BERTHA MEINECKE

After a lingering illness of three weeks, Mrs. Bertha Meinecke, beloved wife of Carl Meinecke Sr., and a prominent citizen of Kewaskum, passed away in death at the home of her son Carl Jr. on Sunday, May 8, 1927, at 1:15 a. m. She was born June 2, 1858 in the town of Brandenburg, Germany. On Oct. 12, 1879 she was married to Carl Meinecke in Meyersburg, Germany. In April 1892 the couple immigrated to America and settled in Milwaukee where they lived until 1896, when they moved to Cecil, Shawano county, Wis., where they resided until 1900 when they came to Kewaskum, where they have since made their home. 11 children were born to this union of whom Anna died June 12, 1915 and Alma (Mrs. Joe Bennett) died Aug. 21, 1920. Mrs. Meinecke was a true wife and a mother and a christian lady. One who labored hard for the welfare and comfort of her family. During her three year illness she suffered much pain, all of which she endured patiently, waiting for the hour to come when she could answer the final call to relieve her from all pain. Mrs. Meinecke was a lady who attended strictly to her household duties until last Sept. when her condition became such that she no longer could attend to the same, since which time she had to be nursed and cared for by her family. During her illness she was attended by Dr. H. H. Hoyer, who was called in to attend to her. Her many friends are grieved to learn of her death and join in extending heartfelt sympathy to the surviving relatives. The funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from the home and at 2:00 o'clock in the Peace Evangelical church. Rev. Ernst Irian officiated. ## REETHS PLAYERS ARE IN TOWN

Fred Reeths and the various members of his company arrived in Kewaskum Monday and the old favorites who were with the company last year have been busy between rehearsals renewing the friendships they made last year. There will be several new faces among the company this season. The scenic artist has been busy day and night building new scenery and Fred promises a brand new show in every particular when the curtain rises on their initial performance at the Kewaskum Opera House, Thursday evening, May 19th. The Legion boys all report excellent sales for the tickets and it looks as though the engagement would be a huge financial success for them.

Among the leading members of the company this season are Miss Ethel Castle, Sylvia Copeland, Maybelle Fowler, Clyde Mix (no relation to Tom), Frank MacDonald, Edward McArthur, Ray Roach and smiling Fred Reeths himself. Mr. Reeths is very enthusiastic over the company he has been able to secure this season as well as the plays, all of which he holds the exclusive producing rights for his territory. The opening offering will be "The Awakening," a play so true to life that a metropolitan critic during his run said of it, "It is the most human play New York has seen in many seasons." It has everything that goes to afford an evening of real and wholesome entertainment, comedy, pathos, story, plot and punch.

Friday evening the company will offer another proven success "Keep to the Right." The plays for the other two evenings of the company's engagement will be announced later. This will be the only opportunity to see the Reeths players this season as they positively will not appear in Kewaskum in their tent theatre this summer.

BOY KILLED BY AUTO AT WEST BEND

Last Monday evening, Russell, 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dean of West Bend, was struck by an auto, in that city, and so badly injured that he died on Tuesday morning. The accident happened while Russell and some of his friends were at play in front of the home of his grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. Aug. Oelke, when a large Packard car came from the north, the boy was struck by the same when he dashed out into the street, he in some way became wedged in the front right frame. Instead of the occupants stopping they sped on, carrying the boy a mile and a half south, when they stopped in front of the Wm. Peters residence near the West Bend Concrete Products Co.'s plant, where there is also a small filling station owned by D. W. Hoepfer. Mrs. Hoepfer, thinking that some one wanted to buy gasoline stepped out the car started and sped away. The occupants had stopped long enough to release the boy. The children who played with the boy told the neighbors what had happened, and Geo. Wiedemeyer followed the fleeing car, by so doing found the boy lying by the roadside. Dr. Urkart was summoned who took the injured lad to the sanitarium at West Bend. Officials were notified throughout this section of the state. Patrolman Karnatz who had received the notice stopped a Packard car at 27th and Center street, Milwaukee, questioned the men, who admitted having come through West Bend. They gave their names as George Becher, aged about 22 years, and Marvin Hubbard, aged about 28 years, both residents of Green Bay. They denied having hit anybody. From general appearances the men are held as suspects and were brought to West Bend on Tuesday afternoon and locked up in the county jail to await a hearing in Justice Hayden's court on May 19.

SENIOR CLASS PLAY MAY 26

The Seniors of the Kewaskum High School have decided to present their class play, "The House of a Thousand Thrills" on Thursday evening, May 26, 1927. The play certainly lives up to its name. The scene takes place on Long Island at the home of the aristocratic Mrs. Carlton. Do not mistake me, for Mrs. Carlton is not what we might call a "high brow" aristocrat, but a kind, charming, dear old lady. One might think that such a wild panorama of unexpected incidents would wreck the dear lady's nerves. But no, she accepts them calmly and cheerfully, even so cheerfully that one impudent grandchild calls her an old warhorse. There is not a single weak role in the cast. It contains eleven characters. Preparations are being made for new scenery.

Doings at Our State Capital

Motorists of Wisconsin must be licensed by the state before they can drive their automobiles under provisions of a bill passed by the senate.

No person under 16 years of age or who is mentally or physically unfit will be entitled to a license under the provisions of the bill. The licenses are to be issued by the secretary of state upon application and are subject to revocation when a driver is arrested for violation of motor laws.

With only one senator raising his voice in protest, the senate speedily engrossed Senator Caldwell's bill which would increase the state gasoline tax from 2 to 3 cents per gallon.

Senator Goodland, Racine, cast the lone vote against engrossment.

In addition to doubling the gasoline tax, the bill lowers automobile licenses to a flat rate of $5 each, trucks being taxed on a graduated scale.

The proposal to reduce the license fee for pleasure cars to a flat $5 per car basis will mean about the same annual tax paid by Wisconsin auto owners, friends of the bill believe.

The assembly has concurred in a senate amendment setting Mar. 15 as the last date upon which motorists may use license plates for the previous year.

Gov. Zimmerman has announced his veto of Assemblyman Beggs' bill providing for sleigh runners the same width as the distance between automobile wheels.

The governor said the bill would be discriminatory because it only prohibited the sale of the narrow-gauge sleighs by Wisconsin manufacturers and ineffective because it had no provision prohibiting the use of the narrow sleds.

Veterans of the World war will be eligible for entry in the Wisconsin veterans' home, if Gov. Zimmerman signs a senate bill passed by the assembly. Previously only veterans of other wars were admitted.

The assembly also passed the bill allowing indemnities for farmers owning steers under two years that are condemned under the bovine tuberculosis law.

A minimum income tax bill introduced by Senator Keppe met with the favor of the senate Thursday when that house voted to engross the bill by a generous margin.

The senate concurred in Assemblyman Thomas Dugan's bill providing that all persons arrested for crimes involving moral turpitude be subject to medical examinations.

The senate voted, 15 to 14, to kill the Tims bill, which would restore the income tax to a status similar to that which existed prior to the passage of the Blaine tax in 1925.

The senate carried another attempt to repeal certain personal property taxes when it killed by a vote of 17 to 14 a bill by Senator Schulman to exempt farm animals from taxation.

The assembly refused to concur in the bill passed by the senate which would have legalized the employment of women as clerks in the legislature.

Opponents declared that legislative employees often are forced to work twelve to sixteen hours per day, which would violate the law prohibiting more than an eight-hour day for women.

The law relating to hiring of legislative employees specifically bars women and an attorney general's opinion has held that the equal rights law did not overcome this specified ban.

The lower house killed the Schulman bill to reorganize the highway commission and create a commission of three members, appointed by the governor and confirmed by the senate.

The Duncan bill, requiring a physical examination of persons involved in crimes of moral turpitude, was approved by the senate. The senate gave its final approval to the bill making the salary of the governor $7,500, commencing with the next term.

Manitowish—A separation of 45 years ended here when Mrs. Isaac Cohen, Chicago, arrived to visit her sister, Mrs. Sam Swerdlow, who had been involuntarily divided in 1882 in Egypt.

Milwaukee—Milwaukee's false alarm "bug" came out of retirement again and shattered a previous record.

Ontario—John Manley shot and killed his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Arnoe Manley, wounded his wife and then committed suicide with a small caliber rifle.

STORMS TAKE MANY LIVES IN 4 STATES

Scores Are Killed and Hurt in Missouri, Texas, Arkansas and Illinois.

Poplar Bluff, Mo.—Fifty-four persons were killed and 100 injured in a tornado which swept through the business section here.

Many bodies were taken to morgues and others were removed to homes. The tornado destroyed virtually every building in an area four blocks wide and four or five blocks long.

Property damage was estimated well over $1,000,000. The city was in darkness and the cries of injured men, women, and children could be heard from all parts of the devastated section.

The tornado hit like a bullet. Buildings of large size were crumpled as though they were paper and trees were pulled from the earth and hurled into the air.

Pitiful scenes were enacted on the streets. The injured and homeless, no place to turn, were climbing through the wreckage while a downpour of rain gave no sign of a letup.

St. Louis, Mo.—Gov. Sam A. Baker called out two companies of Missouri National Guardsmen for patrol duty in Poplar Bluff.

Little Rock, Ark.—With seventy known dead, the casualty list from a series of tornadoes which swept from the south central portion to the northwestern part of Arkansas was growing.

Reports coming in added gravity to the disaster as town after town reported dead, injured, and property destruction.

Probably the heaviest hit counties were Union, in south central Arkansas, and Lawrence, in the northeastern part of the state.

Union county reported eighteen known dead in the storms at Norpilot and Strong.

Lawrence county reported twenty-eight dead in a series of tornadoes which struck Walnut Ridge, Imboden, Hoxie, and other small towns and communities in that section.

Toledo and Kison in the central part of the state reported a storm which killed one and injured others, while Carlisle, Hazen, and Lonoke reported three dead and many injured in a series of storms.

El Dorado, Ark.—Eighteen known dead, 50 seriously injured and scores missing, many of whom it is believed perished, was the toll of two tornadoes that swept Strong, a little farming community, and Norpilot, in the Arkansas oil belt, both within twenty miles of this city.

The Missouri Pacific railroad sent up an emergency train and made it south to Strong. Fifty doctors and nurses were sent.

Preliminary reports indicated that the Strong tornado may have been the worst storm disaster in the history of north Arkansas.

Memphis, Tenn.—Sixteen persons were known to be dead and an undetermined number injured as a result of a tornado which cut a path through more than a dozen towns and communities in northeastern Arkansas.

With seven dead, the village of Egypt was the worst known sufferer from the storm, which crossed over into Missouri after lashing a path of destruction through Arkansas.

Other towns with varying reports of loss of life or property damage were: Hoxie, Paul's Switch, Hunter, Carlisle, Imboden, Lonoke, Winesburg, England and Black Rock.

Dallas, Tex.—Known deaths were 32 from tornadoes which twisted over a narrow path between 75 and 100 miles in length in Dallas, Collin, Hunt, and Lamar counties of Texas. One hundred or more were injured.

Between 200 and 300 were homeless at Nevada, Collin county. The total property loss was estimated to exceed $1,000,000.

The death list stood at 16 at Nevada, ten at Garland, four at Wolfe City, and two at Kellow. Some of the injured were expected to die.

Metropolis, Ill.—Five persons were killed by a tornado which struck New Columbia, near here.

Chicago, Ill.—Four persons were killed and many were injured by a storm which swept Chicago. Numerous buildings were damaged.

Jonesboro, Ark.—The tornado which took a toll of several lives in Egypt swept a path only 30 feet wide through the little hamlet and destroyed only two residences and a barn.

The home of John Ritchey was demolished and six members of his family perished.

Pine Bluff, Ark.—Eight persons were killed and a dozen others seriously injured when a tornado, sweeping westward through Cleveland county, struck the towns of Randall, Toledo and Calmer, near Risson, according to reports received here.

Laramie, Wyo.—Two sheep herders were frozen to death near here in the week-end blizzard and search was under way for seven University of Wyoming students who left here by automobile for Cheyenne.

Jefferson City, Mo.—Several persons were killed and about fifteen injured by tornadoes which struck in central Missouri, sweeping down on Eldon and Olean in Miller county and near Auxvasse, New Bloomfield, Guthrie and Carrington in Callaway county, a check of the storm swept areas showed.

Three persons were killed in or near Eldon and six were injured. Six lives were snuffed out in Callaway county and nine persons were reported injured, several critically.

ILLINOIS URGED TO CHECK GRAIN FRAUD

All Warehouses Would Become Public Utilities.

Springfield, Ill.—Legislation intended to correct what it has called evils of grain trading has been presented by State Representative William Curran's Chicago Board of Trade investigating committee.

Under the bill, formulated by the committee after its investigation of alleged fraudulent practices of the Armour Grain company, all public grain warehouses, in effect, would become public utilities, for they would be controlled jointly by the state and the board of trade.

That measure—according to members of the committee, Board of Trade members and bankers reported to favor it—would forever prevent such a manipulation of grades of grain as the committee found in the deal between the Armour Grain company and the Rosenbaum Grain company.

It was that alleged switching of grain grades, E. E. Brown, arbitrator, declared caused the failure of the Grain Marketing corporation, and he awarded the latter $2,000,000 from the Armour Grain company.

The bill also would prevent the closing of public bins, on the false claim that they were filled, for the purpose of manipulating the market.

The principal provision of the bill follows: "No person who operates a class a public grain warehouse in this state shall store in such warehouse any grain in which he has a direct or indirect interest."

Violations of the measures proposed would be punishable by a fine of not more than $5,000, or a jail sentence not exceeding six months for each offense.

Proponents of the bill expressed the hope it would bring about the defeat of the Kessinger bill, which would place the Chicago Board of Trade under state control.

The Armour Grain company was to make its first payment of $1,000,000 on the $2,000,000 award due to the Grain Marketing corporation.

Alexander F. Reichmann, general counsel for the company, said: "We do not consider that there is any provision in the arbitrator's award making it imperative that the first or succeeding instalments be made on any exact date."

John A. Bunnell, president of the Board of Trade, declared the directors would "stand pat" on their decision to halt all trades in grain futures.

Snyder Woman and Gray Found Guilty of Murder

Long Island City, N. Y.—Ruth Brown Snyder and Henry Judd Gray, her former salesman paramour, were found guilty of murder in the first degree for the slaying of the woman's husband, Albert Snyder, as he slept in his Queens Village home on the night of March 20. The verdict was reached by a jury of Queens county court.

Death in the electric chair is mandatory and the two former lovers will be sentenced by Justice Townsend Sander Monday morning at ten o'clock.

Boston Wins Preakness

Baltimore, Md.—The gates to Preakness fame flew open for a split second, but that fraction of time proved more than sufficient for Harry Payne Whitney's Bostonian to win the thirty-seventh renewal of Maryland's greatest race. GIVE 500,000 SERUM IN FLOOD DISTRICT

Physicians Fight to Avoid Epidemic of Typhoid Fever and Smallpox.

Memphis, Tenn.—More than 500,000 will receive immunization from typhoid and smallpox before the American Red Cross and allied agencies complete the program of health and sanitation work in the flood area, Dr. William R. Redden estimated.

Additional health workers have been sent to speed up vaccination, not only in refugee camps, where more than 100,000 have been immunized, but also in flooded towns and villages.

New Orleans.—The fifty-mile levee front along the Mississippi between Baton Rouge and Bayou Des Glaises was badly battered by choppy waves as a 25-mile wind lashed the flood waters into sudden fury, momentarily shifting the point of immediate concern from the Bayou Des Glaises section to the embankments along the main stream.

A proclivity of continued stormy weather to accompany the crest of the flood down the valley added to the threat of the waters as they continued to mass about the mouth of Old river before descending into the lower valley.

Hamparts along the Bayou Des Glaises and the south bank of the Red river were not seriously affected by the sweeping winds. Scores of men worked in that neighborhood, however, topping the embankment in the face of the steady rise toward the predicted record-breaking crest.

Roofs of houses, fences and trees in the Mississippi indicated that the waters were beginning to return to the river after their wild rampage over northeastern Louisiana farm lands.

Refugees have continued to stream into the concentration camps. Most of them are women and children, the men remaining to add in the high-water fight or to care for live stock.

Little Rock, Ark.—The Arkansas river here may be expected to rise four to five feet within the next few days, due to rains at Fort Smith and above, the weather bureau said. The stage would be 17.4 feet. Floor stage is 23 feet.

Washington.—Steadily mounting toward the ten-million-dollar goal, the Red Cross relief fund has reached nearly $10,000,000. The eastern area has given over $6,000,000 and the Midwest over $2,000,000.

A new appeal probably will go out to increase the fund to $15,000,000, as recent surveys have convinced officials that ten millions will not take care of the enormous task.

Senator Reed (Dem.) of Missouri has urged all Democratic and Liberal senators to join with him in demanding that President Coolidge call a special session.

The appeal was made in the following telegram: "I have wired President Coolidge suggesting that he call an extra session at once to take steps to relieve the flood sufferers, particularly those in the southern Mississippi valley."

"If the suggestion I have made meets with your approval I hope you will express your opinion to the President."

The White House reiterated that President Coolidge saw no need for an extra session.

New York.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., contributed an additional $100,000 to the Red Cross relief fund for the Mississippi river flood regions, it was announced by Mortimer N. Buckner, chairman of the county chapter of the Red Cross. This brings the total of Rockefeller's contributions for flood relief to $250,000. W. A. Harriman & Co. also contributed $5,000.

Omaha, Neb.—The Northwest began adding its toll to the flood waters of the Mississippi valley when a whirling flood churned eastward across the South Dakota bad lands and threatened to send the Missouri above flood stage at Pierre and Mitchell, S. D. Four days of rain, followed by a driving blizzard, put many streams in the Black Hills regions and northwestern Nebraska and western South Dakota out of banks. Families near Chadron were leaving their homes.

How Coil-Driven Speaker Operates

Invention Is Described in British Patent by C. W. Rice.

A modification of the Rice-Kellogg type of loud speaker is described in a British patent by C. W. Rice. Readers are no doubt familiar with this type of speaker, which consists essentially of a light diaphragm driven by a moving coil working in a strong magnetic field. An electromagnet is utilized, in which the turns are arranged concentrically, the moving coil being located in the annular gap between the two poles. It is mentioned in the specification that the impedance is determined partly by its ohmic resistance and partly by its reactance.

At very low frequencies the impedance is due almost entirely to its resistance, while at higher frequencies the reactive component may predominate. This, however, tends to give rise to unequal response over the usual speech and music bands, and the object of the invention is to flatten out the response curve, so that for a given voltage over the entire frequency range there will be an equal response. This is accomplished by associating one or two short-circuited turns, preferably in the form of a copper ring, with the moving coil; so that the copper ring acts as a short-circuited secondary winding to the coil. This, of course, considerably lowers the impedance of the winding, and hence tends to equalize its response over the entire range, particularly with the higher frequencies. The accompanying illustration indicates one arrangement of the invention, where a light diaphragm D, the edge of which is omitted, is fixed to a coil wound on a cylindrical form F, and joined to the truncated portion of the cone. The magnetic system comprises a cylindrical pole P and an annular pole A, energized in the usual way from a source of direct-current supply; and the moving coil C is wound in the gap between the two poles. The by means of supports in position, the light rods R fixed to a spider S, screwed to the end of the pole-piece P. The free edges of the conical diaphragm are also supported by this leather, rubber, silk or similar material. Two copper rings K are wound on the two pole-pieces, i. e., the annular pole-piece P and the annular pole-piece A. These rings act as a short-circuited secondary winding to the moving coil C. Lines of force emanating from the moving coil due to speech currents will link with the copper rings, thus lowering the impedance of the coil, and thereby bringing about the desired effect—Wireless World (London).

Sets More Sensitive, and More Disturbance

As sets become more sensitive, so that they will reach out farther and bring in stations with greater quality, it follows that smaller electrical disturbances have more opportunity to become annoyances. It isn't a matter of tuning out local interference, splitting the stations or other "fine" adjustments; these all can be attended to through the sharp and effective adjustments built into the set. What may prove a source of annoyance, though, is some interference that is constant and for all the wave band.

With the growing popularity of battery chargers, battery eliminators and the other paraphernalia designed to make reception better, the increasing difficulty is that of keeping these accessories from setting up local disturbances that interfere with the set's operation. There is no difficulty whatsoever where sets are built with all these accessories combined with them, for under such conditions great care has been exercised to avoid any interference which might be set up through sparking or the starting of eddy currents.

But the operator who simply adds a lot of equipment to a sensitive set may not be thinking in terms of interference. Particularly, if he is aiming for neatness he is apt to place all these devices too close to each other and to the tuning units of the set itself. The matter of interference from such causes is so uncertain it is true that the radio owner who arranged the various devices most carefully might obtain the best results.

It is important to remember, however, that all transformers (and battery eliminators and chargers are basically transformers, and regardless of whether or not they are rectifiers, too) create eddy currents. There is always a certain amount of induction straying around, and in the case of sensitive receivers these can cause trouble. A careful layout of the set and accessories always pays.

Wired Wireless Seen as Puzzling to Fans

How is wired wireless possible? Many radio enthusiasts know that signals at radio frequency are being sent over electric power lines with even more efficiency than they are sent through the ether, but they are puzzled.

There are, of course, many technical considerations, but the general principle of the thing is relatively simple. It all goes back to what might be termed the depth of current traveling a wire at radio frequency.

Take 60-cycle alternating current (such as is used for house lighting circuits) and it is found that this current penetrates the wires it travels, going straight to the very core. This is because the current alternates so slowly, relatively, that it has time to "slink" into its conductor.

Take radio frequencies, however, where the alternations run into the hundreds of thousands per second and which never are below 10,000 cycles, and it is obvious that the energy has little opportunity, if any at all, to dig into the conductor. It simply travels the surface of the conductor, and therefore does not interfere with the lower rated alternations which are well distributed throughout the entire body of the conductor.

The Recluse of Fifth Avenue

CHAPTER I

By WYNDHAM MARTYN

Copyright in the United States
W. N. U. Service

It was characteristic of Peter Milman that he should bear the brack of the second of his life's tragedies with no visible symptom of emotion.

The first of these blows had been dealt him twenty-five years before. He had suffered it in the same richly furnished room of his house in Lower Fifth avenue. Sneed, the butler, who had just handed him the morning papers, had brought him a letter of a century ago—the letter which his wife told him she had given away and would not return.

The second blow swept away his considerable fortune. At fifty, without any relatives and long estranged from old friends, Peter Milman would be compelled to move from the house in which he had been born—the house where he had been brought up, among people he had grown to mistrust.

The three morning papers Sneed placed before him, although they varied somewhat in their telling of Haven Brewer's illness, had substantiated the same account of it. Haven's business were fifteen million dollars. His assets were given as less than five thousand dollars. Sneed, sandwiched among these vast debts, was Peter Milman's modest position.

The better, sensing ill news from the hastily read captions, grew red when he saw his employer take out his pocket-scissors and begin to clip extracts from the papers as he read them. Later these clippings would be arranged systematically with the thousands of others which during long years Milman had gathered. In the library, steel-lined drawers, carefully locked, held the harvest of these gleanings.

At three o'clock Peter Milman came down the stairs and selected a cane. He was dressed as though he were going to pay an afternoon call. He was one of those slight, small-boned men so often seen in the dwindling families of races near extinction. His smartly cut coat, his immaculate silk hat and distinguished cane made him seem, from a rear view, a boyish figure. It was when one saw the pale, lined face, the tired eyes, and the thin supercilious mouth, that one realized this was a man to whom the world has long since seemed empty.

On the whole, Peter Milman presented the appearance of one to whom familiarity would be distasteful and friendship the slow growth of years.

He was on his way to see his lawyer and find out how he stood financially. He felt almost certain that he had fallen with Haven Brewer. Not for more than twenty years had Peter Milman been so much disturbed. Ruin meant giving up his home. The idea was intolerable.

He entered the private office of Herman Loddon as one assured of his position and certain of his welcome. Assuredly Loddon, who owed so much to the Milmans, would be able to supply him with the information he desired.

The first direct intimation of the difference between a millionaire and a poor man was given him as he entered Loddon's room. Loddon remained seated. Hitherto he had risen slowly to his feet at sight of his distinguished client and with awkward gesture motioned him to the seat of honor. And his face had been wreathed with smiles.

For the first time Peter Milman saw the man Herman Loddon as he really was. Loddon hated him, and had always hated him. There could be no other explanation of his lack of courtesy and the sneering smile with which he greeted his client. For a quarter-century he had worn a disarming smile. Haven Brewer's failure had swept away the necessity for using it any more. Things, then, were desperate.

Milman's manner was still as lofty as ever. "I hope you have been able to find out the extent of Mr. Brewer's misfortune," he said.

"Misfortunes," Loddon cried. "His affairs, you mean?"

"I am not asking you to prejudice my friend," Peter Milman said quietly. "I want to know if the morning papers in the street in stating that his entire fortune has disappeared."

"They are," Loddon answered with an appearance of satisfaction, "and as you wouldn't take my advice about your investments, your money has gone too. I tell you, Milman, you've only got what I prophesied a million times."

Milman never before had Herman Loddon presumed so much. Loddon's father had been the Milman coachman at their country place at Hartsford years before. When he had been killed in a runaway accident, Peter Milman, the older, had taken charge of the son's education and had eventually set him up in practice and given him his first case.

"Then nothing is left?" Milman asked.

"Not a cent. You're luckier than Haven because you've got a valuable lot on Fifth avenue, and there are fifty men waiting to make you an offer for it and put a big building where that mansion of yours stands."

Milman said nothing. He allowed Loddon's stare at his home to pass. Loddon did not know that, when Haven Brewer incurred the enmity of great financial interests, and was so lately possessed for money, he had come by night to Milman and begged in utter desperation for a loan. It was Haven Brewer who had arranged the mortgage on the Milman home. It was Haven Brewer who had profited by the mortgage. And this mortgage was shortly to fall due, and there was no money to pay it.

Peter Milman could have sold the house and lot and retired to some other place in relative comfort until the end of his life had he been less obstinately desirous of remaining where he had been born.

"You can't stay there, if that's what you are trying to figure out," Loddon said brutally. "The taxes are heavy and you have some outstanding debts."

My account, for instance. Sell it and live in Italy is my advice." He yawned rudely.

Peter Milman's question turned his red face a deeper hue.

"Have you always hated me, Loddon?"

"The lawyer did not answer immediately. This hate of his was a complex thing, less the result of a deep injury than of a thousand envies. He had always resented Milman's discriminations when social functions were still a part of his life. It is true that he had dined many times in the Milman house, but his wife had never been asked there. He came to understand in the end that he was asked because Peter Milman found it a less tedious business than going to Loddon's office.

It was this fancied slight to his wife which most angered the lawyer. She was a social climber, and the magic of the Milman name was a tradition in New York. Her husband, ashamed of his obscure origin, had claimed to have been at school with Peter Milman, and Mrs. Loddon felt that, were he to insist, she could be a guest in the envied home.

Loddon hated Milman because, despite his unwise boasting, he knew he had never convinced Milman of his importance.

"Always," he said slowly, with a rush of relief at being at last able to voice his emotions. "Yes, I hated you when my father drove you to school and I couldn't get either inside with you or on the box with him. I've hated you for your friends and the way you've expected me to come when you felt like calling." Loddon laughed sneeringly. "But that's all done with. I'm on top and only pity you now."

"I think I prefer the former emotion," Milman murmured.

"In future," Loddon said majestically, "I shall have too many big things to attend to to have time for you. I'll turn your affairs over to my managing clerk."

"Thank you," Milman said, rising. "I shall not come again. Send in your bill at once. You have been loyal to our interests, and that is why we employed you." Peter Milman passed over the Loddon outburst of hate as though it had not interested him.

Herman Loddon watched him depart with the feeling that his triumph had not been as assured as he could have wished. He had won no look of fear or apprehension from the man he hated. Perhaps, after all, there was something about men like Milman different from men like Loddon. Then the thought of his two millions reassured him and he lumbered to the window and watched his former client cross the road. The great limousine opposite

"I think I prefer the former emotion," Milman murmured.

"In future," Loddon said majestically, "I shall have too many big things to attend to to have time for you. I'll turn your affairs over to my managing clerk."

"Thank you," Milman said, rising. "I shall not come again. Send in your bill at once. You have been loyal to our interests, and that is why we employed you." Peter Milman passed over the Loddon outburst of hate as though it had not interested him.

Herman Loddon watched him depart with the feeling that his triumph had not been as assured as he could have wished. He had won no look of fear or apprehension from the man he hated. Perhaps, after all, there was something about men like Milman different from men like Loddon. Then the thought of his two millions reassured him and he lumbered to the window and watched his former client cross the road. The great limousine opposite

you or on the box with him. I've hated you for your friends and the way you've expected me to come when you felt like calling." Loddon laughed sneeringly. "But that's all done with. I'm on top and only pity you now."

would presently take Herman Loddon to his lavishly appointed apartment, where he would dine largely. He pictured Milman's solitary and dismal meal. There would not be many more for him in the family home on Lower Fifth avenue. The Patriarchian age was gone.

Peter Milman reached his home without encountering anyone who knew him. Fashionable New York with her residences and clubs had long passed on her northward way. Those few houses which, like his own, were still owned by their builders' families, were mostly unoccupied save for a few weeks in the year. With these people Milman had now nothing in common. He had rejected their overtures. They spoke of him with pity, almost with contempt. A legend of eccentricity grew up about him and presently gave way to rumors of mental deterioration.

Sneed, who concerned himself greatly with the sudden change in his employer's habits, saw him return with obvious relief. Sneed had read the papers and realized the extent of Haven Brewer's troubles. He wished he dared ask Mr. Milman if he, too, were badly hit. Nor was his customary manner changed.

"I am going over the upper rooms after luncheon," said Milman. "Please see that they are in order."

The upper rooms. It was in these spacious chambers that the old furniture was stored about which experts raved. The six rooms were arranged as a museum. Milman moved from piece to piece. Everything had its definite association. He stopped before an eighteenth century card table covered with seal-skin. On this table, in 1745, a Peter Milman had lost a thousand pounds on a cut of cards with a blue-blood of South Carolina. Those six chairs, called "banister-backed by their creator, Heppelwhite, had been made to order for a Milman.

There was one room devoted to the Dutch furniture that had come to the Milmans from a marriage with a Van Sluyter heiress. Peter Milman bent down to look at a Dutch church stool which a Van Sluyter servant had carried to a place of worship two hundred years before. It was black in color, and on one side bore a picture of the Last Judgment and some appropriate verses.

"I don't read Dutch," Milman observed, "but I remembered the translation. Listen, Sneed, it may do you good."

"Certainly, sir," said Sneed respectfully.

"The Judgment of God is now prepared; there is still time, leave unwisdom. The pious will be separated from the wicked. God's wisdom encircles the Universe."

"Very true, Mr. Peter, sir," said Sneed. There was a look on his employer's face that he did not understand, something hard and ruthless.

"There are some of the wicked I should very much like to separate from the pious without waiting for post-mortem judgments. I am not sure that such an act would not be a logical way of acquiring merit. I take it, Sneed, that in your essence you are law-abiding?"

"Always," said Sneed with conscious rectitude. "In that respect, Mr. Peter, I'm like you."

"A very admirable frame of mind," said Milman.

Sneed had rarely known him comment on any of the exhibits before. To day it seemed he had a word for everything.

"On this settle with folding candlestick," he observed, "Benjamin Milman fell asleep in the Revolutionary war and was captured by a red-coat major, who gave him liberty owing to his pretty skill on a six-string bass viol. The viol is in the next room. These three mahogany pieces," he said, pausing before a six-legged high case of drawers, "once belonged to the man whom Aaron Burr speaks of as my friend Hamilton whom I killed."

CHIC BLACK AND WHITE EFFECTS; CUTE GINGHAM ROMPER SUITS

REVERSE the order of black and white and you have white and black. The mode is doing just that. White with just enough black not to destroy its daintiness is the promise of summer apparel. The vogue extends to footwear, headwear and all the accessories which go to make up a perfect ensemble.

Adorable for summer frocks are the white-with-black geometrics printed in entrancing floral patterns. These are forecasted to enjoy a tremendous vogue. If a frock should perchance escape being made of a white-and-black transparency of some sort or cuffs are elaborately black embroidered, or later still, beaded; hats of white violets or for mid-summer, the transparent black or white wide brimmed capeline—these are all included in fashion's white-with-black program.

A modern playground, where children of the well-to-do are wont to congregate presents rather an appearance of a Lilliputian style-show, with miniature mannikins all "dotted up" in fetching frocks and rompers, with cunning socks to match and amusing little sweaters, or perhaps a protecting coat, with possibly a hat other, it will be because the designer preferred to work out the combination by using black as a trimming on white. The accompanying illustration demonstrates the idea most beautifully.

A fascinating effect results when the hemline is embellished (see the figure to the left) with myriads of hem-stitched black chiffon petals piled one upon another, so that when midday steps her frock expresses a very "poetry of motion." The manner in which the drapery of this dress is brought to the front in a bow tie is very enlightening as to a popular style now and then. Even their little tin pails and shovels, their jumping ropes, dolls in everything being selected from the standpoint of fitting into the color scheme.

Mother does not say any more of her child's simple play frock: "I'll just run it together in a hurry." She goes about her sewing preparedly—seeks the latest patterns, studies up on newest embroidery and applique ideas. As to choosing materials, that is the most important thing of all.

Of course with most mothers "gingham first" is the sentiment. If we trend. For the matron no more appropriate costume can be conceived of than this combination afternoon and dinner dress. We say "combination" advisedly for it is designed with a coat which, removed, reveals a charming after-six-o'clock gown.

An interesting interpretation of white-with-black is given in the model to the right. It is of handsome white crepe satin, an applique of black supplying the decorative note. The coat is silver gray with a blended twin beaver collar.

And the shoes, the gloves, the hats to wear with frocks such as these? Slippers of suave white kidskin, lined or appliqued with black, gloves whose as to fashion's trend these doting mothers will make it a rule to always buy a solid color for trimming. Even the simplest rompers exploit the composite idea nowadays. The gay-patterned gingham rompers in the picture cleverly takes out itself raglan sleeves made of a solid color, with pockets to match. It is well to remember in selecting patterns for rompers, frocks and rompers that raglan sleeves are the "last word." Note, too, the touch of smocking across the front neckline of this romper model. Few coats or frocks, these days, escape the smocking vogue.

Extremely interesting are pins which have a ball at each end of contrasting metal delicately carved. Gold and gemmetal are particularly effective together.

SOMETHING TO EAT

In spite of the literature published upon the value of nuts as a food, we still consider them largely as a relish or a confection. They enhance the food value of any dish or food to which they are added. As a dessert with fruit they are ideal.

Date and Nut Salad.—Prepare dates cut into eighths and arrange them on lettuce with walnuts. Serve with a good French dressing. Stewed prunes are often liked better with the nuts as they are not so sweet, if cooked slowly and no sugar is added to them.

Pineapple Cream.—Boil together one-third of a cupful of sugar and one-half cupful of shredded pineapple until it makes a soft ball in water. Pour in a fine stream over the white of an egg whipped until stiff. Beat until cool then fold in one cupful of whipped cream, add a tablespoonful of lemon juice and pour into a mold. Chill before serving.

Date Muffins.—Beat two eggs, add one cupful of sugar, one-fourth cupful of butter, one teaspoonful of baking powder and flour to make a drop batter, using one-fourth cupful of milk and a pinch of salt. Stir in one cupful of stoned and chopped dates. Fill muffin cups one-half full and steam one-half hour. Serve with sweetened cream as a dessert.

Banana Salad.—When fresh coconut is to be obtained this is a most attractive salad. Grate the coconut, using two cupfuls, add one red pepper cut into bits, two tablespoonfuls of grated onion, one cupful of apple and one-half cupful of celery. Mix and serve on lettuce with any desired dressing.

Cold boiled tongue makes a fine sandwich. Chop the tongue, add a little sweet cream, melted butter and mustard. Stir until smooth, then spread on buttered bread.

A simple salad which is very popular is prepared by serving drained canned pears or peaches on lettuce with a highly seasoned salad dressing.

A simple lettuce salad with a thousand island dressing is one that is always enjoyed. Add to a good mayonnaise a chopped pepper, a little chopped celery and onion, a minced pimento, a dash of thick tomato (catsup may be used); hard-cooked egg, also chopped, and parsley finely minced, all make a delightful combination.

For the Housewife. Foods which must be denied children should not be placed temptingly before them—a strong reason for having children eat alone.

Children when teething and suffering from swollen gums will be relieved and refreshed by cool fruit juice, water, or scraped fresh apple. A worrying baby is often suffering from frequent drinks of cold water. It is well to remember that young children and animals cannot tell us what they need, and often suffer because of the carelessness of those who should be responsible.

To get the delicate flavor of orange for tea or a sauce, rub the rind of a well-washed orange with a cube of sugar, which will absorb the essential oil. One orange will furnish flavor for two or three cubes.

A pinch of cream of tartar added to fudge or boiled frosting will keep the sugar from grain and will make a creamy mixture.

Cover poached eggs just a minute before serving to give them the pretty pink glazed look.

Water ferns at least once a week with cold coffee or tea—it will make them grow better.

A little chopped cabbage and apple added to a potato salad gives it a different flavor.

Canned pineapple juice cooked with tapioca and served with cream makes a nice dessert. Serve with pieces of pineapple for garnishment.

A small amount of fruit juice stirred into cake crumbs, flavored with a drop of rose extract, served with whipped cream, makes a simple and good dessert.

For a quick cake filling take one cupful of maple syrup and stir thick with powdered sugar; add nuts.

When running sash curtains on the rods, use an old glove finger to cover them and save tearing the curtain.

When cooking rice, save enough to put into the griddle-cake batter for breakfast.

When cutting a large onion, do not peel, but slice off as much as is needed; turn the cut side down on a saucer and it will keep fresh for days.

A bunch of parsley may be kept two weeks if washed and placed in a fruit jar. Do not shake off the water, seal tightly.

TWO WOMEN FOUND HELP

Their Sickness Banished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. Nina Matteson, Box 295, Oxford, N. Y., writes—"If it had not been for your medicine,

I could not have done my work as it should have been done. Mother told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I had read in different papers what it had done for different women. She wanted me to try it, so my husband got me one bottle at first; then I took two others. Now I am feeling quite strong again."

Mrs. Ernest Tanguay of Adams, Mass., says she was ill for four years and could not sleep nights or go out on the street. She read about the Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. After taking eight bottles she was able to do all her work and go anywhere and is quite herself again.

This dependable "Vegetable Compound" is a household word in thousands of homes. The fourth generation is now learning the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than half a century, this reliable medicine has been used by women with very satisfactory results. If the Vegetable Compound has helped other women, why shouldn't it help you?

Work and Bolshevism
Not Closely United

For perfect tinting of dainty underwear, dresses, etc., the easiest way—and by far the best way—is the use of real dye. It tints in cold water, you know; just dip the garment and it takes whatever tinge you wish to give it. A matter of minutes.

Real dyes will get such smooth and even tones as shams the streaky, wispy-washy work of synthetic preparations for the purpose! Diamond dye in original powder form is only fifteen cents at the drug store. Do your own tinting. Then dip to tint—and you'll have an effect that's beautiful. And if you want the tint permanent, just use boiling water!

Diamond dyes do a perfect "professional" job of dyeing, too; the druggist has sample shades and simple directions. For a book of endless suggestions, in full color, request a free copy of Color Craft of DIAMOND DYES, Dept. N32, Burlington, Vermont.

Nature Holds the "Patent"

that Insures Quality in a Motor Oil!

NO OIL can be better than the "crude" it comes from. It can vary downward—never upward.

Nature gave America two broad types of crude petroleum—one with paraffin-base, producing a well-nigh perfect lubricant; the other with asphalt base, inferior on almost every count.

Delco Motor Oil comes from the former, finer source—exclusively. It guarantees for your motor:

- 1—25% more heat resistance—less "drag" when motor is cold.
- 2—12% more oil "body" at motor heat—oil "stands up" longer.
- 3—15% less loss by vaporization and burning—you use less.
- 4—19% less carbon content (Conradson test).

Yet Delco Pure Paraffin-Base Motor Oil costs you no more! In longer motor life, in less oil between drainings, and in less frequent drainings, it spells economy—and surety.

Reliability Plus Adaptability

McCormick-Deering Corn Planters and Drills

If you want to see a real piece of corn planter mechanism come in and look this McCormick-Deering planter over. You will be surprised to see how so many good features have been secured with so few parts—check-row, straight drill, hill-drop drill—and hoppers in which flat-drop, edge-drop, or full-hill-drop plates work equally well. It has a simple, variable-drop device—you can change the number of kernels to the hill instantly, or in the case of a drill, you can change the distance between the kernels in the row.

Runner or disk openers, automatic marker (twin disk if preferred), in fact equipment to suit your needs. It's the smoothest combination of time-proved principles you ever saw in a corn planter.

Combination corn and pea or bean hoppers, also fertilizer attachments are available.

MEMORIAL

In sad and loving memory of our dear son Raymond Greib, who passed away one year ago May 19, 1926:

As time goes on we miss him more and more,

His cheerful voice his welcome face,
No one can take our darlings place.

His memory is as dear today
As in the hour he passed away,
Yet again we hope to meet thee
When the day of life has fled

And in heaven with joy to greet thee
Where no farewell tears are shed,
When days are dark and friends are few

Dear son how I long for you,
Sadly missed by his mother and grand mother.

Mrs. K. Greib.

Regular Infield of the Giants

Cotlogomor Is Being Keyed Up for Stakes

Cotlogomor was generally considered to have been the champion among the older horses raised at New Orleans during the winter, and believed by many to have been the best thoroughbred in the Cofroth Handicap at Tuliana, now is remodeling to his best shape at Churchill Downs. He soon recovered from rough injuries he received from racing in the Cofroth and is being keyed up for the Clark and Grainger Memorial Handicaps, to be decided at the Downs meeting.

CUBS ARE SHORT FLAG MATERIAL

Forecast Puts Chicago Team in Second Division.

Starting last season as a poorly regarded club, the Chicago Cubs caused a big surprise by making a bid for the pennant early in the season and finishing in the first division ahead of favored New York. Success was due almost entirely to the sagacity of Joe McCarthy, a new manager from the minor leagues. He didn't have any easy job and to show that he meant business he had to go to the extremity of getting rid of Manager Joe McCarthy.

Grover Alexander. The fact that Alexander went to St. Louis and helped win the pennant and the world's series should not be chalked up against McCarthy.

There was nothing impressive about the club this time last year and if McCarthy hadn't proved himself a manager in the meantime the team would not be figured this season.

The club's man power, beyond the promise given by Woody English, a rookie shortstop, hasn't been improved to any marked degree but added confidence should enable the players to start with more spirit and better morale.

There is no striking brilliance in the infield or the outfield but the batteries are strong.

Charley Root, Percy Jones, Tony Kauffman, Guy Bush and Fred Blake are real pitchers and there are some good prospects among the youngsters. Gabby Hartnett and Mike Gonzales are good catchers.

Hack Wilson is the biggest man in the outfield, not in size only. His hitting and his spirit proved one of the driving forces of the team during the past season.

With the exception of their pitching, the Cubs do not compare with the Cardinals, Pittsburgh or Cincinnati. The Giants, before they were all banged up, also had a stronger club but now the Cubs seem to have a mighty good chance to beat out New York.

McCarthy might be able to get more out of the team than last year. With undisciplined control, he might be eight or ten games better. There was discussion among the older players last season. Veterans do not always take kindly to "bush league" managers and conditions became such that McCarthy had to get rid of Alexander. It was an act of bravery and a big gamble but it was a stroke that apparently made the team.

Futurity Nominations for 1929 Total 2,109

A final compilation of the nominations for the futurity of 1929 shows total of 2,109 entries, Victor E. Schwanberg, racing secretary of the Westchester Racing association has announced.

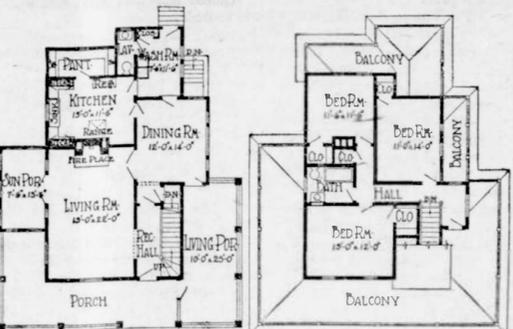

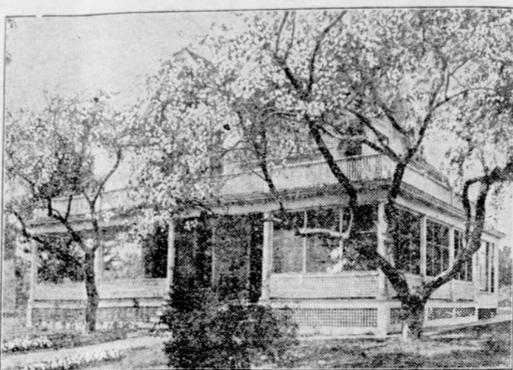

The Hertzberg stud brought the first German yearlings ever offered in this country to the Saratoga sales ring last summer and met with such success that it will make the venture again. The nominations for the 1929 Futurity will be the get of Wallenstein, Aberlambie, Cardas, Diamonios and Calligita, the last named two English stallions.

The French breeders who have made nominations are Mrs. Simone Holston, G. F. Bertram, Thomas Murphy, C. A. Salvador, J. de Nicoly and Jean Lieng, who made ten nominations. The stallions listed are Rabelais, Christinus, Harpoarte, Zagregus, Transval, Ksar, Filibert de Savoie, Dark Legend, Adresse und Befonds.

Keen Competition Seen

Fans look forward to a keen competition in both leagues this season as they have ever witnessed. Eight new managers with eight new viewpoints, each desiring to make favorable impressions in their first seasons with these teams should cause an unprecedented rush for the first division places. There are at least six clubs in the American league ready to make strong attacks on the first division. Which two will be shut out is a question that cannot be easily answered.

Comfortable Six-Room Home That Is Reminiscent of Other Days

First Floor Plan.

Second Floor Plan.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD. Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all problems pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on the subject. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, for reply.

Each of these rooms is larger than is usually found and is arranged conveniently. The entrance door at the front leads into a hall out of which run the stairs to the second floor. The living room is 15 by 22 feet, and is connected with a sun porch. The dining room opens off the living room and is connected with a double opening. Kitchen, washroom, lavatory and pantry all adjoin each other at the back.

All of the bedrooms open off a central hall upstairs. The bathroom is located in the center so that it is convenient to all the rooms.

The house is of frame and has a full basement to accommodate the heating plant and for storage.

The porch on this home gives a suggestion to those who contemplate making such an addition to their homes. Not only does such a porch provide a pleasant summer sitting place but it adds to the appearance of the home.

Use Plastic Paint for Wall Finishes

If you are building a new house and are in a quandary about how to finish it, remember the age-old truth that in texture and color it true and lasting beauty. Your recollection will, very likely, lead you to a consideration of plastic paints, and if you pursue your inquiry you will find that this material far exceeds your demand for beauty of color, for charm of texture and for the expression of your personality.

Not only can you copy exactly the textures of the old masters by means of plastic paint, but also you can reproduce the rare building stone textures with absolute fidelity; again, you may enter the realm of the original.

If your house is an old one you may summon plastic paint to your aid by either making it younger or older in appearance as you wish, you can cover woodwork or glass; in fact, you can coat any surface.

The base of this plastic paint is a white powder composed of mica, calcium, clay and ammonia. It is mixed in hot water until it arrives at the consistency of a heavy paste and is spread out with a wide-edge brush and is spread out to any desired thickness. It is then stippled, or swirled, or textured.

Sun Porch Has Two Important Purposes

Mid-Victorian houses used to have conservatories, and perhaps they are the ancestors of the modern solarium. In many homes the sun porch has entirely superseded the open porch. It does its duty and is usable the whole year instead of only a few months, as is the case especially in northern sections of the country. The longing for the outdoors does not automatically stop when summer is over. With a porch which can be opened up in warm weather and comfortably closed in cold, we may keep a bit of summer garden indoors to enjoy when snow flies.

Waterproofing Liquid Will Stop Cellar Leaks

At times the best wall cellars, regardless of the materials of which the walls are constructed, are likely to develop leaks. If your cellar develops such a leak, or if it is always damp or likely to be flooded after a heavy rain, there is a remedy that will make it dry.

Damp cellars should not be tolerated, for they are not healthy; further than that, dampness renders the cellar space practically useless. At a reasonable cost and with very little labor you can prevent for all time crumbling or moldy walls and floors. This can be done with a liquid waterproofing, which will transform a damp cellar into a comfortable workshop or playroom.

Impatience Often Cause of Poor Construction

Impatience has caused as many unsatisfactory homes as poor construction. The home is the most complex

When carefully planned in relation to the building as a whole the sun porch is often one of the most attractive exterior features. Large expanses of glazing, which are necessary for sunshine and breeze, need very skillful treatment, however, to avoid the appearance of a display window.

Casements are especially adaptable for sun porches. As they are hinged and swing out or in instead of sliding up and down, the whole opening is available. Casements are also interesting in appearance, either open or closed. Needless to say, single panes look best, no matter what sort of windows are chosen.

It is a pleasing idea to have a pair of French doors opening from the sunroom out into the garden at the side or rear, where this can be done. Where doors are used at all between the sun porch and the rest of the house, French doors are most suitable. No other room in the house affords so good an opportunity for decorating as does the sun porch. Its purpose is to provide sunshine and cheer, and these are increased by bright colors. Nothing dark or monotonous or neutral has a place here. It is an indoor garden and may safely have all the colors that are found in the outdoor garden.

Light woodwork increases the brightness of the room. Here, as perhaps in no other place in the house, one may choose strong color or color combinations for the woodwork, if desired.

Width of Eaves Must Be Suitable to Home

For ordinary structures, either one or two-story, the eaves may be 18 to 24 inches wide, and look well. Sometimes they are made narrower, as in some Colonial houses—sometimes much wider, as in California bungalows. If too wide, they look insecure, unless supported by false brackets which architecturally are not always in good taste. Extremely narrow eaves make a building look bare or unfinished.

Investment the family unit ever makes. Hence more thought should be given to the matter than is given to the selection of the Easter hat or to having the old car overhauled and refinished. Planning and building the new home should be considered deliberately, not with furrowed brow and intense, get-it-over-with look. Give it the time its importance deserves and as you admire its splendid silhouette in the moonlight as you approach it after an evening with your favorite film star you will feel well repaid for having accomplished the big job well.

Beautify Home's Closets

Whatever the purpose of the closet, painting the interior is to be recommended for the sake of cleanliness as well as that of beauty. A smooth, non-porous surface, such as that presented by enamel or flat paint, soils less readily than bare plaster, and washes like a china dish. From every standpoint, therefore, "beautify the closets" is an admonition which every householder may profitably take to heart.

DOING THE CHARLESTON

She—So you're just back from Japan? Do they dance the Charleston there, too?

He—Sure. That's where the girls show their Japan-knees.

A Lone Merit. The best thing we know of. Is the fact that it doesn't stay popular long.

Easy Come, Easy Go. There are some strange tales of Broadway, but this true story is one of the strangest that we have heard:

A French Canuck who chopped down trees in the Canadian woods for 15 years at a salary of $100 per annum, came to New York for a holiday after 15 years of pine cutting in the woods. Within one hour he lost his $1,500 in a gambling house, and remarked, "Well, such is life. It's another 15 years in the woods for me—but easy come, easy go."—The Outlook.

Convenient Calls. Taxpayer—I've called to see the collector of taxes.

Clerk—Sorry, but he's out just now. "Good! When do you expect him to be out again?"

FLOATED A LOAN

"Wonder how Noah managed so big an enterprise as building the ark?"

"Floated a loan, no doubt."

Keep Car Intact. Stop and let the train go by. It hardly takes a minute. Your car starts off again intact. And better still—you're in it.

About This Time. Wife—Mrs. Jones remarked about your dignified appearance.

Hubby—Ho, hum! What is it now? A fur coat or a hat?

Extremity. "Edith is able to get money from the man she married without asking for it."

"Lucky woman!"

"Well, perhaps. She had to divorce him to accomplish it."

One, Two, Three, Four. Gloria—Good gracious. Does your brother often have fits like that?

Jack—He's just absent-minded. Whenever he hears a phonograph he starts going through his daily dozen.

Written and Rotten. Jobson—Brown wanted me to speak at the banquet tonight, but I told him I couldn't do it on such short notice.

Friend—I've heard them, old man, when they were both.

His Prescription. Mr. Sparkie—Good heavens! Why are you crying?

Mrs. Sparkie—The doctor said I needed a good crywash.

Pessimism. Her Very New Ladyship (who is arranging to give a party at a furnished house she has taken)—And will there be enough silverware, Parker?

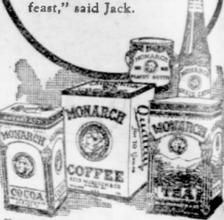

Butler (taken on with the furniture)—Yes! m'lady, at the beginning of the evening, anyway.

Most Direct Way. Ted—When did you first get acquainted with Bill?

George—The first time I tried to borrow some money.

"Jack Spratt could eat no fat. His wife could eat no lean"—so Mrs. Spratt made Tennis Weenie Peanut Butter sandwiches and Monarch Cocoa. "It's a real feast," said Jack.

Every genuine Monarch package bears the Lion Head, the oldest trademark in the United States covering a complete line of the world's finest food products—Coffee, Tea, Cocoa, Cakes, Pastries, Peanut Butter, Canned Fruit, Vegetables, and other superior table specialties.

Dates and Titles of French Kings

Whether one believes that figures never lie or that they may be manipulated to mean almost anything, it is curious to find a writer in Low News Croixes busying himself with pointing out the following coincidences:

Louis IX of France was born in 1215. If you take the trouble to add these four digits you will discover that the total, nine, just equals the figure in the king's title.

Charles VII, known as the Wise, came into the world in 1402. Addition discloses that the sum of four efforts will match Charles' number in the succession of his name.

Louis XIV began to reign in the year 1643 and this assuredly adds up to fourteen; he was seventy-seven years of age when he died and we get fourteen points from the two sevens.

Uncertain Demonstration

"You never fail to command applause."

"You can't tell about applause," said Senator Sorghum. "Opinions now differ so widely that any kind of demonstration you happen to express is sure to elicit signs of approval."

Slowing Up?

OVERWORK, worry and lack of rest, all put extra burdens on the kidneys. When the kidneys slow up, waste poisons remain in the blood and are apt to make one languid, tired and aching, with dull headaches, dizziness and often a nagging backache.

A common warning of impeded kidney action is scanty or burning secretions. Doan's Pills assist the kidneys in their eliminative work. Are endorsed by users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

50,000 Users Endorse Doan's! Mrs. F. E. Weston, 7 High St., Lynn, Mass., says: "The time came when I found myself in bad health. The kidney secretions were scanty and caused me much annoyance. My back ached constantly and I had attacks of dizziness. Doan's Pills were given to me and I shall never cease to be grateful to them."

DESIGN FOR WASHINGTON COUNTY SOLDIERS' MONUMENT AS ADOPTED BY THE COMMITTEE

The Washington County Soldiers' Memorial

AN APPEAL TO HELP IN SECURING AN ACCURATE LIST
The County Board of Supervisors of Washington county has provided for the erection of a soldiers memorial to be erected on the court house grounds and it has been decided that the bronze tablets on the memorial contain a roster of Washington county veterans who served in the Civil, Spanish-American, and World wars.
A tentative list of the Civil war veterans has been prepared by the committee in charge of this work, but it has met with considerable difficulty in securing a reasonably accurate list for the county.
The list of names given below has been compiled from many incomplete sources, due to the fact that no accurate list of this nature is available. In order that corrections or additions may be made on the final list, relatives and other persons interested will favor the committee by sending the necessary information to the Washington County Memorial, Inc., Court House, West Bend, Wisconsin, by using the coupon at the bottom of this list.
It is required that the veterans of the Civil war, whose names will be placed on this memorial, were either residents of Washington county at the time of enlistment or were residents of some other county at the time of enlistment, but established their residence in Washington county subsequent to the war.

PREPARE FOR HOT WEATHER

Hot weather will soon be here. All dairymen who have their milk house built may rest easy because their worry about keeping milk in good condition is over. With a large tank of cold water and the milk stirred until it is cold, there is no cause to fret or worry. Clean milk kept cold will not be affected by hot weather. This is the best method of taking care of milk. Wisconsin has reached a period of dairy reconstruction. Old methods must be discarded. Those sections of the country who will be the leaders ten years from now, are the ones where local pride is working for progress at present. Patrons of cheese factories, creameries or milk plants can do nothing that will be of greater benefit to themselves than to make quality their first consideration.
