Sweet Clover May Prove Valuable as Winter Ration for Cows.

(Prepared by the United States Department Sweet clover situge may prove valuable as a wintering ration for dry cows and helfers under dry-land conditions during years when other feed crops fail, says the federal bureau of dairy industry. Sweet clover can be placed in an inexpensive silo, such as a trench, and can provide the principal feed for the dry stock through the winter. This is indicated by tests at the United States Department of Agriculture field station at Ardmore, South Dakota,

Prefer Corn Silage. Cows, however, did not relish the sweet clover sllage as they did corn silage or grass silage. In a feeding experiment in which cows were fed sweet clover silage without a grain or hay ration, production dropped produces considerable vegetation, even in years when drought takes the corn crop, but in the vicinity of Ardmore many cows refuse to graze the sweet clover because of a bitter taste that is more noticeable in that vicinity than at other field stations of the department. Experience with sweet clover silage at Ardmore showed that ensiling causes the bitterness to disappear.

Molasses Added.

At the Huntley, Mont., station cows preferred corn silage to alfalfa silage made by adding 1 part of beet-sugar molasses to 20 quarts of first cutting

"An interesting feature of the legume-siluge feeding." says J. R. Dawson of the bureau of dairy Industry, "was the inability of the animals, when receiving silage as the only feed, to maintain an appetite for quantities. Many of the cows consumed large quantities for a few days, but invariably the consumption declined after a short time."

New Type of Asphaltic

Coating for the Silo Asphalt is one of the best coatings for stopping leaks in silos and water tanks, but this has been handicapped by the fact that the walls must be dry and fairly warm if the asphalt is to make a good bond. There is now on the market an asphalt coating which can be applied to a wet surface, so that the silo can be coated on the inside a few feet at a time as the silo is filled. Apparently, the bond is just as strong as with the ordinary asphalt applied to a dry surface. This property of adhering tightly to a damp surface is also important in stopping leaks in tanks and cisterns, as is the fact that this type of asphalt does not make the water taste or smell.

Fertile Soil Needed

Most vegetable crops require a ferthere is no substitute for barnyard manure as a fertilizer. It should be well decomposed and not too coarse. Dry straw and other undecayed material in the soil interferes with the preparation of the seedbed and the cultural operations. Manure should be applied in the fall to allow the fertilizing elements to leach into the soil during the winter months.

Agricultural Hints ****

Uncomfortable live stock can never be profitable live stock.

Good silage can be made without tramping it in the sile.

Don't put fresh feed into dirty or sour troughs.

Cool, moist storage is best for heets, carrots, turnips, rutabagas, parsnips, salsify, winter radishes and celery.

When transplanting do not let the roots of plants lie open to the hot sun or to the drying influence of the wind.

It costs on the average $9 less to sell a truck load of produce at a market than to furnish containers for rail shipment.

Removing a crop of alfalfa late in the season will make the plants more susceptible to winter injury and may cause the destruction of the stand.

Seed potatoes that were not treated last fall before storage should be given a treatment before planting. Large losses from Rhizoctonia occurred last year because some growers failed to dip the seed.

Legume Silage Is Dairy Farm Help Green Manure Is Aid to Bacteria

Clover or Any Legume Crop Plowed Under Improves Soil Greatly.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

When a farmer plows under a green manure crop such as clover or any of the legumes he brings about almost unbelievable changes in the world of living things under the soil, according to Nuthan R. Smith, bacteriologist of the United States Department of Agri-

Under favorable conditions plowing under a large amount of green material may increase the number of bacteria as much as ten times within two days, says Mr. Smith. In four days there may be fifteen to twenty-five times the original number of bacteria in the decomposing material and adhering soil. After about seven days the bacteria decrease in number almost as rapidly as they increased. No change in the number of bacteria takes place in the soil one-half inch away from the decomposing material.

Bacterial Decomposition. Bacterial decomposition of green manure gives rise to carbon dioxide and ammonia. The carbon dloxide escapes from the soil into the air: the ammonia is absorbed by the soil and, through the action of bacteria, is first changed to nitrite and then to nitrate. The greater the percentage of nitrogen in the green manure, other conditions being equal, the more nitrate will be formed from its decomposition. When crops low in nitrogen, such as mature rye, are turned under very little benefit will result for the following crop, since the amount of nitrogen bound up by the bacteria in decomposition may be greater than that obtained from the rye. Eventually this nitrogen is changed to nitrate, perhaps too late for the crop.

Influenced by Temperature.

Decomposition of green manure is greatly influenced by the temperature and moisture of the soil. Most soil bacteria require a temperature of 65 degrees to 70 degrees Fahrenheit, or often higher, for rapid activity. Under favorable conditions succulent green manure is usually decomposed to about seven days.

It has been known for many years | ing and cultivation.

that growing a cover crop and plowing it under as a green manure improves the physical character of the soil, increases its capacity to hold water, and helps to prevent erosion. The mere growing of legumes, says Mr. Smith, has a stimulating effect upon the bacterla of the soil, and succeeding crops may be benefited even though the tops of the legumes are removed.

Sweet Clover Gaining

Support in Illinois Nitrogen worth from $20,000,000 to $30,000,000 is produced each year in Illinois by the 750,000 acres of sweet clover, according to C. M. Linsley,

University of Illinois. Nitrogen is needed on practically all Illinois land and sweet clover is a cheap source of this plant food, Through its nodules on the roots the plant gathers nitrogen from the air and when the plant is plowed under or pastured down this nitrogen becomes part of the soil. The nitrogen costs 20 to 30 cents a pound if purchased on the market but can be bad free from the air. An acre of good sweet clover contains 150 pounds of nitrogen or enough for a 100 bushel

The spread of the crop has been rapid, as in 1920 there were only 70,-000 acres of sweet clover in the state and last year there were more than 750,000 acres.

Maturity of Products

Is Influenced by Seed The maturity of garden products is directly influenced by seed, tillage, temperature and soil conditions. Every one of these factors is placed within the hands of the farmer. He may purchase only good seed from a reliable and reputable firm. Do not expect good seed at a low price as much of the cheap seed sold in bulk is from cases that have been "taken up" by the seed houses in the fall and held over and offered at a discount to disences maturity but also controls temperature and moisture; two important factors in vegetable growing. Tillage means all of the operations necessary in raising the crop; plowing, harrow-

In the south the season lasts longer and the honey flow is not so intense. The southern bee needs a longer tongue.

From the standpoint of the redclover grower in the United States it might be desirable, says W. J. Nolan. of the United States Department of Agriculture, to have bees with longer tongues in the red-clover regions. He explains that the corolla tubes of the red-clover blossom are too long for the shorter-tongued honeybees who find it difficult or impossible to gather honey from them. This tends to reduce the visits of all but the longesttongued bees, and, consequently, many clover blossoms are not pollenized by visits of bees and do not bear seed. The races of bees most common in the United States are not exceptionally long tongued. Introduction of longtongued bees in areas where cloverseed production is important would probably result in larger seed crops and in a larger clover-honey supply.

Annual and Perennial

Vegetables in Garden Any good garden has both annual and perennial vegetables. The annuals are those that we plant every spring while the perennials are those that live over from year to year. Examples of the perennials are asparagus, strawberries, rhubarh, perennial rest of the garden is important. Remember that these gardens have to be plowed every year. If a row of perennials is planted across the middle of the garden, the short way, it is going to make plowing difficult. In this case the chances are that they will be plowed up. To avoid this difficulty all vegetables that are to remain in the ground for more than one season should be planted along the side of the garden space, that is, the side running the long way. When located here they cause the least interference with the plowing of the ground.

Sudan Grass Is Useful

for Midsummer Pasture

Summer pasture problems have been met at the Hamilton county (Ohio) experiment station by using sudan grass for midsummer pasture followed by sweet clover. The sudan is sown about June 1 and pastured from July 15 to August 30. Last year seven acres of sudan carried 22 cows. September found the new sweet clover ready for pasture. Ten acres of sweet clover growing in wheat stubble was used for the pasture of the 22 cows until they were stabled in the latter part of October. There was still considerable sweet clover remaining when the cows went to the barn.

The blue grass pastures were accessible to the herd all summer but most of the pasture in latter part came from the supplemental pastures. This method makes use of the different kinds of pasture at the time of the year they are most abundant.

Animal or Vegetable Oils Used on Harness

Harness and leather experts generally agree that only animal or vegetable oils should be used on harness, and are of the opinion that petroleum oils are likely to do more harm than good. The old stand-bys were whale oil and cod oil; but now they usually recommend neat's foot oil or half neat's foot oil and tallow melted together and applied warm but not hot. A good harness oil bought from a reliable firm is onions, etc. Now the place you plant safe and usually just as cheap,

Alfalfa Causes Bloat

of Cattle and Sheep

Alfalfa does cause some bloat of cattle and sheep on pastures. The time of greatest danger from bloat in sheep is when the fresh growth starts in the early spring. Along later, when the weather gets warm, there seems to be a very slight danger of bloat after the sheep are thoroughly accustomed to the alfalfa, provided they are left on there continuously or, if they are taken off, provided they keep getting grass pasture while they are off so they will not enter the alfalfa field very hungry.

The danger of bloating cattle or sheep is greatly reduced if the pasture is a mixture of grass and alfalfa, and the danger of bloating is still further reduced if the cattle are kept on the pasture continuously. There is more danger of milk cows bloating than there is of beef cattle, because when the cattle are taken to milk and kept off the pasture for a few hours, they get such an appetite that they eat the alfalfa too greedily.

Agricultural Squibs

Oat smut is in most fields not being systematically treated.

It pays to use good seed because it means larger yields of better quality

Most people who have used the sile claim they could not get along with-

The quantity and quality of pasture forage may be greatly increased by the application of barnyard manure.

One pint of formaldehyde properly used according to directions will kill oat smut at a cost of not more than 75 cents for 50 hushels of seed oats.

Where pasture burning appears to be necessary it should be done in early spring before the native grass has started growing and after cold weath er is over

USS BERGHERM, the first nine-letter man to graduate at Northwestern university in a number of years, started his last athletic campaign at Evanston when the tennis team of which he is captain opened its season against Loyola university. For the last three years Bergherm has won three letters each year as a member of the football, basketball and tennis team. Ordinarily an athlete confines his activities to two sports only, but Bergherm's versatility enabled him to star in three. Last fall he starred on the football team, finishing the season as high scorer in the Big Ten and being selected by most experts as the

All-Conference fullback. Following - grid season he took up basketball and was regular forward on the Wildcat squad all season, Coach Arthur Nethercot of the tennis team is depending on the big fellow to carry most of the work this spring, as his size and speed make him one of the most valuable men on the squad. Although it's a far call from playing fullback on the football team to wielding a tennis racket, Bergherm seems to be capable of performing the task.

Bert Riel, who also played on both the football and baskethall teams, is another star on the tennis team this spring. Riel was substitute quarterback on the grid eleven and played regular guard on the cage squad.

Besides these two men Coach Nethercot will have three substitutes from last year's squad in John Curtiss, Gil Sheldon and Cliff Nelson. In addition several sophomores are also making a strong bid for a place. They are Bruce Brayton, Joe Euans and Bill Fuller.

YOUNG MR. SUHR FITS FIRST BASE

Fielding and Hitting Seems Entirely Satisfactory.

This young Mr. Suhr, the first basing gentleman of the Pittsburgh Pirates, really looks as though he fits the big league picture.

Of course, it is early to predict anything accurately about a newcomer in the majors. But the boys have been giving the Pittsburgh giant a pretty thorough going over and he's still way ahead of most of them.

His fielding seems to be entirely satisfactory and he appears to have plenty of baseball sense on the field. It is his hitting, of course, that is getting the closest scrutiny.

Suhr stands about the center of the batter's box-hitting left-handedwith his feet well spread and his body and bat poised. So far he has hit to all fields and does not concen trate on one kind of ball.

Charlie Root recently had him swinging on fast ones inside and it began to look as though that was his weakness. But when Fred Blake and the other boys tried that they found the hitter letting them pass with such A man who had made a reputation good effect that it netted him a total as an explorer was asked to talk to a of five bases on balls in six trips to out on a wide curve ball.

What is believed to be a world's low record price for the sale of a twoyear-old occurred at the Lexington auction sales when Adalor T., a half-brother to Mike Hall, famous long-distance runner, brought $25. The youngster was out of the Hal Price Headley consignment and was purchased by John English. This twoyear-old is the son of Tryster-Glonakilty.

Connie Mack is a firm believer in blood lines and heredity. In a game recently against the Yanks Bob Grove was yanked and replaced by Glenn Liebhardt, Jr., the son of Glenn, Sr., who pitched major league baseball years ago. Glenn, Jr., hadn't pitched in the big show before, but managed to turn the New Yorkers back.

"I saw his father pitch many a time and he had lots of courage," said Mack. "I knew that Glenn's boy could be no worse than his father." Liebhardt is a cousin of Dutch Henry, now with the White Sox. The elder Liebhardt taught Dutch and Glenn, Jr., a few tricks in the art of pitching.

One of the first heroes of the conference baseball season was Schneider, Wisconsin's sub first sacker, who in his only two times up connected a homer in the ninth that won the game for his team 4 to 3. Schneider was fortunate on his homer, however, as the Illini outfielder ran in on the ball instead of playing it safely, and it got by him. It should have been held to a double.

Seeing Big League BASEBALL

By BILLY EVANS Sportswriter, Big League Umpire and General Manager of the Cleveland Indians

"You can't beat thim hours, me hve. three to five." That was a favorite expression of the late Tim Hurst, when an umpire, after an unusually tough day, would express his disgust with his job.

Hurst was a pictureque character; the game probably will never know another just like him. He had a keen sense of humor, withering sarcasm that he used to advantage on the protesting players, and the courage of a spartan. Tact and diplomacy are supposed to be most necessary assets of an umpire. Tim didn't think much of either, unless gifted repartee, in which he seldom came out second best, might be so construed.

Perhaps no person connected with aseball plays a more important part in what may be termed the "artistic" success of a ball game than the umpire, yet he is merely regarded in the light of a necessary evil. Only when he fails to show up for a ball game is his worth appreciated. Aside from being a necessary evil the umpire is baseball's greatest alibi, either from the viewpoint of player or fan. If a player gets the worst of a close decision, if he is called out on a perfect third strike, he can attempt to shift the responsibility by protesting the umpire's decision. And what a relief it is to some fans after a defeat to recall how differently things would have been had the umpire called the ball hit down the third base line fair instead of foul. Fandom was a unit in regarding it as fair, but the umpire thought otherwise. The two runs that should have scored on that hit would have won the ball game.

I have said the umpire is a most important asset from an artistic standpoint; however, only a limited few umpires have had anything to do with the financial end of the game. Star players like Ruth, Johnson, Hornsby, Foxx and others of that caliber, pack them in at the gate, but it is doubtful if any umpire today is ever responsible for a single person passing through the turnstile, unless it be some friend of his with a complimentary ticket.

The announcement that Walter Johnson was to pitch was always a magnet. If Babe Ruth is on a homerun rampage the fans jam the stands to see him in action. The year that Ruth broke the home-run record by clouting sixty circuit swats, he broke and re-broke attendance records at every American league park a half-dozen times. The fans care not who umpires just so long as he does a good job of it. If he is satisfactory he draws silence, never applause. It is only when fandom disagrees with him that he receives any vocal consideration at all. Much has been written about the competency and incompetency of the umpires, probably the last has been more widely heralded. Don't get me wrong, for I feel that the fans do like to see a game well handled by the umpires. However, I have always believed if there came a time when every decision of the umpire were considered correct, and the games always perfectly umpired, that baseball would immediately lose one of its strongest selling points. For it is really surprising the pleasure a lot of people get out of believing that had the umpire not repeatedly erred in his rulings, the home team would have been victorious. The umpire is a favorite alibl and always will be. On this point the status of the umpire has been much improved in the last fifteen years. The attitude taken by the newspaper writers, who cover the ball games, has tended to make the work much easier. In the old days the alibi was much favored in explaining defeats through the press, and the umpire wasn't overlooked as a target Today it is much different.

Friel Became Dutchman to Please Customers

When Business Manager Billy Friel of the St. Louis Browns was playing with Milwaukee his name was changed to August by a shrewd club owner who knew that such a monicker would make a great hit with the German fans who came to watch the Brewers.

"I made an average of about two errors a day," said Friel recently, "but my misplays were all overlooked." "Hit der pall to Oogust-he'll get dem," was the friendly chorus shouted

Bill's way. One day, as Friel tells it, he had an especially bad afternoon. He had fanned a couple of times, and had made some bad throws to Jiggs Donahue, who was playing first base. Presently a loud voice arose from the third base section. "Some fine stuff you pull, hey?" came the shout. "A fine Cherman, yes. How about your brudders, Mike, Pat and Dinney?

It was raus mit 'em for Bill thereafter.

WORKERS TRAPPED AS BLAST WRECKS PLANT

Several Women Among Dead in Packing House Explosion.

St. Joseph, Mo.-With all the missing accounted for, the final death toll of the explosion that wrecked the Armour and company plant here stood at eighteen. The last body, that of Frank Wieczorek, was removed from the ruins, and a short time later one of the injured, Mrs. Flora Miller, died in a hospital.

The entire six-story building was wrecked. It appeared as if the structure had been lifted and then settled down. Fire department officials advanced the theory that huge ammonia tanks in the building had exploded.

No fire followed the explosion, but choking ammonia fumes spread through the wreckage, gassing the trapped victims.

A force of 35 girls was employed on the fifth floor. Some of them escaped from the building before it was torn The debris was piled to about the height of the third story. Rescue workers worked many hours to extricate the bodies of those caught on the ground floor. Two hundred and fifty employees of the Armour plant and approximately 500 volunteer rescuers toiled with axes, crowbars and every Instrument that came to their hands to clear away the wreckage in search of Floodlights were set up to illuminate he scene after dark.

A railroad switch engine was pressed into service to pull away blocks of debris.

Within a few minutes after the blast a crowd of 1,500 spectators and frantic relatives of persons trapped in the structure milled about the gates of the big plant. The scene was one of wild confusion. Firemen, fighting against the strangulating ammonia fumes, sought to clear their way through the mass of debris. Women screaming in the crowd of spectators added to the uproar. Three firemen were overcome before the fumes cleared away.

Officials of the company said the damages would amount to $450,000, W. E. Renfrow, general manager of the plant, declared that he believed natural gas caused the explosion. Renfrow said there were no major ammonia lines in the building which could have caused such an explosion.

Police Officers Slain; One Is Burned Alive.

Bombay, India.-Abbas Tyabji, who succeeded Mahatma Gandhi as leader of the Indian civil disobedience movement, and all his immediate followers were arrested at Navsari as they prepared for a raid on the government salt depots at Dharsaana.

London .- A graphic story of bloodshed and ferocity in the Sholapur (India) riots, in which three police officers were killed, one burned alive, and five missing, was received in London. The dispatch gave the first detailed account of the Sholapur disturbances, in which a mob of 10,000 natives terrorized the city.

With only 100 armed police and 30 volunteers, the district collector attempted to restore order in the city of 120,000 inhabitants, eight hours journey from Bombay. The collector and 25 constables fought their way through a savage mob of 1,000, resorting to firearms as a last measure. The casualties among the rioters are estimated at 50 killed and 400 wounded.

Bombay.-Hope of an early end of difficulties with the cohorts of civil disobedience went down in blood and ashes, while cavalry forces rode upon Sholapur, where 50 were killed during one session of rioting.

Adherents of Mahatma Gandhi had seized that city of 120,000 inhabitants. Resisting the local authorities, who had forbidden their assemblage, the angry natives maintained attacks which threw the city into chaos

Local police were powerless. Citizen reserves, who joined them, were thrown back by the rioters. Troops rushed into this textile community likewise proved unable to cope with the situation. Six police stations and the magistrate's court were burned. and all liquor shops in town suffered a similar fate.

The trouble started when a number of volunteers in the civil disobedience program started cutting down palm trees from which liquor is taken. They ignored police orders to stop. A district magistrate was summoned. He warned them to disperse. Instead, the crowd, increasing in numbers every minute, refused, and the police were ordered to open fire.

In an instant the fury of the mob was unleashed. The fire of the troops was returned with missiles. The mob surged forward. The small detachment of officers was thrust aside. With its lists of dead and probably more than a hundred wounded Sholapur sent out calls for troops and more

European women and children were removed to a point of safety. Sholapur is an important seat 220 miles southeast of Bombay. The outbreak came as a serious blow to the brighter prospects which had been the result of recent comparative calm.

-All sections of India are showing their defiance of British rule as the result of the arrest of Mahatma Gandhi, the "holy one" and leader of the civil disobedience campaign. Censored press dispatches indicate uprisings in many sections. At Cawapore more than 30,000 Gandhi followers danced about a huge bontire of foreign made cloth. Nanking.-Severe fighting, with beavy casualties, was reported here as the northern military alliance began a drive toward Nanking, capital of the Nationalist government of China. Five thousand counded Nationalists arrived at Suchow from the battle fronts, and 2,000 other wounded were brought to this city. The number of Nationalists killed was kept secret by the censor. Northern casualties were

Walls Hide Important

Part of the Plumbing A very important part of the plumbing of a house is hidden in the walls and under the floors, and for this reason the man who expects to build should deal only with plumbing contractors who can submit a list of homes in which they have installed plumbing that has given lasting satisfaction to the owners. The usual specifications drawn up by an architect cover the fixtures very definitely, but are quite general with reference to the pipes, valves, and fit tings-the essential yet concealed part or the plumbing system. It is in this part of the plumbing system that the owner must depend on the plumbing is in the concealed part of the plumbing system that quality is of the highest importance. Any breakdown in this part of the system necessitates the cutting of walls and subjects the family to a great deal of expense and inconvenience.

Therefore, to the man who is building this spring, this suggestion is offered: Deal with a responsible contractor so that first cost will be last cost in your plumbing system.

The reputable plumbing contractor will use pipes, valves, and fittings of good quality for his "roughing in" materials. He will not try to save money and thus come out even on a low bid by substituting inferior materials where they will not be seen. Workmen employed by good con tractors have been taught the mechanical installation of a plumbing system that will not be noisy in operation. For instance, the soil pipe which runs from the basement up to the roof of the house can be made sound proof with a one-inch thickness of hair felt The use of felt has another advan-

"Me and you," declared the sergeant, we go see. I beggle-pardle, Sinabada, I walk first." He set his sturdy bulk in front, and, by the last faint glow of twilight, began cutting a path through the forest, Pia following. A few minutes later, the two came out on the edges of a second clearing; one that seemed to have been made for the sole accommodation of a great white tent that stood in the middle of it. The doorway was wide, the doorflaps were hooked back. One could see right into the tent, and the sight-for that place, and that timewas amazing.

There was a table inside, covered with a white cloth. On it were plates of food, tinned delicacies of all sorts; wild boar from the forest; wild turkey, okari nuts, mushrooms. There were glasses. There were bottles.

Youth and gaiety and recklessness were embodied, if ever human form expressed them, by the limber, redheaded figure of a girl, who, gaudily dressed, hung over a man lying on a cushioned deck chair. The girl, at the top of her not unmusical voice, was chanting the ast revue success, while the man, an emptied glass dropping from his fingers, wailed loudly and interminably that classic of the sentimentally drunk—"Annia Laurie." Outside, the silence, the stars,

"I think this-one too much puripuri (magic), Sinabada. More better you-me (we) no stop," Head-hunters, cannibals, the ambush and the spearpit, never shook the iron nerve of the old sergeant; such things were in the day's work of any policeman. But sorcery-was a different matter.

"Hush, sergeant," warned the girl. "I want to find out about this." For into her mind had crept a conviction, born she knew not how, warning her that this thing had to do with the object of her journey. "Who is the white man?" she whis-

"Him all right, Sinabada, suppose no body showem girl along him, showem goodluck along him. Suppose girl, goodluck showem this man, he 'nother kind." (Untranslatable idiom, suggesting change of character.)

"He's not the only one," commented drily society's pet child. "I think I know who the girl is now. I've seen her before. Only for Phil, she would be at the bottom of the sea. Now, sergeant, you and I are going to talk to these people."

"Me and you, we go," answered the sergeant, swelling out his chest. Mechanically he touched the long bayonet-knife that swung in its sheath at his hip. For infighting, Sergeant Simoi loved the bayonet. . . . (TO BE CONTINUED)

"Dutch Treat" Makes No Hit With Modern Girl

if it is proper to let the girls pay for their share of an evening's entertainment we reply that it is, Perfectly proper but highly improbable. Experiments have been made in this direction, but somehow or other they didn't work. Even when the girls propose the idea it doesn't make a hit with them if the boys take them too literally in the final settlement. Posi-tivvly, the girls don't like it. May be it is because woman is more conservative than man, and one of her inherited privileges is to say that the woman pays while she sees that the man does it.

Of course, when the girls suggest a dutch treat the wise thing is to seem to fall in with the idea, and then to buzz your own girl into granting you the very special favor of letting you pay her shot. You can do this in the strictest confidence and with the safe

Feminine Punctuation

Of the national magazines especially devoted to the interest of women and largely written by them I discover none which applies even a moderately civilized degree of editorial restraint in the matter of purposeless quotation marks.

Women-apparently without any teaching or encouragement except from each other-have evolved their own idiom in the quotation mark, the exclamation point, the dash, the underline. So instinctive is many a woman's use of these devices where no man would think of using them that one actually hears them constantly in her oral utterances. Feminine punctuation alone can make a statistical essay on insurance read like baby talk .- Wilson Follett in the

WINDSTORM DAMAGES BARN

During the severe electrical and windstorm of Wednesday evening of last week the east side of the large barn on the Joseph Gehl farm near St. Lawrence was moved off the foundation a few inches, taking the doors off and badly wrecking things in the interior. Also when the brooderhouse on the same place was blown off its foundation, the stove in it tipped, igniting the interior, and burning to death 550 baby chicks one day old, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kobs of West which had just been placed in the chicks.-Hartford Times.
