Reuben Schloemer, bulk agent for the O'Neil Oil Co.'s station at West Bend was fatally injured on Tuesday morning, when he was struck by the engine of a freight train on the crossing just south of the depot. Mr. Schloemer was at work at the storage tanks at West Bend when the fire siren sounded an alarm. Being a member of West Bend's volunteer fire company, he mounted his tank truck to respond to the alarm, with him on the truck was Ferdinand Nehrbaas, Jr., when the truck neared the crossing, it was struck by a northbound freight train. When Mr. Schloemer realized what was going to happen he told Nehrbaas to jump to safety. Mr. Schloemer tried to do likewise, but was too late to clear himself to avoid getting hit. He suffered a compound fracture of both arms and a compound fracture of the skull. The unfortunate man was picked up unconscious and removed to the Driessel clinic where the best of medical attention was given him, but to no avail for he died on Wednesday morning at 2:30 o'clock without regaining consciousness. OVERCOME BY MONOXIDE GAS

Erwin, aged 18 years, only son of Mr. and Mrs. William Butzlaff, residing about two and one-half miles southwest of here, had a very narrow escape from death when he was overcome by carbon monoxide gas. The accident happened last week Friday afternoon when he went into the garage at his home where he started the motors of two cars parked in the building, having the doors of the garage closed the gas going off from the exhaust pipes of the machines could not escape, and as a result he was soon overcome. Before going into the garage, he told his father what he intended to do, being warned by the parent not to do so, and probably not fully realizing the danger that might result from it, he took a chance in starting up the motors. After having been gone for about fifteen minutes, Mr. Butzlaff, the father of the boy, became alarmed upon his son not returning, and went to the garage to investigate. Upon opening the door of the building he was shocked to find Erwin lying on the floor unconscious. He immediately carried him into the house and summoned a physician who administered medical aid. Erwin remained unconscious for about half an hour, and although he was forced to remain in bed for a day, he has completely recovered from the effects of it and feels none the worse for his experience.

HARTFORD OFFICERS IN FIST FIGHT

Fists flew in a short preliminary battle early Tuesday morning upon the sidewalks of Main street when Hartford's police department misunderstood one another and for a while there was a lively scuffle as a quarter of a ton of human flesh let fists fly in such a rapid whirl that they would have made the Sharkey-Stribling championship fight of Wednesday evening appear like a preliminary in comparison. As a result one member of the department has been given a temporary leave of absence from his duties and a hearing upon the cause of the bout will be held before the city council. The one objection to being a member of the police department is that one hasn't the full range and choice of action that a civilian might have. The example of our emissaries of the law settling their differences with fists instead of by retainers is setting forth a procedure that legalities do not condone.—Hartford Times.

MUZZLES ALONE NOT ENOUGH FOR DOGS

Muzzles alone will not immunize dogs from killing in a county quarantined for rabies, Dr. L. M. Wright, state veterinarian and head of the livestock sanitary board said Tuesday. Dogs must be kept on leash.

He quoted from the statutes in which the quarantine authority is given and wherein the words "muzzled" and in the immediate control of the owner or keeper" are used. There is no other reference to muzzling.

The livestock sanitary board has heard of no further outbreaks of rabies in animals, and the counties now under quarantine are the only ones now contemplated for the eradication of the infection.

Should dogs from one of these counties or some other part of the country be brought into any other county, and rabies infection be found in humans or animals, quarantines will soon be placed on the affected places, he said.

The livestock sanitary board is not "strong" for the muzzling of dogs for two reasons, Dr. Wright said. From the humane standpoint the muzzle, if it is made tight enough to stay on, often chokes or otherwise effects the dog physically.

Dogs running at large with the muzzles on, in rural areas, might get them caught on fences or other obstructions and starve or freeze before found. From the viewpoint of preventing spread of hydrophobia, the muzzle is also ineffective, he said, because it does not prevent the flow of infection-spreading froth from the mad dogs mouth.

Dr. Wright warned that in any counties now or to be quarantined, the only way for owners of valuable dogs to keep them from being killed is to keep them constantly on leash when outside. No matter if a dog is licensed and muzzled he may be shot as a stray under the laws.

MEMORIAL

In memory of George Meilinger, Sr., who was laid at rest four years ago, March 7, 1925:
We are sad within our memory,
Lonely are our hearts today.
For the one we loved so dearly,
Has forever been called away.
We often sit and think of him when we are all alone,
For memory is the only friend that grief can call its own.
Like ivy on the withered oak,
When all other things decay,
Our love for him will still keep green and never fade away.

INAUGURATE HOOVER AS 31ST PRESIDENT

Elaborate Ceremonies Heard Throughout World.

President Hoover's cabinet is composed of the following: Secretary of state—Henry L. Stimson of New York. Secretary of the treasury—Andrew W. Mellon of Pennsylvania. Secretary of war—James W. Good of Iowa and Chicago. Attorney general—William D. Mitchell of Missouri. Postmaster general—Walter F. Brown of Ohio.

Secretary of the navy—Charles Francis Adams of Massachusetts. Secretary of the interior—Ray Lyman Wilbur of California. Secretary of agriculture—Arthur M. Hyde of Missouri. Secretary of labor—James J. Davis of Pennsylvania.

Secretary of commerce—Robert Patterson Lamont of Illinois. It is understood the appointment of Secretary of Labor Davis is for only one year.

Washington—Herbert Hoover was inaugurated as President of the United States at one of the most elaborate functions ever held in the national capital, when the oath of office was administered to him by Chief Justice Taft of the Supreme court.

Every modern method of dissemination, except television, was used to give the nation and the world instant pictures of the events of the day.

It was the first time in the history of the republic that two former Presidents were present at the inaugural ceremonies, Calvin Coolidge and William Howard Taft.

Press and photographic bureaus, national radio chains, telephoto and telegraph companies, railroads and airplane transport companies carried the news of the inauguration to every hamlet of the United States and every nation of the globe.

Sound pictures for the first time recorded both the appearance and the voice of an incoming President and Vice President. New York and Philadelphia heard and saw the inaugural ceremony in their uptown "movie" places a few hours after the occurrence.

During the week every city in the country will have had the same opportunity. One of the chief spectacle features of the three-day ceremony outside of the inaugural parade itself was an air parade, led by the dirigible plane, Question Mark.

Immediately after the inaugural address Mrs. Hoover rode beside her husband on the short journey to the White House. Mrs. Coolidge satisfied tradition to the extent of riding beside Mr. Hoover in the inaugural parade to the capitol. Immediately after the address he and Mrs. Coolidge boarded a private car attached to a train for Northampton, Mass.

Washington citizens raised $110,000 for expenses and entertainment. This sum was amplified through receipts from the sale of parade stand pens, souvenir programs and souvenir medals. Congress appropriated $27,000 for extra policing, emergency traffic regulations and public comfort stations.

The capital's corps of plain clothes men was augmented by 250 men from New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore. Another feature of the three-day celebration was the charity ball of the night of March 4, at which Vice President Curtis and Mrs. Gann, diplomatic and cabinet ministers were in attendance. Proceeds of this affair, about $40,000 will be given to charity.

Another affair was the governors' reception which was held the night of March 3 at the Hotel Willard. More than thirty state executives with their official escorts attended this function. Besides the parade, which approximated four miles in length, the rank and file of visitors were entertained by two air cruises on succeeding afternoons, while the crack Third cavalry of Fort Myer, Va., exhibited its horsemanship.

Summerall Now Full General Washington.—Gen. Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff of the United States army, now holds the full rank of general, as a result of a bill signed by President Coolidge. He is the eighth to hold that high rank.

ONE BILLION VOTED FOR NEW PROJECTS

Annual Appropriation Bill Totals $3,277,943,614.

Washington.—Authorizations for new expenditures totaling more than a billion dollars during the next decade were voted during the Seventieth congress. In spite of continued stressing of economy, an unusual number of new projects involving a large outlay of money obtained approval during the two years of the life of the congress.

The chief authorizations included the following: Mississippi flood control project, $274,000,000. The Boulder dam project, $103,000,000. Public buildings and army structures, $175,000,000.

Compensation for German ships, patents, and radio stations, $100,000,000. River and harbor projects, $72,000,000. Increased capital for Mississippi barge line, $10,000,000.

Fortunately for the treasury, the money for the new projects is to be expended over a period of years. Actual appropriations during the two years of the congress showed a steady upward trend. Regular annual appropriation bills of this winter's session have carried a total of $3,075,597,182. Adding two deficiency bills the total was $3,277,943,614.

In the first annual session the regular bills amounted to $2,906,585,730 and with deficiency bills the total was $3,233,540,702. The appropriations for the first session of this congress represented an increase of about $300,000,000 over the last session of the Sixty-ninth congress, which, in turn, increased about $80,000,000 over the first session of congress.

The first session of the Seventieth congress extended from December, 1927, until May 20, 1928. The second session was the so-called short session, commencing in December, 1928.

Planes With Trailers Being Used in Germany Kassel, Germany.—An "air train," consisting of a Ruab-Katzenstein machine and two trailers, made a trial flight here a few days ago. The trailers were uncoupled at a height of 1200 feet and glided to earth separately. It is next planned to try a long overland flight with an "air train" consisting of several units.

Los Angeles.—After being towed 150 miles by an airplane and safely crossing a high range of mountains, Dale Drake was forced to land his motorless glider near here when the rope broke. A bad few minutes were experienced by Drake when the tow line snapped close to the airplane and left 500 feet of rope hanging from the glider. He managed to keep in the air, however, and glided for fifteen miles before finding a landing place near Los Angeles.

Seven Deaths in Peoria Laid to Poison Liquor Peoria, Ill.—Seven deaths here within two days are attributed to poison liquor and several other persons are seriously ill in hospitals. After Coroner W. S. Elliott announced that post-mortem examinations on the bodies of five of the victims had determined that poisoned alcohol was responsible for the deaths, investigations were begun by State's Attorney Henry Pratt and the city police.

The dead are Walter A. Sammons, 4521 Lake Park avenue, a Chicago live stock dealer, and John Dempsey, Frank Aylward, Clarence Hoppe, Harold Huddleston, Richard Farrar, and Mrs. Ellen McFadden, all of Peoria.

Lindbergh and Fiance Victims of Plane Crash Mexico City.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his fiance Miss Anne Morrow, escaped serious injury when their airplane crashed because of a missing wheel and then turned over. Somewhere on their flight the right wheel was lost from the under-carriage of the plane, and when they returned to Valbuena field Colonel Lindbergh attempted the landing. The machine taxied and skidded, finally turning over.

With his right arm in a sling, accompanied by Miss Morrow, the following day Lindbergh made another flight, managing the plane with one hand. MEXICANS IN REVOLT TO HALT GIL'S RULE

Federal Troops Bolt, Seize Cities; Join Rebels.

Mexico City.—Revolutions in a serious form have developed in widely separated parts of Mexico. Gen. Jesus Maria Aguirre, military commander of the state of Vera Cruz, led the troops stationed there in rebellion against the government of Provisional President Emilio Portes Gil. Almost the entire state was reported in his hands, cutting the capital off from the gulf and bringing the revolt within a few miles of Mexico City.

The isthmus of Tehuantepec, to the south, also was reported in rebel hands. In the northern border state of Sonora, Gov. Faustino Topete declared for the uprising and the border point of Nogales received word that several other states were involved. The purpose of the revolution was understood to be to place in the Presidency Gilberto Valenzuela, former minister to Great Britain.

In Mexico City Portes Gil summoned a special session of the cabinet and called a war council of the local commanders. Former President Plutarco Elias Calles was called back to active service and appointed minister of war.

Troops were mobilized hurriedly. Disrupted rail and wire communications kept the population of the capital in ignorance of many of the events. Several Americans in business at Vera Cruz, but temporarily in the capital, desperately attempted to get airplanes to carry them to their families at Vera Cruz, from which they were cut off by every other means of transportation.

President Portes Gil ordered the commander of the Valbuena army aviation field, used by Colonel Lindbergh and the place where he crashed a few days ago in landing, to have all aviators ready to fly to the front at a moment's notice. Reports indicated that the revolt was carefully planned and co-ordinated so as to break out simultaneously. General Aguirre was reported to have ordered mobilization "for maneuvers" of all federal troops in the state of Vera Cruz. He thus had them assembled under arms when he was ready to strike.

Washington.—The State department was advised in official dispatches from Mexico City and Vera Cruz that revolutionary forces had attacked the newly established government of President Portes Gil at Nogales in the state of Sonora, on the United States border and at Vera Cruz on the Gulf of Mexico simultaneously.

Fighting was in progress between the revolutionists under General Aguirre and Mexican naval forces in Vera Cruz and federal troops have been engaged at Nogales by revolutionists headed by General Manzo. The extent of casualties was unknown and lines of communication were severely impaired.

The Department of State was advised of the revolution in the following dispatch from American diplomatic headquarters in Mexico City: "Mexico City reports an uprising in Sonora headed by Manzo. The federal government has closed the ports of Vera Cruz and Nogales to fend against the admission through them of arms and munitions."

Sharkey-Stribling Go Brought $400,000 Gate Flamingo Park, Miami, Fla.—Jack Sharkey, Boston sailor, outpointed Young Stribling, Southern heavyweight, in their ten round bout here. Neither fighter landed a damaging punch. Approximately 35,000 paid $405,940 to see the triumph of the North.

Sharkey's superior weight and strength told after the fourth round, and Stribling's boxing ability was nullified. Aside from the spectacle of society, a gainly decorated arena and some gaudy preliminaries, the fight was a thrill-maker was a washout.

Sharkey received $100,000; Stribling's share $63,540.31. Steel Plant to Cover 80 Acres; Employ 3,000 Detroit, Mich.—Starting with an initial capital of $20,000,000, the Great Lakes Steel corporation, recently organized, will build a mill on the Detroit river which will cover 80 acres and employ 3,000 men. It was announced. It is to be the largest start ever made by an independent steel company.

Engaged in the development of the new company are interests associated with the Michigan Steel company which was the first sheet mill to be established in this territory. ASPHALT ROADS PROVED WORTHY Government Finds Surfacing Material Is Durable.

Realizing that the cost of construction and maintenance of state highways, county roads and city streets affects the purse or bank roll of every citizen, whether or not he owns an automobile, motor cycle, pushmop or horse-drawn vehicle, the United States bureau of public roads in 1911 and 1912 sponsored a test of various road surfacing materials, laid on Connecticut avenue in Montgomery county, Md., immediately adjacent to Washington, D. C., and found that the asphaltic pavements, according to the official report recently issued, had proved themselves to be remarkably durable in the face of 16 years of heavy traffic duty.

These experiments included seven sections of bituminous macadam, two sections of asphaltic concrete, three sections of portland cement, one section of brick pavement. In the bureau's official report of this experiment there appears the following statement concerning the bituminous macadam sections: "Approximately 16 years have elapsed since these experimental stretches were constructed, and during this period they have carried severe traffic, and in their broken edges and repaired local failures they show the effects of the stresses and strains to which they have been subjected.

Nevertheless, all are still in servicable condition, and with continued careful maintenance should not require reconstruction for some years to come." Concerning the behavior of the bituminous, or asphaltic, concrete and the brick sections, the report declares: "The two bituminous concrete experiments, and the two brick experiments, have required the least maintenance up to this time and are still in excellent condition, and to all appearances should continue to give economical service for sometime to come."

Meanwhile, R. W. Coburn, construction engineer of the Massachusetts state highway department, presents another report showing the comparative cost of maintenance for the various types of pavement and road surfacing materials used in the construction of the "Day State" highways. The cost of maintenance per mile last year was as follows: "Cement concrete, $225; reinforced portland cement concrete, $545; bituminous macadam (tar and asphalt) $480; bituminous concrete, $320."

Mr. Coburn also declares that on bituminous, or asphalt, macadam roads, from one to ten years old, the surface maintenance cost, which includes patching, frost breaks and surface treatment, was $124 per mile over the gravel foundations and $147 per mile over stone fills. Incidentally, the New York state highway department reports that the average age of bituminous macadam roads in that state, of which there are more than 3,000 miles, is in excess of ten years.

Automobile Hints He who hesitates is run over. Police to pursue safety campaign headline. Yes; also unsafe. About 85 per cent of the automobiles in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil open cars. Well, why shouldn't farmers have their spare cash for automobile instead of gold bricks? Throughout the world—see being the United States—there is motor vehicle for every 277 persons. The Ohio State Journal notes that "whatever their rights, the operation of both pedestrian and tourist is essential to a minimum safety in city traffic," and the comment is so true that it might also serve as a slogan.

Paris Policemen Must Learn to Drive Autos Ability to drive an automobile is now a requirement for all new Paris policemen. The rule is simply that candidates who can drive get the preference in appointment but the effect has been to make men get driving licenses before applying. Since there are only a million cars in France there are few men in the ranks who can drive, but the number has been increased by the requirement that all traffic officers must learn to handle cars.

Automobiles Parked in Large Building At 209 East Forty-third street, New York, stands a recently completed twenty-four story building that is devoted entirely to the parking of automobiles. It is the first New York example of the Kent Auto hotel developed in Kenosha, Wis. to eliminate traffic congestion because of parked cars. No human hand touches a car once it is run in on the ground into rail grooves. An electric parker under an automobile pulls it up one of three of the largest elevators ever installed in a building. After a "parking clerk" assigns a car its room and number it is shot up to its berth at the rate of a floor a second in a high speed elevator. At the proper floor the elevator doors automatically open for the self-leveling lifts and the parker shifts the machine either backward or forward to its place on the floor. The floors are capable of holding 1,000 cars.

Women Aight Safely According to press dispatches, a street car company in Germany has found a way to induce its women patrons to alight in a safe manner. A mirror is placed in the forward side of the car exit. Thus, when a girl or matron prepares to get off, she discovers it and, invariably, pauses for a moment to view herself in it. And this brings her into the proper position to step off the car—holding on with her left hand, and facing the front and in position to step off.

Mileage of roads considered good enough for comfortable motor travel in the United States is four times that of the railroads. A world's record is claimed by an unskilled Detroit man who recently took an automobile apart in 20 seconds at a grade crossing. Electric roads in the United States are operating 9,500 buses and trolley cars. Electric companies have replaced many cars with gas-motored vehicles.

"You can't make a contract that will hold a man to turn over his property if he proved up," he insisted after it proved up, he said. "Half of them would keep their word."

"Of course," she agreed. "But then you'd have half instead of nothing at all."

"Do you want the world?" he asked. "I'm going to fight these three men for the Three Bar among the owners of the land. I'll smash the land if you don't quit. Unless you three Bar men move out of your own land I'll start a fight and quit this place in three days."

"That's the first time Slade had ever threatened. Her spirits had been good and she was suddenly afraid for the first time. She had whittled down the land of Slade, who had whittled down his own on his whole attention to the Three Bar.

every other brand and so could show bill of sale for off-brand stuff in their beef shipments or for any brands on the range.

Deane was regarding the penciled memorandum signed by Slade.

"Not a very impressive document," he observed.

Harris laughed at the other's evident disapproval of such a slipshod method of property transfer.

"Not very," he agreed. "But it's absolutely good. You could borrow money against that at the bank. Slade doesn't get us that way but here's how he does: He's mapped out a rebrand system. His rebrand is Triangle on the lip. When he gets our exchange slip all he has to do is go on his range and run the Triangle on the lip of the number of Three Bar stock he calls for. There are Three Bar cows ranging a hundred miles from here. Just as there's stock turns up here—with a triangle on the lip. Who's going to check Slade up? He would take three crews to cover his range and tally the fresh Three Bar rebrands of this one season—a few here and a few there. He ships train loads of cows in a year. There's some old rebrands in each lot, say; maybe more than last year's exchange. Well he simply has been holding them over. He can explain that. It would break a small outfit to hire enough hands to cover his range and check him up—and he'd buy part of those. The albino's men are petty-larceny bandits compared with Slade."

CHAPTER VIII

Harris had left the ranch an hour before daylight, his ride occasioned by the reports of several of the men. In the last three days each couple that worked the range had found one or more of the new white-face bulls shot down in their territory. The evidence, as Harris pieced the scraps together, indicated that a lone rider had made a swift raid, riding for forty miles along the foot of the hills in a single day, shooting down every Three Bar bull that crossed his trail. A dozen dead animals marked his course. A few more such raids and the Three Bar calf crop would be extremely short the following spring. He rode back to the corral in the early afternoon and joined Billie and Deane.

"Not a track," he said. "We must expect more or less of that. They'll cut in on us wherever there's a chance."

As Harris left them the girl pointed to an horseman riding up the lane.

"The sheriff," she volunteered, and Deane noted an odd tightening of her lips.

The sheriff came over to Deane and the girl.

"Billie, I expect you can tell me who's doing this killing over in the Breaks," he said.

Her eyes fell under the sheriff's steady gaze. "Deane was looking into her face and with a shock he realized that she could pronounce the name of the assassin but was deliberately withholding it. She raised her head with a trace of defiance.

"No, I can't tell you," she said.

Deane expected to hear the sheriff's curt demand that she divulge the name of the man he sought. It must be easily apparent to him, as it was to Deane, that she knew. But Aiden only dropped a hand on her shoulder and stood looking down at her.

"All right, girl," he said mildly. "I reckon you can't tell. He can't be such a rotten sort if you refuse to turn him up." He pushed back his hat and smiled at Deane. "We have to humor the womenfolk out here," he explained, as he turned toward the bunk house.

Deane, already at a loss to grasp the mental attitude of the range dwellers, was further mystified by a sheriff who spoke of humoring the ladies in a matter pertaining to a double killing.

"Billie, you know," he accused; "why wouldn't you tell?"

"Because there's a good chance that he's a friend of mine," she stated simply. "Those men had it coming to them and some way I can't feel any regret."

"Billie, let me take you away from all this," Deane urged again. "Let me give you the things every girl should have—shut all the rough spots out of your path. I want to give you the things every girl needs to found out her life—a home and love and shelter. This is not the life for a girl," he insisted.

"You've told me a hundred times that I was different from other girls. But now you're wanting me to be like all the rest. Where would the difference be then?" she asked a little wistfully. "Why won't you go on liking me the way I am, instead of making me other?"

QUAINT FLOUNCED TAFFETA; LACE-TOUCHED NAVY FROCKS

feta frock illustrated is everything that it should be for youth. Perhaps one of the happiest things about it is that it can easily be made at home. There's nothing intricate about it—a good pattern, a few yards of taffeta, deft fingers, a willing mind and the deed is done!

The bow-knot of self-fabric formed of milliner's folds is a master stroke when it comes to trimming a whole frock with "the touch that tells." And aren't those quaint ruffles, one topping another, adorable? The hemline tips up in front just enough to satisfy fashion's demands. The bodice is slightly form fitting, which is the latest style dictum for evening frocks.

Of course the color symphony for this frock could be carried out in any one of a dozen other "delicious" colorings, but it's just this way: All the yellows from daffodil to deep orange have captured Dame Fashion's fancy to the left is inclined to be form fit-and she is making a big play on these shades for spring and summer.

Pale green is another favorite with the mode for party wear. As to white, be it taffeta, satin or chiffon, the outlook is that it will lead by a big majority when summer comes. There is supposed to be a note of color somewhere about the white costume in the way of a flower, a fan or a pair of gay slippers. Or perhaps the wrap, probably of transparent velvet, will supply the color needed to glorify the picture.

Speaking of the coat of transparent velvet, its vogue for spring is already told. Designers are creating lovely ensembles of sheer materials topped with transparent velvet wraps.

For a Modish Frock Do you wonder whether you can carry out the vogue for unexpected color alliances in smartly paired blouses and skirts? Some new combinations are a smart answer: for instance, a bright red blouse with a brown skirt, yellow with blue, green with black or brown.

GOOD THINGS TO EAT

During the spring months we are looking for the early spring greens to come into market. Watercress, dandelion greens, poke in the south, as well as the southern grown market greens, that begin to come in more plentifully.

Those who are fond of the tender, blanched dandelion greens may, by laying a few boards over the new plants, find some tender white shoots in a few days. To serve them wash carefully and drain, then dress with french dressing seasoned with shredded new onions, salt, pepper, and cayenne.

Quick Salad Dressing.—When lettuce or greens are served, a mixture of both are at hand, measure and take the same amount of diluted vinegar. Cook over hot water, after beating the egg until light. Continue heating while cooking. Remove as soon as the mixture is thick. Add such seasonings as desired. Mustard, salt, cayenne all well blended and stirred in. Is the well liked seasoning, with a teaspoonful or less of sugar.

Stewed Prunes, Stuffed.—Cover large prunes after washing carefully, with cold water and let soak overnight. Simmer in the same water until tender, reducing the slrup by cooking. The prunes will not need sugar if carefully cooked. Chill, drain and make an incision in the side, remove the stones and fill with chopped black walnuts mixed with enough of the chopped prunes to hold the meats together. Press each prune into its original shape. Whip heavy cream and flavor with a dash of vanilla, arrange nests of cream on dessert plates, add three prunes in each nest, top with whipped cream and place a stuffed prune on top of each. Serve very cold.

Rice Delight.—Mix one cupful of cooked rice with one cupful of sugar. Drain canned sliced pineapple and cut into small pieces, using one cupful; add it to the rice with one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, mix well and add one cupful of heavy cream, whipped and flavored. Serve on cold plates garnished with strips of pineapple rolled in finely chopped mint leaves.

A custard pie may be made quite different by adding a half cupful of chopped walnut meats to it just before putting in the oven. Coconut sprinkled over the top will make another change from the ordinary.

What to Eat.
A most delightful salad which may be served in a curled leaf of head lettuce is:
Carrot and Pineapple Salad.—Grate two cupfuls of carrots, fresh young ones are best, add to them one cupful of grated pineapple. Pour boiling water over a package of lemon flavored gelatin and when turned in the carrot and pineapple. Stir until well blended, then mold. Turn from individual molds onto lettuce and serve with a mayonnaise dressing.

Asparagus Salad.—Marinate well drained asparagus from the can with a highly seasoned french dressing. Arrange on lettuce, the asparagus thrust through rings of canned pimento or red or green pepper. Use three to four stalks of asparagus and serve with a spoonful of mayonnaise over all.

Raw Carrot Salad.—Raw, grated carrot may be used in various combinations as salad. With a bit of chopped celery or shredded cabbage, a bit of onion, mixed with a good salad dressing it is very good. With cooked green peas or chopped green pepper and roasted peanuts, moistened with salad dressing, it is also very good.

These salads are very attractive when arranged in a mold in layers and moistened with salad dressing. Arrange the green pepper in the bottom of the mold, cabbage on that and lastly carrot on top. Unmold carefully and serve with more of the dressing.

Peanut, Peas and Pickles.—Chopped peanuts, green peas and finely cut sour pickles mixed with salad dressing make a most tasty salad.

Raisin Pie.—Line a pie plate with rich pastry. Pour one-half cupful of orange juice over one and one-half cupfuls of seeded raisins. Let stand for several hours until well soaked. Add three-fourths cupfuls of sugar, a teaspoonful of grated orange rind, the juice of half a lemon, one-half teaspoonful of salt and two tablespoonfuls of flour. Mix well and turn into the pastry-lined plate, dot with bits of butter and cover with pastry. Bake forty minutes. Serve hot or cold.

Cream cheese to which a tablespoonful or two of chopped maraschino cherries have been added, makes a simple dessert with crackers and coffee, which is much liked.

DR. CALDWELL'S THREE RULES

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not habit forming.

The Doctor never did approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, leadaches, and to break up fevers and colds. Get a bottle today, at any drugstore and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open. For a free trial bottle, just write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. "Statue of Freedom" on National Capitol

The bronze statue surmounting the dome of the national capitol at Washington is the figure of a woman and symbolizes liberty. This statue is often erroneously supposed to represent an American Indian, owing to the fact that from a distance the helmet of the figure resembles the bonnet of an Indian war chief. In fact the eagle's head and the arrangement of the feathers on the helmet were suggested by costumes of certain Indian tribes. The figure, which weighs 14,985 pounds and is 19½ feet high, was modeled at Rome, Italy, by Thomas Crawford in 1855, from plans adopted in 1850 by Senator Jefferson Davis of Mississippi, who was then chairman of committee on public buildings. Crawford named the statue "Armed Liberty," but ever since it arrived at

A Beggar Who Chose

A tramp knocked at the front door of a house just beyond the east side city line recently.

"Ma'm, I'm awful hungry," he said. The resident, a woman of great patience and a kind heart, told the man if he would go to the side door she would help him.

The tramp went to the side door and knocking said:

"Ma'm, I'm awful hungry; could I have something to eat?"

The housewife asked the man to have patience and she would get him something. Hungrily, his entire being denoting a long fast, the tramp sat down on the doorstep and waited.

Presently the resident appeared with a plate of large, appetizing sandwiches.

"O, I can't eat those!" sniffed the tramp. "All I wanted was pie or cake."—Baltimore Sun.

Dad's Smile Evaporated

The slangy young woman was holding a conversation with her mother and dad. In the course of the talk when something which they told her surprised her exceedingly, she exclaimed: "Well, I'm a monkey's uncle!"

Mother remonstrated, but dad was highly amused and said jokingly: "My dear, you could never be a monkey's uncle—now you might be a monkey's aunt!"

"But, dad," said the slangy one putting an affectionate hand on his arm, "wouldn't you rather have me say 'I'm a monkey's uncle' than 'I'm a monkey's pup'?" And the slangy young lady beat a hasty retreat.

Business Men in Pulpit

A practical way of solving the problem of a shortage of clergy in London is believed to have been found by recruiting from business and professional men. The authorities of Spitalfields parish church started classes last year for business and professional men who wished to become clergymen. Three hundred candidates applied for the course. Sixty were enrolled and will shortly be ordained by the bishop of London.

—All those who have received state and federal income blanks, and have not yet filled them out and returned them, have until next week Friday, March 15, to do so. The reports are due on or before March 15. Persons failing to file by that time are subject to a five per cent penalty.

—In a $500,000 fire which swept through the city blocks of Tomahawk on Wednesday, the barber shop and dwelling together with all their contents of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Du Bois, was also consumed by the flames. Mrs. Du Bois is a former resident of Kewaskum. Her maiden name was Augusta Schleif, sister of George and Fred Schleif of here.
—The first genuine thaw of the winter is on. The mild weather is making huge dents in the mounds of snow and ice. Streets and sidewalks in some places are covered with several inches of water. The thaw at this time will go far towards preventing flood conditions in spring if no heavy snow falls in March. It was feared that with the unusually severe winter and heavy snow that a late spring thaw would project probable serious high water conditions. Highways are in a frightful shape as the result of the soft weather. The snow on the roads is water-soaked and causes motor cars to sink in and a number of cars were "pulled out" the last week.

A 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Rosenthal of the town of Barton was attacked by a German police dog on Tuesday, and before the canine could be driven off the child had suffered lacerations about the hands, head and face. Quality Is the First in Home Gardens

Good Seed Is Prime Requisite for Best Crop of Vegetables.

Quality comes first, says Paul Work of the New York state college of agriculture at Ithaca, N. Y., speaking of varieties of vegetables for home use and for the home garden. Good seed is a prime requisite, and to be sure of satisfaction, it usually is best to deal with a seed house that caters to commercial growers.

Corn Is Mainstay.
Sweet corn is the mainstay of many home gardens and often is the main reason for their existence, for it pays the highest dividends. Sweet corn loses 50 per cent of its sugar and hence its flavor and tenderness in 24 hours after it is picked. This is a mighty good reason for having it close at hand. Among the best varieties are Early White Cob, Golden Bantam, Early Sunshine, Golden Giant, Country Gentleman, Evergreen and Whipple's Yellow.

For the same reasons, peas come next to corn in importance. Thomas Laxton and Gradus are the best varieties for quality, Alaska is the earliest. The dwarf kinds such as Amwell, Knos, Excelsior, Little Marvel, and Laxtonian give more peas to the pod, and are more tender. Telephone, Stratagem and Alberman are late, big-bodied peas.

Among the beans, Stringless Green Pod which is round, early and tender and Bountiful are to be recommended. Most good beans have curved pods.
Lima Beans Desirable.
Lima beans are very desirable for the home garden, but their long growing season and the unfavorable effects of cold wet ground and bad weather make them difficult in New York state to raise. The better ones for central New York are the Burpee bush, the Fordhook bush, and the Henderson bush. Of the pole beans, Scott's, Kentucky, Wonder, Leavathan, Challenger and Green Shell are good.

Utilization of Straw for Insulation Board
The utilization of wheat straw for insulation board is now a practical process and this year one factory at St. Joseph, Mo., has purchased 30,000 tons of straw which is being manufactured into insulation board at the rate of 125,000 square feet daily, according to Prof. O. R. Sweeney, Iowa State college.

It has been found that wheat straw, after steel fingers in a shredder have separated it, produces long tough fibers which can be fabricated into a board that has great structural strength and will provide insulation in building that saves 25 to 40 per cent in fuel used for heating.
The practical application of insulation is recognized by engineers everywhere and farmers, too, are learning that insulation of poultry houses, hog houses and other buildings brings direct returns in saving of feed and fuel.

Ohio Farmers Walk Many Miles in Doing Chores
The Ohio farmers walk an average of 99 miles a month in doing their chores, according to tests made by the rural economics department of Ohio State university. To make this test pedometers were worn by the farmers while doing chores. Of two farmers with exactly the same number of horses and cows and approximately the same number of pigs, one farmer walked 135 miles a month and the other farmer 49 miles. The difference was caused by the relative convenience of the farmstead and facilities for watering and feeding the stock. The water pail proved to be excellent equipment for inducing the farmers to walk great distances.

Small Oat Hullers Now Available for Farm Use
Small oat hullers with capacities of 45 to 50 bushels per hour are now available for farm use. They are usually owned by individual farmers but are sometimes used by a group of neighbors or occasionally mounted on a farm truck for custom work. Machines of this kind, which can be driven by a 5-horse-power electric motor, will also hull and scarify clover seed, crack corn, wheat or rye, hull speltz or skin and crack barley. These added uses of the huller help to keep it busy, cutting down its cost per hour of operation and lessening the expense of making a more valuable feed out of the oats crop.

Tillable Areas Favored for Increasing Pasture
Various methods of obtaining a stand of sweet clover on permanent pasture land have been tried during the past few years. These include very liberal liming—four tons of limestone per acre—plus disking before seeding, sowing on late snows or frost cracked soil, spading small areas to serve as centers of seed distribution, and various fertilizer treatments. Only a few stunted plants have resulted from any of these methods, and it is concluded that only tillable areas are suitable for the purpose of increasing pasture with sweet clover.—From 1928 Report of the Director of the Storrs Experiment Station.

Winter Proper Time to Clip Horses and Mules
Horses and mules may be clipped almost any time in winter, provided the owner uses blankets after clipping and properly houses the clipped animal. If the foregoing conditions are not complied with, better wait until the weather is warm and dry before clipping. Clipped horses and mules when exposed to cold winds or cold rain are very liable to contract pneumonia or pleurisy or both and quite often distemper, strangles or influenza. Early spring clipping followed by exposure to cold winds while being snipped in open stock cars brings out many cases of colds, shipping fever, influenza or pneumonia.

Raising Dairy Calf Is Quite Serious Problem
Those who know how to raise a human baby know exactly how to raise a dairy calf. By "exactly," I don't mean, of course, that the calf and the baby eat the same kind of stuff, says a writer in an estimate. But I do mean that the kind of care used in raising a baby is the kind of care required to raise a calf. Babies require regular attention and babies who are neglected are liable to die. Calves require the same kind of attention and calves who are neglected are liable to die. Babies require the right kind of nutrition and calves require the same. Babies who are not properly fed are liable to die. Calves who are not properly fed are liable to die.

SHEEP TICK CONTROL DESCRIBED IN REVISED FARMERS' BULLETIN

Blood-Sucking Parasite Is Readily Eradicated

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, Washington, D. C.)
Though widely prevalent, especially among classed breeds, the sheep tick, a blood-sucking parasite known to the sheep tick can be readily eradicated by flock owners who employ the methods and habits now being recommended in sheep according to government directions. Farmers' Bulletin 2297, "The Sheep Tick and Its Eradication by Dipping," just revised, describes and illustrates this enemy of the sheep industry.
"The only practical way of destroying the pest," declares Dr. Marion Innes, the author of the bulletin, "is by dipping the sheep. Two dippings are necessary about 21 days apart, as the first dipping may not destroy all the eggs and these may subsequently hatch a new brood."

Canary Grass Valuable for Protein Content

The following is taken from a write-up of the work being done at the Waseca substation in Minnesota. It appeared in the Milking Shorthorn Journal:
"Another interesting experiment is with feller's grass, or canary grass. This grows in sloughs and wet places, yielding 10 tons to the acre of grass that has as high protein content as alfalfa. It roots like quack grass, growing from the shoots as well as from seed. If the experiment shows that the grass has everything claimed for it by farmers in the county that have grown it, there seems a considerable future for canary grass. The prospect of a Minnesota farmer getting his wet land caught with grass yielding ten tons to the acre of grass as nourishing as alfalfa, is even worse than getting his good land seeded with alfalfa, this is always having to be cut when he has other farm work to do."

Iceberg Boat Invented
Designed for travel through ice fields of the Arctic region, a special boat was recently perfected by a German engineer. It is shaped similar to a giant sled, is of heavy armor steel and is propelled by wind-pressure turbines. The inventor believes that when it meets an iceberg it will slide over the obstacle.

Isle Knows No Winters
The Isle of Pines has one continuous summer, the variations of temperature throughout the entire year being scarcely as great as often occur in a single summer month in many of the Northern states. It is rare, indeed, when the thermometer in summer on the island registers as high as 90 degrees, and in winter the mercury never falls below 50 degrees.

Good Luck Has Followed Infielder Mike Gazella

Good college baseball players cannot be blamed for taking a whirl at the professional game when one considers the luck which has followed Mike Gazella, utility infielder, recently released by the Yankees to the Newark club of the International league.

Gazella was a brilliant baseball and football star at Lafayette college six or seven years ago. He probably was a better performer on the gridiron than on the diamond...

When he was graduated in 1923 he was signed by the Yankees and then his good luck began. Gazella sat on the bench nearly all of that season, getting into the game once in a while when some infielder was injured.

Johnny Bassler, Hollywood catcher, formerly of the Detroit Tigers, with only four errors in 127 games, finished the season with a .904 fielding average, a new league mark for catchers.

METZLER FINALLY LANDS WITH SOX

Player Who Set Record for Touring U. S. Anchored.

When Alex Metzler joined the Chicago White Sox last spring he decided that this time he would stick to the major league.

Metzler had done enough traveling. He was tired of being shunted around the minor league loops.

His home is in Fresno, Calif., and Topeka offered him a contract in 1924. Metzler did not wait for transportation; he hopped a freight train and beat his way from Fresno to Kansas City.

He reported as an infielder but Topeka immediately shifted him to the outfield. He did not stay long. Topeka farmed him out to Coffeyville.

Coffeyville gave up the ghost and Metzler found himself a free agent with exactly eight dollars in his pockets.

He signed with Paris, Texas. Paris later sold him to Wichita Falls.

Metzler started the 1925 season with Wichita Falls, but they farmed him out to Ardmore and Ardmore had him for a few weeks when Wichita Falls recalled Metzler and slipped him to the Chicago Nationals. He played nine games with the Cubs and was sent back to Wichita Falls.

Wichita Falls did not need him so Metzler was loaned to Shreveport for one game. Wichita Falls recalled him, kept him ten days and then loaned him to Dallas for five weeks. At the end of five weeks Wichita Falls recalled him again.

Metzler went so well for Wichita Falls in 1926 that the Athletics bought him. He looked like a fine prospect, but when Philadelphia signed Ty Cobb and Zack Wheat the Athletics had so many outfielders that Cornelius McGillicuddy had to cut down and so he sent Metzler back to the Wichita Falls club.

He did not stay long in Wichita Falls. Chicago Americans, needing an outfielder to replace the injured Johnny Mostil, wired for Metzler and he has been with Chicago White Sox ever since.

War Department Has Eye to 1932 Olympic Games

The War department has started preparations to enter the Olympic games for 1932, Secretary of War Davis designating Maj. Gen. Herbert R. Crosby, chief of cavalry, as department representative in all matters bearing on army participation in the games to be held in this country, probably at Los Angeles.

The army developed for the 1928 games in Holland an equestrian and modern pentathlon team and it is expected it will be allotted the same for 1932, the latter consisting of running, swimming, shooting pistol or revolver, broad sword fencing and riding, and is essentially military in nature.

The experience gained last year showed lack of competitive experience in comparison to that of European competitors which handicapped both teams. For this reason, the department desires early preparation for the coming games. Major General Crosby will soon start formation of a nucleus for each team, selection, and dual training of its members.

Big Ed Morris in Queer Predicament in Sleeper

One of the southern papers tells a story about Big Ed Morris, the Boston Red Sox pitching star, when he reported to the Chattanooga club as a green rookie who didn't even know about trains. When the time approached for the first road trip Morris confided in one of his teammates that he was horrified at the thoughts of spending nights on any railroad train.

"I can't sleep in those seats," he said. "You have to draw up in a knot and your arm gets so twisted you can't pitch for days."

His friend explained to him about sleeping cars. He told him they had all the comforts of a hotel room and that he would sleep as he did at home. He seemed relieved.

When the train pulled into the station most of the players tossed their bags into the pullman and charged into the dining car. Morris, however, was more interested in the sleeping car.

He looked all around the car and asked the porter if he was in the ball club's sleeping car. When he was assured that the ball players were going to sleep in the car he rushed out to the diner and surged at his supposed friend.

"You lied to me, eh?" he shouted. "I wouldn't go on this train if you hadn't lied to me. You did lie. Don't tell me you didn't lie. I been all through that sleeping car and there ain't a d--n bed in it."

Southworth Homesick

Billy Southworth's appointment as manager of the St. Louis Cardinals came as a surprise to those who remember him during his days with the New York Giants in 1924-25-26. He came to the Giants with Joe Oeschger in a trade that sent Bill Cunningham, Dave Bancroft and Casey Stengel to the Boston Braves. Southworth was "home-sick" during the two and one-half seasons he played under McGraw and never came up to expectations and was finally let go.

First Trial by Jury Is Held in Tokyo

Tokyo held its first trial by jury without any serious mishaps. One of the few complaints which were heard came from the 12 jurors, who were compelled to spend two nights in the District Court building. Trial by jury is a new thing in Japan, having only been introduced by law on October 1. There have been a few such trials in other cities, but Tokyo's first waited until after the close of the enthronement celebrations. The 12 men (women are not going to be allowed to vote) chosen to pass on the guilt or innocence of the accused, put up with the many novelties of their position until it came time to retire. Then they found that foreign style beds had been provided for their comfort and this was a little bit too much. Sleep in them they did, but it is learned on good authority that several of the jurors had to be coached by their companions on how to negotiate the soft pillows and white sheets in true Western fashion. In this first jury chosen in Tokyo there were, with others, a noodle shop keeper, two sake dealers, two farmers, a dye-stuff dealer, a machine-shop worker and an office employee. They ranged in ages from thirty-five to fifty-four years.

Lava Flow Forms Rich Soil

The slopes of volcanoes afford the best vineyard lands the world knows, according to Dr. Henry S. Washington of the Carnegie Institution, who gives that as the principal reason why inhabitants of such districts as surrounding Mount Etna, where recent eruptions have occurred, cling to their homes in spite of the danger, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. The famous grape districts of northern France and southern Germany are in ancient volcanic areas which have long been inactive.

Plans for the reclamation of vast peat lands in Scotland are being discussed. It is asserted that if the task is undertaken it will mean great prosperity for the country. Efforts along this line have been made before with great financial loss to the promoters, but those back of the present scheme declare they will carry it through to success.

Improve the taste of milk this way--and your children will drink more of it....

SAYS one of America's leading physicians: "Two tablespoonfuls of Karo in a glass of milk not only improves the taste of the milk but doubles its food value."

This doctor's advice is valuable--for he knows children and he knows Karo.

"Serve plenty of Karo to the kiddies--especially underweight children, in milk, on cereals, on sliced bread. Watch their weight increase!"

All children like the delicious flavor of Karo--it appeals to their "sweet tooth."

And--do you know why Karo is so splendid for children? Because each ounce of Karo contains 120 calories--the energy-giving value of Karo is nearly twice that of eggs and lean beef, weight for weight.

What is good for children is also good for the entire family.

Make Karo and pancakes a frequent breakfast habit.

Tires for the new Ford are specially made to give long wear

When the new Ford was designed, it was immediately apparent that a new tire would have to be made to match the car's performance. It was distinctly a new problem, for here was a car with quicker acceleration, greater speed and more braking efficiency than any car of similar size or weight.

So that every Ford owner might be assured of maximum tire mileage at the lowest cost, the Ford Motor Company devoted many months to research and experiment in conjunction with the leading tire manufacturers.

As a result, certain definite specifications were developed for tires for the new Ford. These specify cords of certain strength and texture, a large volume of tread and side-wall rubber, sturdy non-skid design, and reinforced plies for protection against bruise breaks—all the strong features of construction formerly considered for only the largest tires.

Great care also was taken to secure the best riding qualities in connection with the transverse springs and the Houdaille shock absorbers.

Though the Ford tires are designated as 30 x 4.50, they have the resiliency and air space of much larger tires because of the drop center rim of the steel-spoke wheels.

For best results, the tires on the new Ford should be kept inflated to an air pressure of 35 pounds and checked regularly to insure this pressure all the time. This is important. Low inflation breaks down the side-walls of a tire. By causing overheating, it also destroys the rubber that acts as an insulation, with consequent separation of the cord.

At the end of each 5000 miles, when you have the front wheels packed with grease, it is a good plan to have the wheel alignment checked. This will prevent premature wear.

When punctures come, as they will with any tire, you will find the Ford dealer particularly well-equipped to make repairs quickly and at small cost. See him, too, for replacements. Then you will be sure of getting tires built specially for the Ford car according to definite Ford specifications.

For Bladder Relief Is Nature's Danger Signal. Columbus Minister's Wife Relates Experience.

Experiments Prove That Fat Cows Produce Higher Testing Milk

Experiments carried on by Agricultural Colleges prove conclusively that it is possible to increase a cow's fat production. A series of tests at the University of Missouri shows that cows in a fat condition at calving time will produce milk testing higher in fat during the year. Under similar conditions an increase of three to four percent in favor of the fatter herd was noted throughout the year. With a herd producing fifty to one hundred thousand pounds of milk per year, this increase of fat is a very important item. Experiments also prove that feeding alone has no effect on fat contents of milk.
