

ACTIVITIES OF OUR HIGH SCHOOL

The base ball team lost to Campbellsport at Campbellsport last Friday afternoon by a 4 to 11 score. They played Glenbeulah here on Friday afternoon of this week.

A meeting of the principals and members of the various schools of the County League was held at Fond du Lac on Saturday, Sept. 17. It was held to divide the league into a North and South Sub-league. This was possible to arrange a base ball schedule that will eliminate dissensions.

The Kewaskum high school schedule for the fall season is as follows: September 23—Glenbeulah, here. September 30—Lomira, there. October 7—Campbellsport here. October 14—open.

The sophomore class gave a party in honor of the Freshmen class at the school last Friday evening.

Twenty-five boys met at the high school on Tuesday evening for the purpose of organizing and continuing scout work. Those in attendance at the patrols to which they were assigned were:

- 1—Wolf Patrol:—Leader—John L. Schaefer. Assistant—Fred Weddig, Sylvester Herman, William Schaefer, Herbert Backhaus, George Koerble, William Martin, Earl Etna.
- 2—Flying Eagle Patrol:—Leader—Henry Lay. Assistant—August Koch, Lloyd Hron, Lester Casper, Jacob Schlosinger, Elroy Hron, Lehman L. Rosenheimer, Raymond Herman.
- 3—Owl Patrol:—Leader—Roland Heberer. Assistant—William Harbeck, Carl Meilahn, Bill Hess, Bruno Ramthun, Harold Casper, Albert Hron, Leonard Honeck, Robert Hutzinger.

Grammar Room Notes
The Grammar room school club held their first meeting last Friday. The following officers were elected: George Brandt, President. Charlotte Lay, Secretary.

Junior Rosenheimer, Treasurer. Ralph Habek resigned as captain of the Grammar room base ball team. Herbert Backhaus was elected in his stead.

The Freshmen played the Freshmen last Friday we had planned and won the game with a score of 5 to 3.

The sixth, seventh and eighth grades have started their reading circle work.

KUDEK-GOETZ WEDDING

Miss Marie Kudek of Milwaukee, daughter of Mrs. Gregor Schmitz of Kewaskum, was united in marriage to Peter L. Goetz of Milwaukee at the Holy Trinity church last Saturday.

Ph. Vogt performed the ceremony. The couple were attended by Miss Frances Koenen as maid of honor and Miss Eleanor Schott as bridesmaid. Harry Goetz was best man and Ewald Aloysius Volm as ushers. The bride carried a bouquet of white roses. The maid of honor wore a honey dew dress and carried a bouquet of tea roses. The bridesmaids wore orchid dresses and carried bouquets of pink roses. A reception was held at the home after the ceremony with about sixty guests in attendance. The decorations at the home were pink and white, while the church was decorated with ferns and asters. The young couple will reside at Milwaukee where they will be home after October 1st.

ARE ADVOCATING PURCHASE OF TRACT OF LAND FOR PARK

Mayville residents are advocating the purchase of a tract of land for public park purposes. Businessmen and others interested in the project have inspected parks in neighboring cities and are a unit in asserting that the time has arrived when Mayville should take decisive action in the park matter. The tract under consideration is said, is so located as to already constitute a natural park. The park advocates contend that a minimum of time and expense would convert the land into a public recreational place that would compare favorably with similar spots in other communities. Public parks in small as well as large centers of population are assets that steadily increase in value. They are important essentials in the building of happier, more energetic, prosperous and contented communities.

FIRE IN CAFE

A fire occurring at 2:30 a. m. Tuesday in a store room in the building of the Haupt building on South Main street, occupied by the Majestic Cafe, came near adding another building and contents to the list of fire raids that have been occurring rather frequently the past months, causing a total that will run close to $5,000 to the building and restaurant equipment. The Majestic Cafe was one of the most elaborately equipped in the county and was a show place in the city. The furniture and fixtures and a large stock of cigars, tobaccos, candies, novelty goods, table linen, etc., are all heavily coated with creosote.—Hartford Times.

REGINALD DENNY AT THE MOVIES

As gifted at playing light comedy roles as she is at interpreting heavy dramatic parts, Emily Fitzroy, noted character actress of the screen, is one of the most versatile players before the camera.

She gives an outstanding comedy characterization in "The Cheerful Fraud," Reginald Denny's latest Universal starring picture which comes to the Opera House Sunday, and in "What Happened to Jones," a recent Denny production, contributed another comedy performance fully as understanding yet totally unlike her characterization in the current picture.

Despite her gift for comedy, her first great part on the screen was a tragic one, that of the mountaineer mother in "Driven" the artistic triumph directed by Charles Brabin and released by Universal some four years ago.

Miss Fitzroy was a star on the legitimate stage in London, and later duplicated her success in England in the New York theatre. While on the stage she did a number of screen roles and in "Driven" attracted such widespread attention that she has been devoting all of her time to pictures ever since.

EARLY SUNDAY MORNING ACCIDENT

Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Moldenhauer of Milwaukee were guests of Mrs. Ida Zimmerman Saturday and Sunday on their way to Horicon early Sunday morning they met with an auto accident. The Moldenhauer's were driving in a light roadster going west near the Drehmel cheese factory on highway 28, when suddenly a heavier car drove out of the driveway, connecting with the Moldenhauer car. The impact caused the Milwaukee car to tip over on its side pinning Mrs. Moldenhauer underneath. She was taken to a Mayville doctor where it was found she suffered severe injuries to her legs. The car was badly damaged.—Lomira Review.

TRAGEDY OPENS HUNTING SEASON

Theodore Rimmel, aged 24 years, 1540 Hopkins St., Milwaukee, son of Nick Rimmel, Milwaukee and a grandson of Math. Rimmel Sr., formerly of Kewaskum, was killed on Nemahin lake, thirty miles west of Milwaukee, when a shotgun charge pierced his heart.

Rimmel with Harry Kohlhoss, a close friend, were out on the lake when the latter sighted a duck flying towards them. "You take a shot at it, Teddy," Kohlhoss said, at the same time passing his shotgun to Rimmel. Just as he was about to grasp the weapon, it was discharged and the full charge struck Rimmel in the chest. The accident occurred at about 6 a. m. The hunting season opened at 5:10 a. m.

Besides his parents he is survived by his wife (nee Anita New) to whom he was married the previous month, on August 15th, and three brothers, Arthur, Harold and Roland. To the surviving relatives we extend our most heartfelt sympathy.

Kohlhoss, prostrated with grief by the tragedy, was removed to a hospital at Oconomowoc. The body of Rimmel was brought to Milwaukee.

Rimmel was employed in the grocery store of his father, Nicholas Rimmel at 1529 Hopkins street. Kohlhoss is a filling station attendant.

GINSENG IS A CROP OF ENORMOUS PROFIT

A recent visit to the ginseng farms of John Nieman & Co., in the township of Mequos revealed the interesting fact that an experiment in growing ginseng is approaching a successful issue. The largest field consists of approximately twenty acres, near the fox farms north of Thiensville, and there are four other fields in various parts of the township of Mequon, a total of about eighty acres in the holdings of Mr. Nieman and his associates in this venture. We are informed that five years are required to bring a crop of ginseng to maturity and the twenty acre field north of Thiensville was planted four years ago and therefore a harvest is expected from this field next year. The ginseng is in prime condition. From these twenty acres a crop of fully $20,000 value is anticipated. The other fields are coming along splendidly and will each in turn produce satisfactory financial returns.—Port Washington Star.

DEATHS OF THE PAST WEEK

Andrew Flasch of St. Kilian, received the news of the death of his brother, Herman which occurred at the County Hospital at Milwaukee Friday morning. Mr. Flasch of Waterloo, Iowa, who was on his way to attend the funeral of his nephew Frank, which was held at St. Kilian a week ago last Saturday, had reached Milwaukee and later was picked up on Reed street, suffering a severe skull fracture and was removed to Emergency Hospital, later on being taken to the County Hospital. Just how Mr. Flasch was knocked unconscious no one knows but it is the belief of relatives that he was hit by a "hit and run" motorist as he had several blue marks under the knee cap. Mr. Flasch only regained a short time of consciousness being unable to account for anything in this interval. He died a week later. The body was brought to the home of his brother Andrew at St. Kilian Sunday afternoon. Funeral services were held Monday morning at St. Kilian's Catholic church with burial in the adjoining cemetery. Rev. Conrad Flasch, brother of the deceased officiated at the ceremonies. Herman Joseph Flasch was born at St. Kilian May 12, 1867. He leaves to mourn, two brothers, Rev. Conrad Flasch of Decada, Andrew of St. Kilian; one sister, Mrs. Catherine Schrauth of Barton. At the time of his death Mr. Flasch was employed as landscape gardener at St. Anthony's Hospital at Waterloo, Iowa.

The pall bearers were six nephews: Leo Flasch, Alphonse Flasch, Andrew Flasch, Anton Flasch, Alphonse Schrauth and Joseph Flasch. The flower carriers were also two nephews Paul Flasch and Tony Yearling.

NEWS OF THE BADGER STATE

Kewaunee—Edward Grassel of Luxemburg appeared in Kewaunee court on a charge of dynamiting fish in the Kewaunee river. He was fined $200.

Birchwood—A Rhode Island Red hen which lays eggs from seven to nine inches in circumference and from six to seven ounces in weight is owned by Carl Koel, a Washburn county farmer.

Plainfield—More than 50 bushels of rye, sweet cream, robes, grain bags, tires and other articles were taken from three farm homes on highway 71, looted while the owners were attending a community meeting of Leola residents here.

Dodgeville—Profits of $2,200 from the recent centennial celebration here will be applied toward the purchase of a privately owned park which will be turned over to the city and named Dodge park in honor of Gov. Henry Dodge, after whom the city is named.

Wausau—Damages of $1,980 are asked by Amos Radcliffe, Eagle River farmer, in a claim against the Northwestern road for alleged damage to a carload of triumph seed potatoes which was spoiled enroute to New York. The case was transferred from Vilas to Wausau county.

Sparta—Harry W. Barney, cashier and director of the Bank of Sparta for 11 years, has resigned to accept the position of bank examiner, recently offered him by the state banking department. Mr. Barney was president of the Neeshah bank for nine years previous to coming to Sparta.

Madison—Wisconsin crops for 1927 will be far below the general average, both the United States and the Wisconsin crop and livestock reporting service says. The drought during August reduced all crops and the rain of a week ago, although it was generous, was too late to be of much use, the report says.

Madison—Some 5,000 letters of invitation have been sent to co-operative groups and individual farmers about the state, asking them to participate in the Wisconsin farm congress which is to be held at Madison Oct. 13 and 14. There are sent in addition to the general open invitation to every farmer in the state.

Racine—Odd Fellows from 171 Wisconsin cities and villages will meet here Oct. 10 to 12 in the annual session of the grand encampment. The grand encampment has thousands of subordinate lodges in the state, many of which will send visitors on the second day, when the evening program will be open to the public.

Neenah—Ducks are scarce, but rice hens are plentiful. Hunters returning from the Poyan and Winneconne marshes west of here succeeded in filling their bags with hens, but ducks were few and far between. Warm weather and mosquitoes marred the opening of the hunting season. No sign of northern birds was reported.

Phillips—Mayor F. M. Lillie of Phillips has offered a substantial reward for evidence leading to the arrest and conviction of the person responsible for the numerous mysterious fires in this city within the last year. These fires, confined chiefly to sheds and barns, have occurred with alarming frequency with considerable property loss.

Iron River—Despite unfavorable weather this year the bean crop in this part of the state is larger than anticipated and many farmers will realize more than $400 per acre. The Iron River cannery will probably pack 50 per cent over last year, when the pack was very light. John Jatz of Oulu, champion bean grower in this territory, will have an income of more than $500 per acre.

Madison—Dalrymple in Wisconsin who have cattle suffering from Johne's disease, may rid their herds of such cattle and receive indemnity from state and federal funds, according to Dr. E. A. Beach, veterinarian at the college of agriculture. "Johne's disease," says Dr. Beach, "is a slow progressing chronic disease, known among farmers as chronic bacterial dysentery. It is believed that death is sure to result. So far as known, it has never been found in the human body, but cows afflicted with it may cause serious damage to an entire herd. Indemnity for reacting cattle is the same as for tubercular reactors. The payment is half the difference between the appraised value of the animal and the net salvage."

Kewaunee—Henry Jerabek was severely cut and bruised when a team of horses he was driving ran away and threw him under a disc harrow, which chopped large gashes in his legs and on his body.

Neenah—Charged with illegal fishing with nets, Oscar Larson, Oshkosh, and Joseph Larson, Calumet county, pleaded guilty in court here and were fined $50 each. The two were arrested several months ago by conservation wardens.

Appleton—One of the state's finest churches, the new First Methodist Episcopal building here, will be dedicated Oct. 25. Of Gothic architecture, the church with its steeple exterior and vaulted interior presents what architects call one of the most perfect designs in church structure.

Waukesha—While playing in the pasture of the farm of his parents, George Jungbluth, 2, was gored to death by a cow. When the child was found several ribs had been fractured and he had suffered internal injuries.

Dodgeville—Henry Lawinger found 34 dead pigs in his hog lot recently. A bolt of lightning had killed the entire drove with a loss of more than $900.

Stevens Point—Edith M. Hamacker, for 17 years a supervisor of teacher training at Marathon County Normal school at Wausau, died at her home here.

Richland Center—Albert, 13-year-old son of William Benson, prominent farmer of the town of Sylvan, was killed when he was thrown over the head of his pony.

Oshkosh—Immediate dismissal faces students at State Teachers' college who engage in hazing. President Harry A. Brown announced in his opening address before upper classmen.

Rice Lake—L. P. Schuster of Rice Lake may lose the sight of an eye as the result of a cast made by Miss Ellen Peterson, Barron. Two of the hooks of an artificial bait caught in his left eye.

Baraboo—The Sauk County Fair association closed one of its best years in the history of the exposition. Total gate receipts for the three days of the day and night fair was $3,833.40. This sum only exceeded by the record 1925 fair by a small margin.

Lancaster—A trio of Indian medicine doctors, two men and a woman, who have been operating in Grant county, are sought after farmers, business men and others have been fleeced out of thousands of dollars. In Platteville, according to business men, victims of the trio paid more than $4,000 for the cure all Indian remedies. In the county at large the sale of the Indian medicines amounted to more than $10,000.

Watertown—One man may die and another is severely burned as the result of a 30,000-gallon gasoline fire here. Harry Marshall, truck driver, is in a hospital near death. His clothes were burned off when his truck was enveloped by flames, probably ignited by backfire. O. L. Delist, filling station manager, was severely burned about the arms when he closed valves which probably saved 40,000 gallons of gasoline and kerosene stored in three tanks.

Racine—A legal battle looms in Racine between the city and county because of the discovery that the county has been charging more than actual expense for lodging patients at the city homes. The county has charged the city $4.80 each week for lodging city inmates and patients while the actual expense has been about $3.50 a week. County officials have no right to make a profit at county institutions at the expense of the city, city officials maintain.

Madison—Members of the legislature are receiving invitations to the Wisconsin farm congress in Madison Oct. 13 and 14. The congress will determine "what part Wisconsin will take in state and national farm relief legislation and develop such a program or organization as may seem advisable to achieve this end." The main sessions will be held in the University of Wisconsin gymnasium. State legislators are asked to furnish the committee the addresses of 25 or 50 farmers in their respective districts who would be likely to attend the congress.

Madison—Desiring to destroy evidence which linked him to the holdup of the South Side State bank here recently, John R. McClintic walked into a police trap at his former rooming place here. McClintic, 23, who would pass anywhere in this university town as a dapper college boy, confessed to police that he was the bandit who succeeded after one failure in robbing the South Side bank of $2,200. He returned to Madison after several days spent in Chicago, hoping to enter his room and escape with $25 in pennies which he had hidden in a closet and to destroy bloody clothing which he left there. He was subdued after a desperate battle with two policemen.

Milwaukee—Market quotations: Butter—Creamery, fresh extras, tubs, 45c; extra firsts, 42c-43c. Cheese—Twins, 26c-27c; daisies, 27c-28c; longhorns, 26c-27c; brick, 25c-26c; Ilmberger, 24c-24c. Eggs—Fresh gathered firsts, 34c-35c. Poultry—Fowls, 15c-25c; springers, 24c; broilers, 22c; roosters, 15c; turkeys, 18c-25c; geese, 14c-17c. Potatoes—Wisconsin, early Ohio, cwt., $1.65-1.75. Barley—Choice to fancy, 82c-84c; fair to good, 75c-82c. Corn—No. 3 yellow, 89c-90c; No. 3 white, 88c-90c. Oats—No. 3 white, 45c-46c. Rye—No. 2, 95c-95c. Hogs—Fair to best butchers, $11.00-11.50; fair to good lights, $9.50-11.50; pigs, $8.00-9.00. Cattle—Steers, fair to choice, $8.00-13.00; heifers, $6.00-9.50; cows, $5.50-7.50; calves, $14.50-16.00. Sheep—Lambs, good to choice, $12.75-13.00; fair to good, $12.00-12.50; ewes, $3.50-6.00.

Madison—That the 1927-28 enrollment at the University of Wisconsin will reach 8,500 is indicated by applications for admission, which exceed by 500 the number last year, according to F. O. Holt, registrar.

Eau Claire—After 10 years' exile due to war fever, the teaching of German again will be instituted in the Eau Claire high school. The majority of schools in the state, where German was temporarily banned, have reintroduced the study of the language.

Green Bay—Miss Cellina Romden, 70, of Algoma, died here from burns received when fire in the kitchen stove ignited her dress.

Madison—The state may recover funds paid out wrongfully or erroneously, according to an opinion given the adjutant general by the state attorney general. This opinion was rendered in regard to funds paid to former service men as cash or educational bonuses. Action for recovery may be taken after a formal demand for return of the money.

YANK LEGIONNAIRES WELCOMED IN PARIS

Accompanied by Wives, Americans Parade—Coolidge Sends Message.

Paris.—For the third time in French history, the famous Arc de Triomphe was opened to foreign troops as 14,000 American Legionnaires and their wives marched in a parade which had as its purpose the placing of flowers upon the tomb of France's unknown soldier.

The procession, which received a welcome reminiscent of war days when the first American troops arrived in France, preceded the official opening of the Legion convention at the Palais du Trocadero, where 4,000 official delegates were assembled under Gen. John J. Pershing and the Legion's national commander, Howard P. Savage, of Chicago. President Doumergue of France, and Marshal Foch, who commanded the allied armies in the World war, were present at the opening.

In a message from President Coolidge, read at the opening of the convention, the return of the American Legion to France was held to be symbolic of the fast friendship between the two nations. The message was received with cheers. Its text follows: "My Dear Commander Savage: To the convention of the American Legion there is attached a significance far greater than that which was given at the gatherings in this country, important though they be. Ten years have passed since the American expeditionary forces crossed to France following our decision to enter the great struggle then going on for the preservation of the ideals of democracy."

"Now the members of the American Legion, upon the generous invitation of the Republic of France, are returning to those scenes as a symbol of the bonds of respect, friendship and affection existing from the very foundation of our country and cemented anew during the World war as we are firm and strong now as in the past. "To hold your ninth annual convention in Paris, where in the spring of 1919 your great organization was conceived, was a happy thought. Not only do you carry with you the good will of America, but it is your privilege to lay at the graves of your comrades there the tributes of a grateful country which will never cease to hold them in a hallowed memory. Nor will you fail to remember also the sons of France who freely gave their lives to a great issue."

"This honor the people of our country gladly bestow upon you and, speaking for them, I want to express my sincere belief that your mission will be of the highest value in further emphasizing the cordial relations which exist between our two republics and the lofty principles which they have fought to preserve and which they will always cherish. "Very truly yours, "CALVIN COOLIDGE."

Eight Legion bands played in unison as the convention opened. The huge auditorium was draped with American and French flags. The business session was brief, a few committee reports being adopted. At a sign from Commander Savage, the assembly sang "There Is No Death," in memory of America's war dead.

The procession of 14,000 Americans set forth from the Place de l'Etoile, through the Arc de Triomphe and down the Champs d'Élysees to the Place de la Concorde where Marshal Foch, Marshal Joffre, and General Pershing reviewed the marchers. The parade was in charge of General James A. Drain, and in spite of the inclement weather it was carried out in fine style.

Bonquets of red, white and blue flowers were handed to the ex-service men and their women folk by French boy scouts as the parade passed the Statue of Lafayette.

Women of America received the thanks of France for sacrifices in behalf of the allies during the World war. At the opening session of the American Legion auxiliary, General Goutraud, representing the French army, and Andre Tardieu, representing the French government, addressed the American women, voicing appreciation for the great services given by American manhood and womanhood during the struggle.

May Wear Bare Legs Sacramento, Cal.—If California high school flappers want to go to school without stockings they may, legally. This opinion was given by William John Cooper, state superintendent of public instruction.

Bus Bandits Get $50,000 Cleveland, Ohio.—Three young bandits held up a Cleveland-Akron bus on Brecksville road in Summit county and escaped with $50,000 in gems which they took from a New York jeweler.

American Killed in Mexico Washington.—David I. Fisher of Philadelphia, chief clerk of the Southern Pacific railway at Guadalajara, was shot and killed by a Mexican employee, the State Department has been advised.

18 Flogging Indictments Voted Birmingham, Ala.—Approximately 18 indictments in no fewer than six flogging cases were returned by the Jefferson county grand jury reporting to Judge John McCoy.

MacMillan Party in Camp Portland, Maine.—Radio messages received here state that the MacMillan-Field museum expedition to the Arctic has taken up winter quarters at Bowdoin harbor, northern Labrador.

Oppose Ban on Ocean Flights Washington.—The federal air commission voted against the proposed government edict, prohibiting ocean flights because of risk to human lives.

REAR ADMIRAL DEAD

Rear Admiral B. F. Hutchinson.

Utica, N. Y.—Rear Admiral Benjamin F. Hutchinson, former assistant chief of naval operations and commander of the Washington navy yard, is dead at a hospital here.

$500,000,000 URGED FOR FLOOD STATES

Coolidge May Favor Request, Committee Reports.

Washington.—The federal government should shoulder the responsibility of flood control and should appropriate $500,000,000 to be spent over a given period of years for that end, President Coolidge was told by members of the tri-state flood control committee which called at the White House.

On leaving, members of the committee said they had found the President receptive to their ideas and that he appeared to be in favor of a national plan which would cover the Mississippi and all its tributaries.

The committee was headed by Gov. J. E. Martineau of Arkansas, and also included John R. Fordyce and H. C. Cech of Arkansas, J. P. Butler and Marcel Garsaud of Louisiana and Oscar Johnson and L. O. Crosby of Mississippi. They also conferred with Secretary of War Davis. After their conference with him the following statement was issued: "The Tri-State Executive Flood Control committee from Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas was granted an interview by Secretary of War Davis and General Jadin, chief of engineers, at which the problems of flood control were discussed at length. "The committee found that the War department was pushing its investigations with all possible speed, and that progress was being made in assembling data as fast as it could be handled by a staff of 150 engineers and other experts."

"All phases of the problems embracing levees, spillways, reservoirs and other plans are being studied and the committee was highly gratified to learn of the scope and thoroughness with which the problem was being investigated. "At the conclusion of the interview the committee was especially pleased at obtaining the promise of Secretary Davis to make a personal trip of investigation through the flooded area about the middle of October."

World's Biggest Plane Being Built in Italy

Rome.—The world's biggest airplane is being secretly built in the Caproni airplane works near Milan. It will be a 6,000-horse powered, six-motored, all metal plane.

With the new plane Italy hopes to capture the world's nonstop record, claiming the almost fantastic cruising radius of 6,000 miles. Early next year a nonstop flight will be attempted from Milan to Rio de Janeiro. Remarkable climbing power is claimed for the mystery plane, since Italian engineers believe in sacrificing speed for lightness. Accordingly, the monster ship is being geared to fly about 15,000 to 20,000 feet up, where air currents are most favorable.

Japanese Typhoon Toll 425 Dead, 2,400 Injured

Tokyo.—In an official communique issued by the Japanese home office, the toll of the typhoon and tidal wave which occurred a few days ago in the prefecture of Kumamoto on the island of Kiusiu was given as 425 dead and 2,400 injured. Approximately 730 houses were destroyed and 200 or more small coastal craft were wrecked or sunk.

PRICE FORECAST ON COTTON IS STOPPED

Secretary Jardine's Order Approved by President; Protests From South.

Washington.—Price forecasting by government departments was scored by President Coolidge following an announcement by Secretary of Agriculture Jardine that no more predictions as to the price trend in cotton will be issued by the Department of Agriculture.

The secretary acted after recent publication of a department report that lower prices might be expected in cotton was followed by a violent reaction downward in the cotton market.

Feeling that any forecasting of crop prices is hazardous, the President approved Mr. Jardine's proposal to discontinue statements for cotton in the future on price trends.

Secretary Jardine's statement was issued following a cabinet meeting at which the heavy drop in the cotton market was the subject of discussion. The secretary said he would conduct an investigation.

Secretary Jardine agreed with the President that reports of the character responsible for the reaction in the cotton market should be discontinued.

In explaining that similar reports on price trends for cotton would be halted, the secretary said: "The statement on the price situation for cotton which received unusual attention in the cotton markets was based upon statistics representing production, world stocks, consumption and the usual relation of the prospective supply to price. It was not a special price forecast."

"The fundamental factors affecting the cotton situation, as outlined in the September report, were recognized a month ago, when the department noted the same general conditions and made a similar statement of the probable trend of prices. The widespread quotation of a part of the statement, in my opinion, has unduly disturbed the speculative markets."

"I feel that the statement has had an undue effect on the market; nevertheless, I have issued instructions discontinuing for the future similar statements for cotton which indicate price trends."

Protests from the South against the action of the Department of Agriculture poured into Secretary Jardine's office. Some southern congressmen threatened a congressional investigation, asserting cotton producers had been seriously injured.

Sweet Clovers Vary in Growth

Offer Opportunity for Development of New Strains for Definite Uses.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

All sweet clovers are variable in their habits of growth, and many individual plants of distinct type and form may be found in nearly any sweet-clover field. This offers an opportunity for the development of new strains of sweet clover for definite uses, according to L. W. Kephart, forage crop specialist of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Better Hay Varieties. There is considerable interest at present in the production of better hay varieties, he says, since the common sweet clovers, especially the white-flowered species, are too coarse and heavy to make good hay from the second year's growth. Several good hay varieties have already been developed, notably the early flowering Grundy County, Crystal Dwarf and Early Dwarf varieties of white sweet clover, and the Albotra and Switzer varieties of yellow sweet clover. Recently a type of sweet clover bearing many more and finer stems than the common sorts was found at two of the western Canadian experiment stations. It resembles alfalfa so closely that it is easily mistaken for that plant. This important discovery will no doubt add a distinct new type of forage plant to the present list.

The need for winter-hardy types has been met with the Arctic, or Hansen's Siberian, a white-flowered variety from western Canada. A sweet clover much better suited than the common sorts to the cold, dry climate of the northern Great Plains appears to have been developed at the Redfield (S. D.) field station of the United States Department of Agriculture.

On Acid Soils. Several persons are endeavoring to find a sweet clover that will grow on acid soils, lack of lime being a serious hindrance to culture of the crop in many localities. Still others are trying to develop a strain suited to the drought and hot winds of the southern Great Plains.

A type of sweet clover that would be exceedingly useful, according to Mr. Kephart, is one that would remain green late in the fall, start growth early the next spring, and remain green and in good feeding condition well into the following summer. A number of experimenters, both on farms and at experiment stations, have approached this type with selections of common white sweet clover. Perhaps even better results will come from tests now being made with species and varieties brought from Europe and eastern Asia, one such species this year having remained green six weeks later than any sweet clover heretofore grown.

PROGRESS IN ERADICATION OF BOVINE TUBERCULOSIS

Many Counties Complete Tuberculin Testing.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture) A summary of tuberculosis-eradication work conducted by the United States Department of Agriculture in co-operation with the various states shows excellent results during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1927. An outstanding achievement was the large increase in the number of entire counties which have completed the tuberculin testing of all cattle within their boundaries. The summary of progress shows 347 such counties distributed among 27 states. This more than half of the states have one or more such tuberculosis-free counties. The three leading states in this respect are North Carolina with 82 counties on the modified-accrued list, Michigan with 42 and Iowa with 30 such counties.

On July 1 a total of 17,000,380 cattle in the United States were under supervision for the eradication of bovine tuberculosis. Besides this number considerably more than four million cattle are on waiting lists and will be tested as soon as the federal, state and county veterinary inspectors complete other work for those owners who signed up earlier for tuberculin testing.

Crude Oil Is Effective in Eradication of Lice

One application of crude oil, effectively applied, will kill both lice and mites on hogs. This is easier to use than some of the dips that require more than one treatment to clean up the lice. One dipping is not generally enough to kill the lice. A good way to oil the hogs is to drive them into a corner of the yard, herding them real close with the aid of hurdles. The oil can then be sprinkled liberally on their backs with an ordinary garden sprinkling can. A broom can also be used, dipping it into the oil and then scrubbing the legs and bellies of the hogs. Lice live around the ears, especially if the hogs have access to a wallow. These can be reached by squirting oil around them and into the rims with an ordinary oil can. An oil-covered corn cob can be used effectively in these places.

John M. Evard of Iowa State college favors the use of oil because of its disinfectant qualities and its low cost.

Agricultural Facts

Soy beans with corn is an insurance against an imperfect stand.

Cull the slow-maturing plants. They will be cull hens when they grow up, if they ever do grow.

Show your best live stock and feed products at the fair. Remember that if wet or dry weather, or bugs or worms, or something else hits you, it probably hit the other fellow, too.

Prices of dairy cattle are on an up-grade and they probably will continue to rise until about 1931 when they will reach the peak.

The glazed stage is right for storing silage, but frosted corn makes inferior silage; better harvest the corn than too late.

It pays to ring-face hedges of peaches, pears, or apples because each fruit in the face gets its share of the pressure from the cover. The package sells better because it is more attractive.

Continuous cropping of land to the same crop frequently so separates the soil damage that the yields will be considerably reduced. Rotation of crops is a good means of checking insect damage.

Gather together all weeds and other materials, including grass lawn clippings, etc., before any weed seeds have developed and compost them with alternate layers of soil and manure.

Instantly he drove to a Western Union office and dispatched a cable, with answer prepaid, to the countess of Haversham, Haversham, England. The reply came in less than an hour. "Lady Haversham," he read, "has never heard of Agatha Brown and recommends Robia McKimber to put the matter in the hands of the police."

There remained that great French policeman, the duchess of something or another. His mother saw him coming uncertainly at a piece of paper that looked like a note; he opened it, and there he saw French, and the name was indistinct. Mrs. McKimber read the language easily. He did not want to make a mistake. He proceeded to describe Agatha this way, possibly she had adopted a name.

"She is," said Mrs. McKimber, "a woman of Green-Cheese."

"Didn't there be such a person?" said the duchess, with a frown.

"Of course not. Where are you going to such a hurry?"

"I had no time to answer. He wanted very much to see the visitor. But here again he met disappointment. Sneed informed him that he had gone and left no forwarding address for his mail. A friend at his house advised Robin to consult the new ambassador de Bruxelles, in whose name the nobility of continental Europe is described. There was no mention of any Count or Viscount de Gull-

Robin went back to Great Rock a disillusioned young man, filled with bitterness. There was no such thing as the world as honor or truth. Agatha was an adventuress, the fake visitor an accomplice. He wondered why there was not already a robbery in progress. It must be because Mrs. Raxon had dismissed her before the eyes of the coup. His inquiries about the Brown had frightened the visitor away. He was particularly anxious to meet the swindler.

Mrs. McKimber said that her son was more disturbed at her husband's condition. He had aged for no reason that was comprehensible to his wife. He had spoken vaguely about going up the senatorial race and being quietly away from his business. McKimber hinted that he might inquire Raxon. Secretly she was not sorry to relinquish the Washington prospect. The prospect had been less alluring to her than to him. Mrs. McKimber was more interested in her own city than the nation's capital, with its jealousies, intrigues, and constant entertaining.

CHAPTER XI

Peter Milman received the transmittal Nita had made from her notes without showing the treacherous eagerness that possessed him when he had done so splendidly. "I am almost satisfied to read it," he said.

"You need not be," she said slowly. "I think you will find that you have found your home."

"This is it complete success?" he asked.

"There is still more to be done," she said. "I think we have done it. She could not bear to talk any more."

In his library, Peter Milman read the document carefully. He saw exactly what a deadly grip Paul Raxon had on McKimber. But Peter Milman was not yet in a position to share this knowledge to account. So Mrs. McKimber was the sufferer in that, whereas only one man had known his secret, now it was shared with many. Milman thought of the matter as equally as though it were an ordinary and McKimber's case had come before him. On one side, McKimber and Raxon. On the other, Peter Milman, himself, and Malet. He persuaded himself that it was just against injustice, right against wrong. He had brooded too long over the prospect of losing his home to any qualms left. He waited impatiently until the hour when he expected Bradley and Barnes. They did not leave Great Rock until past midnight, and it was almost midnight when he passed them Nita's note.

The next thing to do is to obtain the envelope," Milman said. "We are in it in that room somewhere."

There was a big wall-safe of a modern type. Barnes said.

"I had therefore absolutely immune," Bradley commented. "I have a key that there must be an appointment to this sort of enterprise. Showing is practiced successfully about all the yeggs who wander about down our country. I know where it is done, but I couldn't do it."

There are not hire anyone to do it," Barnes said thoughtfully. "It is not as we are up against it. It is not enough to hold him up. I don't see what else is to be done."

"There's a way out," said Peter Milman. "I admit we are. I admit we are in a fix. Why not open it for us?"

"I wouldn't," Barnes cried; "I wouldn't make him do that. I wouldn't understand," said Peter Milman. "I mean simply this. Why not open the safe, as he has done so frequently, quite unaware of the fact that he is ready to spring at the first alarm?"

"Why not?" Barnes said excitedly. "I wouldn't work. There's danger in it. There's even chance it might succeed. I see the whole thing. I could tell you where Nita was—there's a room—and watch him. I wouldn't be carrying that gun of his. I wouldn't be would probably have found myself in and felt free from mountains by the Great plains. The United States geological survey says that the Ozarks are not regarded by geologists as a part of either system, but as a distinct unit."

the use of those devices which he had learned in amateur theatricals, had disguised his face. Bradley had employed his leisure by doing some superfluous carpentering work in the tower room. Sneed had arranged to give instant warning if Raxon returned unexpectedly from the city. But as a chauffeur had been told to meet the train arriving at half past six, there seemed no reason to fear interruption.

The bookcase was six feet in height and contained five shelves. The lower, behind which Nita had hidden, was given up to volumes whose average height was eighteen inches. The shelves were very deep, made to accommodate books of more than average width, many of which were deeper than their height. They rested on a board seven inches above the floor. Bradley had ingeniously split this, so that while the books were not disturbed, the man hiding had an additional seven inches of shelter. He had the craft of a cabinet-maker, and the oiled and hidden hinges moved noiselessly.

It was as dinner drew to a close that the disguised Barnes crawled first to his shelter. He had arranged things so that he could see the safe without moving. There was nothing in his garments to catch on any projection. He found he could move his limbs without attracting any noise. He tried it when Bradley, directly the dinner was finished and his employer settled to a game of auction, hurried to the room. Bradley sat in Raxon's chair and looked hard at the lower shelf, but could detect nothing unusual. It was not so difficult for Barnes to remain immobile and patient as for some. He had the hunter's instinct highly developed. He was not the man to forsake a pool if the fish did not immediately rise to his fly. This was a game after his own heart. He thought of poor Fleming Bradley, overtaken owing to the defection of 'Enry, scurrying here and there with his grave face and rather grand manner, and smiled. At ten he was tired but sanguine. At midnight he began to suffer from the hardness of the floor. But the longer he waited, he told himself, the sooner would the quarry come into view.

It was nearly one when Paul Raxon entered. He took a seat at the center table and put on it some small change and bills. Bridge winnings, no doubt. Then he lighted a cigar and went to the door leading to his bedroom, soon to reappear with a velvet smoking jacket. It seemed to Barnes that he paced up and down before the bookcase for hours. Then suddenly he went to the safe, turned the well-known combination swiftly and flung it open. He seemed to be searching feverishly for some one thing in its deep recesses.

Very quietly Barnes pushed open the oaken side of his prison. It made no sound. Then, as noiselessly, he emerged. His next move was to crawl to the shelter of the table. Here he felt safe. He could see that Raxon was still searching. Steadily the man who had been 'Enry rose to his knees. Then he rose to his feet and came nearer, inch by inch, to the unconscious man. He covered the last few intervening feet in a leap. Raxon's head, twisted sideways with the fearful and agonizing force of a blow on the jaw, caught sight of a face wholly unknown to him. The disguise was palpable, but sufficient. He was thrown forward on the heavily padded lounge. It was while he was fighting for breath that his hands were tied behind him. Then a loop of rope was pulled down over his head so that he could see nothing. Next he was dropped to the floor and pushed through a narrow door. After that he was not molested. But he could hear someone at the safe. Papers rustled, drawers were opened. Then the steel doors swung to. Later his locked door was opened and shut. After that for hours there was blackness and cramp, rage and despair.

Howe Too Optimistic Over Girl's Greeting

The first person Viscount William Howe, English general and commander in chief of North America from 1775 to 1778, saw an American soldier when his ships arrived off Brooklyn was Nancy Cortelja, who had climbed to the top of a high hill to greet the incoming troops. The English troops considered the girl's greeting a favorable omen, says Maude Stewart Welch in her book, "Vrouw Klinkerbocker."

"Toofus," asked his friend, the post trader, "what about this proposed pageant?"

"What about it, sir?"

"It is proposed to stage a battle. The Indians say they have permitted the whites to be victorious in many a former pageant. Now they claim it is their turn to be victorious. Both sides are waxing warm."

"Let 'em stage a battle then and see who are victorious," suggested the Fort Mink philosopher and guide—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Ironing Day Romance

There can no longer be any question as to the heat of an electric iron. The Woman's Home Companion tells of one of them left by mistake on the ironing board, which burned its way through the board, dropped to the floor, burned through that and landed in a basket of potatoes in the cellar before the housewife who was doing the family ironing got back from having a little chat over the telephone. Fortunately it was almost dinner time, so the fried potatoes came in very handy for the meal.

Nautical Mile Longer

The nautical mile, or "knot," is 800 feet longer than the statute mile, points out an answered question in Liberty. The statute mile is 5,280 feet and the nautical mile is 6,080 feet.

Waner Brothers Boost Pirates

The photograph shows, left to right, Lloyd and Paul Waner, brothers, members of the Pittsburgh Pirates of the National Baseball League. The playing of these boys, both of whom covet in the outfield, is in the main responsible for the fact that the Pirates are giving the Cubs a lot of opposition in the race for the pennant. Both the boys are sluggers and outfielders of luxe. This is the first time in the history of baseball that two brothers played on the same team at one time, that is, both being on the playing field at one time.

Bicyclist Tries to Make New Record

The transcontinental bicycle champion of North America, Clarence W. Wagner, has started on his third trip across the United States in an attempt to break his own record of 3,229 miles in 24 days 12 hours. Wagner left Newport Bay, near Los Angeles, and will cross California, Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado, Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

He expects to average 139 miles a day.

Bush O. K. for 1928

So far as Barney Dreyfuss, president of the Pittsburgh baseball club, is concerned, Donnie Bush can manage the Pirates again next year.

Commenting on rumors that Bush was not to be retained at the close of the present season, Dreyfuss said that "in my eyes, Bush has been a successful manager this year, and I have not thought of changing pilots for 1928."

Sport Notes

Bobby Jones' victory in the 1927 British open was popular even with Brits.

Jerry Lanz, another Columbia university product, is going great in tennis meets in the East.

The Hellar thoroughbred stud, of which James Fitzsimmons is trainer, was founded by George Washington.

J. S. Phipps, wealthy American sportsman, has forty-five polo ponies in his string, each valued at about $5,000.

Frank Murray, coach of Marquette university's football team, that gives the Army its first best test this fall, never played football.

Judging solely by the photographs in the photo sections the thing to yell when a girl athlete does something wonderful is "Attaboy!"

With the winning of the 1927 British open it was discovered that Bobby Jones has won every major golf classic twice except the British amateur.

Under the British racing rules, or at least the rules that apply to the English derby, if the owner of a horse dies before the race is run, it is necessary that the horse be scratched.

The addition to the Stanford university bowl will add 10,500 to the seating capacity and will hold 88,200. A crowd of this kind is expected to attend the annual Stanford vs. California battle November 20.

Jack Kearns, former manager of Jack Dempsey and now director of the destiny of Mickey Walker, holder of the world's middleweight title, has announced that he expects to send Mickey against Georges Carpentier in an English ring this fall.

Harry L. Connaughton, former star guard of the Georgetown university football team, has signed to play with the Frankford Yellow Jackets, of Philadelphia. He is one of the heaviest men who played football last year, weighing 285 pounds in condition.

Tris Speaker May Lead Indians Again

In the western sector of the American League, questions are still being asked whether or not Tris Speaker is to succeed Bucky Harris as manager of the Washington club. The same old answers are being made, too, that there isn't a chance of such a happening.

Thought Speaker is inclined to hold his tongue, his friends in Cleveland say that with Dan Johnson out of the seats of the mighty, Speaker will probably go back to that city as manager of the Indians in 1928.

LOTT TO FINISH SCHOOL AT BROWN

Tennis Star Makes Withdrawal From Chicago.

The Middle West's best tennis prospect in this generation, George M. Lott, Jr., of Chicago, has decided to switch his university training from Chicago to Brown.

George is only 20 years old. Lott won national rank at the bottom of the first ten last summer, and in January left the University of Chicago, where he had never become scholastically eligible for admission.

DIAMOND PICK-UPS

Joe Guyon, Louisville outfielder, was a great bat for Georgia Tech a few years ago.

Dick Wade, outfielder, has been signed by Minneapolis of the American Association.

Connie Mack blames the heat for the Athletics' slump. If it isn't the heat it's the stupidity.

A pitcher named Joseph L. Martincorne of Lincoln, Neb., will get a trial with the Yankees next spring.

Dan Jesse, shortstop on the Salt Lake Utah-Idaho League club, has been sold to the Cleveland Americans.

The first no-hit game in the National league was pitched by Bradley of St. Louis against Hartford on July 15, 1874.

Archie Campbell, right-handed pitcher of the Wichita club of the Western league, has been sold to the New York Yankees.

Frank Real, pitcher with the Wilson club of the Virginia league, has been sold to Toronto in the International circuit.

The Washington Nationals have purchased the services of First Baseman Eddie Onslow, of the Rochester Internationalists.

The Giants' last six games of the season are played against Brooklyn and Philadelphia, among the weakest of the league teams.

Just as he takes his place at the plate, Dell Pratt, second baseman and manager of the Waco club in the Texas league, invariably expostulates on the end of his bat.

We deduce from the details it might have been better, all in all, if the Chicago lad who got into a game in which a railroad torpedo was used as a baseball had struck out.

William G. Andrews of Newcastle, Pa., aged fifty-eight, is the oldest player in the King Tut Baseball League in which no one under thirty years of age is eligible.

Announcement is made of the sale to the Chicago Cubs of Fred (Doc) Maguire, star second baseman of the league-leading Toledo team of the American association.

Dreyfuss denies the rumor that Hazen Cuyler, Johnny Morrison and Earl Smith were to be traded for Dazzy Vance, Butch Henline and Arnold Stutz of Brooklyn.

Times certainly have changed: When a couple of hurlers stagger through till the ninth nowadays and the score is 11 to 8 or something, it is described as a pitchers' battle.

Ed Taber, bespectacled left-hander of the Pittsfield team of the Eastern league, defeated Bridgeport, 3 to 1 and 3 to 0 recently and allowed only a scratch hit in the second game.

Tony Lazzari of the New York Yankees holds the Pacific Coast league home-run record of 62 circuit smashes, established in 1925 when playing shortstop for the Salt Lake City team.

Eddie Ainsworth and George Dumont, who formed a battery for Washington several years ago, later being members of the Minneapolis club, are now together again, playing for Little Rock, Ark.

Reids Lehney, a southpaw pitcher, formerly of the Cathedral Chapel and Homewood club lines of the County league of Pittsburgh, has exhibited such great promise in workouts that he has been signed by the Pirates.

The Washington Americans broke a record in 1917, but no one envied them for it. They made the fewest home runs of any club in the major league, getting only four homers. Judge got two, Morgan one, and Menosky the other.

After defeating the league-leading Portland club of the New England League, Stanley O. Robinson, 27, of Tufts, is well on his way to impressing the Boston Braves' management as a good prospect to take south with the team next spring.

George M. Lott, Jr.

Let's to play winter tennis in Florida. One victory there over Tilden encouraged him, but the "old master" has beaten him twice since.

He entered Chicago with some reputation as a baseball pitcher and basket ball forward, in addition to the title of junior tennis champion of the country, but lack of concentration on his studies kept him off the varsity teams.

"Lott stands today," said one of his University of Chicago professors, "where Vincent Richards stood at 20, the flaming youth of his day on the courts. And unlike Vinnie, he is not pressed by economic necessity."

Four Persons Known to Have Picked Blue Blood

Only four known persons, including the owner, bet on a horse that paid odds of 152 to 1 at the Homewood track near Chicago the other day, and when the long-shot came home a victor, two almost swooned, and another, a negro stable boy, turned hand-springs until he was exhausted.

It was the Kentucky thoroughbred Blue Blood who wrote race horse history for Illinois when she finished two lengths in front in the five furlong race. The horse's owner, Carter Everett, apparently was the only person in the park who wagered more than $2. He wagered $20 "on the nose," and collected $3,651. He was overcome when the odds were posted.

A glass of water had to be hurried to a woman in the clubhouse who bordered on hysterics when she saw that her $2 ticket across the board had returned her $610.20. A man near the judges' stand who had squandered $2 on a win ticket was overcome with joy when he saw he had gained $363.10. The negro stable boy appeared to be the only other person who had bet $2 on the horse.

Ray Kremer Has Reached Hurling Peak of Career

Ray Kremer has reached the pitching peak at a time when most hurlers are on the down grade. Just turned thirty-one, he led the National league twirlers last year and has gotten off to a flying start this season.

He seemed doomed to end his pitching days in the minors, spending seven of his best playing years with the Oakland team in the Pacific Coast league, until the Pirates corralled him in 1924. Starting his fourth season with Pittsburgh his records show 58 major league triumphs and only 24 defeats for a percentage of about .700.

He has improved with age, topping the league's moundmen last season with 20 victories and 6 defeats—yet a dozen years ago his health wasn't good enough for him to get a trial with the New York Giants. He was called in from the Pacific northwest in 1915 by John McGraw but sent back to the same territory when illness cost him his chance for a tryout.

Isbell Dog Fancier

Frank Isbell, the big bascule man from the West, is quite a dog fancier. He has a very large kennel of chows at Van Nuys, Calif., and owns some of the best dogs west of the Mississippi. But his greatest winning has been done with ch. Yuan Chu of El Cher, the sensational male bought from the kennels of Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Prinz at Ridgewood, N. J. Another recent addition of note is the undefeated Lui Song, a remarkably fine looking bitch.

MRS. BASSETT ALWAYS TIRED

Now in Good Health by Using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lansing, Michigan.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for my rheumatism. I needed it. When I first used it I was so bad I could hardly walk across the room without crying. I was tired all the time. I think my trouble was coming on me for six months before I realized it. I read of your wonderful medicine in the paper, and my husband bought me a bottle, and after the first few doses I felt better, so kept on taking it until I was well and strong. I take it at times when I feel tired and it helps me. I will always have a good word for your medicine and tell anyone what good it has done me. I recommended it to my neighbor for her girl, who is sixteen years old, and it was just what she needed. She is feeling fine now, and goes to school every day."—Mrs. E. F. Bassett, 216 South Hayford Avenue, Lansing, Michigan.

Do not continue to feel all run-down and half sick when Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is sold by druggists everywhere. It is a root and branch medicine and has been used by women for over fifty years.

Handkerchief Bill $450

"Casually strolling into a shop in Havana recently, an American woman tourist asked to see certain designs of handkerchiefs. Then she picked out 300, counted out $450 in bills and ordered the handkerchiefs sent to her hotel. She said she intended to give many of them to friends in New York.

One Way

"How can I double my weekly pay envelope?"

"Easily, by folding it."

Beware of the human who rarely laughs.—Forbes Magazine.

Feel Stiff and Achy?

TO feel constantly lame and achy is too often a sign of sluggish kidneys. Slightest action permits sluggish poisons to remain in the blood and is apt to make one languid, tired and achy, with dull headaches, dizziness and often a nagging backache. A common warning that the kidneys are not acting right is scanty or burning secretions.

Assist the kidneys at such times with Doan's Pills. Since 1865 Doan's have been winning friends the country over. Ask your neighbor!

RUPTURE SHIELD EXPERT HERE

E. J. Meinhardt, of Chicago the well known expert will personally be at the Retlaw, Hotel, Fond du Lac, Wis., on Wednesday, Sept. 28th from 10:00 a. m. to 4:00 p. m. and from 6:00 p. m. and on Thursday, Sept. 29th, from 10:00 a. m. to 3:00 p. m. only. Mr. Meinhardt says:
"The Meinhardt Vacuum Shield" will not only retain the Rupture perfectly, but contracts the opening in 10 days on the average case—usually giving instantaneous relief withstanding all strain regardless of the size or location of the Rupture.
Caution—Do not expose yourself to the danger of wearing old style trusses with understraps. These trusses usually place the pad on the lump and not on the rupture opening. This usually causes strangulation which usually necessitates an immediate surgical operation or results in sudden death.
"The Meinhardt Vacuum Shield" has no understraps. It is also perfectly sanitary and practically indestructible and can be worn while bathing.
Only gentlemen are invited to call at this time as special arrangements will be announced later for women and children.
Notice: Please do not write asking to be fitted by mail as this is impossible. I send out no literature as every case must be seen personally; therefore, I visit this section every year—giving demonstration without charge, or will be pleased to fit you if desired. All cases that I have fitted here during the past five years will please call for inspection. Please note the above dates and hours carefully and always insist on seeing me personally.—(This visit is for white people only) E. J. MEINHARDT, HOME OFFICE, 755 1/2 N. CRAWFORD AVE., CHICAGO.
P. S. FRAUD WARNING: Beware of imposters who imitate my notices and claim to represent me. I have no representatives and send out no literature.

McCormick-Deering
Potato Diggers

A Few Reasons Why
These Diggers Make Friends
Wherever They Go

It takes real stamina to enable a machine to stand up to the hard work of digging potatoes. The McCormick-Deering digger has a frame built of heavy angle-steel bars. The sides are made of heavy steel plates. The whole frame is solidly braced to resist excessive strain.

The beams are made of extra heavy I-beam steel. There is ample clearance under the beams for vines and trash. There is also good clearance between the tongue-truck axle and the ground.

The elevator links are made of seven-sixteenths-inch high-carbon steel, which is very hard. The links are tempered to give the best wearing qualities. They are arranged to form pockets to keep the potatoes from rolling back down the elevator.

Everything else being equal, potatoes dug with a McCormick-Deering digger should bring a higher price on the market than those dug any other way. Furthermore, there are no potatoes left in the ground. You get them all.

Man to Man Banking

When the size of a bank interferes with its close, personal relationship to its clients, then the size ceases to be an asset. This institution seeks to maintain an intimate, helpful, man-to-man contact with each client it is privileged to serve. Perhaps that is why it is today, as it has been for so many years, so closely allied with the growing and successful business of the community. We welcome new accounts—it will pay you in the end to bank here.

The KITCHEN CABINET

(© 1927, by Western Newspaper Union)

The average person is quick enough to remark about the red flame of the sunset, but he seldom sees the dove colors and steel blues that lie back of him in the east. He sees the scarlet maple, or an orange stain upon a hillside in October, but he overlooks the silvery sheen of the wind-swept pine-needle and the chudlike surface of the Indian grass. He is not blind to Niagara or the Alps, but he has an unhappy way of never regarding anything that is not "big" and hence he loses a great deal of pleasure in life which comes from discovering and enjoying the so-called commonplace.—John Vandyke.

ABOUT VEGETABLES

Nature seems to indicate that she wishes us to make a larger use of uncooked vegetables, as we have it on the highest scientific authority that the raw vegetable is (especially the leafy green ones) Nature's vehicle for the transportation of vitamins into the human system, and that the vitamin power is considerably decreased, if not entirely destroyed, by cooking. As a rule the raw vegetables when eaten are the best carriers of these life-giving guards of health.

No one can afford to neglect fresh green vegetables, especially those who are doing indoor work, as they are the best of aids to correct constipation. Cauliflower has always been served as a cooked dish. There is no reason why the tender little flowerets cannot be served with other vegetables like celery, onion, pepper and such green things as salad. It will be found to be especially good.

Cucumbers and radishes are so often taboo because they are hard for some to digest. Dietetic investigations have proven that cucumbers agreed with as many as they disagreed. The old idea that they should be salted and thus all crispness and attractiveness taken away to be edible, has been exploded. When our grandmothers were young the tomato was considered a poisonous vegetable called the "love apple"—only to be looked at. Today we revel in its vitamins and mineral acids and give its strained juice to infants to keep them well and aid in growth.

The radish, cucumber and asparagus are all valuable vegetables but have little food value as to providing heat and energy—the caloric value is nothing. But all these vegetables, with their tempting flavors and their vitamin-content, are valuable in the diet.

Vegetable Dishes.

In many homes the entire meal for the dinner time is composed of vegetables in some form.

Here are a few suggestions:
For soup there is such an endless variety that it is needless to name but a few, such as potato, cream of onion, asparagus, pea and bean. For a main dish it is best to choose some vegetable which will blend into the menu, after the soup.

Fried Summer Squash.—Cut the squash into crosswise slices about one-half inch thick. Peel and remove seeds unless very tender. Dip each slice into beaten egg diluted with cold water and then into fine bread crumbs. Sauté in hot fat until brown on both sides and well cooked.

Baked Tomato à la Creole.—Wash six firm tomatoes and cut a slice from the top of each. Scoop out the pulp, leaving a shell one-fourth-inch in thickness. Chop the pulp and mix with a cupful of cold minced chicken or other meat, one cupful of bread crumbs, one teaspoonful each of chopped onion and green pepper and one teaspoonful of salt, a bit of cayenne and paprika to season. Stuff the tomato shells with the mixture, add a bit of butter to each and cover with buttered crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven until the crumbs are brown. Baste often with butter and water and serve with a rich brown sauce.

Cabbage au Gratin.—Chop very fine three cupfuls of cooked cabbage. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, add two tablespoonfuls of flour and stir in one cupful of milk. Cook until the mixture is thick and smooth, then add one teaspoonful of paprika. Fill a greased baking dish with layers of cabbage and white sauce until all are used. Cover with one-half cupful of crumbs that have been well mixed with three tablespoonfuls of butter. Bake in a moderate oven for 20 minutes or until the crumbs are well browned.

Lima Beans and Celery Salad.—Mix two cupfuls of cooked lima beans with two cupfuls of finely diced celery, six chopped olives, one teaspoonful of chopped chives or minced onion, and two tablespoonfuls of chopped green pepper or pimento. Moisten with mayonnaise and serve on lettuce. Garnish with curled celery. Prepare celery by cutting into two-inch lengths and shredding from each end, leaving a small piece to hold in the center. Drop into cold water and the celery will curl.

Front Porch Suggests Comfortable Outdoor Living Room for Summer

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to practical home building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1527 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

So many houses are being built these days without front porches that many will welcome a design offering a front porch with all the summer evening comforts that it suggests, as an outdoor living room during the hot-weather period. Additional warmth and comfort is suggested by the striped awnings which, protecting the windows from the direct rays of the sun, may be drawn up out of the way when cooler weather makes the warmth of the sun more welcome.

This is a substantial frame house, designed after the style of the Dutch Colonial and finished with the wide siding which has, of late years, won such well merited favor. It varies in plan, from the Dutch Colonial in that the characteristic central hall is not found on the first floor. The entrance is at one side of the front elevation and directly into one end of the large living room which occupies nearly half of the lower floor space. At the opposite end of this living room is the stairway leading directly from the room to the upper floor instead of from the usual hall.

The almost square plan of this house indicates maximum floor space and minimum building cost, a point which it is well to remember when planning a home where finances are limited and space is at a premium. In this case it makes possible, within the overall dimensions of 23 by 23 feet, a large living room, ample dining room and kitchen, on the first floor and three roomy bedrooms with good-sized closets and a comfortable bathroom, on the second floor.

In spite of its simplicity, this house possesses a most pleasing appearance due largely to its excellent lines, its cheerful awnings, and the well-selected and placed shrubbery which surrounds it.

Concrete May Be Mixed by Hand or by Machine
Concrete may be mixed either by hand or by machine.

Machine mixing is to be preferred as in this way thorough mixing is easier to obtain and all batches will be uniform. However, first-class concrete can be mixed by hand. Whenever mixing is done, it should continue until every pebble or stone is completely coated with a thoroughly mixed mortar of sand and cement.

For hand mixing, a watertight platform at least seven feet wide and twelve feet long should be provided. A platform of this size is large enough to permit two men using shovels to work upon it at one time. Such a platform should preferably be made of boards at least one and one-half inches thick, tongued and grooved so that joints will be tight and the platform rigid. These planks may be nailed to three or more two-by-fours set on edge. Two sides and one end of the platform should have a strip nailed along the edge and projecting two inches above to prevent materials from being washed or shoveled off while mixing.

The usual procedure in mixing concrete by hand is as follows:
The measured quantity of sand is spread out evenly on the platform. On this the required amount of cement is dumped and evenly distributed. The cement and sand are then turned over thoroughly with square pointed shovels enough times to produce a mass of uniform color, free from streaks.

Steel Window Cases Are the Most Satisfactory
With the variety of standard casement sizes, which may be used singly or in attractive groupings, the architect has an almost unlimited opportunity for artistic window arrangement. And wherever the better steel windows are used they enhance the beauty of the home, both inside and out.

They open easily at a finger's touch—never warp, stick or rattle; they admit pleasant weather in abundance, yet close tight against the storms. They can be washed easily from the inside. Usually, the cost—in standard sizes—is only about 2 per cent of the house cost.

Beauty and Permanence Distinguish Oak Floors
Flooring of imperfect manufacture is likely to warp or develop cracks; it does not give the dependable service you expect from your floor and the very best workman cannot make its appearance all that is desired by the builder. Home builders should be sure that the lumber they buy will require a minimum of carpenter work of planing, sawing and sorting.

One of the most popular floor woods is oak, which may be laid in an irregular manner with boards of alternate widths to give an antique effect. It displays nature's beauty in grain and coloration, blending over the entire lustrous floor expanse.

Oak lends dignity to any room; it harmonizes with woodwork and with furniture of whatever period. It is the proper background for rugs. It is permanent. Time only improves its mellowness. It is easily kept in perfect condition, is cleanly and saves housework. The cost is negligible compared with temporary floor coverings.

REALLY WORRIED

"One of the youngsters who hang around the Hal Roach studio came to the other day in tears.
"What's the matter?" the comedy producer wanted to know.
"It's this way, boss. I never had a suit or nothin' in my life, except the things my old man got through with, an' then they was cut down for me to wear."
"Well, that is tough," agreed Hal, "but if that has been going on for a long time, why start crying about it at this late day?"
"Cause the old man has just gone and shaved his face an' now I suppose I'll have to wear those darn red whiskers of his."—Los Angeles Times.

Billy—Pa, don't they call a man who eats his better half?
Pa—Yes, son.
Billy—Then if a man marries his wife there ain't nothing left of him, is there pa?—Pathfinder.

A Chance
Old Bachelor—A young girl was saved here, and her rescuer was her.
Old Maid—Oh, if only the girl weren't so cold!—Paris Sans Souci.

Home Electric Wiring
It is becoming well known that complete house wiring is made available by means of switches, sockets and convenience outlets. Hence it is all important that these devices should combine the greatest convenience, highest quality and most finished appearance.

Color Combinations
Certain colors go effectively with others. Some combinations of color never seem right—they fight with each other. The only secret of good color decoration is to be able to work out effective combinations of color. This is not difficult, when simplicity is considered as the first law.

Oak Floors
Many an old home needs modernizing and an oak floor laid over the old worn flooring will do as much as any other single improvement to tone up the interior. Selling or rental value will be increased out of all proportion to the small cost of installation.

Newest Amplifier Benefits Any Set

Tone-Gate Unit, Recently on Market; New Form of Audio Amplification.

A form of audio amplification for which extraordinary claims are made by its sponsors has only recently been made available to the public through getting on safe the units from which are assembled.

All sounds are made up of fundamental notes and overtones. Fundamental notes are produced by vibrations of a certain frequency. Each note has a number of overtones vibrating at different frequencies. Overtones are the characteristics of music that permit the ear to distinguish a note struck on a piano from the same note produced by another instrument.

Musical Frequencies Vary.

Musical frequencies vary from 16 vibrations per second to over 4,000. For perfect reproduction, notes of all frequencies and all overtones should be amplified the same amount by the radio amplifier to reproduce the original combination sent out by the broadcast station. Good audio amplification amplifies or multiplies notes of high and low frequency and all overtones the same degree, with full volume.

The new scheme of audio-frequency amplification is a combination resistance and impedance coupled with special enameled high resistance wire in multiple, wound with glassine paper between layers. All layers are impregnated with beeswax and rosin and held in an airtight oven for one hour. They have been designed for maximum amplification when used in connection with UX201A tubes. The resistance is sufficient to amplify the low notes and the inductance sufficient to enforce the overtones or high notes so necessary in clear articulation. A .5 mfd. condenser is used to block the DC plate voltage from the grid and is of sufficient capacity to bypass nearly all the audio oscillations to the next grid. This choke is claimed to overcome all the disadvantages in the use of resistance coupled amplifiers and impedance amplifiers. The resistance of these chokes does not change, due to the low temperature coefficient of the wire used and is not affected by humidity or time. The choke does not require high mu tubes or plate voltages, but instead uses 201A tubes with 67 volts to 90 volts on the plate. The choke is self-biasing, due to the drop caused by the resistance in the choke.

Advantage Over Inductance Choke.

On the whole, this amplifier used with a last stage of transformer has shown under test an amplification twice that of three stages of pure inductance audio amplification.

The advantage of this amplifier over an inductance choke is that for the inductance choke to permit amplification of low notes a large number of turns are needed (at least three times more than at present used), which means a high distributed capacity with a loss of overtones.

Sun Directly Affects Strength of Signals

That the sun's influence is very probably the chief factor in determining the strength of long-wave radio signals was one of the important views advanced in the annual report of the laboratory for special radio transmission research, as prepared by Dr. L. W. Nichols of the United States bureau of standards.

In addition to the curves and tables showing the routine measurements of the laboratory, curves were shown in the report which indicate a close relationship between the long-wave signal strength and the changes in the number of sunspots during the 11-year solar cycle. The signals increasing in strength with the increase in sunspots.

Other curves show periodic changes in signal strength during the time of the sun's rotation (27 days), while others indicate a six-day period in the case of rain stations.

Some of the curves also suggest that active areas on the sun, which produce an increase in signal strength when they face the earth, have periodic relationships, however, that are not considered as well established as the relationship of the monthly average of sunspots and the signals extending over a number of years.

Radio Service Men Doctors Up Weak Sets

Frequently the service man is called in to give his views on the failure of a home-built tuned radio-frequency set to afford volume and selectivity. Often this can be traced to the grid returns or the detector coil secondary being run to the wrong filament. There is a quick way to check upon the former. If the set is of the type using 50 volts of "B" potential on the plates of all tubes, with a 45-volt negative bias on the audio-amplifier grids. It is to insert a 0-50 scale milliammeter and wire running from the negative terminal of the "B" battery to the "A" and "B" battery connections. If all is well, the deflection

Amplifier Must Cover Wide Frequency Range

It is not harmonics, which are heard whenever a musical note is struck, it would not be possible for an instrument to distinguish one instrument from another. In broadcast reception and likewise transmission, inadequate amplification of these harmonics can be the cause of extremely poor tone quality at the loud speaker. Discussing this topic in a recent issue of the Radio News, Edgar Felix writes as follows:

The lowest tone of a giant organ may grow down to 16 impulses per second. No commercial reproducing instrument goes so far down in frequency. In fact, only a few radio receivers respond to less than 100 cycles per second, while most of them confine attention only to frequencies above 500. Yet even these latter receivers reproduce a sound when the organ is broadcasting its lowest tone. That sound is due to the harmonics which are released as the organ strikes, and higher multi-

Batteries First Place to Look for Trouble

The batteries are the first place to look for trouble in a five-tube set that does not bring in most of the stations. If they are all up to normal, next try the detector and radio-frequency tubes. If the radio-frequency tubes are not good, it will be difficult to hear distant stations. If the tubes and batteries are good and there are no noises to indicate trouble in the set itself, inspect the aerial and ground. A poor ground is very often the cause of not hearing many stations, while an improperly located or constructed aerial will also prevent the reception of such stations. The aerial should always be ten feet from the roof and twenty feet high. There is considerable more energy plucked up by an aerial ten feet above the roof than one four or five feet and a great deal more with a 20-foot one than with one ten feet high.

CLOTH COAT LAVISHLY FURRED

regard to whether it be jersey, velvet, satin or cloth.

Jersey for school wear is ideal, and the stores are showing the most likable models that the artistry of the stylist can produce. The cunningest sort of jersey dresses are featured for children, such as a model in two tones trimmed with wet cutout felt flowers, also a toast-colored jersey with gar bouquets done in wool yarn, or a more

Wet-Weather Ensembles

Most wet-weather ensembles are as depressing as the weather, which is, after all, quite wrong. What the clever woman wears is something that will bring a touch of color to otherwise drab surroundings.

Marcel

Marcel has not the stranglehold on the imagination that they formerly had, and often a smart coiffeur shows simply a small wave, or a few round curls, or no wave at all.

JERSEY FOR SCHOOL AND SPORTS; SHAWL-COLLARS ON FALL COATS

ITS jersey cloth here and jersey cloth there and jersey cloth everywhere in the daytime mode for fall. If the jersey be not in solid color, then it is striped, and if it happen to be not striped then the dressmaker or the couturier conjures a stripe effect by sewing bands of various colors together. If not the stripe theme, then a modish compose is achieved in the way of contrasting insets of jersey introduced at the waistline of the frock.

Which goes to show that there is anything but sameness recorded by the present jersey vogue. The new tweed jersey is decidedly "good conventional pattern embroidery in peasant color and design.

Two attractive frocks of jersey are shown here. The one to the left displays a cluster of side plaits to the left front of the skirt. The collar and cuffs are piped with crepe de chine and the small breast pocket is embroidered to match the crepe.

The other dress stresses inverted pleats in the skirt. The collar is adjustable to either high-button style or open. These winsome frocks are designed in all the newest colorings.

Furred more lavishly than ever, is the style message brought by autumn's advance guard of cloth en-looking," while the jersey which richly gleams with gold and silver interworkings is all that fancy can picture in the way of a handsome medium frock and blouse.

Jersey three-piece costumes figure prominently in the Paris sports mode for fall. These are fashioned somewhat in this wise: A deep wine jersey skirt and sleeveless cardigan to match with a rose shade jumper; a jersey cardigan buttoning over a blouse of jersey made sweater style and gaily plaid just as if it were silk or satin. That is one of the interesting things about the mode this season. It plucks anything and everything with-fashions. The latest whim of the mode is to contrast light cloth, preferably the new pale browns and toast shades, or beige, with an enrichment of dark fur, as defined by the model in the picture.

This handsome coat also declares that shawl collars are "in" again. Multitudes of the newer coats bear testimony to its return to favor. Even fur coats are shawl-collared this season.

There is also much emphasis placed on side fastenings, in proof of which the coat illustrated bears witness. Another new "wrinkle" in the matter of styling is the intricate manipulation of underarm seamwork and tucks.

Wet-Weather Ensembles

The designers have not yet exhausted all their efforts in regard to shawls, as proved by a striking one seen recently. It was made of sapphire blue silk and embroidered with large red roses.

Old-Time Embroidery

Petit point embroidery became popular during the Fourteenth and Fifteenth centuries. It was much practiced in France, where it was known as "au petit point."

Poor Lighting Puts Big Strain on Nerves

The average American home is only half lighted, asserts Miss Helen G. McKinlay of Harrison, N. J.

Miss McKinlay is one of a score of engineers and eye conservationists carrying on a nation-wide investigation of light, sight and safety under the direction of Richard E. Simpson of the Eyesight Conservation Council of America. She is studying the effect of inadequate lighting in the home.

Sufficient lights, all shaded, and a center light in each room are the essentials of a well-lighted home, declares Miss McKinlay. She sees no harm in reading in bed providing the light is good.

"It takes 12 per cent of the nervous energy the body generates to see under normal conditions," she explains. "When there is poor lighting 50 per cent is required."

"Every well-lighted kitchen should have lights above the sink. If you work and can't see well, your irritability is increased. Why lose so much nervous energy in the kitchen?"

Gold Medal for Cooking

When Sweden's crown prince visited this country last year he was a guest of Secretary of State Kellogg in Washington. The prince was so well pleased with the cooking at the Kellogg home that he had the Swedish parliament vote the cook, Mrs. Lydia Bungener, a gold medal. Mrs. Bungener has just received the medal with a complimentary letter from the prince and is the proudest woman at the nation's capital.—Capper's Weekly.

World's Oldest Bush

According to Dr. Edgar T. Wherry of the Department of Agriculture, a box huckleberry bush in Perry county, Pa., is the oldest bush in the world. This remarkable bush is a mile and a quarter long and covers the entire side of a hill. Doctor Wherry estimates that it grows six inches a year. Taking that as a basis, the plant must be something like 12,000 years old.

Stretch of Railroad Abounding in Bends

An engineer once said Utah's railroad reminded him of the rail fence that was so crooked every time a pig crawled through it he came out on the same side.

This line, which covers the 70 miles between Mack, Colo., and Watson, Utah, is declared to be the most difficult to operate in the United States. There are 233 bends in one stretch of ten miles.

Between Mack and Baxter pass, atop the Rockefeller mountains, the railway climbs 3,806 feet, and to negotiate this stretch of 35 miles geared locomotives are required. Gilsonite is the chief commodity hauled. A vast deposit on the eastern edge of Utah being the only considerable quantity of the mineral known in America.

Repair Your Fence Lines this Fall

YOU know how hard it is to find time in the busy Spring to fix your fences. Most always you have to neglect something else to do it. That's all off now. Do all your fence work this Fall when you have the time. How? Why with the old reliable Red Top Steel Fence Post. It takes all the time-wasting and difficulty out of this job and makes it easy for one man to do a big job of fence repairing or even build a lot of new fence in a day.

Red Tops drive easily through the hardest soil just as fast as you can drive them. With the Red Top One-Man-Drive, you alone, can drive 200 to 300 posts a day—any day in the year. That's why it's so easy to repair or build fence with Red Top Posts.

Red Top Steel Fence Posts

Come in and let us show you the points about this RED Top post. It's made of tough, springy railroad rail-steel—that's why it holds such a record for long service in the fence line.

Once you drive in a RED TOP alongside a rotting or broken wood post and attach the old fencing to it with the RED Top handy fastener, that particular post is there for more years than the fence will last. Come in and see these money-saving posts.

"Betty Howe" Editor

Dear Kiddies:—

Now you are back in school again. Children from all over the world are going to school now. A good example of "Old School Days" is Whiteie's story and poem "In School Days." Still sits the school house by the road.

A ragged beggar sunning, Around it still the sumachs grow, And blackberry vines are running.

Within the master's desk is seen, Deep scarred by raps official, The warping floor, the battered seats, The jack-knife's carved initial.

The charcoal frescos on its wall, Its door's worn sill, betraying The feet that, creeping slow to school, Went storming out to playing!

Long years ago a wintry sun Shone over it at setting, Lit up its western window panes, And low eaves' icy fretting.

It touched the tangled golden curls, And brown eyes full of grieving, Of one who still her steps delayed When all the school were leaving.

For near her stood the little boy Her childish favor singled, His cap pulled low upon a face Where pride and shame were mingled.

Pushing with restless feet the snow To right and left, he lingered, As restlessly her tiny hands The blue-checked apron fingered.

He saw her lift her eyes, he felt The soft hand's kind caressing, And heard the tremble of her voice, As if a fault confessing.

"I'm sorry that I spelt the word: I hate to go above you, 'Because' the brown eyes lower fell, 'Because, you see, I love you!"

Still memory to a gray-haired man That sweet child face is showing, Dear girl! the grasses on her grave Have forty years been growing.

He lives to learn, in life's hard school, How few who pass above him Lament their triumph and his loss, Like her,—because they love him.

So now children, you've heard that beautiful poem of old school days by John Greenleaf Whittier.

Years ago when children went to school, the teacher stood in front of the school with a hickory stick and whipped the children, every time they looked up from their lessons, or whispred.

We still have the birthday role! Please tell me what you think of this corner.

Your Loving Editor, Betty Lowe.

DAIRY PRODUCTS POPULAR

The demand for dairy products is not regulated so much by the supply as it is by quality. Most people prefer dairy products and will use them in preference to substitutes when the quality is right. People are living better today than they did in former times, and are consuming more dairy products, and just a slight increase in per capita consumption, requires the milk from hundreds of thousands of cows. Prepare now to take advantage of the prosperity that is sure to be enjoyed by the dairymen of this country by working for quality. Successful farming in Wisconsin comes through dairying, and the better the quality of the dairy, the more success in farming.
