THE NIGHT BEFORE—

Merry Open House on Christmas Eve

Steamstress Finds a Warm Welcome and Assists at Social Function.

By MARTHA BANNING THOMAS

BEACON HILL, was ablaze with candles. They shone in every window. They gleamed through the glass panes of the doorways. Tall candles, short candles, candles of every size and color. For was it not Christmas Eve? And is it not a custom to make merry at this special time in a very charming way?

Groups of carolers stood at street corners and sang. Hundreds of people strolled up and down. There was an atmosphere of good will that pervaded the place as surely as wreaths hung in the windows.

There was one house in particular that glowed with a shining brilliance.

Groups of Carolers Stood at Street Corners and Sang.

Part of this light was due to a pyramid formation of candles on the window-sill, and part came from the happy sounds which issued forth through the open door. This place was keeping "open house" with a vengeance. It looked like a glorified Christmas card.

Miss Mixer never knew exactly how it happened. She was hurrying home after a hard day's sewing in a dressmaker's shop. She was tired and hungry. Christmas Eve to her meant a night that she was warmer than usual. She stopped for a moment to look in through the door of this happy, shining house. And then, almost unaware of what she did, she walked in. Yes, she actually did. And she had no more idea of who lived there than a maple tree on Boston Common! Something drew her straight to the fireplace. She went as naturally as a bee seeks honey.

The Gladness of the World

When o'er the moonlit, misty fields,
Dumb with the world's great joy,
The shepherds sought the white-walled town,
Where lay the baby boy—
And, oh, the gladness of the world,
The glory of the skies,
Because the longed-for Christ looked up
In happy Mary's eyes!

Christmas Lesson for Miss Belinda

Promise to Teach Maid to Read and Write, Most Welcome Gift.

By EMILY BURKS ADAMS

CHISTMAS was in evidence everywhere. The whole household were happy, save perhaps one—Belinda, the German maid, who had for six months lived with the Thoburns, a well-to-do family.

"Mrs. Thoburn, I've done all I thought is right to do already, and I'm pleased to see you like it." "Yes, Belinda, and the house never looked prettier. You're quite an artist as well as a cook. I'm glad you give up going to visit your sister, for the good dinner tomorrow depends upon you. We shall try to make it up to you, Belinda, in some way."

"Oh, do you think so, Mrs. Thoburn? I am sure pleased to know that I am of service to you, and you are so good to me already."

"A fine slogan, Amy, if put into practice," remarked Mrs. Thoburn quietly.

Christmas morning all gathered around the tree to open their packages. Belinda stood in the background, beaming at the happiness of the others, for next to her own happiness is watching that of others. Box after box was handed to Belinda, but the most beautiful of all was saved until the last and presented by Amy.

"Here, Belinda, a lot of love with this box; it contains paper, pencils, and a book, and my promise to you that I'll teach you to read and write before another Christmas."

"Oh, thank you, Miss Amy; it is not I most wanted already. God bless you!"

Merry Christmas, and Paid in Full

How Silas Vaughan Contributed to Yuletide Cheer of the Needy.

By FRANK HERBERT SWEET

IT WAS an eloquent plea for the public building, an urge for its beauty, its value to the town, the educational gift to the eyes of youth. The speaker was hypnotic. He had been engaged for that. Three strings were loosened. Money poured freely—twenty, fifty, a hundred, five hundred. And it was Christmas. They went to Silas Vaughan, the grocer leader, a wealthy man of the town. People looked surreptitiously to see what magnificent sum he would give.

He had been engaged for that. Three strings were loosened.

More pleas came, more solicitors went round, man to man. But Silas sat there, arms folded, rigid, unmoved. "Times are too hard," he was heard to say in answer to an importunate beggar. "It is a bad year for such a building."

"Not bad for me, and all those who yield to noble impulses," said a neighbor in a voice that all could hear. The next day was Christmas, with

CHRISTMAS ZEST

CHISTMAS zest warms the heart and makes the heart glow. Do not let any outside cynicism rob you of this glow. Do not curl your lip and say you know the elevator man or the grocer's boy or the many others to whom you give a little Christmas joy is just looking for the present and is being polite for that reason.

Enjoy their pleasure in receiving. Enjoy yourself in giving. And doesn't every one enjoy presents? When you say: "He's looking for a Christmas present," you lose half your own joy.

When you say: "What an opportunity to add a little present to another person's Christmas," you have your own full measure of joy.

Christmas zest must not be bereft of any of its spirit.—Mary Graham Bonner. (© 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

THE HONORED COLORS

WE ARE the colors red and green. How we are honored! How could Christmas be Christmas without green and without red to help in the gay decorations? Long ago we two colors were given this honor. How gay and pleased it makes us.

It makes green so vivid and bright with delight. It makes red so glowing and resplendent with enjoyment. We are glad no other colors were chosen!—Mary Graham Bonner. (© 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

Dutch Sugar Bread

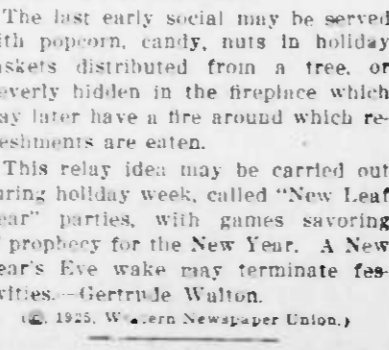

Take a cupful of bread dough and work into it a tablespoonful of lard. Let it rise again. Put a cupful of sugar into a bowl and work in enough butter and flour to make moist balls the size of a filbert. Cover the sheet thickly with the balls and bake. Serve with coffee.

Relay Christmas Plan Affords Amusement

A SUCCESSFUL pre-Christmas plan for old and young in clubs, school groups, etc., which lessens responsibility and labor, is a Relay Christmas, when a week or more before Christmas, a series of socials are indulged in. One or more of the group is a hostess, assisted by others who decorate, plan the stunts and games, arrange the menu provided by the hostess and which consists of things usually served as the first course of a dinner. The second social will be held at another home with fitting food for the second course in a dinner.

If the hostess desires to present gift favors she plans a novel way of distributing them. On packages on a line across a room, blindfolded guests may be the Christmas tags on a parcel which becomes his gift. Magic tricks are performed and prize gifts are awarded those who guess the tricks. Winning in various stunts is an excuse for a gift to be presented, the object being that each guest shall receive a package of equal value. A post office with postmistress may hold a coveted gift which may be procured only by performing some task or stunt peculiar to the individual.

Many Words That Add to Christmas Time

WORDS come to our lips so easily that we do not always appreciate how glorious some of them are, and how much they mean to us. Think of the words that add to the Christmas season! Every one of them has a significance and a Christmas meaning of its own.

White Christmas Trees

To prepare white Christmas trees take branches of evergreen of desired size and dip in thick starch to which a small box of borax has been added and white trees are still damp sprinkle each with artificial snow. The trees when dry may be placed in pots or baskets and the top of earth covered with moss. A larger tree may be made to glitter with artificial snow by sprinkling it on while the branches are moistened with glue. Tufts of cotton and glass icicles may be used for trimming.

It's Brand New
Marcel Swartzart, when she was a very little girl, wanted one day with her mother to call at the home of an old friend, who had passed on to another life. Marcel went into the silent room and at once became interested in the coffin. She looked it over from end to end, stooped down and viewed the bottom critically and the wife stepped to her mother: "It's brand new."

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

WHAT ABOUT NEXT YEAR

WHAT kind of person shall I be next year?

Put that question to yourself; ask it seriously, repeatedly and with the determination of giving it an intelligent, workable answer.

It can do you no harm even if you fail to find a satisfactory reply.

When it comes up to you, don't shrug your shoulders, look the other way, or try to pass it by without a friendly nod and a hearty handshake. You have nothing to fear.

Ask it again: "What kind of person shall I be next year?"

Every day you are undergoing a physical and mental change.

You are improving or deteriorating. Time is acting imperceptibly on your bone and blood, on your sinew and mind. You are gaining or losing.

Life today is a preparation for the life of tomorrow. Its new problems, changing form between every sunrise and sunset.

Present life is the pathway to future life in the process of making, with which you have much to do.

If you are going to be something worth while in the years that lie ahead, you would better begin today.

If you are cruel, vindictive, quarrelsome, tyrannical and neglectful to-day, the probabilities are that you will be the same tomorrow.

If you shirk duty this morning, the gray-headed timekeeper tomorrow morning will mark you a "slacker."

WHO SAID

"I would rather obey than work miracles."

MARTIN LUTHER, the author of the words quoted above, who is known to history as one of the great religious reformers, was destined by his father to be a lawyer. He was deeply religious from his youth, however, and in 1505, contrary to his father's wishes, he entered the monastery at Erfurt, Germany.

Five years after his entrance into the monastery Luther made a pilgrimage to Rome. That pilgrimage had a great effect upon his later life. Many of these occupying high places in the established church in Rome were men of the high trust reposed in them as the heads of the church and their conduct charged Luther's attitude toward the Roman church. He wrote his celebrated ninety-five theses condemning the sale of indulgences, and the consequent action of the religious authorities in declaring them heretical drove Luther to still further activity.

Luther originally intended no separation from the established church. He wrote a modest letter to the pope seeking pardon and asking that several reforms be incorporated in the church law. This was followed by his excommunicating Luther and his friends. Aroused to passion, Luther publicly burned the bull of excommunication.

without arching his brow or asking a question.

The man or woman who cannot listen to wise counsel without becoming resentful or abusive, who cannot weigh and decide questions in fairness, is in a position where he or she should stop and look ahead.

Tomorrow demands pay for yesterday's follies.

Wranglers of today are likely to be bigger wranglers tomorrow, exhibiting more selfishness with a larger stock of temper, turning their wrath loose on any person within their reach.

If in youth or in middle life, men and women do not realize that they are preparing for the future, they are doomed to an isolated old age, too impotent to make a bid for sympathy or success.

The secret of preparing for next year is to live nobly today by casting out selfishness, envy and spite, and doing unto others as you would have others do unto you.

NOT JUST TODAY

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

NOT just today I wish you joy,
And happiness, and cheer,
But on the next day, and the next,
And so through all the year,
For life is long, the road is far,
And many little bumps there are,
And yet I hope a silver thread
Runs all through all the days ahead.

Not just today I hope that friends
Will gather 'round your fire,
But all the year I wish you love
And all that you desire,
May every little walk you take
Meet merry hearts, and hands to shake,
And friends to greet you now and then,
At night when you come home again.

Not just today I wish you peace,
And certainty, and song;
I wish you all a friend can wish
Today and all along.
Let New Year's day remind us of
The folks around us we can love,
Of things to do, and things to say,
Through all the year—not just to-day.

communication and his severance from the established church was completed.

The reformation now spread throughout Germany and the power of the established church to curb Luther by means of bulls of excommunication was rendered useless. In his fight Luther was greatly aided by a powerful German prince whose protection saved him from punishment.

Among the NOTABLES

LOUIS XVI

LAST of the French kings before the Revolution, weak-willed and with no special desire and certainly no aptitude for statecraft—such was Louis XVI.

He was born August 23, 1754, at Versailles, grandson of Louis V, became heir to the throne when he was eleven, and was married at sixteen to Marie Antoinette in order to make more firm the peace between France and Austria. At first he did not care for his wife, but after a time, during which he had ascended the throne, he came considerably under her influence.

The young queen had reacted against her very strict bringing up, and was plunging recklessly into the dissipation and gaiety of the times. Politics were like a seething cauldron, then, bound to boil over; indeed it did boil over—into the Revolution of 1789. Marie Antoinette, by her extravagance and because she was Austrian (and there was a growing feeling against her country), became very unpopular. Louis, meantime, wanted nothing but to spend the days in hunting. Never bright mentally, he became more and more stupid and retarding as time passed.

The revolution came and the earliest court in the world was literally thrown into prison. Louis was condemned and guillotined early in 1793, one by one, the figures who make the tale of these courts so fascinating, were driven through the streets to their death—for the most part, going with dignity and a look of contempt for the rabble who had them in power. The queen herself was beheaded in 1793.

Cat Picks Car for Nursery

It is not only millionaire motorists who are returning to their unattended cars find them lightened of some of their contents, observes the London Post in "The Way of the World" column. Sometimes, however, it happens the other way round, and with equally embarrassing results. "The other day," writes a correspondent, "I came across a man in a quiet suburban street contemplating his car with a puzzled air. He explained that he had left it by the curb for an hour or so and returned to find it in the possession of a cat which had chosen that part of the floor which is best warmed by the engine as a suitable place for bringing into the world a family of kittens."

PIQUANT DANCE MILLINERY; FAVOR CHINESE EMBROIDERY

GENIUS is lavishing modernistic art on the piquant dress hats which so add to the picture at dinners, dances and various social functions. Nowadays creators of our chapeaux take not only the needle in hand, but the brush as well, for handpainting adds to the glory of present-day millinery.

Even the small sports felt hat departs from its role of simplicity to allow artists to paint a few colorful leaves or a conventional design on its snug fitting crown.

From the standpoint of hand-painting, embroidery and applique the fashion continues to revel in an array of gay colors. Our wraps, our hats, our frocks and our costume accessories are vibrating with metallic splendor together with exotic hue.

To this era of gorgeousness, Chinese art and stitchery are contributing a magnificent share. The smartest black satin frocks are very nearly losing their identity embellished as they are in trimmings of Chinese embroideries which are extravagantly colorful. In the matter of evening wraps, not satisfied with "touches" of Chinese embroidery here and there

Group of Formal Hats.

women of fashion are appropriating unto themselves the Chinese matdram in all its original native beauty.

Sometimes, as in the instance of the evening wrap illustrated, a band of handsome fur is added, which the more accents the color glories in oriental embroidery.

Of course not every one can afford an all-over embroidered Chinese matdram wrap. However, this fact need not be discouraging, for somewhere somehow if we have managed to introduce even a simple motif or so of Chinese inspiration we may congratulate ourselves for having obeyed the mandates of the mode. For instance unembroidered motifs done in Chinese being created of black velvet with silver black ribbon.

With chenille as the medium for hand stitchery a colorful effect is acquired on the off-the-face brim of the cunning chapeau to the center right.

A marked adherence to metallic effects is registered throughout the program of dance hats. Gold and silver laces form exotic trimming while tissues of the same form the hat proper. Such is the lovely model shown last in the group, a dainty structure of shimmering gold lace and tissue. All the season's most entrancing colors seem to have been gathered up and reflected in handmade French flowers clustered upon the crown.

Popularity of Jersey Jersey is attaining an undreamed of popularity, owing to the fact that it is the ideal material for the two-piece jumper and the sports frock. The most careful dressers match the dress with a plain felt hat of the same color.

Where to Wear One's Waist Practically every woman will have a waistline this winter. She may not know where to put it but she will have one somewhere between her shoulders and hips. This has followed the introduction of the tight bodice and the shaping of the backs of the topsuits. The position of the waistline depends on the designer and on the height and weight of the wearer.

Separate Sleeves Ready Made To remodel an old dress or to adapt a short-sleeved model for winter wear, there are smart sleeves of lace or chiffon gathered into a tight wristband and trimmed with bands of contrasting varied colors, or ribbons.

Advanced Ideas in This German Prison

At Ichtershausen near Arnstadt, in Thuringia, the prison is so pleasant that no one has ever attempted to escape from it. The prison authorities have made the prison life tolerable, humane and educational. In the first place there are only 400 prisoners, although there are cells for 520. Within the prison is a local court in which all misdemeanors are judged by four employees, assisted by two representatives of the convicts. Many of the sentences imposed by the judge are lighter than those suggested by the convicts. Every prisoner is permitted to supplement the prison fare by purchases from the outside. The prisoners work for low wages but are allowed to keep the money—on an average 15 marks a month, although clever workers make as much as 40 marks. The living conditions are as pleasant as possible and the prisoners are allowed regular gymnastics and occasional tennis competitions.

—With the heavy snow fall on Tuesday the ground, this year will undoubtedly be covered with a white blanket of snow during the Christmas holidays, which will give it the appearance of the Christmas of old. Though traffic on highway was some what dangerous, due to the slippery condition of the roads, caused by the snow, no accidents were reported.
—Carl F. Schaefer was at Chicago Thursday, where he was called as a witness in a lawsuit between the West Bend Motor Company and Irvin Aaron, who formerly conducted a tailor shop in this village. It is reported that Mr. Aaron purchased an automobile from the West Bend Motor company, during the time that he resided in Kewaskum, and the company is now suing Mr. Aaron to recover an alleged debt which he owes upon the same.
—Arthur Laufer, truck driver for the Home Lumber Company at West Bend, had a rather thrilling experience on Wednesday, which he no doubt will not so soon forget. Mr. Laufer was driving south on Highway 55 Wednesday morning, and when near the Fick cheese factory, located about six miles north of this village, a Studebaker car coming from the opposite direction and which was following a horse driven vehicle, in trying to pass the same, collided head-on with Mr. Laufer's truck. The Studebaker car was almost completely wrecked. The driver of the same, whose name was unable to obtain, drove away in another car, the driver of which he had seen shortly after the accident had occurred. The truck was hit with such force that it was shoved off into the ditch. The driver escaped injury. The damage done to the truck was slight.

The deceased was well known in Cascade. He was injured in an auto accident a year ago. He is survived by a wife and four-year-old daughter Patricia. Besides these he leaves several brothers and sisters to mourn his demise.

STEALING CHICKENS BY TELEPHONE

Stealing chickens by telephone has become the latest problem of poultry raisers in the vicinity of Jefferson. A farmer near Milford recently received a telephone call, supposedly from a butcher, asking him if he had any chickens for sale. The farmer replied that he had about 300 and that he would hold them. The "butcher" made an offer much above the market price and the farmer finally decided to sell and make an agreement to crate the chickens so that they would be all ready early the next morning. He worked late at night and got them all crated. When he went to the chicken house early the next morning the entire lot was gone.—Ex.

MAYVILLE MAN HURT

Ernst Kluge, 59 years of age, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Kluge of Mayville was taken to the St. Agnes hospital on Thursday, probably fatally injured as the result of an accident when he was caught in the belt and drive wheel of a gasoline engine on his farm shortly after noon Thursday. The entire left side of his chest and portions of his lungs were torn open. All of the muscles in the left side of his body were badly lacerated.
