AUTOISTS HAVE MIRACULOUS ESCAPE

Dr. N. W. Nolting, one of our local dentists, Ernst Claus, one of the members of the Kewaskum Hardware and Electric company, Ted Azzurella of Milwaukee and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Kumrow and three children of West Bend, had a very narrow escape from serious injury and death last Sunday afternoon at about three o'clock, when they met with an automobile accident at the cross road at the Orchard Grove cheese factory, about six miles southeast of here. Ted Azzurella, who was driving a new Nash coupe and his passengers Dr. Nolting and Mr. Claus, were driving east on Highway H, while Mr. Kumrow and his family, who were driving a new Dodge sedan were coming from the south on Highway 141. It appears that when the Nash car run onto the intersection it was right in the path of the Dodge car, which struck the Nash machine on the side, with the result that both cars rolled over several times the Dodge landing upside down and the Nash tipped over on its side. Kumrow, Nolting and Claus were thrown out of their machines, while Mr. Azzurella, who practically escaped injury, upon stepping out of his car, noticed that Mrs. Kumrow and children were pinned beneath their car which had already caught fire, he quickly ran to their assistance extricated them from the wreckage and then extinguished the fire. Dr. Nolting and Mr. Claus were rendered unconscious. The five injured were taken to hospitals at West Bend where it was learned that Doctor Nolting had sustained cuts and bruises on his arm and leg, he was able to return here on Monday afternoon. Mr. Claus suffered from cuts and bruises on his face and body. The index finger on his left hand was so badly lacerated that it had to be amputated at the first joint on Monday morning. He is expected to return to his home here either Thursday or Friday. Mr. and Mrs. Kumrow suffered from cuts and bruises on their arms and body, while their three children, with the exception of one of which suffered a few minor bruises, escaped injury. All of the patients are doing very nicely and will soon be able to attend to their work. All of the unfortunate people surely deserve to be congratulated upon their lucky escape from far more serious injury and possible death. Both machines are badly damaged.

WHAT DOES FIRE MEAN TO YOU

The fire loss of Wisconsin in 1929 was over $9,000,000, in the United States over $473,000,000. That much of the nation's wealth was wasted, turned into smoke and ashes, and no insurance moneys could replace it. The consequential and incidental losses are hard to estimate in dollars and cents, but are even larger than the direct property loss. Manufacturers and Business Men With fire the manufacturing business and income stop; some of the overhead expenses still continue. Unfilled contracts and orders must be turned over to former competitors, and no new contracts can be assumed. Old customers make other business connections, and may never return. Valued employees must leave, the factory and sales force becomes disintegrated, and the whole organization is destroyed. If the business was on borrowed capital largely, the owner may find fire "the last straw to break the camel's back." Credit ratings become impaired. Plans, blue prints, drawings, models, books and records may be destroyed. Older men may not have the courage to once more start at the beginning to build up a business. Employees The job is gone, the pay envelope stops. If other employment cannot be found in the home town, the workman must move, and sacrifice his home. The family is deprived of comforts and necessities, and the schooling of children is interrupted. Home Owners Family pictures, keepsakes, heirlooms, jewelry and other things, whose sentimental value is far beyond the intrinsic worth, may be lost, also moneys. Records, deeds, contracts and libraries may be destroyed. Insurance may not be sufficient to rebuild the home, which meant so much to the entire family. Public The people pay the fire losses, not the insurance companies. Owners of burnt factories and idle employees cannot buy and the grocer, the butcher, the baker and candle-maker and all tradesmen suffer. Because of preventable fires the public must tax itself to maintain expensive water works, and strong and costly fire fighting forces and equipment. Ten thousand human torches and seventeen thousand five injuries a year. Think of these things and prevent fires. More than 70% of the fires can be prevented. INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION SECOND AREA TEST OF COUNTY STARTED JULY 7. County Agent E. D. Byrns reports that the second general test for tuberculosis of all of the cattle in Washington county began on Monday, July 7. It is one of the tests which are made every three years under the area test law. H. J. O'Connell of the State Force is in charge of the group of men doing the testing which consists of both local veterinarians and veterinarians employed by the state on the T. B. force. At the time the first area test was made in Washington county, one and two-tenths percent of the cattle reacted and were condemned for slaughter. This was an unusually small percentage of infection for the first test and it is confidently expected that this present test will show less than one half of one percent of infection which will place Washington county on the modified accredited list. The test is being conducted under the new state indemnity law under which reactors are appraised by the veterinarian and owner. At the time they are condemned, the owner receives an indemnity of the amount of two-thirds of the difference of the salvage value and the value at which the animal was appraised. The maximum indemnity from state and federal funds is in no case more than $70 for the grade animal or more than $140 for purebred animals. The veterinarians doing the testing solicit and merit the cooperation of all cattle owners of various townships in Washington county. FARMERS TAKE NOTICE I will haul your chickens and poultry for 50 cents a coop, and you will get Milwaukee market for cash, we have coops. Also haul your live stock from your door to Milwaukee for 40 cents per hundred and also buy your milk cows at a good price. Phone 991 Kewaskum.—K. A. On Saturday, June 28th, at 7 p. m., Rev. G. Kaniess, pastor of the Emanuel Lutheran church in the town of Scott, united in holy bonds of matrimony Miss Lorena Decliver, daughter of Mrs. Wm. Decliver of the town of Scott and Arthur Heberer, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Heberer of the town of Auburn. "The Lohengrin" wedding march was played by Mrs. Erwin Krautkramer. The bride wore a white satin dress, trimmed with tulle with a tight bodice and full skirt of floor length. Her long veil was in lace cap effect arranged with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of roses, baby's breath and ferns. The couple were attended by Miss Laura Heberer, sister of the groom as maid of honor and Miss Ruth Krueger, niece of the bride as bridesmaid, while Raymond Vetter, cousin of the bride, acted as best man and John Heberer, brother of the groom as usher. The maid of honor wore a pink georgette dress, trimmed with tulle, she wore a head band of rhinestone and carried an arm bouquet of pink carnations, larkspur and baby's breath. The bridesmaid wore a peach colored georgette dress trimmed with lace and wore a head band of rhinestone, larkspur and baby's breath. The flower girl, Beulah Melius, niece of the bride, wore a pale green crepe du chine dress and wore a ribbon in her hair carrying a basket of mixed flowers. COMMUNITY PICNIC PLANS PROGRESS

Twenty years ago, in horse and buggy days, people came to picnics and public gatherings with horses to see automobiles; now they come for miles in automobiles to see horses perform. The latter will be the case at the Washington county community picnic at Schoenbeck's grove on July 27 when one of the features will be an exhibition of high jumping horses from the Washington County Hunt club. City men as well as farmers who are interested in riding will compete. Music arrangements for the big time picnic are going on with a bang. Prof. B. E. Gordon of the University of Wisconsin, and Miss Beatrice Perlman of the Western Reserve University of Cleveland, Ohio, will be there to lead the assembled thousands in general singing. To sing with Prof. Gordon as leader and Miss Perlman as pianist is itself a picnic. In addition, one thousand five hundred children will sing under their leadership. Special arrangements have been made for the amusement of the young people by the engagement of Miss Beulah M. Olcott, specially chosen for that day by Supt. Milton C. Potter of Milwaukee. She will be assisted by a play-ground leader from the University of Wisconsin and other leaders from the county. The poet is right. We must "hold our cups" if we are to enjoy life. The cups will be filled to overflowing if the young bring them to the community picnic. Then the older people will not be forgotten. Among the entertaining stunts will be a "tug of war." "War is right," is the statement made by Otto Schoenbeck, who is selecting the country brawn to match in strength with the giants of the city to be chosen by M. T. Buckley. Tune up the car for long distance driving and big families, for Art. Quade will give prizes for the biggest families at the picnic and to the family driving the longest distance and for other achievements. Committees are not planning any longer; they have planned everything and are ready now to put the picnic over with a finish that will please everybody. This is a day when we cease to be Kiwanians or Rotarians, West Benders or Hartforders, country people or city people, to become just citizens of Washington county at a gathering where all differences that separate are forgotten to demonstrate how big we are when we gather on a platform to promote the common good.

EXPLAINS NEW WEED LAW

A group of Town Chairmen, Weed Commissioners and others interested in the weed problem met at the County Agent's office Wednesday, July 2, to discuss weed control and to hear A. L. Stone, State Director of Seed Inspection and Weed Control, discuss changes made in the State Law by the last legislature. Under the new law the weed commissioner is no longer required to serve a written notice on the owner or occupant of weed infested land. Two methods of notifying land holders are provided. The first makes it the duty of the Town Chairman, Village President, or City Mayor to cause the notices to be posted in at least four conspicuous places in each weed district in his township or city. As presiding officer he is also held responsible for seeing that the notices are published for two successive weeks in at least two papers having general circulation in his town, village or city. Noxious weeds are divided into two classes: Class 1 consists of Canada Thistle, Quack Grass, Goats Beard, and Charlock or Wild Mustard. Class 2 includes Field Dodder, Indian Mustard, Ox-eye Daisy, Snap Dragon and Perennial Sow Thistle. The law requires that weeds in Class 1 be cut before they bear seed under penalty. The new law provides for a fine of not less than $10 or more than $500 for failure or neglect to comply with it. A. L. Stone concluded his discussion with observations on the weed menace in Wisconsin and pointed out the necessity of community co-operation in combating it.

FARMERS WARNED TO CUT WHEAT ACREAGE

Continued Large Crops Will Mean Lower Prices.

Washington—Forecasting a larger world wheat crop in 1930 than in 1929 with little hope for permanent higher prices, the Department of Agriculture in its world wheat outlook issued stressed the necessity for a general reduction of wheat acreage on American farms.

"Extensive adjustment in wheat acreage, including substantial reduction in cost per bushel, must be made if wheat production is to be profitable to growers generally in the next six to ten years," the outlook report stated. "This is necessary to meet intensified competition in world markets, due to increasing production in this and other countries, without a corresponding increase in effective demand."

The facts and warning contained in the outlook report, prepared by the bureau of agricultural economics from official estimates, were made public on the eve of the opening of an intensive campaign by the federal farm board to reduce wheat production.

Chairman Alexander delivered a radio speech on that subject and has started a speaking tour of the south-west wheat growing country to push the campaign further. He is using the outlook report as a background for his speeches.

During the last few weeks the farm board has sought in every way to focus attention upon the wheat acreage problem as the essence of its program rather than upon its own financial operations, causing the belief to spread that the board expects to put the problem directly up on the doorstep of the farmers rather than let them rely upon the board's financial aid to keep wheat prices up.

Although expressing the view that the present low prices of wheat should improve somewhat, the outlook report declared that "the present prospect is that world wheat prices during the next seven years will average appreciably lower than in the past seven years."

"In the period July 1, 1923, to July 1, 1929, the price of No. 2 hard winter wheat at Kansas City averaged $1.28 a bushel," the report continued. "The average for June, 1929, was about 90 cents a bushel. As in the past variation in price is expected. In the years of short world crops with business conditions normal or better prices will doubtless be much higher than those now prevailing but in other years large world crops may result in prices even below the present level."

Secretary Hyde Cites Advantages in Tariff

Washington—Agriculture has obtained a "distinct gain" in the passage of the new tariff law, Secretary of Agriculture Hyde declared in a radio address the past week.

He said the new act provides increased protection both actually and potentially, for the farmers and that it would preserve the domestic market for the American producer. In addition, it would stimulate agriculture to balance supply and demand, he said.

"The new act reduces, even though it may not entirely eliminate, the disparity in tariff protection which has existed between agricultural and industrial products," said the secretary. "On an equivalent ad valorem basis the percentage of increase in agricultural product, (schedule 7) is more than twice as large as the increase upon other schedules in the bill."

Bar Association Will Vote on Dry Repeal

New York—The American Bar association will begin a secret poll two weeks among its 30,000 members throughout the country to determine their attitude toward repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

The decision to undertake the poll was made after twelve years of aloofness from the prohibition controversy. The executive committee of the association said it could no longer resist pressure from within the membership ranks for an expression of opinion on the subject.

The ballots will be sent out July 15 along with bills for annual membership dues. They will ask the position of each member on the liquor issue and request his idea about putting the association on record in the controversy. If there is a negative vote for the latter the ballots will be torn up and no result revealed.

Tax Reduction Program Still Favored by Mellon.

Washington—The fiscal year 1930 closed with a surplus of $184,000,000, Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon announced. This amount represents the difference between receipts and expenditures. The public debt was reduced during the year by $74,000,000. There was a net balance in the general fund at the close of the year of $318,060,000.

While the surplus was substantially the same as in the fiscal year 1929, Secretary Mellon pointed out that it included the abnormal sum of $76,000,000 paid by foreign governments in June in cash instead of in securities of the American government and also included abnormal customs receipts, due to anticipation of tariff legislation.

Secretary Mellon made no comments with respect to the possibility of a continuation of this year's tax reduction. In his recent letter to the President with reference to veterans' legislation Mr. Mellon expressed the hope that any representatives adopted the low tax rates, and this is still his position despite present prospects of a deficit in the fiscal year 1931.

The reduction in the public debt during the year was greater than in the fiscal year 1929, when it amounted to about $673,000,000, but was not as great as in the fiscal year 1928, when $907,000,000 was cut from the debt. Of the $746,000,000 reduction in the last year $554,000,000 were attributed to the sinking fund and other retirement chargeable against ordinary receipts. The total gross debt at the close of the fiscal year was $16,185,000,000 as compared with $16,631,000,000 on June 30, 1929.

Income taxes for the year showed an increase of $80,000,000, while customs receipts increased $80,000,000.

Two Unemployment Bills Are Adopted by House

Washington—Without a record vote, the house of representatives adopted two of the bills sponsored by Senator Wagner, Democrat of New York, designed to reduce the danger of extensive unemployment.

One of the bills creates a board of four cabinet members to survey the unemployment situation periodically and authorizes an appropriation for public construction purposes to take care of any emergency.

The other directs the government to make monthly reports on unemployment, instead of quarterly, which is the practice followed by the Department of Labor at present. The department of labor is directed to gather complete statistics for the use of the unemployment board.

Wiley, Food Specialist, Is Dead at Eighty-Six

Washington—The long and turbulent campaign of Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, noted pure food specialist, to protect the public against adulterated food and drugs was ended by death the past week.

The eighty-six-year-old scientist died after he had been virtually an invalid for eight months from heart disease. Doctor Wiley began a life long crusade against adulterated food and drugs in 1883 when he became chief chemist of the Department of Agriculture. He led the fight which resulted in enactment of the pure food and drug laws and kept a watchful eye on their administration almost until the end.

HOOVER IS EXPECTED TO VETO VETS' BILL

Senate's Act Raises Costs to $641,000,000.

Washington—Again ignoring President Hoover's recommendations, the senate passed the World War veterans' bill after loading it down with amendments which, if retained, would be virtually certain to result in another veto.

The bill was passed by a vote of 56 to 11. The Walsh-Connelly amendment increasing pension rates to the Spanish war level was adopted by a vote of 37 to 26. Several other amendments were approved.

Possibility of getting the bill into such shape that it can be signed by President Hoover hinges on action by conferees of the senate and house. Administration leaders believe that the conferees will eliminate most of the objectionable features added by the senate and will submit a conference report nearer in line with the bill which was passed recently by the house after it had sustained the President's veto of the original veterans' measure.

The senate named Senators James E. Watson (Rep., Ind.), David A. Reed (Rep., Pa.), Samuel Shortridge (Rep., Calif.), David I. Walsh (Dem., Mass.), and W. F. George (Dem., Ga.), as conferees.

As passed by the senate the veterans' bill is estimated to cost about $88,000,000 in the fiscal year 1931, $116,000,000 in the fiscal year 1932, $143,000,000 in the fiscal year 1933, $155,000,000 in the fiscal year 1934 and $167,000,000 in the fiscal year 1935, a total of $641,000,000 during the five years.

The house bill, which had the sanction of the administration, was estimated to cost $31,000,000 in the fiscal year 1931, $58,000,000 in the fiscal year 1932, $71,000,000 in the fiscal year 1933, $74,000,000 in the fiscal year 1934 and $82,000,000 in the fiscal year 1935, a total of $319,000,000 in the five years.

The Walsh-Connelly amendment, added by the senate over the protest of administration spokesmen, provides for disability allowances or pensions of $10 per month for one-fourth disability, $20 per month for one-half disability, $50 per month for three-fourths disability and $90 per month for total disability.

These rates were a substitute for the house bill rates of $12 per month for 25 per cent disability, $18 per month for 50 per cent disability, $24 per month for 75 per cent disability and $40 per month for 100 per cent disability.

Farmers Urged Not to Rush Wheat to Market

Washington.—The farm board in a statement a few days ago advised farmers to store their wheat rather than rush it to market and contribute to lower prices and congested terminals.

"The rushing of such a large percentage of the crop to market frequently results in congestion of storage at terminals to the extent that owners of private elevator space are enabled to fill their bins at prices substantially below the current market value," said the statement.

"We feel that the present tendency on the part of farmers to keep more of the wheat at home is a movement in the right direction."

N. J. Political Parties Adopt Anti-Dry Planks

Trenton, N. J.—Platform planks proposing repeal of the prohibition amendment were adopted by both Republican and Democratic state conventions here. The Republican plank represents the views of Dwight M. Morrow, the senatorial nominee, and pledges the party to repeal of the amendment and return to state control of liquor, but until such change is effected, the party calls for strict enforcement of the dry laws. The platform also calls for ratification of the London naval treaty and praises the new tariff bill. The Democratic platform opposes ratification by the United States of the naval pact.

Many attractive home builders seek the unusual when they select the design of the house they intend to build. The home shown in the illustration is most unusual, as it has many features which will appeal to the home owner, and its exterior appearance is different from that generally seen. The side hang of the false roof from the second floor gives it a rather unusual appearance. The house contains six rooms and bath, is 26 feet wide and 22 feet deep. The kitchen projects out from the rear, giving opportunity for a balcony connected with one of the bedrooms on the second floor. Another unusual feature of the house is the brick floored terrace with the leading into the sun room, 21 feet long and 7 feet 6 inches wide. The rooms in this house are larger than is ordinarily found and will be noted from the floor plan.

Typical Shower Stall Has Two Rows of Sprays

The increasing popularity of the shower bath has resulted in many improvements in the operation of the fixtures as well as the development of various types of showers. All, however, may be classified under two general headings: The shower in a stall or compartment and the shower placed over a tub.

Shower stalls are made out of marble, slate, steel, glass, or tile. Many tile shower stalls are equipped with a receptor of vitreous china or porcelain. Other tile stalls have a sheet of lead under the tile. All stalls are made so that they are absolutely water tight.

An absolutely water-proof, polished plate-glass door with ventilating grills is used on the better grade of shower stalls. Many are equipped with an electric dome light.

The standard size for a shower stall is 42 by 42 inches and 36 by 36 inches, although stalls in other dimensions may be obtained. One of the chief advantages of the shower stall over the shower in the tub is that the stall may be equipped with side sprays. The most popular equipment for a stall consists of three sprays arranged one above the other on two sides of the stall. In addition there is an overhead shower which functions independently of the side sprays. The majority of people who use shower stalls prefer the use of the side sprays only. The top row of sprays is equipped with adjustable ball joints so that the water may be directed at any angle desired. Thus, persons of different heights may bathe in comfort.

The side sprays are the so-called "needle-point" sprays. This term is used because they have very small openings. The higher the pressure of water, the greater will be the force of the water issuing from the sprays. A pressure of at least 30 pounds is recommended by the manufacturers.

Striking the body with such great force, the water makes the blood rush to the surface with consequent stimulation of the blood flow. All therapeutic rooms in hospitals are equipped with sprays of this type.

In direct contrast to the spray is the rain head which has a large quantity of water under pressure to strike the body, pouring onto the body in the form of a rain. This type of shower is full of the shower heads are made in sizes up to 16 inches in diameter.

While younger people prefer needle spray with water at pressure, older people like the spray. Many older people like the needle-point spray. In fact, a quantity of rain heads, 10 inches or more in diameter, are widely used at golf clubs.

Here's How to Prevent Mortar Efflorescence

Permanence of mortar joints depends not only on material selected, but also on the way in which it is mixed. A good job of masonry is spoiled by the use of a mortar that fades the color or that leaves a scum of efflorescence on the joint.

One material, said to eliminate condition, contains none of the acids, alkalis or salts that at times used and cause efflorescence. A small amount of this material used in this manner further protection to the joint, causing it prevents moisture from entering the mortar and bleeding the pigments.

Clinker Bricks, Once Discarded, Now Popular

Ten years ago the clinker brick called because it frequently cracked of the kiln with the fused spots of a red furnace clinker, was lost to the manufacturer and almost chucked into the rubbish heap. Today clinker bricks are used in construction of the most important brick houses and sold at a higher price than the run of kiln brick. The clinker in any kiln is small, and clinker brick has become popular.

Adapt Architecture to Style of the Locality

Can America adopt modern architecture and, at the same time, preserve those distinctive features that have been developed through centuries in the colonial mansions of the South, the red brick homes of New England, the Spanish-influenced buildings of the Southwest, and in other widely scattered regions? The answer, unlikely as it may seem, is "Yes," according to Walter H. Kilham, widely known architect, who points out in the American Architect Magazine that the feat is being accomplished in New England.

PARADE

By Evelyn Campbell

THE STORY

When Evelyn's father, never-remembered when she was seven, died, she inherited a fortune of $100,000. Her father's friend, Senator, had agreed to dispose of the money for her. She had become engaged to a young man named Gregory.

Gregory was a handsome young man, a graduate of the law school of the University of Wisconsin. He was a true product of the West. He had a strong sense of duty and a high sense of honor. He was a true gentleman.

Gregory was a true product of the West. He had a strong sense of duty and a high sense of honor. He was a true gentleman. He was a true product of the West.

as a stone wall. She felt him staring at her, and suddenly she saw behind the high lights of his dominant gray eyes merely a boyish boastful something that brought contempt stronger than fear into her being.

"All my money!" Roth burst out laughing. "So that's it!" and she felt ashamed.

"I never had very much," he went on indifferently. "Lord love you, child, you can't run about as I've done without spending a pile. That African expedition, when the other fellows didn't pay up, put the final crimp in me." And then he added blithely, "It's a good thing you don't have to depend entirely on me."

Linda was enveloped in a blaze of swift indignation. "You married me believing I had more money," she accused, and writhed in shame and self-disgust. "It's just that old joke about the bitter bit—"

But he shook his head. "No, Linda, I knew all about you. I looked you up, of course. You're taking too tragic a view of it all. It doesn't require actual money to get along. There's ways of getting everything you want. You possess something that's worth more than money, and I've a little of the same thing. It got over with you and your people, which proves it. We don't need money, you and I. We can have everything without it."

She was struggling with a sensation of utter collapse. Certain phrases he used humiliated as facts appalled her. His "I looked you up, of course," filled her with loathing for him and for herself. He had looked her up, but she had been a fool and taken him, on trust. Worse than a fool—a failure.

"No, Linda, I know all about you. I looked you up, of course."

"Why, you are just an adventurer!" she cried scornfully.

"Perhaps," he shrugged, "but not bourgeois. I am afraid, my dear, you have more to learn than I thought. You haven't found out that it's not what you are but what people think you are that counts. All clever persons know that, or they're not fit to meet the world."

This was all oddly familiar. Talk she had heard before; talk in a dream. She sat still, pressing her fingertips against her pale lips—thinking of what she should do. Of course, she could leave Roth, but she rejected this thought as it came to her. She was not an adventurer if he was, and aside from that it was impossible to admit to her friends and to Cousin Amy that she had been a fool in spite of her attitude of cleverness. She thought of Senator Converse and the sureness of what he would say, and this thought made her shudder. In some indefinable way she seemed to be closer to him now than before her marriage. He was so close that she could touch his hand. Something within her warned that one mistake now, one more error, and she would not escape from him as she had in the past. Of course she had not been blinded to the fact that he admired her, that he would have paid any price for her. Cousin Amy's world had not left her in ignorance of that.

Roth felt sorry for her, though he was far from reading her thoughts. She was so lovely and childlike with that dreamy look in her eyes. He took her in his arms and kissed her tenderly.

"Don't fret, dear. When you worry you let people behind the scenes, and you've got to watch out for that. It's a wonderful game, once you learn how to play, and you'll find a lot of clever, amusing people playing it with us. Let the duds with the bank accounts pay the bills while we amuse 'em, eh? It's a profession in itself, making the other fellow pay and teaching him to like it."

Her tears dropped upon the pearls on her breast.

Marvels of Space

Who can comprehend the distance of "twelve millions of billions of miles" at which a picture, reproduced in the Sphere, was taken of a spiral nebula in Ursa Major—famously known as The Plough? Even astronomers find such figures unwieldy, so they cut them down, in drastic manner, to "light-years" of measurement. This is a trifling unit of six million million miles, making Ursa Major, in easy language, only 2,000,000 light-years away from us! Incidentally, that means the light we see left The Plough two million years ago.

Cube Root Fatal to Cattle Grubs

Entomologists Successful in Its Use to Control the Pest.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Whoever would think of trying to solve a problem in entomology by applying cube root! As a matter of fact that is exactly what federal entomologists did try—and with gratifying success. The cube root, however, has no relation to the mathematical process familiar to high school students. Even the pronunciation is different, and "cube" is divided into two syllables—coo-by—and the root is the root of a South American plant which is now considered a highly promising source of insect poisons. The poisonous principle in the cube plant is "rotenone," the same poison that is more familiar in dermis powder.

Best Control Methods.

In trying to discover the best methods for controlling the grub that infests cattle and causes knobby bunches to form in their backs, federal entomologists experimented with several powders. They sprinkled these powders on the backs of infested cattle and observed the effect on the grubs. Other poisons used included powdered dermis root, hydrated lime, nicotine sulphate, and tobacco powder, all of which were reasonably effective in ridding the cattle of the grubs. The hydrated lime was too caustic for the skin of the cattle. The dermis and cube root powders had no unfavorable effect on the skin and hair of the animals, and these materials are not particularly poisonous and hence are very safe to use. Applications of these powders at 15-day intervals killed most of the grubs. Two to four treatments were required.

Control Heavy Losses.

The federal scientists have been anxious to discover some method of controlling the heavy annual losses from cattle grubs which will be less tedious and disagreeable than the customary method of squeezing the grubs until they pop out of the back of the infested animal. The dusting methods give a high degree of control and would be particularly effective if the whole community could be induced to do the dusting simultaneously for two or three seasons.

Close Culling Urged by Michigan College

A 3 per cent increase in the total number of milk cows in the United States and a 6 per cent increase in the number of heifers forms the basis for cautioning against any further increase in the number of dairy cattle until a readjustment of the market for dairy products has taken place, says the outlook bulletin of Michigan State college.

Poultry owners are also warned by the same publication to consider the probability that the poultry industry is now on the second year of a four-year cycle of price depression. Lower prices for poultry meats are expected for at least the first six months of 1930.

A continuation of favorable conditions for producers of beef cattle is predicted in the outlook, but the marketing of the animals as baby beef is advised. Cattle feeders of the state are advised to use caution during the next few years.

They should have time to dry and cure until this period is over."

Ration Essential for Developing Good Pigs

Starting the young pigs early on a good ration is one of the essentials for developing good health and vigor and in developing resistance to disease, according to John W. Schwab, Purdue university. Mr. Schwab points out that young pigs make more rapid and cheaper gains than do older hogs.

A home-mixed feed used successfully consists of 80 pounds of cracked corn, 20 pounds coarsely ground wheat and 10 pounds of tankage. A self-feeder for feeding is recommended and pigs should be continued on this ration until weighing about 50 to 60 pounds.

What may be replaced with middlings or hulled oats or screened ground oats. Screening of the oats is necessary as the little pigs cannot handle the oat hulls. Slight milk may be fed at night and morning and replace the tankage, if fed in any quantity. Soy beans have not been found suitable for small pigs.

Good commercial feeds can be used advantageously for supplementing home-grown feeds.

FARM FACTS

Ewes and lambs should be changed to fresh pasture every two weeks if possible.

The longer that a good permanent pasture can be maintained, the cheaper will be the cost.

Superphosphate is equally well adapted for use on the dropping boards of the poultry house as in the gutters of the dairy barn.

Roup or colds in poultry is generally a result of overcrowding, poor housing or ventilation, or lack of vitality due to poor feeding during the growing season, or worms.

Small litters per sow and few pigs raised to market weight make pork production rather costly. The remedy is breeding stock that will produce large litters and good systems of feed and management.

The mash hopper should not be so constructed that it sits on the floor so litter can be scratched into it.

For years sweet clover was called a weed. Now farmers are finding it one of the most valuable legumes. It grows in almost any kind of soil, rich or poor, so long as there is lime available.

A horse that weighs 1,400 pounds should be given 14 to 16 pounds of grain per day and about the same amount of hay. If part alfalfa or clover hay is fed the amount of both grain and hay can be reduced.

In moving fat cattle to market every effort should be made to reduce the loss in weight, or shrink, due to shipment. The cattle should not be driven to the loading point during the day, especially in warm weather.

The cowpea succeeds under such a wide range of conditions that it can be used to good advantage in almost any system of crop rotation. It is especially valuable as a catch crop and for hay or seed production.

Hobos Insects Dispersed by Empty Freight Cars

Insect pests have been caught stealing rides in empty freight cars by workers in the United States Department of Agriculture. A careful study of several cars which had been used for shipping alfalfa hay revealed the fact that 15 per cent of the alfalfa weevils in the hay remain alive during a five-day trip and 40 per cent of them stand the rigors of a three-day trip.

A check on the movement of freight cars has shown that they often appear in widely separated parts of the country in a remarkably short time. It is believed that many insect pests other than the alfalfa weevil are dispersed over the country in this way.

Drying Combine Grain in Northwest States

The grain-drying problem as to the combine is solved by the windrow method of harvesting, according to those agricultural engineers who watched the new attachments to the combined harvesters in Canada, the northwestern states and in California the past season. Green spots in the field, weeds, wet weather; it matters not. The windrow header lays the loose material on the stubble for a quick, thorough drying, after which the pick-up attachment to the combine gets it.

Three Large Magnets Patrol Missouri Highways.

Missouri motorists are being saved about $500 a day in expense and grief from punctures.

That is the state highway department's estimate of the value of three 200-pound magnets attached to a two-ton truck which patrols gravel roads of the state.

Remove Cause of Puncture.

Potential causes of punctures thus are cleared off Missouri roads in wholesale amounts. Usually a day's run, with the truck covering about 56 miles of road surface, brings an average of 112 pounds of miscellaneous metal—nails, bolts, springs, staples, tin cans and scrap iron.

On the assumption that the magnets' work prevents 1,000 punctures a day, C. P. Owens, maintenance engineer of the highway department, says the outfit means a saving of at least $500 a day to motorists, figuring each puncture's cost at 50 cents.

With one magnet hanging from the rear of the truck, and two others at the sides, the truck can clean a strip of road surface from seven to eight feet wide.

Operating Apparatus.

The operating apparatus consists of a 110-volt compound wound generator equipped with panel, voltmeter, ammeter, automatic discharge switch and powered by a five horse power gasoline engine, all mounted on the truck.

Experiments have shown the magnets operate efficiently when adjusted to a height of four inches above the road surface, with the truck moving at ten or twelve miles an hour.

It is necessary to "demagnetize" every four or five miles to clear off the magnets' collection.

Speed Motorways Vision of Traffic Authority

Prediction that within the next quarter century all major centers of population will be connected via high-speed motorways, such as is now proposed to be constructed between New York and New Haven, Conn., was made recently by W. L. Hinds, traffic authority.

"The rapid motorization of entire members of the American family, which is adding many thousands of new cars on our roads every month, is making such high-speed motorways not only necessary but imperative," Mr. Hinds states. "A street or highway, like a railroad trackage system, can only carry up to a certain maximum traffic charge, and when this is exceeded, congestion, delay and oftentimes injury result. Authorities estimate that even at the present time existing traffic congestion is costing this nation approximately $2,000,000 a year."

Pressure Reading Does Not Determine Quantity

It does not pay at any time to accept the pressure reading on the dash oil gauge as final on the amount of lubricant in the crankcase. This is particularly true in the summer.

The gauge is an efficient mechanism but it is not devised to record the amount of oil. To determine accurately, the gauge under the oil filter pipe should be read. This should not be construed as reflecting on the dash gauge. It is designed to record oil pressure not oil quantity. There is a great difference.

Reckless Driver Target of Laws in 12 States

Safety responsibility laws now in effect in 12 states are providing valuable experience in the nation's quest for the solution of the problem presented by the reckless and irresponsible driver. The law in whole or in part is now in effect in the following 12 states: New York, Rhode Island, Connecticut, California, Iowa, Maine, North Dakota, Wisconsin, Vermont, New Jersey, New Hampshire and Minnesota.

Women Use Chauffeurs

The fact that there are 650,000 private chauffeurs in the United States and that it costs $104,000,000 annually to provide them with uniforms, gives rise to the question of who employs chauffeurs most, men or women. "Despite the fact that the number of women automobile drivers increases daily, and that women are more proficient in the handling of a car, women use chauffeurs more than men do," says an official of the American Automobile association.

Sudden Surprise

Miss Thurdy—Oh, Mr. Blunt, this is so sudden.

Mr. Blunt—I know, but I thought you could stand surprise better than suspense.

THE MOTOR QUIZ

How Many Can You Answer?

Q. What is considered the worst enemy of tires and what care should be exercised to protect them?

A. Blue, brown, gray, green and black.

Q. What are the four major causes for loss of power in an engine?

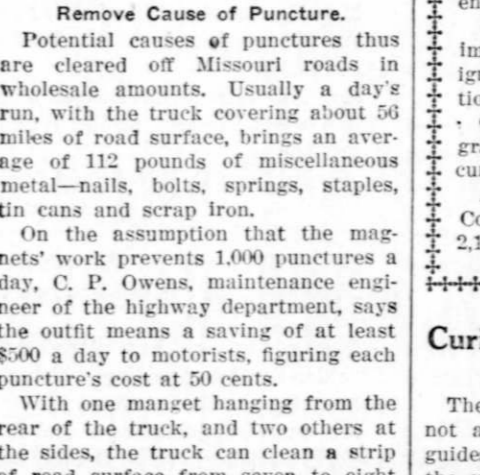

A. Loss of compression, improper valve timing, faulty ignition and improper carburetion.

Q. How many automobile grade crossing fatalities occurred in 1928?

A. According to Interstate Commerce commission figures, 2,165.

Curing Leaky Exhaust Valve Guides on Motor

The operation of a gasoline motor is not affected by leaky exhaust valve guides unless the wear is so bad that the valves do not properly seat, but leaky inlet guides, cause irregular running at slow speeds and make it impossible to get the motor to idle smoothly. The illustration shows a way to eliminate this trouble. A light spring is fitted over the valve stem and a felt or leather washer is fitted on the stem with a hole that will just allow the valve stem to slide.

It is a good idea to place a thin metal washer between the spring and the felt, although this washer is not shown in the illustration. The light spring will keep the washer pressing against the top of the guide and prevent air leakage and the consequent spoiling of the mixture. This suggestion should prove useful on old cars where the expense of new valve guides is not justified.—Popular Science Monthly.

AUTOMOBILE HINTS

The object of cooling devices on brakes is to prevent "fading" after long steady use.

Have the radiator contents checked at every stop for gas on the touring trip. The cooling job is exceptionally heavy.

One way to keep from being attacked as you sit in your car on a lonely road at night is to keep the car moving.

Practically everything carried by rail and steamer makes some part of the journey between sender and receiver by automobile.

Noises under the floor board, when the car is coasting with the clutch disengaged, may be a clew to wear in the universal joints.

Do you ever step on the starter without getting any results whatsoever? If so, before you begin to worry about your starter check up on the terminals of your battery, especially the one which leads to the ground.

The electric windshield wiper which had the advantage of a constant rate of operation has virtually disappeared because it had the disadvantage of breaking internally if the blade was moved by hand.

New Hampshire motorists are petitioning for a regulation to require pedestrians to carry lanterns on motor highways at night. If Diogenes were living today he wouldn't be asked any foolish questions about what he was doing with that lantern.

IN MEMORY

In sad but loving memory of our dear husband and father, William Schmidt Sr., who passed away five years ago July 2nd, 1925:

Five years have passed,
Since that sad day,
When the one we loved was called away.

God took him home, it was his will;
But in our hearts he liveth still,
In the graveyard softly sleeping
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one we love so dearly
In his lonesome, silent grave,
The flowers we lay upon him,
May wither and decay,
But the love and respect we bore you
Will never fade away.

Sadly missed by Mrs. Wm. Schmidt Sr. and children

Seeing Big League BASEBALL

By BILLY EVANS
Sportswriter, Big League Umpire and General Manager of the Cleveland Indians

An umpire's job at best is a colorless one, though sometimes made more spectacular and less drab by the "color" of the individual. "Silk" O'Loughlin with his immortal "Strike Tuh!" had lots of "color." There have been and still are others, but he is perhaps our best example. We have had an abundance of colorful players in recent years—Ty Cobb, Babe Ruth, Tris Speaker, Frank Frisch, Hack Wilson, Stanley Harris—dozens of others. But few umpires are what can be called spectacular. There is little enough of the dramatic in calling balls and strikes and warning them out or calling them safe. The ball players can shine in the field, at the bat and on the base paths. They have their batting averages, their fielding averages, pitching averages and stolen base records. They may win pennants and world series, hit home runs with the bases loaded and pitch no-hit games. They often become heroes and national idols overnight—as in the case of Stanley Harris, the "boy manager," who won a world's championship his first year as manager.

But the umpire. Who gives a hang about the umpire? All he does is see that the game is played and played according to the rules. Isn't that right? Did you ever hear anybody cheer for an umpire? So Walsh, famous pitcher who tried umpiring after he was through as a pitcher, objected to the job, because as he said, "it was all jeers and no cheers." He had been used to cheers.

No, alongside the player, the umpire is quite a humdrum individual. And yet I liked the job. I'm proud to feel that I am still a part of our great national game. And, I, too—I say it not boastfully—can feel a little pride in my own record, my own "averages." In other words, besides, as Jack Sheridan told me, and Tim Hurst has more than once jokingly remarked, "You can't beat the hours."

No, you can't beat the hours—three to five—although my own hours off the field were not leisure hours but were spent in pounding the old typewriter turning out sport copy for the newspapers.

And back of it all I get a feeling of immense satisfaction that I am a part of this great institution of baseball, and have seen it grow from comparatively feeble proportions to its giant present-day status. And I have learned quite a lot in my twenty-five years in the big leagues. I have learned a lot about human nature and mob psychology and that sort of thing. And I have learned a lot about baseball.

Perhaps an experience as lengthy as mine entitles a man to some opinion. I don't play baseball, my constant contact with it and with the players gives me an opportunity, even greater than the active players, to judge baseball ability. Does it sound illogical when I say that perhaps I am in a better position to judge the merits of a particular star than one of his teammates or one of his opponents is?

For this reason if for no other: As an umpire, my work was pretty evenly divided among the eight teams in the American league. An active player can judge an opponent only on that opponent's performance against him. As umpire, I have had the opportunity of seeing how John Smith performs against seven clubs. Each team plays each of the other teams about twenty-two games in the course of an ordinary season. So that the Washington club, let us say, has twenty-two opportunities during the year of watching Babe Ruth play. I may have more or less games than that to umpire with New York as one of the teams, but I have the opportunity of seeing how Babe Ruth hits in every ball park in the league.

I want to make this clear, because later on I am going to name my all-time, all-star baseball team. And then I am going to give my own conception of the ideal baseball player. It may be argued that my job in the American league prevented my seeing many National leaguers in action. But at various times I have seen them all, both in and out of world series. And this, combined with the figures in the old record books, ought to qualify me in some respect as a competent judge.

Girl Sharpshooter

Longest Fight

Under Queensberry rules, the longest fight consumed seven hours and nineteen minutes, in which Andy Bowen and Jack Burke went 110 rounds to a draw at the Olympic club, New Orleans, on April 6, 1893. In a preliminary to the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight at Carson City, Nev., on March 17, 1897, Dal Hawkins received credit for winning the shortest fight on record when he stopped Martin Flaherty in four seconds.

Lipton Confident of Shamrock

Thomas Lipton expresses confidence in the ability of his Shamrock V to lift the America's cup this September. "I think I can manage to wrest the cup from my American friends," he said. "I have a big secret in store, but I am not going to say anything about it until my yacht arrives at Sandy Hook."

MATCHES TRADED FOR CORD WOOD

Heinie Manush in an Exchange for Goose Goslin.

It is not yet apparent whether any of the big league moguls had any secrets concealed when they engaged in their recent free-for-all trade sessions. Suspicion naturally was aroused by the reckless fashion in which they juggled talent from place to place. The moguls, as is well known, have a habit of slipping broken matches to their associates in business in exchange for solid cord wood. This isn't always the case, but it occurs frequently enough to warrant mention.

Of the transfers made just before the limit on trades was reached none had so one-sided an appearance as that which moved Heinie Manush and Alvin Crowder from St. Louis to Washington in a swap for the services of Goose Goslin. Barring the possibility that the Browns might have passed on a couple of men not physically sound, it would seem as if Clark Griffith in this instance justified the name of "Old Fox" by which he has been known for years.

Lacrosse, like football, isn't halted by the weather man. In one of the most important games of the season Hopkins and Maryland braved a furious storm to play the regulation distance.

Luke Sewell, star Cleveland American catcher, sneaked into the Washington dressing room and tied several knots in the clothing of his erstwhile Alabama university teammate, Jack Hayes, the Nationals' utility man.

The next day Hayes hit a foul tip which broke a finger on Luke's right hand. The injury will put the first-string receiver out of the game for probably three weeks, it was said.

Ruth enjoyed the visit of the Yankees in Philadelphia, when he went on a home-run rampage, so much that he told outfielder Bing Miller he would hit more four-baggers if he could play in Shibe park regularly. "Why," boasted Ruth, "I'd hang out 100 homers a season if I could play in this place."

Miller looked at Ruth. "Well, if you were playing in Shibe park regularly," he observed, "you would not have our pitchers throw to you."

Dale Gear, Western league president, announces attendance so far this season had doubled at Omaha and Des Moines, where night baseball is being played. He said the entire league had shown a substantial attendance increase.

"Chuck" Klein of the slugging but errant Phillies is the first major league player to hang up 100 hits in the 1936 campaign.

Klein got three hits for his 100 in a losing double-header with Pittsburgh, while Terry, of the Giants, fell short by one when he got only one blow in a winning game against St. Louis.

Hedapp of Cleveland has the most hits in the American league, yet neither he nor Klein lead their leagues in hitting.

The Gonzaga high school of Washington, D. C., has started construction of a stadium.

In the Virginia state library at Richmond there is a notice of a horse race in Henrico county in October, 1678. There were five race courses along the James river two and a half centuries ago.

A prediction that in the future basketball floors will be larger and that seven or nine men will be used on each side has been made by Dr. Forrest C. ("Phog") Allen, director of athletics and basketball coach at the University of Kansas.

The demand of spectators for more space and more competitors will force the enlargement of the present playing floor from 90 by 50 feet to 120 by 80 feet, he believes. "The basket can be raised to 12 feet above the floor," Allen says, "thus solving the trouble caused by the hue and cry over tall centers. It isn't the tall center but the tall man under the basket who makes one-sided contests."

Sport Notes

Ray Kremer, Pirate pitcher, had a trial with the Giants as far back as 1916.

The Pittsburgh Pirates sold Stuart Clarke, utility infielder, to Fort Worth of the Texas league under option.

Purchase of Vernon Parks, right-hand pitcher from the Buffalo club, was announced by Joe Engle, owner of the Lookouts.

Jimmy Shevlin, star first baseman for Holy Cross college, has signed a contract with the Detroit club of the American league.

The Pittsburgh Pirates unconditionally released Percy Jones, former left-handed pitcher of the Chicago Cubs and the Boston Braves.

Josef Eisenhoffer of the Brooklyn Wanderers is reported to be the highest paid soccer player in the world. He receives $100 a week.

The bureau of standards has just come out with the information that the waistline is seven inches above the hips. Too late, however, to help Mr. Sharkey.

Gus Sonnenberg, professional wrestler, was born when his father was sixty years old and his mother more than fifty, being the last of thirteen children.

The Brooklyn Dodgers, declared in pre-season predictions to be easy against left-handed pitching, have defeated practically every souboutpave to face them.

A British writer at St. Andrew's describes Jones' golf game as "indolent perfection." We long ago diagnosed our own case as one of "tense ineptitude."

With the advent of synthetic ice in Germany, hockey has become exceedingly popular. Footwork of the players is said to be faster than those in action on real ice.

James Wood, San Francisco hotel man, has been elected chairman of the California state boxing board. He long has taken an interest in boxing and other sports in the state.

Ed Wineapple, right-handed pitcher of the New Haven Eastern league baseball team and former Providence college star, has been returned to the Washington American league team.

Douglas Tait, the outfielder acquired by Little Rock from the Chicago White Sox, has decided to report to the Travelers. He first protested against playing in the Southern league.

New Ford Truck With Closed Cab

NEW Ford Model AA trucks and Model A light delivery cars were announced this week by the Ford Motor Company and are on display in the show rooms of Ford dealers.

Changes in the trucks are principally in the front end, which has been completely redesigned, and in the cab. The radiator is higher with more cooling surface, fenders are wide and flowing, and a black cowl strip adds a note of distinction.

The new Model AA trucks with the four-speed transmission introduced several months ago may be had with enclosed or open cab. The enclosed cab, shown above, is all steel, it is low in appearance yet with ample head room. The open cab is of black rubber top material and is easily removed. Both cabs are equipped with windshields of Triplex shatterproof glass and vacuum type windshield wipers.

Model AA trucks may be had with a platform body, which can be equipped with stakes or a panel body. The chassis has many improvements, including the four-speed transmission, larger front brakes, stronger springs, power take-off opening and optional dual rear wheels.

The Model A line of new commercial cars comprises a light delivery truck with pick-up body, a deluxe delivery truck, a small panel truck and a station wagon. These cars have the smaller wheels and larger tires of the new Ford passenger cars.
