IGHT the place up, Annabell," said Mrs. Tucker, as the maid let ber into the apartment. "And take this," Mrs. Tucker handing the maid one small package, the fruits of an afternoon's shopping.

"I must be very tiresome shopping in the rain," Annabell ventured. "But I love shopping! Was there any mail?

Yes, ma'am, a catalogue and something that looks like an invitation." Annabell answered, banding over the catalogue and a square white en-

"I wonder who can be giving a party?" Mrs. Tucker mused as she opened the envelope. She read the note, looked surprised and puzzled and then grabbed for the envelope. She saw that it was addressed to "Mr. Mason Tucker." Then she read the note again. Yes, it said plainly, "Meet me at Main and Garden, Tuesday at 8:15, Del." Seeing the strained look on Mrs. Tucker's face, Annabell ventured to inquire if it were bad news, but Mrs. Tucker merely stared into space and then commanded Annabell to get the directory and see if there were not another Mr. Mason Tucker.

The result of Anaabeli's search showed only one Mason Tucker. Apparently it was true that note was written to Tuck, ber Tuck. It made her just sick, but not too sick to think.

"Annabell," she asked casually, "do you happen to remember what buildings are on the corner of Main and

"Well, there's the bank and the post office-that's two corners. Then that bardware store and a drug store. . . .

Mrs. Mason shuddered. Her busband, her Tuck, meeting a woman at a drug store, of all places! And they just married six months! It was just too much. She buried her face in the pillows on the divan and began to cry. She was so overwhelmed by her own misery that she did not hear the doorbell or bear the maid announce

Frank Tison, an old friend of both the Tuckers, breezed into the room with his usual enthusiasm, but stopped abruptly when he saw Lillian in tears. "Stormy weather we're having today," was his greeting.

Lillian made a desperate effort to bide her tears and appear casual but it was no use. She was so miserable and Frank was such a good friend. "Frank," she began, "You've been my friend since I can remember and you're a friend of Tuck's. . . ." "J. Franklin Tison, man about town, at your service," Frank said, bowing ceremoniously. "I need it, Frank. Look at this." She handed him the note addressed to Fuck and signed Del. "Oh. Frank. I'm so miserable, what'll I ever do?"

explain," Frank suggested. "How can be explain? It's as clear as day to me!" Well, he'll be here in a little while "You might give Tuck a chance to and you can find out something, perbaps," was Frank's next suggestion.

"I've planned a special dinner. It's our anniversary night. We've been married just six months. But you'll see he won't come."

As if to bear out her words, the phone rang just then, and when Lillian turned from answering it she was pale and trembling.

"Just as I thought," she explained to Frank, "he says he has a business engagement, to meet several men at the club. I suppose he thinks I'll sit here and sew a fine seam while be dashes around with some "Del" person. Well, I guess not, Frank, will you call a cab for me?"

"Not until you tell me where you are going." "Going? Home to mother, of course.

I hope I never see Mason Tucker again."

Frank ordered the cab but it was plain he did not approve of giving Tuck no chance to explain. But he kept this to himself and after helping Lillian into her coat, the two of them waited in silence for the cab. Lillian was sick and angry. She had loved Tuck so much and he had seemed to love her. She had thought she was the only woman in his life, as he was the only man in hers. They had lived here so happily. She looked around at all the little things they had bought together and had loved and prized so much. And now she was leaving it all! In the few minutes that she sat there, she went over to herself all the little kindnesses and thoughtful things Mason had done for her. It was hard to believe that he was unfaithful. But there was the evidence, right there in her hand on the white crumpled note!

Frank tried once to argue with her: he tried patiently to point out to her that there might be a mistake. He Alaska seal.

begged her to give Tuck a chance to explain, but to all this Lillian was deat. No evidence could be more complete or convincing than the note she held and she was going to leave.

She was beginning to wonder why the taxi did not come when the bell rang and she started up, hastily powdered her nose, looked as bright as she could, when the door opened and Mason walked in.

Hello, Frank, old man. Hello, Lil." he said as he started to kiss her. "I thought you had a business engagement," was Lillian's return to his

"I did," Mason went on to explain, "but when I called you I thought you sounded rather as if you weren't well, so I came straight home,"

Lillian was a little at loss to know just what to do next, so Frank helped cut the situation by asking Mason about some stock. They discussed it for a few minutes and Lillian sat down on the divan, her hat and coat still on.

"We certainly had a joke on Oscar this afternoon at the office," Mason

"You have a lot of jokes on Oscar, don't you?" Frank asked. "But this one was rich. He seems to have received a rather incriminating note and his wife got hold of it." "What was it?" from Frank and Lillian together. "Some darn show on at the Circle. They have taken a ruther unique but dangerous way of advertising it. They wrote a lot of notes about "Meet me at Main and Garden," and signed "Del." That's the Circle address, though there's a drug store right on the corner, which helped out the Story." "What a stupld way to advertise!"

was Frank's comment.

"Deucedly clever, I call It," Mason replied. "Oscar's wife gave him the devil. I guess. But any sensible woman would have known there was a catch in it, some place. Wouldn't she, boney?" to Lillian.

Lillian was flustered, due to surprise, happiness and some remorse, but she managed to answer, "Yes, any sensible woman."

"By the way," Mason wanted to know, "were you going out. Hat and coat and everything?"

Frank again came to the rescue nobly. "We were going out to get a bite, since you had phoned that you would not be here. But I guess vou two have a little party of your own on tonight and a poor bachelor like me must seek the lonely club."

While she called goodby to Frank, Lillian hurriedly tucked the crumpled note in her desk out of sight and turned to fairly beam upon her Tuck

Efficiency

Sir Charles Higham, the London adrertising expert, praised American efficiency at a banquet in New York. "American efficiency!" he said

Rapidity of Dreams

Scientists have conducted various experiments to demonstrate the rapidity with which a dream takes place. In one particular instance the sprinkling of a few drops of water on a man's face caused a dream in which the events of a whole lifetime passed before him. The whole process took but a second or two of time. The great rapidity of dreams is due to the fact that in the unconscious all the individual's life experiences are on view as if in one tlash.

Habits and Environment

Habits, say specialists in child health, are the result of environment and training and parents should first look to themselves if Johnny seems to inherit some of the bad babits of his father or mother when it comes to sleeping irregularly or eating peculiarly. To blame bad habits on the family tree is only to admit that one has not given serious attention to training a child properly, according to Doctor Max and Doctor Grete Schan.

Baby's Handicap

Generally the "only child" might be called the "too much" child; the child who has to endure too much training, who is subject to too much anxiety, too much interference and too much observation. - Woman's Home Companion.

Cachalot Only Whale That Yields Ambergris

The greatest of the toothed whales | is probably a product of the digested is the sperm whale or cachalot, which attains a length of more than 60 feet, or, according to some statements, as

The glgantic head and straight blunt forehead give this whale a characteristic appearance, the head being swollen out by a huge mass of the peculiar fatty substance known as spermacetl. The jaw is so overhung by the great head that, like a shark, it has to turn over on its back to bite. Its food, like several of the other toothed whales, consists mainly of cuttlefish, and several gigantic species of the latter are only known from their half-digested remains found within the stomach of the whale.

Besides the oil (which is much more valuable than that of any other whales) and spermaceti, the sperm whale yields the very curious product known as ambergris. This is a concretion of the intestines, is usually intermixed with cuttlefish beaks and selves -Schopenhauer.

It is one of the most costly articles in commerce. It has but little perfume of its own, but it is a constituent of all the finer scents, for it seems to have some curious property of blending and improving the perfumes with which it is mixed. Now and then large masses of it have been found cast ashore or floating in the ocean .- From "Science of the Sea," by D'Arcy Wentworth Thompson.

THREE DEVICES WILL SAVE CARS

Minimize Wear and Increase Life of Automobile Engine.

The three devices that minimize wear and increase the automobile engine's life are air cleaners, oil filters and crankcase ventilator, students of General Motors Institute of Technology were told in an address by Sumner S. Howard, a director of service. "The air cleaner prevents road dust from being breathed into the engine through the carburetor and causing excessive wear to cylinder walls, pis ton rings etc." Mr. Howard said. "There are two types of air cleaners, each having their respective merits. One is the centrifugal type, which requires no cleaning, and the other the 'oil-wetted' type, which is easily cleaned by plunging it up and down in a can of gasoline and then re-oiling for use again. It should be cleaned according to recommendations in the car owners' instruction book.

Work of Oil Filter. "The air cleaner's 'twin brother,' the oll filter, removes the foreign matter from the crank-case oil, thus reducing engine wear and making the oil last longer. It filters the oil at the rate of about a quart a minute so that the entire contents of the crankcase are filtered about every ten minutes.

oil filter is an excellent vice, but it must be kept so. In the most commonly used filter devices, the cartridge or straining element is good for about 10,000 miles as it then becomes clogged and the oil is by-passed without straining. It is the same as having no filter, and this is why the oil filter should be serviced after 10,-000 miles operation.

Crankcase Ventilator.

"An ally of the oll filter and air cleaner in preventing wear is crankcase ventilation, which removes or minimizes water and fuel that would contaminate the oil. Crankcase ventilation, which is in quite general use, is usually accomplished in two ways. One is to pass a blast of air from a fan through a tube, causing a suction from the crankcase, which carries with It any vapors that may be present in the crankcase. The other method is to take a certain portion of air across the surface of the crankcase and into the intake of the carburetor. carrying with it the water moisture and fuel vapors."

Trains Now Halted at

Unprotected Crossings

Grade crossings at towns on some of the less active branch lines of railroads in Massachusetts and New Hampshire are now unguarded without violation of rather strict laws governing the protection of intersections of roadways and railways. Until recently pensioned employees served as gatemen and flagmen at such cross-

Pedestrians and vehicles no longer need "beware of the locomotive." The locomotive now "bewares" and comes to a full stop before rolling over the crossing.

This practice may cause a few seconds' delay to passengers, but it saves ersed Europe from Shetland to Italy the railroads a considerable amount by relieving them of the necessity of stationing crossing men at points where there are but four or six trains

Spring Clearances Are Lessened by Usual Use

During the inspection of the new car while one is jotting down the various identification marks and numbers, It is a good plan to measure the clearance between the centers of the springs and the frame just above.

Later on, when the car has been given a season or so of hard work, it will be found that the clearances are less. If springs have settled more than a quarter of an inch as indicated by the variations in clearance measurements, the car will not ride easily.

Check Air Pressure

Checking air pressure in tires at least once a week is advised, keeping the pressure at the amount recommended by the car manufacturer. Small cuts should be repaired ture, and wheels should be checked is also a good idea to have tires removed every six months and examine the casing for cuts, punctures, small

White Crosses Too Depressing in Ohio

Motorists in Ohio have started a movement for the repeal of the law which requires the erection of a white cross at every spot along a highway where ery spot along a highway where there has been a traffic fatality. To pass these crosses continuously stimulates more careful driving, it is said, but it also has a depressing effect on travelers. One 75-mile stretch of highway has 69 crosses along its sides, nearly one to a mile.

Instrument Will Tell Needs of Auto Battery

Inventor Holding New Device.

The "Uno," an instrument invented by C. W. Ward, of Los Angeles, by which the motorist can tell whether his battery needs charging and also if it has sufficient water. The device is a galvonometer acting as a voltmeter and is connected with the battery by means of a lead electrode with another insulated wire running to the starter switch. The inventor is holding the new device.

Clever Job in Freeing

Sticking Accelerator Experienced motorists do not get alarmed when the accelerator, underlubricated at its various points of anchorage or suffering from a deficient spring tension, begins to stick slightly. They merely pull it up with the sides of their shoes. Sometimes It becomes second nature for them to resort to this practice. That is wrong. No matter how skillful one is in freeing a sticking accelerator, there are times when failure is inevitable and the punishment is inflicted upon the transmission gears. When the accelerator sticks, have it freed at within its borders.

Usually owners let the repair of the spare go over until "tomorrow." Frequently, it also turns out to be costly. Punctures always will be among those things about which nothing can be foretold. To be caught without a spare may double or triple the cost of getting the original puncture repaired. If the car owner is wise he will take the current "flat" to the repairer at once or fix it himself, the commercial pectin in bottles which greatly expedites jelly making. It needs less cooking and hence the juice makes more jelly. Now we may have plenty of the good blackberry jelly, which so many enjoy. Blackberry Jelly.-Use four cupfuls

Bring to a boil then add the pectin at once, stirring well to thoroughly mix; bring to a rolling boil, and boil one-half a minute. Remove, let stand one minute, skim, pour into glasses and cover at once with hot paraffin.

Ripe Pineapple Jelly.-Put the ripe fruit through the meat grinder, after peeling, adding a little water. Cook five minutes then drain as above. To three cupfuls of juice add six of sugar and one bottle of pectin. Follow the directions as above. Raspberry Jam.-This process does away with all the long cooking and drying up of the seeds. Crush the berries, using two quarts at a time. Measure the fruit into a kettle, add to and one-half cupful of liquid pectin. Let stand and skim, then seal while hot.

Blackberry jam is prepared in the same way, using one more cupful of augar (seven cupfuls.) Any crushed fruit may be prepared into jelly, jam and conserves with little cooking, thus saving the flavor as well as hours of time in preparation. On all bottles of the commercial pectin, directions are very clear, so that any one may have success with it. Jelly and jam are always in order at any picnic, also a confection of some sort.

Playing ball for John McGraw is a rather grim business for most athletes. So much penalty is attached to a single slip. But Lindstrom somehow manages to keep his philosophical balance. He doesn't let McGraw faze him in the slightest. He is perhaps the only Giant who ever had the castiron gall to kid his hard boiled manager.

The Giants jumped out of a western city last season just after winning a close final game through a brilliant play of Lindstrom's which cut off the tying run at the plate in the ninth. Fred went over hard smash, came up with it and, while off bal-Hagan to nail the sliding runner by an eyelash.

LISKA HAILED AS BEST YOUNGSTER

Submarine Hurler Favored to Win Out.

The season has been under way long enough to offer the conclusion that Ad Liska, the twenty-two-yearold submarine chukker with the Washington Americans, isn't destined to have the tag "bloomer" fastened on him. On the contrary, Liska seems well on his way to earning the distinction of being the best young pitcher to reach the majors this sea-

Manager Walter Johnson, one of the greatest pitchers baseball ever has known, boosted Liska. "He has impressed me more than any youngster I have seen in years," be commented.

It has come to pass that no one was wrong. Or, at least, isn't yet. Liska has pitched almost perfect ball for Washington. One of his games was a two-hit affair against Cleveland. He lost that, and was credited with losses in the two other games, because the Washingtons made only one run for him in them.

Bill McGowan, veteran American league umpire, was roaring gleefully about Liska after the two-hit game in Cleveland, McGowan officiated at

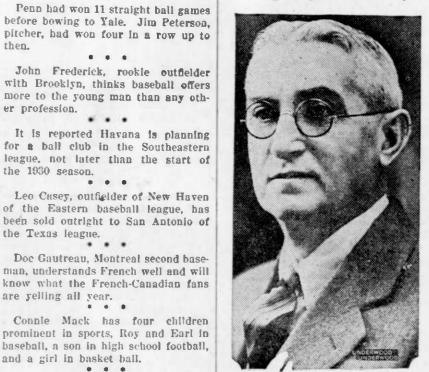

"That kid has one of the most puzzling deliveries I ever have seen," he said. "It is hard to get next to.

"It's a lot different from the way Carl Mays pitches. Mays sweeps very low in his swing and a batter can follow the ball easily as he seems to hesitate just a little at the bottom of the swing and then push it in there. Not like Liska. He whips the ball. He doesn't swing low and he hides that hall so nicely that a batter can't see it until it is almost up to the plate. I sweeps up and hops.

"Joe Sewell has just about the best pair of eyes in baseball. And those eyes, and the fact that he crowds the plate and is a little fellow, make him hard to pitch to. But Sewell, as well as the other players, was topping 1885 allowed only the pitcher and 'em. The inflelders get plenty of work when Liska works.

Must Tick in Unison The British post office can claim to have the biggest collection of clocks in the kingdom. More than 20,000 timepieces have to be kept perfectly synchronized, although thousands of these are "behind scenes" and are used only for timing junction and trunk telephone calls. Every day at 10:00 a m. and 1:00 p. m. Greenwich time is telegraphed to chief post offices in England, Scotland, Wales and North Ire land. In point of size the second collection in the kingdom is probably that distributed among the royal palaces. There are 1,000 pieces, of which Windsor castle and Buckingham palace have most. At Sandringham all clocks have been kept half an hour fast ever since the time of King Edward. In the houses of parliament there are about 500 clocks, necessitating a great deal of winding and vigi lant synchronization.

From Some Distance Out

Visitors are allowed on the Hagenbeck farm near, Nashua, N. H., and they come in thousands to see the many kinds of animals there. Recently a few penguins arrived from the South Polar regions, and people stood about staring at them.

"Were those birds raised here?" one woman was overheard to ask. "Naw," said her companion, disdainful of her ignorance, "They come from out o' town."

Good Markets for Cars

The Chevrolet Red "O.K. That Counts" Tag Protects Your Used Car Purchase.

Every reconditioned car we offer for sale is identified by means of the Chevrolet red "O.K. that Counts" tag. This tag is the purchaser's assurance that the car to which it is attached has been gone over carefully by expert mechanics—that it has been thoroughly reconditioned-and that the price is based on the car's actual ability to render service.

Due to the overwhelming popularity of the new Chevrolet Six, we have on hand at this time an unusually large group of these "O.K.'d" cars. Come in! You are certain to find the car you want-at a price that will save you money. Make a small down payment and drive your car away!

We sell tires differently here. Unless you're trading in your car soon and simply want out of the good low-price Goodyears, we first "take your measure." In other words, we ask you how far you're going to drive, the kind of road you'll travel, the loads you'll carry, your usual driving speeds, etc. Then, after noting how the present tires have stood up on your particular car, from our experience we honestly advise you which one of the several types of Goodyear Tires will cost you LEAST TO BUY and give you THE TROUBLE-FREE MILEAGE YOU WANT.

WE POSITIVELY DO NOT TRY TO WISH OFF" A BETTER TIRE THAN YOU NEED We're in business to keep our friends. If Goodyear Pathfinder or a Speedway at very low cost will answer your needs, we say so! We're equally frank when it's a regular, an oversut or a heavy duty Goodyear All-W eather that you require. This "Taking Your Measure" plan saves money for you and insures us another thoroughly satisfied Goodyear customer.

FARM AID ASSURED: HOOVER URGES FUNDS

Vote of 74 to 8 by Senate Ends Long Battle.

Washington.-With his views on farm relief given a place upon the nation's statutes, President Hoover is devoting his attention to the selection of the eight men who will administer the agricultural program as members of the newly created federal farm board.

The President is anxious that the program be put into operation at the earliest possible date. Indications are that a bumper wheat crop will be harvested within the next few months which may produce a serious surplus. This situation gives the board a problem of huge proportions at the outset. But while Mr. Hoover wants the board to apply itself to this situation as quickly as possible, he beleives that the success of his farm program will hinge primarily upon the individual capabilities of the members of the board.

For this reason he is exercising the utmost care in making his selections. Two weeks are expected to Washington.-The farm relief bill has been signed by President Hoover. The two months' fight in congress over its terms ended when both houses approved the conference report and the signatures of Vice President Curtis Madison-Gov. Kohler commuted the and Speaker Longworth were at-

The senate voted, 74 to 8, in favor of exactly the same conference report which it had previously rejected, 43 to 46. The action followed more than three hours of explanations by senators who took part in the unsuccessful attempt to force the administration to accept the export debenture

The house accepted the conference report without debate and without a roll call.

'The final result is a sweeping victory for President Hoover, who obtains enactment of a farm bill in exact accord with his recommendations. The battle, however, left sore spots which threaten trouble during the tar-Iff revision and in coming campaigns.

Before congress recessed President Hoover transmitted a budget recommendation for a substantial immediate appropriation from the authorized $500,000,000 revolving loan fund.

The bill as it was sent to the President is regarded by him as fulfilling the pledges of the Kansas City platform, declarations of radical Republicans and Democrats to the contrary notwithstanding. It creates a farm board composed of the secretary of agriculture and eight members appointed by the President at salaries of $12,000. One of the appointive members will be designated by the President as chairman,

The President is not restricted in either a geographical or partisan way in making appointments, but he is directed under the bill to give representation to major agricultural commodities. It is expected that the personnel of the board will be announced within a few days. The board is to undertake the solution of various agricultural problems. In carrying out its policies it will have the assistance of commodity advisory councils of seven members each and of stabilization corporations which will be set up to deal with particular commodities whenever the co-operatives handling such commodities so request. All stock in the stabilization corporations will be owned by co-operative associations.

The $500,000,000 revolving fund is to be available for loans to stabilization corporations and to cooperatives. The bulk of the money is designed for use of the former in financing the purchase and storage of surplus farm crops, pending a favorable opportunity to market them without loss. The sponsors of the legislation insist that the government will not suffer any substantial losses. Critics of the bill think that the government will lose huge sums or else the stabilization corporations will fail to boost prices.

Besides making loans to handle crop surpluses, the board may advance money for various other purposes, including the purchase or construction of physical marketing facilities and the financing of crop price insurance funds.

FRENCH FLYERS HOP OCEAN IN 30 HOURS

Yellow Bird Lands in Spain; Later Makes Paris.

Santander, Spain. - The French transatlantic flight came to an end when the airplane Yellow Bird, its gasoline exhausted, was forced to land at Oriambre Beach, just west of Comillas and 30 miles west of this

The flyers, who had planned a nonstop flight from Old Orchard Beach, Maine, to Le Bourget field, near Paris, were just 150 miles from French soil when they had to come down.

After taking on a supply of gasoline and making slight repairs the flyers took off for Paris, where they received a great reception similar to that accorded to Charles Lindbergh, the American, who made a clean-cut flight from the United States to Parls. The plane was in the air 29 hours and 52 minutes. Incidentally, this turned out to be not a strictly French flight. The le-Rene Lefevre, the three gallant French airmen. But when the plane landed, a fourth hopped out. He was none other than Arthur Schreiber, twentytwo-year-old American stowaway. Schreiber appeared to be laboring under the influence of great emotion as the plane landed and expressed complete joy when he set his foot on the sands on which the plane had gently alighted. The three men of the crew had not suspected they had an unexpected guest until they were in full flight.

When the plane hopped off it had been rumored that the young man had slipped aboard as the flyers were posing for a last photograph. But no one was sure. Schreiber's companion said they had flipped a coin to decide which would steal a ride. All four adventurers were in good physical condition when they arrived, but were naturally disappointed at being forced down so near their goal. The gasoline supply was exhausted, however, and the radiator that cooled the powerful motor was nearly dry.

Census Report Is to

Be Made by Districts Washington.-Population statistics of the 1930 decennial census will be announced publicly in each of 500 districts immediately after they are gathered, instead of being tabulated first in Washington. William M. Steuart, director of the census, explains that this procedure would be followed for the first time with the forthcoming census, in order that inaccuracies may be detected before the figures are tabulated for the permanent record.

At least 100,000 enumerators will be needed to canvas the nation's homes for the census, he says, and between 6,000 and 8,000 more will be employed here later.

DAWES, MACDONALD DISCUSS NAVY PACT

New U. S. Ambassador and British Premier Meet.

Forres, Scotland .- An intimation that the United States and Great Britain are near agreement on a naval reduction program, "in which other naval powers are expected to co-operate and upon which the successful consummation of the peace of the whole world must depend," was given at the close of a meeting here between Charles G. Dawes, new ambassador to the court of St. James, and J. Ramsay MacDonald, new prime minister of Great Britain.

This may be taken as an indication that both the United States and Great Britain are willing to continue to work through the preparatory disarmament commission of the League of Nations, and as an effort to dispel fears on the part of other naval powers, France in particular, that an Anglo-American steamroller will be applied to the matter of naval disarmament. It was also considered an indication that the United States and Great Britain have definitely assumed the lead in this matter and intend to pursue it.

The conference was of a most cordial nature, and at the end Mr. Mac-Donald read a statement which had been considered word by word by the two statesmen. It was probably the most important document since the treaty of Versailles.

"We have had a conversation regarding the present position of the question of naval disarmament as between the United States and Great Britain," the statement said. "It has been informal and general and most satisfactory. (Mr. Dawes referred to the subject in his speech at the Pilgrims' dinner, and Mr. MacDonald did the same almost at the same time in Lossiemouth, and that is intended to be the beginning of negotiations). We both wish to make it clear that the other naval powers are expected to co-operate in these negotiations, on pend." Mr. MacDonald refused to amplify this statement, but it is reported that both Mr. Dawes and the British prime minister agreed that drastic reduction of navies is necessary and that not only Great Britain and the United States, but France, Italy and Japan must join in the movement to reduce their fleets. If they do not, they will meet the strongest pressure of the world's two greatest naval powersand two powers who hold the strings of the world's purse.

the successful consummation of which the peace of the whole world must de-

It is also doubtful now whether Mr. MacDonald will make an American trip. When questioned, he said that it was all in the air, and the impression was given that he might find negotiations here would take up all his attention and that he could not spare the time to cross the Atlantic, much as he wishes to do so.

The conference between the premier and Mr. Dawes took place in a sungitimate crew was composed of Ar- lit parlor in Logie house, the beautiful meno Lotti, Jr., Jean Assolant and country home of Sir Alexander Grant, Glasgow biscuit manufacturer and a close friend of the prime minister. Logie house nestles in a highland glen about seven miles from the ancient royal burgh of Forres.

General Dawes arrived here after having traveled all night the 600 miles from London. He was accompanied by Ray Atherton, counsellor of the American embassy at London, and his nephew and secretary, Henry Dawes. The ambassador was met by Mr. Mac-Donald at Forres' little station on the Highland railway, accompanied by his daughter Ishbel, his secretary, and his son, Alistair.

After the conference Mr. MacDonald motored with General Dawes 40 miles over the hills in the most heautiful part of the highlands to Aviemore. where General Dawes caught the train back to London.

If they were successful there would be for every man ento provide for himself and his family dozen magic words in truth, and they had spurred Citizen Captain Raffet and his squad with boundless enthuslasm. They felt no discomfort either from tearing wind or driving rain. With eyes fixed before them they rode on, striving to pierce the mist-laden distance where the enemy of France was even now turking, intent on that adventure which would be his last.

It was long past five o'clock when the diligence with its escort reached the edge of the forest. What little daylight there had been all afternoon was already beginning to wane; the sky was of a leaden color, heavily laden with rain clouds, save way behind in the west, where a few flery, crimson streaks cut through the clouds like sharp incisions, there, where the setting sun still lingered in the autumn sky.

The gods were once disputing whether it was possible for a living being to change its nature. Jupiter said "Yes," but Venus said "No." So, to try the question, Jupiter turned a cat into a maiden, and gave wedding was duly performed, and the dlng feast. Control of Rats Up to Community

Where Food and Shelter Are | making of a whistle from small wood Lacking Rodents Are Chased Away.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Definite headway in rat control requires not the mere killing off of rats as they are encountered in markets, poultry yards, homes, or wherever they abound, but more especially the removal of those conditions that are responsible for the rats, according to the biological survey of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Shut Off Food Supply.

Rats require food and shelter, and where these are lacking they cannot persist. Modern building construction and sanitation, as practiced in our more progressive cities, deprive rats of suitable living and breeding places, and shut off their usual food supply. Rat-proofing clauses in local building ordinances and more strict regulations in local sanitary codes, including the proper collection and disposal of garbage and the prevention of trash and waste accumulations on private premises, will do more to bring about permanent reduction in the number of rats than any other

Rat proofing of new buildings is entirely practicable and should be required in all cases. It would not be practicable, however, to require rat proofing of many of the older buildings. As long as this is true and as long as rats are able to obtain a food supply, it will be necessary to destroy But no real progress in rat control is possible when the destruction of these pests is left to the individual, for reinfestation from surrounding infested premises is continu-Arrangements for thoroughly treating larger areas are essential to successful results.

Work Together.

A number of cities working in cooperation with and under the leadership of the biological survey are now carrying on systematic and scientific rat control with excellent results. This bureau will be glad to assist in planning and in some cases in carrying out co-operative rat-control projects. The problem of rat control is one of the community, even of the county, the state, and the nation. It is recognized as an important world problem, for not only do rats destroy millions of dollars' worth of valuable foods and property, but they carry filth-borne disease wherever they go.

Now this is just the condition for the bark to be in for successful bud grafting and when the stock to be grafted upon is in this condition success is almost sure to follow. August is the season in many sections for budgrafting of peaches, cherries, plums and other fruits and also roses and other ornamentals. One of the secrets of budding and grafting is to perform the operation quickly, before the sap of the plant gets a chance to oxidize, and as it is an old adage that "practice makes perfect" the professional grafter or budder nearly always scores more success than the amateur in this by Using Heavy Paper A good way to keep the floor of a brooder clean is to cover the floor becomes solled, it is removed, litter much easier to replace both the paper and litter than to scrub the floors when soiled. Then, too, the brooders are always dry, whereas if they must be scrubbed often, they are liable to be damp sometimes, and then look out for roup. Dampness will bring on roup in young chicks, and is sometimes so fatal and does its work of destruction so quickly, that one has no chance to use a remedy, if one can be found. It is much more fatal to young chicks than to matured fowls.

Cultivate Everbearing

Strawberries All Year Everbearing strawberries need lots of cultivating and hoeing. It is not necessary to keep the weeds out, but the ground should be worked frequently whether there are any weeds or not, as the everbearers do not like to be left standing in a bard soil even if there are no weeds. So keen the ground stirred so that there is a mulch of loose soil around them at all times if you want them to do their best for you. Everbearing strawberries make a fine addition to the menu on our table in the fall of the year. helping to make that much needed variety and change which some sagn has said is "spice of life."

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

While the husker-shredder has long been recognized as a useful machine in the corn belt, its effectiveness as a destroyer of corn borers in corn fodder has given it a new significance. CONTROLLED HEAT FOR COOKING NOW USED

Many local women have evidenced nuch interest in a new housekeeping aid which is being demonstrated locally by the Kewaskum Hardware & Electric Co., local authorized SKEL-GAS dealers. This is automatic con trol of oven temperature on ranges using this product.

With this device on her stove, the home maker can put her meal in the oven, light the gas, set the thermostatic heat control for the proper temperature and forget about her cooking. The flame is automatically turned up as the oven temperature goes below the desired heat and automaticall; turned off when the set tempera ture is reached. Not only a convenience but a fuel saver as well.

Most ranges built for SKELGAS are equipped with thermostatic oven heat controls. If you have not seen this new convenience operate, you are invited to come, to bring your friends with you, to actually operate this heat control yourself.

As you probably know, SKELGAS is real natural gas, purified and compressed, making dependable, efficient gas service available anywhere. Now you can cook with natural gas. The SKELGAS flame is five times as hot as the ordinary city gas flame. Ranges developed and built especially for SKELGAS take advantage of and fully utilize this intense heat.

The Kewaskum Hardware & Electric Co., say that the convenience and service of SKELGAS cannot be des cribed. That you must use this gas to appreciate it. They suggest that you use SKELGAS in their store at your earliest convenience so that you may see the convenience of controlled cooking heat.

Quality and Prosperity

Many producers of milk complain about prices. None said lose sight of the fact that consumers all over the county would use more milk and dairy products if it were all of the best quality. In the production of food products the farmer has a distinct advantage over all other manufacturers or producers of goods for sale. Any manufacturer of goods, producing better quality, makes the goods last longer and decreases his sales. The producer of quality food, especially milk and milk products, enjoys results just the opposite. When he produces better quality, customers want more of his products and sales increase. Price is controlled by demand and demand by quality. Equalized production and quality goods will make prosperity certain.
