DEATH OF MRS. HERMAN BUTZLAFF

After a year's illness of severe suffering, with carcinoma of the face, larynx and stomach, death came as a relief in calling away from her earthly cares, a young wife and mother of noble character and a fine example of womanhood, namely Mrs. Herman Butzlaff (nee Nettie Schaefer) of the town of Kewaskum, who passed into eternal sleep at her home last Saturday evening, Sept. 8, 1928 at 5:30 o'clock. Mrs. Butzlaff was born April 2, 1884 in the town of Kewaskum, where she lived her entire life. On April 16, 1906 she was married to Herman Butzlaff, who with the following children survive: Walter, Harvey and Lorinda, all at home. Besides these she leaves her aged mother, Mrs. Christ Schaefer Sr., three brothers, Louis, Herman and Gustave Schaefer, and one sister, Amelia (Mrs. William Butzlaff), all of here. Mrs. Butzlaff was a woman of many worthy qualities, and the mother of a family of fine children, she had the sympathy of the community in the ailment which at no time would yield to treatment. Though her suffering was great, she bore her illness with patience to the end. The funeral which was very largely attended, was held Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 from the residence and at 2 o'clock at the Peace Evangelical church. Rev. Ernest Irion officiated. Interment was made in the congregation's cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS

We, the undersigned desire to express our heartfelt thanks to all our neighbors, relatives and friends for the kind sympathy extended to us in our bereavement, the illness, death and burial of our beloved wife and mother, Mrs. Herman Butzlaff. To the pall bearers, for the many beautiful floral tributes, to Rev. Irion for his comforting words, to the singers, those who assisted at the home, to all who loaned cars, to Undertaker Reinders, to all who attended the funeral.

Herman Butzlaff and children.

COUNTY FAIR A SUCCESS

With weather conditions favorable, large exhibits on display in every department, and the attendance large the Washington County Fair held at West Bend last week Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, turned out to be a big success. In the Agricultural and Horticultural Hall, the display was greater and better than ever. The dairy pavilion was filled with the choicest cattle, Holsteins, Guernseys, Red Polled, Jerseys, Milking Shorthorns and the prominent breeders of the county were represented. In this pavilion the dairy herd improvement association had an interesting chart which showed what cow testing may accomplish. The exhibits in the Educational hall were rich and interesting. School work of all sorts was on display. A large portion of the space was occupied by exhibits of the 4 H clubs, the Garden clubs, Canning clubs and Corn clubs. The manual training classes were represented by useful furniture made by the boys. The free attractions were better than ever. The races were the best that had been held there for many years. Fifty horses were entered, forty of which showed up and thirty-six started. All told, the fair this year was the best held in this county for a number of years, and should serve as a forerunner for the success of future fairs in this county.

LEGION MEETING LARGELY ATTENDED

The regular monthly meeting of the Kewaskum Post of the American Legion, held Monday evening, was largely attended. Members from the West Bend and Hartford posts were in attendance. It was agreed by the members that if possible a post auxiliary be organized here. A meeting will therefore be held at the Public Library on Friday evening, Sept. 21, at which time all ladies are urged to attend. Those eligible to join are the mothers, wives and sisters of ex-service men. Miss Cora Braun of Milwaukee, head of the auxiliary posts of the state will be present to explain the purpose of an auxiliary to work in connection with the Legion. On Saturday evening, October 6th, a joint meeting of all the auxiliary posts of the county will be held at Goring's hall at Big Cedar lake, at which time a joint installation of officers will be held. After the meeting a luncheon will be served after which a dance will be held.

By a unanimous vote of the post, it was further agreed that Geo. H. Schmidt of Chicago, a former resident of Kewaskum, be elected an honorary member of the Kewaskum Post No. 374 of the American Legion, which entitles him to life membership of said organization. This was done as a token of appreciation for his untiring efforts and good work done for the big and most successful picnic and entertainment ever held by the post in August 1924, at which time he had the responsible position of chairman on the arrangement committee.

It was further agreed that at the next meeting of the post, which will be held on Monday evening, Oct. 8th, preliminary arrangements would be made for the organization of a basketball team. It is urged that all those interested in playing basketball attend this meeting, so the post can determine how much timber there is available here for the organization of a team, said team will be sponsored and managed by the legion.

GRATEFUL

Highly appreciating the support accorded me in the primary Tuesday, I desire to express my thanks to the voters in the second congressional district. I was drafted for service in the campaign, and in the limited time at my disposal tried to cover the district as thoroughly as I could. Almost a stranger in certain sections, I made a large number of friends, and these friendships I will appreciate more as time goes on. I make no claim of being a politician and in entering the race I did so at the solicitation of friends, and I am more than compensated by the generous support given me. Two years ago Mr. Kading received 12,947 votes, and in Tuesday's primary I received 12,780.

There was no mud slinging in my campaign, just a clean contest between all of the candidates. This in itself is gratifying.
Again let me say that I am grateful for your support.
JOHN F. ENZ

The much thought of talking parrot, owned by Dr. and Mrs. Henry Diessel, left his home last Saturday and has since then not been seen or heard of. Just what has become of him no one seems to know. The parrot was so accustomed to his home that he occasionally had been left out of his cage and at liberty to fly around the house and on the lawn, and each time was always ready to fly back into his cage when the proper time came. Last Saturday, however, it was different, for he wandered away from home and his whereabouts is not known.

A number of the West Bend Moose band members and their wives from here attended the birthday celebration of John Willkom at the K. C. hall, West Bend last Monday evening.

CELEBRATION AT DUNDEE A SUCCESS

The largest celebration ever held at Dundee marked the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Lutheran Trinity church building and the fiftieth anniversary of the congregation last Sunday. Three church services were held in connection, with the double anniversary celebration, at 10:30 a. m. with the Rev. O. Liagedorn officiating, at 2:30 p. m. with Prof. A. Pieper of Milwaukee officiating and at 7:30 p. m. with Rev. John Halboth of Cascade conducting the sessions. The band and choir of the Trinity Lutheran church of Sheboygan rendered a number of musical selections during the services and also entertained during the dinner and supper hours. Dinner was served to approximately six hundred people. Refreshments were served on the grounds throughout the day. Prizes were drawn and went to Edgar Romaine, Otto Freiberg of Fond du Lac, August Wolfram of Armstrong, Lehman White, C. W. Baetz, E. Stolzenberg of Sheboygan and Dr. O. J. Wolfram of Lyons, Wis.
The pastor, Rev. C. Aepler, and the officials of the church extended a vote of thanks to the choir and band of the Sheboygan congregation for the assistance rendered in providing music. All others who had played an important part in the celebration observance were cordially thanked for their efforts.

BOY, 15, ADMITS STARTING FIRES

Mequon, Wis.—Mequon and Thiensville spent their first restful night of the week Thursday night following the arrest and confession of a 15-year-old incendiary that he started six recent fires here. Alfred Gruenewald Jr., son of a caretaker of the Paver Canning company, told of starting the flames and later helping fire fighters put them out. He related his story to William A. Greenwald, deputy state fire marshal of Milwaukee, who started an investigation of the series of conflagrations Wednesday. All of the fires, damage from which totaled more than $16,000, were set in buildings of the canning factory, across the street from the Gruenewald home. The youth was taken to Port Washington where a complaint was sworn out and a hearing conducted after the boy had confessed to starting the fires.

REAL ESTATE MOVING

The fact that farming is coming back to the front again was demonstrated here Wednesday when the A. L. Rosenheimer Realty Co., sold two farms in one day. Alois Steger of Theresa purchased an eighty acre farm located near St. Michaels and known as the former Math. Stockhauser farm. This farm has been successfully tenanted for the past four years by Wm. Krueger. Rudolph Kuehl of St. Kilian bought a sixty acre farm formerly owned by Henry Jacak. Mr. Kuehl has been the tenant on this place for the past year. Possession of both farms will be given the owners immediately.

Nature's Regulation

Although there are from twenty to sixty more male babies than female babies in every 1,000 babies born there are more women than men in the civilized countries of the world, according to an answered question to Liberty. This is because more male babies die in infancy, and men are more liable than women to death by accident.

DIVORCEE SEEN AS BENEFICIARY

Etta Rickmeyer, pretty 22-year-old divorcee, who until recently lived at a downtown hotel at Milwaukee, promises to be an important witness, at least, in the case of Ray Zahn, 36, West Bend freight agent. Zahn went into a cell at West Bend Tuesday because he lacked the $20,000 bond money needed to obtain his liberty pending trial on a charge of embezzling nearly $9,000 from the North Western road.
District attorney Henry Schmidt of West Bend, said that the Milwaukee case against Etta was begun by Zahn in an effort to trace some of the money which he claims he gave her. It is Zahn's contention that Etta's unreasonable demand for money caused him to take stated amounts from the accounts of the North Western road at the West Bend freight depot. Mr. Schmidt says that Zahn was one of the factors in the divorce suit begun by Mr. Rickmeyer, a Milwaukee insurance salesman, a year ago, and which the husband won last November, gaining custody of their only child. Zahn was arraigned in justice court in West Bend and was bound over for trial in November. His mother fainted when the order was issued committing him to jail in lieu of $20,000 bail. As cashier for the road at West Bend, he had access to all the funds collected on freight bills in West Bend. The money was taken in lots of from $100 to $300 at a time. The auditors charge that Zahn collected several large freight bills, posted some of the accounts but hid the others and kept the money. He kept these on the books as open accounts. Zahn is the father of two children. According to reports given out this week Washington county authorities will not seek the arrest of Mrs. Etta Rickmeyer of Milwaukee. Mrs. Rickmeyer who it is alleged, was the cause of the alleged thefts, is already under arrest in Milwaukee and was scheduled to be heard in district court Friday. She is charged with obtaining $300 through a confidence game. Zahn, it is said, started the action in an effort to trace the money which it is alleged was paid to the woman.

Casey Can Pinch Hit at Big Fires Now, Anyway

Last year's mighty Pete Casey of the Western league again is a fire fighter.

He was the mighty Pete Casey of the Tulsa club and they didn't sing that ancient Casey song when he came up. He hit them on the nose and won ball games.

Late in the season he was struck on the head by a pitched ball at Omaha, Neb., and that blow ended his professional career. He had given promise of greatness, but he never could carry on after he recovered from the blow.

Chattanooga gave him a chance. And Muskogee gave him a chance. But he couldn't make the grade and he had to go back to his old trade—fire fighting.

And that is the story of the mighty Pete Casey—a victim of an unfortunate accident.

BOTTOMLEY BEST FIRST BASEMAN

Ranked as First in National League Because of Hitting.

At least two of our present day first base performers in the majors stand out in a class by themselves. It is no secret, even to the fan who has only occasional outbursts of baseball fever, that one of this pair is James Bottomley of the St. Louis Cardinals; the other Lou Gehrig of the Yankees, writes Irving Vaughan, in the Chicago Tribune. They are pre-eminent because they are masters of the art of laying the wood against the leather, it being conceded, also proved, that the man with the punch can take the play away from the fellow whose chief stock in trade is fielding.

While the task of separating the above duo from the other front door attendants of the two majors involves no drain upon the mental faculties of the so-called expert (who frequently writes only what he hears roll from the tongue of a man long experienced in the diamond profession), it is quite another job to distinguish between Mr. Bottomley and Mr. Gehrig.

There is so little difference in the skill of the two men that determining one from the other as the outstanding first sacker of the season might well be decided by drawing a slip of paper from a plug hat. Or you might even determine which has the better disposition and make your choice accordingly.

In the opinion of the writer Bottomley is entitled to a rating slightly higher than the young man who is doing his bit to make the Yanks too formidable for the rest of the American league. This choice is made, not on figures, which can be made to prove almost anything in baseball, but on items that are not apparent to, or even considered, by the enthusiast who pays the freight and sits in the grandstand. The chief of these is that Bottomley is the attack of the Cardinals. Gehrig is part of the Yank attack that is formidable mainly because of the power of Ruth.

It is an established fact in baseball that there is a sort of psychological advantage in hitting immediately behind a batter of Ruth's caliber.

Bottomley came to the Cards from Syracuse in August, 1922, for three players and a cash consideration. During his career in the majors he has maintained a batting average of .331.

Bottomley played in the world's series against the Yankees in 1926, hitting at a .345 clip for the seven games.

Beginner Learns Quick

If He Has Confidence

George Von Elm, the amateur golf champion, said at a dinner in Los Angeles:

"The beginner learns golf more quickly if he has confidence in himself, but self-confidence is what most beginners lack."

"A beginner was getting ready to swipe at a ball one day when his caddy said:

"Hold on, boss. Man in front, you must always yell 'Fore!' If there's anybody in front of you when you're going to hit the ball!"

"Oh, rubbish!" said the beginner. "How the dickens do I know when I'm going to hit the ball?"

Peckinpaugh Signs for Another Year as Pilot

The reappointment of Roger Peckinpaugh to pilot the Cleveland Indians in 1925 was looked upon with favor in Cleveland baseball circles, despite the fact that the Indians have been playing some of the poorest ball in the American league.

The announcement that Peckinpaugh had been signed for another year was made by Alva Bradley, president of the club, who said that the appointment was not only "a gesture of confidence in Peck but was intended to encourage him to forget the present disastrous campaign."

Blame Ice Cream

Ice cream, it now appears, froze the United States out of many events in the Olympic games. The United States Lines London news bureau quotes Charles H. Heldorn, chief steward of the President Roosevelt, as saying of the athletes: "They can't seem to get enough ice cream. Some of them eat it four times a day. Yes, they do eat. Steaks, chops and tons of ice cream. I've never seen anything like it."

Another Ty Cobb

After a lapse of twenty-four years, the name of Ty Cobb is again appearing in the box scores of the Annisston club of the Alabama-Georgia league.

This Ty Cobb who has identically the same full name as Tyrus Raymond Cobb, one of the greatest ball players in the history of the game, is nineteen years old and plays the outfield.

By a coincidence, the original Ty Cobb began his professional career with the Annisston club in 1904.

WHAT DR. CALDWELL LEARNED IN 47 YEARS PRACTICE

A physician watched the results that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, their condition will occur from time to time when it comes. Dr. Caldwell learned in 47 years of practice, as he learned as possible, hence his remedy, his habit forming Syrup Pepsin is a habit forming, and youngsters love it.

Dr. Caldwell did not believe that drastic physics and purges, as they were called, were good for the system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use. Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels as promptly.

Do not let a day go by without bowel movement. Do not sit and wait but go to the nearest drug store and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, or write to Dr. Caldwell, Dept. BB, Monticello, N.Y. for free trial bottle.

The Only Way

"We'll have to correct that account. It will be very difficult to correct him," said the accountant's wife. "Nevertheless, we shall have to correct him. We can't rub him out," Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Great Need

His Wife—Why don't you clean spots off your coat? It looks dreadful.

Mr. Motorbug—I know it does, but we could get at least a half mile from the gasoline it would take to cover Province.

Hanford's Balsam of Peppermint

Since 1846 Has Healed Wounds, Sores on Man and Beast.

Money back for first bottle if not cured.

Shocked

"What did your husband think your new frock?"

"My dear, he clapped his hands—'Splendid!'"

"—Over his eyes."

According to Weight

Stout Lady (to man with scales)—What do you charge per pound to boat ride?

"Ten dollars per ton, lady."

THERE is nothing that has ever taken the place of Bayer Aspirin as an antidote for pain. Safe, and physicians wouldn't use it, and consumers use by others. Save, or send to your dealer or write to Bayer Aspirin (at any drugstore) with Bayer on the box, and the word genuine printed in red.

The Limit

He (at beach)—You've heard of the last resort?

She (a newcomer)—Yes.

He—Well, this is it.

Even a fat sum may be mixed.

The new Buick is the New Style

Graceful contours instead of straight lines—the gleam and sparkle of brilliant colors and chrome plating instead of drab effects... the most beautiful bodies ever built... Buick's masterpiece bodies by Fisher

At a time when motor car beauty was practically standardized—when imitation was the vogue—when there was a glaring lack of originality in body design—Buick has swept far beyond the commonplace and achieved a style which the entire country is acclaiming as the most distinctive and beautiful ever shown!

Fisher, the world's foremost builder of automobile bodies, has cooperated with Buick, the world's foremost builder of fine cars, to create a new mode—a new fashion—and so luminous is the result and so eagerly is the public welcoming it that Buick's great factories have reached new production levels in an effort to keep pace with an ever increasing demand!

Inside and out, the new Buick bodies by Fisher are the most beautiful ever built. Together with the wonderful new standards of performance introduced by the Silver Anniversary Buick, they are winning the greatest demand and the greatest preference ever enjoyed by any fine car!

The new Buick is the new style! And by that is meant, not merely a new type of beauty—not merely a thrilling turning point in body design—but a great countrywide vogue!

Water Seeks Its Own Level So Will Quality

When butter is of fine flavor it is because the cream from which it is churned was properly cared for. When cheese is of first-class quality it is because the milk was properly cared for. Quality always depends on the condition of the raw material. We are endeavoring to build this business on the solid foundation of quality which means that all our patrons are expected to be ever on the job in the endeavor to keep quality high. McCORMICK-DEERING Enclosed Gear ENSILAGE CUTTER

The McCormick-Deering No. 12 Ensilage Cutter is another International Harvester achievement. It sets a new standard in ensilage-cutter design and construction. It is an ensilage cutter that embodies improved features from automobile and tractor construction. The foundation of the No. 12 ensilage cutter is a one-piece frame enclosing the flywheel, cutter, transmission and drive. All the working parts are enclosed in an oil-tight dust-proof housing, permitting all parts to run in a clean, cool atmosphere. This construction, combined with the use of special heat-treated gears, assures exceptionally long life and efficient operation.

Other features of McCormick-Deering construction are:

- Flywheel type with four knives secured to flywheel of boiler plate steel.
- Power drive on feed apron with high and wide feed throat.
- Working parts mounted on high-grade, anti-friction bearings.
- Length of cut can be changed without stopping machine.

and destruction, that's the matter, so it is. That thief of the world Dinsmore has stolen every cent I had laid up for my old age, that's what's the matter."

"Mr. Dinsmore? Stolen? It's not true," I gasped.

"Not true, is it? It's me that wishes to God it wasn't true! He's stolen all my savings and run away with them. She thrust a newspaper beneath my nose.

It was another and apparently a later paper than the one I had bought on the steamer. That had been chiefly headlines and text that repeated the headlines; this I saw at a glance contained columns of detail I snatched it from the woman's hands and ran my eye down it.

It was awful. The paper seemed to have thrown restraint to the winds. According to it, Father had done everything—wrecked railroads, robbed banks, gambled in stocks, ruined thousands of widows and children—and had then disappeared. But he would be found soon; the railroads and ferries were all watched and—

I read no more. At least Father wasn't in jail. I turned on the woman. "I don't believe a word of it," I cried. "Father—"

Josephine clutched my arm abruptly and I stopped. It was the first time in all her life that Josephine had done anything abruptly; and I stopped and turned to see what was the matter. I thought that perhaps she had seen Father approaching. I couldn't imagine her clutching me for any less startling cause.

"What's the matter?" I gasped.

Josephine hesitated. "Don't you think—Don't you think—" she began. "That—that—"

I didn't know what she meant. But the woman was speaking and I turned back to her. "Father—" I began again.

But she did not allow me to finish. "An' what does your father know?" she broke in. "It is himself that knows more than the grand jury that indicted Dinsmore? It is himself that knows where Dinsmore got the money to build the town house yonder all for himself and his two daughters? The hussles! It's tearing their clothes off their backs I'd like to be, so I would, I'd—"

"You—you," I spluttered. And again Josephine clutched my arm.

I knew what she meant now, but was too furious to listen. No one could call Father names to my presence without my speaking up. "You—you—" I raved. "You—"

"Whist!" The Irishwoman turned away. "Yonder they come. An' I hope they've got him." She turned toward the house.

My eyes followed hers, and for the first time that morning I really looked at the house. Then I gasped. I scarcely recognized it. The upper windows were all blanked by blinds that were pulled down to the very bottom; and the lower windows and the door were hidden behind the flat wooden frames that we always put up when we went away from town in the summer. Father had said nothing about putting them up; he had let us think that he was going to live at home while we were gone. And he must have set the servants to work on them as soon as we started for the boat.

But at the moment I had no time to think of that. The small door to the big entrance frame was open and through it three men were coming. Two were policemen, and one was—was—Think Heaven, it wasn't Father! It was Barker, the caretaker who always lived in the house while we were away. He peered out and then dodged back and closed the door.

The two policemen came down to the pavement and to the patrol wagon that was waiting at the curb. As the second one climbed in he turned and spoke to a man who questioned him.

"Naw!" he said gruffly. "There won't be nothin' doin'. Dinsmore ain't here; and it's a safe bet he won't be. His daughters have sailed for somewhere; and there's nobody here but a caretaker. There's no use waitin'."

He spoke to the one man, but his big voice boomed over the street so that everybody heard it. Then he jumped into the wagon and it clattered away.

The crowd seemed satisfied, for it began to disperse, drifting away by ones and twos till no one was left except Josephine and me and an officer, whom I had not noticed before, who stood watching at the corner of the alley just beyond the house. As soon as I saw him I guessed that he had been stationed there to arrest or follow anybody who came to the house, and I made up my mind that he should not see Josephine or me. If the papers and the police thought that Josephine and I had sailed for Japan I would not undo them. We could hide and wait till Father turned up. Perhaps I—even I—could do something toward clearing away the cloud that rested on Father's name.

I turned to Josephine. "Come!" I said, turning away from the house.

Josephine stared at me. "Come where?" she asked. "Aren't you going home?"

"No!" I said. "We can't." I explained why we couldn't. "We can't go home. We've got to go to Dinsmore's Folly."

Josephine looked so amazed that I did not wait for her to speak. "I don't wonder you're surprised," I said. "But we've got to go there. We've nowhere else to go. Perhaps you've forgotten—I had forgotten, too, and the fact made me a little sarcastic—perhaps you have forgotten that Aunt Candice carried the money and that you and I are nearly busted—unless we go to the office and give ourselves dead away."

Josephine considered this for a moment. "Then," she said, "we can't afford to take a taxi out to Dinsmore."

"That's nothing." I wasn't going to admit that I had forgotten anything. "We don't need any taxi. We'll go in the subway. Come on."

I started and Josephine followed. For three blocks she followed in silence. Then just at the subway entrance she halted. "I've been thinking," she began.

I stopped and faced her. I had great respect for the result of Josephine's thoughts—when she reached them. She was slow but she was sure—often painfully so. "Well?" I questioned.

Josephine opened her big eyes wider. "I believe Father is on board the steamer," she said. "I believe that was why he sent us on her. I believe he expected to meet us on her after she got to sea."

"Good Lord!" My eyes popped wide and my mouth fell open. "If—" But there was no time for "ifs" just then. "Come along," I cried, clutching Josephine's arm. "We'll talk all that over at Dinsmore."

CHAPTER V

"Oh! h—!" said the duchess, who till then had taken no part in the conversation.

Fred says that any story that is a story ought to start with some such expression as the above. I couldn't work anything of the kind in at the beginning of this story. But—if not at the beginning of a story, why not at the beginning of a chapter?

Not that there is any duchess in this chapter or even in this story. But the state of mind that the quotation connotes certainly does portray the feelings of pretty nearly everybody that appears in this chapter and of a lot of people who do not appear. At least, it portrays their feelings a little later when they heard of the events that took place in this chapter. And if eventually, why not now?

Anyway, it goes double for me!

Josephine and I started for Dinsmore's Folly on the subway; anon we took a trolley car; some more anon we walked; and finally we arrived, after traveling for two hours without stopping, except for ten minutes that Josephine insisted on spending in a drug store at the end of the subway, while I stood beside a trolley car and begged the conductor not to start till my sister could join me. The conductor wouldn't promise, but he did wait. And then, after Josephine had come, he waited for a good five minutes longer. Rude!

CAPLIKE TOQUE FANCIED; DRAPING FOR FORMAL GOWNS

Chapeaux of Modish Design.

LA PETIT chapeau a la Parisian is with us. It is already proving considerable of a rival to the new poke cloches, which at this moment are being so widely featured. Judging from modes arriving from Paris hats either have brims or they haven't. If they have they proclaim novelty every step of the way, especially the aforesaid poke cloches which frame the face, sometimes almost to the point of hiding it from view. If they have no brims, well, they most assuredly have not, for the new cap toques, as they are called, are not much more than tiny skull caps with clinging-to-the-head drapes.

As intimated before, these very little hats are considered tres chic in "Paris" and we Americans are beginning to think so, too. For these slight hats French modistes are employing every interesting media, from wool and metal tricot to feathers and spangled effects, not forgetting velvet, soleil and supple felt.

The tricot weaves contribute genuine novelty to the list of hat media. All sorts of mesh have been devised. There is the wool tricot; of yarn, and there is the yarn and metal combination, metal with floss, all metal and the combination of metal with color. These novelties are woven about four inches wide and they require the art of a real milliner for their draping.

Art Treasures Found Under Italian Cities

Almost any Italian public improvement or building construction which involves excavation is likely to turn up archeological curiosities. If not treasures. This is particularly true of ancient centers, like Rome or Naples, where one community lives on top of what was the site of an earlier community. Beautiful vases were turned up by workmen when Rome's stately Via Veneto was repaired recently.

A teamster engaged in carting away earth for a port improvement at Ancona found a collection of valuable gold coins. Heavy rains in recent months brought to light a magnificent Roman mosaic at Gigenil, near Naples. The mosaic was originally discovered in 1899, but was covered up "to avoid spoiling the street."

It was forgotten until the rain revealed it as a rare and beautiful work of art. It has now been lifted and transported to the archeological museum at Naples. The mosaic consists

Worth It

'Twas off the coast of dear old Ireland, and the steamship was a trifle out of its course. It had, in fact, taken the wrong turning.

"Breakers ahead! We are lost," yelled the lookout from his point of vantage in the bows.

"Bogorra!" cried the Irish cook. "we're not lost if that will save us."

And seizing a belaying pin, he hit the lookout man such a blow as to completely floor the man.

"How dare you!" bellowed the captain angrily. "Why did you strike that man?"

"Well," replied Pat, "he yelled. 'Break us a head, or we are lost' and, sure I did it. sir. And I'll break a dozen more, sir, if that'll save the ship."—Weekly Scotsman.

Canvas Modern Buckskin

The modern hunter uses canvas where Daniel Boone and the oldtimers would have used the skin of some animal, according to a writer in Field and Stream. "Canvas is in reality a substitute for skins," he writes. "Its principal uses are for clothing, shelter and equipment. The pioneer wore trousers, moccasins, and a shirt or a jacket made of buckskin. The modern hunter sallies forth clad in a canvas cap or hat, canvas gloves, canvas hunting coat, canvas trousers, canvas leggings, and sometimes canvas-topped shoes."

Gray an Evening Shade

Shops firmly believe that gray will be one of the smartest evening colors, both in silver gray and that having a blue cast. Several charming evening dresses have been shown in a distinctly new shade blue satin. With a pinkish cast, untrimmed and cut with simple elegance.

of the idea. One of the most effective is that of the transparent shoulder cape, which is embellished with very beautiful hand-worked designing done with paillettes, metal threadwork, chenille embroidery and the like.

Brown tulle has entered very conspicuously into the evening mode. Not only is it employed for diaphanous effects about fair shoulders as pictured, but it is frequently posed in the form of huge bows with trailing streamers, accompanying the bouffant side drapes which predominate throughout formal modes. Party frocks of brown tulle whose skirts are tiered and side plaited, have bodies of contrasting rich fabrics that is, contrasting as to weave, being brocade, or sheer velvet or satin. The color may be perfectly matched or otherwise. Brown tulle with rust color is highly favored.
