

The Colfax Bookplate

By AGNES MILLER

CHAPTER X—Continued

"I never thought of it again until that minute!" cried Daisy, sharply. "Why should I? And why should I?"

CHAPTER XI

The Spring-Lancet.

When Ernesto's box trees were half a block away, Mr. Almy said: "Suppose you take back this key and the bookplate. If at any time you think they might get a response from Miss Grosvenor, show them to her. I give them to you because she associates you, rather than me, with that book, and you might have a chance to win her confidence more readily. Once more, do your best to get her to talk."

"I took the key from my bag, and held it out to her. She looked at it with perfect blankness, her expression changing from bewilderment to disappointment, then to suspicion."

"You wanted to buy the book with the bookplate, didn't you? Surely there was no reason why you should not have done so if you wished."

"No," denied Mr. Almy, very quietly. "I think you went there after that bookplate again. But you didn't find it, and something else happened."

"When I left the apartment, directly after the book had been bought, I made inquiries," she answered reticently.

"Did you at any time during that morning know he had been there?"

"Perhaps for the book again," said Julia, in pathetic desperation.

"He has often treated me with consideration; not too many people have," returned Julia, with dignity.

"I'm not ungrateful! I'm not!" cried Julia, clenching her hands. "But you see, it's different. What Charles offered me was a bribe on my own money, for all I know!"

"You think you have a legal claim on property your cousin calls his, do you, Miss Grosvenor?" he demanded swiftly.

"I do," she cried, intent on her wrong. "Otherwise why should I have been ignored and rebuffed so pointedly all my life? If I had really been of illegitimate birth, if I had no claim on the estate—which was all my grandfather cared about, except Charles, and everything in the world that Charles himself cares about—why should those two men have spent their time trying to safeguard themselves by repudiating me?"

"I am not ungrateful! I'm not!" cried Julia, clenching her hands. "But you see, it's different. What Charles offered me was a bribe on my own money, for all I know!"

Tout Elder as Olympic Hope

IF NOTRE DAME ever had an Olympic candidate, he is Jack Elder, the flying Fealan on track as well as on the gridiron.

Jack ran his greatest race in the 100-length at Drake, when, bucking a stiff wind, he negotiated the distance in 10 seconds flat to finish four feet ahead of Hester of Michigan.

During the Indoor season Jack equaled the world mark for the sixty-yard route six times, four times in meets and twice in practice. He holds the unique distinction of covering the distance twice in the same day, when, at the Central Intercollegiate meet held at Notre Dame, he finished the semifinals and the finals in :06.2 time.

Robert Quinn, president of the Boston Red Sox, is taking the lead in suppressing overemphasis on player values.

Tommy Connolly, infielder released by Chattanooga, has been picked up by Atlanta and placed in the outfield.

Outfielder Lefty Swanson, cut from the Fort Worth roster because of the player limit regulations, has been signed by the Beaumont Exporters.

Pitcher Joe Marty has been taken on by Atlanta under option from the New York Yankees.

With his infield badly crippled, Manager Jack Leivelt of Milwaukee said today a hurry call for Ollie O'Mara, veteran infielder who was with the Brewers this spring, but was released.

Manager Bill Clymer of Buffalo made a hit with his fans when he closed a deal with Baltimore for the purchase of Outfielder Maurice (Conet) Archdeacon.

BREADON DECRIES PLAYER-MANAGER

Playing and Directing Too Big Strain for Any Man.

"I am convinced that no ball player, however great he may be as a player, or however great may be his possibilities as a manager, can manage a major league ball club and play his position at the same time."

He offers as first-hand examples Rogers Hornsby and Bob O'Farrell, the two men who preceded Bill McKelchtle, this year's pilot, as manager of the St. Louis entry in the National league race.

"Bob O'Farrell succeeded him—one of the greatest catchers in the game. O'Farrell's work as a catcher suffered mainly because of the strain of directing the play of the team."

"You're asking one man to do two men's work at once. It just can't be done."

"To think," thought the fan as he studied the standings, "that I stood in line nine hours to get a ticket for the opener."

John McGraw was first holdout known to game. John J. McGraw has confessed he was the first "holdout" known to baseball.

Publicity of Figures in Player Sale is Harmful

When Quinn announced the purchase of Ken Williams from the St. Louis Browns he was besought on all sides for the details.

"I never tell how much a player costs me," he explained. "It doesn't do the club any good and it certainly doesn't do the player any good."

Wilbert Robinson, president-manager of the Brooklyn club, happened to come along just as Quinn made his observation and agreed.

"Me, too," he said. "That ought to be written into the rules of the major leagues. A lot of harm has been done by releasing those outlandish figures, which, even if they were true, were all out of proportion and placed false values on players."

It is the shortest cut, in opinion of many experienced baseball men, to the end of the mad "money moon" that is generally supposed to have undermined the caliber of playing material.

George Harper, shown above, veteran outfielder of the New York Giants, has been traded to the St. Louis Cardinals for Bob O'Farrell, catcher and former manager of the Cardinals, in a trade which involved only the two players.

Clean Accurate Cultivation

THE McCormick-Deering New 4 Cultivator handles so easily that a boy can do a man's work with it. The foot pedals, which pivot the wheels to guide the cultivator, also shift the gangs in the same direction. This is the reason that the New 4 Cultivator does such accurate and close cultivating. It also accounts for its ease in handling. Just sit on the seat of this cultivator once and see how you like it. We have one on our floor.

Anthem Regulations

The leader of the Marine band says "The Star Spangled Banner" should never be played as a medley with other songs. At least two bars must elapse before playing "The Star Spangled Banner." There are no official regulations regarding the playing of such hymns except in the Army, Navy and Marine corps.

Famous Irish Writer

Charles James Lever, the talented and popular Irish novelist, lived from 1806 to 1872. He was educated at Dublin for the medical profession, and then turned to literature. At the age of thirty years he had written the well-known stories, "Harry Lorrequer" and "Charles O'Malley." His books abound in rollicking good humor.

Heat Values of Woods

The heat values of some common oaks and maples in millions, British thermal units, are: Post oak (Quercus ulmifolia), 24.0; red oak (Quercus rubra), 21.7; white oak (Quercus alba), 23.9; black oak (Quercus velutina), 22.0; sugar maple (Acer saccharum), 21.8; silver maple (Acer saccharinum), 17.9; red maple (Acer rubrum), 19.1.

His Version

Little Billy, aged three, was sitting with his father and mother in front of the grate one evening when his father remarked that the fire in the grate was dying down. Little Billy spoke up and said, "Yes, daddy, there is a little fire in the grate, but not much—the much went out."—Indianapolis News.

NOT THAT AT ALL

"My dear sir," said the specialist, after a careful examination, "what you need is plenty of exercise. In a case like yours there is nothing better than the motor. It will—" "But, doctor," interrupted the patient, with a hopeless gesture, "I can't afford one!" "Didn't tell you to!" snapped the specialist. "I mean to dodge 'em!"—Weekly Scotsman.

A KIND OF MUSICIAN

"Why do you call her a kind of musician?" "Oh, she's always fiddling with something about her dress."

Bad Investment

He laid his money on the shelf, And let the wealth redouble, And finally he bought himself A million's worth of trouble.

No Middle Course

It seems that one chap rushed up to another one more or less excitedly and cried out, "Binks the lawyer is dead! They found him lying on his back!" "Binks?" queried the other calmly. "It can't be the same man. If it was Binks he'd be lying on either one side or the other."—Boston Beanpot.

Exceedingly Cautious

"Our minister is so good that he won't even perform a marriage ceremony." "What's that got to do with his being good?" "He says his conscience won't let him participate in any games of chance."

A Helping Hand

Greaser—How much wages do you expect, Dinah? Dinah (looking big-eyed)—Ah reckon, Boss, when you gets through payin' off yo kin Jus' gimme what yo-all has left an' Ah'll try to make out!

GRAND VIEW

He—Isn't the view grand from here? She—It ought to be, you're looking my way.

Getting Into the Game

The bulls and bears perform in sunshine and in storm. The little lamb draws near. And wants to play—Poor Dear!

Thoughtful Bobby

Uncle—Hullo, Bobby; you look very thoughtful this morning. What are you thinking about? Bobby—I was just wondering if a wasp got on a nettle, would the wasp sting the nettle or would the nettle sting the wasp.

Just Natural

Turner—Do you think that I am acting the fool? Mrs. Turner—Now, John, you know you never could act.

How to Stop

First Card Player—We'd better stop the game now we're even. Second Card Player—Even! How do you make that out? "Why, you had all my money a little while ago, and now I've got all yours!"

Similar

Allie—Why don't you tell Rod frankly that you don't like him as well as Ted? Jean—I can't. I'm not sure that Ted will propose.

Consistent

"That florist surely keeps in touch with his slogan, 'Say it with flowers.'" "What's his method?" "Well, I know he has sent me a bunch of forget-me-nots with each bill."

Doubted It

Gray—They say a man's first thousand dollars is hardest to get. Green—I can't agree with that. An oil stock promoter got mine easily enough.

When Standard Oil Was in Its Infancy

John D. Rockefeller, when he was expanding Standard Oil into the greatest business phenomenon of its era, often gained control of rival companies by bluffing with a blank check — because Standard Oil didn't have the purchase money. That is the story told me by the oil king himself, writes B. C. Forbes in McClure's. When I asked him where he got all the capital to expand Standard Oil, the veteran oil magnate's eyes twinkled. "That sometimes had its funny side," was Rockefeller's reply. "It seems amusing now, looking back, although it was a matter of grave concern then. "After we had arranged to purchase a property I would meet the owner and with a lordly air would whip out our checkbook and remark, as if it were a matter of entire indifference to me: 'Shall I write a check or would you prefer payment in Standard Oil shares?'" Mr. Rockefeller added that there were occasions when if the reply had been "All cash," he would have had to scurry to raise the necessary money. However, his unconcerned attitude inspired most of the sellers to take stock in the new concern either in full or part payment of their old holdings. "And very fortunately for them, as it turned out," added the oil magnate.

Girls of Today

W. L. Barnhart, vice president of the National Surety company of New York, said at Atlantic City that his organization bonds many young bank employees, and that a great deal of crime nowadays is caused by women's extravagance. "The girl of today," said Mr. Barnhart, "expects a man to spend $50 or even $100 when he takes her out of an evening, whereas the girl of yesterday was content if he spent $5. "The girl of today makes a poor wife. Here's the story about her: "Your wife, one young man said to another, 'is telling everybody that you can't keep her in clothes.'" "Well," said the other young man, "I've bought her a home, and I can't keep her in that, either."

YOUTH IS DOING THINGS TOMORROW

Youth is doing things tomorrow that old age didn't do yesterday. Most people are kind-hearted until selfishness steps in.

"Knicker" Traced to Drawings of Irving

The word knickerbockers has been traced to the Dutch in the Seventeenth century, but the first record of its use in English, relating to the loose-fitting knee-breeches, dates from 1830. The name is said to have been given to them on account of their likeness to the knee-breeches designed by George Cruikshank to illustrate Washington Irving's "History of New York." This is not, however, to suggest that as garments, knee-breeches were not worn until so late a period, for the breeches worn toward the end of the reign of Charles II gradually got tighter, until William III introduced plain tight knee-breeches that are still worn in England as a part of the court dress. The breeches of the reign of Charles I were loose to the knee, where they ended in a flounce or bow of ribbon, and they continued so during the Commonwealth, but these were called knee-breeches and not knickerbockers.—Literary Digest.

Filler

"Is this a filling station?" "We can fill your gas tank. We have no hot dogs." To argue with an ignorant man gives one no satisfaction; and it certainly gives him none. There is some gratification in being a martyr if you can attract enough attention. Love in a cottage is happy, and when it seeks a larger house it is growing worldly minded. The only thing about the cup of happiness is that it has a way of springing a leak.

Mud and Impossibilities

A New York woman was recently called to New England to attend a funeral. In telling of driving through the hub-deep spring mud of the little backwoods community to the cemetery, she made a remark almost startling in its significance. "It made me feel," she said, "as though I had gone back a generation or so, to the time when there were still impossibilities." The last four words recall that scene in Maeterlinck's "Blue Bird" where the children are in the cemetery in the dark and at the stroke of twelve, light floods the scene revealing a field of lilies instead of tombstones. "Where are the dead?" asks Mytyl. "There are no dead," says Mytyl. "There are no longer any impossibilities!"—"In the Stream of Business," by R. R. U. (Robert R. Updegraff) The Magazine of Business.
