FIND GIRL TRACED THRU FOUR STATES

A search through four states, lasting almost three months, last Friday resulted in the capture of Etta Rickmeyer, 22, at Rockford, Ill., wanted freight agent.

The trailing of the girl was done Studebaker car in which they were the son of E. F. Roethke, the local station agent who was dismissed when the shortage in the freight accounts was discovered. He was later re-instated. Zahn now is serving a fiveyear term in Waupun state prison.

Zahn in his confession declared that he had used the stolen money for gifts for the Rickmeyer girl. OFFICIALS ARE INVESTIGATING BUS WRECK

An investigation is now being made Highway 55, near the Hirsig cheese injured, three of them so seriously for a month or more. "Wildcat" bus lines, it is said are operating through Wisconsin in competition to regularly reduced travel rates but failing to provide them with adequate protection in case of accidents.

Investigation made by Sheriff Vande Zande of Fond du Lac last Wednesday night revealed that the passengers on the bus were not protected against injury in the event of accidents. The Liberty Cabs association, the sheriff found, is an organization of drivers who own their own vehicles. The offices in Chicago and Minneapolis merely serve as ticket agencies. Right Treatment Saves Fence Posts

Will Resist Decay for Periods of Twenty Years If Attended to.

When properly treated, even the most perishable woods can be made to resist decay for periods of twenty years or more," Prof. C. H. Guise stated at Cornell's farm and home week at Ithaca. "There are but few kinds of wood which cannot be treated with considerable profit, provided the correct procedure is followed.

"It is unfortunate," Professor Guise continued, "that some have the idea that treatment merely consists of painting the wood with some preservative like coal tar creosote. At the outset it cannot be stated too strongly that unless thorough treatment is to be given, very little value will result. The details of correct treatment for farm timbers are few, and easily understood but they must be given careful attention."

Last Twenty Years.

"From actual experiments started twelve years ago at the New York state college of agriculture, of posts treated by the hot and cold bath method, 95 per cent are still in service and thoroughly sound. On the basis of their present condition, these posts should easily last twenty years if not longer. The species treated were beech, red oak, elm, hemlock, basswood, white ash, and other common woodlot species, all of which are wood classed as nondurable, with the possible exception of the hemlock.' Professor Guise gave the results of varying kinds of treatment. Of those fenceposts untreated 22 per cent remain after 12 years of service; of those merely brushed 30 per cent remain; of those only dipped 41 per cent are left; while those which were given the hot and cold bath 95 per cent are still in good condition. Professor Guise added that if it were not for hemlock, which has been giving excellent service with the untreated, brushed, and dipped posts, the percentage of those remaining would be much lower.

Expense Justified.

In the matter of cost, Professor Guise stated that the expense of a thorough creosote treatment is clearly fustified when nondurable species are being used. As to the use of untrated chestnut in comparison with treated nondurable species, there is little choice. He said that it probably does not pay to treat black lo cust and red cedar, the most durable of the native woods. For these a life of twenty-five to forty years is Professor Guise gave a comparison of costs of treated and untreated posts. For the untreated post of nondurable species the total cost in place is $.22, its estimated life is five years, its annual cost $.044. For the nor durable species treated, the total cost in place is $.38. If it lasts 15 years the yearly cost is $.025; if it lives 20 years the annual cost is $.019.

Anthracnose of Grapes

Becoming More Common Grape anthracnose, or frequently spoken of as bird's-eye rot, is becoming more common. All green parts of the vines may be attacked but the dis ease occurs most commonly on the shoots or berries or grapes. On the shoots small cankers are produced, brown in color, rather depressed in the center and raised at the border. The spot enlarges and becomes longer in the direction of the main axis and in the later stages the center becomes more depressed and turns grayish.

On the berry or grape the anthrac nose has an appearance of a bird's eye, hence the name of bird's-eye spots or bird's-eye rot. The lesions first appear as small, dark-brown areas: later the color is grayish in the center where the cuticle is rup tured, but the border remains dark The spots increase in size but instead of elongating as they do on the canes they remain somewhat circular. Between the gray center and the dark border is a well-defined band of bright red, thus similar to a bird's eye.

Fertile Loamy Soil Is

Best for Spinach Crop Spinach cannot be grown on poor land. A fertile loamy soil is best with a good application of fertilizer applied before the crop is planted. The rows should be 15 to 18 inches apart, or another method of planting is to sow 10-inch drills or beds that are 4 to 7 feet wide. The latter is the method employed by the commercial growers in the Norfolk (Va.) section. The land should be plowed several weeks before sowing, as fresh plowed ground would be too dry. A good place is where an early crop of vegetables were grown. Harrow the ground just before sowing to kill all he grass and weeds. Apply about 1. 200 pounds fertilizer per acre. A good mixture is one containing 7 per cent nitrogen, 7 per cent phosphoric acid and 5 per cent potash, with a top dressing of 200 to 300 pounds nitrate of soda per acre after the plants come up. Plants to Be Used Should Be

Young plants grown from seed cuttings or layers need special care in their handling after the roots have been made, warns A. J. Schoth, crop

Plants with a large development of fibrous roots and a compact root system as cabbage and tomatoes, suffer less in transplanting than those in which the root system consists of long fibers or a single tap root as in case of long beets.

Soy beans, from which the oil has been extracted, is spoken of as soy bean oil meal. It is higher in digestible protein than the seed before the oil has been extracted.

As milk contains 87 per cent water this is the cheapest feed supplied to the dairy cow. A cow should receive approximately three pounds of water for every pound of milk. East Approves Changes Made in Gridiron Rules With only a few dissenting voices, Eastern college coaches raise a loud paen of praise for the changes made in the football rules by the National Football Rules commission.

Most of the coaches, commenting on the changes, confined themselves to the new rule making a fumbled ball recovered by the defensive side dead at the point of recovery.

Coaches favoring the new rule took the position that loss of the ball was penalty enough for the fumbling team and that change in the code would make for an even more spectacular form of offense.

The dissenters, and they included such figures as Lou Young of the University of Pennsylvania; Maj. Frank W. Cavanaugh of Fordham; William J. Bingham, director of athletics at Harvard, and Larry Bankart, former Dartmouth and Colgate coach, objected to the rule change on the ground that it removed from the game one of its most thrilling plays-the run for old quarrels so they are as good as touchdown or long gain after recovery of a fumble.

HIS LONG CAREEK DUE TO SPITTER

Only Thing to Fear Is Overwork, Says Faber.

Convinced that the spitball is responsible for his longevity as a big league pitcher, Red Faber this spring begins his twenty-first year in base-

Red believes that the spitter is the easiest of all deliveries on the arm, To prove his point he refers to Jack Quinn and Burleigh Grimes as well as himself. All of them are old enough to be the fathers of some of the present big league players. "The only thing you have to watch about the spitter," Red said, "is not to go on the hill too often. Just take the old regular turn and everything is okeh, but try to work out of turn and the arm quits functioning."

Red believes overwork cut short the career of Big Ed Walsh, one of the greatest exponents of the spitter.

"Everybody said Walsh's arm quit because the spitter placed too great a burden on it," Faber said. "I believe that what killed Walsh was overwork. One season I tried overwork and was in eight games in nine days. For a time after that my arm seemed goue. Although that's nearly fifteen years ago I haven't tried the same thing since."

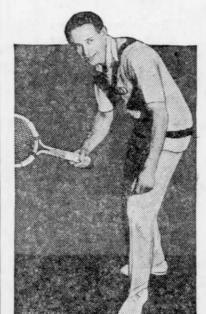

Red once experienced a peculiar arm trouble which threatened to cut short his career, but he does not believe the spitball had anything to do with that,

The trouble entered in Red's right elbow, and doctors finally diagnosed it as chipping of the bones. An operation relieved the trouble and Faber came back to pitch more winning baseball even though he then was past what was considered the agelimit for pitchers.

He resorted to the spitball in 1911, when he hurt his arm and virtually lost power to throw a curve. He mastered the delivery in two years at Pueblo and Des Moines in the Western league and reported to the White Sox in 1914.

Relying on the spitter as his major delivery, Red improved his arm until he eventually regained his curve ball and for years he has been one of the most feared pitchers in the league.

INDUSTRIES EMPLOY 8.71 PCT. MORE HELP

Present Complement Will Be Held Through Summer.

New York.-Employment in industries throughout the country is numerically 8.71 per cent higher today than it was a year ago and the present complement of workers will be maintained throughout the summer, according to the annual spring employment survey of the National Association of Manufacturers made public by John Edgerton, president of the organization. Moreover, these industries are operating at the very favorable peak of 85.1 per cent of their fullest capa-

Dealing with exact figures and revealing the situation as of the immediate present, the survey is made up from reports received from 3,000 manufacturing concerns in thirty-eight states of the union,

Actual figures of the responses show that the companies are employing 565,-132 persons, as against 519,837 a year ago; an increase of 45,296 employees, or a percentage gain of 8.71. To operate at full capacity these companies would require 663,745, or, in other words, the plants are operated a scant 15 per cent under their fullest possible production.

Of the 1,007 companies reporting, 558 are employing a larger number of people than last year and 161 are using the same number, making 71 per cent plus all of the companies that are employing as large or larger forces than last April. Little Rock, Ark.-Between 75 and 100 persons, made homeless by the twin tornadoes that took 50 lives in north Arkansas, were rescued by National Guardsmen from three caves in a mountain near the demolished village of Guion. They had passed two nights in their primitive quarters, for nearly 24 hours without food.

Huddled together in 25 or 30 family groups, the refugees passed one night, after their escape from their wrecked homes, about bonfires. A special train from Little Rock took six nurses and a number of physicians into the area. Many of the injured in the Swifton community, which had the heaviest casualties, were in immediate need of surgical attention. One hundred units of antitetanus serum also were taken to Newport and

Porch Made Livable

With Small Touches the siren call of spring for all to come outdoors.

The porch may have suffered unwonted hardships through the wintry months, but it can readily be made quite a livable place with a bit of ingenuity. E. Helen Dunbar supplies several suggestions in an article of the People's Home Journal. Outlining the point to be considered in adding dignity and comfort to the living porch, she says:

"People are becoming more and more eager to get out of doors, so let us make the most of porches, however hopeless they may seem at first. No porch exists which cannot be made more livable and attractive at the same time. The principal things to keep in mind as fundamentals. no matter what kind of a porch engrosses attention, are first to secure some privacy by the use of awnings has been formed, it was announced, or even simple Japanese screens, second, to make the porch comfortable and inviting, the chairs must be care nerves.

His hand found Slade's throat and he squeezed down on it as the man ruised both knees and thrust them against his stomach to break the hold. Stade's arm swept a circle on the floor in search of the gun Harris had dropped but he was jerked a foot from the floor and Harris jammed his head again and Slade crumpled into a limp heap. Harris held him there, unwilling to take a chance lest the other might be feigning unconsciousness.

But Slade was out of the fight. The sheriff struggled to his feet as V'addles tossed Morrow back from the door and slammed it shut. He closed with Morrow but the man eluded bim. He dared not shoot with friends and enemies struggling all about the black pl' of the little room. Morrow leaped one way, then the opposite, as the sheriff groped for him. Alden turned toward a rattle at the stove as he heard Slade's head crunch against the wall under Harris' savage thrust.

"Down him!" Waddles roared. Tear him down! Tear him down! I'm holding the door."

From the corner by the stove an iron pot hurtled across the room for the sound of the voice and crashed against the wall a foot from his head. A second kettle struck Alden in the chest and he went down. Waddles saw the light vanish from the window, then reappear. Morrow had made a headlong dive through the little open-

They rolled apart and Morrow leaped to his feet but Waddles had wrenched the leg already numbed by the striking horse and it buckled under him and let him back to the ground as he put his weight on it. He reached for his gun. A form loomed above him, a heavy rock upraised in both hands. The gun barked just as a downward sweep of the arms started the rock for his head. Morrow pitched down across him and Waddles swept him aside with a single thrust.

He rose and stirred the limp shape with his toe as the sheriff reached "Dead bird!" Waddles announced and turned to limp back to the cabin. A match flared inside as Harris lighted the lantern. Carpenter stirred and sat up, moving one hand along the gash in his scalp. The sheriff stooped and snapped a pair of hand-water on his face and he opened his eyes. He regarded the steel brace lets at his wrists as he was helped to his feet and turned to Harris.

"Don't forget that I'll kill you for this," he said. It was a simple state ment, made without heat or bluster, and aside from this one remark he failed to speak a syllable until the sheriff rode away with him.

The sheriff waved the lantern outside the door and before he lowered it two deputies rode up, leading his "Public sentiment has turned aganist them to such an extent that they won't get any help-and there won't be any to fill their places, once we've cleaned them up. Deputize the whole Three Bar crew when you're ready to start."

The sheriff nodded and led the way with the two deputies riding close behind, one riding on either side of Slade.

CHAPTER XI

The freight wagons rattled away from the Three Bar as the first light showed in the east, and the grind of wheels on gravel died out in the distance as Harris and Billie finished their breakfast.

The bands had come in from the round-up the night before, prior to the return of Harris and Waddles from their mysterious two-day trip in response to the sheriff's message, and Evans iau led them to Brill's for a night of play. They were due back at the ranch in the early forenoon and Harris bad allowed the freighters to depart before the others arrived.

"What did Alden want?" Blitle asked, referring to the trip from which he and Waddles had returned late the night before.

"We made a call on Carp," he said. "He had some good news we've been waiting for."

"Then Carp is a Three Bar plant,"

Wide Choice Offered as to "Canada's" Name

At least five derivations for the idea as "strait or narrow passage." word "Canada" have been suggested. First from the Algonquin word "Cantata," meaning "welcome," supposed to have been used by the Indians when they first saw Cartier, whom they received with demonstrations of joy. Second, from the Iroquola word "Cantata," meaning "a collection of huts," and being the word the Algonquins applied to their chief town. Third, from a Spanish word "Acanada," meaning "there is nothing there," indicating that the Spaniards saw no signs of gold as they skirted the coast of the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Fourth, from a Portuguese word "Canada," meaning "narrow passage," and implying that the Portuguese, long before Cartier's time, salled up the St. Lawrence and gave the name "Canada" to the country through which the comparatively parrow river flowed. namely that above Quebec. Fifth, Cordiero says the word is Basque for "canal," which would convey the same

Made Hurried Exit

A Podunk man who had been missing meat from his smokehouse for several weeks and suspected one of his neighbors, set a trap by killing an old family dog and dressing the carcass to resemble mutton. Sure enough, it was stolen at night, and the next day about breakfast time, dropping in on the suspects, he found them devouring the "sheep." Being invited to take "pot luck," he declined, saying he had just had breakfast, and then told them of the joke he had played on "somebody." The family listened without a smrle and then suddenly they all boited for the back door .-Pathfinder Magazine.

The first two seem the most likely derivations. The name "Canada" was used by the early French explorers and settlers.

Wind and Fish

It is reported that a singular correspondence exists between the prevailing direction of the wind on the coast of New South Wales and the average catch of fish.

It appears that the winds which influence the ocean currents influence, in turn, the course of the fish. These influences have periods of three or four years. Thus, in 1919, there was diversity. a general scarcity of fish, but afterward they became more and more abundant up to the year 1922, in 1924, there was another scarcity of the year. fish, but the next year they returned in increasing numbers.

No matter the price, it is the winds, the prospects of the fisherman may be predicted two or three years in advance.

Paper From Corn

As early as 1765 a German, Jacob Schaeffer, called attention to Indian corn as a possible source of paper. The first American patent on paper to be made from corn was taken out in 1802 by B. Allison and J. Hawkins for a process of making paper out of corn husks. Twenty years ago the Department of Agriculture conducted extensive experiments on paper making with cornstalks and carried the work into actual mill operation.

A Satisfied Customer

The Producer's Best Advertisement

People engaged in the milk industry are fully convinced of the health value of milk and milk products. They also know the technique in production and manufacturing to uphold quality as it is But better quality can only be produced on the farms. It is a business that is eminently identified with the publie good. But the public in general does not know and is not acquainted with all the tacts. Such agencies as the Dairy Councils and Public Health Authorities are engaged in urging the people to increase the consumption of milk. But these people cannot do it all. The dairyman must do his share by producing quality milk for all purposes. It is an old saying that a satisfied customer is the best advertisement. Producing quality goods is the cheapest advertising for the farmer.
