FORMER KEWASKUM BOY BECOMES PROMINENT NOVELIST

Glenway Wescott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Wescott, former residents of Kewaskum, but now residing at Ripon, has won himself into the world of fame in story writing. Glenway has been located in southern France for the past two years, where he got the inspiration to write stories, and won out in his chosen field of vocation. Wescott has just completed a new novel of the middle western scenes. A book of 450 pages. The manuscript has been placed in the hands of Harper & Brothers for publication next fall. The Milwaukee Journal of Monday's issue relates the following story of Mr. Wescott as a writer:

"Twenty minutes out of Norm in the south of France huddled along the Mediterranean against a backdrop of low, rocky mountains is the little fishing village of Ville Franche. So closely do the slopes of the mountains come to the water's edge that there is left little room for a town, however small it may be; the buildings give the appearance of having been built one above the other, as if, perhaps, those above had been elbowed out in the selling."

"No matter how you approach the town, whether by water, rail or road, you cannot hope to discern a certain little cottage backed so closely against the edge of the final steep descent to the sea that there is left only a very narrow strip of garden land. A few plants, just a few flowers, some plants growing out of crevices in the stone wall that keeps the house next door from tumbling down upon the narrow little garden below; that is all there is to the garden of this little cottage, so warmly resplendent with its yellowed and chipped plaster walls mottled by the shade from the foliage."

Such is the picture which Glenway Wescott gave us of his little home in France, and so vividly did he describe it that for the moment the deep snow outside the window of the Chicago suburban home where we called upon him was forgotten. * * * to be remembered the next instant with mixed feelings of loathing and angry impatience. Glenway Wescott, novelist and poet, was visiting in Chicago a few days before leaving for New York, from where he will sail for France early in February. He left France in December, arriving in New York just in time to deliver the manuscript for his new novel to his publisher before taking a train westward to spend Christmas with his parents at Ripon, Wis.

"This is the first time I've seen snow in two years," he told us with a wistful glance at a fire blazing brightly in the fireplace. "I like very much to see it, but I do not like particularly having it about."

"Ville Franche! From its name you might guess that it is a very cold little city, indeed," he said, a slight smile playing about his mouth. "And so it is, comparatively speaking. Thanks to its position, cloistered between the mountains and the sea, it is never terribly hot even in the summer, not nearly so warm as some of the villages nearby. Hence its name."

"Ville Franche is pretty much my own discovery; it is quite out of the usual path of the tourist and yet conveniently near Nice and the French winter resort. I find it a very congenial pleasant place to live and work. I lead a quiet, seldom disturbed existence there, working as I will according to the flexible schedule that I usually write several hours each afternoon, and then, after tea, go for a walk or down into the village with Jean Cocteau to a movie."

Jean Cocteau is his nearest neighbor. You know of him, of course, the leader in nearly every modernist movement in literature, art or music that has originated in France in the last few years. Just a few minutes' walk from Mr. Wescott's little cottage at Kary Garden's villa.

Wescott has been living at Ville Franche for two years, working, for the most part, on his new novel of the middle western scene. "It is a big book," he says; "450 pages. I have placed the manuscript in the hands of Harper & Brothers for publication next fall."

Mr. Wescott, not quite 26, has already published two volumes of poetry, "The Green" and "Natives of France," and several short stories, one of which, "In a Thicket," appeared in Richard J. O'Brien's anthology of "The Best Short Stories of 1924." Wescott began his career early, writing the first part of his novel "The Eye" when he was 17, which he wrote it before it appeared in the Dial under the title "The Eye."

Wescott was born in 1901 at Kewaskum, the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. P. Wescott. For nearly three centuries his ancestors have worked the soil of the United States, the first American ancestor having come to Rhode Island with Roger Williams and his colonists in the seventeenth century. Glenway is the first member of the family to break away from the yoke of the farm. "Wescott went to school at West Bend, Wis., and to high school at Waukesha, entering the University of Chicago after graduation.

"I had what might be called a Phi Beta Kappa mind," he said, "but had neither the desire nor the urge to devote myself to required subjects at school. Unfortunately," he continued, "I was allowed considerable freedom in choosing my courses, with the result that I chose only those subjects which I probably would have sought out for myself without the guidance of instructors."

"Wescott spent little more than a year at the university, identifying himself prominently with the Poetry club and making frequent contributions to Poetry, the magazine published in Chicago, and edited by Harriet Monroe. Illness then forced him to leave school. He went to live with a school friend at Santa Fe, N. M., later returning to Chicago for a short while and then leaving for Europe, paying his way, for the most part, by writing articles on the German situation for such magazines as the Dial, the New Republic and the Nation.

"I intend to return to the United States," said Wescott in answer to our question. "I want very much to return, and I shall live in New York or very near New York. Just at present, however there are several reasons why I am going back to France for at least another year. France remains the only country where classicism in literature is still practiced to any extent. And there is another very good, important reason for continuing to live in France. My income is by no means large enough to allow me to live as I wish in America. In France I can have a little place of my own, a cook at $12 a month to look after my material wants and have all the leisure which is necessary to my writing."

"Mr. Wescott has a pleasant, carefully cultivated voice, extremely easy to listen to. "I do not think I shall ever be able to return to the middle west to live. It is so—so cold to persons of my temperament, so determinedly intolerant of art and artists." Mr. Wescott professes deep admiration for the middle west, its bigness and aspirations. He feels himself a part of it and of its traditions. It is around the traditions of middle western folk that he built his novel which is to appear in the fall. He, himself, figures in the novel—"as a matter of convenience," he said, "the youth to whom the traditions are described and explained." No title has yet been chosen for the book, though it may be called "The Grandmothers," the name given a small portion of the volume as it appears in the Dial. "Immediately," explained Mr. Wescott, "the setting for the novel is Wisconsin."

"However successful my fall novel may be, I will not write another book around a similar theme," he said. "I put everything that I know about American traditions into 'The Grandmothers,' there is simply no material left over for another novel on that subject." In the spring of 1928 he is having published a volume of short stories to which he contemplates giving the title of "Goodby, Wisconsin." It will be his last work about the middle west for some time to come. F. V. V.

YOUNG MAN SUCCEEDS IN ATTEMPT ON LIFE

The home of Mr. and Mrs. William Windorf, located about a mile and a half south of Kewaskum was thrown into a turmoil of excitement on Thursday evening at about 7 o'clock, when George Windau of Milwaukee attempted to kill his one-year-old daughter, Doris May and wife, Mrs. Adela (nee Windorf), with a .32 caliber revolver, and then shot himself through the head. According to reports received by one of the members of the Windorf family, Mr. Windau and wife were married two years ago next May, and have since then made their home in Milwaukee, where Mr. Windau was employed at the carpenter trade. About a year ago Mr. Windau began to act queer about his home and started to abuse his wife and daughter lately, at intervals even threatened the life of his daughter. His ill treatment finally became so bad that his wife decided not to live with him any longer, and consequently came to the Windorf home on Thursday to make her home, making the trip via the bus which arrives here at 5:50 p. m. Windau, who was aware of the fact that his family had come here, followed up the bus from Milwaukee in a Ford car. When he reached the cross-road, a quarter of a mile northeast of the Windorf home, he parked the car along side the road, and walked across the field to the home where his wife and daughter had arrived about a half hour before. Spying his wife, who was holding the daughter in her arms at the stove in the dining room, he fired a shot through the window, the bullet hit the ring on Mrs. Windau's finger, then glanced off and struck her shoulder, grazing the shoulder blade. Windau then fired another shot, the bullet lodging in the window sill. Thinking probably that he had killed his wife and daughter, he then applied the weapon on himself by firing a bullet through his head. He died two hours after the fatal shot was fired.

Mrs. Windau's finger was so badly lacerated that it had to be amputated. The daughter escaped injury. Dr. Hausmann was summoned who attended the injured lady. Marshal George F. Brandt, Coroner Clemens Reinders from here and District Attorney Hy. P. Schmidt were called to the scene the case was declared to be that of attempted murder and suicide.

Had the first bullet not hit the ring on Mrs. Windau's finger, there is no doubt that she and her daughter would both have been killed.

Just what possessed Mr. Windau to fill treat his family, and finally end up by self-destruction, and an attempt to kill his family, is not known, and his wife is unable to account for it.

The remains were brought to the Clemens Reinders undertaking parlor where they laid in state until funeral arrangements were made, which upon the time of going to press had not been decided upon.

His wife and daughter deceased leaves to mourn, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Windau, to brothers and four sisters, all of 311 old.

"MARE NOSTRUM" AT OPERA HOUSE

"Mare Nostrum" (Our Sea), Rex Ingram's first production for Metro-Goldwyn for more than two years, will have its premier presentation at the Opera House Sunday, Feb. 6.

Filed on the original locations in Spain, France and Italy, so vividly described by Blasco Ibanez in his famous book, with Alice Terry and Antonio Moreno in the feature roles, "Mare Nostrum" has been one of the most widely discussed pictures made in recent years.

Ingram and his company traveled more than 10,000 miles from the time they left New York until the picture was completed in Nice, France.

"Mare Nostrum" is Blasco Ibanez's favorite of all the stories he has written. He refused to allow the picture to be produced until Rex Ingram was able to do it.

Ibanez and Ingram are the author-director combination responsible for the famous production "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse." Since that time they have been mutual admirers and close friends. Ingram was one of the first to read "Mare Nostrum" and express his enthusiasm for the story. At that time his health was bad and he was unable to undertake such a strenuous task as producing it in pictures. Ibanez held motion picture rights until Ingram was ready to do it.

Alice Terry and Antonio Moreno have the outstanding parts of their cinema careers in "Mare Nostrum." As Freya Talberg, the beautiful spy, Miss Terry is superb. Moreno makes the character of Ulysses Ferragut, the Spanish captain, actually live on the screen.

"Mare Nostrum" is a triumph for the author, director and two stars.

KEWASKUM HIGH SCHOOL COLUMN

Approval
Most mail order companies nowadays send goods on approval. Much work is done on approval. All goods are bought on the approval of the customer. Any mother knows that her child does work more willingly when stimulated by praise. Parents, the teachers of our school have taken over half of your job for nine months. Don't you think they would like a little approval? We do too. Since we have not had many visitors at our school this year we again extend our hearty invitation to have you visit our hall of fame and see the work we are doing with the help of our teachers.

—The Editor.

We have mastered the exams and are now ready to submit news once more. The report cards will be distributed Monday.

Mrs. Oscar Koerble and Mrs. Henry Quade visited our school Wednesday.

Miss Rosella Kintzel, a former high school student, visited us Wednesday.

The girls' basketball team played at West Bend last Friday evening and won with a score of 8 to 3. This was their first outside game.

Kewaskum Puts Skids Under West Bend
Last Friday night our basket ball boys journeyed to West Bend where they defeated the West Bend high school second team at the high school gym. The game was a thriller and was not decided until the final minutes of play.

When the game opened Kewaskum immediately tallied when Kohn sank a free throw. Schaefer succeeded in locating the ring and brought the score 7 to 0 in our favor. West Bend then woke up to the fact that they were being beaten and rallied with three successive field goals. The score at the end of the half was 7 to 6 with Kewaskum in the lead.

The second half opened with a field goal by Schaefer and a gift shot by Persenbacher. West Bend then succeeded in sinking a long shot that brought the score 10 to 8 at the close of the third quarter.

When the last quarter opened both teams rushed in with grim determination to win. Neither team scored until the last two minutes of play when our right guard Persenbacher made a short shot at the basket. The game ended after Kohn, our center, threw three field goals in the last minute and one-half of play. The final score was 18 to 8 in favor of Kewaskum.

The line-up for Kewaskum:
Center—Kohn.
Right guard—Persenbacher.
Sub—Martin and Heidel.
Delores Horning has been absent for the past few days due to a siege of chicken pox.

Friday ends the fifth month of school. Tests were given in the grades Thursday and Friday.

Mrs. Emil Backhaus visited the Intermediate room Thursday morning.

LOCAL BOY ORDAINED TO PRIESTHOOD SINGS FIRST MASS HERE WEDNESDAY

The Holy Trinity church of Kewaskum was the scene of a very impressive ceremony when the Reverend Clarence M. Stoffel sang his First Solemn Mass on Wednesday, February the second, at ten o'clock. He was assisted by the Rev. Philip Vogt, pastor of the church, as presbyter assistant, the Rev. Richard Schaefer of Milwaukee, as deacon; the Rev. Roman Stoffel of Sheboygan, brother of the newly ordained priest, as subdeacon and the Rev. John Grasser of Milwaukee, as master of ceremonies. The Rev. Peter Schaefer of Canute, Okla., preached the sermon. The vested visited clergy, servers and various sodalities escorted Rev. Stoffel and his bridal party from the parish house to the church.

Father Stoffel selected as his bride his cousin, little Miss Jeanette Walter of Hartford. She was attired in a dainty white georgette dress, trimmed with taffeta frills, over white satin. The tulle veil scalloped with point applique, formed a long train which fell from a Marguerite cap of lace and orange blossoms. She carried a wreath of orange blossoms on an embroidered white satin and lace pillow. The same wreath and pillow had been carried by Rev. Roman Stoffel's bride on the occasion of his First Solemn Mass, June 2, 1920.

Miss Mildred Stoffel, sister of Father Stoffel acted as the bride's train bearer. She was dressed in white georgette and wore a wrist bouquet of tiny rose buds and forget-me-not. Her head band consisted of pearls and floral buds in pastel shades. The bride's attendants, Miss Ardell Greiten and Miss Inez Stellflug, were dressed in white georgette over satin. They carried baskets of Columbia roses, styvea and orchid tulips.

The church was decorated with calla lilies, roses and ferns.

Following the church ceremony a sumptuous banquet was tendered Father Stoffel and his friends at the parish hall. Canary and orchid formed the color scheme in the decoration of the banquet room. The tables were adorned with bowls of summer flowers, candles and decorated cakes.

Those who came from out of town to attend the mass included Rev. Peter Schaefer of Canute, Okla., Revs. Richard Schaefer and J. Grasser of Milwaukee, Revs. Alex Zuern and Kessler of Slinger, Revs. Heyde and Bittl of West Bend, Revs. July and Bertram of Campbellsport, Rev. Beyer of St. Michaels, Rev. Reichel of St. Kilian, Rev. Roman Stoffel of Sheboygan, Mrs. Sibylla Zeitler of Kenosha, Miss Susan Redig of Chicago, Mrs. William Heitgen of Salem, South Dakota, Mrs. Elizabeth Redig, Edward and Michael Redig of Marshfield, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Schmitt, Lawrence Schmitt, Mrs. Ch. Traudt, Mrs. A. J. Spoerl, Mrs. Emily Grasser, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sommer, Mrs. Martha Marx, Leo Marx, Miss Helen Marx, Miss Anna Jung of Milwaukee, Barney Walter Sr., Mrs. B. M. Walter, Misses Susan, Louise and Rose Walter, John Walter and family of Hartford, Nicholas Stoffel and family and Henry Stoffel and family of Ailenton, Peter Stoffel and family and John Redig and family of West Bend and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Greiten of Grafton.

Father Stoffel is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Stoffel and the second one in the family to be ordained to the priesthood. He entered the St. Francis Seminary in September 1916, pursuing his philosophy and theology studies through the ensuing years. On Sunday, January 30, in the chapel of St. Francis Seminary, His Grace, the most Rev. Sebastian G. Messmer of Milwaukee conferred the Order of Priesthood.

Rev. Stoffel received his appointment from the archdiocesan chancery office and is assigned as assistant at S. S. Peter and Paul church at Milwaukee.

GREETINGS

The following little greeting was given by Ardell Greiten, one of the flower girls, composed by her mother, Mrs. Peter Greiten of Grafton:
2—I am rather small
Yet I have a greeting for all
Pray let me say
This sure is a happy day.

3—It fills our hearts with pleasure
And heaps of joy without measure
Young and old are here with greeting
On this joyful happy meeting.

3—It's the day we have all been longing for
I don't really know what to say
I am sure the memory of this great day
Will never, never fade away.

4—On this great feast
Our well wishes are all for the priest

My greetings to Father Stoffel dear.
Are best wishes for many and many a year.

5—May your life be always bright
Like the little stars at night
Health and happiness be ever thine
Comes from the little heart of mine

6—A prayer I will say each night
Dear God help to make his burdens light
May he always remember us in his prayers
That we have God's help in all our cares.

RAYMOND-KLEINHANS WEDDING

On Monday, at 9 a. m. at St. Matthew's church at Campbellsport, Miss Mildred Raymond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. I. Raymond and Clemens Kleinhans, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Kleinhans of Campbellsport, were united in marriage. Rev. B. July officiated. The couple were attended by Miss Bernice Raymond and Sylvester Kleinhans. The bride was dressed in a gown of a combination of lettuce and peppermint green crepe and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses. Miss Raymond wore a dress of athens rose crepe and wore a corsage bouquet of roses and sweetpeas. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents with only immediate relatives in attendance. Mr. and Mrs. Kleinhans will make their home in Campbellsport, where the groom has a garage business with his father.

MID-NIGHT TRAIN WILL STOP HERE SUNDAY

Train No. 121, north bound, which leaves Milwaukee at 11:25 p. m., and arrives at Kewaskum at 12:29 a. m., will stop here tomorrow, Sunday. This courtesy by officials of the railroad company, was granted this week, when it was learned that a number of local skat onkels are going to attend the annual mid-winter skat tournament held at the Auditorium, Milwaukee on Sunday afternoon and evening. This is indeed quite a favor by railroad officials and greatly appreciated by local skat onkels. Anyone who wishes to visit relatives or friends in the city on that day, and come home on the late train can avail themselves of this opportunity.

HAS PART OF THUMB BITTEN OFF BY HOG

John Opperman, a well known farmer of the town of Auburn, had the misfortune of losing the tip of his thumb on the left hand on Monday. The accident happened while Mr. Opperman was engaged in butchering pigs at his home. Mr. Opperman had stuck a pig when the animal became enraged and bit him in the thumb, lacerating it so badly that the tip had to be taken off by the attending physician. Though the unfortunate man is getting along nicely, he will, however, be laid up for several weeks.

CARD OF THANKS

We the undersigned desire to express our sincere thanks to all our neighbors, relatives and friends to the Holy Name society of St. Michaels, to the pall bearers, during our recent bereavement, the death and burial of our beloved husband and father, Math Schladweiler. To those who loaned cars, to Rev. J. F. Beyer, Rev. Vogt and Rev. Schladweiler for their consoling words, and to all who attended the funeral and gave spiritual bouquets.

CELEBRATE 10th WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Peterman of the town of Auburn, celebrated their tenth wedding anniversary in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends, at the Kewaskum Opera House last Saturday evening. The evening was enjoyably spent in dancing. At eleven o'clock a delicious lunch was served after which the guests continued dancing until an early hour in the morning.

SIMPLICITY OF RADIO

By POWELL CROSLY, JR. RADIO WAVES

For today's discussion we had better go down to the old swimming hole, for there we can study at first hand some analogies of important radio phenomena. We will pick up some stones from the edge of the pond, and toss them out into the clear, still water.

277 Stations Operating Outside United States

A total of 277 broadcasting stations are now being operated outside of the United States, as against more than 200 stations that are licensed in the United States, according to the most recent statistics of the electrical division of the Department of Commerce.

ENAMELED wire has been proved by many tests to be the best for use in building aerials. Bare wire becomes coated with soot, which causes corrosion electrical losses, and also wires absorb moisture that also causes losses.

REGARDING VOLTMETERS AND CURRENT REQUIRED

IT SHOULD always be remembered that a voltmeter requires considerable current for its operation and that it cannot be permanently connected across a battery with a "B" battery, as this will cause the battery to run down very quickly.

The LEADING LADY

GERALDINE BONNER

CHAPTER IV

STORY FROM THE START

While dependent upon the... Anne packed for a space, then gave it up.

She had heard nothing and thought it odd that he should be so suddenly gone.

He came forward, speaking as he approached. "Oh, could he have missed it?" she groined and cast up her eyes as if invoking the protection of heaven against such a calamity.

"You're Sure It Was Here?"

"You're sure it was here?" she asked. "I don't know what she means," Basset looked irritated.

"I can't tell you here. It's too dangerous, too many people coming and going." "It was Jim?"

"The change in her manner would have crushed the hope in any man. Bussell looked at her, his anxiety more alert than the girls, withdrew his arm from her clasp.

Irish Surnames Rank With World's Oldest

It will be news to many people that Irish surnames are the oldest in Europe except the Venetian, and moreover not a single one of the great Irish family names is taken from any trade or occupation—every one is derived from some noted ancestor, usually a prince or military commander.

"The garden." She was half-way across the room before he caught her up, and this time it was he who laid his hand on her arm.

"Sylbil, have some sense. You'll get us in wrong every way. You don't want any of these people to see us out there whispering together. That's just the place they'll go while they're waiting round for supper.

Bussell was not in the garden, but Shine was, whispering into view from the balcony end. He'd been loafing about, he said, just come up from the Point. They strolled about on the lanes of turf between the massed colors of parterre and border, the air languishingly sweet with the scent of the closing flowers.

"They talked about the moon and moonlight effects. Shine wanted to take some photographs after supper, get the pines against the sea and the silvered bulk of the Point, and he spoke of his flashlight picture, which they'd have as a remembrance of Gull Island. Anne said that was a jolly idea, but she didn't think they'd need a picture to remind them of their stay, and she and Bussell exchanged a smile.

"It was still on their lips when a sound came from outside, a single sharp detonation. It fell upon the evening's tranquil hush, sudden and startling, like something alien and unrelated.

"What was that?" said Anne. "Sounds like a shot," Shine thought. "Nobody has a pistol here and if he had he couldn't use it—one of the special stipulations Driscoll made when he lent us the place."

"Do you think that was a shot?" "Well, what else was it?" Mrs. Cornell, leaning comfortably on the railing, suggested that it might be an auto tire.

"This drew a snort from Miss Pinkney: 'How'd a motor get here—swim or fly?' Then to Bussell: 'Mr. Driscoll's very strict about that. He won't have the wild game or the gulls disturbed and—'

"I don't know what she means," Bussell looked irritated. "It's the first I've heard of it."

"I don't see what there was to shoot at, anyhow," came from Shine. "Looked to me when I was out there as if all the gulls had gone to bed."

"What's this about a pistol of yours?" Bussell asked. She answered as she walked across the room to a desk under the gallery: "It's the one Mr. Driscoll gave me, thinking it might be useful when I was here alone, opening or closing the house. I was to keep it loaded and have it handy, but I'd trust my tongue to get rid of any man and here it's laid with the poker chips."

NOVEL GOODS FOR SPORTS WEAR; SMILE APPROVAL ON FLOPPY BOWS

IT'S to be a gay, gay time in fashion town this coming season, according to signs and prophecies. Especially is this true in respect to clothes of sports classification, where color and design are conspiring to join in a giddy whirl of fascinating novelty.

As to the term, sports wear, the mode is making a very free use of it these days. The trend is to wear so-called sports attire for almost every occasion except the most formal. Surely, a sports frock as fetching as either of the models in this picture would give the woman of fashion perfect poise in the consciousness of being in gay human colors will animate many of the forthcoming frocks. The reign of the soft fabric frock is to continue, according to the forecast of leading fashionists. Which means that self-trimming will play an important part in the dress-styling program for spring.

Two Fetching Sports Frocks.

properly and charmingly costumed for almost any daytime event. There is an exquisite touch given to the blue crepe of which the frock to the left is made, in that the broad stripes have a sheen of silver metal in their weave.

Among who's who, and what's what, terminals which are exquisitely supple or alluringly sheer, the vogue for the self-trimmed frock bids fair to out- rival its past record.

Among self-trims heralded as important for spring, the big floppy bow takes precedence over almost every form of fabric-manipulation. "When in doubt" gather the soft, yielding fabric into a huge bow at the front or the side, and the mode promises a smile of approval.

Less butter is used on griddle cakes if a little is added to the sirup used on the cakes. Gum camphor in the silver chest will keep it from tarnishing. Clean the painted walls of the kitchen on a damp day or with the room steaming with hot water; this lessens the work by half.

Muriatic acid will clean sinks and all bathroom porcelain. Rinse thoroughly after using or it is apt to remove the glaze if left on too long. This acid is very poisonous and should be used with care.

A cupful of any kind of good flavored cheese finely chopped or grated, added to a white sauce is good over toast or as a sauce for scalloped onions, cabbage or potatoes.

Snur milk when used in cakes makes a more moist, tender and better flavored product, and it keeps longer. Use one-half teaspoonful of soda to a cupful of thick sour milk.

The Kitchen Cabinet

To everything there is a reason, and a time to every purpose under the heaven. A time to weep and a time to laugh; a time to mourn and a time to dance.—Ecclesiastes.

FOOD IN SEASON

A very nice dish that the German cooks prepare, which is very appetizing is: Red Cabbage.—Shred very fine and put on to cook in a little water, let cook slowly, adding salt, butter and the sirup from pickled peaches to season. Cook for three hours to have the cabbage well seasoned.

Baked Dried Peaches.—Soak one pound of dried peaches overnight. Place in a deep dish, sprinkle with cinnamon and pour over them one-fourth of a cupful of sirup or honey. Cover with cold water and bake until nearly tender, add one tablespoonful of butter and flank baking.

Potatoes With Cheese Sauce.—Boil potatoes in their jackets, peel and cool and then cut into slices or with a French cutter into balls. Scald one pint of milk. Cook together two tablespoonfuls of butter and flour, add salt and pepper and a little minced parsley. When the flour is well cooked with the butter add the milk, and when well cooked together add a cupful of finely flavored cheese.

Pimento Bisque.—This is such a pretty soup that it will do for state occasions. Put through a ricer one can of pimentos, add two teaspoonfuls of salt, one-half teaspoonful of tabasco sauce, one-half cupful of cream and three pints of chicken stock. Boil up before adding the cream. Serve in cups.

Cream of Chestnuts.—Peel and blanch three cupfuls of large chestnuts. Cook for half an hour in boiling water to cover, add two cupfuls of chicken stock and cook until the nuts are tender, then rub through a sieve and reheat, adding salt, pepper and butter to season. Serve with hot, split and buttered toasted crackers. Just before serving add two cupfuls of boiling cream.

Benares Salad.—Grate fresh coconut, add twice the measure of finely diced apple, a tablespoonful each of chopped red pepper and onion, salt, cayenne to season and serve on lettuce with French dressing. Use the coconut milk with the oil and vinegar in making the dressing.

Mock Terrapin.—Take a pound and a half of veal cut into small pieces after cooking until tender. Add a small bunch of fennel, two hard-cooked eggs diced, salt, pepper and grated onion to taste. Prepare a white sauce, using a pint of milk, four tablespoonfuls each of flour and butter cooked together before the milk is added. Season well with salt and pepper and pour over the prepared meat. Serve with toasted bread.

Helpful Hints. Vegetables because of their bulk, form a large part of our necessary food. Vegetables are rich in mineral salts and acids as well as the growth determining vitamins called vitamins, which are invaluable in the diet of the child at any time.

Fried cornmeal mush is a food "which will stay by" until another meal. Bits of chopped meat, chicken or dried fruits added to the mush will make it more tasty and nourishing. Cut into slices and fry for breakfast.

Less butter is used on griddle cakes if a little is added to the sirup used on the cakes. Gum camphor in the silver chest will keep it from tarnishing. Clean the painted walls of the kitchen on a damp day or with the room steaming with hot water; this lessens the work by half.

A little paraffin rubbed over the kitchen range will keep it from getting rusty. Always save all the paraffin from the tops of jelly glasses, wash it carefully and it is ready to melt and use again.

Muriatic acid will clean sinks and all bathroom porcelain. Rinse thoroughly after using or it is apt to remove the glaze if left on too long. This acid is very poisonous and should be used with care.

A cupful of any kind of good flavored cheese finely chopped or grated, added to a white sauce is good over toast or as a sauce for scalloped onions, cabbage or potatoes.

Snur milk when used in cakes makes a more moist, tender and better flavored product, and it keeps longer. Use one-half teaspoonful of soda to a cupful of thick sour milk.

To keep a juicy pie from boiling over add a small paper funnel in the opening. The juice will boil up in this and go back into the pie. Make over worn tablecloths and put away for emergency cases.

When roasting chicken place it in the roasting pan breast side down and baste frequently. The juices will season the breast and make it better flavored. Can tops are easily ruined by using a knife to cut round the edges when opening the can.

Salts Fine for Aching Kidneys

When Back Hurts Flush Your Kidneys as You Clean Your Bowels

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine.

This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

Turks Wearing Gloves As the result of the adoption in Turkey of modern European dress, swarthy Turks are wearing gloves. Other articles of modern wearing apparel gradually have appeared on the streets of Constantinople, but the favor with which the hand-coverings were received was surprising.

For One-Piece Dress Gray is the color chosen for an effective one-piece dress of Rasika, the skirt having a sort of apron back, while the front section is banded at the border with red, white and black stripes of supple leather.

Just a Suggestion Paris appreciates the charm of delicacy, and for that reason softens hem and necklines with embroidered garlands in the most inconspicuous and lovely tints.

Ribbon Trimmings on Dresses Very smart sport frocks for the younger girl are made of light colored jersey and are trimmed with grosgrain ribbon in three or four tone combination. One model in yellow jersey is trimmed with beige, brown, henna and black ribbons, which give the effect of stripes.

"Peasant" Frocks Paris is very fond of peasant-like frocks where the blouse, sleeves and skirts are plaited with tiny flat plaits.

Self-Trimming Much in Favor In sports fabrics, stripes are in the vanguard. At the same time, however, that the mode is fairly shouting a spring song of stripes, stripes, stripes, to the world, appears a new star in the firmament of fashionable fabrics—plaid pongee silk. There are shantung and rayon fabrics also in such gay stripings as bright green on a background in high shades of orange.

Prints of every description are the forecast for the ensuing months. Solid color used with prints is the big idea, also several solid tones used together. Especially will crepes and fine flannels be thus fashioned, that is, by combining different shades of the same material in a most ornamental way.

FARMER WINS GRAPE PICKING ASSAULT SUIT
An assault and battery case involving less than a bushel of grapes, that has been in the courts since Sept. 13, 1925, was finally settled recently by Judge T. W. Parkinson who dismissed the case, stating that the defendant, Thomas Tague, a farmer in the town of Lisbon acted in self defense. In commenting on the facts of the case Judge Parkinson declared it involved the old problem of city people invading the country farms and stealing a farmer's produce. Grapes on the side of the road, he said, are not ownerless although they do hang there without protection. They belong to the farmer whose land they grow on.—Menomonee Falls News.

A New Lincoln Letter

Executive Mansion,

Washington, December 23, 1862.

Dear Fanny

It is with deep grief that I learn of the death of your kind and brave father; and especially, that it is affecting your young heart beyond what is common in such cases. In this sad world of ours, sorrow comes to all; and to the young, it comes with bittered agony, because it takes them unawares. The older have learned to ever expect it. I am anxious to afford some alleviation of your present distress. Perfect relief is not possible, except with time. You can not now realize that you will ever feel better. Is not this so? And yet it is a mistake. You are sure to be happy again. To know this, which is certainly true, will make you some less miserable now. I have had experience enough to know what I say; and you need only to believe it, to feel better at once. The memory of your dear father, instead of an agony, will yet be a sweet feeling in your heart, of a pure, and holier sort than you have known before. Please present my kindest regards to your affectionate mother. Your sincere friend, A. Lincoln.

Miss Fanny McCullough.

By ELMO S. WATSON

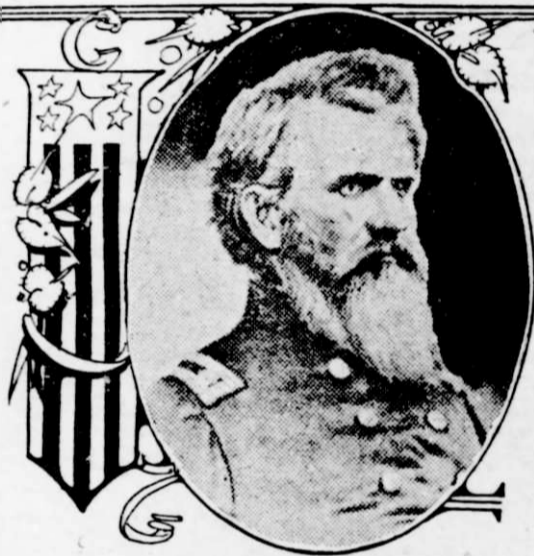

YEAR by year the fame of Abraham Lincoln grows and each succeeding year sees new accessions to the nation's priceless store of Lincolniana. Amazing as is the mass of this material accumulated in the comparatively brief time that has elapsed since Secretary Stanton exclaimed, "Now he belongs to the ages!" it is apparent that, if we are to judge by the discoveries of the last few years, there is still much to be learned before the last word on the career of this one of the world's truly great can be written. Last year was, if anything, rather in the matter of new light being thrown upon the life of Lincoln than many which have preceded it, and scarcely a month passed that did not bring some event which seemed to recall his name and fame. In April congress authorized the purchase of the famous Oldroyd collection of Lincoln memorabilia which for a number of years have been preserved by Osborn H. Oldroyd in the house on Tenth street in Washington, where Lincoln was carried from Ford's theater on the fatal night of April 14, 1865, and where he died a short time later. The tragedy of that evening was recalled again last November when the bust in which John Wilkes Booth stabbed the horse on which he made his escape was put on the auction block by the War department and sold to a real estate operator.

In May, 1925, Robert T. Lincoln, the ninety-year-old son of the Civil war President, presented to the congressional library a trunk, the contents of which it is believed, is a veritable gold mine of Lincoln material. An air of mystery has hung about the trunk for years and the secret of what it contains has been steadfastly kept by Robert Lincoln, despite all the efforts by biographers of Lincoln to make use of the contents of the trunk to contain. The gift to the congressional library was made with the provision that under no circumstances was the trunk to be opened until 25 years after Robert Lincoln's death. That means that Lincoln scholars will have to wait until 1951 before they can delve into the treasures of information which they believe this receptacle holds. The death of Robert T. Lincoln on July 23, 1925, was another outstanding event of Lincoln interest last year, since his passing meant that the male line of the Lincoln family was ended.

Others were the publication from time to time during the year of the researches by Rev. William E. Barton which dispelled many of the myths about Lincoln, including the circumstances surrounding the Bixby letter, Lincoln's part in the removal of William Scott, the "stealing sentence," some interesting facts concerning the Gettysburg address and the controversy over whether Lincoln ever said, "You can fool some of the people all the time; all the people some of the time; but you can't fool all the people all the time." No less important was the publication of Carl Sandburg's two-volume study of "Abraham Lincoln, The Prairie Years," in which appeared some 45 letters and papers in Lincoln's handwriting, which had never before been published.

Recently there has come to light in Bloomington, Ill., a city which is closely associated with the early career of the Great Emancipator, another Lincoln letter, reproduced above, which is here made public for the first time. It was written to Miss Fanny McCullough of Bloomington soon after the death of her father, Lieut. Col. William McCullough of the Fourth Illinois cavalry, who was killed near Coffeyville, Miss., December 5, 1862. Colonel McCullough, a pioneer of the Prairie state, was born in Kentucky in 1812 and came to McLean county in 1826. At the outbreak of the Blackhawk war in 1832 three companies of mounted volunteers were raised in McLean county for service against the Indians and McCullough was a member of the first company. The first got its fill of fighting savages on May 14, 1832, when the Indian leader defeated Major Stillman's command of 275 men in a brief engagement popularly and ironically known as "Stillman's Run."

That was an affair which reflected but little credit upon the white men, since it was precipitated when Stillman's command violated one of the cardinal principles of warfare by seizing three young warriors whom Blackhawk had sent to Stillman's camp under a flag of truce. Enraged by this, the Indian leader immediately attacked. Stillman's force had to retreat. Then the retreat became a rout. Of it one historian has written: "The gallant 275 ineffectually turned tail and fled. The precipitation of the rout was only equalled by its completeness. Madly they dashed through their own camp, the contents of which were abandoned. Neither swamps nor swollen streams served to check the impetuosity of their retreat. Singly and in squads the fugitives arrived at Dixon, 30 miles away, from whence many of them continued their mad gallop 40 or 50 miles away to their homes. It was another of the innumerable instances of the panic of brave but undisciplined men—a thing that is liable to happen to the bravest men under untutored circumstances."

Lieut.-Col. William McCullough

Of the few who performed at all creditably in this affair, so far as there is any record, McCullough was one. The day before the fight he had lost his gun, but during the engagement, it is said, he captured another from an Indian. A friend who knew him during the Civil war and who usually referred to him as "a man of reckless bravery," in commenting upon this fact, said, "Armed or unarmed, I cannot conceive of William McCullough as afraid of anyone, savage or civilized." This bears out the statement that when Captain Covell of the First, and all the confusion of the retreat, tried to get his men to make a stand, McCullough was one of the ten soldiers who rallied around their leader in his vain attempt to stem the rout.

After the close of the brief Indian war, McCullough returned to McLean county. In the fall of 1840 he was elected sheriff, an office which he held for three successive terms. He was next elected circuit clerk and held that office four successive terms. It was during this time that he probably met Lincoln, as there is no record of their having met during the Blackhawk war. At the outbreak of the Civil war, McCullough was exempt from service because of the loss of his right arm (which had been torn off in a threshing machine in 1840), defective sight in one eye and his age. But he was determined to serve and in August, 1861, he obtained permission from President Lincoln to be mustered into the service as lieutenant colonel of the Fourth Illinois cavalry. "William McCullough was the ideal cavalryman," writes one historian. "He was a superb horseman of martial appearance, with a full, resonant voice, white hair and beard, a natural leader of men, a courage that feared no one; watchful, careful of his men, he soon became one of General Grant's most trusted officers."

He took part in the capture of Fort Henry and Fort Donelson, and went through the battles of Shiloh and Corinth. After entering Corinth the Fourth cavalry, which was a part of the advance guard of General Sherman's army, was sent toward the west, reaching Memphis in August, 1862. In September the regiment moved to Trenton where it remained on scouting duty until the movement down the line of the Mobile and Ohio and the Mississippi Central began when it became a part of a brigade of cavalry commanded by Colonel Lee of the Seventh Kansas. This brigade struck the forces of the Confederate generals Van Dorn and Price near Holly Springs and followed them to Coffeyville. There the Confederates made a stand and the cavalry brigade began to retreat. The Fourth was covering the retreat. On the evening of December 5, 1862, the Confederates appeared on both sides of the rear guard and demanded its surrender. McCullough's reply was an emphatic refusal to which the men in gray responded with a volley of musketry. The colonel was killed instantly, but his command escaped. It was this incident which inspired the Lincoln letter to Colonel McCullough's daughter, Fanny. The letter follows:

EXECUTIVE MANSION

Dear Fanny: It is with deep grief that I learn of the death of your kind and brave father; and especially, that it is affecting your young heart beyond what is common in such cases. In this sad world of ours, sorrow comes to all; and to the young, it comes with bittered agony, because it takes them unawares. The older have learned to ever expect it. I am anxious to afford some alleviation of your present distress. Perfect relief is not possible, except with time. You cannot now realize that you will ever feel better. Is not this so? And yet it is a mistake. You are sure to be happy again. To know this, which is certainly true, will make you some less miserable now. The memory of your dear father, instead of an agony, will yet be a sweet feeling in your heart, of a pure, and holier sort than you have known before. Please present my kindest regards to your affectionate mother. Your sincere friend, A. LINCOLN.

Miss Fanny McCullough.

This letter, revealing as it does the great heart of the man who in the darkest days of his career as President of a nation engaged in civil war, could forget the cares of state long enough to write a letter of sympathy to the daughter of an old-time friend, is strikingly similar in tone to the Bixby letter, which it antedates by nearly two years. A comparison of the two shows the same tenderness of spirit, the same sincere sympathy and the simple, direct phraseology which marks so many of the utterances of Abraham Lincoln and makes them among the best examples of noble English prose ever written. The text of the Bixby letter follows:

EXECUTIVE MANSION

Washington, November 21, 1864

To Mrs. Bixby, Boston, Mass.

I have been shown in the files of the War department a statement of the Adjutant General of Massachusetts that you are the mother of five sons who died gloriously on the field of battle. I feel how weak and fruitless must be any words of mine which should attempt to beguile you of the grief of a loss so overwhelming. But I cannot refrain from tendering to you the consolation that may be found in the thanks of the Republic they died to save. I pray that our Heavenly Father may assuage the anguish of your bereavement, and leave only the cherished memory of the loved and lost, and the solemn pride that must be yours to have laid so costly a sacrifice upon the altar of freedom. Yours very sincerely and respectfully, A. LINCOLN.

The Fanny McCullough, to whom this new Lincoln letter was written, afterwards became the wife of Frank D. Orme. Her sister, Nannie L. McCullough, also married into the Orme family, a family of soldiers. Her husband was Gen. William W. Orme who entered the Union army as colonel of the Ninety-fourth Illinois infantry and whose distinguished services, especially at the siege of Vicksburg where he contracted the disease which brought about his death soon after the close of the war, made him a brigadier general. Fanny Orme died in Washington, D. C., in 1920, and upon her death the Lincoln letter was given to the present owner, Mrs. Bernadine Orme Smith of Normal, Ill. (the "twin city" of Bloomington), a daughter of Gen. William W. Orme and Nannie McCullough Orme.

Good Tips for Home Gardener

Judicious Use of Manure and Fertilizer Is of Much Importance.

As he prepares his seed-bed for planting, the wise home gardener bears in mind that nothing is more important in making every foot of the garden yield its best than the judicious use of manure and fertilizer. Straw manure is preferred to all others. Cow and hog manure are classed as "cool" manures, and although the plant food is not as readily available as in horse manure, it will give very good results. Poultry and sheep manure are dubbed "hot" manures, and should be applied very cautiously on root or fruit crops.

When fresh manure is used, it should be plowed under to a depth of six to eight inches and entirely covered with earth. On the other hand, if the manure is well-rotted, only half should be plowed under, the other half broadcast and raked into the surface.

Commercial Fertilizers. If you want the best all-around fertilizer, get what is generally known as either the 4-8-4 or the 3-3-3. The term "4-8-4" simply means that the fertilizer contains 4 per cent ammonia, 8 per cent of phosphoric acid and 4 per cent of potash. In all fertilizers, nitrogen is the first, phosphoric acid the second and potash the third number.

One pound to every 25 square feet of garden surface is the average application of commercial fertilizer. Half of this should be broadcast and raked into the surface ground and the other half applied under the row, or hill, as the case may be.

Either nitrate of soda or sulphate of ammonia is used to give a larger leaf growth on those vegetables which produce edible leaves, such as lettuce, endive and parsley. Small applications of about one teaspoonful scattered around each plant of tomatoes, cabbage, eggplants, etc., or side-dressed celery, will give a better growth in stalk and better colored leaves.

Where Lime Comes In. Lime should never be used in direct contact with the manure, because it has a tendency to liberate the nitrogen faster than plants can use it. Practically all garden soils need lime, however, and would be benefited by about ten pounds for each 100 square feet. Any finely pulverized lime is satisfactory for this. The right time to apply it is after the manure has been plowed under. Broadcast and rake it into the surface soil.

Artificial Light and Heat Good for Fowls

Artificial heat is the latest modern addition to poultry management that may prove successful. Authorities say practical poultrymen have kept up egg production during cold snaps by taking the chill off the air and preventing the drinking water from freezing.

Without lights the hens can only put in about half the time they have in the summer to consume feed. Artificial lighting methods have broken the long periods of idleness from darkness to daylight. Given more working hours, the hen has responded with a larger egg production for the year. The increase is obtained during the winter season when eggs are least plentiful.

An all-mash method of feeding poultry has been reported favorably. The dry feeds are all crushed or ground and mixed in proper proportions and fed in a hopper to which the hens have access.

KEEP SILAGE FROM FREEZING BY EXERCISING RIGHT CARE

First Thing to Do Is to Keep Silo Tight.

Many farmers who have trouble with silage freezing blame the trouble on the type of silo, but careful observers believe that there is no noticeable difference among silos as to freezing and that the trouble is due largely to the way the silo and silage are managed. How can freezing be prevented?

First of all, the silo must be kept tight, so that the air above the silage will not act as a sort of insulation. The silo roof must be tight, the windows kept closed, the silo doors put back in place as the silage is fed down, only one or two doors being left open at the top of the silage, and these openings must be kept closed with heavy blankets or rugs or sacks of straw which can be pulled into place when leaving the silo. A cover over the bottom of the chute will also help.

Then the silage must be handled properly. It should be kept higher in the center and should be broken loose from the walls down two or three inches at the close of each feeding period. Two or three heavy rugs or blankets spread over the silage, especially around the walls, will help a great deal in preventing freezing from one period to the next. Any small amount of frozen silage pulled loose from the wall should be put at the center of the silo and covered with a rag or carpet or tarpaulin, and the natural heat from the silage will usually thaw it out before the next feeding period. It should be remembered that the large body of silage has quite a lot of heat and that freezing from the walls is not very deep or very severe so long as this heat is kept from escaping upward.

Well Grown Pullets Are Best for Eggs in Winter

Winter egg production is largely obtained from the pullets that are well grown, properly fed and carrying a surplus of flesh. Old hens that have produced eggs for one laying year normally rest during the winter and start laying in February and March, advises D. C. Henderson, extension poultry specialist at South Dakota state college.

Mr. Henderson advises keeping a flock consisting of two-thirds pullets and one-third hens. The pullets should be forced for winter egg production through liberal mash feeding. The old hens should be allowed to rest during the winter and kept for the production of hatching eggs next spring.

Green Feeds Essential for Health of Poultry

During the last cold spells of the season many cases of leg weakness in hens that have been laying heavily are reported. These are usually traceable to the fact that the owner has run out of green food. Such foods contain what is technically known as vitamins. When they are exhausted from the bird's body she begins to suffer. If green feed is given the bird will soon recover. Cabbage, sprouted grains or even stunted alfalfa leaves are beneficial.—O. C. Krueh, Poultry Specialist, Colorado Agricultural College.

Select Vigorous Males

In selecting males to be retained as breeders, vigor should be one of the primary considerations. The vigor of the male, as well as the female, will be reflected in the hatchability of the eggs and the livability of the chicks. Although early maturity should be sought for in the heavier breeds, it should not be emphasized to the detriment of size. Males which mature exceptionally early may be undersized individuals and not desirable for breeding.

Study Clover Market

Before a grower allows a large acreage of sweet clover to produce need he should secure all possible information regarding the market for such seed. Because of the seeding habits of the sweet clover plant, supplies of this seed can be very rapidly built up. Sweet clover seed competes with red clover, and to a certain extent with alfalfa and alsike clover, as the legume crop in the rotation. Thus the supplies and prices of these crops have an influence on the demand.

Good Fences Save Money

One of the chief causes of loss and difficulty in hog production is the unsatisfactory condition of the farm fences. It is safe to say that this is one of the outstanding causes of disagreement and annoyance between neighbors. A good hog-tight woven wire fence, put up in such a manner that it will stay, is practical and means a saving in trouble and labor. Probably no one thing is more vital in proper fence construction than the placing of the corner posts.

Farm Hints

It's easy to haul lime in winter on a sled.

High priced protein feeds mean that we should grow more alfalfa and clover.

More than twenty million forest trees were planted in New York state during 1926.

Farmers, being wood users, should be tree growers. They can grow their own coal in a woodlot.

Look out for clover and alfalfa seed that is dyed red or green. Either it is not hardy in this climate or its hardness is not known.

Vegetable protein such as is contained in cottonseed meal is best for cattle and sheep, while the animal protein of tankage is best for hogs.

Healing Dressing for Pets With Sore Feet

Colic and hunting dogs often become sore-footed when they have run far on hard, dry, rough or sun ground. There is a feverish condition and the inflammation gives rise to a scalding of the foot and intense itching and pain. The dog persistently licks and even bites the affected parts, and aggravates the irritation, so increasing the infection. This condition has been troublesome to treat, as a dog promptly licks off any medication applied and ends a position or tears off ointment and bandage dressings, but there is a good plan of treating such conditions and the dog is kept from licking or disturbing the part by the use and smell of the "dressing" used. It consists in a mixture of pine tar, sweet oil and oil of tar. Rub the tar, stir in the oil of tar and then stir in the flowers of sulphur, while the tar is yet warm and thinned, immerse the sore feet in the mixture two or three days, and it may also be applied to any mucky or sore spot of the skin with good effect.

Good St. Valentine, According to Legend

Saint Valentine, ancient legend says, was a Christian martyr of the reign of the emperor Claudius. He was beaten to death in the year 278 A. D. His festival was observed on February 14. The custom of sending valentines had its origin in a heathen practice connected with the worship of Juno.

The first valentines ever penned, tradition asserts, were about 60 love poems composed by Charles, duke of Orleans, grandson of Charles V of France, father of Louis XII, an uncle of Francis I, during his 25 years' imprisonment in the Tower of London. It was at the battle of Agincourt in 1415 that he was taken after a fierce charge in a vain attempt to retrieve the fortunes of the day—"dragged wounded from among the dead"—and kept a prisoner in the Tower of London until ransomed for 300,000 crowns. An American girl, Miss Esther A. Howland, made the first fancy paper valentine in this country and thereby laid the foundation for a business representing hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Fancy valentines were made in England about 1825, and one of these was sent to Miss Howland in 1849. Miss Howland lived in Worcester, Mass., where her father and three brothers conducted a large stationery business. She and her friends were so well pleased with the valentine that Mr. Howland determined to import a few valentines from England. When they arrived Miss Howland became convinced she could improve upon them. She made a dozen or more designs and asked her brother, who traveled for the firm, to take the samples with him on his next trip and see if he could obtain orders for them. He surprised his sister by handing her orders amounting to $5,000 on his return. That was the beginning of a large valentine business.

In Later Years of Life Good Elimination is More Than Ever Important.

AS we grow older, there is apt to be a gradual slowing up of bodily functions. The kidneys are the blood filters. Proper function cleanses the blood stream thoroughly. Sluggish function is apt to permit some retention of uric acid and other poisons. This tends to make one tired, listless and achy—to have drowsy headaches and dizziness and perhaps a toxic headache. That the kidneys are not functioning properly is often shown by scanty or burning passages. Elderly people recommend Doan's Pills in this condition. This tested diuretic is endorsed the country over. Ask your neighbor!
