

COL. COOLIDGE UNDER KNIFE

President Reaches Father's Side Soon After Operation.

Plymouth, Vt.—After a spectacular race by train and automobile across the New England hills and over the swollen mountain streams of Vermont, President Coolidge arrived at the bedside of his father, Col. John Coolidge.

Immediately on his arrival at Ludlow he was met by his son, John, with the information that Colonel Coolidge, who had been so seriously ill that his life was despaired of during the last few days, had been operated on to remove an abscess of the prostate gland.

Hurrying in an automobile, the President was then driven as fast as the roads and the hastily repaired bridges would permit. There he met the physicians and was told that his father's condition was satisfactory.

The bulletin issued by the physicians immediately after the President's arrival read: "An operation has been performed on the President's father, and his condition is satisfactory."

The statement was signed by Drs. A. L. Chase, J. F. Crompton, C. F. Ball, C. H. Swift and A. M. Crum.

His ultimate recovery depends on his stamina and the amount of vitality left in the eighty-year-old man who for the last two years has preferred the shade of Mount Salt Ash to the grandeur of the White House.

The physicians, after issuing the statement, said the operation, which is called a cystostomy operation, consists of cutting into the bladder and leaving it open to be drained.

It is possible that as soon as the President's father gains strength he will be taken to the Massachusetts General hospital in Boston for a second operation.

Dr. Chute, specialist in genito-urinary operations, performed the operation. Dispatched from Boston by President Coolidge.

A few minutes after the President had greeted his father and had listened to the reassuring words of the physicians, he and Mrs. Coolidge walked slowly to the nearby cemetery, where just a year ago they buried their boy, Calvin, Jr. John, their other son, went with them. After a brief, silent pause at the old grave, the three returned to the old farmhouse.

"Good Equipment Makes a Good Farmer Better"

A Better Day's Work

A time saver during the haying season, the McCormick or Deering Mower has earned a high reputation. Its ease of operation and absolute dependability make possible steady work without delays. Light draft is one big advantage. Roller and ball bearings reduce friction where the load is greatest, and an adjustable pinion and internal gear deliver power to the cutter bar with the least loss. More work can be done without tiring your horses.

Every necessary adjustment can be made from the driver's seat, which also saves time and makes the work lighter. These are some of the McCormick-Deering features that enable you to do a better day's work. Come in and see us about this mower. There is a size to meet your requirements.

We also have a complete line of McCormick-Deering haying machines; including side rakes and tedders, self-dump rakes, hay loaders, sweep rakes and stackers.

Variable Tuned Radio Frequency Receiver Using Low Loss Doughnut Coils

By CARLTON E. BUTLER
The member Institute of Radio Engineers and American Institute of Electrical Engineers has developed a radio frequency type of receiver employing two stages of tuned radio-frequency, detector, and amplifier stages of low ratio audio-frequency amplification, is going to be one of the most popular broadcast receivers for the coming season.

- 1 antenna coupler, low-loss doughnut coil.
- 2 low-loss doughnut radio-frequency transformers.
- 3 straightline frequency low-loss variable condensers of 0005 mfd. capacity.
- 2 3-to-1 ratio audio-frequency transformers.
- 5 standard tube sockets with five 25 ohm resistors, if the C-301-A type of tube is to be used. This combination is recommended. Operation can be simplified by using a 25 ohm resistor to control the two radio-frequency tubes and a 6-ohm resistor for the detector and two audio tubes.

Each of the following capacity fixed mica condensers: 001 mfd., 0005 mfd. and 00025 mfd.
1 2 or 3 megohm grid leak.
1 single-circuit phone jack.
Binding posts, wire and screws complete the list of apparatus needed. The total cost of the receiver will approximate $40.

The receiver can easily be assembled on a 7x18-inch panel, without crowding but the conventional 24 or 26-inch panel may be used if desired.

Loop or Unit Antenna Unit Used Anywhere

By E. N. RAULAND

An important class of tuners employs no aerial or ground connection whatever, but only an inductance coil of large diameter, known as a loop antenna, or loop antenna, and a variable condenser for tuning it. These two pieces of apparatus form together a complete tuner, just as do the aerial, ground and tuned inductances previously mentioned.

Loop or Coil Antenna Tuner Unit.

The stagger-wound doughnut coil has the advantage of an enclosed magnetic field, which prevents inductance, but it also shows the least loss of any coil now on the market. The enclosed field practically eliminates the pickup of stray signals and static by the set itself. These coils combined mean that the construction of a radio-frequency set with doughnut coils will produce a receiver that possesses tremendous volume, tuning selectivity, and a much better tone quality than is usually obtained with a set of this type.

Until the introduction of the toroid into the construction of tuned radio-frequency receivers, most all of the sets were built along the same lines, with great stress laid on the advantage of different methods of making the receiver stable in operation by providing oscillation. Some circuits used a small balancing condenser between the grid of one tube and the plate of the preceding tube, others used a potentiometer or balancing network of some sort in the plate circuit of the radio-frequency tubes.

Without stabilizing condensers or networks of some sort, the average radio set of this type is practically useless, being in a state of constant oscillation when the receiver is tuned to the wave length of a station. The sole function of the auxiliary apparatus is to add sufficient losses, or resistance, to the circuit to bring the total amount of energy down below the oscillating point of the receiver.

If the same circuit could be so arranged that the detuning of the coils would be balanced and located in a manner that no interacting of the magnetic fields of the coils would take place, the volume and range of the receiver would increase wonderfully, and the quality would also improve in the absence of the auxiliary apparatus. This is exactly what is done in the receiver described in this article through the use of low-loss doughnut coils which have self-compensating magnetic fields, and so prevent interaction of the coils and circuits. It is this reason that it is unnecessary to mount the coils at critical angles to avoid whistling and howling. In practice the coils may be placed side by side without any noticeable interaction.

The magnetic field is entirely self-compensating and is noticed when the aerial and ground and no other signals will be received except those of the exact wave to which the receiver is tuned. This makes it possible to use a powerful broadcasting station without interference.

Parts Needed.
To build the receiver you will need the following parts:

To keep Batteries in More Uniform Condition
Those who use dry batteries as a power source should remember that it is well to occasionally switch the battery around, using a separate battery if used for the audio amplifier. The battery which supplies the voltage for the plate of the detector tube but is not used for this work, but is always added to that of the other battery in order to give the detector a higher potential to the plate. Naturally this battery, being the point where the detector tap is taken off, performs a double service and adds a higher drain. The changing of batteries will keep them in more uniform condition.

Your Loud Speaker Can Be Used on Long Leads
So much has been written lately about keeping all leads in a set short that the radio fan naturally hesitates to make any changes in his wiring. In some cases it has been

COLORFUL BATHING COSTUMES; SUMMER MILLINERY TURNS BACK

HOW would the puzzled fashion reporter be able to tell about the latest things in bathing suits if it were not for the resourcefulness of silk manufacturers? Some keen-minded maker of silks has hit upon the word "modernistic" to describe the new patterns in printed silks—it refers to the bold, unusual, vividly colored and gleaming designs which are liked for bathing and beach suits and negligees. Nothing in the sky above, the earth beneath, or the waters under the earth is less like them—hence "modernistic" is a very adequate word, especially for the much increased proportion of all-white hats and hats in which white predominates, millinery displays continue to be made up of the beautiful headwear launched in spring and early summer. The small felt hat in pastel colors continues to sell like hot cream cones, with the white felt a close second. Large felt hats in light colors, hair braids and other light straws are demanded, showing that the minds of women are centered on mid-summer headwear and that they are not so "uncertain, coy and hard to please" as they have sometimes been

A Dazzling Bathing Costume.

Among things that have forged ahead are hats of cotton crepe, straw or hair braid with velvet crowns, bangloos and bellbottoms with trimming of velvet ribbon, small turbans of beading ribbon that are comfortably soft and collapsible, hats made of white kid and trimmings of gilded kid. New developments in sports hats appear in soft, white silk hats, stitched with braid to give them firmness, or corded or machine stitched for the same purpose, in silk in a color, as blue, yellow, red or black.

with them are black suits having only a little color introduced in bindings of gold, conehair blue or white.

Real swimming suits also divide their allegiance between dark and light colors. Tights fastening on the shoulder and having skirts looped on are made of pure worsted in purple, orange, royal blue, tan, bright green and in navy and black. Capses and coats to be worn over suits are shown in terry cloth in Roman and other stripes and in rubberized cloth. The latter are often lined with terry cloth. The aspect of the beaches is bright and gay—and no one looks bedraggled in modernistic bathing clothes.

For once in her career restless woman seems to be satisfied with things as they are, in millinery. Except for the much increased proportion of all-white hats and hats in which white predominates, millinery displays continue to be made up of the beautiful headwear launched in spring and early summer. Large felt hats in light colors, hair braids and other light straws are demanded, showing that the minds of women are centered on mid-summer headwear and that they are not so "uncertain, coy and hard to please" as they have sometimes been noticed this has been carried out to the extreme. For example, a certain experimenter has his set located in the rear of his home and would not run extension loud speaker leads to his front porch because, he said, of the added resistance. It will be remembered the average loud speaker unit already has a high resistance in its windings, and the addition of resistance in a length of wire forty or fifty feet long would make no material difference.

Setting Condenser Dials
Variable condenser dials should be set so that they read 100 with the plates of the condenser all in mesh and zero when the rotor is all out of the stator. This will make the scale a true reading of the relative capacity.

When Moving Receiver
If you have occasion to change the location of your receiver, be sure to disconnect the battery wires from the batteries before you loosen up the binding posts on the receiver.

Chiffon Hand Bag
A bag which reflects the vogue for printed materials is made of a printed chiffon handkerchief in the finest colors. It is lined with silk and attached to a frame so that the four corners make a petal decoration.

Bordered Silks for Frocks
Bordered silks have a distinct appeal, not only because of the fashion element, but because of their practicality. It takes only a yard and a half of the material to make a frock and the result is extremely smart and becoming.

Buttons, Buttons
Rows and rows of buttons and buttonholes trim the newest silk frocks.

Neat New Hats
Attractive hats to be worn between seasons are of satin or grosgrain ribbons arranged on the frame to give the effect of draped silk.

The KITCHEN CABINET

The sweetest music is not in oratorios, but in the human voice when it speaks from its instant life-tones of tenderness, truth and courage.—Emerson.

OUT-OF-DOOR MEALS

Serving meals out of doors does not mean that one needs to go miles away to do it. A garden or porch that is roomy will give the atmosphere with less of the work. A meal of more than two courses is plenty, except on rare occasions an out-of-door meal is a great treat for the aged or invalids who cannot go far from home.

Sliced cold meats are always good for an outdoor meal; stuffed eggs and salads of all kinds are agreeable. Such meats may all be prepared in the morning and left in the ice chest. Lettuce if washed and placed in a bag made of an old lace curtain is always ready to serve.

A jar of mayonnaise, fresh fruit and a cake with coffee or a cold drink will offer a good meal.

The young folks of the family will delight to arrange the table and call the clearing away fun, for it will be different than the daily meal.

To save work have the entire first course placed on the serving plate; use paper napkins and save in laundry work.

Combination Salad—Take two cupfuls of fresh cooked peas, one cupful of sliced celery, one red pepper finely shredded, a bit of finely chopped onion, and a half cupful of peanuts rolled until like coarse crumbs. Line a salad bowl with lettuce after rubbing the bowl with a clove of garlic cut into halves, then heap in the salad that has been well mixed with mayonnaise. Garnish with hard cooked eggs, and slices of small ripe tomatoes.

Chicken in Mold—Cook a fowl until tender with a bunch of celery and a small onion. Remove the vegetables and strain the broth. Cut the chicken from the bones. Crush the bones and cover them with water; simmer until all the gelatin is removed. Strain and add a teaspoonful of prepared gelatin and add to the chicken broth. Arrange the chicken in a mold, adding the broth a little at a time, letting it harden, until all is used. Set away for twelve to fourteen hours to mold. This may be molded in small forms or cut into slices and served on lettuce with a rich mayonnaise.

Things Worth Knowing.
Peas that are picked too green may be ripened in the hay mow. Turn them occasionally. Tomatoes or other fruit will ripen placed in a wire basket where the air surrounds the fruit. It is not necessary to turn it.

Keep brown sugar in an air-tight can or in the same box with a lump of prunes. The sugar will take the moisture from the prunes and keep from lumping and drying out.

After cooking fish wash the dish in clear water with a tablespoonful or two of vinegar and let it boil a few minutes.

The broiler pan of the gas stove is easily cleaned by a little water is kept in it when broiling steaks. All excess fat drips into it and may be saved when cold and there is no danger of a blasting pan.

After using the meat grinder it is much more quickly cleaned if a crust of bread or a few dry crackers are run through it, then wash and clean it with a percolator brush.

For one who travels often it is wise to keep the small bag packed with necessities. Adding the clothing takes for little time, but a toothbrush, brush or comb forgotten in the last minute rush is very inconvenient.

When cleaning hardwood floors use cold water and a good soap. All grease is removed much easier. A brush and a good scouring powder are very effective on a muddied floor.

Old potatoes if peeled and left to stand in cold water for several hours will take up moisture and cook almost as well as new.

New potatoes for salads should be cooked with their skins on. They have a much better flavor.

String beans cooked in an open kettle with a little soda, sugar and salt will be an attractive green. Plenty of good butter is needed to make any of these vegetables palatable.

A deep iron kettle called a Scotch kettle, with an iron cover, is the best utensil for cooking meats and bowl of all kinds. If the meat seems to be tough add a tablespoonful or two of vinegar to soften the fibers.

Another recommended method is to take a teaspoonful of powdered alum, dissolve in a tablespoonful of water and set in the oven to become transparent. Wash the broken edges in hot water and while still hot rub with the alum, lightly and quickly as the alum sets instantly. Set away to become firm.

When varnishing a floor place the can of varnish in a dish of hot water to keep the varnish thin and easy to spread. It goes farther and makes a better finish.

Why They Chuckled
Smith had been troubled by his neighbor's hens. One day he was looking at them over the fence when he inquired, "By the way, Jones, what did you say for those fowls?" "A dollar apiece," replied Brown. "Ah, that explains it," said Smith. "I wondered what the things had to chuckle about."

Weak Humanity
It is as difficult to get a man to admit that he snores as it is to get a woman to admit her age.

Simple Explanation of Jones' Little Blunder

The wife was a tall brunette. Jones had waited on the appointed corner for her for 15 minutes and was beginning to grow impatient. At last he espied a tall, familiar-looking figure coming down the street. She arrived at the corner, and he took her by the arm, saying: "Come, dear, we must hurry."

"Sir, how dare you?" the woman answered.

"Why, Hattie, what in the world—" "Officer, this man is attempting to be familiar with me," the tall woman said to a John Law who had just approached.

On his way to the station Jones had an opportunity to think it over. Suddenly it dawned on him—he had forgotten to remove his colored glasses and had accosted a blonde instead of his dark-haired spouse.—Washington Columns.

Famous Men and Cats

The philosophic Rousseau said a cat was like a young child, "he prowls into every corner." Until he has made himself familiar with all his surroundings with the same healthy, empiric curiosity found in children.

Gautier turned his vivid imagination upon cats and said: "A cat looks into your face with eyes so human . . . that you are smitten by fear. Can it be possible there is no thought behind that absorbed and mysterious scrutiny?"

Doctor Johnson's cat was not beneath the attention of Boswell. The poets, Cowper, Gray, Southey, Wordsworth and Matthew Arnold, wrote affectionately of cats, particular and general.

Their Presence Defined

She sat up in bed and clutched her husband's arm.

"Jack?" she whispered, hoarsely.

"Burglars?"

"No sense!"

"It isn't nonsense! I tell you they're downstairs!"

"Well, I say they're not!"

"And I say they are!"

"Gently, gently!" growled a deep-voiced stranger, popping his head in at the door. "Your husband's right."

"What do you mean?" screamed the frightened wife.

"Why, that we're not downstairs," replied the burglar as he closed the door again. "We're upstairs. Good-night."

Hair-Curling Devices

Six hundred patents for new devices to meet the age-old desire of women for curly hair have been issued by the United States patent office since the Popular Science Monthly. These devices include methods of waving hair by means of hot air and steam, and by permanent waving machines. The first American patent for curling hair was issued in 1857 to a man named Lewis, who perfected an iron heated by plunging it in hot water.

Electric Street Railways

The first electric street railway to run successfully in the United States began operations in Richmond, Va., in 1888. That is only 37 years ago, but today there are in the country a total of 45,000 miles of track of electric street railways, and last year the 900 companies which form the street railway systems of the nation carried a total of 16,000,000,000 passengers, or nearly 160 times the total population of the country.

Decorations Too Costly

Brass work, with which the front doors of most British homes have been adorned for centuries and which contributes to the furnishings of numerous offices, is going out of fashion because of the expense involved in keeping the fixtures shiny. Many new buildings in Liverpool and elsewhere in England are going up without brass or copper decorations.

Juvenile Courts Busy

Approximately 200,000 young persons under eighteen years of age passed through the juvenile courts of the United States in 1923 and of this number 75,000 were placed on probation. Of the probationary cases more than 80 per cent passed through the probation period successfully. The figures were compiled by the National Probation Association.

TWICE IN THIS WOMAN'S LIFE

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her from Sickness to Health

Ellensburg, Washington. — "When I was first coming into womanhood I suffered terribly every month. My mother did everything she could think of, so she took me to several doctors and they only helped me a little. My mother was talking to another lady about my condition and she told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mother got me six bottles and at the end of the first month I was much better, so I kept on taking it until I had no more pains. When I got married and had my first child I was in terrible pain so that it was impossible for me to do my housework. I thought of how the Vegetable Compound had been of so much benefit to me when I was a girl, so I went to Perier's Drug-Store and got six bottles. It sure did help me and I still take it. I am a well woman today and I can't say too much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I will answer any letter that comes to me to answer about what your medicine has done for me." Mrs. WILLIAM CALVEY, R. F. D. No. 2, Ellensburg, Washington.

RUPTURE SHIELD EXPERT HERE

E. J. Meinhardt, the well known Expert from Chicago, will personally be at the Palmer Hotel, Fond du Lac, Wis., on Friday only, July 10th.

Mr. Meinhardt says "The Vacuum Rupture Shields" will not only hold the Rupture perfectly, but will contract the opening in ten days on the average case—usually giving instantaneous relief withstanding all strain regardless of the size and location of the Rupture.

WARNING: Every ruptured person should be cautioned against wearing trusses with understraps. These trusses usually place the pad on the lump and not on the rupture opening. This often causes strangulation which usually necessitates an immediate surgical operation or results in sudden death. Therefore, do not expose yourself to the danger of wearing old-style trusses with understraps. "The Vacuum Rupture Shield" has no understraps, no straps around the body or legs. It is also perfectly sanitary and practically indestructible, and should be worn while bathing. Mr. Meinhardt will be pleased to demonstrate "The Vacuum Rupture Shield" to all gentlemen who call at this Hotel from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. Only gentlemen are invited to call on the above date as a special visit will be made here at a later date for women and children.

Notice: Do not write asking to be fitted by mail as this is impossible. Every case must be seen personally. If interested you must call at this hotel on the above date. Business demands prevent stopping at any other city in this section. Home office: 3935 W. North Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Polka Revival Attempted
Farmers in the Marquette district of England have attempted to revive the polka and other old-time dances, much to the joy of the younger generation, who seemed willing to drop the modern steps somewhat upon being taught the polka and the lancers by the older dancers. William Smith inaugurated the novelty at a dancing hall, with the aid of the more mature residents of the community.

Old Fight With Indians
No intelligent estimate can be made of the number of Indians engaged in the Turners Falls (Mass.) fight. Captive Indian women said that 400 were killed. The Pocomtuncs suffered severely and their power was forever broken. One hundred and forty-five white men participated in the fight. Forty-one were killed and three wounded. The attack occurred on May 16, 1676.

Literary Heroines

One of the most engaging characters in Dickens' novels is Dolly Varden, and in the seventies of last century she gave her name to a style of dress. There were Dolly Varden bonnets and Dolly Varden frocks, just as later there were Tilly and Tilly hats, although neither of these famous girls ever had any existence except in the pages of literature.

Position of the Heart

Medical authorities say that it is possible for human beings to have their hearts on the right side of their bodies—in fact it is known that there are some people living today who have this organ on the right side.
