

The Max Bookplate

By AGNES MILLER

him any questions after I had picked it up from beside my grandfather, in the law-book alcove last Monday morning."

"And you leaped to the conclusion that I'd attacked him with it. Wonderful idea!" scoffed Charles, roughly. "What possible motive could I have had for wishing him out of the way?"

"To get that book with the bookplate before he did," answered Julia steadily. "To get money—quickly. You always need it, Charles; he wouldn't give you all you wanted. Your desire for money is what's sending you to Buenos Aires."

"And listen! I know I put those Liberty bonds into grandfather's desk, yonder; he asked me to do so. On Tuesday, when I came back from the hospital, they were gone. You are the only person who has a duplicate key to that desk; I suspected that you must have come back to the house unseen."

"He came back," I murmured to Mr. Almy. "but not unseen. Tell you later!"

"—and taken them. And sure enough, they were sold for you. And I said nothing. But that's aside from the present point. Why did you go to Darrow's on Monday, if not after that book?"

Charles MacFor flushed with rage, but seeing that he was still in a stronger position than Julia, he glared at her with defiance. She paid no attention to his anger. In fact, she spoke, seeing she must speak, as gently as she did firmly.

"Charles," she said, "it was for me that I hid that spring-lance." "For me?"

"Yes. I kicked it under that desk as I ran up the aisle. For you I have kept silence, until you betrayed me, as you think—as I fear you hope. Now I see your absence from Darrow's after ten o'clock has made all my effort useless. Foolish. I am in a defenseless position. All I can say of my own movements there that morning is that I spent the whole time searching for Charles's 'Notes.' What happened from twenty minutes of eleven until a quarter past, in reference to grandfather, I have no idea. But I have told the truth; my innocence will be proved."

"You'll need more than faith for that!" sneered Charles. "I had enough of him. 'All right,' said I, 'we'll have some words too. One minute, please!'"

"By these companions, even Mr. Almy, stared at me open-mouthed, but I did not care, for I was going to make the bluff of my life, which was based, however, on some very careful thinking I had been doing during that half-hour. There was a bowl of flowers on the table. I snatched them out of the bowl, picked up the bookplate, and laid it carefully on the surface of the water. Holding it there with one hand, with the other I extracted from my hair the sole wire hairpin I always wear out of deference to two helpless male relatives who beg at the most extraordinary times for 'tin one' to clean a pipe with."

"I know the Yanks have got the best ball club in the country, but that doesn't mean it is any cinch we are going to win." And that, fellow fans, is what the game's biggest figure, Babe Ruth, thinks about the impending American league pennant race.

Yanks Can't Win Without Luck

"I know the Yanks have got the best ball club in the country, but that doesn't mean it is any cinch we are going to win." And that, fellow fans, is what the game's biggest figure, Babe Ruth, thinks about the impending American league pennant race.

Babe Ruth.

Half-Mile Record Held by Six Different Men

In view of Lloyd Hahn's record it is interesting to note that only five men before him have held the acknowledged world's half-mile record since 1885.

Sisler Joins Braves

The photograph shows a close-up of George Sisler, formerly of the Washingtons, as he appeared in his new uniform of the Boston Braves after he had joined his team.

Sport Notes

At golf one plays for the short as well as the long green. A new sports arena to seat 20,000 people is planned in Cleveland, Ohio. We see where a writer in Harper's Magazine says amateur tennis is a racket. Charley Lytle's cross-country stroll may be ended 'till we'll bet the bunions linger on.

FREAK SHOT CLUB IS NOW REIGNING

List of Eligibles Presented in American Golfer.

Now that holes-in-one have been made on every year-old course in the land, the journalistic gentlemen who follow the game are digging up eligibles for a more exclusive mythical fraternity, the Freak Shot club.

All you need to become a member are the proper circumstances—and a ton of luck. If you happen to play your ball from its lie in a bird's nest plop into the hole, or if your hopeless hook ricochets from a tree and becomes a hole-in-one, you're in. And you are in good company, as witness this list of eligibles presented in the American golfer.

Olympic Coach Schulte Never on Cinder Path

Track Coach Henry F. (Indiana) Schulte of the University of Nebraska, selected as one of the mentors of the 1928 United States Olympic team, never performed on the cinder path.

Badger Coach Organizes Amateur Baseball Teams

Promoting amateur baseball in Wisconsin is the latest job assigned to Coach Leonard E. Allison, assistant athletic director at the University of Wisconsin, who has been appointed state athletic officer for the American Legion.

Critz Hits Timely

Hughley Critz (shown in the photograph) has been hitting timely and fielding brilliantly for the Cincinnati Reds this season. The Cincinnati second baseman is one of the best in the league. Had he been going as well last summer the race might have ended differently.

Undeclared Wrestler

Ralph Lupton, Northwestern university's new wrestling captain, has never been defeated in two years of competition. His unique record started at Cornell college in Iowa two years ago, and after a year's period of noncompetition, to comply with faculty regulations, he resumed his interrupted string at Northwestern this year. He won both the Western conference and national intercollegiate titles at 125 pounds staged earlier in this season.

Much Interest in Radio During Summer Season

The farmer is being supplied with more material by radio this summer than ever before," Morse Salisbury, in charge of radio for the United States Department of Agriculture, says. "And radio stations are not slacking off for the summer months at all. They protest against the idea that radio is not a year-round avenue of information and entertainment. We are continuing to supply co-operating stations, which now number 136. So the farmer has his supply of information by radio coming in just the same—more variety this summer than ever before."

There will be a great many radio listeners this summer who will forsake their tennis, their golf and their garden for the radio," says W. D. Terrell, chief of the radio division, Department of Commerce.

No. 18 Wire Is Ample for Filament Circuits

There exists a general misimpression that it is necessary to wire the filaments and heaters of A. C. tubes with inordinately large and cumbersome wire, due to the relatively heavy filament drain of such tubes. While there is a certain amount of justification for this assumption in the case of the low-voltage tubes—the 27 and 26 types—the stipulation has been exaggerated even in such cases. It never should be necessary to use larger than No. 18 solid wire for filament purposes. It is very seldom that more than four tubes are carried on a single circuit, special circuits being employed for detector and power tubes, splitting three ways the current consumption to the receiver and reducing the voltage drop in the leads. Considering the requirements of the average receiver, the number of tubes used and the length of leads, the difference between the voltage drop occasioned in No. 18 wire and in the recommended No. 14 wire, represents an inconsequential part of possible voltage variations due to line regulation, etc. Also, transformers generally are fitted with primary current control devices, which are used to obtain the correct tube voltage regardless of line voltage or voltage drop in leads. It is interesting to note that recent experiments in the laboratory at the Arcturus Radio company show that heater cathode tubes of the 27 type actually are more sensitive detectors at voltage from 10 to 25 per cent below the recommended heater potentials.

Placement of Speaker for Best Reproduction

Those who are constantly striving for the best in reproduction should show as much care in the placement of a speaker in a room as in the selection of the speaker itself. Due to the reflection of the sound waves, what are known as "standing waves" are set up and certain frequencies are reinforced while others are reduced in amplitude. The speaker should preferably be located so that it is not backed up on the rear side by the wall or any large surface. Frequently a certain note will come in disproportionately loud, which seems to indicate the speaker is resonant at this frequency. By moving the speaker a few inches at a time away from the nearest wall a spot will frequently be found where this effect is minimized or even eliminated.

Superheterodyne Logic of Importance to Fans

Where three stages or more of intermediate frequency amplification are employed in a superheterodyne, the receiver will be found to function best when the filaments of the intermediate tubes are operated on four volts or less for the 201-A type of tubes. In some cases the reduction of the "B" voltage on the intermediate stages will also increase the sensitivity of the receiver to a remarkable degree. The principal effect, however, is increased stabilization—a virtue conspicuous by its absence in superheterodynes of average design.

Two Forms of Distortion

As the percentage modulation increases the production of harmonics of the modulating frequency by the detector increases. For this planisimo passages in the signal come over much clearer than the fortissimo passages. This distortion is independent from that introduced by overloading of tubes. The two forms of distortion are additive.

Anybody Would Be Glad to Call This Cozy Little Bungalow Home

First Floor Plan.

By W. A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF CHARGE on all subjects pertaining to practical home building...

Here is a cozy little bungalow that almost anybody would be proud to call home. Aside from the good proportions of the house as a whole there are three things that chiefly account for its attractiveness...

Yes, this is a very charming home and for the family whose needs can be comfortably met by five rooms it should prove highly satisfactory.

Decorations Emphasize Importance of the Door

Substantial workmanship and graceful design are combined in a one-panel door widely distributed for home construction in this country in which several unusual patented features are utilized to prevent warping and shrinkage...

Insulated Home Has Larger Value for Loan

While advertising campaigns, model home demonstrations and magazine and newspaper articles have appraised the home-building public of the economics of properly insulating the dwelling, there is one aspect of insulating economics which frequently is overlooked.

Its importance is attested by the fact that building and loan associations and other home mortgage concerns will give a substantially higher mortgage percentage on the insulated house.

Paint New House in Dry, Clear Weather

A new house should never be painted before plaster walls or wet basements have thoroughly dried out, or while the new wood is water-soaked from rains or insufficient seasoning.

The painting also should be done in dry, clear weather, never during or immediately after a heavy dew, frost, or fog or when a storm is threatening. Before painting is started, all knots and sappy places should be given a coat of shellac or aluminum paint to seal in the pores so it will not bleed through the paint later on.

Tile Used for Floors, Roofs and Partitions

Lightweight and incombustible tile for use as fireproof partitions, roof-decks and floors is manufactured from gypsum and wood fiber, with about 97 per cent of the whole being gypsum and the balance wood fiber.

Insulation usually costs but a few hundred dollars, but the increased value resulting usually more than accounts for the added cost.

Adequate Lighting

The first essential in room comfort nowadays is the provision for a sufficient amount of light for all occasions and enough outlets to permit the attachment of occasional electric appliances at points desired.

The first essential in room comfort nowadays is the provision for a sufficient amount of light for all occasions and enough outlets to permit the attachment of occasional electric appliances at points desired.

Easily Renewed

Almost all the smaller articles about the house may be given a new lease of life and the affections of the housewife by a few coats of paint or of the new brushing lacquers.

One safety expert says that most accidents attributed vaguely to carelessness can be traced to bad eyesight, alcoholism, fatigue, undernourishment or other specific causes.

Your Buick Dealer stands back of the USED CARS he sells

Your Buick dealer's good reputation in the community is worth far more to him than the profit he makes on any used car transaction.

He is the head of an established business and he knows that in order to get more business, he must please his present customers.

He carries a representative stock of used cars, including both used Buicks and cars of other makes—and he represents them honestly.

You're sure of a square deal when you buy from the Buick dealer. He stands back of the used cars he sells.

Both Cooling and Straining Milk Important

Perhaps even under good sanitary conditions foreign matter will be found in milk at straining time. However the less the foreign matter, the purer the product, and in this question we are all interested. Milk to be pure, sweet and untainted, must have the very best of care as there is nothing where microbes and off flavors will develop quicker than in milk. If there ever was a place where the spirit of true co-operation should always be kept in mind, it is in the production and marketing of milk for human consumption.

HOT WIND EXPLAINED

Berg wind is a dry, hot wind that frequently blows from the north along the coast of Cape Colony, South Africa. It derives its name from the berg or mountains, which lie in the center of the colony, and its dryness and heat from the arid country over which it passes.
