FUNERAL OF JOHN MURPHY HELD LAST FRIDAY

Funeral services for John Murphy Sr., aged 74 years, life-long resident of the town of Wayne, who died Tuesday on the farm on which he was born, three miles south of St. Kilian, were held at 10 a. m., last Friday at St. Bridget's church with burial in the adjoining cemetery. Rev. Father Vogt of Kewaskum read the requiem high mass.

Mr. Murphy was a highly respected citizen of this community and will be missed by those who were well acquainted with him. He was married in 1881, to Margaret Ryan, who preceded him in death 41 years ago. He leaves to mourn, two children, Agnes (Mrs. Robert McCullough) of St. Kilian and John on the homestead, one sister, Mary Murphy, two grand children, Marcella and Anna McCullough, all of St. Kilian. Those from afar who attended the funeral were: Mich. Leonard and sons Eddie and Ralph, Mrs. Ray Seiberlich, Mrs. Zeno Host, George Wells, all of Milwaukee, Mr. and Mrs. Paul McMullen of Cascade, Miss Agnes Darmody of Milwaukee and Mike and Agnes Dwyer of Nenno. The pall bearers were, Jos. Schmitt, Patrick Darmody, John Murphy, Jas. Emmer, Jacob Batzler and Joseph Bonlander.

CARD OF THANKS

We, the undersigned desire to express our sincere thanks to the many friends and neighbors for their assistance and sympathy shown us during the death and burial of our beloved father and brother John Murphy; to Rev. Vogt, the pall bearers, those who loaned teams, to the funeral directors, for the many spiritual bouquets and to those who showed their respect to the deceased by attending the funeral.

John Murphy,
Mrs. Robert McCullough
Miss Mary Murphy.

DEATH OF FERDINAND LEITZKE

Ferdinand Leitzke, aged 86 years, died at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Klubuhn in the town of Auburn at 5:30 o'clock Monday morning, after a brief illness. Deceased was born at Pflugrade, Germany in 1842. At the age of 25 years, he came to America. Two years later in 1868 he was married to Louisa Kumrau, the couple made their home in the town of Auburn. Deceased leaves to mourn, the following children: Mrs. Fred Ludwig of Waucousta, Mrs. William Klubuhn of the town of Auburn and Mrs. Fred Lade of Eden. Besides these he leaves 15 grand children and 12 great grand children to mourn his demise. His wife preceded him in death on October 21st, 35 years ago, since which time Mr. Leitzke had made his home with his daughter, Mrs. Klubuhn. The funeral was held Thursday at 1 o'clock from the home with services in the St. John's Lutheran church at New Fane. Rev. Gutekunst officiated. Burial was made in the adjoining cemetery. The pall bearers were: John Gatzke, John Oppermann, Henry Oppermann, Frank Schultz, August Heberer and William Heberer.

DEATH OF FRANK GIESE

Following an illness of over four months with a complication of diseases, Frank Giese, of the town of Auburn, passed into the Great Beyond at his home on Friday, March 8th, at 1 p. m. Mr. Giese was born on the 10th of October, 1865 in Pagenkopf, Germany. On the 2nd of April, 1895 he entered the state of holy matrimony with Alvina, nee Fleischfresser. In the year 1904 Mr. Giese immigrated with his family to America, settling first at Kewaskum, Wis. In 1911 he bought his present farm in town Auburn. Here he lived with his son Otto until death. He leaves to mourn: his wife, one son, Otto Giese, one daughter, Mrs. Opper, four brothers, one sister, four grand children, and many other friends and relatives. The funeral was held Tuesday, March 12th at 1 p. m., with services in the St. Lucas Evangelical Luth. church of Kewaskum. Rev. Gerhard Kaniess officiated. Burial was made in the church cemetery.

FLOODS NOW PREVAILING

Due to mild weather and rain the snow is rapidly melting away, with the result that rivers and creeks are overflowing their banks, covering acres of ground with several feet of water. In many places highways are under water making traffic difficult. In the city of Fond du Lac, the same conditions that prevailed in August 1924, when a cloud burst swept over this section of the state, are again evident there. It is reported that some of the streets are under 6 inches of water, and large pieces of ice are floating on the streets, now flooded with water. The damage will total into thousands of dollars.

CAUCUS CALLS TOWN OF KEWASKUM

Notice is hereby given to the qualified electors of the town of Kewaskum, Washington county, Wis., that a caucus for the purpose of nominating candidates for the various offices of said town of Kewaskum will be held at the Town Hall, Kewaskum Village, on Saturday, March 16, 1929, and that the polls of said caucus will be open from 1 to 4 p. m., on said day. Nominations will be made by ballot furnished by the undersigned caucus committee. Every candidate for nomination is requested to make a written application to the undersigned committee to have his name placed on the ballot not later than Wednesday, March 13, at 12 noon, 1929. Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $1.50, which amount will be used in defraying expenses for ballots and conducting the caucus.

ASHFORD MAN HAS OLD COIN

A two century old silver coin that is almost knife-edge thin is in the possession of John Erickson of Ashford. The inscriptions and figures on both sides have become worn to almost illegibility but the date of 1729 remains the clearest detail of the silver piece. The coin is a Danish four shilling and is worth about 50 cents in American money. In size it is a little larger than our five cent piece but is thinner than our dime. The reverse side of the coin bears the blurred outline of an image while the reverse side pictures a dimly coat of arms. Mr. Erickson has this coin for many years and this year 1929 it became 200 years old.

POLICEMEN MAKE UP, BUT OMIT THE KISS

The second chapter in the rather thrilling annals of a misunderstanding between the two policemen of this city, closed Tuesday evening at the City Hall, when the city fathers at the regular session of the city council, put the two officers on probation to keep the peace between themselves as well as that of the public until May first. In the interim between the first and the second chapter, the good citizens of Hartford indulged their humor and their wit at the thought of the engagement between two officers who are noted for doing well at keeping the general peace of our city, but who strayed so conspicuously from the paths of peace between themselves. However, on Tuesday evening of this week, a week from the night when the bout took place, the city fathers, feeling that the two men had cooled off sufficiently to resume ordinary relations of chief and assistant, restored to the corps, the junior member who had been temporarily suspended, and placed both under probation until May first when the new council which comes into power at that time, shall have jurisdiction over the affair.—Hartford Times.

THERESA MAN KILLED BY TRAIN

Henry Fellenz, aged 54 years, former merchant at Theresa, but now secretary and manager of the Theresa Canning company, was instantly killed at about 9 o'clock last week Friday morning, when his Chevrolet coupe was struck by a southbound Soo Line meat train at the Theresa station crossing. Mr. Fellenz' arms and legs were fractured in several places and his skull was crushed. His coupe was completely wrecked. The accident happened when Mr. Fellenz was on his way to the station to sign bills of lading for a shipment of canned goods which was to be sent out by the company that day. The train which was traveling at a high rate of speed hit the car in front of the Theresa depot and hurled it against a concrete mail crane. Mr. Fellenz' body was found in the wreckage. The remains of the unfortunate man were taken to the family home at Theresa from where the funeral was held on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock with services in the Catholic church there. Rev. Groff officiated. Burial was made in the parish cemetery.

Mr. Fellenz was born in the town of Scott, Sheboygan county, and married Miss Gertrude Berres at St. Michaels in August 1901. He was a resident of West Bend several years and for a time was employed in the Merten & Grau store. He is survived by his widow, two daughters, Marcella (Mrs. Melvin Venne) of Milwaukee and Pearl who teaches school at Mayville. Two brothers, Peter on the homestead in Scott, John of Cleveland, and two sisters, Mrs. Emil Wilke of Beechwood and Mrs. Rich. Gusse of Sheboygan.

TRY TO SOLVE CHICKEN THEFTS

County authorities of Fond du Lac county are seeking the identity of the person or persons responsible for a series of chicken thefts in the farm vicinity south of Waucousta. John Ebert, farmer residing on Highway 55 one and a half miles south of Waucousta, reported to Sheriff Vande Zande last Friday night that his chicken coop had been raided Wednesday night of last week for the third time since Dec. 15. At that time the sheriff was told the coop was entered and 30 out of 60 chickens stolen. About a week later, Mr. Ebert reported his coop was again entered and seven chickens were stolen. Wednesday night's raid left him but seven as, 16 more were carried away.

HUMAN TORCHES

Nero fiddled while Rome burned. He enjoyed seeing human torches. Civilization has progressed since. Only criminals now want to see human torches. Some serious thought should be given to the human torches of today. Carelessness and dangerous practices have taken Nero's place in causing human torches.

A limited newspaper clipping service brings to us the shocking news of 73 deaths through fire in Wisconsin in 1928. Burning to death is not pleasant to contemplate and only few suicides choose that course, but too many thoughtless, careless people do. Most of the fire victims are women and children and most of these casualties occur in homes.

Using kerosene to start or quicken fires caused 15 deaths and 14 serious injuries. Some of these victims were children, left alone in the home, using kerosene on fires, a practice learned from older people. Why teach such death-dealing practices?

Using naphtha or gasoline for cleaning purposes indoors caused 3 deaths and 14 serious injuries. Other carelessness in using gasoline caused a death and 25 injuries. Oil stove and lamp explosions 6 deaths and 19 injuries, other oil and gas explosions 4 deaths and 14 injuries.

Clothes catching fire from stove or bonfires caused 8 deaths and five injuries, smoking in bed 1 death and 2 injuries.

Children playing with matches claimed 5 victims, playing with a cigar lighter one. Five injuries are charged to these two causes.

Fireworks had a destructive, patriotic (?) Fourth, causing 5 deaths and 34 injuries.

Twenty persons died in various building fires, overcome in their sleep or otherwise unable to make a safe exit, while 18 were injured in such fires.

Offering seven million dollars worth of property to the fire god is bad enough, but seventy-three human lives sacrificed on the fire altar, the altar of human carelessness, is infinitely worse.

A thoughtful citizenry of our fair state whose motto is "FORWARD" must have sufficient wisdom and determination to stop such human sacrifices and needless waste of property. All must help.

But Carlos Deane could not see. It was his last evening alone with her and after the meal they rode across the hills through the moonlight...

"I can't tell you now," she said as they rode back to the corral. "Not now. It would take something out of me—the vital part—if I had to leave the old Three Bar in the shape it's in today..."

The next day her stand was unaltered and in the evening, when the whole Three Bar personnel swung to their saddles and headed for the frolic at Brill's Deane had been unable to gain her promise.

There were but few horses at the hitch rails when they reached the post. As the Three Bar girl entered at the head of her men she saw Bentley and Carpenter leaning against the bar, well toward the rear of the room.

Within the last week she had heard that Carp, after being let off by Harris, had started up a brand of his own down in Slade's range...

"Likely the same old move," he said. "Like I told you, there's no way to check Slade up on the number of our rebrands. If Carp gets caught it's his own hard luck."

A dozen men from the Halfmoon D swarmed in the door. Mrs. McVey, the owner's wife, stationed herself in one corner with the Three Bar girl while the men gravitated to the bar.

Harris' men came in, the albino standing half a head taller than any other on the floor, and they mingled with the rest as if their records were the most immaculate of the lot.

Barri Epperson, a trapper from far back in the hills, had brought his family to the frolic. Mrs. Epperson was a tiny meek woman who had but little to say. Her two daughters, in their late teens, had glossy black hair, high cheek bones and faint olive tinge of skin which betrayed a trace of Indian ancestry.

Lufe Brandoul came at the head of his tribe. Two of his sons were married and living at the home ranch. They came to the dance with the rest of the family. Lou Brandoul's wife, Dolly, was a former dance-hall girl of Coldriver, and Al Brandoul's better half, Belle, was the daughter of a Utah cowman.

An extra stageload rolled in from Coldriver and four couples joined the throng.

"Ex-school teachers," Harris informed. "They marry them so fast that it's hard to keep one on the job instructing the rising generation in the Coldriver school."

Deane shrank from the thought of the Three Bar girl in such a mixture. Some way she seemed many shades finer than the rest.

"It couldn't be otherwise," Harris said when Deane expressed this thought. "She was raised at the knee of one of the finest women in the world. I remember her mother myself—a little; and I've heard my own mother sing the praises of Elizabeth Warren a thousand times."

The albino interrupted them. "Cal—how come?" he greeted. The three men conversed in the most casual, friendly fashion as if there had never been a hint of friction between Harris and Harper in the past.

A great voice rose above the buzz of conversation, filling the big room to the very rafters.

"Choose your partners for the dance!" Waddles bellowed from the makeshift platform at one end of the room. "Go get your g-a-a-als!"

Deane moved across to the Three Bar girl. There was a general rush for the side opposite the bar where the ladies had gathered. Couples squared off for the Virginia reel, the shortage of ladies rectified by a handkerchief tied on the arm of many a chap-clad youth to signify that he was, for the moment, a girl. Waddles picked his guitar; two fiddles broke into "Turkey in the Straw," and the dance was on with Waddles calling the tunes.

All through the room they shuffled and bowed, whirled partners, locked elbows and swung, the shriek of fiddles and scrape of feet punctuated the caller's boom.

was spoiled for Deane by the sickening realization that the Three Bar girl was part of it, rubbing elbows with the nondescript throng. He looked again at Harper, the rustier chief; at Slade, with his peculiar turklike face, Slade the cattle king—the killer. Willie Warren stood between the two Epperson girls whose faces betrayed the taint of Indian blood, an arm about the shoulders of each of them. The sheriff who had said that men must humor womenfolks was leaning against the bar. Deane turned to Harris but found him looking across the room. He turned his own eyes that way and glimpsed a dark man with an overlong, thin face and a set back of hair. Morrow had just come in.

Five minutes later Harris stepped out the back door and Deane followed him. At the sound of a footfall behind him Harris whirled on his heel and when he confronted Deane the dim light from the door glistened on something in his hand.

"Sho," Harris deprecated. "I'm getting spooky. I thought it was some one else." He slipped the gun back in its holster. "There's one or two that would like right well to run across as from behind."

"I followed you out to tell you you was decent of you to insist that I stay over a few days," Deane said. "It was a white thing to do, considering that we both want the same thing."

"We both want her to have what's best for her," Harris said. "And I don't know as she could do any better than to take up with you."

"It may sound rather trite—coming after that," Deane said. "But anyway, I'll have to say that I feel the same way about you."

"Then, if we're both right in our estimates, why she can't go over fur wrong, either way she turns," Harris said. "So I reckon we're both content."

Harris moved on and motioned Deane to accompany him.

"I thought I glimpsed a man I knew a few minutes back," Harris said. "I'd like right well to have a talk with him."

"They wandered completely round the post and looked in the shadows of the outbuildings but could find no trace of life."

"Likely I was mistaken," Harris said at last. "I saw a face just outside the door. He was more or less on my mind—the party I thought it was. Some one else I expect, and he's gone inside."

"They returned to the hall. Morrow stood with two Halfmoon D men at the end of the bar. Harris motioned him aside and Morrow withdrew from the others."

"This is pretty far north for you, Morrow," Harris suggested.

"Is there any one restricting my range?" Morrow demanded. "If there is I'd like to know."

"Then I'll tell you," Harris answered. "The road is open—as long as you keep on the road. Any time you stray off the beaten trail you're on the Three Bar range. I don't figure Normandy Justice Ernest Dowson, poet of tragic memory, when living at a Normandy village, got into a fight with a local baker and was arrested. A deputation of villagers went to the magistrate and pointed out to Mr. Dowson was one of the most illustrious English poets.

to get gunned up from the brush more than once by the same man. Every Three Bar boy has orders to shoot you down on sight any time you leave in view anywhere within twenty miles of the Three Bar; so I wouldn't stray off the main-traveled road any time you're going through."

Lanky Evans had detached himself from a group and Morrow locked up to find the tall man standing at his shoulder.

"So you hunt in pairs," Morrow remarked.

"And later in packs," Lanky returned. "Why don't you ever come up and visit us? Every time I'm riding north I keep looking back, expecting to see you come cantering on the south."

"What's the object of all this conversation?" Morrow flared. "If you've got anything to say to me, why, get it over with."

"Nothing special," Evans said. "I just thought maybe I could goad you into being imprudent enough to come up our way—which I'm sure hoping to observe you north of the line and somewhere within a thousand yards."

Evans turned away and Morrow rejoined the two men he had left at the bar. Deane looked about him. Apparently no one had noticed the little by-play.

"Evans didn't exactly mean quite all of that," Harris explained. Of course if Morrow does come up our way Lanky would prefer to see him first—but he would rather he'd keep away. He staged that little talk as a safeguard for me. If Morrow acquires the idea that several folks are anxious to see him, up there, he's apt to be real cautious how he prowls 'round the Three Bar neighborhood looking for me."

Deane crossed over to Billie. The music started but she shook her head as he tried to lead her to the floor.

"Sit down. I want to talk with you. Long time no see 'um after tonight," she said. "It'll be daylight soon and I've a long tale to tell."

As the others danced she gave him a dozen messages to impart to various friends.

"Tell Judge Colton that Three Bar stock is rising," she said. "And that as soon as things are all smoothed out, he can expect me for a boarder."

Through an opening in the dancing throng Deane suddenly had a clear view of the open rear door—one brief glimpse before the crowd closed once more and shut off his view. He had an idea that he had seen a face, bony and indistinct, a few feet outside the door. He wondered if it could be the friend for whom Harris had searched.

"Make the visit soon, Billie," he urged. "It's been a long month since we've had you with us. We thought maybe you'd deserted us back there. How soon will this visit start—and how long will it last?"

"It will start as soon as the Three Bar doesn't need me," she said. "And last a long time."

Again a lane opened through the crowd, affording a view of the door. Deane saw the face outside in the night, and a foot or more below it some bright object glistened in the dim light which filtered through. The music ceased and the chant of the roulette couple began, mingling with the smooth purr of the ivory ball.

There came a sudden hush from the vicinity of the rear door, a hush that spread rapidly throughout the room, so swift were the perceptions of a frontier gathering.

Old Rile Foster stood just inside, his gun half-raised before him. Canfield and Lang stood together in the center of the floor, apart from the rest and with no others in line beyond them. Rile tossed a boot heel on to the floor and as it rolled toward the two men he shot Canfield through the chest. Lang's gun crashed almost under him and he pitched face down on the floor, his arms sprawled out before him.

The surge of the crowd pressing back out of line, threw the albino on the edge of it, his big form towering alone.

The old man raised his head from the floor and crooked his wrist with the last of his ebbing strength.

"Four for Bangs," he said, and shot Harper between the eyes.

A Few Little Smiles

SOUNDS FISHY

The undergraduate sardines were out for their afternoon swim downtown.

"What ever happened to Tommy Blight?" asked a prominent student in the sardine school.

"I thought you knew," answered his companion. "He couldn't seem to make the grade. He was always swimming about 5 to 10 feet in the rear. He wasn't alert or intelligent. So the usual happened."

"You mean—?"

"Yep. He got canned!"

PLAYING MOUTH-ORGAN

She—Oh, you kiss so wonderfully you must be used to doing it.

He—Oh, I've only been used to playing the mouth-organ, that's all.

Cuties The dramas we cannot enjoy. With lines of ill-repute. Remind us of some naughty boy Who thinks that he is cute.

Obligation Admitted "Are you willing to admit that you are dependent on your wife in your public career?"

"Perfectly willing," answered Senator Sorghum. "I have no ear for music and I am compelled to depend on Mariah to nudge me so that I will be among the first to stand up when the band plays 'The Star Spangled Banner.'"—Washington Star.

Modernist "He'll always get up and let a woman have his seat—" he began.

"Oh, how delightful to hear of an old-fashioned gallant like that!" she butted in.

"If he has reached the place where he wants to get off," he flustered.

Out of Luck Barnum—Tod had about that lion-tamer, isn't it?

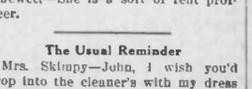

Bailey—How's that?

Barnum—He's so swelled up over his press notices that he can't get his head in the lion's mouth.

She Wouldn't Know Calabash—My wife doesn't understand me. Does yours?

Succotash—I don't know. I've never heard her even mention your name.

A LOSING PROPOSITION

Big Tailor—Great Scott, old man, can't make a pair of trousers with six legs for the regular price.

Refrigerated Bloom Still beauty finds protecting care. As frosty days unfold, A snowflake like a flower fair Preserved by winter cold.

Hard on the Ego Blinks—I hate to have people turn on the radio when I drop in.

Jinks—Why so?

Blinks—It always makes me feel they would rather listen to a racket than listen to me talk.

Seems to Be Hewitt—My wife makes me pay her for every time she sews up a hole in my clothes.

Jewett—She is a sort of rent protector.

The Usual Reminder Mrs. Skippy—John, I wish you'd drop into the cleaner's with my dress on your way to the office.

Husband—All right, my dear. Just let it round my finger and then I'll be sure to remember.

Getting Even Mr. Dipp—Mabel, are you inviting the Browns to dinner tonight?

Mrs. Dipp—Indeed we are. I won't be satisfied until I get even for the last one they gave us.

Nothing Doing "Jack wanted to know if I believed in elements."

"That was rather a leading question. What did you say?"

"I told him I wouldn't even let my imagination run away with me."

Then He'll Regret "I suppose you know that Bob has eloped with George's wife?"

"But I thought he was George's beat pal?"

"So he is, but he doesn't know it yet."

With the Wisconsin Legislature

Madison—Creation of state board of education composed of 10 elective members was proposed in a bill which the assembly committee on education introduced in the Wisconsin legislature.

The bill would abolish the present boards of university regents, normal school regents and other state educational bodies appointed by the governor and re-create them under appointments by the state board of education.

Under this bill the state superintendent of public instruction would serve as chairman ex officio of the board which would be charged with the duty of co-ordinating all educational activities of the state. Members would receive $20 per day for time devoted to their office with a maximum of 60 days' pay.

The Michigan boxing bill was reconsidered in the senate and the amendment providing that the state athletic commission designate matches in which decisions were to be awarded was removed. The bill was then engrossed in its original form, providing for a referee's decision in every fight.

The upper house engrossed the Fellenz bill disqualifying from further connection with the banking commission any banking commissioner, deputy examiner or employee of the state banking department who accepts a loan or gratuity from any bank examined by him, or from any of its officers or employees.

The senate passed the Schuman bill reducing from 60 to 50 per cent the number of cattle owners' signatures in a taxing district required for a tuberculosis test.

Gov. Kohler's appointment of Edward L. Kelley, Manitowish, to the state tax commission was confirmed by the senate by a vote of 24 to 6. The opposition came from four progressives and two socialists.

Passage of the bill by Senator John C. Schuman, Watertown, relating to the definition of milk, was voted by the state senate. The Schuman bill is intended to make more stringent provisions relating to milk sanitation.

A referendum on prohibition in Wisconsin April 2 is assured. The Duncan resolution became a legislative mandate, instructing the secretary of state to submit to the voters of Wisconsin two questions:

1. Shall the state prohibition enforcement act generally known as the Sevenson act be repealed?
2. Shall the state prohibition enforcement act generally known as the Sevenson act be amended so that the state shall not arrest or fine anyone for the manufacture, sale or possession of beer of not more than 275 percent alcohol by weight?

Returned to the senate from the assembly after final concurrence there, the resolution was immediately prepared for presentation to Theodore Danann, secretary of state, and reached his desk almost 24 hours before the deadline for placing it on the April ballot.

The Wisconsin legislature went on record as asking congress to provide for earlier seating of United States senators and representatives-elect, eliminating "lame duck" sessions. The assembly by a vote of 75 to 16 concurred with the senate in adoption of a resolution by Senator Thomas M. Duncan, Milwaukee socialist, expressing this attitude.

The legislature has instructed the secretary of state to report twice a week to the senate and assembly the names of persons registered in his office as legislative counsel or agent. Such persons are usually referred to as "lobbyists."

Commemoration throughout the state of the 150th anniversary of the death of Brig. Gen. Pulaski on Oct. 11, 1929, was provided for when the assembly concurred with the senate in unanimous action for the establishment of the Wisconsin Pulaski sesquicentennial commission.

Pierce and St. Croix counties would be closed to deer hunting, physicians holding federal permits to dispense liquor would not require state permits for the same purpose, children would be relieved from supervised physical exercises in small rural schools, and greater penalties would be applied for assaulting conservation wardens under bills passed by the senate.

Sen. Howard Teasdale's bill to confiscate automobiles used for immoral purposes was indefinitely postponed by the senate.

Badger State Briefs

Janesville—"Farmers should buy their seed at once," says H. T. Glasscock, Rock county agent. This is particularly true with red clover and alfalfa, for production seed is both scarce and high, he says.

Berlin—A celebration of the founding of the First Baptist church here 80 years ago is to be held by the congregation Apr. 7.

Ashland—Clubbing wolves after chasing them on ski for several miles through deep snow is a new method of collecting heavy bounties, say sportsmen who have killed a large number of the animals in this way. Each animal nets a $30 bounty.

Monroe—Feeding frozen silage to fresh or freshening cows is causing the loss of many calves in Green county, according to E. L. Dwan, county club agent. Frozen silage causes scouring.

Portage—A military funeral was held here for Frederick Mallisch, 87, the last member of Rousseau post 4, G. A. R., who died following a stroke.

Eau Claire—A public reception was held here March 8 for Mrs. Lydia A. Bortle, Eau Claire's oldest resident, on her one hundred first birthday anniversary.

Berlin—Papers are being circulated in Dalton, a part of the town of Kingston, Green Lake county, to incorporate and organize a village government.

Galesville—Thieves entered the farm home of Hanson brothers and stole $965 in cash. The money had been paid on a loan that day and too late to be banked.

Ladysmith—This year's Rusk county fair dates, Sep. 13 to 16, will include a Sunday, an innovation for the local exposition. Children under 12 will be admitted free.

Oshkosh—The 1929 state convention of Elks will be held at Appleton in August, it was decided at the midwinter conference of the state officers, exalted rulers and secretaries here.

Lacrosse—After forty-six years as mother general of St. Rose convent of the Franciscan Community of Sisters, Mother M. Ludovica died here from flu and pneumonia. She was 89 years old.

Fond du Lac—The Wisconsin Industrial Home for Women at Taycheedah has laid claim to the largest baby boy in the state. "Chief"—so named because of his Indian blood—is one year old, weighs 42 pounds, is a yard high and has all his first teeth.

Barren—A check for $933.01 was delivered to J. Q. Werts & Son by the Barren Co-operative Creamery Co. as their receipts for cream delivered during January. This was the biggest check ever issued to any of its patrons for a single month's delivery.

Appleton—Twenty-six carloads of stock were shipped from Appleton in 1928 by members of the Appleton Livestock Shipping association, according to the annual report of Edward O. Mueller, secretary. Receipts for 1927 were $34,465, as compared with $32,000.28 for last year.

Darlington—Lafayette county has joined the ranks of those trying to eliminate tuberculosis among cattle. The signatures of 62 per cent of cattle owners of the county have been secured. Of the 71 counties in Wisconsin only three have not yet obtained the necessary 60 per cent.

Janesville—The honor of being Wisconsin's champion corn raiser goes to Oliver Norby, 15, Beloit, a member of the Rural Advancement Four-H club. His 10 ears of golden glow corn at the annual grain show of the Wisconsin Experimental association won first place in the boys' class and the sweepstakes cup for the best corn in all classes.

Wausau—Heavy crops and large acreage are given as causes by Marathon county potato growers and buyers for the slump in the price which has varied from 30 to 57 cents a hundred weight this winter. Farmers who have stored potatoes in their own or co-operative warehouses now find themselves up against a low market where they expected to find the market at a top price.

Laredo, Texas.—Eleven federal pilots arrived here from Mexico City, to accept delivery of nine military airplanes, which were sold to the Mexican government by American manufacturers.

U. S. INFANTRY MAY BE SENT TO BORDER

Troops Under Arms, Ready to Move to Mexican Line.

Cheyenne, Wyo.—Ready to entrain on a moment's notice, presumably for the Mexican border, 2,000 infantrymen were encamped at Fort D. A. Russell, without official information as to their destination, or as to when they would move.

There had been no denial that preparations for an immediate trip to the border had been completed. However, all other reports pertaining to the probability of service in connection with the Mexican revolution were termed "mere rumors."

From more official sources came the opinion that the preparations constituted a precautionary step and that the 2,000 men would not be called unless the situation at the border became more serious.

Mexico City.—Among members of the general staff here the impression prevails that large actions are not due for some time, since the advance of both the rebels and federalists depends upon the state of the railroads left wrecked. It is impossible, even with modern automobiles, to operate without, or at least far from, railway lines, since even water must be shipped to the troops.

All the troops under the rebel General Urbalejo, with the exception of twenty men, deserted to the federalists. The men had been duped into thinking themselves fighting for the government, and they promptly turned on their leader when they found he was a rebel.

Junere, Chihuahua.—A message made public at military headquarters here from General Escobar, the rebel candidate for President, charged that General Matias Ramos, federal commander who was driven from Juarez, sought to draw the ire of the United States against the rebels by taking up a position so that revolutionary fire would fall into El Paso during the attack on the city. General Ramos and his command of approximately 300 men were interned a few days ago at Fort Bliss, across the border.

Rebel leaders announced that 10,000 revolutionary soldiers would join the concentration movement at Torreon, from where an attack will be delivered against the federal army headed by General Calles in an offensive aimed to end at Mexico City.

Federal and rebel forces are expected to clash within a few days at San Luis Potosi. If this engagement occurs it probably will take shape as the first important fight of the rebellion. Revolutionary leaders said that if the rebels were successful at San Luis Potosi, they would try to press the federal back toward the capital.

Washington.—American mining engineers, their wives and children were ordered to evacuate Mazata, El Favor and Cinco Minas in the state of Jalisco, as Mexican rebel and federal forces were preparing for battle in the vicinity.

When firing was heard the Americans left their homes and sought refuge with the American consulate at Guadalajara.

U. S. EXPENSES SET PEACE TIME RECORD

Flood Control and Buildings Blamed for Increase.

Washington.—Expenditures of $4,363,554,342, authorized for the maintenance of the government by the session of the Seventieth congress recently closed were reputed to have set a new high level for expenses in peace time. The appropriations for 1930, however, include many extraordinary amounts such as flood control, $75,000,000 for tax refunds, $37,000,000 more for the two-year public buildings program all over the country, and others.

Except for normal increases because of governmental expansion, it was stated by officials, the expenses are keeping on an even scale.

Funds for next year are about $35,000,000 more than the appropriations for the current fiscal year of 1928-1929. Thus, with the extra money furnished for federal projects, this sum makes the increase comparatively small. This increase, it was pointed out, would have been considerably less if the bureau of the budget figures had been adhered to.

For the first time since the Coolidge administration took office, the appropriations of congress exceeded the bureau's allowances by about $6,500,000. This was done in the face of repeated warnings from the White House and from Dr. Herbert M. Lord of the budget.

On the basis of the treasury figures, however, house and senate leaders hope that a deficit will be escaped. There are scores of private bills, however, which appropriate money not figured by the committee on appropriations of the house. If there should be a difference between appropriations and the revenue, it will probably result from the gain in routine appropriations.

Including funds for flood control in the Mississippi valley and for other non-military activities, the appropriation for the War department amounted to $435,089,362, an increase of about $55,000,000 over last year. For the Navy department, the appropriation for 1930 runs to $309,236,697, a reduction of some $2,000,000. This is aside from $12,000,000 for the beginning of construction on the 15-cruiser program. A sharp increase was that for the Post Office department, which jumped from $764,000,000 to $841,905,220.

In contrast, the appropriations this year are those of the war-time congresses. In 1918, approximately $19,000,000,000 was spent by the government, and for 1919, the peak of all times, the appropriations went beyond $27,000,000,000 for the year.

TO START FARM AID SESSION APRIL 15

Tariff Revision and Other Matters Scheduled.

Indianapolis.—Senator James E. Watson of Indiana stated that the special session of congress which starts April 15 will last until September 1, and that it will be productive of constructive measures for agricultural relief. Tariff revision will move along with farm relief. Manufacturers and business men are already preparing for hearings.

"It is recognized that there must be a tariff revision on commodities pertaining to agriculture," said Senator Watson. "The house began hearings January 10 and has heard 1,100 witnesses, and by April 20 a bill is expected to be ready for introduction. Congress will try to work in conformity with the President's wish for a 'limited revision,' but this is a difficult task. Most members are hoping for the best and expecting the worst. When the bill gets to the senate side there will be the usual hearings."

Washington.—President Hoover issued his first proclamation calling into extraordinary session at twelve o'clock noon on April 15 the Seventy-first congress for action on farm relief, limited tariff revision and such other urgent business as the Chief Executive may place before it.

The proclamation by its phraseology calls for "further agricultural relief and legislation for limited changes in the tariff," but does not restrict the session to those two subjects since the early part of the preamble states that public interest requires a special session to receive such communication as the President may submit to it.

"The text of the proclamation is as follows: 'By the President of the United States of America, a proclamation: 'Whereas, public interests require that the congress of the United States should be convened in an extra session at twelve o'clock noon on the 15th day of April, 1929, to receive such communication as may be made by the Executive:

"And, whereas, legislation to effect further agricultural relief and legislation for limited changes of the tariff cannot in justice to our farmers, our labor and our manufacturers be postponed;

"Now, therefore, I, Herbert Hoover, President of the United States of America, do hereby proclaim and declare that an extraordinary session requires the congress of the United States to convene in extra session at the Capitol in the City of Washington on the 15th day of April, 1929, at twelve o'clock noon, of which all persons who shall at that time be entitled to act as members thereof are hereby required to take notice.

"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused to be affixed the great seal of the United States.

"Done at the City of Washington this seventh day of March, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine, and of the United States the one hundred and fifty-third.

"Herbert Hoover, 'By the President: 'Frank B. Kellogg, 'Secretary of State."

The Republican majority in the house will be increased in the special and regular sessions of the Seventy-first congress to probably 102. One seat is vacant and another is in doubt, although both may be filled with Democrats. The membership is divided between 267 Republicans and 165 Democrats, with one Farmer-Labor member. Republican leaders have determined to use their great majority to support President Hoover's policies. They also will increase the Republican membership on committees, particularly the important ones, to a majority of 2 to 1, giving those committees with 21 members 14 Republicans and seven Democrats. A Democratic vacancy on the agriculture committee has been filled by the appointment of Representative Elbert S. Brigham, Republican, Vermont.

President Hoover the past week received the pledges of leading Democratic members of the senate committee on foreign relations to the effect that they would support any action he may take to make America a member of the World court.

English-Type Frame House Has Many Attractions for the Home Builder

Essentially English in architectural style is this home which contains seven rooms and bath. The design of the home is such that each room is individual. Upstairs there are three bedrooms and a sewing room. The dimensions are 24 feet by 24 feet.

By W. A. RADFORD
Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to practical home building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

While most English homes are constructed of brick, American architects have taken the same graceful lines and have applied to them different materials so that the prospective home builder has a wide choice. The home shown in the illustration is of the English type but shows the American influence. The house is of frame construction but has an outside fireplace chimney which is very unusual. The ornament near the gable is typical of English fireplace construction.

The dimensions of the house are 24 by 24 feet which makes it ideal for the small lot. The entrance door at the side opens directly into the large living room 11 feet by 23 feet long. Connected with it by a wide opening is a dining room 10 by 14.6 inches and back of that is the kitchen 8 by 11 feet 6 inches with a breakfast nook. The partially enclosed porch which extends across one end of the house is reached through a dining room. This arrangement is private but if it is desired a simple matter to add steps to the end near the garage. An open stairway runs out from the end of the living room to the second floor where there are four rooms and bath, each bedroom being a separate room which permits plenty of light and ventilation. One of the rooms is designated as a sewing room 11.8 feet by 8 feet, a size sufficient to accommodate bedroom furniture.

There are many good features to this house. It being unusually attractive from the exterior, the entrance door is unusual while the broken lines add to its attractiveness. It will be noted in the illustration that this is a single car garage of the architectural design as the house itself which completes the modern building group.

color close to the shade of the ground of the walls, if it is dark, so that the change from white ceiling will not be so marked. In small rooms most people find necessary to select very patterned wallpaper. This is not always wise. Small patterns with almost no background shut in a little room, making it seem even smaller than it is. A colorless pattern in light clear colors will do much to make a room seem larger. Small spaces will project in the drawing are an excellent selection.

Freedom, Not Economy. Spur to Home Owning
What are the principal underlying reasons for the widespread efforts to attain home ownership? Material advantages take precedence over sentimental gains, according to the results of a questionnaire sent out by one of the national building and loan associations and reported in the February American Home. It is the desire to be free from the dictates of a landlord, and the desire to provide greater safety and comfort for children, that impel most people to save money for permanent homes.

In addition to personal privacy and freedom and bettered conditions for the children, the responses of a sense of achievement in gaining a definite and recognized standing of pride of ownership, and the satisfaction of attaining it, high on the list.

Well-Chosen Wall Paper Corrects Room Faults
Wallpaper is valuable from a structural standpoint as well as from a decorative one, for its color and design, properly used, can do a great deal to remedy structural faults, says the February American Home Magazine. Rooms may be made to seem higher, more spacious and brighter than they actually are if the right paper is used on their walls.

When additional height is desired in low rooms wallpaper with stripes of rising lines in the pattern should be used. The paper should run directly to the ceiling line and the ceiling should be papered with a plain

White Ants Endanger Timbers of Home
Complete insulation from the ground of all untreated woodwork of a building is the only effective preventive or remedy against attack by subterranean termites or "white ants," which are present in many areas of the United States and have been noted in Washington, according to Dr. T. E. Snyder of the Department of Agriculture, who has studied the pest.

Doctor Snyder, a specialist in forest entomology, points out that the small householder with a modest home of frame construction is the one most likely to suffer through termite attack and at the same time is the one who will be most oppressed if serious injury follows the termite attack.

There is also a group of termites that fly and attack the wood directly. And for these thorough fumigation is required if damage is to be checked. In new buildings it is well to insure against termite damage by impregnating all foundation timber with a caustic crocote and other woodwork with zinc chloride, or some other equivalent preservative now on the market.

Insulation and impregnation of timbers will cost a few hundred dollars additional in the construction of a building, but Doctor Snyder believes this should be considered in the light of insurance.

Trim Reflects Skill
Trim around door and window openings has always reflected the skill of the designer and the pocketbook of the owner. Thus the colonial mansions which have been preserved to show a charming richness of detail, which goes far to create the lasting impression these houses give to the visitor.

Color Cement Driveway
By coloring the cement of a driveway is made, using color pigments and perhaps other resins, color can be harmonized with green of grass and color of house, this utility is more attractive. Coloring need not be greatly to cost, for with permanent mineral pigments a little coloring material goes a long way.

FINE WOOLENS FOR FINE FROCKS; PIPINGS ENLIVEN STRAW HATS

A Fetching Two-Piece Frock.

"A yard wide" is still the slogan for the super-fine wooleens of which many of milady's choicest frocks are now styled, but, technically speaking, it is no longer correct. Perhaps all wool and weighing five ounces or less to the yard more accurately describes many of the very modern woollen weaves, for some of the newer wooleens are quite that exquisitely sheer and lightsome.

As a matter of fact, wooleens as now are vary from twenty-seven to fifty-four inches in width. Challis and flannels, for instance, are frequently but twenty-seven inches wide, while avouline, a material very much like challis, measures fifty-four inches in width.

Now that Paris is sponsoring wool frocks so enthusiastically and American woollen weavers are putting a style value on their products to the extent that they are planning to stage in the very near future a competitive display of their products in an exhibit which very appropriately is referred to as "Pageant of the Golden Fleece," we are waking up to the virtues of the woollen frock as well as to its prestige among fashion connoisseurs.

Verily little Bo-Peep's sheep would never recognize their lost coats in the wondrous fabrics man, the miracle worker, has fashioned from them. Priests are beguiling and as popular as they are in silks and cottons. The new wooleens with borders in a deep shade of the same color or in sharp contrast are also very beautiful. Metallic effects with the metal motifs woven into the cloth, the backs presenting a surface of gold or silver are something at which to marvel. Then there are candy stripes, two-tone stripes, and stripes almost invisible, also tweeds, jerseys, and still the list goes on and on ad infinitum.

The fetching two-piece frock of featherweight flannel in a sports model, shown in the picture, emphasizes the vogue for contrast of print and plain. The jumper is of beige flannel printed ness that the new wooleens are created from the standpoint of ensemble effects, making it easy to match plain with prints so far as basic color is concerned.

Welcome to the straw hat! It has arrived according to promise. This time there is no uncertainty, which cannot be said of seasons past when felts succeeded in holding the fort against the incoming of straws.

The new straw hats are everything they should be for early spring wear. Just tailored enough to please the most discriminating, just enough of the daintily feminine to appeal to those who seek the most flattering.

Straws have taken their cue from felts and are glorifying color all along the line. In fact they have borrowed the very selfsame smart shades which contribute so notably to the success of the felt hat. A smooth linenlike straw in chartreuse green is indeed winsome. No more so than a bright red bangkok or ballinuit, however. Straws are irresistible in the bright blues. The three leaders are easily distinguished in black, navy and natural.

Concerning straws in natural color, they promise to be the rage. With piquant pipings they are at their best. The softness of such straws as sisal, hakou, ballinuit, bangkok, and other exotic types makes it possible to treat them like fabric or felt. Wherefore the new straws are very much seamed and joined in sections and similar treatments, and for this reason they invite neat finishing such as pipings in contrast colorings afford.

In the brilliant program mapped out for straws this season the first ann-

However good you may be, you have faults; however dull you may be you can find out what some of them are, and however slight they may be you had better make some—not too painful, but patient efforts to get rid of them.—Ruskin.

SOME GOOD DISHES

Every day somebody is discovering some new way to use the delightful orange. Try pouring a half cupful of the juice over a chicken when it is roasting or even in the frying pan; it will add much to its flavor.

Kidney Stew.—For those who enjoy kidneys, this dish will appeal to the appetite. Cut one pound of kidneys in half and soak an hour in cold salted water. Trim and skin. Cut into small pieces place to a saucepan, cover with boiling water and bring to a boil, drain, dash on cold water. Roll in flour and brown in butter. Add salt, pepper, four medium-sized onions and four medium-sized potatoes, diced; cover with boiling water and cook until all are tender. When well done add one-fourth of a cupful of evaporated milk and a tablespoonful of lemon juice.

Date Muffins.—Take two cupfuls of flour, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of salt, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, one egg, one cupful of milk, two tablespoonfuls of melted fat, three-fourths of a cupful each of cornmeal and wheat flour. Mix and add one-half a package of sliced dates and bake in hot muffin pans.

Baked Apple Surprise.—Wash and core six apples. Mix one-fourth of a cupful each of chopped dates and nuts, one teaspoonful of cinnamon and one-fourth cupful of brown sugar. Stuff these mixture into the apples and place them in a baking pan, sprinkle with one-third of a cupful of brown sugar, add one cupful of water and cook, basting several times during the baking.

Pork Shoulder Steak.—Take two and one-half pounds of steak, brown in two tablespoonfuls of bacon fat or pork fat, season with salt, pepper and sage, after browning on both sides, using two tablespoonfuls of sage. Sprinkle with a stalk of chopped celery and two small onions, also chopped. Add one and one-half cupfuls of vegetable water, cover and cook one hour.

When one has a cold there is often an excess of acid in the system. That is the reason we use so much lemonade. However, orange juice is as good a remedy and much more enjoyable to take in quantities. Citrus fruits of any kind are advisable in all cases of acidity.

Seasonable Foods.
This is the time of the year when the buckwheat cake is abroad in the land. A well made and cooked buckwheat cake is hard to equal in the griddle cake family.

Old-Fashioned Buckwheat Cakes.—Prepare the batter a day or two before it is needed. Pro-cure good buckwheat flour. Add one cupful of water to a yeast cake and when well dissolved add enough buckwheat flour to make a thin batter. Let stand in a cool place until the next evening, then place in a warm place to rise. In the morning add a little warm water if the batter seems too thick, remove one cupful of the batter for the next day's cakes, and flour to make a rather thick batter and set away. To the remainder of the batter add salt, a little soda and water to make a thin batter. Fry on a hot griddle and serve with sausage or bacon. This batter will keep on rising for some time; occasionally add another yeast cake and cakes will always be ready for the griddle.

Raisin Whole Wheat Muffins.—Cream one tablespoonful of butter, add one tablespoonful of brown sugar, one beaten egg and one-half cupful of chopped raisins. Sift one and one-fourth cupfuls of whole wheat flour with one and one-fourth teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt. Mix the flour and other ingredients alternately with one cupful of milk. Bake in greased gem pans twenty to twenty-five minutes.

Cream or Milk Toast.—The toast should be freshly made; dip the edges of the crust into hot water, lay on a hot platter and cover with the following: Three tablespoonfuls of butter melted and blended with three tablespoonfuls of flour; add one pint of milk and salt to season. Cook until thick and pour over the softened and well-buttered toast. Serve piping hot. If a more nourishing dish is desired add a half cupful of grated cheese to the hot sauce; when melted pour over the toast.

Grapefruit Cardinal.—Peel one grapefruit and discard all membrane, separate into sections and cut sections into halves, strain over them one cupful of strawberry juice and three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. Place in the refrigerator to partly freeze. Serve in cocktail glasses with a slice of olive for garnish.

Indians' Last Stand.
In 1865 the Indians made their last stand at Tlideswater, now Fort Washington. In that year Col. John Washington, with a force of 1,500 Maryland and Virginia militia, met and defeated a horde of about 2,500 Indians. The defeat was so decisive that the Indians left this section of the country.

Open Office Buying.
The officers of the corporation of London in early times purchased their appointments by auction, the office going to the highest bidder.

When your Children Cry for It

Baby has little upsets at times. All your care cannot prevent them. But you can be prepared. Then you can do what any experienced nurse would do—what most physicians would tell you to do—give a few drops of plain Castoria. No sooner done than Baby is soothed; relief is just a matter of moments. Yet you have eased your child without use of a single doubtful drug; Castoria is vegetable. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has a little pain you cannot pat away. And it's always ready for the crueler pangs of colic, or constipation or diarrhea; effective, too, for older children. Twenty-five million bottles were bought last year.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helps Her So Much

Pittsburgh, Pa.—"I was just completely run-down. I had tired, heavy, sluggish feelings and I could not eat. I was losing in weight. I read so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what a good medicine it is, that I started taking it. I have taken eight bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what a good medicine it is, that I started taking it. I have taken eight bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

and about the same in tablet form. This is one medicine a woman should have in the house all the time. I am improving every day and I sure am able to eat. I am willing to answer any letters I get asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. ELLA RICHARDS, 21 Chautauque St. N. S., Pittsburgh, Pa.

old store is stale." Second Ditto—"They've a fresh clerk there."

Not a Practical Politician
Howell—Did you vote election day?
Powell—No, I was too busy figuring up one of those straw votes I took the day before.

A "Cat" Story
Ethel—Jack says I grow prettier every day.
Methy!—What a fright you must have been at the start.

The Question
Proud Parent—How do I know that you are not marrying my daughter for my money?
Bold Suitor—We are both taking a risk. How do I know you won't fall in a year or so?

"The children need something new every week. You have no children, hence you cannot understand."
"I understand, old chap; I have an automobile."

The Jagged Tear
Nothing will darn the nasty tear in the good dress like ravelings from material. If you have patches from in a design repeating the bright navy of the skirt. Diagonal bands of the navy pose across the front of the blouse, also belting, cuffing and collaring it.

Early showings include fetching cape ensembles which interwork sheer printed wooleens and solid-tone woollen georgette. Those appearing for early spring favor tiny repeat patterns which remind one of the popular cravat silks.

In the developing of these arresting costumes, much attention is paid to color harmony. While the print may involve any number of colors, its background accurately matches the solid tone with which it is used. It adds very much to their desirability.

They are smartly tailored after the manner of those plerured in this group. A contrasting piping of navy grosgrain gives tone to the natural colored soft straw shape at the top. The bow at the side is lined with the navy.

More and more brims show a tendency to turn off the face. The model to the left is typical of the new trend. In the oval to the right one sees how adaptable to manipulation are the new soft straws.

Several leading French modistes are trimming straw with velvet. The lustrous black ballinuit cloche shown below adopts a touch of velvet and a glistening ornament.

the dress by all means ravel out enough thread or silk to show for darning. The darn will scarcely show if carefully mended.

Making Buttonholes
The easiest way to make buttonholes is to mark them first lightly with a pencil, using a ruler and measuring them precisely the right length. Before you cut them stitch around with the sewing machine—and then cut them. After that the actual work of doing the buttonholing is quite simple.
