CHAPMAN, BANDIT, TO DIE ON JUNE 25

King of Outlaws Found Guilty of Murder of Police Officer.

Hartford, Conn.—The colorful life of Gerald Chapman, vivid in spectacular misdeeds which earned for him a reputation as the country's most dangerous criminal, was ordered forfeited by a Connecticut jury.

He was sentenced to be hanged a few minutes after midnight next June 25 for the murder of Patrolman James Skelly last October 12 in New Britain.

But Chapman, still the stolid criminal of iron nerve, hasn't given up the fight for his life. Notice of appeal from the first-degree murder verdict was filed by Chief Defense Counsel Frederick J. Groehl directly after sentence had been imposed.

Motion picture spectators had for the last week missed pictures of Walter E. Shean, the Springfield (Mass.) advertising man who first accused Chapman of murder. Chapman's picture was shown on the screen.

Hugh M. Alcorn, state's attorney, said that he would recommend to the court a long prison term for the Springfield man, who is expected to plead guilty to a robbery charge.

Shean, when captured near Davidson & L. Venbach's New Britain department store on Sunday morning, October 12 last, told the police that Chapman had been his partner in looting the store safe. Shean said Chapman was the crackman who had shot a path to freedom, killing Skelly.

Chapman did not flinch at the reading of the verdict, "guilty as charged." Nor did he gaze at the jurors.

BAN ON CAPITAL IS REMOVED BY RUSS

Persecution of Private Trade Nearly Brought Ruin.

Moscow.—Far-reaching decisions affecting the future economic policy of Russia were taken by the council of labor and defense. Finding complete government control of trade and industry was a failure, the council meeting, of which Leo Kamenoff, acting premier, was chairman, decided to invite private capitalists to enter trade.

Present restrictions regarding the sale of goods to private capitalist organizations will be removed and taxes on private traders greatly reduced. In introducing these reforms, which are considered the most important since the late Premier Nikolai Lenin inaugurated the so-called new economic policy, M. Kamenoff said:

"At the present juncture the 'trade deficit' which exists in certain regions of the Soviet union is more harmful and dangerous to the economic structure of the socialist state than private capitalism."

It was on the initiative of the supreme economic council that the new reforms are being introduced. It is admitted now that the drastic campaign which was waged against private trade virtually ruined Russia's internal trade, bringing the country to the verge of economic crisis.

M. Dzerzhinsky, head of the supreme economic council, was more outspoken in condemnation of the present attitude toward private trade than was Kamenoff.

"The great sinns before the government," said M. Dzerzhinsky, "force us to admit that our present economic policy was a mistaken one. Our source of strength is in the very fact that we are not afraid to admit our defects."

Dickey Murder Jury Fails to Reach Verdict Waukegan, Ill.—After deliberating 49 hours and taking more than 250 ballots, the jury which heard the evidence against four defendants charged with murdering Russell S. Dickey, express messenger, disagreed and was discharged. There will be a retrial on April 27.

They were said to have participated in a robbery of the Viking express on the Chicago & Northwestern railway last December 20. COOLIDGE TALKS TO COTTON MEN

Tells Magnates He Sees No Cause to Worry Over Textile Trade.

Washington.—If the dozens of cotton-spinning magnates who listened to President Coolidge expected from him any sunny assurances of an increased tariff on textile imports, they were wholly disappointed. Some such prognostication some of them wished to hear.

But the President told them all that "a broad view" of the cotton industry suggests "no serious occasion of concern about its outlook."

He granted that there had been something of depression in certain branches of the American cotton spinners, who sold abroad last year nearly 500,000,000 yards of goods—or nearly 20 per cent more than in pre-war years—had no call to worry about business.

"Such a showing," he remarked looking over his horn-rimmed spectacles at the bankers, "cannot reasonably be regarded as discouraging."

He touched on short shorts, saying: "Probably you all have heard the story of the textile manufacturer observing at a continental race track that the most fashionable custom wore the shortest skirts, promptly called home to his manager to prepare for a shrinkage in the demand for their products."

Well, the President has found out that the story illustrated no fanciful state of affairs. He learned it when, in preparing the seven-page paper he was reading to the bankers, he sent for "a thoroughly matter-of-fact young man," as he called him, who is an expert in one of the government departments dealing with textiles. And the thoroughly matter-of-fact young man had told him that twenty years ago it took nearly ten yards of gingham to make a woman a dress, whereas, so the President was assured and does believe, "she now manages to be thoroughly in fashion on three and a half yards."

He told the cotton spinners that he once heard one of them say that if women could be induced to stabilize and standardize their fashions as men have done, half the worries and uncertainties of the textile industries would be eliminated at once. The speaker continued: "No doubt such a result would be a boon to the industry, but I need scarcely say that I see no way of bringing it about."

Balked although he thus is by what he described as "the uncertainty and change of fashion," he found compensations, for he added, "no doubt it relieves monotony and adds to the spice of life."

He wound up by giving the bankers—as among who were many of the great cotton kings of his native New England—some blunt advice on trade ethics, saying: "You men who are responsible for an industry ought to make unlawful and improper practices in that industry thoroughly unprofitable. It may seem expensive to change improper practices, but they will have to be changed in the end, and the sooner it is done the less expensive it will be."

Only upon justice to the wage earners of the nation can there be reached any lasting prosperity.

Pleads for Dissolution of Morris-Armour Merger Washington.—Special Counsel Fisher for the government, made a plea to Secretary Jardine to issue an order directing the dissolution of the Morris-Armour packing "merger," at the opening of the final arguments in the merger case, for alleged violation of the packers and stockyards act.

Mr. Fisher contended that it made no difference whether the deal was outright purchase of the properties by Armour & Co., as packers' counsel has declared, or a consolidation or merger, since in either case it would be a violation of the law forbidding re-creation of interstate commerce in that it would tend to prevent the free flow of live stock through the stockyards to the buying markets.

Doheny, Jr., independent oil operators—were dismissed in the District of Columbia Supreme court because of the presence in the grand jury room of Oliver E. Hogan, an assistant to the attorney general.

Through District Attorney Gordon, special government counsel in the oil cases, it was learned that an appeal would be taken. Should the government finally lose in this fight the way still would be open for presentation to a new grand jury of the conspiracy charges in connection with the lease of Teapot Dome naval reserve to Sinclair and of California oil reserves to Doheny.

BLAINE TAX BILL PASSES, 48 TO 36

Assembly Approves Measure Without Changes After Struggle.

Madison.—The Blaine administration income tax bill has passed the assembly by a vote of 48 to 36. The measure was introduced in the assembly by a vote of 48 to 36. The measure was introduced in the assembly by a vote of 48 to 36.

Exemptions for a married man are raised from $1,200 to $1,600, for dependents from $200 to $300. Distribution of revenues is made on the basis of 50 per cent to cities, 40 per cent to the state, 10 per cent to counties. The state now gets 10 per cent, cities 70, and counties 20.

Opponents of the bill started a filibuster and resorted to a call of the house in an effort to stall off final action, and for a half hour there was a stormy session. The administration forces were perfectly mobilized, however, and soon forced the issue to a vote, climaxing one of the bitterest fought legislative battles in history.

Two last minute coups by the administration forces assured them a majority. Two Douglas county members who had been opposed to the bill lined up with the majority when they were assured that nothing would be done to prevent grain elevators and coal docks in their home district from using occupational taxes as an offset.

As an additional attraction to wavering members an original bill was introduced in the senate to allow a $500 offset on merchants and manufacturers' stock, professional men's books and instruments and farmers' live stock.

Another tax battle that bids fair to rival in intensity the contest on the administration measure is threatened over the "eleventh hour" exemption bill unexpectedly introduced in the senate.

The new bill is intended to take some of the "kick" out of the income tax bill through the granting of certain exemptions. It places merchants and manufacturers' stock to the extent of $500, fixtures, farm machinery, mechanics' tools and books in the exempt class. According to word emanating from the office of Gov. Blaine a substitute bill is being prepared which will grant still broader exemptions.

No Change in Highway Bond Administration forces received their first important defeat of the present session when the senate voted 19 to 9 to kill the bill for the abolishment of ex-officio members of the state highway commission. Lined up against the Blaine forces on the bill to abolish the ex-officio members of the highway commission were the conservatives, the socialists and the anti-administration progressives.

The senate killed the bill about 1 o'clock in the morning, after having been in session at that time for sixteen consecutive hours, with the doors locked and the sergeants guarding the entrances. All meals were carried in to the senators during the day.

The administration senators resorted to every parliamentary device to delay the vote on the bill. Filibusters, substitutes, calls of the senate were all included.

Against Elimination—Bilgrin, Gettler, Boldt, Casperson, Daggett, Carroll, Hull, Lange, Meligan, Padway, Polakowski, Quick, Rothe, Saultoff, Schuman, Severson, Smith, Htus, White.—19.

For Elimination—Barker, Casman, Chase, England, Gary, Heck, Johnson, Kemp, Staudenmayer.—9.

After the bill had been indefinitely postponed and all the substitutes and amendments rejected, Senator Harry B. Saultoff of Madison moved for reconsideration and asked that the rules be suspended for this purpose. The intent of the Madison senator was to kill immediately the bill for the remainder of the session.

It is the plan of the new concessionaires to make the state park a winter playground as well as a summer resort.

"It's the drink," she said. "You're better looking than any average woman in Avonmouth. See here are you going to bust up the game or are you not?"

"I'll show you," shouted Lancaster, breaking from Myers' grasp and rushing from the room.

He met the woman at the foot of the stairs. His face was flushed, his hair disheveled, his manner unbecomingly excited.

"You speak, what are you butting into this affair?" he demanded of Mrs. Frayer.

"The matron, raised by his violence, the matron, tried to pull Joan to her feet, but she caught her eye and she said: 'You've got to go, Joan. You've got to go, and not even that; nothing shall make me falter till I have won you again.'"

The man's eyes blazed. "You're right; you're dead right there, Joan," he cried, and caught her in his arms. He pressed his lips to hers.

She struggled wildly in his grasp. "Let me go!" she panted. But she could not free herself. She screamed. The matron's voice shrieked through the door. "Shoot him! Shoot him!"

Joan shrieked, her arms free and struck at the man, but he pinioned it again.

"I've got you, Joan!" he cried triumphantly, "and nothing under heaven shall make me let you go."

Held as she was, Joan got her fingers into her pocket. She grasped the little revolver and pulled it forth. She thrust it upward into the man's face. He recoiled with an oath, squinting at the weapon, his face convulsed. And in that moment knowledge came to Joan Wentworth.

"You are not John Lancaster!" she cried.

As she spoke she heard the sound of halting footsteps on the porch. The door swung slowly open. Joan's hand dropped to her side, she slid the revolver mechanically into her pocket; she tried to cry but could not.

Upon the threshold of the door, looking out with a wry, distorted grin on his pale lips, was the man who had held her. And on the threshold, looking in, with eyes drug-clouded, swaying and clutching at the door-pillars to support himself upright, was the John Lancaster of yesterday. And even Joan, with all her love and hate, could not have told the one man from the other.

But with a cry she ran to Lancaster, and caught at his arm, and felt his arms about her.

Chapter XI

It seemed to Joan, long afterward, like some dreadful picture, the swaying man upon the threshold, to whom she clung, and his double within; and then the rasping voice of Myers broke the long silence.

"Well, well," said the secretary, rubbing his hands together, "here's a pretty kettle of fish. It will all have to come out now."

The Lancaster within the door turned his eyes from Joan to Myers; his passion and rage had frozen into malevolence.

"Don't put the blame on me," said Myers acidly. "I warned you to get rid of her."

Strangely, at that moment Joan felt that she, in spite of her physical weakness, was the dominating figure in the play, and the controlling mind as well.

John Lancaster advanced into the hall. His double, who had drawn back a pace or two, stood watching his efforts to steady himself with a scornful smile. Joan put her hands on her lover's arm; it seemed unbearable that he should display his weakness for them to mock at.

But then, glancing into his face, she saw that, weak as he was, and morphia-ridden, too, it was John Lancaster himself, virile in personality and mind, who had come back. The devil who had been exercising and peering into his secret and garbished chamber, but he could claim only the physical domain. The body was alive with the accursed drug, but the soul of John Lancaster looked from the cloudy eyes, a man's and not a weakling's.

And Joan knew that it was through no fault of his that he had come back enchained, and that her love had borne him throughout the day and kept his spirit whole.

Lancaster's double turned fiercely upon the secretary.

"Yes, it is a pretty kettle of fish," he retorted, "and it's going to be fried. I'll have this on tonight. Curse you, why didn't you stay here at your post, instead of running to me? Were you afraid of this girl?"

"Who is this man?" Joan asked Lancaster.

"My half-brother and my evil spirit," he answered.

"Why don't you order him to go? Why don't you order them both to go?"

"Because," replied the other, sneering. "John Lancaster sold me his birthright for a mess of pottage—morphine pottage. That's why. Because it is I whom the world knows as John Lancaster, and not that outcast, who has sunk so low that he sold his very name for drugs."

"That is a lie," said Lancaster. "You stole my name. You devil, you have robbed me of my manhood these four years past."

"Gentlemen," cried the secretary, "we've got to talk this matter over, and this isn't the place. If the agreement has worked any injustice to Doctor Lancaster, no doubt it can be readjusted. It is clear that we've got to come to a sensible understanding. Let's face the facts like men, and talk it over in the doctor's room. And this girl had better go upstairs," he added.

"Miss Wentworth stays with me," said Lancaster.

The double and the secretary exchanged ironical glances. It was evident that they did not feel themselves to be in the position of trapped conspirators.

"Doctor Lancaster, if you cannot order them to leave, is it necessary that you should be drawn into a discussion now?" Joan asked.

"Yes, it is necessary," said Lancaster. "I'll fight this thing with Lawson to a finish tonight."

"Lawson?"

"I believe that I am Lawson," said Lancaster's half-brother, with an impatient bow. "Though I have as good a right to the name as Doctor Lancaster here. Perhaps I should have introduced myself before. But now that we are all introduced I am ready to accept Mr. Myers' sensible suggestion."

They went toward Lancaster's room. Joan perceived now that the doctor's weakness was purely a physical one; he dragged his limbs slightly, the curious result of the morphine poisoning that she had noted before. But he was gaining strength rapidly, and his will had never been stronger.

This was the last battle, of which he had so often spoken to her. This fight must end his captivity.

She went into the room with him, confident in that belief. Myers closed the door behind them and placed his thickest body in front of it. It was astonishing to see how Lancaster braced himself for the ordeal. He drew himself up, standing erect, and faced the others.

"Doctor Lancaster has the floor," said Lawson mockingly. "At least, I understand that the proposal to revise our agreement comes from him."

"Joan, I owe you an explanation," said Lancaster, turning toward the girl. "This morning, after I had operated, I was called to the house which people think is mine—which should be mine," he added with sudden vehemence. "I was told it was an urgent case. I found these men there. They drew me into an argument, and in the heat of it Myers plunged a needleful of morphine into my arm."

"To quiet you, because you were becoming violent and injuring yourself," answered the secretary. "Yes, I did, and I left you in good hands."

"They left me senseless in the consulting room, but I managed to force my limbs to obey my will. John Lancaster had still a little more will power than they had counted on. And John Lancaster's name was enough to conjure up a special train this afternoon, though they had robbed him of his money."

Joan put her hands on Lancaster's shoulders. "That is all you need to tell me," she said quietly. "I knew you had been trapped by them. I never doubted you."

"Eight years ago," said Lancaster, "I was a man respected in Avonmouth and everywhere throughout the South. Then a domestic trouble overtook me. You know what that was, Joan. It broke me down. I could not cope with life. I lost my grip on reality, gave up my work."

"Yes, John, now we're getting at the truth," interposed Lawson bitterly. "You, the honored head of the Southern hospital, became a common tramp and wandered about the country with hoboes, and I have been living down your reputation for you. Go on, John. Don't skip the interesting parts."

HATS "SAY IT WITH FLOWERS"; ONE-PIECE FROCK IS POPULAR

THIS season's chapeaux are surely "saying it with flowers" first, last and all the time. When fashion prescribes flowers in abundance, fascinating millinery is the result—which exactly describes the new spring hats. Not only are our chapeaux generously belowered, but in an overflow of enthusiasm stylists are pinning boutonnières to match on milky's coat lapel or dropping a wee bouquet on her shoulder. Sometimes this flower is attached to a ribbon which serves as a connecting link between chapeau and bouquet. This novelty of matching a boutonniere to the flowers on the hat is favored by smart Parisiennes, and milliners everywhere are encouraging a one-piece cloth dress. Far be it from us to wrest any honors from the ensemble costume than which there is no more popular fashion this season. However, as a faithful record of the mode, be it stated here that the one-piece frock still occupies a conspicuous niche in the realm of present-day modes.

In the modern street dress of cloth, sleeves are a very important item. That they must be long, buttoning to the wrist, is fashion's edict. This does not interfere with varied treatment, as the picture herewith bears witness. In fact designers are bestowing real artistry in the fashioning of the long sleeve

Milliners Are Belowering Hats. This lovely fashion by selling with the hat an extra matching dower to pin on coat or frock.

One of the most charming uses of flowers is the covering of the entire crown hat to the right center in this illustration of flower-bedecked hats. Violets were used in this instance topped with a single lovely pink rose.

Milliners particularly favor roses this season. Note them on the hat illustrated first in this group; also on the pliant straw shape to the right below.

Novelty is the charm of most of the little handmade straw hats. The model

This also may be said of the new high-collared effect, which is also characteristic of the more exclusive cloth frocks. It is the choker collar which imparts supreme individuality to the model illustrated. Chinese embroidery and a heavily beaded ornament lend a vivid note of color to this navy blue cloth conception. By the way, there is great rejoicing in the realm of fashion over the reappearance of navy blue or the field of colors sponsored by the mode. In discussing color special mention must be made of gray. Its importance is increasing hourly, especially since the first lady of the land selected moonstone gray for wear

When is a street frock of marked individuality? Answer: When it dares not to be an ensemble costume but definitely plays the role of at the recent inauguration ceremonies. Front flares are also often introduced in the otherwise straightline dress for street wear. The idea of accenting this flare with a border of fur seems to be heartily indorsed by the majority of designers.

Special emphasis is being placed on distinctly wearable cloth types this season, many of which look like coats but are really dresses. The introduction of the yoke gives a new aspect to tailored types.

Clipped Marabou Like Fur
Marabou clipped so fine that it resembles fur is used to trim many of the new coats for Southern wear. These are of heavy crepe or satin and are made on the straight lines of a tailored model. The marabou appears as a band around the bottom of the skirt and as a finish to the sleeves.

Coats for Spring
Coats for spring frequently have horizontal tucks an inch or so apart, covering the entire surface.

New Frocks Plaited
There are enough plaited but they don't go around. They are placed only at the front or sides of the newest frocks. One of these of black velvet has a row of heavy plaits falling from a diagonal line of roses, embroidered in salmon and blue, with diamante foliage, placed at the hip line.

Returns to Favor
Black taffeta is returning to favor, being particularly liked for bouffant models with a Spanish accent.

The Kitchen Cabinet

Everyone knows that money alone cannot make good dishes, however good the raw material may be.

A FEW LEFTOVERS
Leftover fish seems to be a hard problem for most housewives to use wisely.

Baked Chowder—In a buttered baking dish put a layer of sliced raw potatoes cut very thin, sprinkle with sliced onion and stewed tomato, then a layer of boiled fish; season each layer with salt and pepper and cooked bacon crushed and sprinkled over the fish, adding a little bacon fat. Moisten with water, dredge the top with flour and bake covered until the potatoes are soft, then uncover and brown. Use three potatoes, two onions, a cupful of tomatoes and one and one-half cupfuls of boiled fish, with one cupful of water and three slices of bacon and the bacon fat.

Spiced Fish With White Sauce—Season highly any leftover boiled fish with tomato catsup, anchovy, Worcestershire and a little paprika. Prepare enough rich white sauce to pour over the fish, add two well-beaten egg yolks to each cupful of white sauce. Flake the fish, pour the sauce over it and heat in the oven.

Fish Cocktail—Take a small piece of cold boiled halibut, remove the skin and bones and flake it. Season with salt and pepper. Make a cocktail sauce by mixing together for each glass one teaspoonful of tarragon vinegar, tomato catsup, lemon juice, one-half teaspoonful of horseradish, and a drop of tabasco sauce.

Kedjeree—Cook two eggs until hard. Remove all bones and skin from a cupful of leftover fish and chop it with the eggs. Take one-cupful of cooked rice, quite moist, add to the fish and eggs, reheat, season with salt and pepper and serve very hot. Smoked haddock or whitefish is good for this dish.

Codfish Scallop With Rice and Eggs—Mix two tablespoonfuls of cream or melted butter with one and one-half cupfuls of boiled rice, arrange in layers with one and one-half cupfuls of creamed codfish, finish with rice. On top break four eggs, sprinkle with salt and dot with butter. Bake in the oven until the eggs are set.

Good Foods
Everybody likes a good potato salad, but why will good cooks sometimes serve cold potatoeese unpalatable and unseasoned and call the dish salad? As the potato cut into cubes, small ones, too, takes some time to absorb the flavor of dressing and other vegetables added to it, it is reasonable to let them stand some time in a marinade (thin French dressing) just enough to lightly moisten the potato. With onion, cucumber, a few shredded almonds, and finally a good highly seasoned dressing, the salad will be palatable.

Oak Hill Potato Salad—Cut cold boiled potatoes into small cubes; to two cupfuls add one-half cupful of finely cut celery and a medium-sized apple cut into dice. Mix with a good French dressing and let stand until ready to serve, then add enough thick mayonnaise or boiled dressing to coat each bit of the salad and serve.

Potato Salad—Cook potatoes in their jackets, to have a good flavored potato. Peel and cut into dice twelve medium-sized potatoes. Cut one cucumber into dice after peeling, and shred the heart of a bunch of celery which has been crisped in cold water. Cut three hard-cooked eggs into eighths, then into slices. Mix all together with a good cooked salad dressing and let stand two or three hours to season. Serve on lettuce garnished with a spoonful of the dressing. If wished especially crisp add the cucumber or another one cut into cubes at the time of serving with a few shredded almonds.

Baked Rhubarb—Wash stalks of rhubarb, wipe and cut into inch pieces without removing the skin. Arrange in layers with sugar sprinkled on each, in a baking dish, and bake until the rhubarb is tender. Add one or two tablespoonfuls of water at first, cover and bake for a few minutes, then remove the cover.

Strawberry and Pistachio Surprise—Soak one-fourth of a package of gelatin in one-fourth of a cupful of cold water. Add one cupful of milk scalded with three ounces of pistachio nuts and one-half cupful of sugar. Stir until the gelatin is dissolved, add enough green coloring to make a delicate green. Set the pan in ice water. When the mixture begins to congeal, add a pint of whipped cream. Decorate the mold with choice strawberries cut into halves and blanched and chopped pistachio nuts. Mold and let stand to become firm.

Lettuce, or some form of green food should be served daily in every family. A child who does not like a lettuce salad may eat a sandwich with a leaf of lettuce which has been dipped into French dressing.

Neenie May well

Father Delighted
Said he, nervously: "When on earth will your father say when he knows we're engaged?"
"Oh," she replied, "he'll be simply delighted—simply delighted. He always is."

Finland's Proud Record
A book on police systems states that Finland has no police system and that the natives are the most law-abiding people on earth.

Norfolk, Virginia.—"If you only knew how many women and girls have taken your medicine by bearing my testimony, it would seem wonderful to you. Every day and every chance I have I advise some one to try it. It was in June, 1904, when I had given up to never get well, that I wrote to you. My husband was so kind to bring me the Vegetable Compound home to me. In a few days I began to improve and I have often taken it since. I am now passing through the Change of Life and still stick by it and an enjoying wonderful health. When I first started with your medicine I was a mere shadow. My health seemed to be gone. The last doctor I had said he would give me no more local treatments unless I went to the Hospital and was operated on. That was when I gave the doctors up. Now I am a healthy robust woman. I wish I could tell the world what a wonderful medicine Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is. I will be only too glad to answer letters from anywhere. I wish all sick women would take it."—Mrs. J. A. Jones, 317 Colley Avenue, Norfolk, Virginia.

For the last time Joan felt her spirit begin to shrink from the ordeal. She was cowed, she was almost as helpless as if he had used physical violence toward her. And through the mental dream she was aware that Myers had come out of his room and was watching the scene from the end of the hall, wearing a smug, complacent smile. Myers was getting his way and having his revenge in one.

And because the situation was too horrible for belief, Joan could remember only the Lancaster of the yesterday. She ran to the man and caught

Expression Actually an Invitation to Death

The origin of some common expressions is always interesting, and whether the following is authentic or not is an open question. When in ancient days the weaving industry of Halifax, England, was a cottage craft—a farmer's family working on clumsy handlooms—the "pieces" used to be spread out on the hillside, and were therefore peculiarly liable to theft.

Particular crimes led to particular remedies, and a custom, which had the authority of a local law, grew up, that anyone then convicted of stealing cloth to the value of 13 pence halfpenny was liable to immediate execution, a drastic law which naturally safeguarded the cloth industry.

DON'T GET UP NIGHTS

John Lampkins, Dayton, Ohio says: "Come to 7 Carrie St., and I will show you 25 pieces of gravel that passed after taking Lithiated Buchu (Keller Formula). Had to get up 15 times at night for two years. 'Bright Now' Lithiated Buchu cleanses the bladder like Epsom Salts do the bowels, thereby relieving irritation, driving out foreign matter and neutralizing excessive acids. These are the causes of unnatural action of the bladder at night. Lithiated Buchu (Keller Formula) is not a cheap medicine. The tablets cost 2 cents each. Sold at leading drug stores or Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio."

ORCHARD TREES ARE PRUNED

As a result of the 6 meetings of Orchard Pruning held by Conrad L. Kuehner and Milton H. Button it is estimated that 150 orchards of Washington County are being pruned. This should certainly result in more and better fruit being produced in Washington County.
Pruning alone will not produce good fruit, but pruning plus fertilizing and spraying will produce good fruit.
All orchard owners interested in spraying are requested to send County Agent Button concerning the material used in spraying and the time of application.

$15,000 BLM SUIT IS BEGUN

A summons and complaint in a $15,000 damage suit have been served on attorneys for Rollie Smith, Campbellsport, by Attorney C. P. Van Pelt, acting for Ernest H. Cole, who has demanded for damages on the claim that Smith alienated the affections of his wife, from whom he secured a divorce in county court two months ago.

Smith was named as correspondent in the counter-complaint filed by Cole when his wife sued him for divorce, and is also charged in the new suit with having influenced Mrs. Cole to begin the suit. It developed at the trial that Mrs. Cole is making her home at Smith's residence in Campbellsport, and when the matter of the custody of the children came up for discussion, Judge A. E. Richter made it plain that the mother could not hope to secure their custody until she had changed her place of abode.—Fond du Lac Reporter.

FISHERMEN MUST WAIT UNTIL JUNE 1st

An announcement issued Monday by the state conservation commission warns fishermen in Wisconsin to pay heed to the laws on the catching or molesting of game fish in any manner up to June 1. Game wardens throughout the state have been instructed to arrest and prosecute to the full extent of the law all offenders. The measure is taken to permit game fish to reproduce during the spring opening of lakes and streams without molestation.

JURY DECIDES FOR WORKMAN

"The laborer is worthy of his hire." That is effect is what a jury decided in a case tried in circuit court, when they awarded one Joseph Twardowski of Milwaukee the sum of $450 as back wages which he claimed for services rendered Anton Halabuda, a farmer in the town of Mequon. Twardowski asked for $685. The defendant claimed that Twardowski was a poor workman and that during most of the time for which he claimed wages, his hired man merely boarded at his home at his expense.—Port Washington Herald.

"Is It Nothing to You?"

There is a seething mob in the narrow streets. Hooding, jelling, jeering and sniggering taunts. Breast-plates of Roman soldiers glitter in the morning sunshine. A rattle of arms. A sudden move to protect the prisoner in the center. For a vile beggar from the gutters tries to break through the cordon to spit on the passive face. A snarl from the centurion, applause from the mob, knives flashing and mocking glances. There is a short halt, a wooden cross is brought from a carpenter shop. It is placed on the prisoner's shoulder. Then the march is resumed, a squirming, seething column of passion-heated human beings. Out over the road of sorrows to a hill in the distance. That is Jerusalem 2000 years ago, Pierre Van Passen writes, in the Atlantic Constitution. The prisoner is Jesus Christ, son of Mary of Nazareth, a dreamer, one who called himself a king. There He goes to be nailed to the cross.

I have written. That's the last we hear of Pilate, the Roman jurist, the representative of Caesar, who prides himself on justice and right. Reckless, bitter, distinguished and cynical he passes into history, and his place knows him no more.

Preparations for Easter are going on in the palatial residence of the high priest. The candles are burning and the meats and viands for the holidays spread a delicious aroma. Calphus is in a joyful mood. He has with him as guest his father-in-law, Annas. They discuss the crucifixion. Their eyes are brilliant with fanatic passion. Their hatred for the cursed Galilean distorts their noble patrician faces. But there is satisfaction. The heretic is dead. Word has just been brought from Calvary's hill. He who called himself a king, who went about undermining the authority of the Torah. It is a good day. Easter will be a splendid feast.

Supple oriental dancing girls are swaying to and fro. Slaves carry trays with food and golden wine vessels. Incense and exotic perfumes pervade the atmosphere. There is the irresistible rhythm of sweet intoxicating music. On a gilt throne languishes Herod, king in name. A lead has fallen from his shoulders. A messenger has just told him that the Nazarene has given up the ghost on Golgotha. He sits with a gasp. No longer will that speaker of John the Baptist disturb his sleep.

GOD'S HAND AND MAN'S

Behold, would He veil His eyes With mist, and cover Sarah's wounds With verdure. His is a hand of mercy. And man's one of destruction. —Patience Worth.

and burles his head on her knees. Mary's hand strokes his head. That is forgiveness. The most sublime instance of mother love in all the ages.

The moon is chasing high in the cloudy sky. Dogs are snarling below in the valley. They are fighting over bones. Human bones. The bones of Judas Iscariot. He who sold his Master and in terrible agony of self-accusation hanged himself, fell downward from a cliff when the cord around his neck snapped in twain.

Clay Gripp'd by Fear.

Banners pass through the bazars of the city. There is a hint that the veil in front of the Holy of Holies has been rent in twain. That darkness at three o'clock? That earthquake? Can it have anything to do with the death of the Man from Nazareth? Conjectures, opinions, bold assertions, but secret anxiety. The people are worried about their own words before Pilate in the morning: "His blood be on us and upon our children." It's a dark hour in the world's history.

St. Mark's Story of the Resurrection

"And when the Sabbath was past, Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James, and Salome, bought spices, that they might come and anoint Him. And very early the first day of the week they came to the tomb when the sun was risen. And they were saying among themselves, Who shall roll away the stone from the door of the tomb? And, looking up, they saw that the stone was rolled back. And entering into the tomb they saw a young man sitting on the right side, arrayed in a white robe, and they were amazed. And he said unto them, Be not amazed; ye seek Jesus, the Nazarene, who hath been crucified; he is risen; he is not here."

sleep. For he had an idea that Jesus was the Baptist risen from the dead. And it was Herod who ordered John executed. But now his mind is set at rest. He orders more wine, he commands the orchestra leader to strike up the latest melody from fashionable Rome, and he drinks himself into a senseless stupor.

The Faithful Few.

Out in the slums of Jerusalem there is a little gathering. In a backroom, upstairs. At the foot of the stairs a man stands on guard. In the bare room there is sorrow, overwhelming grief intense affliction. A man walks and down, silently. That is Annas, the brother of Peter. In a corner his grief is too great for words. That is Mary, mother of Jesus. Some one lays a hand on her shoulder as if to comfort her. That is John, the beloved disciple. Suddenly the door bursts open. A man enters, his eyes stare wildly before him. His chest is bare and covered with blood. He is beating himself with a stone in oriental fashion. That is Peter, who betrayed his Master. He runs to Mary

Festival of Spring

Many Centuries Old

The custom of holding a spring festival to celebrate the revival of the earth's life for the year—the custom of which the Christian Easter has been only a comparatively recent development—dates back to the remotest antiquity of the nations, and this instinctive desire to rejoice openly at the return of the spring season still seems to be the predominant characteristic of the Easter festival. Its religious significance is of course observed with ceremony in the churches, but the day is also anticipated and made much of in a variety of ways entirely unrelated to the church or its services. In its worldly aspect it differs little in its nature from the ancient pagan festival which commemorated spring.

The same idea of the season inspires it as that which prompted the celebrations thousands of years ago; the differences are only those which the modern mode of life has instituted.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

DO NOT LOSE HOPE

FREQUENTLY, when the days seem darkest and troubles roll in upon you like the storming waves of the sea, trying their best to overwhelm you, sunny-faced Hope is hovering near, ready to rescue you at your bidding. Thousands of weary souls on the very threshold of discouragement, about to yield to the crushing weight of their burdens, have at the last moment resolutely resolved to stand up and make a new fight.

This resolution, in perhaps the most trying hour of their lives, marked the turning-point in their careers.

They found a new courage which carried them on and on, carrying them safely through their hardest battles, where they fought inch by inch until the shout of victory stirred their hearts, warmed their blood and cleared their vision.

From doubting Thomases they became sanguine Pauls, filled with the spirit of faith.

They saw new visions and dreamed new dreams.

They had strength of their own instead of that borrowed from others, which through adversity they soon learned how to use to advantage.

Such are the men and women who today are making a better world for all mankind.

There is nothing too big for them to undertake, no load too heavy for them to carry, no troublesome hills over which they cannot blaze an easy path for the less confident to follow.

Leaders in their chosen fields of labor, they take part in the boldest and noblest adventures, never growing weary of well-doing, never faltering by the wayside, never declining to lend a helping hand to the earnest, struggling in their first effort.

They think, plan, organize, achieve and create, while those without hope, hesitate, draw back, afraid to step up in the clearer, invigorating air and wage the battle with alert brains, hard sinewed arms and hearts unafraid.

They turn stubborn difficulties into willing servants, surmount impending obstacles, write their names on the eternal skies, and call lustily to the new generations to grid their armor, accept Hope as their captain until the end of their days.

Your Last Name

IS IT MAYO?

THIS is one of the many names derived from Matthew. Other forms still found are Maybew and Maydew. The French form of the same name is Mabien. The last names May and sometimes Mayson are said to be derived from these forms of Matthew.

In old records the name is spelled in a variety of ways. Mayow and Mayowze are ways preserved in old records.

In this country the family was founded by a prominent Puritan minister. This was the Rev. John Mayo, who was the first minister of the Second church of Boston, taking that position in 1655. The Rev. Amory Dwight Mayo was also distinguished as an educator.

William Mayo also founded the Virginia family of the name. He was a pioneer surveyor of Virginia and the Barbadoes, who was born in England in 1680 or thereabouts. Robert W. Mayo, born in Powhatan, Va., in 1784, a writer, was a descendant of his.

In England the earls of Mayo are well known among the aristocracy. The family name of these earls, however, is Bourke. There have been many emigrants and religious reformers among the English Mayos. The family is prominent in Herefordshire, from whence William Mayo, who founded the New England branch of the family, probably came. There is also a large family of the name located in Bree in Cornwall.

COLD ROAST BEEF

IN a small family a roast of any size will last too long to be enjoyed more than three times. The following are some suggestions for using leftover roast:

Hot Roast Beef Sandwiches.

For four good-sized sandwiches prepare one cupful of brown sauce, or use the gravy left from the roast, adding to it, when hot, one tablespoonful of finely minced raw pickle. Cut very thin as many slices of rare roast beef as needed. Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter and add to it one-quarter of a teaspoonful of made mustard. Spread the bread with this. Dip the slices of beef into the hot sauce, and place them on the bread. Sprinkle with a very little crushed cold bacon before putting on the slice of bread. Serve on a hot platter, pouring the boiling sauce over all.

Beef Pies.

Cut cold roast beef into inch-square pieces, using two cupfuls. Put into a quart baking dish and season with one-half teaspoonful of salt, a little pepper, one tablespoonful of tomato catsup or of third cupful of ketchup, seasoned tomatoes. Pour over the meat one cupful of liquid, using equal quantities of gravy and hot water. Cover with a crust of baking powder biscuit dough. Cut into six form of biscuit, which leaves openings for the steam to escape.

Dark Stuffed Pudding.

Take one cupful of finely chopped beef suet, one cupful of molasses, one cupful of cold water, two cupfuls of flour, one teaspoonful of soda, one-half teaspoonful of salt, two teaspoon-fuls of cinnamon, and one of cloves. Sift all the dry ingredients, and mix thoroughly. Steam three hours and serve with a hard sauce.

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WE WHO are lazy, we who shirk, I wonder is the trouble this? That we must scourge ourselves to work.

Because the larger view we miss? Why do we labor? Is it just To serve ourselves, and not the age? Are we as common as the dust In which we labor for our wage?

If so, we earn a poor reward. However great our wage may be. 'Tis not for wage men wear the sword, Or plow the land, or fell the tree. Who sees within the tree a hearth, The nourishment within the earth, Who wears a sword to free the earth, He needs no scourge to make him toll.

The world wheels forward like a car, Essential every working cog; What'er your labor, what you are, Behind a desk, upon a log, You play your necessary part In all the work there is to do; Go forward with uplifted heart, Because the world has need of you.

RADIO

(Edited by G. Douglas Wardrop, Editor of Radio Merchandising)

Set Illustrated Includes Simple Arrangement of a Variometer and a Variable Condenser.

This Circuit, Although Not Different From Many Others, Has Enjoyed Remarkable Success.

Among the great army of radio fans in the world today there are hundreds still using crystal-type receivers. There is a reason for this. A good crystal is perfect in reproduction of voice and music.

The crystal set requires no batteries and therefore has no upkeep expense. For one who seeks reception over short distances of about fifty miles a set of this kind is more than satisfactory. There are many fans owning multitube receivers who still keep their crystal sets for local reception. The clear natural tones are a pleasant change from the loud speaker. No harm will result if you take a little snooze, for there are no batteries to run down and no tubes to turn out.

Selectivity Limited.

The principal objection to the crystal set is the lack of selectivity. It lacks the power of the tube receiver to cut one station in and another out. If necessary tuning devices are used that are essential to make a crystal set selective, the resistance created seriously impairs the volume and shortens the range. The energy used in a radio set is infinitesimally small. If all that is accumulated on the average antenna in a year's time were collected into one charge it would not be sufficient to light a flashlight bulb. It is so small there are no instruments delicate enough to accurately measure it. It is therefore necessary to conserve all the energy possible.

There are several methods that may be used to make a crystal set selective. These are loose coupling of the tuning inductances, the use of several variable condensers, or adding a wave-trap arrangement. Aside from being added expense these methods are not wholly efficient. One result is obtained through the sacrifice of another.

Characteristics of Set.

The set shown is a simple arrangement of a variometer and a variable condenser. This circuit, although not basically different from many others, has enjoyed remarkable success. It has good selectivity, good volume, and an exceptional receiving range. In some cases it has been possible to operate a loud speaker on nearby stations and distances of five to seven hundred miles have been heard on the phones. The results are all that could be expected from a crystal receiver.

The reason for this is it has both inductive and capacity tuning and practically no losses. All taps and sliders characteristic of most crystal sets have been abolished and workmanship and materials of vacuum tube quality have been used throughout. It is the unusual practice to build a crystal set as cheaply as possible. This accounts for at least four-fifths of the trouble experienced with crystal sets and is responsible for the limitations put on sets of this type. One wouldn't expect a tube set to work efficiently with a crude tapped coil and "junk" parts, so it is hardly logical to expect it of a crystal set. Before the days of tube receivers the amateurs built crystal sets, using good apparatus, and got results that would envy many owners of tube sets today.

The antenna should be of the single-wire type about 125 feet long. It should be run in a perfectly straight Test Outfit May Be Made Up From Odds and Ends.

Describes Simple Tester for Circuit Continuity
By F. E. MADDOX

I have assembled a very simple test outfit made up from odds and ends around the work shop which helps considerably in determining whether purchased parts and laboratory odds and ends are defective or not. It has also been found useful in testing out radio sets for continuity of circuit, testing fixed and variable condensers for short circuits, jacks and sockets for loose connections, and transformers for short circuits, open circuits

More Audio Frequency Amplification Helps

Many of the things we most want to hear by radio are broadcast during daylight hours, when reception is at its worst. For the ladies there are the household talks during the morning; for the men there are baseball games during the afternoon; for farmers and for the whole family church services on Sunday morning. Yet daylight reception is from two to three times as difficult as nighttime reception, and this means that many receivers are unable to reach stations while the sun's rays are absorbing radio waves that are brought in readily when Sol has dropped below the horizon.

The thing to do, if better daylight reception is desired, would appear to be to add power to the receiver. It is particularly desirable to introduce new units into the radio frequency circuit, for in the daytime we are dealing with very weak original impulses. But where radio frequency amplification will also help.

Protect the Windings

Place a piece of paper over the windings of coils when soldering a connection which has directly over or near the coils. This will prevent solder or soldering paste from spattering on the windings.

Don't Change Set

Don't be too much in a hurry to try to improve on the book-up with which you are experimenting, particularly if it is the invention or design of another. Be sure you first give the original a good try-out.

Cultivation of Soy Bean Shown Motion Picture Gives Every Phase of Culture as Well as Utility.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A motion picture illustrating the cultivation and utilization of the soy bean has just been completed by the United States Department of Agriculture, in which the bureau of plant industry worked in cooperation with Ohio State University. This picture, entitled "Four Men and the Soy," was at Columbus, Ohio, last September while the annual "Soy Bean Day" activities of the Ohio State College of Agriculture were in progress. It is in two reels.

Four Worried Farmers.

The story of "Four Men and the Soy" concerns the troubles of four farmers who "were worried," each after his own fashion, and who found in the Soy-Bean-Day demonstrations the solution of their several troubles with various sorts of beans, early or late. The university farm at Columbus had provided soy beans in all stages, so that it was possible to demonstrate every phase of cultivation in one day. Hence the picture presents a very detailed exemplification of the stages in soy-bean culture, as well as scenes showing the utilization of soy as a hay for cattle, sheep and horses, and of the seed of the soy bean oil cake as a concentrate for hogs, cattle and poultry.

Future is Bright.

The conclusion of the whole matter (to quote from the "Soy-bean speech" which closes the exercises of Soy-Bean Day as portrayed in the film) is that there has been a crop of vast possibilities to the American farmer, and that "its growing popularity and increasing acreage justify the belief that it is destined to become one of the leading farm crops of the United States."

Control Lice and Mites During Summer Weather

With the coming of warm weather lice and mites become a problem to the poultry flock owner because the warm weather provides conditions more favorable for their increase. As prevention is better than a cure, the flock owner must be ever watchful for these pests.

Lice remain on the body of the bird while mites live on the underside of the roosts and in cracks and crevices about the house and their presence may be readily detected. Salt and pepper patches on the underside of the roosts or a characteristic "buggy" odor indicates mites. If taken in time and by keeping conditions about the house or coop "clean" these parasites can do but little harm.

Because of their different habits of life, mites require different treatment than lice. Cleaning the house thoroughly, spraying it, and painting the roosts and nests with a good preservative or creosote will "get" the mites. Nothing more effective or more economical than sodium fluoride could be used to rid the house of lice. For a spray that is available, effective and economical a solution made from rosin, tractor oil and crank case oil diluted with kerosene is very satisfactory.

Gauge Value of Seed by Germination and Purity

Alfalfa seed is regularly advertised in various papers which reach farm homes, at $7 to $9 a bushel. We have each year examined such seed and find that the cheapness is an illusion. By way of illustration the following details may be of interest. A sample just tested is quoted at $7 a bushel, the price actually paid for a six-pound lot was $1.25. The purity analysis on this test was 74.5 per cent, the germination test 46 per cent, hard seed 12 per cent, that is, live seed 61 per cent. The per cent of pure live seed in that sample is 45.4.

A good sample of alfalfa seed should have a purity of 89 per cent or over and a live seed per cent of 95 or more, that is, a pure live seed per cent of 94. At 21 cents per pound for 61 per cent of live seed the cost of good seed is 32.30 cents per lb. Besides this we received 26,000 weed seeds with each pound, 575 of which were dodder.—Anna M. Lute, Analyst, Colorado State Seed Laboratory, Fort Collins.

Diet of Baby Chicks Is Started With Sour Milk

After delaying feeding till the chicks are at least 48 hours old, offer them a drink of sour milk. Keep them in a pen provided with scratching litter, clean alfalfa leaves. After milk has been before them two hours, feed sparingly of scratch grain consisting of six parts cracked yellow corn, two parts cracked wheat, and two parts cracked rye.

When the chicks are a week or ten days old, a mash feed should be provided in addition to the milk and scratch grain, using 30 pounds bran, 20 pounds shorts, 25 pounds yellow cornmeal, ten pounds meat meal, and five pounds bone meal. Mash may be fed before the chicks at all times after they are past two weeks old. Grain may also be kept before them at all times after they are three weeks old. Keep a close lookout for lice and mites. Feed carefully, provide fresh air and sunshine.

Average Size Eggs Best

The type of egg determines the hatch. Market type eggs are the best for spring hatches of chickens. Eggs averaging from 24 to 26 ounces are of the most suitable size. Smaller eggs tend to produce a small strain of chickens while the larger eggs are usually double-yolked and are infertile. In dealing with white eggs for hatching it is best to use the egg with a pure white shell. Any brown egg may be suitable for setting purposes.

Control of Animal Parasites Studied

Various methods of treating horses for infestations with biting and sucking lice were tested by the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture, during the last fiscal year, in the course of studies in the treatment and control of external parasites of live stock. The best results were obtained by dipping or spraying with coal-tar-creosote solutions or arsenical dip.

Coal-tar-creosote solutions are found on the market as stock dips under various trade names with instructions on the labels for dilution. The arsenical dip is the same as that used for destroying cattle ticks, and is used in the same dilution.

Tests with sulphur-dioxide gas to cure sarcoptic mange proved to be unsuccessful. Treatments with gas consisting of two hours' exposure on four different days at five-day intervals failed to cure advanced cases of either degree of concentration and with treatment at different intervals likewise gave negative results.

The Department of Agriculture is making exhaustive investigations of the numerous kinds of parasites—both external and internal—that affect domestic animals, and also maintains an "index catalogue" of the published literature on parasites, which is believed to be the most complete of its kind in existence. It includes data on animal parasites found in all parts of the world.

Eliminating Horse From Metropolitan Centers

"City use of horses is on the decline," says Dr. Carl W. Gay of the University of the State of Ohio, in a recent lecture at the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca. He says, on the other hand, that the reverse is true on farms.

Doctor Gay said that the horse-breeders of the country have been following a policy of blind optimism by making themselves believe a horse boom lies around the corner. The traffic problem in the large cities is so acute that the horse-drawn vehicles are becoming fewer and fewer, so that the breeders must look to the farmer as a purchaser.

In order to fulfill the farmers' demands the small mares should be bred as well as the larger ones to obtain the desirable wagon-type of horse. The wagon type is becoming more and more recognized as the most desirable farm horse, as it is a horse which combines draft ability with speed on the road. For the farmer with no pride of ancestry or hope for posterity, the mule is even more efficient than the horse, Doctor Gay says.

While Doctor Gay is pessimistic about the future use of the city horse, he is just as optimistic when looking at the farm-horse proposition. A safe, safe policy for farmers of the East is to breed their own replacements. "Dead in the present needs not in uncertain futures" is the speaker's advice.

Brome Grass a Valuable Crop for Pasture Land

Brome grass is more valuable for pasture than any other. It will do fairly well on very light soil, as it stands drought well. It starts slowly. For this reason sow with clover and timothy. Sow with nuts per acre.

The clover and timothy make most of the crop the second year; after that the brome makes most of the crop. It sows without other grass, sow 10 to 15 pounds of seed per acre. In a mixture as suggested above, sow five or six pounds per acre.

Sweet clover and bromus make a very good mixture for pasture. Sow from six to eight pounds sweet clover, four to five pounds timothy and five pounds bromus per acre. It is not hard to get rid of.

Early Chicks Best

Poultry raisers should give the 1925 crop of chicks a better chance by hatching early. Early pullets lay when prices of eggs are high, and early cockerels command higher prices as broilers, says T. W. Noland, director of the Missouri state poultry experiment station. Early chicks are not handicapped by hot weather and parasites, and grow more rapidly than the late ones, Noland claims.

FARM FACTS

If at first you don't succeed, buy better seed.

A man is as old as he feels but a gardener is always young.

It's time to begin thinking about feeding next winter's dairy cows.

Before planning to increase production, make sure that the product can be sold.

Using poor seed, or untested seed, may be cheap in first cost, but it's expensive in the long run.

While New York is not a beef-cattle state, the latest census shows 63,170 beef cattle in the state.

Feed about 1.3 pound of tankage or fish meal daily to pregnant sows and overcome any tendency of sows to eat their pigs.

An important form of co-operation on the farm is co-operation with the weather to get things done under right weather conditions.

The cheapest and most economical ration for a 1,500-pound steer consists of all the corn and silage they will eat, three pounds of cottonseed meal per head per day and approximately four pounds of alfalfa hay.

HAVE YOU AN IDEA?

Eugene P. Beaumont Had—And Now He Is Neck Tie King of the World

EUGENE P. BEAUMONT

E. N. Y. thought he was dead broke. But he wasn't, because he had an idea, plus faith, plus initiative, plus courage.

Beaumont conducted a little upstairs waist shop. He invested his all in material and made it into waists. Then feminine fashions always fickle, changed, and he lost everything.

No, that isn't quite true. He lost everything but an idea. Deeply in debt, Beaumont hustled out and borrowed $200. That took courage, but he had it. With the borrowed capital Beaumont and his wife started a mail order necktie business. That was less than three years ago.

Now Beaumont is the Neck Tie King of the world. At first he bought his neckties where he could. Now fourteen necktie mills are working double shifts to supply him with ties. In addition he takes almost the entire output of a garter factory, a suspender mill, handkerchief factory, a belt factory and several hosiery mills.

Just a big idea born in the brain of a man who had faith in himself and his fellows, plus energy and industry. Now he isn't dependent upon the whim of fashions—he makes fashions.

Did you ever get four nice neckties in a package, sent to you on approval, with a stamped and addressed container in which to send them back if you did not want to keep them? If you did, they came from Beaumont. Doesn't sound like such a big idea, does it? But it has made Eugene P. Beaumont a millionaire. It has furnished remunerative employment to several hundred people.

Less than three years ago Beaumont transacted his business in the kitchen of his little home. Now he has a large part of one of the largest buildings in Buffalo. The Tie Art Co., Inc., of which he is the guiding factor, is the largest parcel post shipper in the big city. In 1924 he sold 2,000,000 ties and thousands of dozens of garters and handkerchiefs and suspenders and belts.

"Give the people what they want when they want it, and at a price they want to pay," is Beaumont's motto.

He trusts people, and the trust is not abused. His losses average less than 2 per cent of his total volume, running into millions.

Why don't you do something with that idea of yours? The world may be waiting for it.

When you both have lived and were with us,
Now we are all scattered about.
