All things considered, ease of construction, simplicity and range of reception the new radio frequency set is the most efficient look-up that has been developed. The one stumbling block has been the proper means of controlling the oscillating characteristics of the tube. Several means of doing this have been devised, most of them elaborate, but all had their drawbacks. The monophase, recently described in the Radio News and tested out in that publication's laboratory, seems to be one of the best circuits yet offered.

The following description of this set is taken from the Radio News: It is well known that when several stages of radio frequency amplification are employed in radio receivers there is a tendency for self-oscillation to occur in the circuits. This is due to the feeding back of radio frequency energy from the plate circuit of a tube to its own grid circuit.

The Feed-Back.

There are, in general, three ways of preventing this feed-back: viz., the introduction of resistance into the oscillatory circuit, neutralization of the tube circuit or magnetic coupling, in addition to the circuits of electro-motive forces which have a polarity to oppose that of the incoming signals.

The first method is that employed in the ordinary receiver and is also the method which has been employed in the monophase. There is a difference, however, in the way in which

The circuit stability is accomplished, by the introduction of this so-called "feedback" which is accomplished by feeding a coil in the plate circuit of a stage to a coil in the grid circuit, whereas, in the monophase system the feedback is between a coil in the filament circuit and the one in the grid circuit.

The fundamental circuit diagram is shown in Fig. 1. Here the common ground is broken and the feed-back coil connected across the break. The polarity of the feed-back coil is to be such that it will prevent self-oscillation.

Fig. 2 shows the complete wiring diagram of the set. These such feed-back coils are used, one for each stage of radio frequency amplification and one for the detector circuit. One might think that by using so many adjustable parts the operation of the set would become very complicated. Such is not the case, however, for it will be found that two of the feed-back

Mounting Condensers With Metal End Plates

In laying out the radio frequency parts of a circuit, such as condensers and coils, there are a number of precautions that should be taken to prevent losses in the field, both electro-magnetic and electrostatic.

Condensers which have grounded plates, and the accompanying metal end plates, should not be mounted in such a position that there will be any stray losses induced in the plates. This means that the condensers should be mounted directly in the electro-magnetic fields of the coils. The position of the plates lies at right angles to the magnetic field of the coils.

It should be remembered that any energy expended from the energy of the field itself, detracts from the total amount of energy that will be induced in the secondary of the coils themselves. Placing condensers in the wrong position has the effect of adding a resistance to the electrical cir-

SUMMER FROCKS OF VOILE; MODERN GLOVE IS ELABORATE

IF GENTLE spring were to come waking in, with a frown on her face and no daffodils, apple blossoms or lilacs in her arms, she would hear some grumbling on every hand. But if she were to arrive without a train of sheer, dainty, colorful cotton fabrics, a riot of protest would storm about her. But she doesn't take any such chance—always lovely, volles, or gaudies, mulls and the like drift in and are usually well launched before even the peach trees have put on their spring pink. Sometimes one of these fabrics and sometimes another don-inates the styles created for mid-summer's gayeties—and worn almost everywhere.

The colors in volles, which are scheduled to be popular this season, are entrancing, in shades that prove wonderfully becoming. Many of the pink have a mellow, yellow cast, greens are delicate, in light or pale tones; blues are stronger but soft with powder blue, periwinkle and bluet well represented. Yellow is either of the canary kind or has the greenish, citron tone and there are a number of beautiful, orchid shades. These are usually livelier under artificial light, but the joyous career of the voile frock is usually sunlit, like the butterflies.

In charming adornments for cotton dresses, good taste gravitates toward simple, dainty, trucks, hemstitching, and drawn work, in keeping with the character of the material, whose charm lies in its daintiness and color. Narrow lingerie laces fit in many schemes of adornment also. Both needlework and lace appear on the frock pictured—narrow val lace in double frills about neck and sleeves and as an outline for the yoke and front panel in the bodice, with outline embroidery in flower design. The girle is of narrow ruffle slipped through slashes, at a low waistline. Pleat edging finishes the slashes and is useful in making many kinds of trimming.

Whether fashion is more interested in our hands or our feet, is a question this season. It is indeed a close competition between our shoes and our gloves as to which shall attain to greater extremes of fantastic interpretation. No longer does a window display of footwear prove a magnet to out their length, as the picture shows. Others show introduction of wee plait laces, often alternated with tucks. However, it is the short glove which has the monopoly, just now, on originality of design.

Among the wrist-length gloves of striking design are white kid ones with narrow hand-pointed cuffs. Other glove types accorded an important place in the necessities for spring and summer, stress exquisite point-point embroidery. These are found among the more expensive types. Indeed, the handsome are some of the new cuffs, and so worth while, when the glove wears out, these are renewed and stitched onto a new pair. There is a pronounced tendency to match the gloves and hosiery.

Bee Activities Being Measured

Scientists Also Trying to Determine Effect Spraying Has on Mortality.

To determine "just how busy the busy honeybee might be," and when and why, was the object of an investigation recently made by scientists of the United States Department of Agriculture. The scientists wanted to know how many bees worked out from the hive, how long each trip was, what time of day and what time of the season the flights were made, and how much of a load each bee returned to the hive. These facts are to a large degree a reflection of the nectar conditions of the field, and the scientists believed that if a means of counting the bees as they passed to and from the hive could be devised it would open up a new field of apicultural experiment.

After many trials of various kinds of devices, a "gate" was evolved through which but one bee could pass at a time. In passing in or out of the gate, which there were a large number to each hive, the weight of the bee caused an electrical contact to be made which operated a recording mechanism.

By knowing the amount of nectar gathered on any day and the total number of bees which return, the minimum weight of the average load carried by each bee can be estimated. The highest minimum average load obtained during the study was on May 22, when 44,507 bees averaged 25.3 milligrams each. The data, made possible by the conclusion that the amount of nectar available to the bees as indicated by the average load carried by the bees.

Carasses Injurious to Various Kinds of Stock

Failure to destroy or bury deeply the carcasses of animals that die from natural causes, so that other animals cannot have access to them, is responsible for the spread of much infection on farms. This warning, frequently given by veterinary specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture, is shown to be very important in connection with the eradication of tuberculosis.

In a recent investigation a farmer admitted having lost between 80 and 100 chickens from disease. He had thrown the dead fowls into the hog pen and had also hauled the cleanings from the chicken house into a field in which his hogs ran. Tuberculin testing showed about 25 per cent infection of tuberculosis among the fowls; and a sow that was tested with avian tuberculin proved to be tubercular and indicated moreover that the infection was of the fowl type.

Best of Conditions for Good Crop of Potatoes

If possible potatoes should follow corn, and it is preferable that the corn should have succeeded a well-matured field of clover or alfalfa. It is best not to manure the corn crop immediately preceding the potatoes, since freshly applied manure tends to scald the potatoes. Potatoes that are planted on sod ground are often subject to extensive attacks by white grubs. A year of cultivated crop, such as corn, ahead of the potatoes gets rid of the grubs, allows the roots and the vegetable matter to decay, and produces the best of conditions for the potato crop.

Mix Barley and Oats to Get More Feed Material

That a mixture of barley and oats produces more digestible feeding material per acre than either crop alone is indicated by the results of demonstrations staged during the past two years under the direction of H. B. Mueser, grain extension specialist of the Pennsylvania state college.

In Lycoming county last year 500 acres of oats and two of barley were compared. Here a mixture of oat and Alpha barley ranked first with 1,757.7 pounds of digestible feeding matter per acre. Keystone sets and Alpha barley, mixed, yielded 1,656.3 pounds per acre. Alpha barley alone produced 1,061.7 pounds, local sets alone 1,269.6 pounds, and Keystone sets alone 1,503.5 pounds per acre.

Alfalfa Seeded With Grain

When alfalfa is seeded with grain as a nurse crop, it is put in early in the spring, after first harrowing and passing the soil with a corrugated roller. When it is seeded without a nurse crop, it is necessary to cultivate the land carefully before seeding, to free it from weeds. The length of time that it takes to do this depends on the amount of weed seed in the soil. If no work has been done the previous fall, it usually requires careful attention until the middle of June to get it in shape for planting.

Barley in Place of Corn

Barley makes a very acceptable hog feed in the place of corn. It is generally considered that it has about 80 to 85 per cent the feeding value of corn as a fattening feed. It always should be considered as a fattening rather than a growth-producing feed. Perhaps one of the best ways to get new crop grain to feed in the shortest time would be to sow one or more acres of barley and headless barley for hogging down. The acreage to sow would depend on the number of hogs to feed.

Sweet Cream Butter

Sweet cream butter is made in practically the same way as other butter except that the cream is churned sweet. To get the best results, it should not be over two or three days old at the most when churned. In making sweet cream butter care should be used to keep the cream where the air is pure until churned as had flavors show up more quickly in sweet cream butter than in ripened cream butter.

Decrease Seen in Value of Farm Dairy Products

A decrease of $99,000,000 in the farm value of dairy products produced in 1924 as compared with 1923 is shown in estimates of the United States Department of Agriculture which places the 1924 valuation at $2,586,148,000 compared with $2,685,148,000 in 1923.

The decrease is attributed to lower prices for all farm dairy products except butter, milk, cream, and skim milk. Whole milk sold and consumed on farms last year was valued at $1,140,000,000 compared with $1,750,000,000 in 1923; butterfat, $394,000,000 compared with $415,000,000; and butter made on farms $237,000,000 compared with $246,000,000.

The average of prices received by farmers for milk sold for all purposes was 3.225 cents a quart in 1924; 5.547 cents in 1923, and 4.73 cents in 1922.

Tuberculosis Being Eradicated Rapidly

Infection Reduced to Less Than 1 Per Cent.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Eradicating bovine tuberculosis not only from individual herds but also from entire counties, is gaining favor among livestock owners, according to a recent announcement of the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture. The county-wide plan is known as "area work." On January 1 of this year, approximately 485 counties in the United States were engaged in some form of area work. Of these, 55 counties had reduced the extent of infection to less than half of 1 per cent, and are officially designated as modified or "credited" areas. One hundred others had completed one or more tests of all the cattle within their borders and were approaching the disease-free goal.

These 485 counties constitute about 16 per cent of the total number of counties in the country and contain nearly eleven million cattle. The activity is going on in all portions of the country. Following the suppression of foot-and-mouth disease in California, that state, along with the others, is now showing renewed activity in banishing tuberculosis.

The cattle in Freeborn county, Minn., were tested under severe difficulties because of below-zero weather. Forty-two veterinarians started work December 8, using teams instead of automobiles. They tested more than 50,000 cattle on 900 farms, finding about 3,100 reactors. Federal officials have classed this activity as "a good piece of work."

Miss Latter was assisted by Miss Meloch of Madison, Miss Schoenbaum of Milwaukee, Mr. Richards of Milwaukee, supervising agent and Mr. Schwartz, company manager of Sheboygan, who also furnished seven of the eleven electric sewing machines used during the demonstration. The work was both interesting and instructive, and the efforts of Miss Latter and her assistants were greatly appreciated by the ladies. "Good Equipment Makes a Good Farmer Better"

McCormick-Deering Corn Cultivators

"Money-making farms are those on which most work is done in least time, with least labor. Try to increase your yield per acre, cut down your labor cost, diversify, cultivate more rows. Modern equipment, well handled, is the key to most profitable farming and makes farming pleasanter, too.

The Two-Row Cultivator is Your Answer.

Never before has the value of the two-row cultivator been more evident. This year every short cut must be used, yet the farming job must be done better than ever. You can do this with a two-row cultivator. If you wish, you can go over the corn an extra time or two, yet your labor cost will be considerably less than your usual cultivation with a one-row cultivator. In fact, the points in favor of two-row cultivation are so numerous that you should take time right now to talk to us about the light running, easy-to-handle McCormick-Deering two-row cultivator. See us also about a new International or C B & Q corn planter. Planting and cultivating must be done unusually well this year. Let the tools in the McCormick-Deering line help you.

DEDICATED TO MRS. LAURA A. SCHAEFER DECEASED

Another of my youthful friends has passed to realms above; One whom in early childhood, I admired, adored and loved; For we were chums and schoolmates, and companions in our play. At school or on the playgrounds, or passing along the way. She taught me how to pick gum, and berries in the wood, And she shared with me her apples and all things which were good. At springtime in the wildwood, she sang just like a bird. While gathering sap or picking flowers, 'twas the sweetest voice I heard. As she warbled at her labors, which she beguiled with many a song, And I marveled at that sweet voice, as she sang the whole day long; I never have forgotten, the pleasure and the joy. With which I used to greet her while I was a tiny boy. So I recall the pleasures and the joys she lost with me; For the sorrows are forgotten and buried in the sea; But Oh! I do remember the many deeds of love. And of charity and self-denial, which doth the Christian prove. Acts which are not forgotten, when our forms are laid away; But will always be remembered, while Memory shall stay. Thus I recall a noble life, well filled with Christian deeds of love; Her soul takes flight to realms of light to dwell in Heaven above; And her friends they hope to meet her, when their lives on earth shall close. When we're gathered to our Father, and in Elysian fields repose. When we've safely crossed the Rubicon, and have passed the shades of night. We may then meet our friend face to face, in the realms of perfect light. William Henry Ferber.

STARTS NEW WAR ON RUM VESSELS

U. S. Dry Navy Plans Death Blow to Contraband Smugglers.

New York.—A billion dollar rum-running combine is being combated by the United States coast guard with $20,000,000 equipment, government officials announced at the completion of a four-day official and newspaper inspection cruise of the Mid-Atlantic rum smuggling area.

There are 385 foreign rum-running boats of all descriptions, said Lieut. Commander S. S. Youdas, and to the coast guard's commandant, Rear Admiral Hillard. These craft have been pouring contraband liquor into the United States with the assistance of a large and far-reaching shore organization.

Against this array, the coast guard's entire force consists of sixteen cutters, whose primary duty is the safeguarding of ships and lives at sea; an authorized fleet of twenty covered destroyers, not yet completed, 200 patrol boats, each 75 feet long, and 102 39-foot picket boats.

It is under these conditions, Commander Youdas said, the coast guard has entered its first great drive, the Mid-Atlantic rum blockade, which in less than two weeks has sent more than seventy smuggling craft scuttling to sea and has so tightly ringed the remaining smugglers as to put a virtually complete stop to the once copious quantities of liquor that flowed through Long Island, New Jersey, New York and New England sea coast channels.

SYNOPSIS

At the end of the world, where the rank of wealth and family are of no account, a young man, Benham, goes to visit his mother and sister, who live in a remote spot in the mountains of the West. Benham Selross, a young man of wealth and family, is the only one of his name in the West. He is a young man of wealth and family, and he is the only one of his name in the West. He is a young man of wealth and family, and he is the only one of his name in the West.

CHAPTER III—Continued

He found her sitting at a table before a window overlooking Bond Street, and the fog was like a gray stole and passively hurring some were like who stirred up to the surface from the bottom of some kettle. She greeted him with a quiet smile and pointed to an empty chair.

Peter, conscious of his shrewdness, sat exactly what she had said—nothing. He sat down across from her, and to the benefit of the waitress whom he could see out of the corner of his eye a black dress and white apron, a bright and perfect nose below a brown and reddish. He did not take his eyes from his companion's large dark eyes which had in them the same look he had seen once before and which had made the look of eyes which knew no secrets but had been looking out upon the world for centuries and centuries.

"I do not know anyone in London now," she said. "I have an apartment here—one which I had when I first came to England."

"You have a sentient mind," she said, awakened. "Then do it, whatever it is," he said. "There are two kinds of persons in the world—the minus persons and the plus persons, negative folks and positive folks. You notice I say folks; I am from America."

"But I would not care much for that kind of judgment," she said. "It is a man's great delusion to base inclinations on a glance."

"Women do it, too," said Peter. "I admit—we both admit—that it is a mistake, don't we?"

"I do not know anyone in London now," she said. "I have an apartment here—one which I had when I first came to England."

"You have a sentient mind," she said, awakened. "Then do it, whatever it is," he said. "There are two kinds of persons in the world—the minus persons and the plus persons, negative folks and positive folks. You notice I say folks; I am from America."

tion or find some fiend walking softly along behind. Outwardly he had given over all but one inquiry, and that was the exploration of the heart and mind and soul of Brena Selross.

"I shall find a place now and I shall like to see you eat," he had said, jumping up. "There are some persons, after all, who give us delight when they eat. Did you ever see an old French peasant woman who was really fond of animals feeding them? Why, her brown wrinkled face has a smile like a light-house! And I can imagine wearing that smile when one's own fingers are over their bowls of gruel. Yes, I shall like to see you eat. I am sure. I would like it still better if I had planted and harvested or caught everything which was put before you."

"Nobody," he said. "You see I am an orphan. There is an old water at the club. I forgot him. He rubs his hands when I am hungry, but for all I know it is because the palms itch. He waited on my father—the banker—and he looks like a shaven Memphis tophook. That's all I can remember."

"You may come with me, then, to my chambers," she had said. "We can stop on the way—goodness knows where—but somewhere and get eggs and butter and cheese and milk. We'll go there."

"Can you cook?" he had exclaimed. "Oh, no. Not at all. Does that make any difference?"

"Why should it?" Peter had inquired with sincerity. He had come to the point of departure from his first ideas of his destined relationship with Brena Selross.

"I don't like it when you look like that," he had said. "How?"

"I'm afraid of nothing, Peter—nothing which makes ordinary fear in ordinary hearts. Peter, you will see some time that I am not afraid."

"Perhaps—" "What?" "Perhaps I'd better go back tomorrow—back to Beethoven."

"I don't like it when you look like that," he had said. "How?"

"I'm afraid of nothing, Peter—nothing which makes ordinary fear in ordinary hearts. Peter, you will see some time that I am not afraid."

"I don't like it when you look like that," he had said. "How?"

The Kitchen Cabinet

(By 1228 Western Newspaper Union.) And who was I to resist, with-stand. That claim of fragrant bloom? A summer night has a thousand powers.

Of sweet and stars and bloom; Oh, lay the blame on the orange flowers, these fruits and you know how sweet they are.

GOOD SUMMER DISHES Peas, asparagus, cucumbers, onions, fresh carrots, tomatoes, strawberries, cherries, raspberries, currants—what a wealth we have to draw upon in the summer months.

Cook green peas in a little water as possible, saving the liquor, if any, and add cream and butter with a sprinkling of salt and a dash of white pepper; eaten with bread and butter, who could ask for a better meal?

Pea Soup.—Cook a pint of green peas until soft, saving the liquor in which they were cooked. Put the peas through a pure strainer, add the liquor. Scald one quart of milk with a slice of onion, remove the onion and thicken the milk with two tablespoonfuls of flour mixed with two of butter, cooked together until smooth; add to the milk and bring to the boiling point. Serve with a spoonful of whipped cream on each cup, sprinkled with chopped chives, if liked.

Chicken in Aspic.—Wash and put a four-pound chicken into a kettle with two quarts of boiling water, one onion sliced, one-half cupful of sliced celery, one-eighth teaspoonful of celery seed, a sprig or two of parsley, a bit of bay leaf, one small carrot sliced, two teaspoonfuls of salt and one-quarter teaspoonful of pepper. Cook slowly until tender. Set away to cool, remove the chicken and skin off the fat. Heat the broth, add the egg and shells to clarify, one-half teaspoonful of salt and one-quarter teaspoonful of paprika, one-eighth teaspoonful of nutmeg and the juice of half a lemon. Add three tablespoonfuls of gelatin which has been soaked in three-fourths of a cupful of cold water; stir until the gelatin is dissolved and strain through a double cheesecloth. Mold as for salad, adding asparagus tips, and canned pineapples, or stuffed sliced olives.

Dishes That Please A most tender and delicious cake may be made with but a few moments work, as follows:

Gold Cake.—Take one and one-half cupfuls of pastry flour after it is sifted four times. As pastry flour packs much more firmly than bread flour, this process is necessary. To the flour add three-fourths of a cupful of sugar, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt; stir well, then add one-third cupful of mazaola oil, one-half cupful of cold water, one-half teaspoonful each of lemon and vanilla and the yolks of two eggs unbeaten. Whip the white until stiff and add to the flour mixture after it has been well blended. Fold the whites in lightly and bake in layers or in a hot loaf pan. Cover with any desired topping.

Supper Dish.—Spread slices of stale bread with butter and lay in a baking dish, using the amount needed to supply the appetites of the family. To two eggs lightly beaten add a pint of milk with a bit of salt. Over the bread sprinkle a generous quantity of minced cheese—the rich kind, cover with the custard and bake in a slow oven until puffy and the custard is set. Serve at once.

Jellied Vegetables.—Soak two tablespoonfuls of gelatin in one-half cupful of cold water. Pour over this one cupful of boiling water and add a tablespoonful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of salt, and a few grains of cayenne. Stir until the gelatin and sugar are dissolved; then add one tablespoonful of lemon juice and two tablespoonfuls of tarragon vinegar. Set this liquid over ice, and as it begins to stiffen add to it one cupful of finely sliced cabbage, one green pepper, cut into tiny dice and two cooked beets that have been in vinegar and then are cut into dice. Turn over individual molds, or one large one, and chill. Unmold and serve with slices of cold tongue or corned beef.

Spanish Meat Dish.—Take any left-over meat in neat slices or cut into serving-sized pieces, place in a well-greased baking dish, cover with a layer of thinly sliced uncooked potatoes; if time is short parboil them, cover with a layer of finely sliced onions and top with a layer of canned tomatoes. Cook in a moderate oven until the potatoes are done. Serve with a sprinkling of cooked green peas over the top.

Concorda Bar le Duc.—Cut three-fourths as much sugar as fruit. Wash the currants carefully and place in a saucepan with just enough water to cover the bottom of the pan. Bring to a boil and add half of the sugar, boil ten minutes, then add the rest of the sugar, then continue boiling for half an hour. Seal with paraffin.

Aqueduct Has Lasted An aqueduct, built by Emperor Valens, A. D. 378, is still in use in Constantinople. Its main bridge is 2,000 feet long and 75 feet high, and its arches have a span of about thirty feet.

Had Proud Title "The knight without fear and without reproach" is the title given to Pierre du Terrail, Lord of Bayard, a great French soldier who was mortally wounded at the battle of Sezia, Italy, on April 30, 1524.

Weak, Blue, Discouraged—Relieved by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Medicine

Cincinnati, Ohio.—"I was nervous and could not sleep, had crying spells and the doctor said I was very nervous and didn't care if I lived or died. My right side was very bad and I had backache and a weakness. I read about your medicine in the papers and wrote for further information. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Blood Medicine and Liver Pills, and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I have had good results in every way and am able to do my work again and can eat anything that comes along. My friends tell me how well I am looking."—Mrs. F. K. CORLETT, 129 Peete Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

How Robert M. Koenig Found Remedy for Pimply Skin

For years my skin would break out every once in a while—and sometimes did very little to help me. I read a doctor's article stating that pimply skin usually comes from the stomach—and bowels not getting rid of the poisons.

I tried Carter's Little Liver Pills for a few days and since that time my skin is smooth and clear. Now I tell my friends the right way of getting rid of a broken out skin—and also of steering clear of upset stomach and sick headache. Carter's are all you claim for them.

GET FEELING WELL AGAIN

From Mother Nature's storehouse we have gathered the roots, barks and herbs which are compounded, under the famous Tanlac formula, to make Tanlac. This great tonic and builder has brought health and strength to millions.

TANLAC FOR YOUR HEALTH

The man who is fearless can go through twice as much trouble as a coward.

Why That Bad Back?

Is backache keeping you upset? Feel all tired out—so nervous and dispirited you can hardly keep going? Then look to your kidneys. Your kidneys rid the body of poisonous waste. But if they lag, impurities accumulate and poison the whole system. Then one is apt to suffer backache, stinging pains, headache, dizziness, and other annoying kidney irregularities. If your kidneys are sluggish, help them with a Diuretic. Use Doan's Pills. They are praised the world over. Ask your neighbor!

A Wisconsin Case

Mrs. Anna Weber, Second and Lincoln Sts., Madison, Wis., says: "A cold weakened my kidneys and they acted too freely in my back. I had dull pains in my shoulders, felt worn out and suffered from head-aches and dizzy spells. To Doan's Pills drove away all symptoms. I haven't been bothered since Doan's cured me."

Is Pure and Sweet Ideal for Children

She Greeted Him With a Quiet Smile and Pointed to the Empty Chair.

She greeted him with a quiet smile and pointed to the empty chair.

He was reckoned a shrewd player of life. Men who knew Peter DeWolfe best say that if he left his traveling bag on the sidewalk on Fifth avenue while he did some shopping within some store, it was only because he had estimated carefully the psychology of any thief and concluded that one could depend upon human nature to believe that luggage sitting alone on the pavement was placed there as a trap. Peter always found his bag where he had left it.

This is said because, unless some complex reasoning and calculation of the same kind can be applied to his conduct, it is necessary to say he went blind into love of woman.

A few—very few—men—and fewer women," Peter said once in a letter, "know just how near the top of the world can be reached by the adventure of free days together where there are no hours, and time springs in magic jumps from noon to next daylight perhaps, and the world is a playground and a city is your toy and mankind is the ultimate friend of both of you. Unfortunately," he added, "the men who have the quality of greatness, or a man of such a companionship over a span of hours is a greater accomplishment than a life in a law office or the presidency of some blooming bank are few. Those who ever find the girl are fewer. And those who can prove some essential quality of a gentleman and a whole man needed to walk that delicious tightrope up above the moon, without taking a vulgar step into space with a nasty crash on landing, are fewest of all."

He may have been demonstrating these words. But apparently he had abandoned his inquiry into the mystery of past and future. He had abandoned his curiosity about her life, though ever and again he found her glancing around with the unexplained fear in her dark eyes, as if she expected to meet the eyes of recognition or find some fiend walking softly along behind. Outwardly he had given over all but one inquiry, and that was the exploration of the heart and mind and soul of Brena Selross.

Just when he had shelved his first purpose, awakened by Benham's challenge, and when he wiped from his mind the memory of his one moment of dread of this girl, which, of course, might be traceable to Muriel's extraordinary and tragic warning, perhaps Peter himself could not have told. It might have been at the moment when, after their first evening of strolling aimlessly through the mystic of the symbolic fog with their selves reaching toward one another, they had perched like two ravens on the pediment of Trafalgar monument, superfluous, content and watching the blurred lights of one motor omnibus after another move like luminous fish in cloudy water.

"What time is it?" Peter had asked, listening in vain for the great bell of St. Paul's.

Cajuns of Louisiana Fond of Old Customs

The Cajun of southwestern Louisiana has his own particular customs, some of them handed down by his Nova Scotia ancestors, others of more modern invention.

Often in naming his numerous children, he will stick to a single letter. Thus, in a family that has chosen the letter "O," the boys may be Odell, Oliver, Octave, Ovide, Opatia, Ophelia, Oto; the girls Octavia, Odella, Ophelia, Odile, Olive, Oltia, Olympie, Omooch. This system, though pleasantly alliterative, must result sometimes in confusion.

As inevitable as his cup of black coffee, is the Cajun's use of brick dust. This, pounded small, is scattered inside, and especially upon that shelflike portion of his home which, however small, he calls a gallery. Its way it is ornamental, the dull red of the dust standing out against the dark weathered gray of the unpainted planking behind.

In the better class families the French properties are observed, the young folk addressing their elders with the formal "you" rather than the familiar "thou." Religious duties are seldom neglected. Saturday night balls, which last through until day-

Animal Life on Everest

Animal life, it appears, is to be found on high mountains far beyond plant growth. The highest growing plant that the Mount Everest expedition of 1924 observed was the blue vetch, at 18,900 feet, but animals live at as great a height as 22,900 feet.

"A minute and inconspicuous black spider," says a member of the expedition, "hops about on rocky cliffs and hides beneath stones in those bare places that happen to be swept clear of snow by the wind. I cannot think of any that lives at such a height. In these altitudes there is no other living thing—nothing but rock and ice." This little spider is worthy of note as being the highest permanent inhabitant of the earth.

YOUR POCKETBOOK AND YOUR FUTURE

Man's best friend is his pocketbook, but a pocketbook without money is a sort of poor relation. Have you ever stopped to consider that money spent in a distant city is lost to you forever while money spent at home is an investment that comes back to you in many ways? By spending money at home you not only strengthen business and help it to expand, but you actually improve your own standing and aid in the development of your community.

Your town is just what you make it. Civic pride and loyalty have built the great cities of the country just as you can help to build yours. Money spent at home goes into home town banks where it is loaned to home town interests and reinvested in home town projects. Money spent elsewhere simply goes to build other communities at the expense of your own.

Look over our town. Is there any article of merchandise you need that is not sold here? Comparison of prices at home with those in other cities will convince you that it is always cheaper to buy right here where you can examine the article and return it if it is not up to specifications.

It is a fallacy to think the best goods must be purchased in the larger cities. The goods sold at home come from the same manufacturers, bring the same prices and are just as fully guaranteed as merchandise purchased in the big town.

But there is one outstanding difference. The money you spend with the big city house is gone, never to return, while the money spent here stays here and helps promote home town industries and interests. This money will open new avenues of progress and advancement for you and your fellow townsmen.

The one sure way to strengthen your own position and insure increased property valuations at home is to keep your money here. By patronizing home industries and buying from your home town merchants a bigger and better KEWASKUM will result. For your own sake and the future of your home town, patronize home town institutions.
