ALL SET FOR BIG LEGION DANCE

All is now in readiness for the big Legion dance to be held at the Kewaskum Opera House, next Sunday evening, September 28th. The arrangement committee and members of the post have done everything they could to make this, the first dance of the season to be sponsored by the Kewaskum post, a pleasant affair for all. Quite a number of advance tickets have been sold, and indications are that same will be largely attended. Van Lare's colored orchestra, one of Wisconsin's best and most popular orchestras will be here to furnish the music. This orchestra, as we have been informed, is worth going miles to hear them play. They have gained such popularity that it is hard to engage them for reason that they seldom have an open date. The proceeds of this dance, in fact of all the dances the local post will sponsor this winter, will go towards the buying of more trees and shrubbery on the high school grounds next spring. A cordial invitation is extended to one and all to attend.

KEMPF-FRANK WEDDING
A pretty wedding was solemnized at the St. John's Lutheran church at New Fane last Saturday at 7:30 in the evening, when Miss Elsie Kempf, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kempf of New Fane, became the bride of Louis Frank, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Frank of Jackson. ROB SAFE IN HIGH SCHOOL

The high school building was burglarized on Saturday night and $100 was stolen from the safe in the principal's office. Entrance was gained through a window in the basement. The burglars took a pickax from the tool room in the basement and knocked off the combination, tore off the lock of the safe, and rifled the safe of all the cash, $100.00. In leaving the building they broke a window in the domestic science room to make their exit. That same night the Stowell filling station of Thiensville was robbed and Chief of Police Beckmann is investigating the school robbery, believes the school burglary was committed by the same parties who entered the filling station at Thiensville. He believes they are Milwaukee parties and is working with police of that city in running down a clue.—Cedarburg News.

HIGHWAY 28 TO REMAIN AS IT IS

Petition for re-location of Highway 28 to make it follow the present route of County Highway S in Fond du Lac, Washington and Sheboygan counties, through Beechwood and New Fane has been denied as impracticable by the Wisconsin highway commission. It was announced Wednesday by Jerry Donohue, commission chairman. State Senator L. J. Fellenz representing the petitioners at a hearing held at Kewaskum September 10. In announcing refusal of the highway commission to approve the proposed change, Chairman Donohue stressed the fact that no more mileage can be added to the state highway system without legislative action and that the present route is part of the approved system upon which the Sheboygan county highway bond issue proposal was offered to the voters of that county.

IN MEMORY

In memory of our dear father Louis Vorpahl Sr., who passed away four years ago Oct. 1, 1930:
Four years have passed away
Since you have left us,
Dear father, in thy grave you are resting
With never a thought how sad and lonely
You have left us. Forget you, no we never will.
The vacant place, the empty chair,
We see them day by day
And Oh it fills our hearts with sorrow
Since you have gone away.
Often our thoughts wander to a grave
Not far away.
If only you could come home once
More dear father,
Some day some time our eyes shall see you dearest,
The face we loved so well,
Some day dear father our hands shall clasp,
And never, never say good bye dear father,
Sadly missed by the children.

La Follette Wins Over Gov. Kohler in State Primary

Republican Nomination for Governor Goes to Son of "Old Bob" by Margin of Over 100,000 Votes

Milwaukee—Phillip F. La Follette, 53-year-old son of the late Senator Robert M. La Follette, won the republican nomination for governor of Wisconsin in the primary election of September 16th, defeating Gov. Walter J. Kohler by a margin of more than 100,000 votes.

Unofficial returns from 2,739 out of 2,824 precincts in the state gave La Follette a lead of 109,532, the vote being:

La Follette 371,018
Kohler 261,486

La Follette carried sixty-three of the seventy-one counties in the state. The eight counties carried by Gov. Kohler are Marinette, Racine, Rock, Sheboygan, Vilas, Walworth, Waukesha and Winnebago, and he won each of these except Sheboygan, his home county, by very narrow majorities.

Gov. Kohler carried thirty-five counties in the primary and Joseph D. Beck, progressive, carried thirty-six. Under fair weather conditions and with interest running high, Wisconsin polled a vote that will exceed 650,000 when all returns are in, and it will exceed by far the record vote of 568,541 cast for governor in the primary of 1928, a presidential year.

Kohler Defeat Unexpected

La Follette's decisive victory over the governor was unexpected, as up to the moment that the polls closed the governor was a favorite for re-nomination.

Apart from his election as district attorney of Dane county several years ago this is Phillip La Follette's first venture into politics as a candidate for public office.

The campaign was fiercely fought up to the last minute. Mr. La Follette was aided in his candidacy by the entire battery of La Follette progressive leaders, including Senator Blaine and Senator La Follette.

Present State Officials Win

La Follette carried to victory the entire state ticket which he headed, including Lieut. Gov. Henry A. Huber, Sol Levitan, state treasurer; Atty. Gen. Reynolds and Theodore Dammann, secretary of state.

Harry Dahl, La Crosse, conservative candidate for lieutenant governor, put up a real fight with Lieut. Gov. Huber and for a time he trailed so closely that a reversal seemed among the possibilities. As the count progressed, however, Huber drew far enough away to put the outcome beyond doubt.

In the triangular race for attorney general, John W. Reynolds, the incumbent, quickly took the lead over Michael Eberlein, Shawano, conservative, and Alvin C. Reis, progressive, and held it without interruption. To the failure of Reis to divide the progressive vote on an even basis is ascribed the failure of Eberlein to win the nomination.

Returns from 2,635 precincts gave the following vote for attorney general: Reynolds, 239,950; Eberlein, 164,833; Reis, 125,404.

Eight members of the Wisconsin congressional delegation were safely re-nominated on the republican ticket. They are Henry Allen Cooper (First), unopposed; Charles A. Kading (Second), John M. Nelson (Third), John C. Schafer (Fourth), William H. Stafford (Fifth), George C. Schneider (Ninth), James A. Frear (Tenth), unopposed; Hubert H. Peavey (Eleventh).

In the Seventh district, with returns nearly complete, it appeared that Congressman Merlin Hull, now serving his first term, had been defeated by Gardner Withrow. The vote from 255 precincts was Withrow, 27,254, and Hull, 22,103. E. E. Browne, Eighth district congressman for many years, was slightly behind Gerald J. Boleau, who vote standing: Boleau, 24,536; Browne, 24,101. The republican nomination for congressman in the Sixth district, where there is a vacancy caused by the recent death of Florian Lampert, went to Phillip Lehner of Princeton, who had polled 19,385 with 185 precincts reported. W. J. Campbell of Oshkosh had 15,344 and Harry Schler, 11,672.

State tickets nominated by the democratic and socialist parties, without opposition, are as follows:

Democrats—Governor, Charles E. Hamersley; lieutenant governor, Bernhard J. Husting; secretary of state, Margaret V. Fragstein; state treasurer, Christian A. Hoeh; attorney general, John J. Boyle.

Socialists—Governor, Frank B. Metcalfe; lieutenant governor, John R. Severin; secretary of state, Emil Tesch; state treasurer, Alma Steuber; attorney general, Glenn P. Turner.

Senator La Follette Weds

Madison—On the day following the primary election, when his brother, Phil, won the republican nomination for governor, United States Senator Robert M. La Follette was married at the La Follette home at Maple Bluff, near here. His bride was Rachel Wilson Young of Washington, D. C., who has been his secretary and who also served his father in a like capacity for a few years before the latter's death. It was a surprise wedding, attended only by Mr. and Mrs. Phil La Follette.

Oshkosh—Leo Murphy started serving a 15-day sentence for vagrancy at the county jail here, but his ability as a high jumper carried him over a 10-foot wall to freedom. Murphy was cracking rocks in the jail work pen. While a guard was absent he took a running start and leaped over the high fence.

Tomahawk—Arvid Johnson, silver black fox breeder near here, will soon depart for Norway with 25 pairs of valuable breeding stock sold to breeders in that country.

News of Wisconsin

Madison—The one hundred and twenty-first annual meeting of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions will be held here Oct. 21 to 23 with workers from all parts of the world in attendance.

Tomah—The girls of the domestic science class of the high school here are to be utilized in a plan for providing the high school band with uniforms. Citizens here are planning to buy the cloth and the cutting and sewing is then to be done by the domestic science girls.

Beaver Dam—Miss Mary Spellman has started her forty-fifth year as a teacher in the Beaver Dam schools and has taught school for 47 years. In 1882 Miss Spellman faced her first rural class—two children. Two years later she became a teacher here and has continued without interruption.

Sauk City—A municipal sewerage system for Sauk City was defeated by 85 votes Sept. 18. This is the third time the proposition has lost. Ten years ago it failed by a single vote; last May the defeat margin was 11, and in the heavier voting at the last election the vote stood 243 to 328.

Madison—Hunters were asked by the conservation commission to refrain from shooting at ducks when out of range to avoid spoiling a possible shot for some neighbor hunter. The commission advised that the killing range of a shotgun is 16 rods or less. Aimless shooting that scares ducks away from other hunters was cited as unsportsmanlike.

Lake Geneva—Fifteen frightened horses were driven out of a burning barn here with pitchforks when they became too wild for the men to approach. Two other horses burned. Some of the rescued animals were badly cut. The barn burned on the Lester estate now owned by F. L. Maytag, Iowa washing machine manufacturer. The loss was estimated at $35,000.

Princeton—Two women passengers were killed and the pilot was injured when an airplane crashed at the airport here. The dead are Lillian Kelm, 30, a telephone operator, and Mrs. Leona Schwoenk, mother of two children, both from Princeton. Ray Thise, 25, of Pawhuska, Okla., the pilot, suffered head injuries. Spectators said that Thise was stunting when the crash occurred.

Kenosha—Offered "furs worth $2,500 for $1,000," a local pastor bought them from two strangers after a third, ostensibly a tailor, had substantiated their value. Afterward the priest took the furs to a tailor of his acquaintance and learned that he had bought rabbit skins. Six weeks ago another Kenosha man paid $300 for a diamond ring appraised at $1,000, which after the sale turned out to be 10 cents' worth of glass.

Milwaukee—Application for foreclosure of a trust mortgage on the Kissel Motor Car Co. holdings at Hartford, Wis., was filed in federal court here by Melvin A. Taylor of Chicago, trustee for holders of bonds issued by the company Apr. 1, 1922. The bond issue was for $750,000 and the company granted a mortgage covering its plant, patents, formulas and trademarks as security for the indebtedness. The unpaid balance on the issue is $223,100.

Madison—A decrease in the number of deaths in the age group of 70 to 79 years has aided in lengthening the span of life to an average of 51 years for 1928, the state board of health reports. Statistics being compiled by the board indicate that the life span for 1929 will be greater than during the previous year. In 1929 the average age at death was about 43 years. Heart diseases claimed 2,069 of the 6,595 persons between 70 and 79 years who died in 1928, according to the board. Cerebral hemorrhage was the second greatest cause, killing 931 persons. Cancer was responsible for the death of 909 persons in the age group.

Chilton—A short honey crop next year is predicted by Harmon Stevens, Stockbridge, a bee raiser for 70 years, because of the drought this year which he says damaged new clover seedlings. He has 300 swarms, and had depended on his new clover to feed his bees next year. Honey production this fall has been cut in half by the drought, he said.

Platteville—Lack of pasture has forced farmers of this section to ship beef and dairy cattle to market. Dairy herds are being culled of "boarders."

LEGGIE SEES BRIGHT FUTURE FOR FARMER

Bureau Chief Says Strain Is Only Temporary.

Detroit, Mich.—"Although American agriculture is facing a hard year, due to overproduction in some lines, business depression and the drought, this strain will appear a temporary one in the perspective of years," Alexander Leggie, chairman of the federal farm board, told the Mortgage Bankers' Association of America here at the closing session of its annual convention.

"The experience of life insurance companies with farm mortgage loans is that, while periods of stress come in this field of investment as in any other, the returns over a period of years show results at least as favorable as in any other field of investment," Leggie said. "One of the largest problems facing agriculture today is the adjustment of farm organization and practice to actual and prospective conditions."

"While farmers generally have made some progress in these directions, they have not gone nearly so far as conditions require. The result has been overproduction in many lines, excessive costs of production for many farmers, disorganized marketing with gluts here and shortages there and net returns often distressingly low."

"Although we can hardly hope to attain perfect adjustment of production to demand, efficient and economical production and perfectly orderly marketing of all farm products, great progress in these directions is entirely possible and will contribute largely to the economic position of the farmers. To accomplish this we must achieve the organization of agriculture, improved adjustment of production to demand and such adaptation of the size of the farming unit and farming practices as will insure economical production."

The main difficulty with the farmer, the speaker told the bankers, has been that he is too individualistic. Just because his grandfather and his father always have done things in a certain manner, there is no reason in his mind for change, with the result that he keeps on producing crops blindly without investigation of the potential market absorption, Leggie said.

"We have a most serious situation when we look forward to an export market for wheat. In our judgment, it is not going to be possible for the average producer to compete with other exporting countries on this commodity, except at a serious loss to the American grower. Our recommendation is an adjustment downward in quantity produced until we approach a domestic consumption basis. Probably we always will be able to export a little of the higher grades of wheat on a basis that will give a fair return to the grower, but any considerable volume of exports will result in a continuation of the present unsatisfactory prices or perhaps even worse."

Leggie urged the mortgage bankers to help government effort on behalf of agriculture, by furnishing to the federal services statistical information on foreclosures, delinquencies and other official data. In reviewing the program of the federal farm board, he stated that they have made what they consider "a good beginning, but no more."

President to Address World Good Will Body

Washington.—President Hoover will deliver an address on August 24 this year at the fifteenth annual conference and good will congress of the World Alliance for Friendship through the churches, it was announced by officials of the peace organization. The World Alliance congress will be held in Washington on November 10, 11 and 12.

Last year President Hoover addressed the American Legion on Armistice day, speaking at Arlington National cemetery. The year previous the American Legion Armistice day speech at Arlington was delivered by former President Coolidge. The American Legion plans to hold exercises at Arlington again this year.

Forty speakers, among them several opposed to construction of a treaty navy, will address the conference and congress.

NEW POWER IN GERMANY

Adolf Hitler.

Berlin.—Adolf Hitler, Austrian author of the Munich putsch, or uprising, of 1923, for which he went to jail, today is a political power of the first rank in Germany. He was swept to success by a Fascist landslide in the recent reichstag general election. The Fascists rank second only to the powerful Socialists now.

HOME OWNERSHIP IS BOOSTED BY HOOVER

Planning Committee to Attack Various Obstacles.

Washington.—Preparing for a massed attack on big second mortgage charges and other deterrents to home ownership, President Hoover shortly will appoint a planning committee for his projected national conference on housing.

The makeup of the committee probably will be announced within a few days. It will embrace heads of national organizations of architects, contractors, real estate dealers and other groups.

The planning committee, to be headed by Secretary of Commerce Lamont, will organize the national conference. It will also set up subcommittees throughout the country.

President Hoover feels that the high rates for second mortgages widely used in home financing tend to stifle home ownership. Counting in commissions, discounts and other more or less disguised charges, interest rates on these mortgages have risen in many cities to 20 or 25 per cent.

A sounder and less burdensome system will be made a chief objective of the conference.

Revamping of state mortgage laws is one of the possible results. Construction costs can be still further reduced, it is believed, as an added stimulus.

Improvements in design are counted upon to further this. Improvement in the layout of residential areas is another important question.

U. S. Court Order Sends Stills Back to Owner

Chicago.—Presiding Judge Aischuler of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, sitting as a district judge, ordered 11 5-gallon stills returned to their owners.

"I find nothing in these (internal revenue) statutes directed against one who sells stills or keeps them for sale," read Judge Aischuler's ruling.

Lawyers practicing in the federal building chose to interpret the ruling as allowing the sale of stills to all who did not specify that they would be used illegally; in other words, that a still, which might be used to purify water, is not an apparatus which must be used to break a law.

France's Wheat Crop Is Poorest Since the War

Paris.—This year's French harvest of wheat will fall short of 30,000,000 quintals, which France will have to import from abroad, according to estimates made by Delphin Destombe, statistician of the Paris Wheat exchange. If these estimates are confirmed by official figures collected by the ministry of agriculture, the 1930 wheat harvest will be one of the worst since the World War. The total harvest probably will not exceed 55,500,000 quintals, while the annual needs of the French population amount to 90,000,000 quintals.

Marconi Heads Italian Academy

PROHIBITION ISSUE PRIMARIES FEATURE

Wet Gains of 37 Seats Now Claimed for House.

Washington.—Completion of the year's primary elections drew expressions of pleasure at the results from wet leaders, while the generals of the prohibition forces refrained from direct comment but took occasion to pledge themselves to resist every effort toward repeal of the dry laws.

The dry declaration was adopted on the one hundred forty-third anniversary of the signing of the Constitution. It was issued by the national conference of organizations supporting the Eighteenth amendment, which is composed of representatives from thirty national prohibition groups.

The wet view was voiced by Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, who noted that "the wet tide is still coming in."

Curran claimed wet gains in the house of representatives of 37 seats with "more to come on election day." He asserted the dries had not won a single seat in the primaries. The enthusiasm expressed at this result was tempered with the observation that "we still have a long way to go before congress catches up with the people on this question, but we are on our way and we cannot be stopped."

The pledge of the prohibitionists said: "Believing in the success of national prohibition, so completely proved by the blessings it has brought to the American people that our most bitter opponents dare not advocate the restoration of the saloon, we declare our purpose to resist to the last every effort to repeal the amendment by which the liquor traffic is outlawed."

In addition to straight-out victories he counted in the recent primaries, Curran said the narrow margin by which the dry William M. Butler defeated a wet opponent for the Massachusetts nomination in Massachusetts convinced "everybody but Butler" that the former chairman of the Republican national committee would be defeated in the November election by his wet Democratic opponent, Marcus A. Coolidge.

The year has been a hard one for veterans of congress.

S. Wallace Dampsey, chairman of the rivers and harbors committee and a member of the house from New York for 15 years, was beaten in the primaries. So was E. E. Browne, who has served the eighth Wisconsin district since 1913.

Furnifold M. Simmons of North Carolina, in the senate since 1901 and its dean in point of service, has been defeated for re-nomination. Joseph E. Ransdell, recently beaten for the democratic senatorial nomination in Louisiana, has been a senator since 1913 and before that served in the house from 1899.

Representative Miller of Washington, who has served continuously since the sixty-fifth congress, was eliminated on September 30.

Louis C. Cramton, dry leader, who was beaten by a wet in the voting in Michigan, has served without a break since the sixty-third congress.

The dean of the Georgia house delegation, Thomas H. Bell, another primary victim, was serving his thirteenth term.

Bell, however, was the only one of the group in the house known as the "old-timers" who has lost. Representative Henry Allen Cooper of Kenosha, Wis., the dean of the house, was re-nominated in the primary.

Cooper, eighty, and serving his eighteenth term, is still alert and vigorous.

Others in the group who have survived the primaries include Gilbert N. Haugen of Iowa, who is serving his sixteenth consecutive term; John Garner of Texas, house minority leader, who is serving his fourteenth consecutive term; Speaker Longworth, who is on his thirteenth term; Henry T. Rainey of Illinois, on his thirteenth term, and Edward W. Pott of North Carolina, who has been in the house since March 4, 1901.

The only Civil War veteran in the house, Charles Manly Stedman of North Carolina, now in his ninetieth year, chose voluntary retirement this year after 20 years of congressional service. At present he is gravely ill in a Washington hospital and he may not live to complete his present term. Several other members with long service are withdrawing of their own will.

New Feed Grain Remains Green During Droughts

Oklahoma City, Okla.—A new feed grain produced by Fred Groff, Britton, Okla., farmer, has attracted the attention of the Department of Agriculture, and an official study of the plant is to be made. The grain, called "groboma," was produced by crossing kafir corn and ribbon cane. It remained green during the severe drought this summer.

Combination Horse and Dairy Barn Conforms With Laws of Many States

By W. A. RADFORD
Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all problems pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on the subject. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 407 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

While building costs today are greater than they were 15 years ago, dairymen throughout the country are finding it economical to build a modern barn to house their milking herd and the feed required to carry the animals through both the fall, winter and spring when there is no pasture. And even in the summer it is advisable to add a grain ration to the pasture, in order to keep up milk production and keep the dairy operation on a paying basis.

Shown in the accompanying design is a combination horse and dairy barn for the farm where a small herd of dairy cows is kept. It will be noted that a concrete wall separates the dairy barn from the horse barn. This is in conformity with the laws of many states which prohibit the housing of horses and dairy cattle in the same stable. The floor plans of the stable floor show single stalls for twelve cows. There are stalls for four horses in the other section of the stable floor.

This barn is 34 feet wide and 46 feet long. The width—34 feet—has been found to be the most economical for a dairy barn. This allows for driveway through the center and alley back of each row of stalls. The floor plan specifies steel stanchions, concrete manger with a drain and gutter, which can be hoisted out and set down automatic drinking fountains at each stall, an overhead carrier tray for the transportation of feed to the mangers and removal of litter, and an automatic ventilating system. Each of these things are labor savers and tend to make the herd more productive. Cleanliness is an essential in the stable while an automatic ventilating system keeps the constant flow of fresh air coming in for the animals and removes the foul air which is harmful to the animals and for the parts of the milk.

Besides the floor plan there is reproduced an architect's cross section of the building showing how the frame is set up and some of the details of construction. This cross section and the details will be of great assistance to anyone who is contemplating building a barn of this type.

Paint a Protection

Three coats of white lead paint make a film which is an inch thick. Yellow wall paper is a better foil for many-gang formations than gray. And now that the fall has such a pleasant room to be in, will probably never fall ill again.

Best Materials Needed for Protection of Roof

Since the beginning of the last race the word "roof" has been a symbol of home, security and contentment. Modern houses are designed to protect the tenants from rain and lightning and fire and from snow and sleet. Upon the power of the roof to resist these constant attacks depends the comfort and security of all who live under it.

One unfailing protection against the ravages of rust and decay is the use of pure copper. It never rusts. It is called the everlasting metal. The roof is the one assuming maximum protection at minimum upkeep.

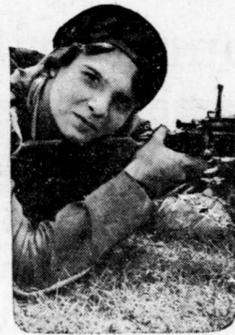

Large Increase Seen In Automobile Fatalities

The constant increase of automobile fatalities, reaching last year the enormous total of 23,000, has resulted in a corresponding increase of responsibility which the courts are placing upon the autoist, according to a survey made by the legal department of the American Motorists' association, in co-operation with the Automobile Club of Illinois, citing recent court decisions showing the trend of judicial thought.

Hoppe Most Active

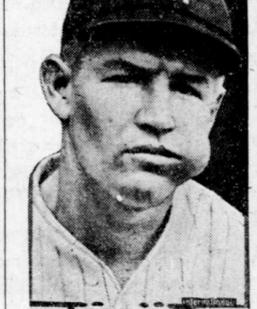

Willie Hoppe, the greatest all-round billiard player of all time, who announced recently that he would compete in the first aerial match, has been the most active player who ever reigned. Over a stretch of more than thirty years Hoppe has been an outstanding cueist, whether it was at balk line, cushion caroms or three cushions. Today he excels both at balk line and three cushions and is prepared to make a bid for cushion caroms.

When Art Shires, the Great Sensed a Job in the Outfield

John Kieran of the New York Times contributes the following incident concerning Charles Arthur Shires: "The Senators have a young first baseman named Joe Kuhel, a tall, thin, dark-haired school boy, and for whom they are reported to have paid something like $85,000 to Kansas City. "Joe Judge put the youngster in at first base in the first game of a double header against the Red Sox and the lad did so well that the acting manager decided to sit on the bench during the second game, too, and watch the youngster over his position. "The Great Shires kept studying the rookie at bat and in the field.

"He's a good one," Shires said to the manager. "I've seen him in the field. He's got a good eye. He's got a good arm. He's got a good head. He's got a good heart. He's got a good soul. He's got a good everything."

Art Shires.

Shires, of course, looked upon himself as the logical successor to Joe Judge and Hal Chase, too, for that matter. But toward the end of the afternoon the great Shires began running around the dugout, peering under the bench and moving the sweaters on the hooks overhead.

"What's the matter, Art?" asked Al Schacht. "Nothing," said the great Shires. "I'm just looking for an outfielder's glove."

Play Miniature Golf

When miniature golf courses close at 11:30 p. m. every night in obedience to District of Columbia law, they must stay closed until daylight, anyhow, otherwise the spirit of the law will be invoked to do what its word does not. Enforcement of the closing hour regulation deprived passionate devotees of their late putting. Operators found the law said nothing about the legal hour of opening, and after a few minutes of darkness they turned on the lights and let the players in again to continue with the game.

HIS ARM GONE, HAS BECOME STAR

IT WAS but a few years ago that Earl Averill, the young outfielder who has created a sensation with Cleveland, figured he never would play baseball again because of an arm that had gone back on him. During his high school days Averill starred in the outfield. Then, his throwing arm went dead. He quit baseball. Why keep on? The arm was gone. He could not throw 50 feet. He went to work for the only florist in Snobomish, out in Washington.

A year passed. Another summer came. The owner of the "Smoke Shoppe" billiard parlor thought Snobomish should have a baseball club. He started to organize one. Some one told him to get Averill, who used to play on the high school team.

Acting on the tip, the billiard parlor man visited the greenhouse and asked Earl if he would join the club.

"My arm's gone dead," said Earl. "Maybe not. Maybe it'll be all right again. Anyway, we need you." And when Averill discovered he was to play only Saturday and Sunday afternoons he consented, providing his arm displayed any signs of life.

That's practically all. Of course, the arm came back. Otherwise there would not be any story. Manager Wade Killefer, however, did not pay much attention to him and back to Snobomish went Averill, but only for a week or so. Snobomish was too small. He joined the Bellingham semi-pro club and then the Anacosta club at Butte, in the Copper Mining league. It was there he heard of the winter league in San Francisco, and when winter came Earl was in Frisco, seeking a chance. He got it, made good, was signed to a Frisco contract in the Pacific Coast league, played with that team three seasons, sold to Cleveland for $50,000, held out for a part of that sum, and finally joined the Indians.

Seeing Big League Baseball

By BILLY EVANS

Sportswriter, Big League Umpire and General Manager of the Cleveland Indians

The game which was responsible for my big league career comes back as clearly as though it were played yesterday instead of more than twenty years ago. It was between Niles and Youngstown, two great old rivals in those days. Going into the last half of the ninth inning, Niles was trailing Youngstown by one run. I believe the score was 7-6, although the exact figures are less clear to me now than the more important events of the little drama. For it certainly was a drama!

Now, all unknown to me there was sitting in the stands that day a man whose presence was to alter my whole career. His name was James McAleer, the famous "Jimmy" McAleer, at that time manager of the St. Louis Browns in the American league. St. Louis, it seemed, was playing at Cleveland, and McAleer had run down to Niles to get a line on a player on the Youngstown club, Charley Starr by name. So there in the grandstand sat McAleer, on a little scouting mission for the St. Louis club. And neither he nor I imagined for a moment that he was to do a little umpire scouting for the American league on the side.

That game was one of those close, hotly fought contests we umpires know as "tough ones." Niles made a great rally in the ninth and filled the bases with two out. A hit would bring in two runs and win the old ball game. A base on balls would tie the score, and the batter, Billy Thomas, worked Stewart, the Youngstown pitcher, to a "two and three" count.

"Bust it out!" shouted the Niles fans. "Bust it out, Billy, or wait it out. A walk's as good as a hit. Make him put it over." And then Stewart wound up and pitched. Thomas saw the ball coming and let it go by. In fact, he even fell down, as if in the act of avoiding being hit. And then he started to trot to first base and the fans had visions of a tie score.

But I had my eye on that ball, too. It was a fast-breaking curve, and it took a lot of nerve to throw a curve in a pinch like that. It was a wide curve, but it had cut the corner of the plate. Upward I jerked my right thumb.

"Strike three!" I belloved. And then things happened. Those fans, seeing Thomas fall to the ground, by pantomime had taken it for granted that the last pitch had been a marathons' race. The mob firmly believed I was committing robbery and throwing the game to Youngstown. They poured out of their seats and made straight for the plate where I was still standing. They threatened me, they called me every name under the sun, they jostled me, pulled at my clothes and probably would have mobbed me right there if it hadn't been for Charley Crowe, pitcher and manager of the Niles team. If anybody on that ball field had a right to protest my decision it was Charley Crowe. But, being fair minded and realizing my peril, he came to my side to help me.

"I'm not kicking, Billy," he told me as he stood beside me and faced the throng of fans. "You called it as you saw it and I'm satisfied, and I'm going to see that you get safely back to your hotel." I'll never forget that walk back to the little hotel as long as I live. In reality it was but a few short blocks, but to me it seemed as long as a marathons' race. The mob followed on my heels. Frequently, during that long walk back to the hotel, I was assailed with an almost over-powering impulse to smash one of those leering faces as they thrust themselves at me so ugly. Just one good smash, I thought, and then take my medicine. But my own better judgment, aided and abetted by the faithful Charley Crowe, prevailed over my temper. Instead, I kept my eyes straight ahead, seemingly paying no attention to the insults and the jibes, although it was costing me a great deal in self-control.

And all the time I was marching straight toward the big leagues and I didn't know it! (© 1930, Bell Syndicate.)

Exports to France Are Up

American radio exports to France last year were more than three times as great as in 1928, the total having reached in value $201,965.

Closed Auto Now Is in Favor Nine to One

The closed car is a nine-to-one favorite over the open type of automobile, according to figures of the American Research foundation, just made public. "Of the total of 4,704,898 passenger automobiles produced in the United States last year, 4,284,489 were closed cars," a bulletin of the foundation says. "Open roadsters and touring cars totaled 510,409, or a trifle more than 10 per cent of the total production."

"Swing of American fancy is strikingly shown in the year-by-year statistics on the rising output of the closed cars, which has jumped from 22.1 per cent of the total cars produced in 1921 to 89.4 per cent today. Among open types of machines, touring cars head the production list, with nearly twice as many cars of this class produced as there are roadsters."

Gene Sarazen, Leo Diegel and Johnny Farrell, prominent golf pros, started their careers as caddies. Billy Harman, young second sacker for Louisville, is drawing a lot of scouts and seems sure to go up. R. Norris Williams, veteran Davis cup player, had to pay a $2 admission to a Long Island tournament where he was scheduled to play. He later was recognized and the money returned.

A sports writer says that after his sixteenth year "Johnny Weismuller had no pier as a swimmer." We guess what happened was that he jumped off of bridges. Jack Steele, manager of the Little Rock Travelers, is called Captain Flag around the Southern association circuit. He is said to be Laurence Stallings' bellcote hero in the flesh.

Eddie Ciocki, Wilmington shortstop, has been obtained by the Philadelphia Athletics. The A's batting practice pitcher is the youngest hurler in the big leagues, Lefty Krausse, of Media (Pa.) high school. Some day we expect to visit an insane asylum and meet the man who designs hazards for midget golf courses.

Johnny Dodds, Atlanta manager, has been in the Southern association since 1903 and has piloted six of the league's eight clubs. Mr. Funk, center fielder, mistook a pigeon for a fly ball in Boston. Meanwhile the batter scored, being of the homing type.

Finding a half-inch of space at his disposal, an Eastern editor put in a round-by-round account of the Stribling-Scott fight. Keokuk in the Mississippi Valley league has had three managers this year—Sammy Schwartz, Pat Patterson and Henry Wingfield.

Some of the enthusiasts might try fitting up a miniature golf course in the back yard, and see how it works on the home grounds. University of California's football team, which traveled extensively last year, will play only two games away from home this season.

"Home runs are killing the game of baseball," says an Eastern writer. It's still fighting though, with the outfielders' backs to the wall. Ingratitude is where your golf opponent refuses to concede the 14-foot putt when you've been conceding him the 18-inches right along.

H. R. Austin is shown at the controls of the new $3,000,000 electric garage at Chicago. The motorist drives his car into the 25-story garage and stops in front of one of a series of tracks that lead to three elevators. A uniformed attendant gives him a claim check, the owner locks his car and leaves and a duplicate ticket is sent in a pneumatic tube to the dispatcher. Illuminated buttons on top of each elevator indicate parking space on different floors—the elevator man presses a lever and an automatic "dolly" similar to the device used to move pianos runs out on the track under the automobile and an arm reaches up from the center, gets a firm hold on the differential of the car and both roll onto the elevator.

NEW TWENTY-FIVE STORY GARAGE

hers—the long perfect day was ahead of her, yet she clung to oblivion. She watched Brian and Daisy together. Their companionship seemed ideal but now she knew, and Simon Feentress knew, that it would never be more than it was.

"You are a happy woman," the millionaire said to her one day. "And you have never been happy before. What is it?" "I have learned to look at life differently," she told him.

He shook his head. "A pity. You were so perfect as you were. Are you certain that you can change?" He had wondered more than once if there could be anything in the talk that connected her name with Converse. Surely not, for if she had been such a woman he could have offered her more than these other two. And she had not been tempted by his obvious preference.

She had her moments of panic. What was she about to do? The step was a tremendous one if ways and means were to be considered.

There was money to be thought of, but Linda was in that exalted state when poverty is hung with the sparkle of day dreams. She began to be ambitious. Her mind, clear and alert, sprang to meet the future and searched excitedly among its possibilities. She knew every one. The Haverhill connection reached far. As Linda Roth in her self-chosen isolation had avoided her with that icy acknowledgment of her existence more cutting than actual exclusion. But she knew very well that as Brian Anstey's wife their influence would belong to her. They did not know Brian; his name meant nothing, but it stood for all that such people hold dear—respectability, solidity. They would make him.

Then she remembered how much he had resented influence. He had hated to know that his appointment came through Simon Feentress because he sensed through it the power of wealth. But she dismissed this thought quickly. Brian was not worldly and she loved him for that. She loved his ideals with the indulgence of one who knows that most ideals are made of paper mache.

No one suspected her secret but Simon Feentress. That small dry person sighed when he saw her so beautiful, so eager; shy as his own girl was shy. He wondered why things had to be that way. Brian had made this woman love him without lifting his finger, and another man would have done her far better for her.

But he knew better than to hint this to his protegee. Brian had accepted aid with rather bad grace from the first, and of them all he was the only one who did not suspect the real reason for the Feentress interest. But Daisy was as good a loser as her father; not by one word did she betray the blank sense of loss that spoiled her young world.

"Perhaps something will happen yet," her father thought, watching her face and watching Linda's, not knowing which to pity most.

CHAPTER X

"I Am Linda Roth"

Happiness! Linda before her mirror dressing for a dance, saw a strange face looking back at her. It had been years since she had seen that face, those eyes, that smile. The child, Linda Haverhill, had owned them all. It is not given to many women to slip back into girlhood with all its fragrant hope and joy, but in a single hour these had been given back to her. Tonight he would ask her to marry him; tonight she would say yes. There had been no promises and no appointment, but she did not need this to know what would happen. It was coming as inevitably as the hours. Nothing could hold it back; no subtlety; no hesitation.

She wore a long white frock glittering with crystals that clung to her slender limbs like frost wreathing lily stems. Her delicate long arms emerged from all this whiteness and sparkle like the sleepy stamens of a flower. Her face behind all its beauty and still happiness asked for something more. Without knowing it, her eyes asked that this happiness should last. Not long before a hotel maid had fastened her frock and done those little tasks for her that must be done and had then been sent away. This was a precious hour.

She leaned between the candelabra to look at her reflection critically. Happiness in her eyes; happiness lifting the corners of her mouth, but her lips were too pale? She touched them lightly with rouge and then saw that this accentuated the pallor of her cheeks. "How foolish I am. Why, I am trembling!"

She steadied herself against the dressing table. There was a vase of white gardenias clinging heavily to thick green stalks on a taboret close by and she thought the scent of these flowers must have overcome her. A moment before she had been radiant, and now this!

Mighty Title Borne by Many Unworthy Rulers

Caesar was a title assumed by Octavian, adopted son of the great dictator, Julius Caesar, and was by him passed down to his adopted son, Tiberius. It continued to be used by Augustus, Claudius and Nero as members of the family; but though the family became extinct with Nero, succeeding emperors still retained the name as part of their title, and it was practiced to prefix it to their own names, as Emperor Caesar, Domitian, Augustus. When Hadrian adopted the name of Verus, he allowed the latter to be the title of Caesar, and from this time the title Augustus continued to be confined to the reigning emperor, that of Caesar was also granted the second person in the state and the heir presumptive to the throne. After the death of Nero, his name was adopted as a kingly title by succeeding Roman emperors. This practice continued, and the same title was used in modern times, as in the case of kaiser and czar.

Caligula's Gallies

The gallies of Caligula which were restored are specimens of naval antiquity nearly one thousand nine hundred years old. Aside from the value of these to the surface and lowering the level of the lake, an opportunity was afforded for exploring the submerged banks, which was of great archaeological interest because of the magnificent Roman villas that formerly lined them.

Women Only

Experts agree that women's sense of touch is a sex-gift conferred by nature, probably to balance physical qualities, in the same way that nature gives a greatly increased sense of sight to the blind.

After 40 Bowel trouble is Most Dangerous

Constipation may easily become chronic after forty. Continued constipation at that time of life may bring attacks of piles—and a host of other disorders.

Watch your bowels at any age. Guard them with particular care after forty. When they need help, remember a doctor should know what is best for them.

"Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin" is a doctor's prescription for the bowels. Tested by 47 years' practice, it has been found thoroughly effective in relieving constipation and its ills for men, women and children of all ages. It has proven perfectly safe even for babies. Made from fresh, laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other harmless ingredients, it cannot grip; will not sicken you or weaken you; can be used without harm as often as your breath is had, your tongue is coated; when ever a headachy, bilious, gassy condition warns of constipation.

Next time just take a spoonful of this family doctor's laxative. See how good it tastes; how gently and thoroughly it acts. Then you will know why it has become the world's most popular laxative. Big bottles—all drugstores.

Outdoing Connecticut

The wooden nutmeg Yankee has been topped by a Detroit soap peddler. He sells 10 bars of pretty, pink soap for the amazing price of 25 cents. But the purchaser who puts the soap in the bathtub discovers in a very few minutes that the soap is only a shell over a wooden core.

Several North end apartment dwellers are seeking him with a cold look in their eyes and baseball bats in their hands.—Detroit News.

"I hear," rejoices a jazz hater, to the Arkansas Gazette, "that at last a popular song writer in New York faces life imprisonment, under the Baumes law. Can you please supply me with the happy details?" "Sorry," apologized the editor, "but the name of his fourth song was not given."

INVESTIGATING FARM FIRE

The state fire marshal is investigating the cause of a big fire which destroyed the barn and cattle on the Albert Seefeldt farm, between Eden and Campbellsport on Trunk Highway V, on the night of September 13, causing a loss of nearly $20,000. During the night of the fire several strangers had been seen near the barn, and shortly after the flames burst from the building, a mysterious car, which had been parked on the highway, sped away.
Prior to the fire Seefeldt had received threatening letters signed by a farmer living in the neighborhood, but it is believed that the signature was spurious.

TRY AND AVOID ACCIDENTS

Over half of the motor vehicle accidents involve pedestrians. The right to walk in safety on public highways is one of the most fundamental rights but the advent of other traffic has required pedestrians to give way to a certain extent. This is because it is easy for a pedestrian to stop, step aside or change his direction. Pedestrians were never seriously interfered with by other traffic until modern motor traffic became a fact. These are facts taken from a statement prepared by the State Highway Commission of Wisconsin.

"It is just as necessary for the pedestrian to walk safely as for the motorist to drive safely," continues the statement. "When pedestrians are numerous a sidewalk on which vehicles are not allowed is a necessity. On most rural highways the cost of such a walk is too great, and it is, therefore, necessary for both pedestrians and motorists to observe certain rules that have been made for their mutual protection.

"The most fundamental of these is the one which directs pedestrians to walk on the left side of the road and to step off the traveled roadway if practicable when meeting a vehicle. The purpose of walking on the left side of the road is, of course, to give the pedestrian a better chance to view oncoming traffic.

"The most frequent pedestrians along country roads are children going to or returning from school. These children very often go in groups of a half dozen or more. It is very easy for them to forget momentarily that the traffic is heavy and to relax for a moment the vigilance which is always necessary. For this reason, motorists should always use special care when passing children. The motorist should be sure to sound his horn and make sure that the child knows that he is approaching. In their play children are apt to dart suddenly in the most unexpected directions and can easily run head on into an approaching automobile, especially if they do not know of its approach. All adults have been children, and many ought to remember how children feel and act after a long day with teacher. Drivers must make allowances for this.

"Besides sounding the horn, the motorist should, if possible, give the pedestrian a wide berth and have the car under such control that it can be stopped on very short notice. Pedestrians should reciprocate with a like courtesy.

HOLY HILL CHURCH WILL BE DEDICATED EARLY NEXT SUMMER

The new church at Holy Hill which has been under the course of construction for the past four years, and which will be completed within the next three or four weeks, will not be dedicated this fall. Because the construction of the main altar is a very laborious piece of work requiring the placing of thirty tons of stone and fittings for it, the work has gone on slowly. It has definitely been decided that because of the lateness of the season when the finishing touches will be made, the dedication will be postponed until next summer. At the present time services are being held in the chapel of the church which is located on the ground floor and during the winter months services are conducted in the chapel of the monastery. Within the next month the complete finishing touches will be made and will be completely ready for the dedication next season.—Hartford Times.

PLAIDS ENLIVEN SPORTS MODE; MILLINERS VELVET CONSCIOUS

GAY plaids are scheduled to enliven the sports mode. If you are up on Scottish lore you may choose the plaid of your favorite clan, for native designs and colorings have been faithfully reproduced in many of the new weaves.

Milliners Say Velvet. Milliners have become exceedingly velvet conscious. At every turn in the realm of the hat-beautiful for fall and winter one is reminded of the favor expressed for velvet in black, in colors and in white, for some of the most enchanting little berets the

STUNNING SPORTS OUTFIT

In the return of the over-the-skirt blouse is assured for fall and winter. In fact so insistent is the call for the over-blouse that even the dressiest types to wear with the very elegant velvet suits will be of this sort. However, we digress, we started out to tell about this very chic sports outfit and, especially about the exploitation of designers of plaid at outdoor events and for travel and town wear.

autumn sun, the moon also for that matter, e'er shone upon any styled of white transparent velvet if not of wide white velvet ribbon. The illustration below tells the story of the picturesque trends and flattering ways of the new velvet chapeaux. You may be assured that these choice models are "real millinery." That wee diamond-shaped trademark which you see printed to the right tells you so. It is a guarantee of these styles being authentic and authoritative, since it bears the letters A. M. F. Shirring Shirring goes ahead in the fashion vanguard this year, reaching the height of success in a clever little tu-tu. ORANGE JUICE, DESSERTS

Orange juice is such a pleasant drink that nobody needs to be urged to drink it. The average person thinks nothing of buying a bottle of medicine that costs a dollar or more, but how much pleasanter and cheaper orange Juice is. It regulates the bowels, refreshes and pleases the palate all at the same time, which cannot be said of most medicines. One need not fear any bad results from getting the orange juice habit—the more you take the better you like it and the healthier you are. For a daily drink any time it is acceptable and a glass taken at night is the best of night caps.

Fruit Dessert.—Take sliced oranges, using six; add one cupful of shredded dates and one-half cupful of shredded almonds. Arrange in layers, adding a little sugar, if needed, with a pinch of salt for the nuts.

Cottage Pudding.—Cream one-fourth of a cupful of butter, add two-thirds of a cupful of sugar gradually and one egg well beaten; mix and sift two and one-fourth cupfuls of flour with four teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one-half teaspoonful of salt; add the dry mixture alternately with one cupful of milk and bake in a shallow cake pan. Cut into squares and serve with a lemon sauce or with crushed fruit and cream.

Just a plain cottage pudding may be used for various desserts, varying the sauce which is served with it.

Coconut Cream Filling.—Scald two cupfuls of milk, add two-thirds of a cupful of sugar, four tablespoonfuls of flour, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of melted butter, three egg yolks, one-half teaspoonful of vanilla and one-fourth teaspoonful of lemon extract. Cook and cool. Cover with a meringue, using the egg whites and three tablespoonfuls of sugar, sprinkle with one-half cupful of grated coconut. Brown.

Peach Tartlets With Raspberry Sauce.—Spread rich pastry over small inverted party tins. Bake until a light brown in a hot oven. Place them in the tins and fill with halves of peaches, cut side down, cut very thin and kept in the original shape. Pour hot raspberry jam or sauce over them, return to the oven to bake until the peaches are soft. They may be served fresh if so wished, topping with a bit of whipped cream.

Marshmallow Filling for Cake.—Melt fifteen fresh marshmallows in a double boiler. When soft add one egg white, one and one-half cupful of confectioner's sugar and three tablespoonfuls of water (cold). Beat this mixture, when beginning to boil, seven minutes. Remove from the fire, add fifteen more marshmallows, cut very fine and fold over until the mixture holds its shape.

Chewing Gum by the Acre It takes 35,000 acres just to provide the flavorings of part of the chewing gum and candy consumed in this country annually. The flavorings in question are the essential oils of peppermint and spearmint. In the case of the spearmint, all the product goes into the manufacture of gum, but peppermint also finds its way into candy and as a flavoring for toothpaste.—Washington Star.

Identity Lost Do you know your own wife? Yes and no—and probably mostly the latter. In Mexico census officials discovered a man who, after living for 32 years with his wife, does not know her baptismal name. The wife, it is alleged, has become so used to the nickname given her by her husband since they were still sweethearts that she has completely forgotten her real identity.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Symbols of Royalty The king of England has three crowns: the St. Edward, made for the coronation of Charles II in 1662, and used in English coronation ceremonies; the imperial state crown, made for Queen Victoria in 1838, and the imperial crown of India made for George V, when he was crowned emperor of India at Delhi.

Concealed Construction Determines Building Success

Whether your building venture is an asset or will quickly become a liability is determined by the strength of the hidden structural parts—studs, rafters, joists, sheathing, lath and under-flooring. Unless it has a strong frame of good structural lumber, any home, no matter how beautiful it may be at first appearance, will soon deteriorate into an object of continuous expense, dissatisfaction and worry.

In this region of its growth, Association Branded Hemlock is the recognized standard of good construction. Of uniform standard sizes and correct grades of required strength, guaranteed by the Association Grade-mark shown below, this superior native lumber, with its immunity to dry rot plus a vice-like grip on nails, insures strength and stability to the building of which it is a part. Sold by reliable dealers everywhere.

A free pamphlet, "Vital Factors of Building Construction," now being distributed by the Northern Hemlock Manufacturers Association, Oshkosh, Wisconsin, gives valuable lumber facts. Write for your copy today.

Hard Times Affect Jap Temples and Churches

The business depression now prevailing throughout Japan affects not only business but the temples. Three years ago the Kwannon temple, in Asakusa park, Tokyo, which draws the largest number of visitors and pilgrims of any temple in the capital, averaged $500 a day in small coin contributions. People would go and throw pieces of money into the wooden box in front of the temple. Now, due to the slump, the income has dropped to the $125 level. This state of affairs has necessitated a complete revision in the temple's budget. Not only the Asakusa temple, but practically all the shrines, numbering 112,000, and countless Buddhist temples as well as Christian churches in Japan, have felt the sting of the business depression. In many cases temple priests have been finding it extremely difficult to make both ends meet. The number of worshippers has not decreased, figures prepared by the temples show, but more now pay their devotions in hope of making money than in finding a charitable way of spending it.

Worm Rain Hits London Worms rained on Brantford gardens, London, during a recent thunderstorm. Thousands of them were found afterwar. They were from 4 to 6 inches long and almost transparent, varying in thickness from the size of a human hair to that of a horsehair. Instead of keeping to the soil, they immediately mounted the stems and leaves of small plants. Thirty-five were found on one carnation stem. An entomologist declared he had never seen worms of the type before.

Make Your Fence Post Dollar Do Double Duty

YOU'LL want to hog down part of your corn this fall, turn in the stock on the stubble and corn fields after harvesting and picking, divide your fall pasture and perhaps you'll want to let the stock do the harvesting in some field where the crop did not come through right--so you'll be doing some temporary fencing this fall.

Come in right away and take out the fence and Red Tops that you'll need. Your stock and hogs will pick up enough extra feed to pay for the fence and posts. Then you can use those same posts and the fence to replace a stretch or two of run-down fence which you are going to have to replace anyway.

Using that material for a temporary fence this fall is the way to make that fence pay for itself and is the cheap way to replace that stretch or two of run-down fence. And you will be making your fence post dollar do double duty.

Come in and examine the Red Top (the best your money can buy), the Red Top one man Driver and the Red Top one man Post Puller. We carry Red Tops in various types and lengths to meet your every need and will be glad to help you work out your fencing problems economically.

"Ghost" Only Rabbit

Pupils of the school of Bunesan, Scotland, were recently thrown into a panic by the sudden appearance at the side of the blackboard of what they took to be a fluttering apparition in white. They ran home and told of the appearance of either a ghost or an angel. Parents investigated and found that a very large white hare had gotten into the schoolhouse and had been seen to jump from behind the blackboard.
