DEATH OF WM. STARK

Word was received here by relatives on Friday, that Wm. Stark of Anaheim, Calif., formerly of Kewaskum, passed away in death at his home here on that day. More particulars will be published next week.

History of Tanning

Hide and leather says that the earliest tanning consisted of placing skins in pits between layers of bark chips of the most important development in American tanning history was the introduction of boiling in which the tannin content was extracted from the bark, which permitted sliding skins to tanning floors.

Origin of "Literature"

Murray's Oxford dictionary says that the word literature is derived from the Latin literature, either directly or through the French literature. Litera means a letter. The word appears in the form of literature as early as 1375. In its present form it first appears in the Wycliffe Bible in 1382.

Mary's Mother's Last Days

There is very little knowledge with respect to the later life of Mary, the mother of Christ. According to tradition she was tenderly cared for by the disciple St. John to whom Christ bequeathed her care while on the cross. It is reported that she died at Ephesus at a greatly advanced age.

Hebrews in Revolution

The American Hebrew says that the names of 27 Jewish officers who fought on the side of the American forces are known. These included Col. David S. Franks, who was aide to Gen. George Washington, Col. Solomon Bush and others of great influence in their day. At that time the world's Jewish population in the new United States was scarcely 3,000.

Confiscation Never Pays

Confiscation is the most dangerous and ultimately costly of all policies. Capitalism is what you choose to call it, but credit is something which must survive any theoretical system of social government. If the people of the world are to continue to exchange commodities and services—Barron's Financial Weekly.

VERY PRETTY WEDDING

One of the prettiest weddings of the season was solemnized at the St. Paul Lutheran church at Cascade last Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock when the pastor, Rev. John Halbo united in marriage Evelyn Bea Hellmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hellmer and Arno Triebensee, son of Wm. Triebensee of Cascade. The bride was beautifully gowned in a white satin trimmed with Spanish lace and pearls, fashioned with a light bodice and bouffant skirt. Her veil was beautifully embroidered and was in cap effect fastened with rhinestone and lace. Her shower bouquet was of Ophelia roses, sweet peas and baby's breath.

Miss Phyllis Baetz of Dundee, cousin of the bride, acted as maid of honor. Her gown was of orchid satin trimmed with tulle lace and ribbon and fashioned with a tight bodice and bouffant skirt with uneven hemline. She wore a headdress to correspond with her gown, fashioned with orchid flowers and silver leaves and carried a shower bouquet of pink carnations, sweet peas and baby's breath.

The bridesmaid, Miss Vera Proffrock also a cousin of the bride, was attired in pink satin the skirt of which was a series of ruffles with uneven hemline. She wore a headdress to correspond with her gown, and carried a shower bouquet of carnations, sweet peas and baby's breath.

The groom was attended by Gaylard Hellmer, brother of the bride and Adrian Steinke, cousin of the bride, and was groomsmen. The wedding march was played by Mrs. J. Halbo. The ring bearers were Byron Bilge of Cascade and Charles Madden of Milwaukee. Each carried a white satin pillow on which the rings were fastened. Both wore white suits.

Little Marcella Flunker, cousin of the bride was flower girl and wore a pale pink satin dress trimmed with ruffles and lace and carried a basket of flowers.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home and a wedding dinner was served to about 90 guests. The home was beautifully decorated with white orchid and pink crepe paper and wedding bells. After a short honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Triebensee will reside on the groom's farm near Cascade.

Republican Nickname

The term "Grand Old Man" was applied to Mr. Gladstone in 1822 and is accredited to John Bright, who used it in a speech made in that year in Northampton England. In America the phrase was appropriated and changed by members of the Republican party, who affectionately called it the "Grand Old Party." This at once became a newspaper slogan and in the headlines referring to the party was shortened into "G. O. P."

Island Belongs to Cuba

In March, 1925, the United States ceded to Cuba all claims to the Isle of Pines which it had as a result of the Spanish American war. In the understanding that the island was to have become an American colony many Americans purchased land there in the years following the war. About 700 still reside there.

SCHOOL LAW TAX INCREASE IS FELT

Increase in the amount to be paid and the amount to be collected by the counties under the school tax equalization law, often amounting into thousands of dollars, were revealed with first completions of figures by the state department of public instruction.

Under the equalization law as passed by the 1927 legislature, upon recommendation of the public instruction department, counties that are poor in assessed valuation are given more state aid and deductions are made from the state aid given districts and counties where there is greater population and prosperity and hence better local support.

The new law has not affected Washington county very much, and the only difference in the sum totals is that the county will receive $227.95 more than it will be obliged to pay. The cities of West Bend and Hartford however, and consolidated school districts, will receive considerably less than in former years. In 1929 the county will receive from the state $32,750, compared with $35,668.80 in 1928. In 1929 the county's share of this direct tax is $22,415.91, as compared with $23,562.95 in 1928.—West Bend Pilot.

HAS PRIZE CANARY BIRDS

Joseph Wetzien, Grafon barber, has the prize canary bird in Wisconsin. He carried off all the highest honors in the third annual roller canary contest held at the Hoel Wisconsin at Milwaukee Sunday sponsored by the Milwaukee Roller Canary Club. Wetzien won loving cups with his birds in these classes: best old bird, best old bird team of four, sweepstakes, club champion, best mixed age team. James Sloan of Detroit, associated with the International Roller Canary Breeders association, judged the entries.—Cedarburg News.

THERESA HUNTER LOST

John Fritz, 72, of Theresa, was lost in the deep north woods from Monday noon until Wednesday of last week. He became lost in the woods while hunting and spent two nights in the open. With the temperature below zero Tuesday night, he laid so close to his fire to keep warm that his clothing was scorched. He was none the worse for his experience, but had a huge appetite. All he had eaten since he got lost was bark which he cut off trees.—Hartford Times.

The Wrong Road

Pleasure seeking and luxury want are not the road to happiness, a student of home life writes in the American Magazine.

Wolkow of the town of Hartford was re-elected, and so was A. H. Seefeldt of the town of Kewaskum as secretary-treasurer.—West Bend News.

LOCAL MAN HONORED AT BEE MEETING

An interesting fact was revealed in connection with the annual meeting of the Washington County Beekeepers' association, namely, that in point of membership ours is the largest local unit of apiarists in Wisconsin. Thus Washington county again assumes the role of leadership, and if other counties feel this as a sting they may extract it by emulating the local association and get more members. Credit for this enviable state of affairs is very largely due to A. H. Seefeldt, secretary of the local organization, for his irring himself and soliciting for members. The association furthermore is fortunate of having a number of members who form a live and enthusiastic nucleus.

The annual fall meeting was held at the county agent's room in the courthouse here last Saturday afternoon. It was a fairly representative meeting of the county's apicultural interests. Many very interesting topics were discussed.

According to the annual report of the secretary-treasurer, A. H. Seefeldt, the association now has 57 members, 14 having joined during the 1928 year. The receipts during the year were $72.57 and the disbursements $44.20, leaving a balance of $28.37 in the treasury.

Miss Clara Jones as a member of the Educational committee of the State Beekeepers' association reported on the work of the committee. She said that the Recipe club had been discontinued and that a recipe book in which honey plays an important part will be published. She asked the members to send her any recipe in which honey is used. An effort is being made to interest domestic science classes of high school to use honey in their baking and preparation of meals whenever possible.

It was suggested that the public be educated about the flavor of honey, which has nothing to do with its quality or food value. Some people think that honey which has not the flavor they are accustomed to is not pure. Which is pure imagination. Because honey from the same apiary varies in flavor in different years, the beekeeper has trouble to satisfy his customers. They should get away from the particular flavor and learn to enjoy any mild flavored honey. This also holds good with respect to color. The value of honey does not lie in its flavor or color but in its food value. It has vitamins and mineral salts not found in syrups or jams. The slogan should be "Honey for Health."

The meeting decided to have a field meeting next spring, possibly in some tree yard in the town of Wayne, which township is among those that never had a field meeting. It will probably be held some time in June. The selection of place and day was left to the secretary.

The association next year will hold no picnic, as it is expected that the Ozaukee County Beekeepers' association will have a picnic, in which the local association will join, the two having an agreement to hold their picnics in common.

Miss Clara Jones of the town of Jackson was unanimously elected president of the association for the coming year. For vice-president Mr.

ALL IS IN READINESS FOR THE BIG SHOW "THE WOMANLESS WEDDING"

All is now in readiness for the big play, "Womanless Wedding" which is sponsored by the combined legion posts of Kewaskum and Campbellsport at the High School Auditorium, Kewaskum on Sunday and Monday evenings, December 16 and 17, and at the Opera House, Campbellsport Tuesday and Wednesday evening, December 18 and 19. The cast is composed of eighty men from Kewaskum and Campbellsport. There will not be a woman in it—not even the bride. A director of the Symphon Levie Company of Bardonia, Ky., has made arrangements for staging the production. "The Womanless Wedding" is being staged all over the state and capacity audiences have witnessed it wherever it has been given. In many places where it was staged a large number of people had to be turned away the second night of the performance. The Bishop has read up on the ceremony, the bride has her trousseau arranged and the groom a brand new suit. The show starts promptly at 8:30 o'clock. Come early and get a seat as none of them will be reserved for the first two nights of the performances. Following is the cast of characters:

The W. A. T. A. "Outdoor Man"

HERE is Jacob ("Jake") VanKoy, the "outdoor man" of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association. "Jake," as he is popularly known to thousands of 4-H Club members and adults throughout the state, is called the "outdoor man" because he holds many of his health meetings outdoors. Also, wherever night finds him, Jake pitches his tent. Health talks, exhibits and moving pictures on the prevention of tuberculosis are Jake's stock in trade as he travels from place to place in his truck. While he has held many of his meetings indoors yet if the audience gets too large for the town hall, then it is an easy matter for Jake to continue his message in an outdoor meeting. Jake not only tells the world about tuberculosis through his talks and moving pictures, but wherever he has been you will see posters along the roadside telling Wisconsin citizens that tuberculosis is a contagious but CURABLE AND PREVENTABLE disease. Jake is one chap who practices what he preaches. Milk and fresh vegetables are a part of his daily diet. He also gets plenty of sunshine and fresh air—both day and night. Standing six feet tall, husky Jake is really a "picture of health." Funds raised through the annual sale of tuberculosis Christmas Seals send Jake throughout the state with his health messages. By visiting rural meetings, 4-H clubs, and county fairs during the past summer, Jake took his health message to the following counties: Iron, Langlade, Jackson, Oconto, Waupaca and Dane.

The Great Failure

What is the great failure? There are many kinds of failure. Perhaps there is none more serious, more fundamental than the failure to assume the leadership of which you are capable. Until indifference and mental laziness are corrected the human being is hardly worth the room he occupies. —George Patterson in the Mobil Register

Oaks in History

There was a law in the ancient "Twelve Tables" concerning the ownership of acorns, should they by chance fall upon another man's ground. Scattered throughout the countries of the old world are individual oaks, preserved and treasured through centuries because of some incident of ceremony that took place beneath their widespread branches.

The new Ford has a very simple and effective lubrication system

THE lubrication system for the engine of the new Ford is as simple in principle as water running down-hill. A gear pump in the bottom of the oil pan raises the oil to the valve chamber reservoir. From here it flows on to the main crankshaft bearings and the front camshaft bearing. Overflow oil drops into the oil pan tray and runs into troughs through which the connecting rods pass. As the ends of these rods strike the oil they scoop up a supply for the connecting rod bearing. At the same time they set up a fine spray that lubricates the pistons and other moving parts. From the tray the oil runs into the bottom of the pan, and is again drawn up through a fine mesh screen and pumped to the valve chamber. This system is so effective that the five-quart contents of the oil pan pass through the pump twice in every mile when you are traveling at only 30 miles an hour. Yet there is only one movable part—the oil pump.

As a matter of fact, the lubrication system for the new Ford is so simple in design and so carefully made that it requires practically no service attention. There is just one thing for you to do, but it is a very important thing. Change the oil! Change the oil every 500 miles and the indicator rod never registers below low (L). If the oil level is allowed to fall below low, the engine becomes insufficiently lubricated. To insure best performance it is also advisable to have the quantity of oil indicated every 500 miles. This has been made easy in the new Ford through the use of the high pressure grease gun system. Proper filling and greasing can do much to the life of your car that they should not be neglected or carelessly done. See your Ford dealer for lubricity. He is especially fitted to lubricate the Ford and he will give you a good, thorough job at a fair price.

Dainty refreshments following the game concluded an evening very enjoyably spent.

Starting Right

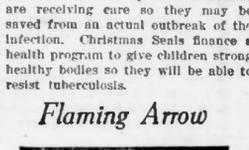

"DON'T get off the Line, Violet."

This is what Pearl Olson of Appleton is saying to her younger sister, Violet, as she is cutting out a picture of the Good Health Ship, the design of the 1928 tuberculosis Christmas Seals. Violet is almost sure not to "get off the line" as she and Pearl are busy every day getting themselves up to the "healthy line." They are building themselves up to par in health at the Bluemound Preventorium, Wauwatosa.

These Appleton girls went to Bluemound after they had been examined in a free chest clinic of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association. Christmas Seals, which finance the chest clinics of the W. A. T. A. brought to these girls' father the message that "prevention of tuberculosis is better and easier than its cure."

The big, happy family at Bluemound, the only tuberculosis preventorium in the state, is made up of children who are receiving cure so they may be saved from an actual outbreak of the infection. Christmas Seals finance a health program to give children strong healthy bodies so they will be able to resist tuberculosis.

Flaming Arrow

FLAMING ARROW is coming!

Get ready to be health warriors. This is the message which is being spread throughout Wisconsin by the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association since the recent enlistment in the fight against tuberculosis by Flaming Arrow, a 19-year-old full blooded Pueblo Indian. During the coming year this Indian youth will travel throughout the state giving health talks, singing Indian songs and dancing wauwauwau. He will appear before school children and adult groups urging persons to join his health warriors in the fight against tuberculosis.

Dressed in red "Injun" garb, Flaming Arrow will tell you about his native home and the health-habits of his Pueblo friends. He will have many interesting things to show you. Nancy will be the boy or girl who gets to beat the tom-tom for Flaming Arrow to dance by. Perhaps you have seen "Merrie" or "Cheerlee" with their Good Health Show and you are therefore following the lessons learned by seeing the Land of Knowledge win out in the fight against the Kingdom of Ignorance. If so, you ought to be in good trim to become a health warrior in Flaming Arrow's band. The educational work of "Merrie" and "Cheerlee" and Flaming Arrow is made possible by the sale of tuberculosis Christmas Seals.

Many Adjuncts to Hades

Hell's Half Acre is a flitting term applied to a number of places where outlawry has held sway, particularly in desert sections of the West. The Geographic board has a Hell's Half Acre listed as being on the Niagara river in New York state. There is also one in the so-called bad lands of South Dakota.

Oak Always Prized

"Sturdy as an oak." What school boy doesn't know this monarch of the forests as the symbol of strength and character? In a multitude of fuel-towed associations, oak has rooted itself deep in the affections of man and from the earliest days of recorded history to the present time has been highly valued for its utility and beauty, with the widest range of uses of any known wood.

Bird Bowers

The different types of bowerbirds found in Australasia build various types or bowers which serve as a stage whereon the male may display his grace and activity before his feminine audience. Some build cabins with lawns in front, some an arbor and others a sort of platform decked with mosses, flowers and bright berries. These bowers are entirely distinct from the nests.

Learn From Mistakes

Learn from your mistakes but do not cry over them. He who never makes a mistake never makes anything. The trouble with the man who never makes a mistake is that he does not know a mistake when he makes one. Wise men make mistakes; fools continue to make them.—Milwaukee Journal

Not Derived From Banana

Banana oil is not a product of the banana plant. Banana oil is so named on account of the odor imparted by its most acetate constituent. This is a mixture of equal parts of amyl acetate, acetone and benzine with just enough pyroxylin dissolved therein to give the finished product sufficient body.

Cosmopolitan Antioch

The ancient city of Antioch, which is represented by the city of Antakya in about 310 miles north of Jerusalem. The present population is about 28,000 of which about 4,000 are Christians. The Antiochians have been from the earliest a cosmopolitan people, consisting of Jews, Syrians, Greeks and Romans.

Thermometer and Fan

An bureau of standards says that as a rule, air from an electric fan blowing on a thermometer will have an essential effect on the mercury of a very sensitive thermometer is placed in front of a fan. It may however cause a slight rise in temperature inasmuch as the air which passes over the motor becomes slightly heated.

Sinister Black Cap

The black cap, worn by a judge, has an ancient origin. In olden days when a man was tried by an ecclesiastical court the judge, who was usually a bishop, covered his tonsure with a black cap when passing sentence of death, to show that he was not acting in his ecclesiastical capacity.

NEWS OF THE BADGER STATE

Madison—When the state civil service gave notice that tests would be given soon for the clerical and police jobs in the senate and assembly, applications came in for 493 jobs. There are 90 to be filled.

Racine—Smoke from a fire starting from a heater killed 20 show dogs at the C. H. Miller kennel, three miles west of here. The animals were valued at $2,000, one of them being worth $900.

Kiel—Frank O. Holt, registrar at the University of Wisconsin, was the principal speaker at the dedication here of Kiel's new $140,000 grade and high school building. The auditorium, which seats 150 persons, was crowded.

Wausau—Marathon county boasts a number of cattle breeders' associations that have increased the number of high grade cattle in the county, thereby increasing dairy products and also the sale of these high grade stocks to farmers and dairymen of many western and eastern states.

Menasha—The winter fishing season here is on. Shanties are beginning to dot the surface of Little Lake Kettle des Morts, which is covered with an ice sheet several inches thick. Hundreds of men are already engaged in the lucrative pastime of ice fishing and within a few weeks the number will be increased to thousands.

La Crosse—Charged with murder as a result of the death of Helen Becker, 18, of Burns Valley, Joseph Adams, a chiropractor, waived preliminary hearing in county court and was bound over to circuit court. His bail was continued at $5,000. The state charges the girl's death was caused by treatments given her by Adams.

Madison—Several poisoning cases resulting from children eating sample tablets of drugs intended for livestock have been reported to the state board of health in recent weeks, the board has announced. In Dane county a child, thinking they were candy, ate tablets that had been sent out as a remedy for poultry maladies.

Richland Center—A dynamite explosion severely injured Charles Simonson, Lone Rock, an Iowa county highway employe. Frozen dynamite was being thawed beside a fire when one of the boxes caught fire. Simonson jerked it away from the fire just as it exploded. He was severely injured about the head and neck.

Milwaukee—Wisconsin farmers are among the most prosperous in the United States due to the diversity of their crops and consequent independence of crop failures, according to officers and directors of the Wisconsin Implement Dealers' association, in convention here. This fact is especially noticeable to instrument dealers who visit farms regularly, it was said.

Appleton—Radio has found a new use as a teaching agency in a small country schoolhouse in the town of Maple Grove near here. Arnold Schulze, the teacher, is tuning in on news and market reports for live current event topics and agricultural hints. His method of getting material, he said, was extremely popular with the pupils.

Madison—A scholastic life saving method is being used by deans of the colleges at the University of Wisconsin this year. After the recent mid-term examinations, high school principals of students who showed scholastic deficiencies were written and requests were made for suggestions that would help stimulate the individual student. According to university officials, the plan has proven successful.

Wabeno—The drop in temperature, to several degrees below zero, has resulted in sleigh logging equipment being put into action. Caterpillar tractors pulling sprinklers over ice roads are heard throughout the nights. With only a few inches of snow on the ground, lumbermen are hopeful that the swamps may freeze over, which would give the loggers an advantage in getting out cedar products.

Wausau—Contagious abortion among cattle of Marathon county results in a loss of from $200,000 to $500,000 annually, according to a survey made by the Marathon County Holstein Breeders' association. Meetings are being held in various parts of the county for the purpose of promoting greater cooperation among the farmers to help eradicate the disease which is developing into a prime enemy of the dairy farmer.

Darlington—The Lafayette County Dairy Herd Improvement association reports that during November 664 cows were tested, 71 being dry. The association average is 530 pounds of milk and 19.8 pounds of butter fat a cow. Seventeen cows were sold for beef.

Highland—A farm bureau organization has been perfected here by 100 farmers who elected Chris Plant president, Francis Olson treasurer and John Dwy manager. The bureau will supervise stock shipments.

Appleton—The city council here has been informed that unless it investigates the alleged vaccination of the children of Emery F. Krueger against his wishes that he will start a suit for damages. He claims one of his children is ill as a result of the vaccination.

Madison—A 250-bed hospital for Wisconsin's crippled children, to operate in conjunction with the Wisconsin General hospital here, will be asked of the 1929 state legislature.

Beloit—An icy pavement prevented Ernest Turell from stopping his car quickly when Bruce Stevens, 40, alighted from another car in front of him. Stevens was killed when he ran into the path of Turell's machine. Turell was not held.

Barron—Cow testers and members of the District Herd Improvement association, comprising Barron and adjoining counties, held a meeting here. Subjects taken up included feeding, dairy sales, breed associations and buyers' wants.

Beloit—Successful and profitable raising of potatoes on peat soil was demonstrated this year by Paul Davis of Turtle valley who reports that 30 acres averaged 450 bushels to an acre. The field was drained early in the spring and was in better shape than other land drained later where a 200-bushel crop was a poor yield.

Madison—John Parks, Muskogee, Okla., will lead the University of Wisconsin football team during the season of 1929. Parks, who received honorable mention for all western conference guard from many experts this fall, was elected to succeed Rube Wagner, St. Paul, Minn., as Badger captain.

Fau Claire—When the city council told local officials of the Northern States Power Co. it believed its gas rates were too high and notified them if they did not voluntarily reduce them the city would apply to the state railroad commission for relief, the company representatives announced a reduction had been contemplated for some time. They said a survey of the local field was being made to formulate a new schedule.

Berlin—On the ground that H. C. Truedell was not in his right mind when he framed his will leaving $150,000 to fund a home for aged women in Berlin, Louis H. Truedell, brother of the deceased wealthy Berlin resident, has filed objection to probate of the will. The brother also contends that the document, which leaves him a monthly allowance of $300, and which makes bequests totalling $189,500, was improperly signed and witnessed.

Appleton—Claims against Brown and Outagamie counties and Wisconsin officials for alleged illegal collection of taxes on Indian property were filed by Onelda tribesmen, according to William Skendore, Onelda, chairman of a committee appointed last year to guard Indian rights. The Indians assert that their property is exempt from taxes under the treaty made with the federal government in 1838 when the reservation was transferred. The treaty made the Oneldas wards of the government, it is claimed, and hence immune from the taxing power of the state.

Plover—A 10 per cent reduction in electric power rates here and in four other villages and cities was announced at a village board meeting. H. L. Geisse, Wausau, general manager of the Wisconsin Valley Electric Co., announced the cut as the board was considering means to obtain cheaper electricity. The reduction is voluntary and is the result of a study of rates in small towns, Mr. Geisse said. The company, he explains, has been investigating for several months. Other points affected by the reduction are Junction City, Edgar, Marathon City and Mosinee.

Marquette—Settlement of a $3,000 judgment awarded to Mrs. Mae Murray, Marquette, against Mrs. Irene Hubert, Menominee, Mich., was announced for $2,500 and payment by the defendant of all costs. The case was carried to both the Wisconsin and Michigan supreme courts, where the verdict was sustained. Mrs. Murray received a broken hip as she was alighting from the Hubert car in Marquette, and it was alleged she was thrown violently to the pavement when the car started. She sued Mrs. Hubert, the driver with whom she had been an invited guest, for $10,000.

Sheep—Lambs good to choice, $13.25@13.50; fair to good, $12.00@13.00; ewes, $4.00@6.25.

New Holstein—A truckload of silver foxes valued at $184,000 was delivered by the Fromm Brothers-Nelma Co., Thiensville, to the Associated Fox Farms, Inc. of this city and will be used to stock the new fox ranch recently established at Calvary, Food du Lac county.

Milwaukee—Infection resulting from injuries received when she caught her arm in a clothes wringer caused the death from tetanus here of Mrs. Elsie Patonitz, 80.

Janesville—Mable Mohs has been chosen the outstanding girl in the girls' home economics club in Rock county, and Harold Haugen has been chosen the outstanding boy in club work. Each won a free trip to the international livestock exposition at Chicago.

Green Lake—Twenty former service men became charter members of an American Legion post organized here. At least 10 more names will be added to the charter at a meeting to be held soon.

IOWANS LEADERS IN STOCK SHOW AWARDS

Illinois Second and Indiana in Third Place.

Chicago—Iowa carried off the lion's share of prizes at the International Live Stock exposition which recently closed at the stock yards. Illinois was second and Indiana third. There were 130 first prizes and 71 championships, a total of 201, which went to Iowa. The Iowa State college also led all other colleges in awards. Illinois was a good second with a total of 133 first prizes and championships.

Officials of the live stock and hay and grain shows announced the awards of honors by states as follows:

Table with 4 columns: State, First Prize, Champs, Total. Iowa: 150, 71, 201. Illinois: 103, 33, 136. Indiana: 49, 21, 70. Ontario, Canada: 42, 21, 63. Ohio: 47, 14, 61. Wisconsin: 23, 12, 45. Michigan: 22, 12, 45. Minnesota: 20, 14, 44. Montana: 20, 8, 28. Nebraska: 20, 8, 28. Colorado: 20, 8, 28. Kansas: 18, 4, 22.

The closing day was children's day and city and farm children numbered about 20,000 at the afternoon show, and these with the attendance at the night horse show swelled the total admissions for the week to a half million.

James D. Conner of Wabash, Ind., secretary-treasurer of the American Association of Importers and Breeders of Belgian Draft Horses, has been made a knight of the order of the crown by King Albert of Belgium, according to advices reaching the show managers.

One of the outstanding and dramatic features of the exposition was the showing made by rural boys and girls and by students in the various agricultural and mechanical colleges.

They have won many honors from their elders, culminating in the crowning of a twelve-year-old boy, Clarence Goecke, State Center, Iowa, as hero of the nation's live stock raisers through winning the junior feeding contest, the championships in the Hereford and yearling steer classes, and finally the steer grand champion—all with his white-faced, red-bellied Hereford, who answers to the prosaic name of Dick.

A neighbor of Clarence from Marshall county, Iowa, Keith Collins, a fifteen-year-old club boy of Liscomb, entered the hall of fame at the show when his champion carcass steer both on the hoof and dressed, was sold at auction for $675 a pound, and a fat dressed carcass hanging from an iron hook, "Benny" weighed 722 pounds, so that he brought his youthful owner a total of $4,573.50.

The honor won by young Keith was all the more remarkable in that this is the first year the same steer has won the carcass champion, both on the hoof and dressed. Another achievement was that the price paid by the McCauley Market, Mount Kisco, N. Y., is the highest ever recorded per pound for a carcass steer. Last year the figure was 45 cents a pound.

The price given for the carcass was considered an act of the McCauley Market to stimulate and handsomely reward boys and girls for their championship efforts, and follows closely upon the record price for all time for Clarence Goecke's grand champion steer, Dick, $7 a pound on the hoof paid by J. C. Penner & Co. of New York.

Samuel Insull was triumphant as an exhibitor, carrying off chief honors in the classes for Suffolk Punch horses. He had a number of entries from his Hawthorn farms near Libertyville. The purple ribbon for the champion stallion went to his Hawthorn Wisdom.

Women scored as exhibitors of live stock. One of the conspicuous winners was Mrs. James Frantz of Mount Cory, Ohio, who was awarded the senior championship trophy for Galloway bulls. Revolution, shown by Paul Wolph of Avoca, Neb., was selected as the grand champion Galloway bull. In the swine judging ring the purple for the grand champion Yorkshire boar went to B. F. Davidson of Menlo, Iowa, while the show grand title of the breed went to Cudahy Brothers of Cudahy, Wis.

Grand championship honors for brothers in the Tamworth swine classes went to the Fox Chemical company of Des Moines, Iowa. Guy W. Baker of Shelbyville, Ill., was awarded the grand championship trophy for sows of this breed.

In the Shire section of the horse department, the grand champion mare announced was Wauwata, shown by F. A. Huddleston of Webster City, Iowa. This animal had been junior champion.

King brothers of Laramie, Wyo., were awarded the prize for the best general exhibit of Corriedale sheep.

They Have No Poor Jews Danzig.—The municipal council of Bygdø, formerly Bromberg, Posen, has refused to accept a legacy of $100,000 left by Mrs. Leonard Cohen of Wilkesbarre, Pa., for "poor Jews" in that town because it says there are none.

Commissioner's Order Is Law Madison, Wis.—The Wisconsin Supreme court ruled that the order of the state railroad commission is valid law which must be obeyed by a city.

Chicago Has Near 3,260,000 Chicago.—Chicago's population is increasing at the rate of 60,000 a year and by January 1, 1929, it will have a total of 3,260,000, according to estimates by the Chicago Regional Planning association.

To Buy 4,631 Freight Cars Chicago.—The Santa Fe system will buy 4,631 freight cars, according to announcement made at the railway offices here. The cost will be more than $10,000,000.

Mexico City.—After a stormy session with the organizers of the Mexican National Revolutionary party, former President Plutarco Elias Calles announced his resignation as the leader of the party and his withdrawal from political life in Mexico.

EXTRA SESSION MAY ACT ON FARM BILLS

Consideration of Measures Likely to Be Delayed.

Washington.—Determination on the part of the farm bloc to force an extra session of congress and to place the responsibility for the expected farm legislation on the shoulders of Herbert C. Hoover was demonstrated when it became known that a partial poll of the house of representatives had been taken by some of the farm members. This poll disclosed, it was stated, that the house is overwhelmingly opposed to enacting any farm legislation at the present session, which ends March 4.

In the senate there is more disposition to hurry through farm legislation. Senator McNary and others have declared they will do their best, but the attitude of the house members as indicated will make anything the senate does futile unless there is a substantial change of sentiment before March 4.

Washington.—Appointment of a chairman of the proposed farm board at a salary in excess of that usually paid government officials would be possible under the terms of a new farm relief bill introduced in the senate by Senator Charles L. McNary (Rep., Ore.), chairman of the senate committee on agriculture.

The bill provides that the board shall consist of the secretary of agriculture and six members appointed by the President. It is provided that one of the appointive members shall be designated by the President to serve as chairman and that his compensation shall be fixed by the President. Other members of the board are to receive a salary of $12,000.

It is understood that the provisions relative to the appointment of a chairman were suggested by President-Elect Hoover, who thought it would make it possible to obtain the services of a man of outstanding prominence who would not be attracted by a $12,000 salary.

In general the new bill follows the lines of the McNary-Haugen bill but without the equalization fee; it includes a provision for a stabilization corporation such as advocated by Mr. Hoover.

The bill provides a revolving fund of $300,000,000 for loans to assist in the handling of surplus farm commodities.

10, 458, 102 Tons, Is New Record This Year at Soo

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.—The locks at the Soo this year have handled 10,458,102 tons, an increase of 2,577,295 tons over last year, the figures bearing out the contention that these locks handle more freight in eight months than the Panama, Suez and Kiel canals combined do in twelve months. The November report shows that 499,000,000 bushels of grain and 53,000,000 tons of iron ore passed through the locks here.

Portrait Sold for $250,000 London.—The Express says that Holbein's small portrait of King Edward VI, done when the prince was six years old, has been sold for $250,000 (about $250,000) to Jules E. Kahn of New York.

Prominent Pioneer Dead Seattle, Wash.—Ezra Meeke, one of the last survivors of the pioneers to the Far West and one of the most famous, died here after a long illness. He was ninety-nine years old.

BANK SAVINGS SHOW $28,412,961,000 TOTAL

Only Three States Failed to Record a Gain.

New York.—The greatest gains in savings in a single year ever recorded in the United States, bringing the total savings deposits in banks to over $28,400,000,000, with more than 53,000,000 individual savings depositors, are reported by W. Espey Albright, deputy manager of the American Bankers association in charge of its savings bank division, in a statement issued here.

"The year ended June 30, registered over the previous year the largest gain in savings deposits in banks and trust companies of continental United States ever recorded in the history of the country," Mr. Albright says in his report. "This indicates prosperity more general than any time since the business depression of 1920. Only three states failed to show a gain. On June 30, 1928, the volume of savings stood at $28,412,961,000, a gain of $2,327,053,000 over the previous year.

"The gain per inhabitant in 1928 over 1927 is $17. The gain per inhabitant over last year is 7.7 per cent, and 113.5 per cent over 1918 when the strong upward curve in savings deposits first developed. Since 1912 when adequate records first became available, the gain per inhabitant is 189.3 per cent.

"Total individual deposits in banks and savings institutions stand at $51,199,284,000 and 56 per cent of these individual deposits is found in savings or time deposits as against 53 per cent last year.

"The gain in number of savings depositors comparable with last year is 2,496,070, an increase of 5.2 per cent as against a gain in the population of the United States of 1.2 per cent. The number of depositors, which for 1917 was reported at 48,354,784, reaches a high mark this year with 53,188,348, but of this apparent increase of 4,833,564 in the whole country, 2,337,494 came from Ohio where for the first time the commissioner of bankings has been able to give the number of depositors in state chartered institutions. The net gain, therefore, in the comparable figures is 2,496,070 in the whole country. Had the state banking departments of Virginia, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Kentucky, Tennessee, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, Colorado, and Oklahoma been able to report savings depositors in state chartered institutions, the grand total would be increased considerably.

"In our report of 1926, an analysis, by type of banks, of savings deposits was made. In 1927, 82 per cent of the total volume of savings was found in state chartered institutions and private banks, while 18 per cent was in national banks. Since that date reports show an increasing tendency for banks, irrespective of type of charter, to give greater attention to the savings business. The sharp reduction from 5 per cent to 3 per cent of reserves required against time deposits by the amendment of 1917 to the federal reserve act augmented the tendency, so that as of 1926, 75 per cent of savings deposits was found in state banks and 25 per cent in national banks. By 1927, 72.8 per cent only was found in state banks and the balance in national banks. This year, 71.6 per cent is found in state banks and 28.4 per cent in national banks. Thus, the evening up process continues."

DARING NOVELTY MARKS COATS SHEER STRIPED VELVET FAVORED

DARING novelty marks the styling of this season's fur-trimmed coats. Not only is the unusual expressed in the types of fur employed for trimming but it is also refreshingly interpreted through new ways of handling.

Collars, cuffs and borderings yield to the whim of the designer with the result that a medley of new ideas is involved in their styling. Cuffs are especially capricious. So wide are many cuffs, that in many instances the entire lower part of the sleeve is of fur. Sometimes these very deep cuffs assume a picturesque cavalier flare. Then again they flare at the wrist in quaint bell fashion, as do the chinchilla trimmed sleeves of the coat in which Kathryn Crawford, the screen actress, is posing for this picture. The coat itself is of black broadcloth. The fact that it is trimmed in chinchilla bespeaks its modishness, for the black coat fur-trimmed with gray is conspicuously highlighted in the winter mode.

The gray-on-black idea carries on with fur of varied types. That is, a black broadcloth or suede wool is as apt to be contrasted with collar and cuffs of gray wolf or platinum fox or any of the long-haired showy varieties as it is with fur pelts such as caracul, astrakhan or gray shaggy-lamb.

Ombre gray caracul on black is exceedingly smart, especially when it is handled in original ways, such as, for instance, a triangle scarf collar, perhaps, or a standing collar (one of the season's fads) which ties with a cravat bow and streamers of the fur. Speaking of black coats, the coat of black velvet is finding favor for dressy afternoon wear. Models of outstanding cachet stress black velvet trimmed with black fur. Black broadtail makes a handsome appearance worked in odd-shaped collar and cuffs, the broadtail further emphasized in that Beautiful Striped Velvet Costume. It forms insets around the border line or perhaps it is applied so that the coat is really made of the fur and velvet intricately interworked.

Having duly broadcast the fact of the voguishness of striped velvets, striped cottons and striped silks, fashion is now turning its spotlight on striped velvets. Stripes for velvet are newer than the little all-over printed effects.

When the stylist chooses striped velvet for the sports frock, it is more likely to be striped reverse, for the printed striped velveteens make up handsomely in two-piece models. Then, too, such an excellent range of colors is available such as brown with rust, wine with rose beige, bright navy with lighter blues, dark green with yellow and so on and so on. Another feature about the two-piece models made of striped velveteen is the clever adroit varied manipulation of the stripes. If they run horizontal about the skirt they are apt to change into the vertical for the blouse and vice versa. Bias effects, too, are introduced with telling effect.

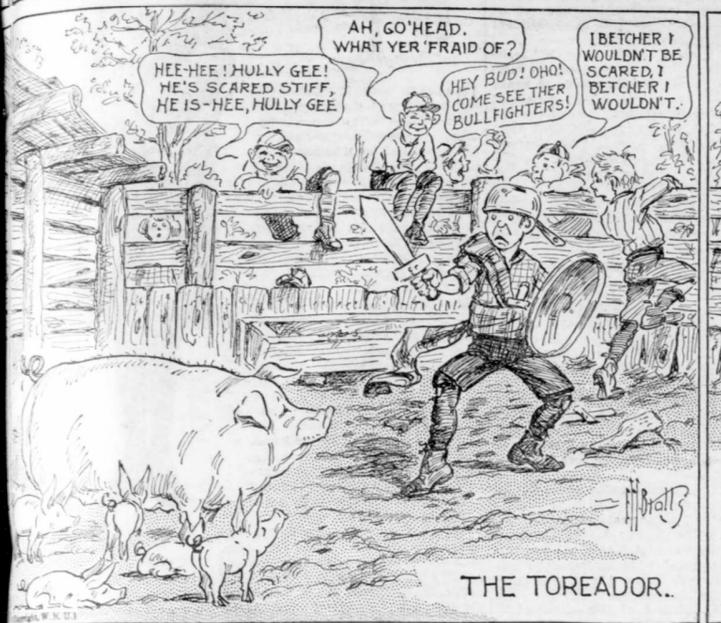

Lace Petticoat Appears Seidon does lace adorn the hemline of even the most exquisite costume slip, there being so many other ways of finishing it as the accompanying frock demands. But the lace petticoat has appeared on the fashion stage. Berthe has resorted to it and reveals it quite far below the hem of a frock.

Stunning Raincoats A number of raincoats are appearing that are so stunning that the owner would wish the rainy weather to last all the time. One model is of a beriberized kasha, trimly cut and looking for all the world like a tailored soldier's overcoat. Another, a blue-tinted, is of ribbed velvet. It comes in a number of different colors and styles.

Make Fans of Velvet Some of the quietest and most elegant fans consists of a small, round, silk velvet mounted upon gold and silver.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

At the Warren ranch, the "Three Bar," on the fringe of the "cow country," a stranger applied for work. William Ann Warren—known to all as "Billie," is the owner of the ranch. The girl's father, Cal Warren, had been the original owner. The question whether the territory is to remain "cow country" or be opened to settlement is a troublesome one. The newcomer is put to work. Cattle rustlers have been troubling the ranch owners, the Three Bar, with a girl boss having suffered more than others. The new hand gives his name as Cal Harris. By his announcement in favor of "squatters" he incurs the enmity of a rider known as Morrow.

"Not so very hard—if you can read," the dark man contradicted. The newcomer's gaze returned from down the valley and settled on Morrow's face.

"Do you run a brand of your own—so's you'd stand to lose a dollar if every foot of range was fenced?" he inquired.

"What are you trying to get at now?" Morrow demanded.

"Nothing much—now; I've already got," Harris said. "A man's interest lays on the side where his finances are most concerned."

"What do you mean by that?" Morrow insisted.

"You're good at predicting—maybe you're an expert at guessing, too," Harris returned. And suddenly Everts laughed as if something had just occurred to him.

Morrow glanced at him without turning his head, then fell silent, his expression unchanged.

A chunky youngster stood in the door and bent an approving gaze on the big plato as he swung out across the pasture lot. The boy's face was small and quizzical, a shaggy mop of forewavy hair hanging so low upon his forehead that his mild blue eyes peered forth from under the fringe of it and gave him the air of a surprised terrier, which effect had gained him the title of Bangs.

"I bet the little paint-horse could make a man swing and rattle to set up in his middle, once he started to act up," he said.

"Calico wouldn't know how to start," Harris said. "A horse, inside his limitations, is what his breaker makes him. I never favored the idea of breaking a horse to fight you every time you climb him. My horses are gentle-broke."

"But you have to be able to top off just any kind of a horse," Bangs objected.

"That don't blinder a man from getting his own string," Harris returned.

Bangs turned his surprised eyes on Harris and regarded him intently as if striving to fathom a viewpoint that was entirely new to him.

"Why, it don't, for a fact," he said at last. "Only I just never happened to think of it like that before."

Morrow laughed and the boy flushed at the disagreeable ring of it. Morrow's face wore none of the active malignancy that stamps the features of those uncontrolled desperadoes who kill in a flare of passion; rather it seemed that the urge to kill was always with him, had been born with him, his face drawn and overlengthened from the inner effort to render his homelike tendencies submissive to his brain, not through desire for regeneration, for he had none, but as a mere matter of expediency.

"You listen to what the squatter man tells you," Morrow said to Bangs. "He'll put you right—give you a course in how everything ought to be done." He rose and went outside.

The young fellow sounded from the cookhouse and every man within ear-shot rose and moved toward the summons to feed.

"Let's go eat it up," Evans said and left the bunk house with Harris.

"Did you gather all the information you was prospecting for?" he asked. Harris nodded. "I sorted out one man's number," he said.

"Now if you'd only whispered to me I'd have told you right off," Evans said. "It's astonishing how easy it is to pick them if you try."

All through the meal the gigantic cook hovered near Billie Warren as she sat near one end of the long table. It was evident to Harris that the big man was self-appointed guardian and counselor of the Three Bar boss. He showed the same fussy solicitude for her welfare that a hen would show for her helpless chicks.

"Praise the grub and have a friend at court," Harris murmured in Evans' ear.

Billie Warren had nearly completed her meal before the men came in. She left the table and went to her own room. When Harris rose to go he slapped the big man on the back.

"I'd work for half pay where you get grub like this," he said. "That's what I'd call a real feed."

Waddles beamed and followed him to the door.

"It's a fact that I can set out the best bait you ever throwed a lip over," he confessed. "You're a man of excellent tastes and it's a real pleasure to have you about."

Billie Warren opened the door and motioned to Harris. He went into the big front room that answered for both living room and sleeping quarters. Indian blankets partitioned off one end for the girl's sleeping room.

"You had something to tell me, she observed, after he had remained silent for the space of a minute, sitting in the chair she had indicated and gazing into the fire.

"And I'd have to start it a little different from the way I first counted on," he said. "Have any of the boys mentioned my name to you?"

She shook her head and waited for him to go on.

"You won't care much to hear it," he announced. "I'd thought some of spending two years here under some other name—but perhaps it's better to come out in the open—don't you think?"

The girl had straightened in her chair and was leaning toward him, her face white and her gray eyes boring straight into the man's. She knew now who he was—the man she had more reason to despise than all others on earth combined. Of the Harris family she knew nothing at all except that her father's lifelong regret had been the fact that the partnership between himself and his oldest friend William Harris, had never been brought to pass. And this regret had, in the end, led him to try and cement that arrangement in the second generation. Five years before his trail had crossed that of the elder Harris for the first time since he had taken over the Three Bar brand; and when his will had been read she had known that on the occasion of that visit his old friend had played upon this sentiment to trick him into making it. On all sides of her she had evidence that men were wolves who preyed upon the interests of others, and there was not a doubt that the father of the man before her had preyed upon her interests through the sentiment of her parent; no other possible theory could account for the strange disposal of his property, the will dated and signed at the exact time of his visit to the Harris.

The tenseness of her pose was replaced by lethargic indifference and she relaxed into her chair.

"I've known all the time you would come," she said.

"It's too bad, Billie," he said. "It's tough having me wished on to you this way."

"Don't play that game with me!" she flared. "Of course you've disproved every drop of human decency in advance."

"It sure looms up like that on the surface," he admitted ruefully. "But I didn't have a hand in clinching you this way."

"You could have proved that by staying away. I wrote you a year ago that I'd donate you a half-interest in the Three Bar at the expiration of the time if you'd only keep off the place. But at the last moment you couldn't resist having it all. Ten more days and you'd have been too late."

The man nodded slowly.

"Too late," he agreed and sat looking into the fire.

She had been almost a son to her father, had ridden the range with him, managed the Three Bar during his sickness; and such was her loyalty to his memory that not a trace of her bitterness had been directed toward her parent. He had loved the Three Bar and had always believed that old Bill Harris, its founder, had loved it too. His will had stipulated that half of his property should go to the younger Harris under the condition

Orders Is Orders, but the Band Didn't Play

During one White House reception in President Garfield's time, John Philip Sousa, clad in his gorgeous red uniform, criss-crossed with gold braid, sat on one end of the musicians' platform and his bass drummer, in full dress uniform, sat on the other. They were the United States Marine band that night. But there was no music.

The band had been ordered to participate in a dedication that day and did not get back to barracks until 6:30 that evening when it was dismissed and sent home. At seven o'clock Sousa received an order to report with the band in full dress at the White House at eight o'clock. Sousa protested. His commanding officer said: "Those were my instructions and those are your orders." Messengers scoured Washington for the bandmen, returning with just one man, the bass drummer. When the long evening and the reception at last drew to an end, the drummer and that the man should make his nature on the Three Bar for two out of the first three years after her father's decease. The whole of it was to go to him in case she failed to make her own home at the Three Bar during her father's stay, or in the event of her marriage to another before the expiration of three years.

"Of course I'm tied here for two years," she said. "Or left penniless, if you can make it unpleasant enough to drive me away—which won't be difficult—you win."

"I wouldn't count too strong on that," he counseled mildly.

"Then why did you come?" she insisted. "Half of it was yours by merely keeping away."

"Maybe I'm sort of tied up myself—in ways you don't suspect," he offered.

"Very likely!" she returned; "sounds plausible. You might offer to marry me," she suggested when he failed to answer. "You could gain full possession at once that way."

He removed his gaze from the fire and looked long at her.

"It will likely come to that," he said.

"I'll put a weapon in your hands," she retorted. "Whenever it does come to that I'll leave the ranch—so now you know the one sure way to win."

"I hope it won't pan out like that," he said. "I'll be disappointed—more than I can say."

She rose and stood waiting for him to go.

"Good night, Billie," he said. "I expect maybe things will break all right for us."

She did not answer as he went out. Waddles hailed him in friendly fashion as he passed through the cookhouse, then wiped his hands and stepped into Billie's quarters. Waddles was a fixture at the Three Bar; he had ridden for her father until he had his legs smashed up by a horse and had thereafter regained as cook. He was confidential adviser and self-appointed guardian of the girl. His mind was still pleasantly concerned with the stranger's warm praise of his culinary efforts.

"That new man aow, Billie," he remarked. "He's away off ahead of the average run. You mark me—he'll be top hand with this outfit in no time at all." Then he observed the girl's expression. "What is it, Pet?" he inquired. "What's a-fretting you?"

"Do you know who he is?" she asked.

Waddles wagged a negative head. "He's Calvin Harris," she stated.

Instead of the blank dismay which she had expected to see depicted on Waddles' face at this announcement, it seemed to her that the big man was pleased.

"The h—!" he said. "Scuse me, Billie. So this here is Cal! Well, well—now what do you think of that?"

"I think that I don't want to stay here alone with him while you're out after the horses," she returned.

"Wrong idea!" the big man promptly contradicted. "You've got to stick it out for two years, girl. The best thing you can do is to get acquainted; you figure out how to get along the best you can—the pair of you. Old Cal Warren had some definite notion when he framed this play; so it's likely this young Cal is on your side, too."

"But even more likely not," she stated. "Then what?"

"Why, then I'll have to kill him and put a stop to it," the big man announced. "But it's no ways probable that it will come to that. Let's use logic. He spoke well of my cooking, which proves him a man of some discernment. No way to get around that. Now a man with his judgment wouldn't suspect for one living second that he could play it low-down on you with me roasting close at hand. Putting two plain facts together it works out right natural and simple that he's on the square. As easy as that," he flushed triumphantly. "So don't you fret. And in case he acts up I'll clamp down on him real sudden," he added by way of further reassurance.

His great paw opened and shut to illustrate his point as he moved toward the door and the Three Bar girl knew that when Waddles spoke of clamping down it was no mere figure of speech.

Garfield Tea

Was Your Grandmother's Remedy For every stomach and intestinal ailment. This good old-fashioned herb concoction remedies stomach ailments and other derangements of the system so prevalent these days is in even greater favor as a family medicine than in your grandmother's day.

Helpful Mamma Vivian—Do you know I'm soon to be engaged to Percy? Dorothy—Did he ask your mother? Vivian—No, mother asked him. Bad "What do you think of his tennis?" "Oh, I think he's singularly bad in doubles and doubly bad in singles!"

Proof of Affection "Yes, they've been married for years, but they're still very much in love." "Really?" "Rather. When she's away she writes letters to him whether she wants money or not."—Stray Stories. Simplicity Itself "Doctor, I have insomnia." "Take this medicine every hour." "But what if I don't keep awake?" "Then you'll be cured."

QUALITY AT LOW COST

Expensive To Underfeed The Dairy Cow

It is much more expensive to underfeed producing cows than to feed them properly. A cow giving her maximum amount of milk will return nearly 50% of the feed she eats in milk. The other 50 per cent. is used in maintaining her body and keeping up her energy. A cow that is underfed will naturally keep using feed to maintain herself and let the milk pail suffer from the feed shortage. In feeding a cow for maximum production it is very necessary to feed the right kind of a ration. The various food elements, such as protein, carbohydrates and fat must be fed in correct proportion. A cow takes no part in the composition of her milk. If underfed in the ingredients necessary for the manufacture of milk, the milk pail will suffer. It really pays to feed dairy cows with well balanced rations, and plenty of them.
