JUNE WEDDING OF IMPORTANCE

An impressive June wedding took place on Saturday, June 16th, at St. George's Catholic church, Elkhart Lake, when Miss Evangeline Keenan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Keenan of Elkhart Lake, became the bride of Edward Herriges, also of Elkhart Lake, formerly of St. Michaels. The wedding took place at 9:30 o'clock. Miss Mildred Zimmerman played the bridal chorus from Lohengrin, Thomas Keenan, brother of the bride and Leon Feustel, nephew of the bridegroom, led the procession to the altar. Following them was Miss Blanche Reardon of Chicago, who wore a dress of orchid chiffon and Mrs. Carl Johnson of Hartland, Wis., sister of the bridegroom, wearing a pale green chiffon dress, as bridesmaids. Next in line was Miss Ruth Keenan, dressed in a gown of pink tulle with tulle, was maid of honor. Little Madeline Feustel, niece of the bridegroom, scattered rose petals for the bride as she was led to the altar by her father Geo. Keenan, while the groom attended by George Keenan Jr., came forward to meet her. Miss Keenan wore a period dress of white satin fashioned with pearl beads. A soft veil of silk lace was caught with a pearl tiara and fell in a long train. The dresses worn by the bridesmaids and maid of honor were also of period style, the pastel shades being carried out in their slippers and picture hats. Immediately following the ceremony, Father Sipple, celebrated the High Mass, assisted by the choir. During the offertory Shubert's "Ave Maria" was sung by Miss Nellybelle Reardon. Wagner's wedding march from "Tannhauser" was played during the recessional. At 12 o'clock a wedding breakfast was served in the sun porch of Siebken's hotel by several girls of the senior class of Elkhart Lake high school. During the afternoon the parents of the bride held a reception at the Keenan home. Garden flowers and archways of pink and white streamers made effective decorations. A short musical program was given by Misses Blanche and Nellybelle Reardon. Among the songs sung were: "Loves Echo" and "O Promise Me." Following a buffet spread the young couple left for Minneapolis. Their honeymoon trip will include trips through Minnesota, North and South Dakota. The bride's traveling attire was an ensemble of canary yellow crepe with a hat of black straw and yellow velvet. Among the out of town guests were: Mrs. Alice Walsh, Mr. and Mrs. M. Keenan, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Ueber, Mr. and Mrs. John Weber and Margaret Weber, Joe Weber, Charles Weber, Mr. and Mrs. Feustel and children of Milwaukee, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Johnson of Hartland, Wis., Mrs. Roland Tedsens of New Holstein, Mrs. Reardon and daughters Nellybelle and Blanche of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Kirst of Fond du Lac, Mrs. Katie Harkens and Lucile Harkens, Mr. and Mrs. A. Selbernagel, Mr. and Mrs. O. Mertens of Kiel, Mildred Morrissey of Sheboygan and Mike Brennan of Valders, Wis.

MAYVILLE FARMER KILLS SELF
Sheriff Nitschke was called to the farm home of William Ewert, aged 51, a farmer living four miles north of Mayville, on Monday, when the aged man threatened violence to members of his family Monday. When the sheriff arrived Ewert had gone to the edge of a woods, carrying his shotgun. As Nitschke and a deputy approached, Ewert fired, the charge passing through the rim of his own hat. He then fled. Deputies were stationed at the farm home. Monday night another shot was heard in the woods and on Tuesday his body was found near the farm home with a gun shot in his stomach. The farmer had been acting queerly for some time, relatives said.

SECOND VICTIM OF COAL GAS DIES
Mrs. William Gerlach died on Thursday from the effects of coal gas. Her husband died three days prior to her death from the same cause. Both Mr. and Mrs. Gerlach had been very ill from the first day of the tragedy which was on May 24th. They were found unconscious in their homes on that day after they had retired for the night with a low fire burning in their coal stove. As the result of chimney damp, gas escaped from the stove while they were sleeping, and they were found unconscious the next day.—Cedarburg News.

SAYS SMALL CITY PAPER COMMANDS

The following comment from the pen of Arthur Brisbane, America's great journalist, appeared in the "Today" column of the Hearst syndicate newspaper, turns a neat compliment to the advertising prestige of the so called small-city or rather community weeklies, which is as follows:
"H. Z. Mitchell's Sentinel of Bemidji, Minn., wins the prize as best weekly in the national editorial contest. This is a good time to remind the public in general, and national advertisers in particular, that country weekly newspapers are the most important organs of public opinion and protectors of public welfare. And their advertising value, per mill line, is not excelled by any publication of any kind. The reader of a country weekly buys everything, from shingles on the roof to cement in the cellar floor, and every advertiser has in him a possible customer."

CELEBRATE DIAMOND WEDDING

On Saturday, June 16, 1928, Mr. and Mrs. Gerlach Schladweiler of Tippecanoo, former residents of Kewaskum, and well known in this community, had the most joyful occasion of celebrating their diamond wedding anniversary. The celebration took place in the hall of St. Francis St. Veronica church. The mass was read by Rev. Nic. J. Schladweiler, assisted by Rev. Philip Klein of St. Francis and Alphonse Schladweiler of Minnesota. The wedding march was led by two ushers, followed by Margaret Rudolf, dressed in a yellow gown, with diamond beading on her head, who carried a large bouquet of sweet peas and Betty Rudolf, wearing a pink dress, trimmed with diamond beading, and Howard O'Herer, who was dressed in a white suit, carrying baskets of flowers. The three are great grand children of the venerable couple, who are 85 and 82 years old respectively, and who with their children received Holy Communion. The children are: Anna (Mrs. Wm. Van Beck), John of St. Francis, Peter, Hubert, Philip and Joe of Pierce county, Math, of Random Lake. Mr. and Mrs. Schladweiler, well along in years are in the best of health and are making their home with their son John at St. Francis. Their many friends extend hearty congratulations upon their anniversary, wishing them much health and happiness. Those who attended the celebration were: Alphonse Schladweiler of Minnesota; Rev. Nic. # The Colfax Bookplate

W.M.U. SERVICE

"You must please, Miss Grosvenor," murmured Mr. Almy, "your business here, was it not to make a short trip?"

"I was working Spanish," he had said every day. But he said he was really in the city to see you. He had and my queer little eyes knew I saw it. They were absorbed in themselves. But he was plain that they understood each other about some secret. My grandmother had shown no special interest in the matter about the auction of the book. 'Notes' was mentioned and then so much, and such a conversation to connect it from me. I felt sure that was something strange involved something about the other two didn't want to be suggested.

"I was roused. I wondered if I could possibly shape to give the matter to find out about the book which had always surrounded me. You know I had never heard anything about my father and mother."

"My grandfather?" asked Mr. Almy.

"Not at all," answered Julia. "I always thought he must have known something about them. He's the only one I am to remember to have picked up something about my father."

"You know how old you were when she died?"

"She was old. I was told that she had been in the family for decades and who had waited on my mother, she was said my mother said of her. She took care of me when I was very tiny, for she was sent home to Virginia for some reason. She took care of me when I was very tiny, for she was sent home to Virginia for some reason. She took care of me when I was very tiny, for she was sent home to Virginia for some reason. She took care of me when I was very tiny, for she was sent home to Virginia for some reason.

broadest his deed, either. Mr. Almy's source of information about Richmond is the clerk from the galleries. And ever since that purchase, Peter has been in no end of hot water."

Julia groaned—moved, indeed, far beyond what I had expected.

"What has happened?" she gasped.

"Mr. Darrow was furious over the price, to begin with, Peter Burton bore the blame in silence. The legal society which had ordered the book—for which Peter ostensibly bought it—then refused it. Then your recognition of him in the shop on Monday caused a great deal of comment, which he entirely ignored. He is not in the best of spirits; but if I know Peter Burton—I have known him seven years—he is seeing this thing through without flinching. So I can't help hoping you'll finish your story, Miss Grosvenor; tell us all you know about the mystery surrounding your grandfather's death; clear yourself of suspicion, for suspicion does hang over you. Oh, don't make a poor return for the unserving confidence shown in you by this week of silence and suffering!"

Julia's face was blanched, her breath came in gasps. At first she could not speak; when she finally raised her eyes from the floor, they were again full of tears.

"Oh," she whispered huskily, "but you don't know how poor my best return would be—"

She was interrupted. A tetch key sounded in the front door. Charles MacIvor stood before us.

But before he could speak, Mr. Almy had stepped back into the room. So Mr. MacIvor, on taking me in, had no opportunity to comment on the presence in "his" house of one he had ordered out of it the previous evening, though from his expression he was not pleased. Julia grew very uneasy, but Mr. Almy, placid and self-possessed, inquired politely what was wanted.

"I came to see my cousin on personal matters," said MacIvor, coldly.

"By which," Mr. Almy responded, "you mean that bookplate you want out of Claribew's 'Notes.' There it is, look at it."

Taken aback as MacIvor was by this unexpected answer, he could not restrain his eagerness to see the bookplate. He snatched it breathlessly from the other man's hand, and like Julia, turned it over, only to see the blank back. In stupefaction, he stared at it fully half a minute, then turned on his cousin, white with rage and badly frightened, but attempting to conceal his fright under bluster.

"Thought you'd get ahead of me again, did you?"

"I don't know what you mean, Charles," said Julia.

"Likely story! Got the bookplate through your new confidante, Miss Fuller, did you? I don't think you'd arouse all her sympathies if you told her your whole story."

"Miss Fuller brought me the bookplate because she knew I had an interest in it," cried Julia, aroused.

"I have as much right to it as you have!"

Charles opened his eyes.

"As much?" he echoed. "As much?"

He looked at her hard, studying her.

"How much is that?"

She looked back at him innocently.

"I know you and grandfather both wanted that book, Claribew's 'Notes,'" she said quietly, "and I know I wasn't allowed to go and get it, so I suspect that there may be something about it you don't want me to know."

"What?"

Her natural sincerity gave her away.

"I don't know," she admitted.

"You don't know?" repeated Charles, triumphantly. "You just implied it was the bookplate. Be careful, Julia; you're stumbling. What was it about the bookplate that interested you?"

"I felt he was testing her to see how much she knew. I glanced at Mr. Almy, imploring him silently to stop the questioning, but he did not seem to understand at all. He did not know my name in great need of just that service. You can see he has not room at Richmond!" she flung at him.

He almost sprang out of his seat.

"You were there, were you?" he cried.

"Spying on me?"

"I have as much right in any exhibition room as any one!" cried Julia. "Don't dare speak to me that way! Why were you so interested in the bookplate yourself?"

"You'll never know that!" sneered her cousin. "And a lot of good the bookplate has done you, hasn't it? Keep it!" He gave it one final appraising glance and flung it on the table.

"I will keep it," returned Julia, calmly; "or, rather, Miss Fuller will. She has charge of it." And she handed it to me.

His suspicious blazed up again.

"You've been lying to me! That bookplate's not all there! The idea of pretending you don't know what I'm talking about!"

"It," said Julia, reflectively, "taking all our circumstances into consideration, part of the bookplate is not there, according to your judgment, and if there is something secret about it which I must not know because it would be to my advantage and against yours, I guess that you were expecting to find down at Richmond some document which would give me a right to part of the estate!"

"So this is why you've been in cahoots with all that gang at Darrow's—Burton, and his sister, and this woman. Anybody else?" he stormed.

"I haven't an idea what you mean!" cried Julia.

"You've been working against me after the special kindness I showed you!" The emphasis in his words was deadly.

Julia gave a start, and looked frightened, but did not reply.

"Special kindness! Since it suits your taste to refer to such a thing, MacIvor, you'll not mind saying if you mean that trip you made to Darrow's Thursday night?"

Charles MacIvor sprang from his chair.

"That d-d sneak Case!" he shouted. "So he's a friend of yours too, is he, Julia?"

"He certainly is—a good one!" cried Julia, outraged. "You don't speak so of him! He was here today to offer me the aid refused me by the men of my own family—and he is a stranger! He said he knew you, and I seen you off and on all your life; he warned me against you! And he did right!"

"He warned you against me, did he? And he told the police I broke into Darrow's late at night to steal, I suppose, by way of helping you?"

"No," interposed Mr. Almy, suavely. "Mr. Case did not mention the circumstance."

MacIvor turned violently on his cousin.

"Then you did! You're the one person who knew I was going, and you knew well why! For your own safety, you try to betray me, do you?"

"Charles," Julia denied, "I did not say one word about it!"

"Do you expect me to believe that? Who did, then?"

"I did," said Julia, boldly, "I saw you at my desk, from where I was standing in the north gallery!"

"Then it's a conspiracy against me. In behalf of you, is it?" shouted the infuriated MacIvor to his cousin.

"Very well, then it's time for me to explain why I went to Darrow's. Here's the reason!"

Headless of her cry, of her hand stretched out to stop him, he dashed to the rear of the room, threw open one of the glass-doored bookcases, and snatched a small object from a lower shelf.

"That's what I went to get!" he cried, and flung it on the table, while Julia, overcome by his fury, sank back and covered her face with her hands.

Mr. Almy picked up the small object.

It was a cube-shaped brass box, the bases of which were about an inch and a half square. He revolved it slowly in his hand, and we could see it from every angle. From the top protruded a thick black metal shaft nearly an inch in length, out of a wide slot about half the length of the base. Beside this shaft, in the very center of the top, was a flat black screw that stood out perhaps a quarter of an inch on the round base of its own, sunk into the box. On the side of the box, just below the shaft, was a small black lever projecting from a small slot. And on the bottom, as he slowly turned it toward me, I saw a pattern of slots which I instantly recognized! Straight across the bottom base they ran. In just the formation I had seen elsewhere, clenching for me that conviction which had instantly sprung to my mind as Mr. Almy picked up the instrument: I had seen it on the bookplate in miniature; I had seen the pattern of these slots on my yellow note!

But I had little time to do more than identify the box in his left hand, and tentatively pressed the shaft. It slid readily along the wide slot to the top, and reaching the other end, stopped there, caught in place by the springing back of the small black lever in the small slot just below. But as he had pressed the shaft, he had held the bottom of the box toward me, and from each slot I had seen a small sharp blade flash, all of them in one moment, describing a semicircle and disappearing again into the box as the lever sprang.

And now Mr. Almy let go of the shaft and pressed the little lever. And as he did so, the actor of the instrument was reversed: with lightning swiftness, the flashing, little blades all sprang out again from their hiding-places inside the box, describing a semicircle in the opposite direction to their first course, and vanished, with a loud click that shattered the silence in that strange old-fashioned room!

crisp and delicious

IT HAS been the dominating ambition of my whole manufacturing experience to develop a line of cars of moderate price which would have everything in the way of appearance, performance, comfort, and quality that the country's costliest cars offer.

"This ideal has been completely realized, I believe, in the new '400' Series.

"Over $2,500,000 has been invested in dies and special machinery alone to enable us to build this entirely new-type of motor car.

"Nothing I might say could add emphasis to this—It has been the ambition of my career to build such a car as the '400'."

New Fish Found
A new kind of fish has been discovered off the coast of Rio de Janeiro. It is known as the Ink stand fish because of the bone on the back which looks like a pen. When the pen is pulled up, the blood is black, and good enough to write. The bone pen handles as well as the best steel pen.

Genuine High Lift Mowers

McCormick-Deering mowers are genuine high-lift mowers. The five-foot cutter bar will raise 4 3/4 inches at the outer shoe and 2 1/2 inches at the inner shoe. This is ample height to take care of all conditions, except in excessively rough, stony or heavy ground, or where cutting must be done around trees and buildings. In such a case you need a McCormick-Deering high lift mower.

Do you realize that there have been more improvements in mowing machines in the last ten years than in the previous thirty? Improved material and improved manufacturing methods have made it possible to build a much higher machine for 1928 than was possible just a few years ago. These are exclusive features not found in mowers of any other make. Let us send you a copy of our booklet "More than just a mower" which tells an interesting story of how mowers for cutting hay have been improved and brought up to the present day high efficiency. A copy of this booklet is yours for the asking.

Do not wait until your hay is ready to cut before you look over your mowing equipment. It would be wiser to look over it early and if you are going to need a mower come in and let us show you the many good features of the McCormick-Deering.

ANNOUNCEMENT

I, the undersigned hereby announce myself a candidate for the office of Sheriff on the Republican ticket at the primary election to be held on September 4, 1928. I have been a resident of Washington county since 1909. Property owner and tax payer since 1910 and conducting a barber shop in the city of West Bend for the last 19 years. In 1920 was elected alderman in the second ward and re-elected to the same office for the second term in 1922. In the fall of 1922 was appointed Under Sheriff, in the fall of 1924 was again appointed Under Sheriff of Washington county. Very familiar with the sheriff duties and court procedure. If nominated and elected I will perform the duties of the office to the best of my ability. Your support is earnestly solicited.

Theo. Holtebeck.

Cattle Finished for the Market

Dry-Lot Feeding and Fattening on Grass Are Two Methods Used.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture. In "Feeding Cattle for Beef," which has just been published by the United States Department of Agriculture as Farmers' Bulletin 1549-F, W. H. Black of the bureau of animal industry offers in 16 pages a condensed and simplified analysis of practices in feeding cattle, which have been tested in the feed lots and pastures. It is intended primarily as an aid to farmers who have not had wide experience in finishing cattle for the market, but it is believed the bulletin will be no less valuable to experienced feeders in checking their established methods.

Knowing Market Trends. Since the net returns from cattle feeding constitute the real basis for measuring success in the fattening of cattle, the author points out the desirability of knowing the market trends by seasons and for a term of years. This knowledge, plus an examination of the kinds and quantities of feeds and roughages on the farm, will in large measure determine when to buy feeders and what sort to buy.

Dry-lot feeding and fattening on grass are the two methods of finishing cattle for market. It often pays to feed grain supplements to cattle on grass to gain a better finish at an earlier date when the market is likely to be higher for such grades. In recent years the demand for smaller cuts of high quality meat has favored the practice of feeding calves liberally and selling them as fat yearlings.

ancing rations and for starting cattle on feed, management systems for calves, supplementary feeds for grazing cattle, mineral mixtures, equipment for feeding, and other practical suggestions.

Causes of Failures to Secure Alfalfa Stand

Failures to secure stands of alfalfa on reseeding may be due to several causes, farmers interested in new seedings are being advised. Young alfalfa needs a firm, moist seed bed that has been as carefully prepared as for sugar beets, according to Alvin Kezer, agronomist of the Colorado experiment station.

Stable Man Showed Grim Sense of Humor

Add to the true but trying stories of the week the case of the young lady who was most anxious to reach her gentleman friend posthaste. Knowing him to be an ardent horseman and confident that he was riding at the moment, she bought the telephone Red Book.

SELL VEGETABLES AT ROADSIDE STANDS TO INCREASE INCOMES

Should Be Home-Grown and of Good Quality.

To make a successful business of roadside marketing one must have sufficient interest, the right help, a good location, and the willingness to be exacting and pay close attention to details, stated Prof. Paul Work of Cornell university, speaking at the New York State College of Agriculture on roadside markets for vegetables.

Agricultural Notes

The more desirable for the farmer. The salesman is important in building good will and a large trade. He must present a good appearance, must never contradict, be patient, and not too talkative.

Soil Best Adapted for Growing Soy Bean Crop

If soy beans are planted on clean soil and broadcast at the rate of two bushels per acre, one can expect to get from two to three tons of hay per acre. Soil that will produce good corn will usually raise soy beans satisfactorily.

Chicks Need Green Feed

Many chicks are raised in partial confinement to keep them away from older birds and contaminated ground. Remember they still need and like plenty of tender, green feed.

MONARCH QUALITY FOOD PRODUCTS

set the standard. If you paid a dollar a pound you could not buy better food products than those you find packed under the Monarch label.

Set Level Auto and Radio Battery Filler. The old way of filling with thumb rubber bulb and flashlight eliminated 'It's all in one' and will work correctly on any size battery.

Don't Make a Toy Out of Baby Babies Have Nerves

Much of the nervousness in older children can be traced to the over-stimulation during infancy, caused by regarding baby as a sort of animated toy for the amusement of parents, relatives and friends.

Name "Dark Continent" Credited to Stanley

Africa is called the "Dark continent" on account of the fact that it was for many years an unexplored region. Henry M. Stanley, who knew more about Africa than anyone else, traversed its darkest part, and told the story of his travels under the title, "In Darkest Africa."

The simile "Dark as Egypt" may relate to the fact that the Egyptians were superstitious, and as people who were continually seeking omens, they avoided work on certain days.

Good Reason

He—So you've been in Egypt; did you see the pyramids? She—Well, I should say I did; I climbed to the top of one and drove a golf ball off.

Delving Into the Past

Evidence of the antiquity of man, from the caves of Europe and the deserts of the Near East, will be collected this year by an expedition of the Field Museum of Natural History of Chicago, headed by Henry Field, anthropologist.

Unmusical

"Are you fond of music?" "Not very," confessed Senator Sorghum. "I never yet saw a brass band or an orchestra that wouldn't play as energetically for one side of an argument as it would for the other."

Secrets

"The Joneses are keeping their trip to Boston a secret." "How do you know?" "Jones told me."

Milk Rigidly Inspected

While Chicago furnishes an excellent outlet for milk, they likewise maintain for the protection of the inhabitants of the city very rigid milk inspection. One of the results of this rigid inspection is the lowering of the infant mortality to a very great extent. While we doubt very much if a single patron of a creamery would even attempt to "get by" with milk that is not up to the standard it is necessary to maintain for the protection of the public, yet ever necessary for each and every one of us, to be up and doing, so that an outlet for our product will not be jeopardized. Milk delivered here is kept up, a good reputation in this best of all markets.
