Senator Ben Gotteman, Milwaukee, will take the "teeth" out of the Sevenson act, as far as manufacture of these beverages for home consumption is concerned.

Although a number of wet and dry measures have been introduced in the present legislature this is the first for removal of any penalties.

Old Age Pension Bill. A system of old age pensions to take the place of the poor houses maintained by the various counties, has been approved by the senate committee.

This innovation is backed by Senator Garey, of Edgerton. He says that its adoption will save the state considerable money.

To get a pension under the Garey bill, a person must be over 70 years of age; must have an annual income of less than $365 and have no legal relatives who can support him; and must have been a resident of Wisconsin for fifteen years. The pension granted shall not exceed $1.00 a day.

185 Bills Disposed of. Of the 928 bills that have been introduced in the legislature this session 103 were killed, 41 were withdrawn and 41 were passed, according to an unofficial compilation made Mar. 23.

This compilation places the total number of bills disposed of so far this session at 185, leaving 743 awaiting action.

$13,000,000 in Treasury. Balances in the state treasury at the end of each month for the past fourteen months have not fallen below $7,000,000 and at one time reached a peak of nearly $21,000,000, according to a report of such finances made to the state senate by Solomon Levitan, state treasurer.

The report came in response to a resolution offered by Sen. J. C. Schaefer, Watertown, in connection with the consideration of the administration income tax bill.

Balances reported for February 1925 are: General fund, $10,805,770.10; total balance, $13,377,804.43. In February, 1924, there was a total balance of $20,070,401.04, of which $7,414,573.00 was in the general fund.

Can Standardize State Salaries. The state civil service commission is empowered to readjust and standardize salaries of state employes under a bill passed by the senate and concurred in by the assembly.

The measure resulted from alleged inequalities in salaries paid for similar work in the capital, sponsors said.

The move to restrict the appointment of members of the legislature to other state positions passed into the limbo of lost proposals when the assembly refused to revive the Perry bill providing that the question be submitted to the people in the 1925 election. The measure had been indefinitely postponed.

The senate has passed an amendment to the highway bill which provides for collection of the 2 cent gasoline tax on all gasoline in storage in Wisconsin on April 1.

E. Erickson, local banker, is instrumental in interesting a New York company in starting a plant in this village. The concern expects to handle 150,000 pounds of milk daily. Both whole and skimmed milk in powdered form will be produced.

Racine—Seeking to prevent the taxation of soldiers' homes and other tax surtaxes for 1918 and 1919 levied by the state tax commission, H. M. Wallis, former president of the J. L. Case Flour Co., filed action in circuit court to restrain the city of Racine from attempting to collect the amount or declaring them delinquent.

Tombawick—At a meeting of the Tombawick Izak Walton chapter members went on record against closing the deer season in counties surrounding Lincoln county and leaving this county open, but favored a closed season throughout the state for at least two years. The sale price is said to have been $113,000. The farm was purchased fully equipped with personal property, farm machinery and stock.

Fond du Lac—Fond du Lac's municipal water department produced $129,254.54 revenue during 1924, according to the last financial report submitted by J. J. Brester, retiring city commissioner and head of the department. Following the payment on bonds the net gain for the department was $22,350.32.

Wisconsin Rains—A net profit of $22,483.45 was earned by Wisconsin Rapids two municipally owned public utilities during 1924. It is distributed by the annual report of C. P. Gross, manager. The electric department returned a profit of $22,301.26, while the water department suffered a deficit of $2,817.80.

Madison—All his service boys Madison and Stevens Point, Wis., and Dubuque, Iowa, has been indefinitely suspended because of bad rank. It was announced at Madison at the Union bus station. Melting snow and rains have made the roads impassable in many places and has slowed up other bus schedules considerably.

Crandon—A large timber wolf, run down by a bloodhound owned by Walter Proulx of Valbena, was killed at the edge of a clearing by a woodman, who struck the animal over the head with an ax. The wolf came bounding through the snow exhausted after being driven twenty-five miles by the dog which was only a few feet behind.

Stevens Point—The Green Bay and Western road is making preparations for relaying five miles of track from New London Junction east. The road has just completed construction of its new storage warehouse at New London. The building replaces the structure burned a year ago.

Kaukauna—Carl Kober and family owe their escape from being trapped in a fire which destroyed their home near Kaukauna to the frantic barking of their dog. They awoke and found the house filled with smoke and were barely able to make their way out.

Janesville—Miss Sylvia Fero, 33, deputy county clerk under the late Howard W. Lee, was appointed back county clerk for the unexpired term at the special meeting of the supervisors at Janesville.

Superior—The Superior city commission voted unanimously to declare Sept. 16 a holiday in that city. The move was taken in honor of James J. Hill, founder of the Great Northern road, who was born on Sept. 16. No definite action was taken on a proposal that a monument be erected in honor of Mr. Hill.

Washington—Abolition of the government land office at Wausau has been ordered by President Coolidge, effective Apr. 30.

Commercial Understanding

"Demurrage" is a term used to signify the amount to be paid by the charterer of a ship, car or other vehicle of transportation for detaining it longer than the time specified before shipment or sailing. The time is usually specified as working days, lay days and holidays in the contract. No claims are usually allowed for accidents, such as overcrowded harbor, customs or other delay. In the case of a ship the freighter must take the risk and the vessel must be loaded and ready to sail at the time specified, unless the delay is caused by a public enemy, hostile occupation of the port, or if the detention is caused by the owner, master or crew. When a ship is ready to sail the claim ceases, even though she could be detained by adverse winds or rough weather.

CHAPTER VIII—Continued

She nodded happily. "I am ashamed to feel so gay when you are unhappy," she said.

"I am not unhappy, Joan," he answered. "I thought over everything last night, and I am sure that you are right. I shall go back. Of course I shall go back, and I shall face my enemies and beat them."

At first Joan, seated at her lover's side, breathed in the mountain air, the sense of freedom, the scent of the pines, the joy of the sunlight. Then the pines began to tower above them. The dainty valley air struck something from her joy, but not too much to drive her away. She looked fondly at Lancaster, who drew her hand into his.

"I am going back to fight and win," he said.

But when the institute came into sight at last the long, gaunt building cast its chill over the girl's heart. In contrast with the mountain village Lancaster was depressing and lonely.

And Joan was conscious of one gripping fear. Suppose that Myers had returned!

She understood now how Lancaster had felt the evening before when he said he would never go back. It was the plunging out of the sunlight into a dark mountain pool.

The matron came forward as the buggy stopped. Joan looked at her in terror. But her face was placid enough, and she was able to read in the secretary's continued absence.

"Lancaster, there was a telephone message for you a few minutes ago from Avonmouth," she said.

Lancaster jumped from the buggy and helped Joan down. "I'll be with you in a few moments," he said, throwing the reins over the hitching post.

He went into the house. His step was firm, his demeanor unaltered; the matron, who followed him, seemed disturbed. But already everything was changed. The black shadow of Myers seemed to loom up until it overshadowed the institute again. Joan paced the porch in fear which gathered strength at each moment that Lancaster failed to return.

When at last she saw him coming her suspense was unbearable. She looked at him in mute fear as he laid his hand carelessly upon her shoulder.

"I have to go to Avonmouth at once," he said. "I have no choice in the matter. It is a patient who must undergo an operation—my operation—within twelve hours. It is fortunate that we have the buggy, because I shall have time to catch the afternoon train and get into Avonmouth at midnight."

Joan looked at her white face and said the words in a whisper. "If you tell me to stay, I'll stay," he said.

"And the patient?" whispered Joan. "Will he, of course I shall go. Nothing could keep me from going, and even you, my dear. But you would not have to stay."

"You are right. Yes, of course you may go. But I am afraid," said Joan. "I am afraid of Myers."

"He started, and he, too, had been thinking of the secretary. "But the doctor can't harm me, dear," he said. "The message came from him!"

Lancaster looked away. But when she repeated the question he answered, "No."

"He is at Avonmouth. Is he not there?" she asked.

"Well, Joan, I think he is," said Lancaster reluctantly. "But he may not know that the message came from him."

"Did you not see him at the hospital? Not from Avonmouth?"

"I was with a man connected with the hospital," said Lancaster. "But it was not from Avonmouth and not from Myers, and it did not mention Myers' name. Why, my dear, you would give any way to know that I was being told, it is a simple request for me to operate tomorrow."

She pulled herself together. "Of course you must go, Joan," she said. "Dear, if you should see that man, you will not fall into any trap that he may set for you!" she asked.

"You are so strong, you will not let him trample on you? You are yourself again, and you will remain so for my sake?"

"Never fear!" he answered cheerfully. "I am not going to take morphine again. Why, I shall have none with me, my dear Joan, and I should have no opportunity to buy any, even if I wanted to. I shall operate here as well as at the hospital, and return on the morning train. I may not even go to my house at all."

"I am so afraid that you will take morphine," said Joan. "But you will not see Myers?"

"Not if I can help it. He can't come to the hospital, and I don't think he will come to lie in wait for me at the station. If he does, he'll find me a tough customer to kidnap in broad daylight. There, my dear, be calm and sensible, and when I return I shall tell you everything that you need know."

He kissed her and hurried in to pack his suitcase. He came out in a few moments and placed it in the buggy. "Good-by, Joan, dearest Joan," he said. "And you will not hint at our engagement to Mrs. Fraser while I am gone? I have very special reasons for this."

She shook her head and laughed, and returned his kiss, and all the while her heart grew heavier. And long after the buggy had disappeared from sight she stood upon the porch looking after it.

Chapter IX

That night was sleepless as the last, but all the joy that had filled her heart in the hill cabin was gone. She lay awake, listening to the rain that pattered on the roof, thinking and wondering. How strange her life had become, and how far away the old landmarks were! She had fought for a man's soul in darkness and snatched it into light, and now the darkness seemed closing about her again. And she could only hope and wait through endless hours.

In vain she tried to tell herself that it was only an ordinary summons. On the face of it, the call was natural; but Joan's instinct told her that there was more behind it. Myers had not had assumed to do. And Lancaster had been evasive to spare her, perhaps, but evasive. And her task now was only to wait.

At eight she rose. She imagined that he must have finished the operation some time before, and be at the station, or on his way there, but her soul could not go out to his across the distance, and their communion seemed to be cut short by the same impenetrable darkness. Dressing, she was conscious of a stronger presentiment of approaching evil which she could not shake away.

It was a gloomy day, and the rain came down in torrents. About eleven o'clock Doctor Jenkins arrived in his buggy and inquired for Lancaster. He seemed surprised to learn that he had gone to Avonmouth.

Joan felt the need of speech with him irresistible. She did not mean to cross-examine him, she only wanted to shake off the feeling that Lancaster had passed out of her reach by speaking to one of his associates. She hardly knew the purpose of her action until she saw the look of concern upon his face.

"Miss Wentworth, you aren't well!" he exclaimed. "You have been overdoing it."

"No, Doctor Jenkins, but—Doctor Lancaster has gone into Avonmouth—"

"Yes, Miss Wentworth. But he won't come to any harm there, thanks to you. You've taught me a thing or two about morphia patients. Miss Wentworth," he went on, in his polite, complimentary fashion. "I never saw anyone get well as fast as Doctor Lancaster, nor any nurse that could handle a situation as you did," he added.

"Yes, but it was not really morphia, you know," said Joan, and then she almost gaped in astonishment. What had she said? Why had she said it?

Doctor Jenkins was staring at her too. "Not morphia, you say, Miss Wentworth?" he stammered.

"I mean, the symptoms weren't those of morphia poisoning," said Joan.

"Oh, well, Miss Wentworth, everybody takes it in a different way," he answered. "Yes, I reckon it was morphia right enough. They wouldn't put the wrong label on the bottles."

Good Motto for Life: "Bring Out the Best"

Did you ever stop to think what kind of a woman your wife would have been if you had not asked her to marry you? Or did you ever imagine what type of man your husband would have been if you had not answered "Yes"?

Have you ever crushed any ambition, chased away any talent or driven inspiration from your household? What have you done to increase or develop your life partner's talents?

Whether you are aware of it or not, you have either brought out the best side of this partner's life or buried all that was good in him or her.

A good many of us possess two sides. There are more Doctor Jekylls and Mr. Hydes in the world than we realize. How frequently your opinion of a man and some one else's do not tally! You will often say: "I can't see how Brown tolerates Jones; he's the meanest man in the world!" And yet Brown has found the better side of Jones.

Have you found the better side of your husband or wife? Have you done anything to bring that better side to the front?—Chicago Journal.

Knew All About It
"Have you heard anything about a machine for telling when a man is lying?"

"Sure."

"Ever seen one?"

"Seen one? Why, I married one!"

The KITCHEN CABINET

Though my stomach was sharp, I could scarce help regretting To spoil such a delicate picture by eating!

HINTS FOR THE COOK

When you have a surplus of dry bread, try the following recipe:

Queen of Bread Puddings.—Take one pint of bread crumbs, one quart of milk, one cupful of sugar, the yolks of four eggs, the grated rind of a lemon, two tablespoonfuls of butter. Mix and bake in a buttered pan set in hot water. When done spread with bits of jelly over the top and the white of eggs beaten stiff, with one cupful of sugar added and the juice of the lemon. Brown lightly in the oven.

Caramel Blancmange.—Soften one tablespoonful and a half of gelatin in one-third of a cupful of cold water. Brown one-half cupful of sugar in a smooth iron frying pan, stir constantly while cooking. Then add a scant half-cupful of water and let the mixture boil to a thick smooth sirup. Cool a little, then turn it over the softened gelatin; when this is dissolved strain into three cupfuls of cream. Add one-fourth cupful of sugar, a pinch of salt, stir until the sugar is dissolved, strain into molds and serve with or without sugar.

Spanish Steak.—Take three pounds of round steak cut two and one-half inches thick, season with two teaspoonfuls of salt, pepper to taste, and a tablespoonful of butter. Place in a sheet-iron baking pan with one-half cupful of water and cook thirty minutes, then cover with a layer of onions, sliced, and cook three-quarters of an hour; add a layer of sliced tomatoes, cook until tender, sprinkle with grated cheese, brown and serve with the gravy in the pan.

Strawberry Salad.—Serve large berries in cups of the tender heart leaves of head lettuce. When ready to serve pour over a cream mayonnaise, using two tablespoonfuls of mayonnaise well seasoned to a half cupful of whipped cream. Serve with cream cheese and walnuts.

Balls of cream cheese. an lettuce, covered with thick gooseberry preserves makes a delicious accompaniment to almost any salad course. Mold the cheese in very small glasses and when well chilled remove from the molds.

Clam Soup.—Wash a quart of clams, open the shells and remove the meat. Place in a bowl and chop fine, saving all the liquor. Rinse the shells with cold water and add this to the other liquid. Place the liquor over the fire and bring to the boiling point, add a pint of scalding hot milk, and a pint of strained clam liquor. Rub a tablespoonful of butter to a paste with a tablespoonful of flour add to the soup and bring to the boiling point; sprinkle with chopped parsley, add the clams and serve hot. Crisp fried bacon may be added to the soup if desired.

Tasty Foods.
An old Virginia recipe for Johnny cake may be prepared as follows, but baked in an oven if the old-fashioned method is not available:

Virginia Johnny Cake.—Sift one quart of corn meal into a bowl, pour in gradually one pint of warm water in the center and mix gradually until a smooth batter is formed. Beat until light, adding a teaspoonful of salt. Spread thick on a smooth board and bake before the fire until brown. When done cut into squares, split and butter and send to the table.

Windsor Sandwiches.—Cream one-third of a cupful of butter, add one-half cupful each of chopped cooked chicken and ham that has been boiled. Spread the mixture on buttered bread and cover with another slice of buttered bread. Cut into fancy shapes and serve.

Oyster Salad.—Select large, plump oysters, allowing six for each person. Parboil them in their own liquor and drain. Cut the oysters into bits and mix with an equal quantity of crisp fresh lettuce broken into bits. Stir in a hollid dressing and pile on a plate edged with lettuce.

Steamed Brown Bread.—Take one cupful of sweet and sour milk, two cupfuls of corn meal, one and one-half cupfuls of flour, a teaspoonful of salt, two-thirds of a cupful of molasses, two teaspoonfuls of soda, beat well and steam two hours.

Celery and Oyster Bisque.—Cover one cupful of finely chopped celery with one pint of water and stew slowly one-half hour. Drain and wash two dozen oysters; throw them into a saucepan and shake over the fire, cooking five minutes. Drain, saving all the liquor. Mix the celery with the oysters which have been chopped, add the liquor and one quart of rich milk. Mix well two tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour, add to the soup and cook ten minutes. Strain through a fine sieve, adding a little white pepper to taste. Serve in bouillon cups.

Stuffed Figs.—Use the pulled figs, cut a slit in the side and stuff with seasoned cream cheese.

Double French Victory
At Jena, in Germany, the French gained two notable victories over the Prussian forces on the same day, October 14, 1806. Napoleon won the first encounter against Prince Hohenzollern; Davout was successful in the second.

To Clean Walks
You can clean the walks and white stone steps beautifully if you mix a pound of lime with one gallon water and a handful of salt, stir it well and scrub the surface to be cleaned, using an old broom.

RADIO

(Edited by G. Douglas Wardrop, Editor of Radio Merchandising.)

Diagrammatic Sketches of Loud-Speaker Units: Fig. 1—Pattern for Cardboard Horn, Fig. 2—Horn Assembled, Fig. 3—Diaphragm and Its Mounting, Fig. 4—Details of Magnet and Its Casing.

Construction of a loud-speaker is held by many amateurs to be beyond their ability. And for many types of speaker this is true.

The making of the type shown and described in this article, however, will not present any difficulty, and only the simplest of tools and materials will be found necessary.

A rectangular piece of cardboard 17 inches by 14 1/2 inches and about 1/2 inch thick is obtained, and marked out as shown in Fig. 1. The cardboard is then cut along the thick lines, and the lines A and B folded together as shown in Fig. 2. A 1-inch strip of cardboard is glued over the joint, care being taken to bring the two edges close together, until the glue is dry.

The horn should be bound together with string to hold it in shape. Finally it should be given at least one coat of black enamel, inside and out. A turned metal fitting of suitable shape, and procurable at any hardware or phonograph shop, can be slipped in position over the lower end of the horn and glued as shown.

Building the Base.
For the base a circular box, about 4 inches in diameter by 2 1/2 inches high, is necessary, but failing this, two wooden disks about 4 inches in diameter and 1/4 inch thick will do, when joined by a piece of cardboard 1 1/2 inches by 2 1/2 inches and made into a cylinder with an inside diameter equal to that of the disks. The overlapping edges should be glued. This is also given a coat of enamel.

In the center of one of the wooden disks bore a hole of a diameter very slightly less than the inside diameter of the metal fitting attached to the horn. Both disks are then to be given two coats of shellac varnish. When this has dried place a short piece of tightly-tight metal tubing in the hole in the disk, so as to protrude about 1/4 inch on one side. A wooden ring, such as the rim of a circular box lid, or even a wooden curtain-pole ring, filed down to about 1/4 inch in depth, is affixed to the other side of the disk. To this is affixed a thin iron diaphragm, which must be perfectly flat. Two brass terminals are then screwed through near to the edge of the disk. All these details are shown in Fig. 3. Obtain a circular piece of magnetized steel 1/4 inch in diameter by about 1 inch long, and slip two fiber spool ends over its extremities to form a spool. If this is unobtainable, a piece of steel of the given dimensions can be magnetized by winding round it a single layer of wire and passing a current through the winding. In winding this coil, care should be taken to notice which is to be the N pole of the magnet. This can be ascertained by looking along the axis of the steel bar and noting whether the winding is in a clockwise or anticlockwise direction; if the latter is the case, the pole nearest the observer will be the south pole. This pole should be marked.

The Magnet.
Next wind a layer or two of insulating tape round the magnet. The spool thus formed, if the instrument is to be used with a telephone transformer, should be wound with 1 lb. of No. 36 S.W.G. d.c.c. copper wire, having a resistance of about 140 ohms. In winding this coil the N pole of the magnet should be held towards the winder and the wire wound in an anticlockwise direction. A resistance of 1,000 ohms can be obtained by using about 1 lb. of No. 36 S.W.G., 2,000 ohms by using 2 lb. of the same wire, and so on.

The first disk (the one to which the diaphragm has been affixed) is now smeared with glue round its circumference, and slipped into one end of the cardboard cylinder. The ends of the coil are next connected to the under side of the terminals on the disk. The spool itself should then be glued to the second disk. This is shown in Fig. 4.

This second disk is now smeared with glue in the same manner and slipped into the lower end of the cylinder; but before this glue has dried the horn must be dropped over the metal tube provided and the instrument placed in circuit with a weak battery. The position of the lower disk is now adjusted by pressing upward until the magnification of the sound produced by making and breaking the circuit is at its best. Care must be taken not to press the disk too far, as the core may then come into contact with the diaphragm.

Three Honeycomb Coils Used on Crystal Sets

By LEO SCHECHTER
The accompanying diagram shows a hookup which I have recently developed. It is far superior to any other crystal hookup I have ever tried. In this hookup spider web or honeycomb coils are used in conjunction with a crystal detector. I had been troubled with interference until I found that this hookup eliminates it quite well. Radio Digest.

To Get Best Results in Using Loop Aerial

It is generally conceded that radio is about the most puzzling thing known and many, by way of performing various trifling experiments will vouch for this. Things that many say cannot possibly be done are really performed and a good many of our little everyday "hunches" bring surprising results.

Many fans have found a loop aerial will work better in one room of the house than in another. Therefore, if you want to do some interesting experimenting with this type of aerial, give this idea a tryout.

Often large metallic frames, radiators, etc., affect the loop and the functioning of your receiver. And should it be removed to another room in exactly the opposite direction surprising results will be obtained. It is well to bear in mind that no radio set, whether receiving or transmitting, can be expected to work efficiently if large metallic elements are in the immediate vicinity.

Some Common Results of Rundown Batteries

Every radio amateur who roams the air has felt the thrill of hearing a station come in at a new point on the dial. Fairly but clearly comes this new signal—perhaps it means a 5X record for the adventurer of the ether. Eagerly he awaits the announcer's appointment numbers—the signal wavers and vanishes completely.

Perhaps "fading" is to be blamed, but more likely it is battery trouble—the reason why radio experimenters develop that worried look. Here are some of the results of rundown batteries:

1. Progressive decrease in signal strength, culminating in a sudden and total failure of a station to come in at all.

2. Whistles and squeals as the set slips in and out of oscillation at various points on the dial.

3. Limited range of the receiver.

4. Poor selectivity in certain circuits.

5. Unreliable service at critical times when experimental work is being done.

The moral is, then, if you would reach that distant station, keep your batteries up to snuff and avoid disappointment. Freedom from battery troubles involves the possession of a good charger, or preferably two—one for a storage A battery and one for a storage B battery. Then time is saved, temper is saved, and money is saved while the receiver is always ready for top-notch performance.

Cleaning Dirty Contacts

The rest of the circuit will be poor if the contacts on the bottom of the vacuum tubes are permitted to become blackened or dirty. Clean them with sandpaper or with a small file.

An Economical Insulator

A lead-in insulator can be made by nailing a tin can to the side of the house and placing an empty glass bottle in it, fitting the bottle snugly in the can by driving wooden wedges between the tin and bottle.

M'CORMICK-DEERING

There is a Reason!

There is a reason why McCormick-Deering Tractors are increasing in popularity by leaps and bounds. There is a reason why these sturdy, completely equipped tractors are rapidly replacing cheaper tractors in all sections of the country. There is a reason, also, why the farmers and orchardists of one county in California bought, during 1924, over a hundred McCormick-Deering tractors—more than all other makes combined in the same period. The reason is that McCormick-Deering 10-20 and 15-30 Tractors are the long-lived kind, and are by far the most economical per year of service. The crankshaft and crankshaft ball bearings in every McCormick-Deering are guaranteed against breakage for life. There are ball and roller bearings at 28 points, and all wearing parts, including cylinders, are replaceable. Entire frame is in one sturdy unit. All gears and important wearing parts are enclosed, running in oil. All parts are easily accessible, easily removed. Complete equipment includes throttle governor, wide platform, adjustable drawbar, Alemite lubricating system, impulse magnet, fenders, etc. Weight is distributed perfectly for good traction and safe operation. Short turning radius for convenient handling.

All in all, the McCormick-Deering is the tractor for every farmer in this community. Let us show you what it will do for you, then we'll tell you how easily you can own one.

Eyes tested, Glasses fitted.

From the time he tried to become a wagonmaker in his father's shop at Young America, through nine years of teaching in the county schools and nearly thirty years of law practice, Atty. Hy. P. Schmidt proved loyal to Washington county. He was as thorough and capable a teacher as he is a lawyer, and whatever he undertook he did with a determination to make good in it. He always stood close to the people, high or low, a friend of all and a foe of none. He gloried in anything that brought Washington county to the front, its people, its scenery, its past. It seems that with such a record, the voters would honor themselves by electing a man like "Hy" to the county judgeship. At any rate they may feel assured that he will make good in this office as he did in everything he undertook so far.

FROCK OF STRIPED TUB SILK; TWO-PIECE JUMPER FROCKS

MAYBE the artist who designed the new striped tub silks received inspiration from the gay colored candy cases strung across the confectioner's window at holiday time, or maybe the barber's pole with its many stripes had something to do with it or possibly the bright colors and swirls gave the suggestion. At any rate, the new wash silks for spring and summer are beautifully striped. These happy looking striped silks are just about the prettiest material one can choose for little girl's frocks.

Just now it is the idea of the two-piece dress, jumper-frock as it is called, which is spreading like an epidemic throughout the realm of fashion. The popularity of these smart separate skirt and blouse frocks have their roots in all spring frocks have their roots in Florida and California winter resort style centers.

Undoubtedly all indications are toward a record season of separate skirts and blouses. Nor are these two-piece frocks limited to sportswear, for smart dressed women are favoring these ultra tailored costumes for luncheon and informal daytime wear.

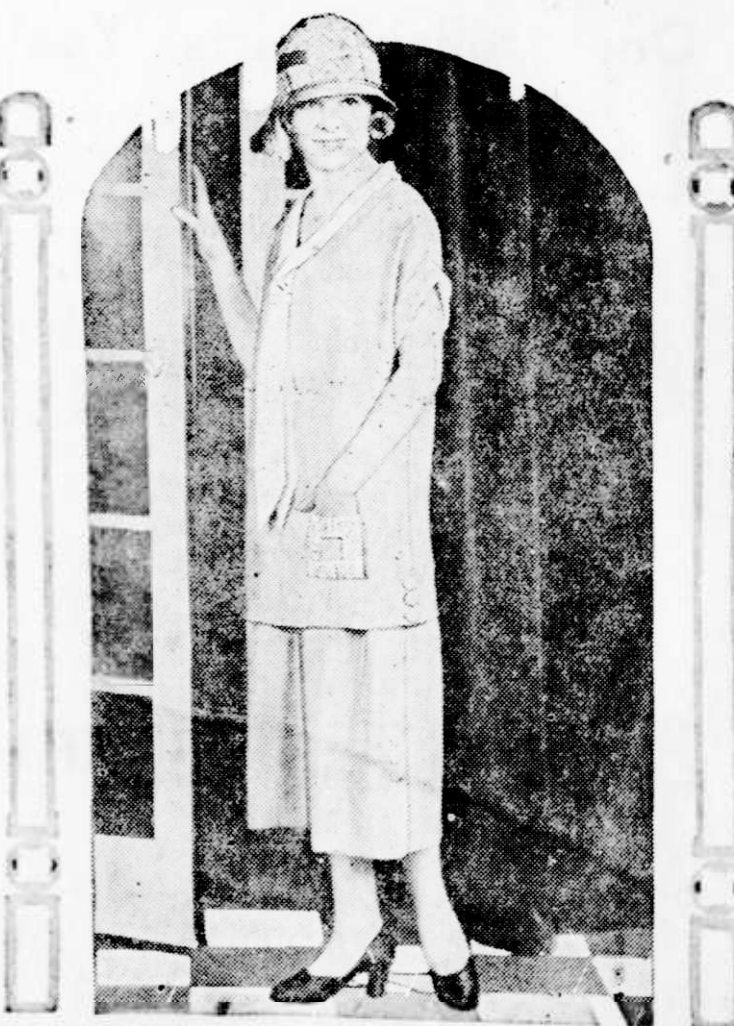

Every Little Girl Will Want One.

able for children's apparel. Then, too, stripes always can be manipulated so effectively in the designing of a garment. They are a trimming of themselves. The picture shows a dress which most any little girl will beg mother dear to copy for her, that is, unless she prefers to go to the store and buy it ready-made. There is such a comfortable fitness at the front of the skirt secured through inverted plaits and those pockets! The horizontal stripes across keep it a secret that they are pockets, but they are! The idea of laying the material in plaits from neck to skirt hem is a popular one with dressmakers and designers this season.

The chief characteristic of these fashionable jumper suits is their extreme simplicity. The material selected for the most exclusive sort is apt to be a flat crepe of superior quality, a heavy canton crepe or a full finished wash satin. The majority of them have long flowing ties, just as you see in the model here pictured. The skirt is usually a wrap-around. There may be a bit of embroidery on the pocket and a touch at the neck. Not always is this so, for severe trims, bow buttons, and stitched bands are noted on many of the most exclusive types.

or smocked white voile blouse the effect is stunning. The ensemble idea is effectively developed in these jumper suits, for there is such excellent opportunity to use two materials. For example, a printed silk blouse posed over a white crepe plaited skirt has a border around the hemline matching the material of the jumper. Further relation is established between the two, in that the white crepe of the skirt bands the short sleeves and fashions the wide-end man's tie—for, as said before, these long ties of the same material as the frock are almost an inevitable detail throughout all costumeing.

Study Is Made of Hog Supply

Consideration of Conditions Would Result in Careful Breeding.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The cycle of extremes of overproduction and underproduction of hogs is an undesirable feature of the hog business, resulting in prices which give good profits at one time and poor profits or even losses at others. According to investigations by Sewall Wright, of the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture, a careful consideration of all conditions which contribute to the making of prices would result in a more careful planning of breeding operations by farmers. A study of this subject covering the period from 1871 to 1915, was considered to be to a large extent free from unusual influences, is published in detail in department bulletin No. 1290 entitled "Corn and Hog Correlations."

Corn and Hogs.

The relations between corn and hogs as a means of showing probable developments in the hog market are considered of major importance because of the large percentage of the corn crop used in feeding this kind of live stock. It is brought out that only about one-sixth of the corn crop is ordinarily marketed, and attention is called to an estimate of the United States Department of Agriculture that 50 per cent of the crop is ordinarily fed to hogs.

Although large quantities of corn are regularly fed to other farm animals, the hog industry is most elastic because of the profligacy of swine and the early age at which they are marketed and therefore is most sensitive to variations in corn factors.

Price Influences.

Among the various conclusions reached as a result of this investigation, is that the price paid by packers during a given season do not depend wholly on the actual supply of corn, but are influenced directly or indirectly to a great extent by current and prospective conditions throughout the country such as the amount of breeding that has been done and the tendency of corn prices. From the results reported it would seem that farmers might do better by studying many contributing conditions instead of rushing into hog raising when prices are high and cutting down their operations when prices are not satisfactory. The farm price of hogs was found to have a close relation with the packer price, but lags behind several months.

The bulletin is to a large extent technical and designed for those who wish to go deeply into the study of conditions affecting the production and marketing of hogs. However, the conclusions reached are of great importance and value to all producers of pork. Copies of the bulletin may be obtained from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Profitable Fruit Tree Is Broad and Spreading

Trees should be broad and spreading to be able to carry a large crop of fruit which can be economically cared for and harvested. They must also be strong enough to stand up under the load of fruit. Their branches cannot be again and again "benched off" at intervals in vain efforts to produce spread. The natural and economical way to secure this spread is through the weight of the fruit. Build the branch in such a way that the pull of the crop will all be in one general direction. The spreading will be gradual as the trees come into bearing, and the branches will strengthen with each successive crop as they come down. The breezeage will be very small. Keep the branches loosely built, with the bulk of the bearing surface on the outside, and broad-spreading trees will result.

Coöperation History

The history of agricultural coöperation in the United States runs back to the Civil War. Records of the United States Department of Agriculture show that the first coöperative cheese factory was established in 1863, and the first organization of fruit and vegetable growers in 1878. Two organizations of grain growers were formed in 1887, followed in 1890 by an organization of live stock raisers. The coöperative movement has developed slowly while other pioneers were putting their theories into practice.

Some Botanical Orders

There are several botanical orders that include a large portion of the vegetables, the cabbage, mustard family, legumes, the melon bearers, and the nightshades. To the first belong radishes, turnips, cabbages, cauliflower, kohlrabis and kale. To the second belong all the peas and beans. To the third belong parsnips, celery, parsley and carrots. The fourth includes tomatoes, potatoes, egg plants and peppers.

Sweet Clover Pasture

The carrying capacity of sweet clover pasture is exceptionally heavy. This variety, of course, with the season and with the soil, but as a general average, sweet clover may be expected to accommodate one head per acre throughout the growing season. Enriched clover conditions four or five head of live stock may be pastured on one acre.

Amount of Grain to Feed

Strippers and dry cows only require a small amount of grain but when they freshen and are carefully started the grain should be gradually increased to a full ration if they respond and pay for it. A good rule is to feed a pound of the grain for every three pounds of 5 per cent milk produced in a day, and a pound for every four pounds of 3 to 3 1/2 per cent milk.

Washington Boy Is Pig Contest Winner

His Litter Produced 3,055 Pounds of Pork.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A farm boy of Spokane county, Wash., belonging to a junior agricultural extension club, was a ton-litter contest winner of 1924, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture. He not only produced 3,055 pounds of pork from one litter of pigs in six months, but kept a careful record of how he did it, including the kind and amount of feeds used and all expense involved. His records show that his pigs made an average daily gain of 1.4 pounds each from date of birth until sold. This gain cost a little less than 1.3 cents per pound, not including alfalfa pasture to which the pigs always had free access. The boy sold his prize winners to a packing house for $11.10 per 100 pounds, receiving 25 cents per 100 pounds because of the excellent finish of his hogs.

This young stockman, Fred Gray, began in the swine business about two years ago by joining a pig club which the junior agricultural extension agent of the county organized, buying a pig as other pig club members do, to feed and manage in demonstrating the economic value of the best methods in swine husbandry. His purchase was a Duroc sow of excellent type. He built a warm, movable hog house, provided plenty of clean water and pasture, and carefully practiced good sanitation methods in addition to efficient feeding. He was able to raise eight pigs from the first litter. With the second litter he won the contest.

Early Spring Best Time to Apply Oil Sprays

Many fruit growers are interested in the use of oil sprays for the control of San Jose scale. Micaide oil may be purchased from commercial manufacturers, while mineral oil emulsions may be prepared at home. Oil sprays are more effective than lime sulphur for the control of San Jose scale, but they apparently have less fungicidal value, and there is more danger of injury to the trees resulting from oil applications, says Dr. F. H. Lathrop, chief of the entomology division at Clemson college, who adds, that the most important use of oil sprays is the occasional application for the thorough clean-up of San Jose scale. For regular use, season after season, the old reliable lime-sulphur is safer. Oil sprays for San Jose scale should be applied during the dormant season, but prolonged periods of cool weather should be avoided. A very satisfactory time for making applications of oil sprays is in the early spring just as the buds are swelling.

Garden Insect Pests

The insect pests are two in variety, those that eat the foliage and stems and blossoms and those that suck the juices of the plant. The former include the potato bug and cabbage worm. The latter are confined largely to plant lice. For the eaters, arsenical poisons are the proper treatment. Plant lice, which now appear in all shades from pale green to black, with the exception of blue ones—and they may appear—yield to a spray of nicotine or tobacco.

Planting Strawberries

Strawberries should be grown on rather fertile soil, preferably on soil that has been manured the winter before. The best time to plant the standard variety is in early spring, although late fall planting is no less successful. The everbearing variety seems to succeed rather better when planted in the fall, according to W. R. Martin, Jr., extension horticulturist of the Kansas State Agricultural college.

Farm Hints

Don't keep scrub and inferior stock; they are wasteful of feed.

Soil conservation is the most vital material problem now before the human race.

If not sure of a stallion's pedigree make his owner prove it in black and white from the official records.

The laying out of the vegetable garden on paper is desirable for the purposes of economy of time and space.

Only one vegetable seems to be indifferent to being grown in the same spot year in and year out, and that is the onion.

Don't trust that bull. He may be safe, but again he may be one of those that goes wrong every day or two and kills somebody.

Buy your Golden Bantam sweet corn of a reliable seedsmen. It varies considerably in quality. Selected strains are best.

If one has two rows of the same vegetable and uses a different succession crop in each row, the gardener may note which was the more successful combination.

Asparagus and rhubarb are best planted in spring when fresh roots are obtainable. The one-year-old asparagus roots seem to take hold better than the two-year-old size.

Start collecting stakes for tomatoes and poles for beans. Try a few hills of pole limas this year. You can get twice the beans from the same space of pole limas you can off the bush sorts.

The new English lupines, which have been made a sensation abroad, are now being offered by American seedsmen. They are worth adding to the perennial collection. Don't give them rich soil.

THE KIWI

Billie Brownie was much excited. He was going to call upon a bird-creature he had never seen before. Of course he always enjoyed calling on his old friends. He liked to hear more of their news.

Sometimes he liked to have them tell him the same things about themselves for then he could tell others who hadn't heard all the news, and he could freshen up his own memory about their ways.

But it was an event to call on a new creature he had never seen at all. He put on his best brown suit and his best brown stocking cap with the brown tassel at the end, and started on his journey.

The new creature upon whom he was to call was the Kiwi.

He didn't quite know how to pronounce the creature's name but he did his best, in his own awkward fashion and knew that would do.

"One comfort always is," Billie Brownie said to himself, "that animals won't glare at you if you don't pronounce their family names correctly."

He followed the directions Mother Nature had given him. And then he came before the Kiwi.

"I'm Billie Brownie," he said, introducing himself. "Mother Nature has given me the power to understand her children and the way they speak."

"You will find, too, that you can understand me. Mother Nature intended that, for, as she said, a one-sided conversation wouldn't be of much use."

"I do understand you," said the Kiwi.

"It's a fine day," said Billie Brownie, for the Kiwi didn't seem to be doing any talking, though he looked friendly enough. He didn't look particularly lively though.

"Is it?" said the Kiwi. "I hadn't noticed."

"Yes," said Billie Brownie, "or at least I think it is. Some might say it was a bit too windy, or others might say it was a bit too sharp, but to my way of thinking it is very pleasant."

"I'm Billie Brownie," he said.

"What is your way of thinking?" asked the Kiwi, suddenly.

"Well, well," said Billie Brownie. "It's just a Brownie's way of thinking."

"Oh," said the Kiwi, "then it doesn't mean that only along one certain road or way you can think? You are able to think anywhere?"

"Dear me, yes, I should hope so," said Billie Brownie.

"I wonder," he went on after another pause. "If you wouldn't tell me something about yourself?"

"I don't mind doing that," said the Kiwi.

"You can see what I look like with your own eyes—far I notice you have your own or at least I suppose they are your own. You didn't borrow them, did you?"

"Gracious no," said Billie Brownie. "Then," said the Kiwi, "you can notice with your own eyes that I look something like a small ostrich and something like a white leghorn hen."

"In fact, I'm somewhere between the two in the animal world. I'm from Australia—a country in which many curious and interesting animals live—and I'm like a mixture of a small Australian ostrich and a white leghorn hen as I said, and as you can see."

"I have down instead of feathers. The eggs I lay are not so large as those of a hen."

"I can't fly at all worth mentioning. In fact I'm just an odd creature."

"But I'm odd enough not to mind being odd. That's the only way to be if you are odd."

"If you are odd and are sorry you are odd, it is a great pity and is apt to cause you unhappiness."

"But if you're odd and don't mind, then no harm is done, and every one is more or less satisfied."

"You came to see me because I was odd, possibly?"

"Possibly," said Billie Brownie, "as long as you don't mind the use of that word."

Hoptarchy was the name given to the seven principal kingdoms established by the Saxons in England at various times from the Fifth to the Ninth centuries. They were as follows: Essex, Sussex, Wessex, Kent, East Angles, Mercia, and Northumbria. In 828 A. D. these various petty kingdoms were united under one government by Egbert, king of Wessex, who was from that time styled king of England. The word heptarchy means seven governments.—Kansas City Star.

An auditor, examining the rate-books in a rural district, not far from London, was puzzled to find the letter "H" against several names where the place of residence should be indicated. Upon being asked to explain, the assistant overseer said: "Oh, well, as a matter of fact, those particular people are dead, but not knowing for certain, I felt unable to give more than the initial letter of their present abode."

"These 'ere floods," said the oldest inhabitant, "remind me of the time when th' old parson prayed for rain. A fireman testing an alarm was startled to hear soft music on the line. A moment later he heard a woman singing. A full program followed. The reason for the music is a mystery. One theory is that the wire of the alarm is picking up from an earth line, another that it is the result of induction on overhead lines.

HOW TWO WOMEN AVOIDED OPERATIONS

The Following Letters of Mrs. Thurston and Mrs. Beard Carry an Encouraging Message to Other Sick Women

MRS. ETHEL THURSTON
224 N. PINE STREET, LIMA, OHIO
Lima, Ohio.—"I want to tell you how your medicine has helped me. For weeks I suffered with awful pains from inflammation and I was in such agony that I had to bend double to get relief. I could not be touched or moved, had awful pain all over my abdomen and could not touch my feet to the floor. It was impossible for me to straighten up and the pains never ceased. I took treatments for some time and finally was told I would have to have an operation. I do not believe in operations, and I had read so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I told my husband I would try it before I gave up. I soon began to feel that it was doing me good. The awful misery began to leave me, also the backache. I have a good appetite and am gaining in weight. Taking the medicine was the best thing I ever did. I feel like it has saved my life and I do not hesitate to say so to my friends. At least it saved me from a dreaded operation and I am still taking it. I am willing to answer letters from women asking about the medicine."

—Mrs. ETHEL THURSTON, 224 North Pine Street, Lima, Ohio.

Mrs. Beard's Letter:
Eddy, Texas.—"I will write you a few words, thinking it will do some one else good. Two doctors said I would have to be operated on because for nearly twelve months I suffered from a weakness from which I could get no relief. I was restless and nervous and was not able to walk across the house. They said it was the Grippe of Life. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the newspapers, and as I could not get any help from doctors I thought I would give that a trial. I began with the liquid and it helped me some, then you advised me to take the tablet form and I began to improve rapidly. I have gained in weight from 105 to 170 pounds. I recommend it to all women with this trouble."
Mrs. M. E. BEARD, R. No. 1, Box 143, Eddy, Texas.

Now, — A safe, easy way to remove retained afterbirth

Now any farmer can do it himself, do it easily, at less than one-tenth the usual cost.

Retained afterbirth is too serious to let go. Nine times out of ten it causes poor health, less milk, waste of feed, bad odor. The infection may result in blood poisoning. Removing the afterbirth by force is dangerous for you and also for the cow. It never is complete. Such a cow is apt to get mastitis and other troubles for you again. Yet it is easy to take care of. You can do it yourself.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

FORMING HABITS

IN A broad sense, habit may be termed the element of conscious or unconscious persistence. Some habits are opposed to noble growth, such as indolence, indifference to lofty impressions, targetiness, the acquisition of ragged tempers, vulgar speech, failure to adapt one's self to new circumstances, fault-finding and the common habit of thinking evil of one's friends and neighbors. There are hundreds of such habits which are opposed to the development of the best there is in us, ruinous alike to our future careers and contentment. By following a train of wrong ideas again and again, we gradually lose our ability to distinguish evil from good. We become skeptical, cynical, narrow, and unless by some fortunate discovery we see the falsity of our position before it is too late to mend, we find ourselves in company with the grouches, sour-faced and fault-finders. No man or woman who would win success and the good opinion of his or her friends, can hope to do so without first overcoming his or her degrading habits.

The Appleton Family

Mr. Lysander John Appleton
Mrs. Lysander John Appleton
Miss Doree Mayme Appleton
Master Chauncey Doree Appleton

MRS. LYSANDER JOHN APPLETON is equal to any emergency. "I see," said a guest at dinner, picking up spoons that had been borrowed from the neighbors, "that you have children named Louise, Harold and Grace. I was under the impression that you had only two children; Doree Mayme and Chauncey Doree." "We have only two," responded Mrs. Appleton, "the others are our children who are safe with Jesus." Then she fell over with a dry sob, and Lysander John fell over in a fit.

When Doree Mayme Appleton has girl company in the evening, and Chauncey Doree is called upon to spend ten minutes in taking them home, he feels that he has a good excuse for not knowing every lesson next day, and blames it on his sister and mother.

A "word picture," as it is generally understood, is any paper prepared by the women on Meanness of Men. Of course Doree Mayme never intends it, but her hearers can always see a good picture of her father sticking out of every line.

If all Mrs. Appleton says of her girlhood days is true the men are terribly changed. In those days a man would display great energy in courting a girl.

Your Last Name

IS IT GARFIELD?

JAMES A. GARFIELD, twentieth president of the United States, was with the majority of presidents in his English ancestry, at least as far as his name is concerned. He was descended from Edward Garfield of Garfield, who was born in 1755 and came from his home in Chester, England, to settle in Watertown, Mass. It is said that his wife was probably an emigrant from Germany whom he married on the voyage to the new world. The family was well established in Massachusetts, for the most part farmers. In the revolution they served with such good will that most of the Garfield families came out of the war very much impoverished and it was at about that time that the Garfields pressed into New York state and there vest with the hope of renewing their fortunes. It was in 1817 that the branch of the Garfield family to which the President belonged went to Ohio, and in 1831 James A. Garfield was born there. Though the founder of the family

Garthfield or Garfield was probably first applied to a certain location and a family residing there assumed the name. ## CAN SING

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

IF A bird in a cage can sing, my dear, As though the days of the spring were here, If a bird, forgetting the time o' year, Can sing in a room that is dark and dim As though he sat on a greening limb, Yea, sing for those who imprison him, If a bird, when all that he knew are gone To the lovely South or the crimson dawn, Can sit alone, and can still sing on— Surely then you and I can sing, Whatever shadows around us cling Or what the moment may chance to bring, Surely then you and I can be, Though bound in body, in spirit free, Can sing a little as well as he.

For few shall find what they most desire; We are all shut in with our strands of wire, Till hearts grow heavy and bodies tire; We may not labor at what we dream; But the whistling boy has the willing team, And a little song makes a shorter seam. We lose some loves as we pass along, There are some gone far, there are some gone wrong, But still there is joy enough for songs No night so dark but the dawn is near— Oh, we can find some thought to cheer If a bird in a cage can sing, my dear!

Keep Windows Clean New Easy Way

Amazing new liquid now takes place of powder, soap, water. Few drops clean dirtiest windows in 15 seconds!

NO LONGER is it hard to keep your windows bright and shining. Now it is so easy to do. You may think we're too enthusiastic about C-it, yet all we do is to repeat what you say. But test C-it for yourself. We make it easy for you in this manner. Just buy a can of C-it and try it on one window. Then decide if what we say is true. If you don't agree, return the unused contents to your grocer and get back every penny. This free test plan, you must agree, is the fairest offer any grocer can make.

In fairness to yourself, please make the test and time in two by using it.

Keep C-it on hand for cleaning glass in auto. Cut work and time in two by using it.

QUIT GETTING UP NIGHTS

A Healthy Bladder Aids During the Day

C. N. Shuman, Republic, Ohio, says: "Before taking Lithiated Buchu (Keller Formula) had to get up six or seven times each night. Now I do not get up at all. You may use my name if it would benefit anyone with bladder trouble." Be careful not to take drugs that check the action of the bladder. You may have to continue its use. Lithiated Buchu (Keller Formula) increases the action during the day. It cleanses the bladder as opium salts do the bowels driving out foreign matter, neutralizing excess acids, thereby relieving the irritation which causes "Getting Up Nights." The tablets cost 2c each at all drug stores or Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio. Locally by Edw. C. Miller, Druggist.
