HARTFORD HAS $50,000 FIRE

Hartford, early Wednesday morning experienced a fire loss of between $50,000.00 and $75,000.00, when the Majestic Cafe building on N. Main street was destroyed by fire at about 3:30 a. m. The second floor of the building was occupied as club rooms by the American Legion. This building, of which only a shell remains was valued at $25,000 to $30,000. The Wienefeld building, next door to the cafe, is almost a total loss. Tenants of the Wienefeld building are, the Wienefeld Bowling alleys and recreation parlors operated by Frank C. Wienefeld. Tailor shop, operated by Geo. Seitz. Central Drug store, operated by Arthur E. Breitenfeld. The fire, the origin of which is not known, started either in the basement or kitchen of the Majestic Cafe, and spread rapidly through the building. The Hartford fire department, including a pumper, a chemical wagon and a hook and ladder truck responded and fought the blaze until nearly 6 a. m., when a call was sent to Slinger, seven miles distant for another pumper. At 7:30 a. m., Wednesday the pumper had poured so much water onto the flames that one of the city's wells became dry. All hydrants in the vicinity of the fire were in use and extra lines were placed in a pond some distance away. At noon Wednesday the ruins of the two buildings were still smouldering and the firemen continued to pour water into them.

DRAMATIC TOURNAMENT AT SLINGER

Washington county's first home talent tournament will witness the first tilt at Slinger on Monday, Jan. 7. At that time the Richfield Dramatic club will match its strength against the Oak Knoll Dramatic club at the high school. This tournament has aroused a great deal of interest in the rural districts. Slinger, where the first contest will be held, is joining its rural neighbors in the promotion of this project by offering its gymnasium as the place of the first skirmishes. Both of these clubs have been working earnestly to produce their respective plays with a finish that will win one or the other the right to appear in the final contest which will be held in the West Bend high school some time before January 15.

The plays to be presented at Slinger are "The Florist Shop" and "Bread". Richard Peters of the Oak Knoll is director of the first, while William Reinke of Bark lake is the director of the second. Both of the gentlemen are very modest, but when the first clash of battle takes place on next Monday the audience may be assured that it will be worth while.

The winner of this contest will represent the southern part of the county against the northern part in the final in the West Bend high school. The winner in this final will then represent the county in a dramatic tournament to be held in Fond du Lac, comprising the counties of Green Lake, Fond du Lac and Washington.

Inasmuch as the rural communities are promoting this tournament for the first time they earnestly invite their urban friends to the preliminaries and the final. The rural groups have been coming in large numbers to the urban plays and they feel that this will offer an opportunity to support a movement to develop dramatics among the rural people.

Later two clubs, one at Newburg and the other in districts Nos. 1 and 10, Jackson, will compete for the right to represent the northern part of the county in the finals. These clubs are as enthusiastic as the southern groups and when the final clash is witnessed the audience will be assured of a big thrill in amateur acting.

HOLD-UP NEAR WAUCOUSTA

Stopping to offer aid to a motorist who had parked by the roadside on Highway 55 near Waucousta late last Friday afternoon to repair a flat tire, Halsey Thaw, 36 West Second street, Fond du Lac, salesman for the Badger Paint store, was held up by the man he sought to help and robbed of $10 in cash and a gold watch. Although Undersheriff Alfred Vande Zande of Fond du Lac was not notified of the hold-up until two hours after it had happened, he armed two deputies with shotguns and searched the highways and side-roads in the vicinity of Waucousta for several hours in search of the robber. Authorities have a good description of the holdup man and have asked officials in nearby cities and counties to be on the lookout for him. He was about 30 years old, dark and apparently well dressed. He traveled in a light touring car. Thaw did not report the holdup until he had returned from West Bend where he had gone to transact business earlier in the day. He said that he was driving south on Highway 55 shortly after 4 p. m. When two miles south of Waucousta, he was hailed by a motorist who apparently had parked to repair a flat tire. The salesman got out of his car, he said, and asked what he could do to help. The stranger asked him for a pump. Thaw's car did not carry a tire pump so he offered to take the man to Waucousta to get aid. When the stranger got into the car he pulled a revolver from his pocket and pressed it up against the salesman's body ordering him out of the car. He took a $10 bill and a watch from Thaw. He did not take some small change that Thaw had in his pockets. The man then ordered Thaw to get into his car, turn around and drive south. The latter drove down the road about 150 feet while the holdup man stood on the running board, covering him with his revolver. The man finally left the car telling Thaw to drive south and threatening him with death if he stopped and notified authorities. They said he obeyed the command but that he glanced back several times and saw the holdup man standing by the road with his revolver in his hand. Thaw did not get the number on the car. He said that the revolver looked like a .32 calibre revolver. When Undersheriff Vande Zande was notified of the holdup Friday night he called the garage at Waucousta to inquire whether anyone had had a tire repaired there within the last three or four hours. The garageman told authorities that they had repaired no tires but that a car with a flat tire had passed a few minutes before. Undersheriff Vande Zande and two deputies went to Waucousta. They stopped several automobiles but were unable to find any of the description used by the hold-up man.

232 BUY $50 LICENSES

Madison—In spite of the $50 license fee which non-residents must pay to hunt big game in Wisconsin, there were 232 people from outside of the state who took out licenses to hunt deer during the recent season, the conservation commission reported. This is the largest number of non-resident licenses since the $50 fee has been charged, it is said. Besides visitors to the state who bought big game license there were 234 non-residents who paid $25 apiece for the privilege of hunting small game in the Badger state. Altogether 456 non-resident hunters have paid into the conservation commission fund this year $17,200 for the right to hunt Wisconsin's animals and birds.

Rabid Rooter Began Dan Green to Bring Ball In

Like most human beings, a ball player always enjoys a joke on the other fellow and sometimes on himself, relates Billy Evans in a recent article in Liberty Weekly. But when the joking has been thought, he sometimes finds it difficult to see the humor in the sally that singles him out as its victim. The White Sox had an outfielder, some years ago, named Danny Green. He was a good performer, very fast, and might have been a great star if he had had a decent throwing arm. But his wing was weak, and the opposition knew it and frequently ran the bases wild on him.

During the game I have in mind, the opposition had scored twice from second base on Texas leaguers—lies that clear the infield and fall just in front of the outfielders. Green had fielded both of them cleanly and had plenty of time to cut his men off at the plate, but his two throws had been atrocious. Late in the game another ball was hit to him under exactly the same conditions, and a rabid rooter decided to give Danny a little coaching. "Bring it in, Danny," he pleaded. "Don't throw it; run with it." Everyone on the field got a huge laugh out of it, except Green. I imagine he thought it a pretty poor joke.

Babe Ruth's trust fund has grown by $10,000. The big sock man of the New York Yankees went to town, visited his bank and deposited enough cash to increase his trust fund to a grand total of $130,000. The Babe started the fund after his disastrous season of 1925, arranging the investment so that he would not touch the principal. The fund now assures the Babe a yearly income of $10,000 or thereabouts. Practically all of the principal has come from what Ruth terms "commercial by-products," such as barnstorming trips, vaudeville, the movies and advertising.

Almost Perfect

Capt. Walter Holmer of the Northwestern 1925 football team established a perfect record for calling the toss at the start of each game, and almost established a perfect mark in place kicking at the points after touchdowns. He called the turn of the coin correctly each of the eight times, and it wasn't until the final game with Dartmouth that he missed a place kick. The Purple line failed to hold, and Anders, who played a stellar game at center for Dartmouth, broke through and blocked his attempt. He made all the rest, notching eight out of nine during the season.

ADMITS CLIMATE MADE HIS TEAM

Coach "Pop" Warner Believes in Tricky Plays.

When talking about his great Stanford football eleven which overwhelmed the Army, his veteran coach, Glenn Warner, gives much credit to the California climate as to the amazing assortment of trick plays which dazzled the thousands at the Yankee stadium, including the Cadets.

"Yes," said the kindly and contemplative "Pop," while in New York, "there are some big, strong boys out there. The material is good and it's well distributed among the leading schools. But except for Artman, the 232 pound tackle, and Fleischhacker, the 220 pound quarter back, we did not outweigh the Army much, if any. Those two men, incidentally, would be better football players, if they lost some of that weight.

"I do think, though, that the Far West has an advantage in maturity that is probably due to climatic conditions. I have an idea a boy of twenty from out there is as mature as a boy of twenty-one here in the East.

"Another thing is that while not all of our players are descended from men who settled in the West quite a few of them are and they have the same fighting adventurous spirit."

Even in the development of the open games, the vivid series of thrusts and jabs so well exemplified by the Stanford team, the climate of California has played a big part. Warner believes Warner also thinks the East has been handicapped by rain and muddy fields.

"When I was coaching at Pittsburgh," he said, "I knew what it was to work up a lot of tricky plays with the ball sometimes going through three or four pairs of hands behind the line, only to strike a rainy day and a drenched field and not be able to use them at all. That probably has something to do with the fact that the East has remained somewhat conservative in its football and still is leaning pretty heavily on the old variety.

"Now the kind of offensive that I like, and a kind I have had a good opportunity to develop on the dry, fast fields of the Far West, is the sort that gains ground steadily and consistently by a series of varied and tricky thrusts. That type of play wears down your opponent and is pretty likely to have a demoralizing effect."

Hubbell Made Good

Hubbell, the Texas rookie pitcher, whom McGraw called to the trenches in midseason in 1924, pitched remarkable ball from his first to his last game. He took his regular turn in every crucial series when the pennant hung in the balance. McGraw took nine young pitchers to the training camp last spring, all promising and many costly ones in the lot, but not one earned a regular berth. At last, in desperation he called Hubbell from Beaumont and the youngster pitched phenomenal ball. It is confidently expected that he will be a star next year.

Notre Dame to Have New Stadium Seating 60,000

A stadium seating 60,000 is expected to be completed before Notre Dame's 1929 football season opens, Coach Knute K. Rockne announced at a chamber of commerce meeting at South Bend.

"It always has been my intention to bring the best teams that I could to South Bend," Rockne said. "If given a stadium, I will bring the best of the nation's elevens here."

Rockne said this year's Notre Dame eleven is one of the most courageous in the school's history.

Mexican Baseball

Ran Johnson returned from a trip to Mexico City. The former president has been sponsoring baseball in the border republic for a number of years and reports splendid progress for the game in the capital city. A number of leagues operate there and the game is played almost the year round. A "Johnson day" was put on for him during his visit and about 5,000 fans turned out for the game. He presented a trophy to each of the winning teams.

Castoria is a comfort when Baby is fussy. No sooner taken than the little one is at ease. If restless, a few drops of Castoria is a baby remedy, meant for the infant; you have the doctors for that! It is a vegetable product and you could use it every day. It is an emergency that Castoria must be relieved—or colic pains suffer. Never be without it. Mothers keep an extra bottle. Levee Work
Man's first effort to control the Mississippi was by building levees. The first planters thus sought to protect their own plantations and passed the burden along to the next fellows. Gradually the levees were enlarged and extended until they now form a wall of parallel banks long enough to stretch from New York to Chicago. They have cost, so far, more than $100,000,000.

6-WHEEL TRUCKS URGED FOR ROADS

Effect of Vehicle on Highways Is About One-Half That of Four-Wheel.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
For better and cheaper transportation—the six-wheel vehicle and pneumatic tires, says the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture.
Automotive and highway engineers are constantly seeking more economic transportation. Highway engineers have always been faced with the problem of producing the greatest mileage of serviceable roads, and have been forced to design them as light as possible, consistent with traffic demands. On the other hand, truck operating costs are generally reduced by increasing the pay load capacity.

Preserve Highways.

To preserve the existing highways and to give economic transportation, the introduction of the six-wheel truck, with a limitation of wheel concentration and pneumatic tires, and not the limitation of gross load, is the solution of the problem, Thos. H. MacDonald, chief of the bureau, recently told members of the Society of Automotive Engineers.

According to investigations of the bureau, all conditions of test being equal, the effect of a six-wheel vehicle on the highways is about one-half that of the four-wheel. This is the first of two important reasons for the six-wheel truck. The other is, that increasing the number of wheels so reduces the load on each wheel as to permit the use of pneumatic tires on the larger-sized trucks, which cannot be so equipped when supplied with only four wheels. The pneumatic tire reduces the impact of the moving truck and so tends further to protect the highway. The bureau's tests show that the impact of a solid tire exerts a pressure on a pavement two or three times the standing load, while the pressure exerted by the pneumatic tire is only a small percentage above that of the load at rest.

Transport Surveys.

Co-operative highway transport surveys, carried on by the bureau and various state highway departments, have shown conclusively that, for general use, the five-ton, four-wheel truck is today the maximum size required. Its wheel concentrations are within the safe load limit for the modern standard types of rural pavements. But there is a very large mileage that is not safe for loads beyond this. It is to protect this large mileage and at the same time permit the operation of large-capacity trucks wherever desirable that the federal road chief suggests the six-wheel solution.

AUTOMOBILE HINTS

Watch the choke when driving on cold days.

Many an owner learns to lock the car after its predecessor has been stolen.

Ben Hur won the race without any volunteer advisor. There were no back seats on chariots.

Funny how people insist in thinking that some day the old boat will really knock a train off the track.

Somehow it seems as if the more talk there is about careful motoring the more accidents there are.

A car should always be in motion when steered. Tugging at the wheel while the car is standing still not only strains the steering gear, but causes unnecessary wear on the tires.

WHITE DRIVES ROCKET-DRIVEN MOTOR CYCLE

He tested his machine, which is propelled by exploding rockets, similar to that means used by Opel, the German. He made his tests at the velodrome, Two Hundred Twenty-fifth street, New York.

Keep Skid Chains On

A final snowstorm of the winter often finds the motorist already have dispensed with the chains. The question of trying to get along without them almost invariably arises. An attempt to do so usually is followed by difficulties.

The only safe procedure is to put on the chains before leaving the garage. It is difficult to go back to chains, once they have been put away "for good," but it is one good way of staying safe.

As long as human nature remains the same no driver will believe that the horn-tooter behind is really in a hurry.

Big Alcohol Cost to Motorists in Winter

Thirty million gallons of alcohol or more than one-third the entire output of the United States will be used by water-cooled automobiles during the winter, it was declared at the annual meeting of the Industrial Alcohol Institute at Chicago. The report of the institute did not take into consideration that glycerin and other compounds used by water-cooled cars during cold weather reach an additional volume from 25 per cent to 50 per cent of alcohol used.

With alcohol averaging $1 a gallon, it is readily seen that owners of water-cooled motor cars will spend $30,000,000. Assuming that users of other anti-freezing compounds spend an equal amount, the total expenditure for radiator solutions will total approximately $60,000,000.

Example in Good Driving Is a Serious Obligation

"Setting an example in proper driving is a serious obligation on the part of veteran drivers," says Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club.
"From the veteran, the novice should learn to do his slow driving on the right-hand side of the road, leaving the inside lanes for faster moving traffic; always to move over on a signal from the rear; to make intelligent use of his horn; never to pass another car on a hill or on a curve; to sound his horn before emerging from alleys, and to drive with extreme caution wherever he encounters pedestrians, especially children; to make proper use of the signal lights and to start on the green, and not on the yellow; always to look before pulling away from the curb.

Remove Roller Bearings to Insert New Washers

at one end and bent to the shape shown. The flat end is slipped under the bearing, a length of iron rod is put through the eye and a block of wood is used as a fulcrum under one end of the rod while the other end is pulled, which immediately removes the bearing.—C. ## Budgetary Curb Aid to Efficiency

Any Business Can Be Brought Out of Difficulties.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Co-operatives should have efficient management, says A. V. Swarthout, of the United States Department of Agriculture. This is essential to all business, but is probably even more than usually desirable in farmers' marketing organizations because of the peculiar psychology involved and the large number of individuals directly interested.

No Comparison Made.

Mr. Swarthout points out that low costs of operation, high sales prices, and similar tests of satisfactory operations which are often applied in business are valuable only when they can be compared with some standard or with the same items in other similar organizations. Co-operatives meet difficulties in trying to apply such tests. Little information is available regarding costs in comparable organizations. Privately owned organizations rarely give out their figures for the use of co-operatives, and even if they did the figures would not often be comparable, since co-operatives commonly provide services not offered by nonco-operative business.

Scientific analysis of the business operations is a great aid in checking up operating efficiency. This has frequently been described as "budgetary control." Mr. Swarthout says that one banker who has had a great deal of experience with it, probably more than any other in this country, recently made the statement that he had yet to see any business—and he believed there was none—which could not be brought out of its difficulties and into a better position through the use of budgetary control.

Five Essential Points.

In brief, the following five points summarize what can be accomplished through this method, he said:
"1. Budgeting substitutes definite facts and figures for guesswork and intelligent planning for blindfold fumbling.
"2. It employs co-operation; and it does more—it enforces co-operation; indeed, creates it.
"3. It serves to materialize contemplated actions in such a way that the results of those actions become known before the actions themselves are set in motion.
"4. It helps to restrain unwise expansion.
"5. It provides a unified plan of operation—a financial working plan that, as every executive knows, is of the utmost value and importance to any enterprise."

Trees Too Close

In blocks of orchards where the trees are too close together half of the trees should be cut out this winter. The natural tendency is for the trees to be left in until those which are to be left permanently do not amount to much. The lower limbs have been stunted or have died back from lack of light.

Dick, the 1928 grand champion steer, was sold under the auctioneer's hammer for $7 a pound on the hoof, bringing a total of $7,994, at the Twenty-ninth International Live Stock exposition.
The grand champion, owned and raised by Clarence Goecke, a twelve-year-old club boy of State Center, Iowa, brought nearly double the highest price ever paid for a grand champion at previous shows. He was bought by James E. Dodge, manager of J. C. Penney & Co.'s farm in the East.
The premier animal weighed 1,412 pounds and it cost $125.82 to raise and fatten him. Before coming to Chicago he won cash prizes at Iowa fairs totaling $148. At the International he won a total of $30 in prizes, bringing a gross total, including the sale price, of $8,942. His owner has left a net profit of $8,816.28.

LIME FOR LEGUMES ESSENTIAL WHERE MATERIAL IS DEFICIENT

Needed on Sandy Land for Alfalfa and Clover.

Lime should be applied to the soil for the successful production of alfalfa and the various clovers on the sandy soil of the Mississippi valley in Minnesota; on most of the soils of the southwestern Minnesota (in general east of a line drawn directly south from the Twin Cities to the Iowa border); and to most of the soils of western Wisconsin except a strip bordering Lake Superior in Douglas, Bayfield, Ashland and Iron counties. The soils of western Minnesota and the Dakotas are well provided with lime and none needs to be added to these soils when alfalfa is sown, except perhaps in a few localities of North Dakota.
The way to find out whether your soil needs lime, and how much, is to send a half-pound sample of soil to the soils division of your state experiment station, which in Minnesota is located at University farm, St. Paul and in Wisconsin, at Madison. On most soils in the lime-deficient sections above mentioned, from two to three tons of ground limestone, limestone screenings, or marl should be applied per acre. Marl beds may be found in many localities of eastern Minnesota and western Wisconsin, and the product, when considered on the

Great Losses Incurred by Outbreak of Roup

Announcement of the results of recent study of the University of Arkansas college of agriculture pathologist of losses incurred by an outbreak of roup among a flock of poultry showed a reduction of profit during the year of the outbreak over the preceding one of $2,425.58. The depreciation per bird was $1.47. It is estimated that 90 per cent of the expected profit was lost due to loss of birds and egg production, according to Dr. J. H. Bux, state veterinarian, University of Arkansas college of agriculture.

Aggricultural Hints

For the land's sake lime your soil!
The inoculation of the seed should be done shortly before seeding.

Potatoes require cool climate. Washington and Maine excel in this crop.

Use the big-team hitch if you want to get results and save the horses and driver.

Sweet clover has no equal as a combined soil-building, weed-fighting, pasture and hay crop.

It's a wise farmer who encourages his boy to take up club work—and he'll be wiser still afterwards.

Any land intended for early vegetables and not in growing crops now should be plowed and left in sharp ridges about two feet apart.

Limestone should be applied at least six months and preferably a year before sweet clover, red clover or alfalfa is to be sown, they say.

For the starting of early vegetables a hotbed will be found very necessary. Plants may be grown in it to be set in the garden later or early crops of lettuce and radishes may be grown during late winter.

Many failures of clover and alfalfa are due to the fact that the limestone applied to correct acidity in the land was not put on far enough ahead of the seeding and consequently did not have time to sweeten the soil.

Veteran Pigeon Well Cared for in Old Age

The King of England bred 200 carrier pigeons for war service and 50 of them received special mention for work at the front.
This fact was disclosed by the duke of York during a visit to the old comrades' charity pigeon show in London.
The duke was particularly interested in Ripport, a war veteran, with part of his beak blown away during a bombing raid in 1917. The bird is eleven years old.

Altogether Ripport carried 403 messages, including the news of the taking of Messines ridge and the evacuation of Lille by the Germans.
He is spending his declining years as the pet of ex-Sergeant Passey, under whose supervision he flew thousands of miles over the battlefields.—From the Continental Edition of the London Daily Mail.

Eskimos Offer Little Resistance to Colds

The Eskimo never has a cold until he comes in contact with people from the world outside his frozen North. But he has no resistance to colds, and as a result gets one immediately after his first exposure. Dr. Peter Heinbecker and E. I. M. Irvine-Jones, of St. Louis, reported to the Journal of Immunology. These scientists, who made a trip up the west coast of Greenland, noticed that in some places all the natives were suffering from colds while elsewhere none of them was thus afflicted. In the latter places, the Eskimos all developed colds and coughs in from two to four days after the party's arrival. In the former places the colds could all be traced to contact with the outside world. Diphtheria and scarlet fever were unknown.

Large Italian Families

Palazzolo dello Stella, Udine province, Italy, with an average of more than nine children, all Fascist, to every family, claims to come closest to Mussolini's ideal of a prolific Italy. Its population is about 2,800, divided into 468 families. Of these, 133 have 16 children; one, 14; eight, 13; eleven, 12.

The lesser tribes, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, include eleven families with an even dozen; twenty-two with 11 offspring; and thirty-four with 10.

Feeders Agree That Grain Must Be Ground for Feed

Save 12-26% on Your Grain Bill

Tests with whole grain, fed to healthy, full-toothed animals show an average loss of from 12% to 26%. In other words, out of every 100 bushels of whole corn fed, 26 bushels practically no nourishment. The unground oat diet shows a loss of 12 bushels out of every 100. Even though you feed a few animals, such feeding losses cannot be overlooked. In a few minutes, now and then, with a McCormick-Deering Feed Grinder will turn the whole grain into nourishing, easily digested feed at low cost. We can show you the McCormick-Deering Grinder that meets your special requirements. Our factory is also headquarters for McCormick-Deering Shellers, Grinders and Tractors. Modern equipment for the modern farmer. Built in three sizes, 6, 8 and 10 inches.

SAYS: "See Mrs. K. Endlich's ad elsewhere in this paper."

"THE FAMILY WAS AWAY FROM HOME"

How often we find this statement a part of the newspaper account of another home turned into smoke and ashes by man's worst enemy—FIRE.

The fire fiend never sleeps. If you tolerate and neglect fire hazards in your home, the above statement may be a part of the report on your fire.

Have you any of the fire hazards listed below in your home? If you have, correct them to protect the lives of your family and your property.

Stove too close to unprotected partition or wall, no stove board. Smokepipes rusted or too near wood-work.

Kindling wood left in oven. Clothes hung too near stove. Food left cooking on stove. Unused flue holes left open, stuffed with rags or papered over.

Too much fire in stove, drafts left open. Ashes in wooden or card board containers, or dumped on or against woodwork.

Defective chimneys. Woodwork anchored into chimney walls or in contact with the same.

Defective electric wiring. Pennies in fuse plugs or metal "Jump" fuses.

Electric wires over hooks and nails. Electric iron left with current on. Swinging gas brackets near curtains.

Rubber gas connections defective or disconnected. Kerosene lamps or stove left burning.

Fire place not screened. Waste paper or burned matches thrown into wood box.

Trash near basement heating plant, or near chimney in closets or attic. Paint rags or oily mop in corners or closets.

Incubators or brooders operated in home. Careless discarding of cigarette or cigar stubs.

Matches left where mice or rats can get them. These and other fire hazards may be in your home ready to do their destructive work while you are away from home.

These hazards are not difficult to understand, to discover, or to remedy. If one of them robs you of your home and possessions, charge it to your own neglect and lack of care.

About two-thirds of the number of fires occur in homes, and at least three-fourths of all fires can be prevented easily.

Let "fire safety" be your New Year resolution. INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION.

NEWS OF THE BADGER STATE

Ashland—A postoffice has been created at Clam Lake on highway 77 west of Glidden. Residents previously have received mail at Glidden.

Green Bay—Two men have pleaded guilty to participation in the $40,000 robbery here of the Farmers' Exchange bank on Dec. 12 and the confession of one involves a third as the "master mind" who planned the robbery.

Mercer—Charles Wolfe, nationally known fish culturist and conservation expert, has located in Mercer, where he will carry on work in game fish propagation. Wolfe until recently maintained a large fish and forest preserve in Sawyer county.

Berlin—A mother and two daughters died of pneumonia within a week at Pine River, north of here. They are Mrs. Ellsworth Barr, 70; Mrs. Emilie Sorenson, 42, and Mrs. Harry Chase, 37. The daughters are believed to have contracted the disease while nursing their mother.

Beloit—Despite the fact that only eight of the 13 resident members of L. H. D. Crane post, G. A. R., are able to attend meetings and are active in the post's work, the veterans are going forward with plans for the annual state encampment which is to be held in Beloit June 24 to 27.

Coderay—Lack of snow is causing concern to logging operators in this part of the state who have been unable to haul out their early cut because the roads are bare. The larger companies that use ice roads entirely are not handicapped, but continued lack of snow will curtail their operations.

Rhineland—As he left the stand in municipal court here after appearing as chief witness against four Minocqua hunters, charged with violating the game laws, August Ahlborn, also of Minocqua, was arrested on three counts—illegally killing deer, illegally disposing of deer and impersonating a state conservation warden.

Madison—Increase of more than 100 per cent in the 1928 cranberry crop, as compared with a 7 per cent increase for the entire country over 1927 production, was announced by Walter H. Ebling, statistician for the state and federal departments of agriculture here. The Wisconsin crop, estimated at 50,000 barrels, sold for approximately $14 a barrel.

Shawano—Liming of soil is becoming an agricultural practice in Shawano county. Last year farmers purchased 3,000 tons of lime in the form of ground limestone, and about 1,000 yards of marl were used by those living near lakes with marl beds. Fully 50 farms in the county were tested by the county agent and fields on all of these farms proved to be acid, generally showing the need of two to three tons of lime per acre to overcome the acidity.

Green Bay—There were 197 lumber mills in Wisconsin in 1927 as compared with 223 in 1926 and they cut a total of 819,507,000 board feet. It is shown in census figures released by the department of commerce at Washington, Wisconsin was one of the six leading states in the production of shingles, the report showed, the 29 mills in this state turning out 54,006,000 as compared with 60,745,000 in 1926. Washington was far ahead of all other states in this industry.

Chippewa Falls—W. B. Howison, 64, has been re-elected to serve his twenty-third term as commander of the James Comerford post of the G. A. R. here. Mr. Howison, who is one of the nine remaining members of the post, served with the 2nd Vermont brigade in the army of the Potomac.

Madison—Wisconsin members of the electoral college received little recognition this year. A simplified presidential ballot dropped their names and substituted that of the candidate himself, with the election boards counting each vote for a certain candidate as a vote for each of the 13 electors of that party. Now they are forced to give up the prospects of a trip to Washington for one of their number. New federal regulations provide for sending the state's vote by mail instead of having an elector deliver it in person with expenses paid.

Shawano—Residents of Shawano will be allowed a 10 per cent decrease in power and cooking rates and a decrease of 1 cent on every kilowatt in lighting rate by the electric light, water and power commission this year. The decreases were made possible, it was said, because of a surplus.

Portage—The Portage American Legion post will be host to nearly 600 legionnaires when the state mid-winter conference of the Legion convenes here Jan. 28 and 29.

Berlin—Two pioneer women of this city died within 24 hours of each other. They are Mrs. Frances Smarzynski, 91, and Mrs. Medore Rivers, 79. Mrs. Rivers was the first teacher in a little log school known as the French school on the Berlin-Red Granite road.

Madison—A student church costing $70,000 is part of the program of the Grace Episcopal church, Madison. The church has carried on work among the students in the past but the work is hampered, it is said.

Madison—Ralph Immel, adjutant general, and head of the Wisconsin National guard, has returned to Madison after a month in Washington, D. C., attending the Army War college.

Milwaukee—Wisconsin's holiday traffic deaths numbered eleven with reports of four dead in Milwaukee and one each in Waukesha, Kewaunee, Port Atkinson, Delavan, Rhineland, Pellican and Fond du Lac.

Ashland—Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the Sanborn cheese factory here, resulting in a loss of several thousand dollars. Some machinery and cheese was saved. The plant was owned by Orton Thiede.

Antigo—Elisha Franklin Severens, 103, Antigo's oldest resident, died at the home of a grandson, Henry E. Severens, having outlived all of his children. Mr. Severens was born in Vermont Sept. 23, 1825, when John Quincy Adams was president.

Madison—The 1929 baseball schedule of the University of Wisconsin features a home game with the Osaka Mainichi team of Japan, Big Ten engagements with Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Minnesota, Northwestern and Chicago, and a spring training trip with many new opponents.

Madison—The oath of office to Governor-elect Walter J. Kohler will be administered shortly after noon, Jan. 7, by Marvin B. Rosenberry, acting chief justice of the Wisconsin supreme court. Chief Justice A. J. Vinje is ill. Justice Rosenberry also will be asked to deliver a brief address.

Appleton—A mirror bearing the date 1793 and brought to this vicinity by Paul Ducharme was given the Arthur C. Neville public museum at Green Bay by John D. Lawe of Kaukauna. Mr. Lawe, one of the oldest citizens in this part of the state, is a descendant of Paul and Domingo Ducharme.

Rhineland—Jos. Slavin, proprietor of the Alpine hotel here, and Arthur Ostrom, assessor of the town of Pellican, Oneida county, were killed on Christmas eve when their auto collided head-on with a car occupied by Chris Landberg and Vern Hall of this city. The crash occurred on highway 63 just outside the city limits.

Stevens Point—Burns suffered by Frank Knudson, 38, at his home here when he was showered with flaming gasoline after it ignited from a gasoline stove caused his death at St. Michael's hospital. Knudson was burned when he ran back into the kitchen as his wife and four sons, trapped in the home by locked doors, were escaping through a bedroom window. It is believed he thought some members of the family were still in the kitchen.

Madison—With two lawsuits now under way as a result of the state's effort to reforest Horicon marsh and make it a wild life refuge, a third court action in the case was assured with the railroad commission announcing that it had issued an order empowering the state conservation commission to build a series of dams to bring the water to a height desired by those backing the reclamation project. The legislature two years ago ordered the marsh reforested.

Madison—Thirty-four faiths are represented in a voluntary religious census of the University of Wisconsin student body, according to a compilation released by Miss A. B. Kirch, university statistician. Of the 9,042 university students enrolled, 6,479 answered the census request which was conducted for the first time at the university. The Roman Catholic church has the highest, with 1,042 students expressing such affiliations. Other faiths that with the Roman Catholic represent 93 per cent. Of the answers listed are: Lutheran, with 1,018; Methodist, 959; Congregational, 887; Presbyterian, 690; Jewish, 553; Episcopalian, 441; Baptist, 235, and Christian Science, 189.

PLAN TO KEEP U. S. AIR MAIL IN LEAD

Measures to Fight Against Foreign Competition.

Washington.—Sponsors of the air mail view complacently the rapid strides taken by this branch of the postal service and look at its future through rose-tinted glasses.

Representative Kelly, Republican, Pennsylvania, author of the five-cent air postage bill and several other air mail measures, predicts that one out of every ten pounds of first class mail will be carried by plane or airship within five years. He expressed belief that this period will see the establishment of over-ocean routes to Europe and South America.

Postmaster General New estimates that the use of air mail for sending Christmas gifts and greetings this year was double that of 1927, which, in turn, was twice the 1926 total. He bases his announcement on figures for the Chicago-Salt Lake City route, which reported west-bound poundage at 22,816 and the eastward at 26,189 pounds. Figures on other lines are not yet available.

The house post office committee is expected by Kelly to report favorably on his bill to authorize the postmaster general to enter into contracts for the transportation of mails by airships to foreign countries and to American possessions.

Airship builders and post office officials have discussed the matter with the Pennsylvania, who said he expected British airship interests would make a bid for the American business both north and south of the equator. The authority for the postmaster general to grant such contracts is desired at this time, Kelly said.

Kelly also has introduced a bill authorizing the postmaster general to make contracts with foreign individuals and corporations for transporting mail by air in insular and foreign countries.

At present the postmaster general is limited to making contracts in foreign countries with American companies or with governments.

Senate Inquiries for Year Total $152,452

Washington.—Senate committee investigations during the fiscal year ended June 30, last, cost the taxpayers $152,452, according to the annual report of Edwin P. Thayer, secretary of the senate. More than one-half of this was spent on the still unfinished inquiry into the Pennsylvania senatorial primary and election of 1926.

Two committees—the special election slush fund committee and the privileges and elections committee—investigating charges of ballot-box corruption in Pennsylvania and hearing the contest brought by William B. Wilson, the Democratic candidate, to secure the senate seat claimed by Senator-Elect W. S. Vare, spending approximately $75,500, according to the report.

The Teapot Dome oil scandal investigation conducted by the senate public lands committee and centering principally in a search for the Continental Tending company Liberty bonds, which figured so prominently in the oil scandals, cost $18,900.

Year's Wheat Brings More Than Farm Cost

Leoti, Wis.—S. F. Gutsch and his son last year harvested 47,000 bushels of wheat from 1,000 acres on the 1,300-acre farm in the north part of Wichita county.

At the time Gutsch bought the farm it was estimated to be worth approximately $20 an acre, making a total of $20,000 for the 1,000 acres, which produced $47,000 worth of wheat in one crop. This year they have drilled 1,500 acres in wheat.

GENEVA PARLEY ON ARMS CUT APRIL 15

Partial Disarmament Promises to Get Consideration.

Geneva.—The preparatory commission for a disarmament conference has been convened to meet at Geneva on April 15. The convocation was announced by President Louzon of the preparatory commission after he had ascertained that the various countries, including the United States, had no objections to the date.

It was understood that the Russian project for partial disarmament for all nations will be the main item on the agenda with the hope that the naval experts also will begin efforts to agree on a formula for a reduction in cruisers and submarines.

Count von Bernstorff of Germany, chairman of a commission which is drafting a treaty for the control of the manufacture of armaments, summoned a meeting of the experts for March 11 at Geneva. The meeting will be especially devoted to a discussion of a scheme of classification of armaments introduced by the Belgian delegation.

Each nation represented on the commission, including the United States, has a right to name its experts. The commission has failed thus far to agree on the text of a convention, being divided especially on the problem of how much publicity is to be accorded to armaments.

HOOVER TO RUSH TO CAPITAL ON SPECIAL

President-Elect Requests No Salutes on Arrival.

Washington.—In a message from the battleship Utah to the commandant of the Fifth naval district at Norfolk, Va., President-Elect Hoover requested that "all salutes, honors, and calls be dispensed with" on his arrival on January 6, at Hampton Roads, and that all military and naval authorities at Norfolk and Fortress Monroe be notified of his preference in this matter. If the weather permits, the message stated, the Hoover party will disembark at Old Point after luncheon, going directly from the dock to the railroad station to take a special train to Washington.

On Board the U. S. S. Utah, at Sen.—Herbert Hoover is not expected to concern himself with pending legislation on his visit to Washington, D. C. The President-Elect has indicated that he will await his inauguration and the result of this session of congress before deciding on his program. He intends to devote himself primarily while in Washington to conferences with party leaders on cabinet appointments and to making a personal report to President Coolidge about his Latin American tour.

While pressure continues to be brought on Mr. Hoover for elaborate inauguration ceremonies, he is determined to adhere to his original plan for induction into office with as simple a program as has been held in recent years.

This is one of the matters he is expected to dispose of before leaving Washington for Florida late in January. His plans after the Florida visit are not completed, but it is understood that he has in mind a visit to Havana, Cuba, to Santo Domingo and to Costa Rica before his inauguration. At present it is regarded as unlikely that he will find time to visit Mexico City.

Just at present there are some who favor a special session for farm relief. Others favor a special session, but want the tariff revised. Still others want both considered and finally some want no special session at all. There are also differences of opinion about when the special session should be held. The spring has been suggested and so has the fall.

Opponents of a special session for farm relief think that a satisfactory farm bill could be passed by this congress. They point out that a bill, conforming to administration ideas, has already been introduced by Senator McNary of Oregon. President-Elect Hoover said during the course of the campaign that he would call a special session of congress if some solution of the farm problem were not found before he took office.

Among those who think that a satisfactory farm bill could be passed before March 4, are Speaker Longworth and Representative Tilson, the majority floor leader.

Washington.—To the uncertainty about the proposed special session, farm relief and tariff revision has been added the report that Herbert Hoover was not inclined to give his preferences about legislation until after his inauguration.

With the news that he was on his way to Washington it was felt by some perplexed congressmen that a few words from the President-Elect would restore harmony. These few words may not be said.

Mr. Longworth said he thought it would be a mistake to wait until the next session to do something about the problems of agriculture. He declared that if it would take at least six months for a farm board to organize and that delay beyond this session would make relief come too late for the 1929 crops. He favors a special session, but thinks the autumn would be a good time for it. He said that the tariff did not need a general revision and that the farm, textile and cement schedules are probably all that need any considerable overhauling.

Mr. Tilson's ideas in the main conform to those of Mr. Longworth, only he thinks the spring a good time for the special session.

Mr. Longworth's views and Mr. Tilson's views on the time for farm relief are almost diametrically opposite to Senator Borah's views. The Idaho senator, a staunch Hoover supporter during the campaign, takes the attitude that the Republican party promised a special session for farm relief and that the promise should be carried out.

Shed Roof, Open Front Poultry House Provides Good Shelter

FLOOR PLAN OF MODERN POULTRY HOUSE

By W. A. RADFORD
Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all problems pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm. For the readers of this paper, in account of his wide experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is without doubt, the highest authority on the subject. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only include two-cent stamp for reply.

Here is a design for a shed roof, open front, poultry house measuring 60 feet long by 16 feet wide. Such a building will take care of 250 hens, providing comfortable accommodations for the average farm flock. The material from which it is built can be obtained from any lumber yard. By following the plans reproduced here, anyone who is accustomed to the use of carpenter's tools can build such a house satisfactorily.

This poultry house is of frame construction, set on a concrete foundation. It should be placed facing to the south so that the scratching floor will get the full benefit of the maximum amount of sunlight all the year around. The windows, which are screened, should also be covered with burlap curtains during the winter months to keep out the cold winds.

In addition to the exterior view of this house, a floor plan, cross section and several construction details are shown. The floor plan shows the location of the removable nests and other conveniences. The construction of the house is shown in detail. The dimensions are fully explained. The drawings are fully figured or gaged as shown.

Heat Efficiency Is Determined by Chimney

Satisfactory service of heating boiler or fireplace is entirely dependent on the proper chimney. This is due to the fact that the chimney is entirely responsible for draft, which is essential to supply air for combustion.

The chimney top should extend above the highest point of the roof. Surrounding buildings or high trees must not be so near that wind currents will force air downward. The flue should run as straight as possible; its outlet at the top should not be choked by a cap which might reduce the area of the opening. There should be only one opening into each flue.

The flue lining is usually desirable and is invariably used. With joints well cemented there can be little or no impediment to the draft. The average six to eight-room house should have an 8 by 12-inch tile-lined flue 35 feet high from basement floor. Smaller homes and bungalows may use an 8 by 8-inch flue 30 feet high.

Use of Common Brick Is Growing Rapidly

Statistics show a marked increase in the use of common brick which is interpreted as an indication that brick homes are gaining in favor for their fire-safe quality and freedom from upkeep expense.

Mr. Longworth's views and Mr. Tilson's views on the time for farm relief are almost diametrically opposite to Senator Borah's views. The Idaho senator, a staunch Hoover supporter during the campaign, takes the attitude that the Republican party promised a special session for farm relief and that the promise should be carried out.

Plastic Paint Suited to Use on Any Surface

A plastic wall paint that comes in white powdered form is mixed with water and applied to the wall with an ordinary brush. It may be applied directly to any wall or surface to which paint will adhere and is equally effective over sand or smooth-finished plaster, concrete, any nonexpanding or contracting type of wall board and many other surfaces found in present-day homes.

This material, according to its makers, provides a permanent interior finish, sanitary, easy to clean and not easily defaced or injured. A finish that tends to weather and enrich. Decoration with it need not be expensive, but entirely within the budget of the small-house builder.

The range of color and texture effects available makes this type of decoration suitable to any architecture and gives wide opportunity for individuality in expression. Application of the material is not difficult. For those experimenting with the so-called modern trend in decoration the under former conditions... been impossible... weather and could... four days during the summer... it was not unusual... develop during the winter... when weather was... Present day building... maker to produce... weather, and as a result... of clay units are always... efficient volume. The... Flint believes, is another... created expense.

Resolve to Increase Your 1929 Income

Your business is producing milk for profit. Every can of good milk produced contains a certain amount of fat. In your business this fat is your profit. There are two ways of getting more fat into a can of milk. One is to make the can larger—increase the volume of milk you produce. The other is to increase the percentage of fat—keep higher testing cows. Join a cow testing association that you will know what each cow is doing for you. The cost of joining a cow testing association is a real investment, not an expense. Feed a balanced ration to get the largest volume of milk possible for the amount and value of feed consumed. Get in touch with your county agent, he will help you solve your production and feeding problems. Start the new year right by resolving to increase your income for 1929.
