KEWASKUM HIGH SCHOOL COLUMN

Lomira vs. Kewaskum
Our basket ball team had a night of it last Friday, when they played the Lomira team. First of all Marlin, our right guard, hurt his ankle so that he was obliged to leave the game for good. From this time on our boys seemed to have lost their spirit, and the first quarter ended 7 to 0 in Lomira's favor. In the beginning of the second quarter, our boys got into the game again and the half ended 11 to 6 with Lomira in the lead. In the third quarter Kohn, our center, was successful with three consecutive field goals. The quarter ended 11 to 11 in Kewaskum's favor. We tied the score several times but finally lost by a score of 15 to 16 at Fond du Lac and were by a score of 14 to 24 at Kewaskum.

1927 WILL BRING MANY HIGHWAY CHANGES

You have from now until spring to select what you know about the Wisconsin highways. For, in a few months, many of them are going to change their names and you will have to be introduced all over again!
Many Wisconsin highways are to be renumbered for 1927 to conform to the federal system of roads which includes a part of our state system. And it's not going to be such an easy job—this renumbering to call old friends by new names. Permanent signs, bearing the new numbers, will be placed on highways early in the spring.
Such old standbys as 19, 41 and 15, for example, will lose their identities. State highway 19 to Watertown and 25 to LaCrosse will unite to become Federal 16. State 41 to Madison, with 19 to Prairie du Chien, will become Federal 18. State 15, from the Illinois state line to Milwaukee, will remain unchanged, but from Milwaukee to Green Bay it will be Federal 41.

DEATHS OF THE PAST WEEK

THEODORE SCHOOF
After a week's illness with a complication of diseases, death called away from the family circle, another of Kewaskum's highly respected and well known pioneer citizens, Theodore Schoofs, who passed away at his home here on Saturday morning at 9 o'clock, Dec. 4, 1926. Mr. Schoofs was born in Keppeln, Rhine Province, Germany, on June 17, 1843. At the age of 13 years he immigrated with his parents to America and settled on a farm in the town of Kewaskum, a mile west of Kewaskum. Here he grew to manhood, and labored hard to develop the farm into good fertile land in which he was quite successful. On May 13, 1873, he was married to Susan Becker, who preceded him in death on May 23, 1925. On May 13, 1923, the couple had the happy occasion of celebrating their golden wedding anniversary. Mr. Schoofs was the father of eight children, all of whom survive and who are as follows: Etta, Mary and Lena at home, Christ on the homestead, Henry, William and Susan (Mrs. Frank O'Meara) of West Bend and John of the town of Jackson. Though Mr. Schoofs was well advanced in years he was quite active up to a week prior to his death. 13 years ago he retired from farm life and moved to this village where he has since resided. He was a loyal citizen, a kind father and neighbor, and a good christian man, and the good deeds done by him will long linger in the memories of those nearest to him, and all who had the pleasure of making his acquaintance. The funeral was held on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock with services in the Holy Trinity church. Rev. Vogt, Rev. Heyde and Rev. Kuhnman officiated. Burial was made in the congregation's cemetery.

MRS. FRED KOCHER

Mrs. Fred Kocher, former resident of the town of Kewaskum, passed peacefully away in death at the home of her son, Herman Kocher at Milwaukee, on Sunday, Dec. 5, 1926, following a week's illness with liver trouble. Mrs. Kocher was born March 16, 1843, in Saxton, Germany. When a young girl she immigrated with her parents to America and settled in the town of Wayne. In 1866 she was married to Fred Kocher, who preceded her in death on June 12, 1907. Shortly after their marriage the couple resided on a farm, now owned and managed by her son Albert, located about a half mile south of Kewaskum, where she lived until 19 years ago, following the death of her husband, when she left for Milwaukee to live with her son Herman. 12 children were born of this union, the following of whom survive: Herman, Gustave, Henry and Louis of Milwaukee, Clara (Mrs. John Tomas) of Chicago and Albert on the homestead in the town of Kewaskum. Mrs. Kocher was a devoted mother and wife. Through her kind and cheerful disposition she won a host of friends here by whom she is well remembered, and who join in extending heartfelt sympathy to the surviving relatives. The remains were brought to the home of her son Albert on Tuesday afternoon, from where the funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Burial was made in the Van Vechten cemetery. Rev. Walters of Milwaukee officiated.

MRS. OTTO BRANDENBURG

Mrs. Otto Brandenburg (nee Anna Friebershauser) died Nov. 25th on Thanksgiving day, at her home at Beechwood, after a lingering illness. She was born Nov. 29th, 1879. On Nov. 11th, 1908 she was married to Otto Brandenburg, who with the following sisters and brothers survive: Mrs. George Burrows of Gramis, Ark., Mrs. Wm. Voelz of Milwaukee, Mrs. Wm. Hahn of Plymouth, Miss Bertha Friebershauser of Milwaukee, Henry and Charles Friebershauser of Plymouth. The funeral was held Monday, Nov. 29th, at 1 p. m., from her home and at 2 p. m. from the St. John's church at Beechwood. Rev. Kuenne of Silver Creek officiated. Burial was made in the congregation's cemetery. The pall bearers were Messrs. Henry Reysen, John Gatzke, Frank Bartel, Charles Barkhaus, Ed. Kreuzinger and Oscar Mosech.

Four net fishermen, C. Kesselhon, Matt Stark, Wm. Schleif and Louis Teckel of Milwaukee, accused of having indulged in this illegal sport at Haack's lake in Sheboygan county, a short distance north of the Washington county line, were arrested by Conservation Warden Peter Dietrich on November 18 and arraigned in Justice Hayden's court last Thursday. BEAVER DAM FAIR GETS EVEN BREAK

The total receipts of the Dodge county fair at Beaver Dam for 1926 were $48,174.66, it was divulged at the annual meeting of the stockholders at Beaver Dam Saturday in the report of Secretary J. F. Malone. The receipts were considerably less than the disbursements, as shown by the fact that the bank balance was $529.45 at the close of the year's business as compared to $546.73 at the start of the year, and that $12,000 was borrowed by the association to square its accounts. The income included $11,258.44 gate receipts, $6,927.50, grand stand receipts and rent of concessions noted $1,136.18 paid on 1925 accounts closed and interest paid $10,695, and bond paid, $500, these amounts practically balancing the current borrowing.

RAID HEN COOP

Leaving only the heads, thieves on Monday night raided the chicken coop of George Bodendoerfer at Hamilton, and slaughtered and stole seventy chickens and five ducks. The entire hen house was cleaned out. The theft was committed during the night and was noticed the next morning when Mr. Bodendoerfer went to feed the flock. The fact that the thieves were not noticed until the morning and that no one was awakened by the commotion of the wholesale slaughter was due to the fact that the coop is about a block away from the residence. Police are working on a clue and are on the look-out for parties selling dressed poultry.—Cedarburg News.

ICE BOAT WENT THROUGH THE ICE

The ice boat belonging to Raymond Hegy, which he built two years ago, went to the bottom of Pike Lake in the trial run its owner held last Sunday afternoon. Ray, the pilot and on passenger, was fortunate enough to be able to jump from the machine and thus make his escape from probable death. The accident occurred about 100 yards off shore at Eagle Point. A difficulty in the functioning of the steering gear caused the machine to skid badly every time it struck a high rate of speed. After one of these skids the machine stopped directly over a thin spot in the ice, which immediately broke through. As the craft slid into the thin ice, Raymond slid off the iceboat. However, his agility was not sufficient for the iceboat, propelled with an airplane propeller, crushed a large hole and into the hole Mr. Hegy was precipitated, clothing and all. Good fortune was with him and he managed to crawl out onto firm ice and thence made his way to shore.—Hartford Times.

SEASONABLE SWEETS

Very few, young or old, refuse sweets. Children crave them, and two or three pieces after a meal will satisfy the craving and provide the heat-producing and energy-building elements their young bodies require.

Salt Water Taffy.—Put one and one-fourth pounds of sugar, one and one-fourth pounds of white sirup and salt in a saucepan and stir in until boiling begins. Wash down the sides of the saucepan with a damp cloth and continue boiling to the brittle stage. Take from the fire, add a tablespoonful of butter, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt and turn out on greased marble or platters. When cool enough to handle, two persons can pull it. Work in the coloring and flavoring while pulling. Cut into small pieces with shears and roll in waxed paper.

Raisin Clusters.—Take two cupfuls of granulated sugar, one tablespoonful of cocoa and one-half cupful of milk. Boil just six minutes, counting the time the bubbling begins. Add a tablespoonful of butter and one cupful of raisins, stir enough to mix and drop by spoonfuls on waxed paper.

Peanut Cream Fudge.—Cook to a soft boil two-thirds of a cupful of cream, two cupfuls of brown sugar, one-half teaspoonful of salt and one heaping tablespoonful of peanut butter. Beat until creamy and pour into a buttered tin. Cut into squares.

Peanut Brittle.—Put one cupful of granulated sugar into an iron frying pan and stir until it forms a sirup, push back from the flame and stir in one cupful of peanuts which have been skinned and heated in the oven, add a teaspoonful of butter and a pinch of soda. Turn out as thin as possible in a greased dripping pan. When cold break into pieces.

Puffed Rice Brittle.—Boil together one cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of water and a teaspoonful of vinegar for five minutes, add two tablespoonfuls of sirup, one tablespoonful of butter, one-half teaspoonful of salt and boil to the brittle stage. Add puffed rice, with peanuts if desired; stir in as thick as possible. Put out in a greased dripping pan to cool.

Orange Pie.—Bake a rich pastry shell and when cool fill with orange jelly. Cover with whipped cream sweetened and flavored and serve cold.

Honey Dishes.
Honey is the nectar of flowers gathered by the bees and ripened by them in the hive. The nectar is changed in the honey sac so that it finally becomes delicious flavored honey. Honey being a natural sweet is easy of digestion. Foods prepared from honey will keep better, more moist and better flavored than those prepared from sugar or molasses.

Oberlin Honey Layer Cake.—Take two-thirds of a cupful of shortening, one cupful of honey, three well-beaten eggs, one-half cupful of milk, two cupfuls of flour and one and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Bake in layers and fill with whipped cream sweetened and flavored with strained honey.

Honey Tea Cake.—Take one cupful of strained honey, one-half cupful of sour cream, two eggs, one-half cupful of shortening, two cupfuls of flour, one-half teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of cream of tartar, a little salt; beat well and bake in a moderate oven.

Honey Cookies.—Take one cupful each of honey, sugar, shortening and sour cream, add three well-beaten eggs, a teaspoonful of soda, a teaspoonful of flavoring and flour to roll.

Pumpkin Pie.—Take one cupful of well-cooked brown pumpkin, add one-half cupful of honey, two eggs, one pint of rich milk, one teaspoonful of ginger, a grating of nutmeg, a fourth teaspoonful of cinnamon, salt and a few drops of lemon extract. Bake slowly.

Honey Butterscotch.—Take one cupful of butter, two cupfuls of sugar, two cupfuls of strained honey, a teaspoonful of cinnamon, boil ten minutes, pour into buttered pans and mark off into squares.

Honey Pudding Sauce.—Take one cupful of honey, one-fourth cupful of water, one tablespoonful of butter, a pinch of cinnamon and nutmeg and the juice of one lemon. Boil all together fifteen minutes.

Honey Candy.—To one quart of honey take six tablespoonfuls of butter, two tablespoonfuls of vinegar and boil until it hardens in water. Flavor with two teaspoonfuls of lemon extract and one-half teaspoonful of soda. Pour into buttered pans to cool. Mark off into squares before too hard.

CHIFFON FROCKS FOR THE DANCE; CLOTH COATS SANS FUR TRIMMING

IN ACCORDANCE with fashion's decree, youth will dance its merry way through the coming holiday festivities robed in lovely, colorful frocks. Rather than the glimmer and sparkle of paillettes and beads which her elders select for the adornment of more sophisticated dress, the young girl chooses the daintiest of French flower trimmings—just like Gertrude Olmsted, the youthful film actress of beauty-prize fame, is wearing in this picture.

Peach-colored chiffon trimmed with French flowers is a brief description of this delectable gown. But look close; do you not observe something unusual about this adorable dance costume?

Smartest models rely on tailored simplicity for chic, rather than upon adornment. Quality-kind material and patrician styling are the marks of distinction which characterize the non-furred coat. The all-cloth-sans-fur wrap, often the preference of the elegant Parisienne for informal daytime wear, usually boasts a cape which tops a straight, narrow, manly-tailored coat portion, just like this picture shows. The material is likely to be finest navy blue twill, although dark green suede cloth is also finding favor in recent models, while there are some few beige and gray cape types which are without fur.

time? Yes! That's it! A bag of chiffon festooned with the same kind of flowers which trim the dress! And a lovely idea it is. Who would attend the dance next week or this without a cunning bag flower-trimmed to match one's dress?

Two-toned chiffon dresses are ever so attractive and so up-to-date. This method of combining a light chiffon with a dark tone of the same color is inspirational to the designer, who is thus enabled to work out many clever stylings. One very fetching dance frock following out the two-tone idea uses a delicate coral tone for the waist portion with a skirt of deeper toned red. A three-tone effect appears in the border and the grade of a frock in green.

Another way of achieving a two-tone effect is to wear a shoulder bouquet whose flowers are of deeper tone than the dress. Often the chiffon frock is comes not amiss if the day be cold, so madame or mademoiselle frequently carries such over her arm, as you see in the illustration.

Women of last-word fashion in the French capital are also displaying interest in coats sparsely trimmed in fur, these directly contrasting the lavishly be-furred cloaks, which have reached that stage of popularity which voids their exclusiveness. Sometimes only the collar shows a bit of fur. The very swagger coat bears a small military collar, frequently made of flat fur such as cat-skin or broadtail. Broken by a narrow novelty belt, sometimes of the smooth, sleek fur, which is attractive.

A number of leading Parisian stylists are flaring the cloth coat about the knees. They accomplish this by a circular pleat as pictured in the background in this group or by means not trimmed, or rather is self-trimmed with floating airy-fairy streamers, fur panels or draperies. A monotone frock of flesh-colored chiffon, for instance, has graceful, flowing lines, and its coloring is intensified in the deep pink rose at the shoulder, with a matching one at the grade. A coral georgette is accented in color value by means of a deep red rose at the neckline.

Not infrequently the two-toned color scheme is carried out by applying velvet darker in tone than the dress it trims.

Not every coat in Paris is fur trimmed. Not a few of the season's of a broad shirred ruffle which is frankly full about the neckline. Gray suede cloth with a discreet use of gray squirrel for collar and cuffs was the medium chosen for the model here shown.

Fur-lined, but not fur-trimmed—at least not ostentatiously so, bespeaks coat elegance for a select clientele. Sports coats thus fashioned employ in their development stunning novelty woolsens, such as English tweeds, Scotch plaids and similar weaves of highest standard.

Exercise Gives Mental Change to Average Man

"Recreational sports as a diversion are of as much benefit to the man who uses his muscles daily—and thereby keeps physically fit—as they are to the office man," declared J. A. Rosenkranz, president of the National Automobile and Electrical School.

"It is a mistaken idea that the only man who needs exercise is the office man," he continued. "And that is the reason why, on the golf links, you will find mechanics today. The diversion from their usual interests is as good for them as if they actually needed the exercise to keep fit physically."

Golf on the Plains

The oil field and cattle country of northwest Texas and the Panhandle is perhaps the last section where one would expect to find golf courses. Yet every city of consequence sports at least a nine-hole links. The greens often are of cottonseed. German Women Sports

Sports for women in German universities, which until a few years ago were frowned upon as unhygienic, are now the general rule. More than 50 per cent of all university women participate regularly in one or more sports, the most popular being track and field events, gym work, swimming and tennis. So active have women become that the convention of student athletic council leaders has admitted representatives.

Pitching Builds Morale

Good pitching is the greatest morale builder in baseball, comments H. G. Salsinger in the Detroit News. Any time a team has confidence in its pitcher, it will "come up" for him. When the pitching is weak, the club fades. It loses confidence. This is apparent in its batting as well as in fielding. The Athletics looked hopeless last spring until Connie Mack's pitchers began to deliver. The team immediately came out of its slump.

BALL SEASON IS MUCH TOO LONG

Agitation for World's Series in September.

Now that another world's series has ended amid rain, cold and six-week attendance figures, the agitation for a shorter baseball season is being revived. True, the magnates did top six days of the schedule last winter, but the opponents of an October world's series are insatiable and demand a series beginning September 25 or thereabouts.

The 1926 series had the same sour ending as its immediate predecessor. The sixth and seventh games ran headlong into the inevitable chill and rain of October. The shortage of customers was alarming. At the last game, with the championship of the world hanging on every play, the crowd was smaller than at many Sunday games in July and August.

There is no serious reason why the world's series should not start on September 25. Reasons advanced by the magnates are more or less trivial. They hold that it is impossible to play 154 games in a shorter space of time because Philadelphia, Boston and Pittsburgh do not have Sunday baseball. This can be overcome by sprinkling the schedule with a few double-headers.

The latest world's series was delayed three days so that the Phillies and Braves might engage in three breath-taking struggles. Both clubs were rapidly going nowhere at all. It has become increasingly apparent that the major leagues can play 154 games between April 15 and September 22. Nothing would be lost financially, and the baseball clients would be enabled to watch the world's series in warmth and comfort. October and November should be the exclusive property of football.

Defensive Greatness of Pirate Star Overlooked

Most of the fast youngsters who come into the big leagues are weak hitters. About one of these speed marvels in 20 gets into the 300 class. Hazen Cuyler was an exception. He learned to play ball in a north Michigan industrial-league and he played so well that he came straight into the majors from Class B when only nineteen.

Barney Dreyfus farmed him out a couple of seasons, one in Charleston and the next in Nashville. As a sentry Cuyler was noted for his speed and his fine fielding. But his four home runs delivered toward the close of the industrial-league season had much to do with bringing the championship to his team and more to do with bringing him within the range of the Dreyfus vision.

But even with his fine Southern league record in 1923, Cuyler was more notable in his defense than in his attack. In his two National league seasons, however, few fans think of his deft fielding skills, and there is much comment on his speed. All the talk is of his deadly bat.

Gate Crashers Slowly Fading From Football

Joe Beckett, former champion heavyweight fighter of Great Britain, has become a race track bookmaker. Football at Williams

Football is the only varsity sport at Williams college which proved a financial success a year ago. The gridiron management reports a sizable balance on hand, but practically all the other teams which represented the Purple last year have a deficit. Baseball is usually a money maker for the Williams athletic treasury, but hard luck was met a year ago by the necessity of calling off the annual Memorial day game with Amherst because of rain.

No Engine Fumes in Buick closed cars

In the 1927 Buick, the new Vacuum Ventilator pulls engine fumes and gases from the crankcase and ejects them outside the car.

This vital new Buick improvement does away with noxious odors. It adds greater luxury and pleasure to enclosed car operation.

The Vacuum Ventilator serves another very important purpose. It prevents crankcase vapors from condensing and diluting the oil. Owners of 1927 Buicks are advised to drain their crankcase oil only 4 times during the year.

GRIND!

Don't Let Whole Grain Cheat You

WHOLE GRAIN is bulky and it fills the animal's stomach, but it cheats you by satisfying the hunger through this bulk rather than through complete nourishment. Tests have been conducted by Government stations in past years, with healthy, full-toothed animals, to determine the seriousness of these feeding losses. The tests show an average loss of from 12 to 26 per cent. In other words, out of 100 bushels of whole corn fed, 26 bushels yield practically no nourishment while passing through the digestive tract. The unground oat diet shows a similar loss of 12 bushels out of every 100. Such feeding losses can easily spell the difference between possible loss and a handsome profit. Many farmers are putting various combinations of grains through the McCormick-Deering Feed Grinder, assuring their animals a nourishing ration that is quickly and completely assimilated. In the interests of greater stock-raising profits, investigate the McCormick-Deering at our store.

SCARED KLUXERS

The remnants of the Milwaukee chapter of the Ku Klux Klan, that gathered here Thursday night, were routed by the shrill whistle of the fire siren during a Thanksgiving service held at midnight on the Segbarth field near the southeast city limits. A large cross 30 feet high bound with rags was set in flames as a part of the ceremony and the flames attracted the attention of local folks who turned in the alarm. The fire department rushed to the scene but the kluxers were nowhere around. According to witnesses, the attendance at the ceremony was very small, only about 15 being present. They wore the full regalia, and had gone through a ritual when the alarm of the siren sent them scurrying in all directions. It is believed that the meeting here was arranged through the efforts of local members who had previously sought to engage the Turner Hall for a meeting.—Collasburg News.

LYDIA OF THE PINES

By HONORÉ WILLISIE

(© by Frederick A. Stokes Co.)
WNU Service

Lydia, sitting on the front steps in the early September afternoons, watched Adam's car, and thought of the Norton boys and thought of the Norton boys. Finally, one day, she saw the Norton boys, gathered about a table of many colored asters and started off, without telling Lizzie and without her consent.

It was nearly five o'clock when she stepped at the Marshall's gate. Lizzie stopped at the screen door and Lydia stepped in and paused. Lizzie was sitting by the kitchen table, and on the back of his head, she saw a pile of newspapers on the floor. He did not speak to Lydia when she came in.

This was worse than Lydia had thought it would be. She had not calculated on Dave's being at home. At that moment there was a light step in the dining room, and Margery came into the kitchen. When she saw Lydia she gasped.

"Haven't you heard? Oh, Lydia! You came anyhow!" and suddenly Margery threw herself down and sobbed with her face in Lydia's lap.

"I don't want any thanks," said Lydia, making for the door, where she had intercepted her with outstretched hands. Lydia looked up into his dark face and her own turned crimson. "I don't shake hands," she said, "honest."

"Oh, Kent," she began, breathlessly, then paused and the two looked deep into each other's eyes.

"Lydia! Lydia! I need you so!" cried Kent. "You are such a dear, such a pal, so pretty, so sweet—and I need you so! Won't you marry me, Lydia?"

"I've always loved you dearly, Kent, and yet," faltered Lydia, "and yet, somehow, I don't think we'd ever make each other happy."

"Not make each other happy? I'd like to know why not! Just try me, Lydia! Try me!"

he hates to keep this engagement. But I don't care. I wish I had a new dress. But I've made the sleeves small in my organdie and made a new giraffe. It looks as well as could be expected." She finished comically.

The hop was a success, a decided success, in spite of the organdie. Kent was inclined to be stiff, at first, and to wear a slightly injured air, and yet, mingled with this was a frank and youthful bravado. And there could be no doubt that among the college boys, Kent was more or less of a hero. It was something to boast of, evidently, to have one's name coupled with Levine's in the great scandal.

Kent had supposed that he would have some trouble in filling Lydia's card for her but to his surprise, he found that in her timid way, Lydia was something of a personage among the older college boys and the younger professors.

It was altogether an interesting evening and at its end Lydia pulled on her last winter's overcoat and clambered into Kent's little automobile, utterly satisfied with life.

"Oh, Kent, it was wonderful!" "And you don't feel as if I were a villain any more? You've forgiven me?" "Forgiven you? For what?"

"For not agreeing with you on the Indian question. Gee, I was sore at you, Lyd, that morning at the hearing, but yet I was like your dad. I was proud of you, too."

"Oh, don't let's talk about it, tonight, Kent," Lydia protested. "All right, old girl, only just remember that I can't change. I back Mr. Levine to the limit. And maybe he hasn't a surprise party coming for all of you?"

"I don't care," insisted Lydia. "I'm going to be happy tonight, and I won't talk Indians. Margery is feeling much better. She's at our house every Sunday. You must come round and see her."

"Why shouldn't I come to see you, Lydia?" asked Kent, with a new note in his voice.

sure that either Kent or Billy would ask her to go and for this the organdie would not do. And for this she must have a party coat.

Lydia knew if she took the matter up with Amos he would go out and borrow money for her. She shuddered at the thought of this. Then she heard of the "College Money-Making Bureau."

There was the mending department for example. Here were brought every week by the well-to-do students piles of mending of every variety from heelless socks and stockings, to threadbare underwear and frayed cuffs and collars. These were made into packages and farmed out to the money-needing girls.

Early in January, Lydia sneaked into the little room and out again with a neat but heavy bundle. She got home with it and smuggled it into her room without old Lizzie's seeing it.

The third week she took cold, an almost unheard-of proceeding for Lydia, and in spite of all old Lizzie's deceptions, she could not throw it off.

"How's the cold, Lyd?" he asked. "Socks," whispered Lydia, "bushels of socks, aren't they, Billy?"

"Where's my fifteen dollars?" she asked. "What fifteen dollars, little daughter?" Amos was sitting on the edge of the bed, holding her hand.

"All right," said Lydia, honestly. "Well Kent so's her." She trailed off again into stupor.

"I think she ought to go if she wants to," Lydia said.

don't suppose you could possibly go to the prom, just for one or two dances, do you?"

"There isn't any other girl," replied Billy. "If I can't go with you, I'll be hanged if I go at all! Lydia, I don't see why a sensible girl-like you lays such stress on clothes. Honestly, it's not like you. Come on, be a sport and go in your usual dress, or let me lend you the money to get a complete party outfit with."

"Billy Norton, you know I wouldn't borrow money from a man!" exclaimed Lydia. "Besides, I've got enough money I earned myself."

Lydia dug the little pocketbook from under the sofa pillow and spread the money proudly on her shawl. "There it is and it's the root of all my troubles."

"Young woman, how'd you earn that money?" he demanded. "Socks! Bushels of socks, mostly," answered Lydia with a chuckle that ended in a groan. She looked at Billy.

ly whimsically and then as the sureness of his understanding came to her again, she told him the story of her little midnight swoon.

"If that darned prom means as much as that to you—" he began, but Lydia interrupted him.

"It doesn't any more, Billy. I've learned a lot of things since I've been here. I was a little idiot to work so hard for clothes! But I don't think like other girls. I wanted to have the man that took me proud of my appearance."

"The two young people sat in silence, Lydia watching the snowflakes settle on the already overladen boughs of the pine, Billy watching the sensitive lines in Lydia's face change with each passing thought."

"Billy," she said, "what would you say if next year I took the short course in agriculture?"

A MESSAGE of GOOD WILL

By ALBERT ASH ALLEN

HARK! Now the bells, on Christmas Day, Bring back the joy of happy times— Some spirit, which had gone away, Now haunts in these merry chimes; With peace on earth, good will to men— Thus is the carol heard again.

Hark! Now the bells, on frosty air, Ring hope and comfort, love and peace— The Spirit of the Christ is here To bid the worldly tumult cease; With peace on earth, good will to men— Thus is the carol heard again.

Hark! Now the bells, on frosty air, Reach to the islands of the sea In one sweet voice of "Peace, be still, and let thy burden rest on Me; Thus peace on earth, good will to men Is, in the echo, heard again!

Christmas Courage

Florence Harris Wells

TOM WALTON was lonesome. It was Christmas Eve and he had no near relatives on earth. Seeing a light in the office of his friend, Doctor Barnes, he sauntered in.

He had scarcely entered when the Doctor began to exclaim over him: "Nothing," Tom declared, taking it as a joke.

Well, what had he been eating? "Nothing unusual," Tom tried bantering a little, but the doctor persisted. "You certainly have smelled something out of the ordinary."

Then Tom remembered that that morning he had received a letter from a friend of his in India with a pressed flower in it. In fact, he had the letter in his pocket and showed it to the doctor.

"Yes, that flower has a peculiar odor. I thought of it this morning. But how in the dickens could you tell?"

But the doctor was all business. He called the flower by a long, botanical name; while in sup- pressed excitement he told Tom of his strange death-bearing odor that within twenty-four hours from the time it was inhaled meant death. A sharp pain in the heart would be the only warning. The doctor slumped in his chair, head bowed in his hands, unable to meet Tom's horror-stricken eyes.

Riotous thoughts ran through his mind as the slow moving train advanced toward the village. For the time being his errand and not what its outcome might be outweighed the gloom of his own life. His thoughts hung over his errand rather than over another's trouble rather than his own. He wondered if perchance she might already be married. People did such things on Christmas Eve, and it was late fall when he last talked with Margaret. With the thought came a tightening about the muscles of his heart. It was the first warning, Tom knew.

The train fairly crawled. It was an hour late. Tom remembered it was always an hour or so late on Christmas Eve. It had been so every year. He recalled. He was surprised that he hadn't thought of that before. In the maze of his harassed brain he hoped the deadly odor would not take effect too soon. He had too much to do first.

At last the train drew in at the station. There was no taxi. There never were taxis at Smithville; but other years Margaret had met him. He stepped out, almost expecting to see her laughing a welcoming Merry Christmas at him. He almost felt disappointed, and again that queer little sensation about his heart, recalling to him the importance of losing no time.

Without reason, from force of habit, Tom went directly to the old house of Margaret's aunt. The house was in total darkness but Tom gave the old-fashioned bell a vigorous pull and its ring seemed to solemnly re-echo on the chill wintry air—not at all like a Christmas chime came the unsolicited thought to Tom. The house was dark, it might be empty, but Tom was going to be sure. Again and again he pulled down the bell. Ages it seemed to Tom before a light appeared and big, burly, Peter Kline, arrayed in night apparel, threw wide open the door.

"Is some one sick or dying this night that you raise such a hullabaloo at a man's door?" He lowered the lamp and peered at Tom.

"So it's you? I'll be god-darned. What's allin' you? Come in! Come in!" He fairly pushed Tom in, banging the door behind them.

All the time Tom had been asking for Margaret, but Peter apparently heard nothing until they were in the cozy living room where embers still glowed in the old-fashioned fireplace.

"Is it Margaret you're seeking? Glad enough I am that you've come to at last. Married to me, did you say? Certainly not. I married the Widow Stone at Thanksgiving. I'm not the sort of man that wants to marry a girl who loves some one else. Margaret lives over at Neighbor Lewis'. Some one's up." Peter unceremoniously ushered Tom out into the night.

Tom never knew quite how he got across the street to the Lewises', but it was Margaret herself who opened the door. Neither did he know how it came about that Margaret was in his arms.

It was later when they got their breath and senses that Tom remembered his real mission, and the futility of the love he had been so slow in realizing broke over him. The stab at his heart woke him completely from his dream and he poured out to Margaret the tragedy that hung over them.

If Back Hurts Begin on Salts

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally by Drinking Quarts of Good Water

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much rich food creates acids which clog the kidney pores so that they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood. Then you get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage, or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin to drink soft water in quantities; also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithium, and has been used for years to help flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone can take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complications.

CHAPTER XVII
The End of a Great Search
Lydia returned to her college work the Monday after the junior prom, a little thinner, and her color not quite so bright as usual, but in a most cheerful frame of mind. She was feeling, somehow, a new sense of maturity and contentment.

Kent jerked his head discontentedly. "I think it would be better for us to tie to each other right now. Please, Lydia, dear."

LET YOUR VISION EXPAND.

The trend of the age is toward a higher life and a broader outlook and should extend our vision beyond the cornfield and the wood-lot, and keep in touch with other essential things of life. We should be on the lookout for brain brighteners, and be able to talk intelligently on to us of live human interest in the home. We should try to learn new things and new ways of doing things, especially when new ways mean easier, better and more economical methods in producing an article of greatest commercial value and importance, and on account of using new ways this article is greatly improved in keeping quality, and its market value thereby raised to higher standards, giving the farmer a more distinct commercial advantage, soon reflected by real figures in his banking account. As soon as all haphazard methods of producing and caring for milk are discarded we will be on the threshold of real dairying—dairying that pays.
