CARE OF MILK ON THE FARM

The man working for quality is building a business that can meet competition, not only at the present time but in the future. Work is the most important thing in our lives, not the gaining of things so much as working for them, that counts. Here is what happens when milk is not kept at the proper temperature, and the following facts derived from an extensive study of the question by the research department of the DeLaval Separator Company should be of interest to milk producers. Two samples of milk were kept at 50 and 70 degrees respectively and after a period of twenty-four hours there were in the milk held at 50 degrees five bacteria for every one at the beginning, while the milk held at 70 degrees, there were seven hundred and fifty bacteria, for every one at the beginning. As bacteria in milk is what causes it to get sour and rancid this shows that the lower the temperature the longer it will stay sweet. Cool milk promptly and keep it cool.

Shelter for Hay Good Investment

Prevents Losses to Stack Bottoms and Tops and Is Not Expensive.

*Losses due to spoilage of stack bottoms and tops may be largely avoided by using some kind of a hay barn," Walter G. Ward, extension architect of the Kansas State Agricultural college, advises farmers. "Ferfunately a shelter for hay does not require expensive construction. Where the hay shed is to be located in the field or any place not intended for feeding direct, pole construction is very satisfactory. Hay sheds, of course, are made in many different sizes and types, but for average conditions, a width of 24 feet will be found convenient. It is wide enough to be economical in construction, but not so wide as to require much hand labor, in handling hay with carrier."

Greatest Item of Cost. As the roof represents the greatest item of cost, a hay shed should be made fairly high, Ward suggests. The side walls may well be 20 feet or more in height.

As the rigidity of an open pole shed is dependent largely on the poles, they should be set 4 or 5 feet in the ground. They may be spaced from 12 to 16 feet apart, so it does not require many of them to construct a hay shed of good size.

White some hay sheds are built without covering the side walls, it is a good practice to cover them part partly filled. If the side walls are 20 ravages of the cabbage worms.

feet high, the lower 8 to 12 feet may usually be left open without much spoilage. A cheap grade of lumber, or galvanized iron may be used on

Plans Available.

Plans are available in blue print form for two well established types of hay barns. These may be seen in any furm bureau office in Kansas or copies may be secured from the rural engineering department, Kunsas State Agricultural college, Manhattan. The plan for the pole hay shed costs 20 cents and the feeding barn 30 cents.

Control Cabbage Worms by the Use of Poison

Cabbage worms and cabbage aphids usually make their appearance about this season of the year in more or less destructive numbers. Farmers will find a cheap and effective remedy for controlling the pests in the use of lead arsenate and nicotine.

The most effective mixture is one containing 15 parts of powdered lead arsenate to 100 parts of hydrated lime. This is dusted on the plants and does not in any way impair the use of the cabbage for human food, it is said.

Repeated doses of the poison dust are necessary during the season, particularly when the heads are forming. if really effective control is to be se-

BETTER FERTILIZERS WILL CUT FARMERS' LARGE EXPENSE BILL

Easy to Cut in Half Quantity of Material Handled.

The trend among farmers toward the use of higher-grade fertilizers is bound to result in an appreciable reduction in the cost of growing crops. "For," says A. W. Blair, soil chemist at the New Jersey State College of Agriculture, Rutgers university, it is easily possible to cut almost in half the quantity of material to be handled, carted and shipped. This means a big saving in freight bills alone."

Even a moderate increase in the percentage of plant food in a fertilizer makes an important reduction in the amount of inert materials to be pounds of ammonia, 160 pounds of phosphoric acld and 100 pounds of potash, making in all 340 pounds of plant food. The other 1,660 pounds are combining and conditioning materials. On the other hand, 1,600 pounds of a 5-10-6 fertilizer will give 336 pounds of plant food.

A common fertilizer for corn has been one containing food elements in the ratio of 4-8-4 and used at the rate of 500 pounds to the acre. In a 500pound application there are 20 pounds of ammonia, 40 of phosphoric acid and 20 of potash. Yet the same amount of plant food would be obtained from 400 pounds of a 5-10-5. Thus in fertilizing ten acres the farmer saves the handling of and freight charges on 1,000 pounds of material.

Suckering Corn Costly

Practice for Gardener Suckering sweet corn is a practice handed down from time immemorial. Gardeners have gone on removing auckers, never doubting that it increased yield and quality. Recent experiments by H. C. Thompson, Cornell university, proved this practice not profitable either in increasing the yields or quality,

The work was carried on for five years and showed that with varieties which do not sucker heavily, there was no evidence of injury from the practice, nor any decided advantage. With types which grow many suckers, suckering didn't increase yield materially, but added to the cost $3 to $8 an acre. During periods of extreme drought or hot weather, suckering even may prove injurious to corn.

In Different Instances

Fall Plowing Benefits Fall plowing in no way causes a open winter and heavy rains, so that the soil will wash readily. No fertllity is ever lost by evaporation. Nothing but moisture goes; the solids are all left behind. In many instances, fall plowing is a benefit to the soil. Especially is this true in heavy clay or muck soil. The exposure to the elements in the winter, the action of the frost, pulverizes the clay and puts it in very much better mechanical condition. There is some danger in losing a portion of the soil by washing when it is fall plowed. If the land is left in sod, heavy rains do not wash away the soil, but when plowed, erosion may occur.

Young Trees in Need of Moisture Before Winter

Young trees, especially evergreens, need plenty of moisture before winter sets in. There is constant evaporation of moisture from the tops during the winter. If they dry out too much they will not start at all in the spring or they will come along very slowly and probably die before midsummer. If the soil is dry around the roots, water them thoroughly and then mulch them with straw or strawy manure. The mulch should not be put close to the trees but out about a foot to prevent the mice from working on the bark. This protection will keep the ground from freezing at early as that which is unprotected so that the roots may supply moisture for the tops later in the fall. In addition the mulch will keep the soil from being dried out by the winds.

Haul and Spread Manure

on Clover or Grass Sod

Manure loses something of its value every day it is kept. It is never better than the day it is made. Losses that occur in the barnyard may be partly saved if the manure is hauled out at once and spread on a clover or grass sod. There may be some loss from washing or leaching, but most of this will be deposited somewhere in the field. The Ohlo station has demonstrated that. It has shown that eight tons of manure hauled fresh from the stable and spread on clover sod in December and January gives n crop increase of $42. An equal amount of manure piled in the barnyard and spread on the sod in April or May gave an increase of $35.

Cholera Prevention Is

as Essential as Ever

The chances are that we are not going to have cheap corn this fall, The chances are also that hogs will not bring as much money as they did last fall, at the same time we already have a lot of feed in the spring crop of pigs and cholera prevention is just as essential this year as if corn were loss of fertility unless we have an cheap and hogs brought a higher price. Arrange to have your pigs vaccinated and regard the expense as insurance. Few farmers can afford to carry their own insurance risk, Better be safe now than sorry later

Substituting Silage for

Hay Found Satisfactory

A number of agricultural colleges have carried out tests to find out the advisability of substituting silage for hay and the results have been satisfactory. Silage not only is an excellent substitute for bay, but it is more economical to feed it, and there is an Forty-two per cent of the farms in increase in the production. It is not possible to tell exactly the amount saved by feeding silage, but it in said to be around 25 per cent of the

Cutting Millet Hay for

General Use of Stock If the millet hay is for general live stock feeding the crop should be cut just after blooming and before any hard seeds have formed. Millet hay containing seeds has long been held to have an injurious effect on horses. Too much millet hay, cut at any stage, affects horses more than cattle or sheep. The early cut hay, however, is to be preferred for both cattle and

WABBLING HURLERS ARE SOON YANKED

Few Pitchers Permitted to Work Out of Trouble.

Managers in the majors are so in tent on winning games these days that they take few chances on a pitcher, once he has shown a disposition to wabble. A moundsman who gets himself into trouble is seldom allowed to work out his own salvation or take the consequences. There is too much at stake.

He is derricked by most pilots the moment his predicament is realized. It is nothing out of the ordinary to see a team use two hurlers in the same game. In fact, it has become so common that it is almost the rule. And in many instances three or

Some critics believe the pinch pitch ing is being overplayed. One of them points out that Miller Huggins is inclined to allow the Yankee hurlers to go the limit, regardless of success or failure, and he believes this policy accounts in great measure for the Yanks' success.

He adds: "A pitcher who starts a game and does not finish it has done his day's work. Yet too often he is credited with the victory because a lead which his mates piled up for him is maintained by some chucker who team, six players on the roster being relieved him."

Fassport Photos Must

Proof of the vanity of some women s often furnished in the New York ustoms beuse by passport applicants, according to Frederick Tisdale in an article in Liberty. The author quotes in official of the New York passport office who says, "We are often amused by some of the photographs submitted by older applicants. A woman of fifty will bring in a photograph copied from a picture made when she was in high school. We explain tacifully that the photo is necessary for identifying the passport holder, and we are forced to point out that the applicant resembles the earlier picture only vaguely after all these years. Sometimes they regard our attitude as a personal offense."

Idolatrous worship and superstifous practices continue almost within the shadow of the Moscow universities, according to a report by the ethnographic department of the commissariat of education.

The god o hens is still placated vith special offerings in villages close to Moscow, wizards are asked to cure filnesses by applying toads to the skin of the sufferer, quacks and voodoo men conduct a thriving trade, and many other dark and dismal magics persist, in spite of the active educational work of the government.

Girl Inventor Honored

In recognition of her ability as an nventor, the Russian government has engaged Miss L. Y. Palmen, a Russian girt, as engineer-constructor. She is one of the few vomen in the world to win distinction in her field. She recently perfected an airplane engine which develops 20 horse power and is specially adapted to the requirements of the All-Russian conference of aerial and chemical defense.

Shakespeare's Writing Tells of Fatal Worry

None of Shakespeare's works in the poet's own handwriting are now in existence, but there are in existence books which belonged to Shakespeare and in which he wrote. These two conclusions have been reached by Dr. Sarouel A. Tannenbaum, Shakespearean authority. Doctor Tannenbaum has made a close scrutiny of the six indubitable specimens of Shakespeare's handwriting; the three signatures in the will in Somewet house and on the three documents, one on each at Guildhall, British museum, and public record office. He demonstrates that the poet's handwriting shows characteristics that belong to sufferers from angina pectoris, and that the poet died of this disease, brought on, probably, by domestic worries, his younger daughter having married a man unworthy of her.

A Changeable Animal An animal which can change into another animal and then back to its original form is the startling discovery announced by Dr. Martha Bunting of the zoological department of the University of Pennsylvania. The "animal" is one-celled, resembling a minute drop of jelly, and belongs to the amoeba family. It can transform Itself into a complicated flagellate, Doctor Bunting declares. and then effect a retransformation back to its amoeba state.

Coursing an Antiquated Sport

Deg racing, which is really "cours ing," and which is undergoing a great revival in this country, is one of the oldest sports. As far back as A. D. 150 there was an elaborate treatise describing what in all essentials was the sport as it is today. Yet before this we find inscribed on ancient ruins not only the hound of the chase, but what without question is the forerunner back to Elizabethan times,

FACTS -AND THE OPEN MIND

THE MOST important element in business success—and the most difficult—is to be sure that you have all the facts before you act.

GET them all, from every possible 1 source, is the first objective in General Motors. The Research Laboratories contribute some. These are nuggets, left in the crucible, after hundreds of ideas that looked good have been burned away. The Proving Ground contributes others. Dealers contribute. The public contributes. Every department contributes. Through the whole organization runs a spirit of inquiry and of rigid insistence on proof.

Out of such thinking come the new models announced from time to time by Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Oakland, Buick, LaSalle, Cadillac-all with Fisher Bodies. And by Frigidaire. Each new model is a tested step forward. Nothing goes into it as a result of habit or guess or pride of opinion.

Nothing counts but hard-won facts, gathered and used with an open mind.

Think It Over!

Wouldn't it be logical, since you pay $50.00 or more for a suit of clothes, $75.00 or more for a set of tires for your car-to pay at least that much for a new watch? A watch is expected to last a life-time, then why not buy a good one? As to how long a suit or a set of tires lasts, we need not tell you, you already know that. Is it fair to expect more of a $15.00 or $20.00 watch than of a $50.00 suit or a set of tires for $75.00? Think it over. When ready to buy, let us sell you that good watch, from our large display of reliable makes.

VANZETTI AND SACCO GO TO DEATH CHAIR

Madeiros Also Pays Penalty; Ends Seven-Year Fight for Their Lives.

State Prison, Charlestown, Mass .-Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, convicted seven years ago of the murder of a shoe factory paymaster at South Braintree, went to their deaths in penaky after a world-wide battle for establishment of their innocence. With them went Colestino Madelros, convicted three years ago of the murder of a bank cashler in Wrentham.

Midieros was the first to be executed. Sacco and Vanzetti followed a few minutes apart.

Boston .- The crime for which Nicola Sacco and Partolomeo Vanzetti were sentenced to die was a double murder. On the morning of April 15, 1920, Frederick A. Parmenter, paymaster, and Alexander Berardelli, his guard, were killed in a payroll holdup.

Sacco was a shoeworker, and employed in Stoughton, where he lived, Vanzetti lived in Plymouth, where he sold fish. Both were "radicals" and active in spreading radical propa-On their arrest, both Sacco and had been found guilty in Judge Thayer's court of a robbery at Bridgewater, and for this he was sentenced.

September 11, 1920, and went on trial at Dedham, May 31, 1921. Prior to the murder trial Vanzetti

The state produced witnesses who identified them as the men they saw at the scene of the crime. Expert testimony was given to show a bullet taken from the body of one of the murdered men "was consistent with Sacco's revolver." Defense experts gave opposite testimony. Both were found guilty, but sentence was stayed pending motions for a new trial.

In January, 1926, Celestino Madelros, under sentence of death in state prison for murder of a bank cashier. declared Sacco and Vanzetti were innecent of the Braintree murders and that a gang of which he had once been a member had committed the

The defense committee sought a new trial on the strength of this statement. Judge Thayer denied this in October, 1926. Meanwhile, several stays halted the execution of Madeiros while an appeal was taken. On April 5, 1927, the Supreme court upheld Judge Thaver's decision and Judge Thayer pronounced upon them the sentence of death.

Governor Fuller later advisory council comprising A. Lawrence Lowell, president of Harvard university; Samuel W. Stratton, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and former Judge of the Probate Court Robert Grant, On June 29, respites were granted by the governor for Madeiros, Sacco and Vanzetti, postponing their deaths up to and including August 10.

On July 17, while investigations were under way. Sacco and Vanzetti went on hunger strikes. The advisory committee concluded its investigation July 25. On August 3 the governor gave his decision, approved by each member of the advisory committee.

The governor declared he believed Sacco and Vanzetti had had a fai. trial, and that both were guilty.

No word has been received that either of these planes has been in the air over China.

Navy Boats and Planes Continue Search of Pacific for Missing Planes.

San Francisco, Calif.-While pavy boats and planes searched under an extended "zero hour," Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Secretary Wilbur declined to comment on Admiral Eberle's prediction. The secretary said the President had some power in this respect, but said he was not sure this was suffi-

That navy men conducting the hunt for the missing men in the Dallas Spirit held little hope for their rescue was reflected by Lieut.-Com, William C. Tooze of the destroyer Hazelwood, who said: "I do not think there is one chance in a thousand that the Dallas Spirit will ever be found. The Hazelwood, in command of Commander E. H. Connor, covered an area of 3,200 square miles about a point where she gave us her last position and in that space there was not a piece of flotsamnot even an oil spot." The destroyers Hazelwood, Hull, Kidder, Farenholt and Corry returned to San Francisco to restock their larders and refuel, preparatory to proceeding back to sea to rejoin the airplane carrier Langley, some 500 miles off shore. Why "C" Battery Should Be Used Increases Selectivity of Set by Reducing Losses in the Tube.

Pointing out that it would appear gard to the "C" hattery, Lewis M. Clement, chief engineer for Fada radio, sets to work to explain what it is the navy, in Washington predicted the all about.

"The average tube of the 301A type now used in radio has an amplifying factor of about eight to one, and every volt of 'C' battery used to impress a negative potential on the grid results in a reduction of the effective 'B' battery voltage or plate voltage by 8 volts.

"As an illustration let us assume that a tube is being used without 'C' battery and with a plate voltage (plus B) of 90 volts. Now if we impress a negative 'C' voltage on the grid of 41/2 volts, that is, use a 41/2-volt 'C battery, the effective plate voltage (plus B) is not 90 volts, but becomes 90 volts less eight times 416 (that is 90 volts less 36 volts)-and results in an effective plate voltage of only

For 301A Tubes.

"For normal operation of the 301A type of tube in audio and radio-frequency amplifiers about 90 volts plate potential is used and at 90 volts the tube manufacturers recommend a negative grid bias, that is, a 'C' battery of minus 41/2 volts. In many cases it will be found that a minus 3-volt 'C battery will give satisfactory results and result in more amplification or sensitivity of the radio-frequency amplifier because the effective plate voltage is raised. The effective plate voltage is then 90 volts minus three Another Means. "More amplification or more sensidvity of the radio-frequency amplifier can also be obtained by raising the plate voltage to 1121/2. The effective plate voltage is raised and is 1121 volts minus eight times four and one

"This additional increase in effect tive plate voltage will, of course, inrease the amplification of the radiofrequency amplifier, and it is evident that if more sensitivity is desired it can be obtained by increasing the plate potential from 90 to 11216 or decreasing the 'C' battery from minus 416 to minus 3, which is consistent with the requirements for good qual-

bespeak other than a flash of the sensational-a mere passing fancy. However, midseason and fall styles disclose the fact that serpents reincarnated into coats and hats and such smart details as handbags, belts and shoes are still moving about on the stage of fashlon.

Indeed so popular have snakeskin effects become that some of the newest silks for blouse and for scarf, for coat linings and dress trimmings are printed in snakeskin patterningswhich proves again that "imitation is the sincerest flattery."

Now comes along a new tribute to the fashionable serpent—the snakeskin raincoat made of rubberized fabric imitating reptile effect.

As a trimming snakeskin is really wonderfully attractive. Some of au tumn's smartest jersey dresses in twopiece styling are detailed with pockets of snakeskin with narrow bands inserted at wristline and on the collar, also finishing the ends of a scarf that of which the dress is made is inlayed, so to speak, with clever seamings.

A close study of the frock in the picture will reveal an interesting inset styling. This little dress is of chestnut colored wool rep with insets of a lighter brown ingeniously seamed into the body of the garment,

These inlay constructions present vast possibilities for intriguing design. For instance, a navy blue jersey frock has inserted strips of French blue, so seamed as to radiate from a point at one side, like spokes of a cart wheel. Another simple interpretation of the inset treatment is that of making a deep yoke of a light tone with a darker portion sewed below, the hemline displaying a third-degree coloring. Dresses for children not only employ inlays of one color, but of many. Ingenious seaming is given to squares, triangles and other conventional motifs of various shades until a gay and modernistic patterning is the result.

Unbroken lines from neck to hem ! the most approved styling this season. In the soft crepes and ginghams this is accomplished by means of smocking, shirring, tucking and plaiting, which allows the fullness to fall from the shoulder. Not only is the peasant-type frock heavily smocked, but this same form of handiwork is very popular Cunning Little Dress.

The envelope bag under the arm of Stylists are using for children's daytime autumn frocks such woolens as jersey, kasha, wool crepe, serge, rep and velveteen.

After vacation, then what? Outfitting the little folks for school answers the query. Considering that children are so decidedly in the foreground of fashion these days, it becomes imperative that their frocks be well styled, not only for "dressup" occasions but for school wear and playtime hours as well.
