SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

FINDING FAULT

IT IS a lamentable evidence of weakness in mortals when they deliberately shift the blame for their own shortcomings upon the shoulders of others.

IS IT BASSETT?

IN ENGLAND the Bassetts are a well-known Cornish family; that is to say they have been from time out of mind associated with affairs in Cornwall and have intermarried for centuries with families of that country until one could hardly imagine Cornwall without the Bassetts.

THE TOWER MYSTERY

ONE spot more than any other should be hunted, that place is assuredly the Tower of London," says Charles G. Harper in his new book, "Haunted Houses," published this spring by J. B. Lippincott company.

"One Saturday night in October, 1817, about the witching hour," I was at supper with my wife, her sister, and our little boy in the sitting room in the Jewel house. The doors were all closed, heavy and dark cloth curtains were let down over the windows, and the only light in the room was that of two candles on the table.

COOL DRINKS

Many delicious summer drinks may be bought already prepared in bottles and with these and home-prepared grape-juice and shrub one has quite a lot of variety; but at times when entertaining one likes something a little different from the ordinary.

Fruit Punch.—Take one cupful each of the following fruits cut fine: Pine-apple, raspberries, bananas and skinned grapes. In season. To the juice of four lemons and eight oranges add a quart of freshly made and cooled tea.

Fruit Punch No. 2.—Take one can of grated pineapple and three cupfuls of water, boil together twenty minutes, then strain through a jelly bag, pressing out all the juice. Cool and add the juice of six lemons, ten oranges, one quart of strawberry juice or currant, or grape juice, three cupfuls of sugar syrup, one cupful of freshly made tea, cool and add four quarts of water and one bottle of charged water when ready to serve.

Punch a la Paris.—Take one quart each of ginger ale and grape juice, the juice of three lemons and three oranges, one cupful of sugar—more if needed—two tablespoonfuls of grated nutmeg rind. Serve in tall glasses.

Serve iced coffee with whipped cream and powdered sugar; iced tea with any acid fruit like a slice of lemon, orange or pineapple.

Prepare chocolate, using four squares of chocolate, grated, to one pint of boiling water; melt the chocolate over hot water and cook in the boiling water ten minutes. Add one pint of scalded milk, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt and a teaspoonful of vanilla with one-half cupful of sugar. Beat well, chill and serve topped with whipped cream on which is sprinkled a bit of grated sweet chocolate.

Combination Ale.—Take one quart of grape juice and ginger ale, chill, serve with ice and three-fourths of a cupful of maraschino cherries cut fine.

Ginger ale served in tall glasses with a spoonful of lemon ice on top of each is delicious.

Ice cream is so much enjoyed that it is a satisfaction to know it is good for us. When made at home and eaten at meal-time it is the best dessert.

Maple Parfait.—Heat one cupful of maple syrup to just below the boiling point. Beat four egg yolks slightly, continue beating and add the hot syrup slowly. Cook over hot water until the mixture thickens. Strain and cool, add one pint of heavy cream whipped with one-eighth of a teaspoonful of salt. Place in a chilled mold, cover with waxed paper and pack in ice and salt, two parts of ice to one of salt. Allow to stand three to four hours.

Coffee Mousse.—Soften a teaspoonful of gelatin in two tablespoonfuls of water and dissolve in one-half cupful of clear, black coffee. Allow it to cool and, when beginning to thicken, fold in two cupfuls of whipped cream which has been sweetened with three-fourths of a cupful of sugar; add one-fourth teaspoonful of salt and mold and pack as for the parfait.

French Pecan Ice Cream.—Put one-third of a cupful of sugar in a saucepan to caramelize; when amber colored add three-fourths of a cupful of hot water and allow to stand until dissolved. Scald two cupfuls of milk, add slowly to the yolks of eight eggs, cook slowly until thick, adding the caramel syrup, one cupful of sugar and one-fourth teaspoonful of salt. Cool and add two and two-thirds cupfuls of thin cream and one cupful of crushed pecans. Put the nuts into the oven until crisp, break into small pieces and freeze the whole mixture as usual.

Casserole of Oxtails.—Brown two oxtails cut into two-inch pieces in three tablespoonfuls of fat. Sprinkle with flour, salt and pepper; add one small onion chopped, one stalk of celery, one carrot chopped, three cloves, a tiny bit of bayleaf, one cupful of tomato and one cupful of hot water, salt and pepper to season. Cook covered very slowly for about three and one-half hours.

Sautéed Brains.—Place the brains in cold, salted water and let stand one-half hour. Peel off the membranes, wash and cook slowly in salted water for fifteen minutes. Put into cold water, and when cool keep on ice until ready to use. Cut into pieces the size of an oyster, dip into egg and crumbs and brown in hot fat.

ENSEMBLE SUITS GO STRONG; MANNISH COATS FOR JUNIORS

THE ensemble suit, from the time of its introduction, has been a success with discerning women of fashion. As a result of increased variety in design, it shows signs of becoming an established rival of the plain, mannish tailored suit, and is making a wider appeal than ever this spring.

Two of the Late Versions.

Of interest alike to youth and to elders are the handsome gaily glazed soft wool coats, which feature so definitely for sports and travel this season. Growings are pleased to refer to their new double-breasted wool, coats, so smartly tailored, as prince of Wales models. Little folks are wearing topcoats similar in design, for an outstanding feature of children's apparel today is that it is almost amusingly a reproduction of the styles worn by mother and big sister.

Follow Style for Older Folks.

In the skirt and this additional fullness and slit pockets are two late style points in the tailored mode. The most popular frock for ensemble suits is made of printed silk and it has comfort and cheerful color to recommend it for summer wear.

Trimming Is Unique—One of the most approved methods of trimming this season is by the manipulation of the fabric in tucking, godets and flares and achieving a certain elaborate effect without any apparent effort.

THIS WOMAN'S REMARKABLE RECOVERY

Entirely Due To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Forest City, Iowa.—"My first child lived only a short time and I was sad for a year after. When I bent over and raised myself up again I could not get my back any more than I had to leave my washing and get ready to go to the doctor. He gave me medicine but it did no good then."

Once when we had been in town a little book telling about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was left in our car. I have taken five bottles of the Vegetable Compound now and I do all my housework and help with the milking and taking care of chickens and garden.

Good Equipment Makes a Good Farmer Better

McCormick-Deering Corn Cultivators

Money-making farms are those on which most work is done in least time, with least labor. Try to increase your yield per acre, cut down your labor cost, diversify, cultivate more rows. Modern equipment, well handled, is the key to most profitable farming and makes farming pleasanter, too.

The Two-Row Cultivator is Your Answer.

Never before has the value of the two-row cultivator been more evident. This year every short cut must be used, yet the farming job must be done better than ever. You can do this with a two-row cultivator. If you wish, you can go over the corn an extra time or two, yet your labor cost will be considerably less than your usual cultivation with a one-row cultivator. In fact, the points in favor of two-row cultivation are so numerous that you should take time right now to talk to us about the light running, easy-to-handle McCormick-Deering two-row cultivator. See us also about a new International or C B & Q corn planter. Planting and cultivating must be done unusually well this year. Let the tools in the McCormick-Deering line help you.

The Vanishing Men

BY RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD

...at the end of the world with the rank and file of the young men of wealth and family, who had by an English comrade...

"Yes, dear, I understand. I can remember, Peter. It would be hard, but I could do it. I do not want to do it. The promise was for your sake, Peter. Not for mine alone."

CHAPTER V

Brena Selcoss had been born on a farm in the northwestern part of the state. Her father, an austere man, who had long had carried about in his great muscular body...

she found that life was shaped without intervention of her own. She allowed herself to be dragged along with her mixed load of conceptions drawn from a better-skilled reading...

"If I ever have a daughter," said Brena Selcoss, "I will never allow her to have this dangerous dream of a Prince Charming. It is the common foundation upon which girls throw...

While Brena was seventeen, indeed, many landmarks had been set up in her development. Her mother had died quietly in bed the year before without a gasp of warning without a murmur, a smile upon her engaging lips...

"This is the time for great calm," he had said to Brena, as he woke her with his hand upon her shoulder. "The life has gone from your mother's breast, my daughter, but she will live always with us because she was a brave and tender soul which endures forever."

"I thought that she had endless life," he said after a pause, burying his hand in his sun-browned hair. "It is the way with me always—I am unprepared—always unprepared."

"This was the only flinching brought out in him by the death of the Irish girl he had adored so completely, to whose name he had turned while his life went askew and in whose smile he had warmed the chills of bitterness and whose arms had stilled the restless behind his great dark glowing eyes. He went on his way unchanched, but no doubt making new attempts to reach across the chasm which separated him from the yearning heart of his daughter.

"Yes, Dear, I Understand. I Can Remember, Peter. It Would Be Hard, but I Could Do It."

For three or more years before Mary Vaughn Selcoss had died, she had been alarmed by a new characteristic of her husband. In Dallas when he, who once had known the tang of great deeds done in a setting of romantic grandeur, came out through the hot streets on a common electric car and walked up a suburban avenue with its cheap hangings and its phonographs...

"I wonder what would become of you and Brena if anything happened to me," he had said in explanation. "Nothing will happen to you," Brena's mother had givenly answered. "Come into the house. I've something to show you."

Long after her mother had gone Brena had seen that look in her father's eyes. "Perhaps he is afraid he will lose his place with the oil company," she had said to herself many times. Opportunity enough was given her in those days to speak for herself. She had gone beyond any school training not only in independence but in learning; nevertheless she remained a child—a lonely, sensitive child in the heart of her ripening womanhood. Her father's austerity and her own peculiar shyness made the pair appear to the Texan neighbors aloof, strange, like persons over whom some shadow hung. And her father considered alone? He too, even to her, was in a spite of all his giant desire for tenderness, also aloof, strange, and over him some shadow cast its menacing shape.

for the moment, was known to the male eyes of Dallas as an unsolved riddle. The other fact was that she was the half-sister of the mother of Jim Hennepin of Virginia.

Jim Hennepin, who liked to attach to his name the words "of Virginia," was the last of a line which had been brought to American soil by a refugee Huguenot connected distantly with the great explorer of the headwaters of the Mississippi. There are those who remember him in his escapades in Danville, and felt relief when his father, who had himself dissipated the small remainder of the Hennepin wealth and tobacco lands in futile speculations through a Washington broker, said to Jim, "You can go down to your mother's sister in Texas. She will put you up and I have a job all ready for you with a cotton buying and commission house in Dallas. There is nothing left in my pockets. The only genius you have is for getting into trouble; your only talent is for figures. As time goes on the accountant is playing an ever-growing part in American business, just as the drunkard is playing a lesser part. Do you get my meaning, son?"

This accounted for the presence of Jim Hennepin in Texas. He had been there two years. Compton Parmabee & Co. had found nothing to criticize in his bookkeeping. In fact, it had qualities of genius which sometimes made bookkeeping not only a cold record but a vitalized inspiration of business. Hennepin was a useful addition to Compton Parmabee's small staff. He drank at the club, but with a moderation considering his resistance to the effect of alcohol. He was a popular young man in Dallas, and the fact that so many men in that Texas city have now forgotten that they ever heard of this youth is only a commentary upon the truth that the Impressions most of us make are not even the faint scratches when time's roller has passed once or twice over men's memory and today has become so much more important than yesterday and that which is in sight covers that which is gone like new strata in a geological period.

It would be untrue to deny that Jim Hennepin was an attractive figure. If he had craft and viciousness, as some have said he had, it was belied by the Hennepin smile—an inviting smile, involving the cheer of the moment like a smile of a boy. Furthermore, he was tall and graceful, like an aviator in an English college eight. He was more like the tall son of an earl than a bookkeeper, and persons often inquired who he was, especially before they had heard him speak in his care-free modern American slang figures, and were surprised to find that he was older than he looked, had fought his education for several wasted years at the University of Virginia and was earning forty-three dollars a week and spending fifty-nine when he was over thirty.

Wild Creatures Die Fast When Captives

The average person who visits a zoo for study and enjoyment often fails to realize the expert care and heavy expenditure demanded in its upkeep. Death takes a frequent toll among the animals and the birth rate cannot be made to make replacement. The four corners of the earth must be scoured or many an empty cage would confront visitors, says the New York Times.

Every month a proportion of the familiar animals die, and rare beasts and birds with strange names also succumb. Every month purchases are made that may range from 25 cents for a box tortoise to $300 for a pair of Galapagos boobies.

Usually the highest mortality is among the birds. Next come the mammals, the severest financial loss. Reptile casualties are lowest. A report of the Bronx zoological park shows the death of twelve mammals, including a bonnet macaque and a white-faced scapular of three reptiles, crocodile and two tortoises and fifty birds in a single month. However, the increasing skill of curators and keepers in the handling of wild animals is keeping the death rate within bounds.

Easy to See That

The young man had taken his old grandmother to a picture gallery. She had never been in such a place before and accordingly she was very critical of all that she saw. Together they wandered round looking at the paintings with interest.

Contracted Gold at a Billy Sunday Revival

Developed Into Systemic Catarrh Recommends PE-RU-NA

The letter written a short time ago by Mr. A. R. Wilson of LaFollette, Tenn., brings some more direct evidence of the value of Pe-ru-na in the treatment of catarrhal diseases. It reads as follows: "While attending Billy Sunday's great revival at Knoxville, Tenn., last February I contracted a cold which weakened my entire system. I have taken only three bottles of Pe-ru-na and feel like a new man. It is a great system builder as well as a great catarrh remedy."

How to build up your Weight

To be under weight often proves a loss of fighting power in the body. It often means you are minus nerve power, minus red-cells in your blood, minus health, minus vitality. It is serious to be minus, but the moment you increase the number of your red-blood-cells, you begin to become plus. That's why S. S. S., since 1826, has meant to thousands of underweight men and women, a plus in their strength. Your body fills to the point of power, your flesh becomes firmer, the age lines that come from thinness disappear. You look younger, firmer, happier, and you feel it, too, all over your body. More red-blood-cells! S. S. S. will build them.

Fines for Bobbed Hair

In a town near Sao Paulo, Brazil, the mayor decreed that any barber cutting a woman's hair without permission from the father, husband or the male member of the family having authority over her would be fined 50 milreis (about 80).

50 YEARS IN BUSINESS

Fifty years ago Bernard Schaefer built his first pipe organ at Schloisengville, now Slinger, Wisconsin. The Schaefer Organ Company, his successors, will celebrate their fifty year anniversary with a pipe organ recital and most modern electric pipe organs, at their factory at Slinger, on Sunday, May 24th.—Hartford Times.

OUR GRAND-DADS!

It was a brave-hearted group of pioneers who first drove into Wisconsin. It was the advance guard of white man's civilization, which was to open up and make productive this great commonwealth for us—our children—and our children's children.

But do not think that the fields for pioneering, right here in Washington County, passed as the covered wagon gave way to our motor cars of today. There are still trails to be blazed—and urgent call for pioneers.

"Pioneer" says Webster, "is to prepare the way for; take lead in; one who goes before to remove obstacles."

Our job today—[for those of us who heed the call and would be pioneers],—"is to prepare the way" for a bigger and better KEWASKUM; to "take lead in" making it so; to "go before and remove obstacles" which keeps this town from growing—being bigger—and being a better town in which to live.

There are hardships in pioneering—today—as when our granddaddies came in covered-wagons. Our dangers are not the lurking, ambushed redskin. Instead they are the selfish little selfgain thoughts which would make us disloyal in thoughts and acts to our town.

Let every one of us join the ranks of pioneers and present a solid front for the welfare and development of KEWASKUM. We can do this by [so far as is practical] keeping our money right here in KEWASKUM. To be ever ready to defend our town in all that has been achieved—and to patronize home merchants—is to "remove obstacles" which will let this town grow.

We all want better jobs, more pay, better homes, happier citizens; bigger stores, more merchandise; a bigger town and a more prosperous town. And we can have all this—if each one of us see to it that our money is kept incirculation right here at home where it will grow and come back to us in the many manifold ways of modern business activities.
