YOUNG BOY DROWNS AT WEST BEND

Elroy Schlosser, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Schlosser of West Bend, met a tragic death by drowning in the Milwaukee river, last Monday afternoon at about four o'clock. Elroy and his companion Isadore Mueller, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Nic. Mueller, had been swimming in the upper mill pond, a short distance north of the West Bend Lithia company's ice house, when Elroy suddenly became exhausted and called to his companion for help. Isadore did the best he could to save him, but could not bring him to shore. Bertha Weiland, who resides near the scene of the drowning and who watched the boys from a short distance, noticed Elroy in danger and called for help. Elroy's mother heard the cry, ran to the pond and made every effort to save him, and when she got within ten feet of him he sank from sight. Sheriff Frey was called, and he together with neighbors who had assembled at the scene recovered the body with grappling hooks. Dr. Heidner was called, but his efforts at resuscitation failed, and the boy was pronounced dead. Elroy was born May 22, 1914. He is survived by his parents, two brothers: Sylvester and Wilbert, and four sisters: Cecelia, Evelyn, Alice and Armetta. The funeral was held Thursday at 9 a. m. with services in the Holy Angel's church. Rev. Jos. Heyle officiated. Burial was made in the congregation's cemetery.

Proper Care of Milk a Most Essential Factor

The above picture represents the new milk house recently completed by Edw. Krautkramer, one of our progressive farmers, located about three miles northwest of this village. The milk house is a model of its kind, sanitary and complies with all the requirements of the State Board of Health and Dairy Commission. The dimensions of the building are 8 x 16 feet, with one-half utilized as an engine room and the other as a cooling room. This entire building may be constructed throughout at an approximate cost of in the neighborhood of $300.00. Of course, this is an exceptionally large milk house for the average farmer who could possibly get along without the engine room this building would save about 8 x 16, which would materially lessen the cost of the building. Mr. Krautkramer was among the first to recognize the importance of providing sure and sanitary ways and means of producing quality milk. Prompt and thorough cooling of milk is one of the most important factors in holding down bacterial count and keeping milk sweet the year around. Milk is good when drawn from the cow, but the problem has always been to keep it good. The problem has been successfully solved by the advent of the milk house which makes it an easy matter to keep milk in first class condition. All dairymen and farmers in Wisconsin should take care of their milk in this manner and insist that everybody producing milk should do the same. This would have an amazing effect upon the quality of cheese and butter produced as well as market milk, and tend to raise the price of these products to the point where the farmer could feel that he was being paid for his work. Farmers should combine to produce quality. Quality means price. Quite a number of dairymen have done the same as Mr. Krautkramer, built new milk houses, and others have greatly improved their former methods. As soon as the farmer sees the remarkable improvement over the old methods he will readily see the benefits to be derived from new and sanitary handling of milk, by better quality, better prices and greater satisfaction in knowing that he is getting maximum production. It would be well for all farmers contemplating the building of a milk house to call at the Krautkramer farm and inspect the above milk house.

REAL FIREMEN IN "STILL ALARM"

Not even a fireman will be able to find a technical fault in the manner in which the actual fire scenes in "The Still Alarm", a Universal-Jewel production, is being shown at the Kewaskum Opera house tomorrow, Sunday, were handled. They are said to be perfect in every detail, for with the exception of William Russell, John T. Murray and Edward Hearn, who impersonate firemen in the picture, every other firefighter in the cast is a member of the Los Angeles Fire Department. Forty firemen were used in these thrilling scenes, the men working under the direction of Lawrence B. Andrews, a Los Angeles battalion chief. In the scenes where the horse-drawn apparatus figures all the drivers were veterans of the old days and most of them are nearing retirement. They got quite a thrill out of once more driving the horses. Many of the horses used in the picture are also veterans of the department, having come out of their retirement to work before the camera. During the making of the picture the firemen forgot they were just acting and entered into the spirit of the thing with great gusto. They took practically the same chances that they take in their everyday work, for in the dash of the apparatus there was the same risk of being hurled to the ground, there was the same menace from flying nozzles as they clung to ladders high in the air. There also was the real smoke and the real fire of a big conflagration, beching out from windows and roof. Floors crashed and roofs fell in. Apparatus crashed and out of the scene. Police kept back the curious. In fact there was re-enacted everything that takes place at a real fire.

The cast is an all-star one. Among the players are Helene Chadwick, Russell Travers, Edna Marion Murray, Dot Farley Edward Hearn, Erin La Bissoniere and Jacques d'Aray. "The Still Alarm" was directed by Edward Laemmle.

SUCCESSFUL FIRE DEMONSTRATION

Through the courtesy of the mayor D. M. Rosenheimer and the Fire Chief Chas. Grosschel, an educational fire demonstration was given on the new High School grounds Wednesday evening, June 30, by the Volunteer Chemical Co. The fire fighters used a large pine box and kindling, and a gallon and a half of inflammable oil, a gallon of gasoline and a gallon of kerosene in making the fire. After the fire had a roaring start and the flames were leaping nearly 20 feet high, the hand chemical was applied and in a few seconds the roaring fire was under control and completely out. The farmers and business men of many counties in Wisconsin have recently organized for better fire protection by installing Volunteer Extinguishers. When flames break out these people help each other and with autos, telephones and good roads it does not take them long to reach the scene of the fire. Over 300 farmers and business men near and in West Bend have organized in the past month, and a chemical refill station has been established at the West Bend Fire Department, another refill station has been established at the Kewaskum Fire Department for the residents of this community. The chemicals were installed by the Dodge Co., farmers near Waupun nine months ago, and the Waupun Fire Chief, A. H. Luck reports that over $15,000 worth of property has been saved in that locality by the chemicals. The home of H. J. Bruins near Waupun was recently saved after being set on fire by the explosion of a gasoline stove, as was also the home of Will Rens on route 2 near Waupun. The Volunteer Chemicals have been tested and endorsed by the fire chiefs of West Bend, Kewaskum and Campbellport in this vicinity.

MILWAUKEE WALTONIANS HERE SATURDAY

Over 150 members of the Walton league of Milwaukee motored to this village headed by two Milwaukee motor cops and two Washington county motor cops last Saturday, and stopped at the Republican House, where they were guests of the Kewaskum chapter, and where they were treated to a sumptuous luncheon prepared by Mr. and Mrs. Wm. F. Schultz, and served in cafeteria style. The party spoke very highly of the delicious meal to which they were treated, and the kind hospitality extended to them while in our midst. After dinner they drove to the Moon Lake Wild game refuge for a tour of inspection, and where Fred W. Luening, president of the Milwaukee chapter, explained to the crowd the purpose of the league in acquiring of a real refuge for wild life, particularly for water fowl. The afternoon was spent in hiking over the tract, canoeing and boating on the lake, several out-board motors having been supplied by manufacturers. Waltonians who brought their fishing tackle practiced casting, but no fish were caught. One of the small engines and pumps made by the Evrnuide Motor Co. was set up and streams of water thrown from two lines of hose. This is the same machine used recently to demonstrate its efficiency in fighting forest fires near Leona. The chapter has planted 10,000 trout fry in one of the springs and they are doing nicely. Several mallard ducks and Canadian geese are kept there and will be used to attract wild ducks and geese. Quail and pheasants have been placed on the refuge and a flock of wild turkeys has been started.

NEAR ESCAPE FROM COUNTY JAIL

Digging his way through the brick wall of the Janesville jail with the rung of an old chair in his cell, Cliff Dawson, Detroit, Mich. alleged soft drink parlor hoodlum, was thwarted in his attempt to flee on the eve of his planned escape by Sheriff Rhode Monday. Two or three bricks the sheriff said, stood before Dawson and freedom. It would have taken only the slightest jar, Sheriff Rhode said, to topple the bricks and escape through the aperture Dawson had made with his tedious effort. Dawson was locked up on a charge of robbery two weeks ago after he was apprehended and a partner in the robbery of a branch of a tree. A small boy tipped off the robbery to Sheriff Rhode. In an attempt to escape Dawson and his partner climbed a tree.

MEMORIAL

In memory of Wm. Schmidt Sr., who passed away one year ago July 2, 1925:
The rolling stream of life rolls on,
But still the vacant chair recalls
The love, the voice, the smile,
Of the one who once sat there,
A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory still,
But death has left a vacant chair,
This world can never fill.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly, tenderly, fond and true,
There is not a day dear father,
That we do not think of you.
Sadly missed by Mrs. Wm. Schmidt Sr., and children.

Avoid Butterfat Losses in Cream

Washing and Cleansing of Separator Is Big Factor in Skimming.

Thorough washing and cleansing of the cream separator is an important factor in clean skimming. Many dairy farmers are losing butterfat in skim milk unbeknown to them. There are many causes for loss of butterfat in skim milk, as it comes from the separator. The speed of the machine, temperature of the milk, rate of inflow, cleanliness of machine, smoothness of running and other factors will affect the amount of butterfat lost. The only way to guard against it is to test skim milk regularly.

Minnesota Investigation. An investigation by Goodwin Rogness, a cow tester in Minnesota, revealed definite advantages in favor of clean separators. Twenty-four separators were inspected and divided into three groups as to methods of cleaning. Group one, composed of five machines, was washed twice daily. After each separation, the skim milk was tested for butterfat. The loss per month on 300 pounds of skim milk daily was 1.5 pounds butterfat, worth 63 cents. Group two, composed of eight machines, was washed once a day and flushed out with warm or cold water in the evening.

The loss per month on 300 pounds of skim milk daily was 2.7 pounds butterfat, worth $1.13. Group three was composed of 11 machines washed once a day and flushed with skim milk or not at all. The loss per month on 300 pounds of skim milk was 5.22 pounds butterfat, worth $2.19. It was noted that the morning skimming in each case contained the most butterfat.

Yearly Saving. Putting the above figures on a yearly basis, it is seen that those in group one were paid at the rate of $18.72 a year for washing the separators twice a day. Running warm or cold water through the machine after the evening separating saved $12.72 a year as compared with group three where little or no attention was given the separator between the evening and morning skimming.

This investigation and others that could be cited, show the importance of washing the separator after each separation.—Eloyd E. Hall, Deputy Colorado Dairy Commissioner.

New Whitewash Formula Gives Durable Product. Whitewash acts as a germicide by covering and cleansing the wall and ceiling surfaces, and for this reason is excellent in the poultry house, dairy barn, hog house, and other outbuildings. A new formula developed within recent years gives a product which closely approaches paint in durability.

The old-fashioned whitewash is made of quicklime and water mixed in the proportions of one pound of lime to one gallon of water. This has

Prevent Egg Eating by Darkening All Nests

Egg eating is another vice that hets sometimes hard when kept in close confinement, or are not fed sufficient animal material. The trouble usually starts from a hen scratching in at nest and accidentally breaking an egg. If she does it once, the chances are good that she will try it again, and the habit is soon formed. To avoid the formation of such a habit and to cure it, in case it is formed, all nests should be more or less dark. A long covered box, with a single entrance at one end, is most practical for the nests.

Swine Sanitation. Sanitation is continuing to gain favor among farmers as an aid in producing pork more economically and profitably. This year there probably will be close to 1,000 farms in 20 different counties of the state co-operating with the college of agriculture, University of Illinois in demonstrating the merits of the simple swine sanitation plan advocated by the college.

Success With Sheep. Success with a flock of sheep depends in large measure upon having the right kind of sheep, bought at the right price. If a man buys a flock of ewes and half of them die within the year he is almost sure to lose money.

The man who does not know sheep is unwise to buy them on the recommendation of a man who expects to profit by the deal. Old ewes are a great risk for the beginner. If you are in doubt about buying them—don't.

Farm Hint. A well-kept lawn is worth the time it takes. Guard rails in the pig pen keep the sow from mashing her young.

Most cream separators will do much better job of skimming the milk when they are warm. The pocket gopher pays no attention to property lines. Get your neighbors to eradicate them, too.

A great many vegetables respond to lime; in fact, many will not grow well in soil that is at all acid. This is particularly true of asparagus, spinach, celery, beets, onions, and lettuce.

Keeping the shoulders and collar clean and providing well-fitted collars will help prevent sore shoulders on work horses. A loose collar constantly rubbing back and forth over the shoulders soon brings on a sore.

Throughout the period of brooding it is essential that the chicks be supplied with green feed. That to brooder house be well ventilated, and that a sharp lookout be kept to guard lice and mites.

Studies of farm income indicate that from one-third to one-half of the farmer's net returns are in the form of products produced on the farm and used by the farmer and his family. These products are never taken to market. They consist of meat, fruit, cereals, and vegetables and fuel.

PROPER POTATO SPRAYING WILL GREATLY INCREASE THE YIELD

Many Dollars May Be Saved to the Growers.

"By proper attention to disease control through spraying, many thousands of dollars may be saved by the potato growers," says the plant pathologist at the New Jersey College of Agriculture.

"The use of high-grade fertilizer, planting vigorous seed, and thorough cultivation are not the only steps necessary to insure the production of a profitable potato crop. No matter how much plant food is available in the soil, it cannot be utilized by a plant that has most of its leaves destroyed by fungus pests. The leaf is the factory in which the starch is manufactured and if not protected from diseases it cannot be expected to give maximum returns.

"Results obtained at the experiment station the past five years show conclusively that where the potato crop is properly sprayed, increased yields will result. A number of spray tests conducted with the Irish Cobbler variety since 1919 show an average increase of 42.6 bushels per acre from spraying with home-made bordeaux mixture. In tests conducted this year on the farm of J. H. Kandle at Elmer, Irish Cobbler potatoes sprayed seven times with home-made bordeaux mixture gave 30 bushels more per acre than did unsprayed potatoes. On the T. B. Van Derveer farm at Freshfield, spraying Irish Cobblers and Green Mountains gave increased yields amounting to 30 and 50 bushels per acre, respectively. In the light of these results it is questionable if the potato grower can afford to omit spraying as one of the necessary steps in potato growing."

Latest Developments in Cucumber Pest Control. The latest development in the control of the cucumber beetle consists of a duster equipped with a length of tubing and a metal cone a foot or more in diameter. The cone, or hood, is placed on the ground over the plant and the dust applied. The beetles have no chance for a getaway.

Another refinement is for four tubes inside the cone which carry the dust close to the ground so as to reach the under side of the plant. Holes at the top of the cone provide an upward draft and assist in giving excellent application. The material used is nicotine dust containing a high percentage of nicotine.

Of course, the old way is still effective, namely, repelling the beetles by dusting with 1 lb. of calcium arsenate and 15 lbs. of gypsum, or with 1 lb. of calcium arsenate, 5 lbs. of wheat flour, and 10 lbs. of lime. The new method, however, gives that added satisfaction that comes from killing the pest outright.

Auto Speed Finally Too Much for Bunny

Dr. H. L. Salthouse of McPherson, Kan., believes he has settled the time-worn argument as to how fast a Kansas Jack rabbit can travel. One evening recently the doctor on his way home "soured up" a jack rabbit on the road north of town. The rabbit took to the road ahead of the car, which was traveling at the rate of about twenty-five miles an hour. The speed of the car was increased to thirty and then to thirty-five miles, with the long-eared bunny holding his own. The speed was further increased, and when the speedometer showed thirty-eight miles the car started to gain, and as the forty-mile mark was reached the jack, finding the pace too swift, leaped to the ditch and disappeared in the darkness. This race lasted for more than a mile.

Expensive Eggs

The poultry business is still in its infancy. A condor, now in the National Zoological park in Washington, has just laid an egg that is valued at $750. Why bother with Rhode Island Reds or White Wyandottes? A pair of condors is the thing. To be sure, they lay but seldom—this one only five times in twenty years—but at market rates for the eggs they don't need to lay often. RADIO

Dr. C. B. Jolliffe of the Radio Laboratory of the Bureau of Standards, with a 250-Watt and a Type "N" Electron Tube.

By DR. ALFRED N. GOLDSMITH
The quality of reproduction of music in the home depends on many elements at the transmitting and receiving stations. Acoustic synchronizing, or the accurate re-creation in the home of the sound waves produced in the studio, is the determining factor in the enjoyment of radio programs. Few people realize the very important part played by vacuum tubes in the receiving set.

From the standpoint of securing real musical results in the home tubes must meet a number of difficult specifications. While high-grade tubes do, as a matter of fact, meet such specifications, it is by no means uncommon to see the entire circle of broadcast transmission and reception broken and tone quality ruined by the use of unsuitable or unresizable vacuum tubes. Considering first, some of the electrical constants of the tubes and without going into the technical details of the matter, vacuum tubes have a certain characteristic which is known as the amplification factor. If the amplification of the tubes used in the receiver is too small, weak and unnatural sounding signals will result. If, on the other hand, the amplification is too great in its relation to the design of the receiving set, the receiver may "oscillate" or produce squealing or howling notes which cannot be conveniently eliminated or controlled.

Internal Impedance.
Another important constant is what is known as the "internal impedance" of the tube. Roughly speaking, this is a measure of the opposition of the tube to the flow of plate current through it. It is the factor which limits the current drawn from the "B" battery. If the internal impedance is too small there will be an excessive drain on the plate batteries without corresponding advantage and plate battery renewals will be uncomfortably frequent. On the other hand, if the internal impedance is too high, weak signals of unsatisfactory character will be produced and tone quality on the average loud speaker will be distinctly unsatisfactory. Accordingly, internal impedance of vacuum tubes must also be held within carefully considered limits.

The elements inside of modern vacuum tubes are close together, and they, in conjunction with the wires leading from them to the contact pins in the base of the tube, constitute what are known as electrical capacitors. In other words, there are miniature condensers formed by the filament, grid and plate, the capacities of such condensers residing inside of the tube. It is a fact that in many highly efficient circuits these internal tube capacitances definitely influence the electrical behavior of the set. Receivers which are "neutralized" or "balanced" against tendency toward oscillation (howling) are necessarily so balanced for a particular tube. If the internal capacity of tubes varies too far receivers which would otherwise properly function will begin to produce uncontrollable noises, generally of a buzzing or whistling nature, whereupon the musical enjoyment of the audience is destroyed.

The Filament.
Inside the vacuum tube is a glowing element called the filament. It is a sort of resistor from which streams a current of electricity in the form of a myriad of tiny electrical charges called electrons. These pass from the filament to the plate inside of the tube and their flow is definitely controlled by the grid element between the filament and the plate, which acts

Variable Resistances and Adjusting Current
The new "B" battery eliminators usually have a variable resistance by which the voltage on the 45V tap can be varied and in some cases the voltage from the 90-volt tap can be varied also. Users of "B" battery eliminators frequently find that they are able to get better results from their receiver using the "B" battery eliminator than they had when using brand-new dry "B" batteries. The credit for the improvement is generally attributed to the fact that the current is stronger because it comes from the lighting circuit, but this is not so. The reason why "B" battery eliminators sometimes enable better results to be obtained is because you are able to vary the voltage and obtain the correct value. If you had made the experiment of putting a variable resistance on the 45V and 90V leads on your dry cell batteries and had varied them in the same manner as you did the resistance on the eliminator, you would have obtained exactly the same results with the dry-cell batteries as you

THE LAST HATS OF SUMMER; FOR TOTS' SUMMER WEAR

THE last rose of summer and the last hat of summer are alike beautiful, but whereas the last rose was left blooming alone, the last hat is blooming among myriad others. Genius is burning like everything with millinery designers; they continue to overflow with fine ideas for midsummer. Perhaps the season inspires the loveliest headwear or perhaps they enjoy exercising talents that were more or less suppressed last winter, during the vogue of untrimmed and uninteresting hats.

Here are five hats which have come into bloom recently in the millinery garden and have been chosen as representative of beautiful types suited to midsummer. First there is the beloved leghorn, adorably developed by an applique trimming of hand-made rennaissance, laid over the crown. The brim-edge is bound with silk in a color and on both the upper and under brim three tight little, bright little roses are posed, with folded silk stems. This is an exquisite hat. Next comes a wide-brimmed, black lace hat with semi-facing of chiffon and long ringed notes which tapped will not give the same satisfaction as "non-microphonic tubes" which are free from this defect. In any case the vacuum tube mounting should be appropriate.

Five of the Latest Summer Hats.

Suitable Batteries.
A brief mention of the importance of suitable batteries in good condition in their relation to tone quality is pertinent. When the "A" or filament batteries of a receiver run too low the tubes will not light up fully and the signals, besides being weak, are frequently distorted or swatchy in quality. A run-down condition of the "B" or plate batteries similarly causes a noisy or weak signal with distorted quality, or may even give rise to disagreeable howling sounds. The "C" or grid battery also plays a great part in the production of high-quality music.

The best rule is to select reliable tubes, each suited for the particular purpose to which it is to be put in the receiver, and then not overwork these tubes nor neglect the upkeep of the batteries feeding the tubes.

An Easily Laundered Dress.

an intricately made trimming of narrow braid and small berries placed at the right side. Among these softly feminine headpieces the black Spanish sailor stands out boldly. It is a banerok straw with a collar of black beaded ribbon arranged in pencil points across the front, edged with a narrow contrasting ribbon. This is a tailored hat of the severe type, to be worn with a suit of similar character. Midsummer calls for the lovely wide-brimmed, hair-brail hats, like that which brings this brief story to a happy ending. Lace overlays the top of the shape and extends over the brim edge and a cluster of roses is posed at the front. This model is lovely in any of the light colors.

Care of Suede Shoes
Pale colored suede shoes require some care to keep them beautiful. They will not look well after they have been worn in the rain, so do not wear them on a doubtful day. But if they have been caught in a shower only, continual brushing will soften them again. Some suede shoes wear shiny in patches. The nap is quickly rubbed up by a vigorous application of the wire brush sold at most shoe shops.

A black velvet gown that receives much attention in a colorful season has huge sleeves of white lace embroidered in gold.

The KITCHEN CABINET

It has been said that a man is known by his friends, meaning that we can tell the quality and type of anyone's life by the things he allows to absorb him.

SUMMERY DESSERTS

With fresh fruit such as berries, melons and the luscious peaches, apricots and plums coming along in their season, we need not plan for made desserts unless they are very simple, as fruit is the best of dessert.

An occasional pudding not too rich or heavy or too complicated to prepare will be enjoyed.

Apricot Ice.—Take one cupful of corn syrup, two cupfuls of canned or fresh apricots, cook until soft, mash and put through a colander. If the dried fruit is used cook overnight and cook soft before mashing. Add two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, a cupful of water, mix well and freeze.

Tapioca Fruit Pudding.—Heat two cupfuls of milk in a double boiler, add one-third of a cupful of sugar and stir in six tablespoonfuls of tapioca. Cook until clear, pour into a bowl to cool, then fold in one cupful of heavy cream whipped with a teaspoonful of vanilla. Serve with sliced peaches or berries in season.

Cornstarch With Fruit Pudding.—Prepare a plain cornstarch pudding, using a tablespoonful of cornstarch to one and one-half cupfuls of milk and one-third of a cupful of sugar or less if the fruit is sweet. Cover with crushed strawberries or raspberries well sweetened and serve with cream.

Junket.—This is one of the simplest and most dainty desserts; it may be served with cream or with fruit and cream. Heat lukewarm one quart of milk, dissolve one tablet of junket in a tablespoonful of water and stir into the milk while warm. Add sugar to season, a bit of flavoring and pour into sherbet cups to thicken. Allow the cups to stand in a warm room as the junket will set quicker on the milk. Then when well thickened set on ice to chill. Serve with a spoonful of berries and cream, a bit of jelly with chopped nuts.

Pastry shell previously baked and cooled, filled with crushed berries and sugar and topped with whipped cream, is a dish both pretty and appetizing.

Merrillade Fie de Luce.—Prepare and bake a pastry crust. Fill with the following: Two cupfuls of drained crushed pineapple, one-half glass of currant jelly, one tablespoonful of confectioner's sugar and one stiffly beaten egg white folded in when the other ingredients are well mixed. Sprinkle with grated coconut and brown in a moderate oven. Serve cold.

Lemon Sauce.—Mix until well blended one tablespoonful of cornstarch and one cupful of sugar, a pinch of salt and one cupful of boiling water, beat constantly. Cook over the heat for ten minutes, add two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and the grated rind of the lemon, two tablespoonfuls of butter and a generous grating of nutmeg.

Dishes From Meat.
A cupful or two of any well cooked meat or fish may be with proper care made into an appetizing dish.

Beef Fricandeau.—Take two cupfuls of cold cooked beef minced fine, season with salt, pepper, sage thyme, lemon juice and grated onion. Add half a cupful of boiled rice, or dry bread crumbs and one egg well beaten. Add a little water if needed to make a paste. Form into flat cakes and fry in hot fat.

French Beef Hash.—Prepare the hash as usual, fill a baking dish and cover with a layer of seasoned mashed potato, made very light with a beaten white of egg. Bake in a hot oven until the potato is puffed and brown.

Chicken Goulette.—Cut into dice two medium-sized potatoes, uncooked. Put into a frying pan two tablespoonfuls of olive oil and, when hot, add the diced potatoes. Cook five minutes stirring constantly. Add a dash of paprika, a cupful of boiling water, a crushed clove of garlic, a cupful of chopped cooked chicken, and salt to taste. Cover and cook until the potatoes are done, stirring frequently.

Spanish Chicken.—Prepare a sauce with a half-cupful of butter and a cup of flour, two cupfuls of water to which a teaspoonful or less of beef extract has been added. Add one cupful of chicken cut fine, one small onion cut into dice, one pimento and two tablespoonfuls of cooked peas. Heat until thoroughly hot and serve on toast.

Frankfurts.—Sliced very thin and heated hot in the oven will take the place of other meat; for a late lunch sliced onion served in sandwiches will be a good combination, provided you enjoy the odoriferous hump. Lyon-haise potatoes are also good with frankfurts.

For those who enjoy tomato sauce a quick one may be prepared from canned tomato soup, using a cupful or less, adding such other seasonings as desired.

McCormick-Deering—A Real High-Lift Mower!

for Better Hay - Making

"McCormick" and "Deering" have been the names of good hay tools for generations. Throughout the country you will find sons of farmers using mowers and rakes that were used and passed on them by their fathers. Sturdy tools yet, in spite of their twenty, thirty, and often forty years of hard work.

You may have one of these patriachs in your implement shed. If you have, you know as well as we do the full worth of McCormick-Deering quality. However, good as the old tools were in their prime, they are relics of bygone days. The time has come to replace them with new, efficient McCormick-Deering equipment. The quality standards of today are as high as ever—the construction shows the effects of years of steady improvement. The line is unbeatable.

If you make hay you need these money-making tools; we are at your service with a full stock of this new equipment. Call on us.

W. C. T. U. FINANCES DRY AGENTS, CHARGE

Pennsylvania System Is Bared to Senate Investigating Committee.

This was admitted to the senate committee investigating primary expenses by William B. Wright, a deputy attorney general of Pennsylvania.

HAS NEW PLANS TO STOP BEER MAKING

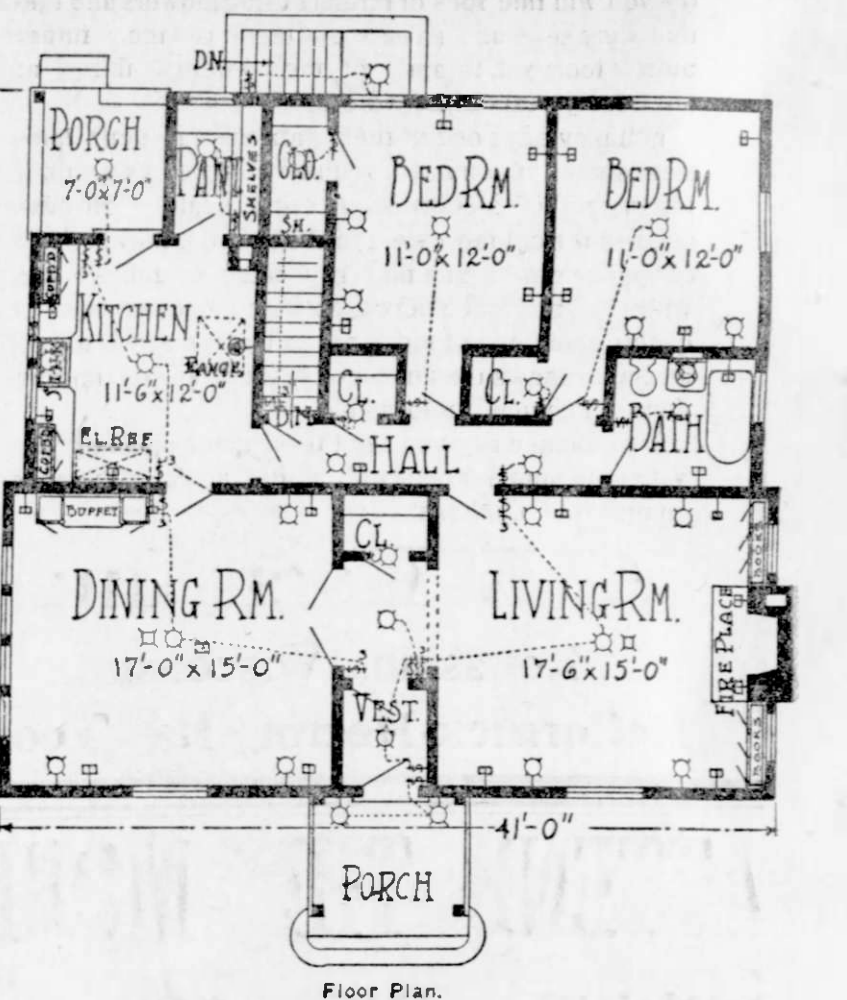

Run Off Market by Christmas, Andrews' Program.
Washington.—Conviving city or state officials, illicit alcohol plants, and cheating breweries are to be special targets of a new three-phase prohibition enforcement drive with next Christmas as a deadline beyond which real beer and hard liquor will be almost, if not actually, impossible to obtain.
The program, outlined to the appropriations committee by Brig. Gen. L. C. Andrews, assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of prohibition enforcement, contemplates the creation of three new headquarters squads—one of 51 "under cover agents" to secure evidence sufficient to indict state or municipal officials working at violations, or conspiring with violators, of the liquor laws; a second to halt the admittedly gigantic traffic in illicit alcohol; and another of 88 agents assigned to periodic inspections of suspected breweries and cereal beverage plants.

TO PROBE CAMPAIGN FUNDS IN ILLINOIS

Special Committee to Investigate Charges Involving Candidates.

Washington.—Reports are that soon after adjournment of congress, the senate's special election slush fund committee will go to Chicago to investigate charges that public utilities interests combined with the Small-Lundin Republican faction to defeat Senator McKinley and nominate Frank L. Smith, chairman of the state utility commission.
This was brought about, it is said, by the recent speech of Senator Caraway (Dem., Ark.), in the senate when he asserted that Illinois rumors place the cost of Smith's campaign in excess of $2,000,000, and insisted that the committee undertake an investigation promptly before the trails are lost.
It has been the committee's intention to hear a few remaining witnesses on phases of the recent Pennsylvania senatorial primary and then suspend further hearings until auditors dispatched to Westerville, Ohio, to examine the books of the Anti-Saloon league report.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD

On account of his wide experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on the subject. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.
Not long ago a contest was conducted in which 3,000 farm women submitted plans of what they considered the ideal farm home. From these plans a number of interesting things were learned concerning what people living on farms and in the smaller communities really want in the design of their homes.
Many of these points also indicate the changing ideas of the people as a whole. The most conspicuous trend, which is to be found among people not only of the rural districts, but also of the towns, small cities and the suburban districts of the great cities, was that toward smaller homes than have been the rule in years passed.

Interior Trim of Home Requires Good Varnish

Protection of the various surfaces, beauty of effect, sanitation and durability are all to be considered in painting, varnishing and finishing of walls, woodwork and floors in the new building.
The first item of importance is the selection of good paint and varnish. The best will cost a little more per gallon, but fewer gallons will be needed. Select a good painter. If you are not an expert yourself, the right man will make a beautiful interior.

Pierrot, deep in his own somber thoughts, scarcely heard the strange laugh that came suddenly from her lips.

"Tonnerre, she has grown into a woman!" he cried, and like a woman Nepesee looked at him straight, with the color deepening in her cheeks as he bowed low with a courtesy that dated back a couple of centuries beyond the trap-line.

DeBar lost no time in explaining his mission, and before they reached the cabin Pierrot and Nepesee knew why he had come. M'sieu, the Factor at Lac Bain, was leaving on a journey in five days, and he had sent DeBar as a special messenger to request Pierrot to come up to assist the clerk and the half-breed storekeeper in his absence.

Chapter XI

The Willow's back was toward the door when the Factor from Lac Bain entered the cabin, and for a few startled seconds she did not turn. Her first thought was of Pierrot—for some reason he had returned. But even as this thought came to her, she heard in Baree's throat a snarl that brought her suddenly to her feet, facing the door.

"M'sieu, I have a wife with a bad lung, Pierrot. It was caught by frost last winter, and I dare not leave her alone. He has great faith in you. Besides, you know all the trappers on the company's books at Lac Bain. So he sent for you, and begs you not to worry about your furlines, as he will pay you double what you would catch in the time you are at the Post."

"And—Nepesee?" said Pierrot. "M'sieu expects me to bring her?"

From the stove the Willow bent her head to listen, and her heart leaped free again at DeBar's answer.

"He said nothing about that. But surely—it will be a great change for M'sieu."

Pierrot nodded. "Possibly, Notoctam." They discussed the matter no more that night. But for hours Pierrot was still, thinking, and a hundred times he asked himself the same question: "Why had M'sieu sent for me? It must be, he told himself finally, that M'sieu had sent for him because he wanted to win over the father of Nepesee and gain the friendship of Nepesee herself. For this was undoubtedly a very great honor that the Factor was conferring on him. And yet, deep down in his heart, he was filled with suspicion."

when the opportunity came to steal hours by herself, she would put on the red dress and do up her wonderful hair as she saw it in the pictures of the magazines Pierrot had sent up twice a year from Nelson House.

On the second day of Pierrot's absence Nepesee dressed herself like this, but today she let her hair cascade in a shining glory about her, and about her forehead bound a circlet of red ribbon. She was not yet done. Today she had marvelous designs. On the wall close to her mirror she had tacked a large page from a woman's magazine, and on this page was a lovely vision of curls. Fifteen hundred miles north of the sunny California studio in which the picture had been taken, Nepesee, with pouted red lips and puckered forehead, was fighting to master the mystery of the other girl's curls!

"Tell M'sieu That I Will Leave, the Day After Tomorrow."

fashion one of the coveted ringlets from a tress that fell away below her hips, when the door opened behind her, and Bush McTaggart walked in.

The Willow's back was toward the door when the Factor from Lac Bain entered the cabin, and for a few startled seconds she did not turn. Her first thought was of Pierrot—for some reason he had returned. But even as this thought came to her, she heard in Baree's throat a snarl that brought her suddenly to her feet, facing the door.

her face even as he looked at her. It was not a long interval in which their eyes met in that terrible silence—terrible to the girl. Words were unnecessary. At last she understood—understood what her peril had been that day at the edge of the chasm and in the forest, when fearlessly she had confronted the menace that was confronting her now.

A breath that was like a sob broke from her lips.

"M'sieu," she tried to say. But it was only a gasp—an effort. She seemed choking.

Plainly she heard the click of the iron bolt as it locked the door. McTaggart advanced a step.

Only a single step McTaggart advanced. On the floor Baree had remained like a carved thing. He had not moved. He had not made a sound but that one warning snarl—until McTaggart took the step. And then, like a flash, he was up and in front of Nepesee, every hair of his body on end; and at the very end of his growl McTaggart lunged back against the barred door.

With her back against the further wall, Nepesee was waiting. McTaggart could hear her panting breath. He advanced halfway to her.

"Nepesee, I have come to make you my wife," he said.

She did not answer. He could see that her breath was choking her. She raised a hand to her throat. He took two more steps, and stopped. He had never seen such eyes.

"I have come to make you my wife, Nepesee. Tomorrow you will go on to Nelson House with me, and then back to Lac Bain—forever." He added the last words as an afterthought. "Forever," he repeated.

He did not mind words. His courage and his determination rose as he saw her badly droop a little against the wall. She was powerless. There was no escape. Pierrot was gone. There was death.

He had thought that no living creature could move as swiftly as the Willow when his arms reached out for her. She made no sound as she darted under one of his outstretched arms. He made a lunge, a brutal grab, and his fingers caught a bit of hair. He heard the snap of it as she tore herself free and flew to the door. She had thrown back the bolt when he caught her and his arms closed about her. He dragged her back, and now she cried out—cried out in her despair for Pierrot, for Baree, for some miracle of God that might save her.

And Nepesee fought. She twisted in his arms until she was facing him. She could no longer see. She was smothered in her hair. It covered her face and breast and body, suffocating her, entangling her hands and arms—and still she fought. In the struggle McTaggart stumbled over the body of Baree, and they went down. Nepesee was up fully five seconds ahead of the man. She could have reached the door. But again it was her hair. She paused to fling back the thick masses of it from her face. With her last strength she struck at McTaggart with it, and as it fell on his head, he staggered back. But it did not make him loose his hold.

Last of Original Ruppert Men

Wally Pipp, Veteran First Baseman.

With a few tears and a sigh or two, Col. Jake Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees, dropped a sentence into the mail the other day that sent Wally Pipp, his veteran first baseman, to the Cincinnati Reds.

When New York ball players are discarded and shipped to other less prosperous clubs, they have a way of saying that they have been transported down the river.

There is very little sentiment in big league baseball. It is a cold proposition and when the legs of a respected veteran slow him up or when the peg leaves the arm, the open is the only reward.

With Wally Pipp and Jake Ruppert, however, the case was different. Pipp was the only player on the Yankee club who was a regular when Ruppert and his daring former partner, Colonel Huston, paid a million dollars for a baseball name.

Called Them Crazy. Baseball men, wise in the ways of the game, said that the two colts were crazy when they bought the Yankees. They said they were the mad when they opened the pocket book for Babe Ruth, and they wanted a lunacy commission appointed when they built a ball park that would seat 60,000 or more.

Backstopper Gonzales

Mike Gonzales, veteran backstop for the Chicago Cubs, continues to play a clever game as understudy to Gabby Hartnett. The Cuban fields nicely and his hitting has become strong and timely.

A New York basketball team intends to play the professional game in an arena there to seat 10,000 fans. It will hold an American league franchise.

A mile race between Paavo Nurmi and R. A. Rose of New Zealand may be feature of the English Amateur Athletic association track and field meet in Stamford Bridge, London.

Gothenburg, Sweden, will be the scene of a series of Olympic games for women August 27 to 29. The nations of the earth have been asked to send two representatives in each event.

The patagon open golf championship at Scioto C. C. Columbus July 8 to 10, will be broadcast. It will be the first time radio fans have enjoyed this method of following the links experts' progress.

Years ago the Kentucky Derby was considered a preliminary for the American Derby at Washington park.

Tommy Loughran is reported as being quite a student of golf, the ancient Scotch game. It's a great sport, but whether it helps a fighter is questionable.

The largest crowd that ever attended a rugby football game was 63,000, but which was the attendance of last year's international match between England and Scotland.

COMBS OWES JOB TO JOE MCCARTHY

Yank Outfielder Was All Set to Teach School.

Joe McCarthy, who has taken over the reins of the Chicago Cubs, is responsible for developing Earl Combs, Yankee outfielder, and incidentally spoiling a good schoolteacher for Kentucky. In polishing off Combs to attract the eyes of the big league buyers, McCarthy made possible one of the most pretentious minor league players in the country.

Combs was all set to teach the youngsters of the Bluegrass reading and its kindred arts in a little country school when he was spotted by a scout from the Louisville club of the American association.

Here is the way it happened, in Combs' own words:

"When I went to Louisville, I was greener than the rawest recruit from the bushes.

"In my first game a line drive was hit to me that should have been an easy out. I ran in, misjudged it and the runner got three bases on it. My chance to atone for the rotten play came when a single was pelted over first. I went in to take it on the bounce and sat down on the ball. The runner reached third.

"I felt like quitting, and if McCarthy had bowled me out, Kentucky would have had another good school teacher, but all Mac said was 'Don't mind that, boy,' and the fellows on the bench insisted it was tough luck."

Combs, however, continued to travel a thorny road. Louisville fans began to "ride" him for his awkwardness, and McCarthy, recognizing his sensitiveness, kept him out of the home games and used him on the road. In the meantime Combs practiced for hours each morning. As the season neared its close he was placed in the regular lineup, and made good without any trouble. A natural hitter, he had acquired confidence and ability to handle himself gracefully.

Then he was given his big chance. He was sold to the Yankees for a substantial sum, which later was used as the basis for building Parkway field at Louisville.

Tennis Ankle Is Menace

Among Many Enthusiasts. Visitors returning from the Riviera give alarming accounts of the prevalence of enlarged ankles among tennis enthusiasts. Lady players, they say, may be divided into two groups: taking remedial massage and those who are sending home for specially designed shoes.

"It is quite true that constant tennis tends to thicken legs and ankles," a London foot specialist says, "the reason being that most sports shoes give so support to the instep. Consequently the whole weight of the body is thrown on the ankle joint."

"Suzanne has not suffered because she has always worn specially designed shoes. Many professionals at Queen's and the Bath club wear shoes with shock-absorbers, which give the effect of walking on air."

Players on grass courts are likely to suffer from tennis ankle, and the advice the specialist lays down is, briefly:

To fit the instep, rather than the length of the foot.

To see that the heel grips tightly even before the shoe is laced.

In default of specially designed shoes, to wear the ordinary plimsoll rather than the usual tennis shoe, because the former leaves the foot quite free.

"The belief that dancing is a corrective," he adds, "is justified. Dancing is the finest foot exercise possible, and strengthens all the important muscles."

New Giant Backstop

Ed Walsh, Jr., son of the famous White Sox hurler, in addition to pitching is a track star and candidate for fullback on the Notre Dame eleven.

The Cubs have optioned infielder Clyde Beck to the Milwaukee club of the American association. He is subject to recall on 24 hours' notice.

Mexico is organizing a baseball league and soon the people may be expected to work off their enthusiasm on umpires, instead of starting revolutions.

Going back to the minor leagues is not a demotion. Looking at it rightly it is a promotion, provided a player is not in the regular lineup of a major league club.

Heinie Groh has fitted into the Toledo infield in good shape. The former Giant is getting his hits and playing a whole of a game at third. He is doing the lead-off trick.

Business Manager Bill Friel of the St. Louis Browns announced the release of Catcher Tom Porter to the Terre Haute club of the Three-I league, and Pitcher Dennis White to the Jeanette club of the Middle Atlantic league.

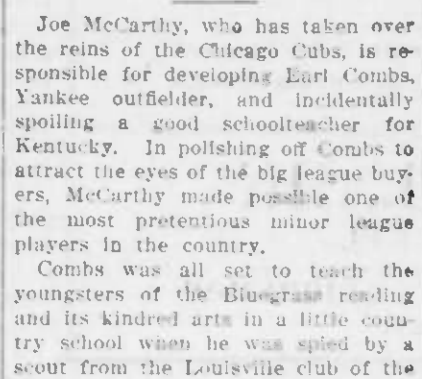

It is understood that Cincinnati obtained Pitcher George Dumont, veteran right-hander, from the Minneapolis club of the American association, on 30-day trial with option of purchase. Manager Hendricks probably figures that Dumont, with his good curve, will be a valuable relief man.

Howard Fitzgerald, star outfielder of the Wichita Falls club of the Texas league, has been traded to the Boston Americans for Joe Kiefer, right-handed pitcher; Ross, a left-hander, and Jenkins, an outfielder.

Although Walter Johnson's two-year contract expires this year the mighty twirling ace has no intention of retiring. He will not buy a franchise as contemplated last year, but intends to remain with the Senators until he finds his days of service at an end.

ATTRACTION WOMEN

If You Would Be Attractive You Must Be Healthy

A beautiful woman is always admired. There are many types of beauty. But no woman can be truly beautiful unless she is healthy. Radiant vitality is always attractive. However plain a woman's features may be. Many a woman has found her health improved thru the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

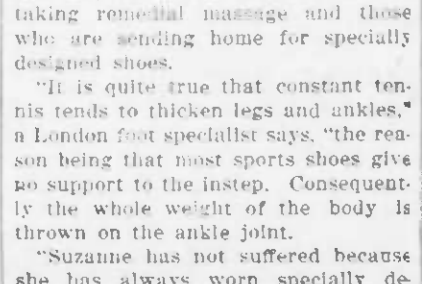

Weakness, loss of weight, and a pale complexion were a few of the things of which Mrs. J. C. Taylor of Box 211, Tallahassee, Florida, complained before she started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. "I could not even sit down and talk to a friend for any length of time," she states, "I would forget what I was talking about and felt so blue." Mrs. Taylor is so pleased with the work of the Vegetable Compound that she keeps a bottle of it in the house at all times—and when it is empty, her husband makes sure that she has a new bottle. "I have regained my strength," Mrs. Taylor writes. "I can do all my housework now and I feel just fine."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is made from roots and herbs and has been growing in popularity among women for over fifty years.

More High School Pupils

A new type of high school student and a new type of high school course have come into existence as a result of compulsory school attendance laws, and they have brought new educational problems with them, according to E. E. Keener, director of instructional research of the public schools in Chicago. His findings, which have been reported to an educational conference there, show that high school enrollment has increased 300 per cent in Chicago in the last 20 years, the population increase during the same time being 58 per cent. The estimate of one-third official is that more than one-third of the pupils now enrolled in the first two years of high school are there only because the laws do not permit them to leave school and obtain work.

RIGHTS OF DOGS, HORSES ON ROAD UPHELD BY COURT

Madison, June 22.—The farmer's dog has the right to cross the highway and autoists can not run him down; the farmer's horse also has rights on the highway and the autoist who runs the animal down can not collect damages for injuries to his car. Justice Charles H. Crownhart wrote the decision of the supreme court in the dog case and Justice C. Owen the opinion in the horse case. Both decisions are of more than passing interest because they lay down a rule that the autoist driving in rural districts must exercise care and caution.

"The farmer is liable only for the damage resulting from the natural propensities of his animals and from such peculiar propensities of individual animals as have come to his attention," declares Justice Owen in sustaining a farmer in a case where the autoist sought to collect damages because the horse he ran into had damaged his car and injured the occupants.

"The occurrence was certainly a most peculiar one and can not be attributed to the natural propensities of the horse," Justice Owen declared. "There is no suggestion that the horse was possessed of a capricious disposition, by reason of which an occurrence such as this should have been anticipated. Any reasonable anticipation of this damage, or any injury resulting to anyone by reason of the presence of the horse on the highway can not therefore be attributed solely to the natural propensities of the horse, and if the owner of the horse is liable for the damages sustained by reason of this collision, it would result in making the absolute insurer against all casualties that should occur to travelers in consequence and his cattle or horses being on the highway for any other purposes or reason than merely that of using such highway as a thoroughfare. Such a conclusion is contrary to all the authorities coming to our attention where the running at large of domestic animals upon the highway is not prohibited.

The decision as to the horse came in the suit to Jacob P. Fox, guardian for Adeline Fox, against William Koenig, Fond du Lac county.

The court held similarly in the case of J. Schroeder against Ben and Emily Koopman, Dodge county, where the plaintiff brought suit for damages because the dog of the defendants was in no way of the machine and knocked it off its course.
