FIRE AT KEWASKUM ALUMINUM PLANT LOSS WILL REACH ABOUT $75,000

BOLTONVILLE

Fire, which for a time threatened to wipe out the entire stock in the storage room on the second floor of the Kewaskum Aluminum plant, was discovered on Wednesday evening at 7:15 o'clock by Oscar Koerber, who operates the Kewaskum Plating Works, located only a short distance south of the factory building.

The fire started in the storage room on the second floor of the Kewaskum Aluminum plant, which is situated on the north end of the town. The fire broke out at about 7:15 o'clock on Wednesday evening and was discovered by Oscar Koerber, who operates the Kewaskum Plating Works. He immediately called the fire department and the alarm was sounded at 7:30 o'clock. The firemen arrived at the plant at 7:45 o'clock and immediately started to fight the fire. The fire spread rapidly and the flames soon reached the ceiling of the storage room. The firemen were unable to get to the fire in time and the entire room was filled with smoke and flames. The firemen were forced to leave the building and to keep from suffocating. Through hard work and by constantly placing new men at the nozzles of the fire hose the fire was finally put under control and windows were then opened in the storage room to allow the smoke and intense heat to escape. The dishes stored in the room were all wrapped in paper and piled in rows in bins, made for that purpose, making it still more difficult to get at the flames. By the time the fire was finally gotten under control, it had already burned its way into several bins to the middle of the room and only for a matter of a short while longer would have reached the packing department, which was filled with excelsior and paper boxes. Once it had reached this place, there would have been no doubt but what the entire second floor would have been wiped out. Three streams of water were continually thrown onto the flames. The loss estimated by officials of the company will run between $65,000 and $75,000, which is covered by insurance. The damage done by the fire proper amounted to only a few thousand dollars, the most damage was done by water and smoke. The entire stock will have to be gone over. It is thought that most of it will have to be repolished, while a large amount is a complete loss. The company employs over seventy-five people, most of whom were laid off for a few days, until the insurance companies had made adjustment. The factory today is again operating full blast, as but little damage was done on the first floor of the building where the machinery is located and where the Kewaskum aluminum product is manufactured. Luckily the factory is a fire-proof building, and little damage was done to the same, had it not been such the entire building together with the large ware house, which stands only a few feet away from it, would today be nothing more than a pile of ash. How the fire started is a mystery which will undoubtedly never be solved. Albert Iron, foreman of the plant, as usual made his tour of inspection through every department that every thing was all right in so doing, he could not find a sign of fire any where. At the time when entry into the storage room could not be gained and the fire was spreading rapidly, the firemen were forced to leave the building and to keep from suffocating. Through hard work and by constantly placing new men at the nozzles of the fire hose the fire was finally put under control and windows were then opened in the storage room to allow the smoke and intense heat to escape. The dishes stored in the room were all wrapped in paper and piled in rows in bins, made for that purpose, making it still more difficult to get at the flames. ### BIG PICTURES TO SHOW AT LOCAL OPERA HOUSE

A gang of successful, desperate crooks tried to steal the heart of a young and innocent girl violinist turn her into a crook and use her in their big schemes. But the girl, with nothing but her sweetness and the music of her violin, turned these crooks, male and female, into paths they did not want to go. This, in brief, is the story that Edwin Carewe has turned into a powerful picture, "Mighty Lak a Rose", that is coming to the Opera House Sunday.

PAUL REVERE'S RIDE A THRU ING SCENE

Famed in poetry and in prose, the historical ride of Paul Revere is never before invested with the significance, the thrills and the daring that it is in D. W. Griffith's "America," the romantic epic of the War of Independence, which will have its premiere at the Opera House. And Mr. Griffith's picture gives the ride, for which the poet stated that "hardly a man now alive remembers that famous date and year," the vociferous applause which greets every hoofbeat of Revere's horse shows very well that women and children as well as men remember Paul, his steed, and the occasion of their journey very well indeed. See these two pictures by all means.

SICK WOMEN ATTENTION!

Read this Remarkable Testimony Regarding Results from Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Norfolk, Virginia. "If you only knew how many women and girls have taken your medicine by hearing my testimony, it would seem wonderful to you. Every day and every hour I have a new story to tell you. It was in June, 1914, when I had given up to never get well, that I wrote to you. My husband went to the drug-store and brought home to me a box of your medicine. In a few days I began to improve and I have often taken it since. I am now passing through the Change of Life and still stick by it and am enjoying with grateful heart. When I first started with your medicine I was a mere shadow. The last doctor I had said he would give me no more local treatments unless I went to the hospital and was operated on. That was when I gave the doctors up. Now I am a healthy robust woman. I wish I could tell the world what a wonderful medicine Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is. I will be only too glad to answer letters from anywhere. I wish all sick women would take it."—Mrs. J. A. Jones, 317 Colby Avenue, Norfolk, Virginia.

RADIO

Three-Tube Reflex Receiver Using Low-Loss Doughtnut Coil Coupler and Tuned Radio Frequency Transformer. Second Tube Is Reflexed So That It Amplifies Current at Both Radio and Audio Frequencies.

By FRANK REICHMANN, B. S., E. M.

The perfection of the low-loss doughnut type of inductance has made possible the increase in efficiency of many circuits. Due to the fact that losses are lower than in any other type of coil available at the present time, substitution of the doughnut coil for the conventional type of variocoupler in the reflex receiver makes a good circuit much better.

Tuning is sharpened and stability improved considerably as the radio frequency resistance of this form of winding is at a minimum and the magnetic field is contained to the inside of the coil winding, eliminating intercoupling and its consequent effects. The coil is stagger-wound to reduce distributed capacity losses to a point seldom reached with other types of inductances.

Uses Reflex Principle.

Pickup of energy from feed stations is presently obtained in the receiver described in this article, due to the fact that the coil shape is such that energy picked up on one side is neutralized by the energy picked up on the other side. This fact makes it possible to tune to distant stations without the background of local stations interfering.

In this connection it is advisable to keep the leads from the batteries and the set wiring as short as possible to avoid the additional pickup that might offset the good effects of the low-loss doughnut coil, which are truly remarkable when properly utilized.

The receiver here described makes use of the reflex principle which further increases the value of the set for the number of tubes that are used. Although but three tubes are used, the current is carried through five stages, being amplified twice in the form of radio frequency, rectified by the crystal detector, and then amplified twice in the form of audio frequency.

The set can be made very compact, with two tuning controls, and equalizing, or auto-forming, other receivers using five tubes in a straight circuit. Reception is clear and undistorted, lacking the characteristic regenerative distortion noticed in so many circuits where the tubes are operated near their oscillation point.

Material Needed.

To build the receiver you will need the following list of material:

One low-loss doughnut coupler.
Two reflex radio frequency transformers. (Low-loss doughnut coils, of the transformer type may be used here in the first stage.)
Two 6005 mfd. variable condensers, preferably straight-line-frequency type.
One fixed mica condenser each of the following sizes: .001 mfd., .002 mfd., and .0005 mfd.
Low ratio audio frequency transformers, suitable for reflex.
One fixed or adjustable crystal detector.

These tube sockets and rheostats for the type of tube to be used. Twenty-five ohm with the LY 201-A or C 501-A type, is recommended.

One single-circuit telephone jack.
One 7 by 15-inch panel with a 7 by 7-inch baseboard of 1/4-inch soft wood.
Binding posts, wire screws, etc.
No grid leak and condenser is needed for this type of receiver as a grid detector is used. Mount the tubes so that short leads and wire-tween the various parts can be pletely before charging it; if the hydrometer float starts sinking, connect the charger and let it run overnight.

Disturbances arising from a receiving set and loud speaker can be reduced by placing the cabinet on layers of felt.

When using two loud speakers, connect them in series, using a "B" battery of 60 to 120 volts and a "C" battery.

Two crystal sets may be worked on one aerial, but regenerative sets give trouble.

For a loud speaker, it is necessary to have a set employing three, four, or five tubes.

An insulated wire will pick up the broadcast programs just as easily as a bare wire, as the waves penetrate the covering without the least difficulty. If the lead-in is insulated it will act as a part of the aerial.

Cellar Storage for Vegetables

Well Ventilated Basement Is Satisfactory Place if Kept Cool.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A cool, well ventilated, properly insulated cellar under the dwelling or outhouse is a satisfactory place to store vegetables for winter use. Cellars containing a furnace for heating the dwelling are usually too warm and too dry for the storage of root crops. In such cases a portion of the cellar can be partitioned off for storage purposes. Natural earth makes a better floor than concrete or brick, as a certain amount of moisture is desirable. If the cellar is square or rectangular, a storage room can be built in one corner. If it is in the shape of an ell, it is sometimes possible to partition off a storage room with one straight wall. Where more than one wall is constructed, they should be parallel with those of the cellar.

Plan for Storage Room.

Lay 2 by 4-inch scantling flat on the floor and fasten them with pegs driven into the floor or by nailing them to the top of short posts set in the ground. Set 2 by 4-inch scantling from this sill to the ceiling, spacing them 16 inches apart from center to center. Locate the door to the storage room at the most convenient point, making it large enough to admit barrels, boxes, etc., a road size being 2 1/2 feet by 4 1/2 feet. Set the studs on either side of the door 32 inches apart, which will allow for the door and the frame. Put a header over the door, allowing 1 inch for the frame and seven-eighths of an inch for the sill at the bottom. Set the studs against the walls where the cellar walls and storage-room walls meet. Care in making the frame square and plumb will enable the builder to get the structure tight with a minimum of labor. A good room is made by covering the studding on the outside with tongue-and-groove material, but a better way is to sheathe the outside with plain lumber, tack building paper on this and seal with tongue-and-groove material with lath and plaster or wall-board on the inside makes an excellent room.

Regulate Temperature.

The temperature of the storage room can be regulated by means of outside windows. At least one window is necessary and two or more are desirable for light and ventilation. Two or more joints of 6-inch stove pipe with a damper and one elbow can be used to bring out air from the outside to the bottom of the room. The pipe may be fitted into the window by removing one of the lower panes of glass and substituting a board in which has been cut a hole the size of the stovepipe. An outlet for the windows in the storage room may be provided by roasting an upper pane from the window and in its place fitting a small hinged door. This door, when opened, will allow the heated air to escape. Both the damper in the pipe and the hinged door in the window should be closed during cold weather. The windows in storage rooms should be darkened to protect the vegetables from the light.

Movable containers, such as barrels, crates and boxes, are preferable to built-in bins, as the former can be readily moved for cleaning. It is advisable to construct shelves or a flat floor to keep the containers off the ground, to insure a free circulation of air used to prevent the containers from harboring mice, rats, and other vermin. The shelves for canned goods along one side of the room need not be more than six inches wide.

Controlling Frost on Walls of Stable

Ventilating System Will Take Care of Moisture.

How to prevent the heavy accumulation of frost in stock barns during cold weather is a problem which often confronts farmers. Three things can be done to correct this condition, according to R. L. Parry, head of the Iowa agricultural engineering department at State college. One is to ventilate the building; another is to keep enough stock in the building so the temperature will be controlled, and a third is to insulate the walls and ceiling as thoroughly as possible.

"A ventilating system alone will prevent an extreme accumulation of moisture in the air and thereby help to control the frost deposits," he says. "It will not prevent the accumulation of a certain amount of frost without the other two factors mentioned above. Frost is not an indication of foul air unless the deposit is extreme. Air that is 100 per cent pure will frost under favorable conditions for it. By keeping the overhead space low and the building filled with the amount of stock intended for the space, the frost will not be had if a proper ventilating system is provided."

The ventilating system must be put in exactly right. Parry states, if frost is to be controlled best, insulating the walls and ceilings helps greatly in controlling frost. A dead-air space will insulate the walls and a layer of hay on the new floor above will insulate the ceiling and prevent a deposit of frost.

The practice of building low and insulating, Parry believes, is a good one when the building is ventilated. If no ventilation is provided, it is a dangerous one.

Proper Packing Is Big Factor in Ice Storage

Studies of icehouses throughout New Jersey by E. R. Gross, agricultural engineer at the college of agriculture, New Brunswick, have shown that when the ice is best it is not always the fault of the house, and that proper packing is the most important factor in ice storage.

According to the engineer's report, two points must be observed; namely, proper amount of packing material, usually sawdust, and proper pack of the ice block itself.

A very simple frame building, roughly boarded up both inside and outside of studdings will keep ice when the ice is packed correctly with 12 to 18 inches of sawdust on all sides, top and bottom. Better construction is obtained, however, by double boarding, using paper between the boards. In this type of house, the top and the lower end of the walls must be made very tight to secure real dead air spaces in the walls. The shrinkage of ice in this house is much less than in one of simpler construction.

The ice cakes must fit closely together and all crevices should be filled with finely crushed ice or snow. Failure to fill these crevices tight starts air channels which can seldom be effectively stopped. Skimping in the amount of sawdust used and carelessly leaving cracks in the ice block are the causes of much loss of ice. Daily attention when the pack starts settling in the first warm weather of spring also is necessary.

Asparagus More Uniform When Set in the Spring

Asparagus roots are set in the spring rather than in the fall. Probably many of the roots would live if set in the fall, but the stand would be more uniform by spring setting. The usual distance is 4 by 2 1/2 feet. The roots are set in furrows 5 to 10 inches deep, so that the green is 30 inches above the surface of the ground. After setting, the roots are gradually covered by cultivation so that by fall of the first year they will be completely covered. For the first three years the plants are given ordinary cultivation between the rows with a hand hoe occasionally to keep out the weeds. In the fall the tops are thoroughly disked up and an application of manure is desirable. The cutting season would begin in the spring of the fourth year.

FARM FACTS

- Home-grown feeds are cheapest.
- Save a little pig and add a lot of pork profit.
- Prompt storage of apples helps eliminate scald injury.
- Cleaning up the garden after harvest will help to keep down the insect crop.
- Regularity in the use of lights, feed, and water for the poultry flock makes for regularity in egg production.
- Distance between the pelvic bones indicates laying condition. If a fowl is not laying the bones are closed.
- Mites are mighty and will prevail unless you frequently spray and paint the roosting places with a good contact disinfectant.
- Avoid drafty roosting places—summer cools are easy to get and hard to drive out unless you confine the birds during treatment.
- The most common ground feeds are wheat bran, wheat middlings, wheat shorts, cotton seed meal, commercial meat scraps and commercial meat meal. All of these feeds are high in protein.
- Clip weeds in new alfalfa seedings before they ripen. This also gives the growing alfalfa more sunlight, moisture and plant food. Raise the cutting bar high enough to miss the alfalfa plants.

Went to the "Roots" of Patient's Trouble

Dr. S. G. Schaefer tells an amusing story about the modern doctor's practice of extracting teeth as a cure for so many ailments.

"A man went into a clinic one day and complained that he had lots of trouble biting his finger nails.

"Well, the medical staff in charge did everything they could to find out what was the cause of this pernicious psychiatric phenomenon. They couldn't find the cause anywhere. As a last resort they looked at the man's teeth. There was something suspicious about them. They pulled out a couple of them. Instantly the patient showed improvement! Encouraged by their success, they pulled them all out! Their patient pronounced himself completely cured and from that day to this he has never bitten his finger nails!"

The Old Standby in a New Dress

The same dependable remedy that over a period of more than fifty years has been found so reliable in the treatment of catarrh and diseases of catarrhal nature.

The outside of the package only has been altered. To facilitate packing and reduce breakage in shipping, the paper wrapper which has identified the Pe-Ru-Na bottle for many years has been displaced by a substantial pasteboard carton.

Pe-Ru-Na cannot be made any better. Three generations of users testify that Pe-Ru-Na is the best remedy in the world for catarrh and diseases of catarrhal origin.

The remedy our fathers and grandfathers used with so much satisfaction is still the standby for the ill of everyday in thousands of American homes.

WHO SAID

"I am not a Virginian but an American."

HAD Patrick Henry lived 50 years later than he did, would we have clung to his assertion that he was a citizen of the United States, rather than of Virginia?

It was on this question of whether the citizens of the United States were citizens of the nation or of the state in which they lived that the Civil War was fought and finally decided in favor of those holding to the theory here enunciated by Patrick Henry.

Of course, Patrick Henry lived before the real development of the nation into states. They were but loosely organized colonies before the Revolutionary war and their structure had not changed greatly before death claimed the renowned orator. Had Patrick Henry lived later in the history of his country it is quite likely that his intense love for Virginia would have caused him to alter the declaration quoted above.

Patrick Henry was born in Virginia in 1733. He was given a good education and in 1760 he was admitted to the bar of his native state. Henry's ability soon became evident. No other public speaker of his time could surpass him in his love upon his audience and his impassioned addresses played a prominent part in leading the colonists against the British. He was one of the most bitter opponents of the Stamp Act and it was his repeated speeches against it that made its enforcement practically impossible.

The one declaration best remembered of this orator is the famous one: "I know not what course others may take; but as for me give me liberty or give me death."

Patrick Henry died in 1799.—Wayne D. McMuray.

MOST WELCOME

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

FAME, pass me by, and, wealth, elude My eager grasp, and what's all that? The stars in often only rules.

And greatness only wondered at. I would be great another way. So great that other men would say, "I never knew a man so kind. For such a friend you seldom find."

Yes, wealth, elude my eager hand, And will it matter, after all? Who builds upon the golden sand May only build a house to fall, I would be rich another way, So rich that other men would say, "Though little is the wealth in sounds, No mortal has so many friends."

Yes, wealth, elude, fame, pass me by. Though both a man may well desire, But let me know that always I Am welcome at another's fire. I would be famous in a way, So famous other men would say, "Though Croesus come, a king be he, He is the one they welcome most."

Sign for Manuscript

MS means manuscript. MSS is simply the plural, meaning more than one. M.M. means Macaulay's Metronome. It is wrong to suppose that it stands for Metronome Mark, although of course the letters may be so interpreted, but then they stand for a number of other words also.

AN ABBREVIATED STORY

THE LEAD PENCIL

TWO days ago I was a beautiful, business pencil, hale and hearty and of full stature, with my name, "Write-easy, No. 4," printed on my sleek side in letters of purest gold. I hadn't a single care in the world, and my heart was full of love for all human beings—for was it not to humans that I owed my lovely shape, my long sturdy bar of unbroken lead and my soft, firm wood?

Today I am a miserable abandoned stump without even a point. My gold name has been cruelly hacked off, even to the capital W.

For a woman tried to sharpen me. If I had been wise I would have struggled out of her hands as soon as she borrowed her husband's penknife—struggled out of her hands and slipped down a crack to an eternal dark oblivion that at least would not have robbed me of my shape.

At the first inch of wood and lead that she hacked off, she said: "Something must be the matter with the wood."

At the second inch she said: "Something must be the matter with the lead."

At the third inch she said: "Something must be the matter with the knife."

At that I faltered from pain and humiliation, and availed a scraggy cast-off stump of my former self.

And a confirmed woman hater.

SCHOOL DAYS

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

MENTAL ATMOSPHERE

WHATEVER it may be with regard to your idea of peace of mind, quite apart from wealth and position, you will soon or late discover that the mental atmosphere in which you move from day to day has a great deal to do with your happiness.

You cannot experience those delightful seasons of peace, joy and harmony which come frequently to the souls who habitually indulge in right thinking, unless you, too, live and work in a spiritual and mental sunshine, attuned to the glorious harmonies which are all about you, waiting for you to clasp them in your hands, press them to your heart and accept them as your own.

You may grope for a solution of life's problems year after year, but you will not find it until you climb to the hill-tops and get in a cleaner atmosphere which has a mystic way of its own in clearing the vision and lightening the heart, even when the skies are all around you are hung with somber gray curtains.

All that is good and glorious in life comes from right thinking.

Superb paintings for which fabulous prices are paid; masterful music which stirs the soul and carries it away into the land of bright dreams; beautiful buildings with exquisitely blended proportions and pleasing lines, and even the human face with its beaming eyes and cheerful countenance come into being through right thinking—through living in a higher mental atmosphere; where mind substance is purified and molded into unusual forms, which in their simple grace and beauty arouse the admiration of the world.

You may have petroglyphic talents, but they cannot long survive in a tainted atmosphere, for like the peach and the rose, they must have the helpful sunshine, the pure rain and dew, to develop their full sweetness; they require an atmosphere suitable to their proper growth and development.

You may have a wonderful mind, but unless you live in the right atmosphere, keep it in touch with other minds and harness it by constant use and rubbing, it will sicken, atrophy and perish among the vanities on which life turns from exaltation to despair.

If you would have understanding, a track record in accomplishment, two or three good friends and success in helping measure, you must live and work continuously in an uncorrupted mental atmosphere, otherwise your little journey through this world will terminate in disappointment.

Mother's Cook Book

Is life worth living? I think that it is, if you have the peace and all. The cost has been more than doubled, and we still hang on.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

SAVORY FOODS

FLANK steak, when carefully prepared, makes a most appetizing dish. Pound the meat until the fibers are well broken, rub with three tablespoons of butter or cooking oil; when the oil is absorbed fry in a hot iron frying pan. Place the browned meat in a casserole, rinse out the pan with two tablespoons of boiling water and pour it over the meat. Add one bayleaf, one clove of garlic, two teaspoonsful of salt, two tablespoons each of minced celery, green pepper and carrot. Add two cupsful of boiling water and in the last half hour of cooking six medium-sized potatoes. Cook two and one-half hours. Thicken with a tablespoonful of flour mixed with a little cold water.

Savory Casserole of Mutton. Cut a slice of mutton from the middle part of the leg of a yearling—have the slice two inches thick. Remove the bone and fill the cavity with minced onion or celery. Dredge with flour and salt and pepper. Prepare a one cupful of brown stock, one-half cupful of currant jelly, a dozen chopped olives, six peppercorns, three whole cloves, one tablespoonful of lemon juice. Thicken when boiling with one tablespoonful of flour mixed with a little water, to a paste. Lay into this the round of mutton, spread

Fowl Supreme. Clean and cut up a six-pound fowl, leaving the breast in one piece. Add salt and season one and one-half hours. Remove the breast, leaving the remainder of the meat to cook. Place the breast skin-side up in a casserole without water. Put on the cover and cook one hour. Do not remove the cover while cooking, as the steam escapes and also the flavor and the meat will be toughened. Cut the dark meat into cubes and add to a pint of white sauce. Place the breast on a serving dish with a head of cooked cauliflower; surround with sauce and garnish with toast points.

Chicken and Spinach Soup. Wash and pick over two pounds of spinach and cook in one-half cupful of butter until tender. Add one-half cupful of flour, mixed with salt and pepper to season. When thick rub through a colander and add two quart of chicken stock. When it comes to a boil serve in cups garnished with whipped cream.

Blushing Apples. Cook after washing and coring good flavored apples. Fill the centers with cinnamon candies, basting during the baking.

Movie Intelligentsia

Frederic Massas, the Spanish portrait painter, said in Los Angeles: "People told me your young movie stars weren't cultured."

Mr. Massas chuckled and went on in his excellent English: "I dined at the Montmartre with a beautiful movie star the other night, and we plunged into literature straight off. She began to crack up Arlen, but I interrupted her.

"I suppose you're pretty well acquainted with Shakespeare?" I said.

"She laughed and nicked a bread pellet at me.

"No, you don't," she said. "You can't string me! Shakespeare's dead."

The Living Proof That Canada Makes Good

CANADA is the Land of Promise to-day. Canada promises prosperity, health and happiness to those who come prepared and determined to work. And, on her promises, Canada makes good. If you are strong and willing, you can make yourself independent in Canada, no matter if your cash capital is small.

Take the Case of C. A. Dunning

C. A. Dunning came to the Province of Saskatchewan in 1903. He was an immigrant boy from England, only seventeen years old, not over strong, no money, no knowledge of agriculture. But he wanted to work and he was looking for a job in Saskatchewan, as a start. He was determined to make good.

He got the job. It was on a new farm in Saskatchewan, thirty miles from the end of the railway. His pay was $10.00 per month and board. He lived in a sod shack and slept on the floor. To-day, Charles A. Dunning is Premier of Saskatchewan, Chief Executive and Leader of the Provincial Government, and one of the most successful farmers in Canada.

A Great Country
Canada is a great, rich, varied country with the glorious power and vitality of youth. She is already the greatest exporter of wheat in the world, although only about one-fifth of her good farm land has as yet been brought under cultivation. Canada's wheat crop in 1924 was 262,000,000 bushels; in 1925 it is officially estimated at 391,000,000 bushels—an increase of 129,000,000 bushels. Other branches of farming—dairying, stock-raising, etc.—are increasing proportionately. Canada is increasingly rich in beef and dairy cattle, in horses and sheep, and in poultry. C. A. Dunning has shared in this development and prospered accordingly.

C. A. Dunning's story of success on the farm can be multiplied thousands of times in the different Provinces of Canada. Do YOU want to get ahead? Do YOU want to succeed and make a home for yourself on a low-cost farm where you can prosper and be independent? Come to Canada, the land of bigger crops and cheaper, richer land. Officers of the Canadian Government will help you, free of charge, to get suitably located; if desired they will supervise your start and give you all the help and counsel you may ask. Good land near the railroads sells at from $15.00 to $20.00 per acre. Free homesteads farther back. Full particulars will be found in the Canada Books issued by the Government. Send for one today. They're free. Use this coupon. Opportunity is knocking at your door.

Reports indicate that 10,000,000 cases, or 50 per cent of all peas raised in the United States, were produced in Wisconsin farms in 1925. The number of cases is slightly lower than the 1924 production of 10,500,000 cases. New York, with 2,855,000 cases, is the state's nearest competitor.

Madison—The Farmers' Pride cheese factory, Stevensville, Taylor county, managed by F. H. Carpenter, is the most attractive cheese factory in Wisconsin. Prairie du Chien—A steel sword, of the type used by the British army during the latter part of the seven-teenth century, was blown out of an Indian mound on a farm near Milwaukee along a ridge overlooking the Wisconsin river. 22 ARE INDICTED FOR RUM PLOT IN ST. LOUIS

Charged With Having Conspired in Theft of 893 Barrels of Whisky

St. Louis, Mo.—Seven of twenty-two St. Louisans named in indictments charging conspiracy to violate the Volstead act made bond for their appearance at Indianapolis for arraignment. Indictments were returned against the twenty-two in Indianapolis Saturday as having conspired in the theft of 893 barrels of whisky from the Jack Daniel distillery warehouse here in 1923.

Those who gave bond were Collector of Internal Revenue Helmlitch, Nat Goldstein, State Senator Michael Kinney and his brother, W. J. Kinney; and Fred Essen, R. E. Walker, former deputy sheriff, and M. Malin.

Included in the list of persons indicted was Imogene Remus, wife of the former Cincinnati bootlegger, who has become estranged from him since his recent release from the Atlanta penitentiary. Remus, who testified before the grand jury, was not indicted.

Helmlitch sent a telegram to President Coolidge tendering his resignation as internal revenue collector, to take effect at the President's pleasure. The collector issued a lengthy statement in which he denied all knowledge of the crime alleged.

A number of employees of the St. Louis internal revenue office testified before the Indianapolis grand jury, as did George Remus.

DOUST PERSIAN SHAH; DICTATOR DONS CROWN

Premier Riza Khan Succeeds Ahmed Mirza, Who Is Now in France.

London.—Premier Riza Khan has consented to accept the Persian throne, according to a dispatch from Teheran.

The premier, who for some time has been dictator, said he will call a constitutional assembly to make the necessary changes in the constitution.

A short time later, the megalomaniac Ahmed Mirza, shah of Persia, who is now in France, of his royal authority and passed it to Premier Riza Khan. Royalty thus becomes elective in Persia. There was gun firing and the crown prince retired to his residence.

In the meanwhile minor clashes have occurred between adherents of the shah and the premier. The crown prince's coachman led one attack, in which a member of the premier's party was killed. The police dispersed the crowd. They have arrested the leading supporters of the Kadjar dynasty.

Riza Khan, a man of iron will, rose from the ranks in the army in which he served for many years as a private.

The deposed shah is an interesting figure. Born in 1897, his youth was passed in stormy years which culminated in the abdication of his father, Mohammed Ali, in 1902.

When the shah left Teheran for France, he was said to have been taken with him a check for $1,000,000 paid by the Standard Oil company for oil rights. At any rate, the shah was seen a great deal about town in Paris in company with gay ladies, and it was reported of his escapades which helped to arouse resentment against him in Persia.

"See Prudence," Jerrold had told him, with vast relief.

"In love like Prudence," Jerry had said on that memorable night in Carter Blake's kitchen.

"Good Lord!" he thought in trepidation. "Am I to blurt it out like that, Lead me to Prudence?" For what or whom she might be, whether sister, companion, or friend, he had no slightest idea.

In another instant he would have bolted for freedom from this embarrassing predicament, but the door opened in the face of his dismay, and Katie's sober placid features confronted him.

"Er-uh," he stammered nervously, and then he faced it bravely, with that winning smile which never yet had failed to blaze a trail for him. "It sounds rather a fool's errand, I know," he said pleasantly, "but Mr. Harmer sent me up and told me to see Prudence."

CHAPTER V

Jerry's Mother

Duane's plaintive announcement at the hospitable door of the Harmer home found echo in a soft peal of sympathetic laughter from within, and she came herself to receive him, Prudence, both hands outstretched in welcome.

"In Prudence," she said, "I am Jerry's mother. Come right in, won't you? It was just like my husband to send you to me in some such crazy fashion."

Duane felt a pleasant, curious quiet come over him as he looked at her. Prudence! Jerry had thought it was falling in love like—Prudence. Jerrold had sent him in triumph to Prudence. This was Prudence.

In spite of the extreme slenderness of her figure, in spite of the delicate pallor of her creamy skin and the faint suggestion of silver in the soft brown hair, there was nothing of frailty about her, rather a sort of youthful, audacious buoyancy. Duane loved the handsome group of her sensitive lips, the humorous light of interest in her bright eyes.

Prudence laughed, holding his hand companionably in hers, as she drew him into the wide lovely room, where she motioned him lightly to an easy chair, and then tucked herself cozily into one corner of another, far too wide for her, leaning comfortably over the upholstered arm in his direction. She could have went aloud over him, and yet she liked him. Prudence, with the rigid training of her Methodist ancestry, still stoutly affirmed that she never took a dislike to any human being, that she was positively without personal aversion. But when she liked it, it was with a quick unerring instinct which had never betrayed her trust.

She rejoiced that she felt this liking for the unfortunate young knight errant, who had come to the Middle West on such an absurd, boyish quest. Jerry might fool her father, might amaze and bewilder even one as skeptical as Duane, but Prudence saw through every little flaw in her armor, saw what lay beneath her stubborn resistance and her eager impulse, both springing as they did from the same emotion.

She found herself apologizing for her daughter. "You must really excuse Jerry if sometimes she seems a little self-willed, almost strong-headed, her father says. I can't imagine where she got so much backbone. I'm very easy about everything, and her father is wax in the hands of anyone who tries to handle him, but Jerry has a terrible mind once she gets it made up."

Duane found himself thinking less of Jerry than of Prudence, rather, thinking through Prudence to Jerry again. His impression of that lovely though willful young woman had to undergo a swift transformation now that he saw Prudence. She explained everything he had not understood before. He found her a rational, maddening maiden.

Prudence did not ask questions. She just talked, laughing with him, at New York, at Jerry, at the Middle West, and at his curious obedience to the caprice of her always capricious daughter.

"And you may have to go to work," she told him. "She seems quite too," she told him. "She seems quite too," she told him. "She seems quite too," she told him.

work. She used to scoff at the nobility of labor as applied to herself, but she seems to have no such scruples in regard to you. Perhaps she is going to ennoble you in spite of yourself. But possibly you will not mind. You do not look at all lazy."

"I've worked before—as you might say. Well, I never washed cars for living, but perhaps I can if I must."

He asked Prudence if it surprised or disappointed her, when Jerry gave up her dreams of Art, her hope of becoming a painter.

"Not a bit," this amazing woman told him. "It didn't surprise me, and it certainly didn't disappoint me. I was glad of it. I knew all the time she couldn't paint."

"Even why did you send her—alone—to study, too?"

"I knew it, but she didn't. And then she talked more of Jerry, of a Jerry he had felt might be in existence but had not known in person. 'She may not be much of an artist,' she said, 'but she's a beautiful, wonderful daughter to Jerrold and me. We don't care whether she can paint or not, she's ours.'"

After a little, when he felt he could safely venture to intrude upon the intimately personal, he asked rather awkwardly:

"Would you mind telling me—how—you fell in love?"

Prudence blushed a little, laughed delightedly. "Oh, the silliest thing," she said apologetically. "Didn't Jerry tell you?"

And then she told him of that early morning on the lovely Iowa countryside, when she went coasting down a steep grade on a borrowed bicycle into disaster and wreckage at the bottom. When he sympathized, laughing, with the Prudence lying in the dust by the roadside, battered and crumpled and torn, with the ruins of the borrowed wheel about her, and on her conscience—

"Oh, don't be sorry," she pleaded gaily, joining his laughter. "For I opened my eyes and there stood over me—Jerrold—Jerry's father—and we looked at each other."

Duane's lips were a rigid line. "Love at first sight?" he muttered grily. "I might have known it."

Prudence nodded. "Yes, love at first sight," she repeated sofly. "Don't you let anyone tell you there's no such thing. There is! At least there is in our day. Oh, well, perhaps it is not technically and scientifically down in the books as love at first sight. But there is that little pleased wakening up, that warm attraction—and if it stops, it is nothing. But if it goes on, and on, it is love at first sight. Like ours! But perhaps things are different now, times are changed, and girls are very different."

Duane was looking past Prudence now, beyond her, to the heart of Jerry, her daughter, unchanged with the changing times. In that moment he knew with undoubting sureness why he had come to this remote and curious place in answer to the impulsive appeal of her letter. His eyes, on Prudence's face, saw not hers but Jerry's.

"I'm surprised she didn't tell you about it," Prudence was saying. "From the time she could talk, she has adored that bit of the family history. When she was a baby, and a little girl—yes, and until she was a pretty big one, she would always say she was going to fall in love like Prudence. She thought nothing else was really love! She used to tell perfect strangers with the utmost frankness and assurance, that it would come to her like that—love—a sudden look, and knowing—"

Prudence laughed tenderly. "She got over it, of course. When she was old enough to understand, she realized that, it doesn't happen like that once in a thousand years, or more."

Duane said nothing. For once, Prudence was wrong. Jerry had not changed. All through her babyhood, and into her woman's estate, that had been the dominant hope and faith of her gay romantic heart. And he, with profane, half-drunken fingers, and hot half-drunken lips, had rent the veil from the beautiful illusion that had been her tenderest dream.

"I love Jerry," he said aloud to Prudence, in a very low and sober voice.

"Did you know that?"

"I—I rather thought so," said Prudence, with a little quivering of her sensitive lips. But she smiled immediately. "I—I don't mind a bit," she said bravely, in gentle apology for that betrayal of her lips.

CHAPTER VI

Jerry Calls for Help

"You Go Up to the House and See Prudence."

Jerrold returned to his home that night in an unnaturally depressed and embittered frame of mind. Why should he, he demanded of Prudence in a stern voice, be saddled with a protegee like that—as big as himself, and who by his own admission knew nothing of motor cars beyond the steering wheel. Prudence agreed with him that it was perfectly reprehensible of the part of their daughter, and she couldn't imagine what things were coming to with this new generation! She balanced herself on the edge of the bathtub while he was shaving, followed him meekly into the room they shared together and stood patently beside him at the dressing-table while he viciously jerked a fresh tie into place.

"It's the way you've raised her," he said in a tone that cleared herself of all moral responsibility for Jerry at least, however much Duane might rest upon his shoulders.

"I know it," Prudence agreed meekly. And then she told her husband that that night when Jerry came home, so that things might work themselves out to a neat conclusion without interference on his part.

"Fact? What do you mean fact?" he demanded.

"Fact—you know what fact is, don't you? It means, say nothing and believe everything, you hear?" she explained sweetly. "It means, don't say a word to Jerry about the young man, don't so much as breathe his name—and if she mentions him of her own accord, believe everything she says even if you know she's making him up word for word as she goes along."

Jerrold, who had always found her counsel good, consented to follow the dictates of tact as she portrayed it in his dealing with Jerry. And so all during dinner they talked with passionate concentration of a thousand things that on this night interested them not in the least of Jerry's business and her struggles with labor problems, of Jerry's business and Prudence's innocent pursuits, of politics, wars and religion, but not one of the three raised a voice on the subject of Duane Alorton.

After dinner they sat down for a practice game of three-handed bridge, but when Prudence, playing spades, revoked twice in hot succession without a word of protest from her opponents, she put her cards on the table.

"You're not paying attention," she accused them. "How can you expect to teach me to play bridge unless you watch me? I trumped hearts twice, and here I have two hearts in my hand, and now I don't know what to do with them."

Jerry laughed. "Prudent they're trumping. Anything is fair if you can get away with it," she said indifferently.

And then her father, abandoning the admonitions of Prudence and the guidance of tact, turned on her in desperation.

"See here, Jerry, I'll stand for a lot—and heaven knows I've had to—but when it comes to bringing a strange young man out here from New York and dumping him down on me without warning, and washing your hands of him in cold blood—well, you can't do it."

Jerry stood up. She looked her father straight in the face, but her voice was very gentle. "Why can't I?" was all she said.

No Dust-Free Air

Dust-free air does not exist anywhere in nature, though it can be obtained by certain filtering devices in the laboratory, says Nature Magazine. From the earth's surface up to regions far above the highest clouds every cubic inch of air contains dustmotes. Near the earth the dust is mostly blown up from the soil by the winds. Far aloft the millions of meteors that enter the earth's atmosphere every day contribute their quota of fine solid matter. Lastly, every great explosive volcanic eruption spouts up enormous quantities of dust to great heights.

Gap Johnson Knows Value of Discretion

"A feller driving along in an old hootin' bumpy car last night with its lights out, ran onto a mule that was laying in the road in front of Hoot Hooter's house," related Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge. "The dern mule started to get up just as the car ran onto him and knocked him over. The driver of the car gave a hoot of his horn and a yell from himself, and the mule laying on his back began to kick and squeal."

"Say, what are you trying to do with my mule?" yelled its owner, running out of his house.

"You better ask him what he's trying to do to me and my car!" the feller hooted right back.

"And as I'd seed and heered this

Colors Affect Growth

Experiments on guinea pigs, carried on in the research laboratory of the Paint Manufacturers' association, show that young animals, and presumably children, as well, grow more rapidly and thrive better in rooms with walls painted in light, cheerful colors than in darker-tinted apartments. The tests were conducted by Dr. H. A. Gardener, who found that the colors were red, blue, white and light tan.

LUXURIOUS COATS OF CLOTH; NEAT TAILORED DAYTIME FROCK

DRAWING conclusions from the early coat arrivals women of fashion are destined to be wrapped in the folds of luxury during the forthcoming months. There is a sumptuousness about present-day cloth-with-fur coats which lies beyond the power of pen or tongue to tell. Only "seeing is believing," for even a most vivid gift of imagination might fall short of visualizing the elegances of fur and fabric and color glory which combine to produce the modern topcoat.

It is a foregone conclusion that the fur-trimmed cloth coat will prove a formidable rival to the all-fur coat. To the utmost of their creative genius fashionists are playing up the fascination of resplendent fur trimmings on cloth superb in quality and richly colorful—wherefore, all things taken into consideration, there is logic in the green cloakings combined with conspicuously handsome fur. Among favorite coat shades, certain tones of purple, various reds and copper brown are outstanding, the same lavishly enhanced with decorative fur.

For sports coats spectacular plaids lead, the fur trimmings blended to the grays, browns and tawny tans included in the weave of the cloth.

As to the tailored frock for autumn daytime wear, the ultra-fashionable trend is decidedly clothward. Chic is the word, when it comes to the styling of these cloth frocks. Even the most conservative tailored frocks reflect the spirit of the flare by subtly introducing flattering trickeries of plaid and gored.

plaits. "If in doubt" choose a fur-bordered cloth coat. Let the two handsome models in the picture serve as "a second to the motion."

The coat to the left is styled of quality-kind bolivia cloth. Its color scheme is adorable, being cranberry red with rich brown fur. There's a cleverly placed side flare.

The long roll shawl-collared and deep cuffs on the coat to the right emphasize the attractiveness of fur embellishment. Handsome stone marten is its kind, though chinchilla or squirrel would prove equally as interesting. The circular flare at the bottom gracefully interprets the new silhouette.

Gray cloth coats with gray fur trimmings register as a foremost fashion. Other intriguing color schemes include ox-blood red for the cloth, trimmed with black fox in generously wide hem-border, matched to deep cuffs with luscious collar; lavish red fox on black cloth or velours; pencil-blue woolen fabric edged with squirrel and there is a decided trend toward dark

Bladder Does Not Act At Night.

Mrs. G. W. Bushong, 1012 S. East St., Bloomington, Ill., says: "Lithiated Fluid tablets relieved me of bladder weakness. Was disturbed twenty-five times a night. I feel I am well. I tried many treatments, submitted to operation, and much torture. In one week after taking Lithiated Fluid I could notice improvement. I will be glad to tell or write my experience." The formula is on the bottle. It cleanses the bladder as poison salts do the bowels. The tablets cost 2 cents each at all drug stores.
