NUMBER 51 RURAL ROUTE NO. 5 TO BE DISCONTINUED

Beginning next Sunday, October 5 and continuing until Saturday, October 11th, the Wisconsin Beagle clui will hold it's eighth annual license field trials and fourth annual A. K. C licensed specialty dog show at Ke waskum. The field trials will star Sunday morning, while the bench show will be held at Joe Eberle's place on Sunday afternoon, beginning at one o'clock. A large number of silver loving cups, ribbons and cash prizes will be given away to those whose dogs will win prizes.

This is the second time the annua field trials and bench show of the Wisconsin Beagle club is being held at Kewaskum. At a meeting held by the members of the club at the close of the trials here last year, it was decided by an unanimous vote to again hold them here this year, for reasons that the place is more centrally located, the fields in which to hold them with plenty of rabbits, is very satisfactory, and last, but not least, the courtesy shown the members of the club by both the citizens of the village and the land owners on whose farms the trials were held, all of come to the members of the club, their stay here will prove a most enjoyable one.

The annual field trials and bench show is the one big event of the year looked forward to by the members of owners of the beagle dogs keep their favorite pets in trim the year round, in an effort to win a prize. Dogs from all over the state and neighboring states are being shipped here this week, some of which are high priced minials, especially those which are prize winners. According to an announcement made by the secretary of the club S. D. Fell of Oshkosh, the field trials and bench show will be bigger and better than ever, judging from the number of entries that have the Gospel according to the rites of been received.

LIVING UP TO THEIR MILLIONS (c) by D. J. Walsh.)

ICEE here, Jimmy, the rainy season (we live in Florida) is almost on us. What shall we do about the roof?" The better half was worrying a little private worry. I had mine, too, like the fact that I chose Rhode Island Reds instead of White Leghorns and the durned things went broody every night, and that cut egg production to nil, with feed so high. "I am trying to arrange for that roof, Sweetness," said I, in a dignified, resigned tone! She sniffed and ran into the house. "Not a thing worth the powder to blow it to blazes, Honey," I said one day as I tossed the mail to her. Honey riffled the heap. Then she selected a skinny letter, which she hurriedly opened. She drew out a thin sheet of paper. Her eyes covered the few lines quickly. A strangled sound startled me. "Jimmy, Jimmy-oh, read-this!"

I took the letter. Two hundred million dollars! From a relative I never even knew existed. I was-heir tobut I couldn't read those dancing figures. We beat it for home, and mother. She shared the excitement but we were all too dazed to think about the real meaning of so much coin, that night.

It was funny that G. K. Kinald drove up to the place that very night, he and the missus. Of course, we spilled the good tidings at once. G. K. gasped. He had been as hard hit as we were by hard times. "Boy, howdy ! How'll you enjoy it?

Felix Fools 'Em

What'll you do with it?" I hooted. "Do with it? I'll spend it. Been poor long enough. Going to salt $1,- 000,000 in good securities so I'll never have to be pinched again." "Lucky dog!" He sighed.

"Let's go for a trip, G. K. I've got plenty of cash. Let's go to Tampa." The better half snorted. Trip? Tampa? Why, we often drove that forty miles even when we were poor ! But I said in a superior manner: "Sniff, lady. I got an errand there." You'd have passed out, if you'd had that day with us, reader. We went straight to the Wallis-Day auto shop and I inspected every model on the floor. I'd pined for one of those nifty boats for years. Now, I was buying-yes sir, and what's more, I

Just then the wire appeared. Her face wore a look of alarm. "Say, Jimmy, you're crazy. Where can we go, where can we live?" "Say, you were fussing about that roof a few days ago. Now be calm, my dear, and leave it all to me." Sally sniffed loudly.

Those moving days were hectic. I hadn't planned very well and I had to put up a temporary home. Sally cried when she saw the little house that had to store all our goods and chattels. "I can't get 'em all in here, Jimmy."

"If you can't, don't try. Burn them up.'

That produced a riot. "We can buy more. And we'll need nice things for our new home." I regret to say that Sally howled after me: "Darn the new home. I'm not going to burn up my pretty things." But we got into the little house finally and the workmen began on the shack. Now that it was coming down, I realized how fond of every patch on the roof I really was! I knew how I loved the nailholes that let in lots of water every hard summer rain! Finally I had a beautiful brick bungalow on my hilltop, waiting for the "christening." Sally had decided on a big housewarming and of course we had plenty of friends now that our good fortune had been noised abroad.

Yes, it got into the papers some-way. Believe me, buddy, not through me! Did you say hard times? Wow! Every beggar and hard-up human in the world had written to me. Sally was dressing in her latest Paris frock, from Tampa. I was uncomfortable in tux and accessories Gee, women surely love to put on the dog when they get some coin. "You needn't be fussy, Jim. You have to live up to $200,000,000 !" "Not that much now, Baby. I've spent in the past three months."

"You haven't even started a dent in it." Woefully, I admitted the truth of that statement. I had tried to though. Crash! Bang!

"Our guests are arriving, honey. Aren't they early-"

Slam! "Noisy, it seems. I don't think I needed this outfit to spend the evening with a bunch of bums-"

C-R-A-S-H! "Jimmy, Jimmy, the roof's leaking! Oh, wake up, you!"

I sat up in bed, wide awake at last. Where was the-$200,000,000? Sally stood there, hands over her ears, as crash re-echoed on crash. The lightning played about us.

I was mad clean through. To have such a vista spoiled by a thunderstorm, and with that leaky roof-And a bucket of water poured down over me from that leak over the door of the sleeping porch and I fled to duty and the drip pans, which have permanent stations in every clothes closet upstairs!

"Kiss the flivver fare-you-well, G. R. Let's go."

We wept a few publicity tears and tenderly patted the old 'bus. A newspaper photographer was taking pictures of the ceremony. Then we each took the wheel of a big Wallis-Day and started. Fun? Boy, you should have seen the way that crowd scattered when we pretended we had no idea how to handle such a large car. But finally we got tired of such foolishness and roared off for home. The wife greeted us with a howl.

"Well, I gave you $10,000 this morning and I don't want to hear from you for a month," said I, kissing those pouty lips. She smacked me on the cheek and slid under the wheel of my new boat. "I'll get the mail. Perhaps some one will leave me a few millions to-out by trees and shrubs. All frontyard plantings should be subordinate to the house entrance, lending support to the structure and stressing the importance of the final objective for which streets were created.

If every one would give more thought to at least some planting and consistent maintenance of their front yards, the effect on the community would more than repay them for their efforts. One method of improving a community as a desirable and attractive place in which to live, is for each individual concerned to devote time and interest to the proposition and perhaps do a little work in the yard at home. This will bring more real results than all the propaganda ever sponsored by luncheon clubs or public-spirited organizations .- Exchange.

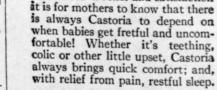

"Surloin" Correct Spelling

As the word "sirloin" figured in the accounts of the English Ironmongers' company for the reign of King Henry VI-1422-1461-which were quoted by Wedgwood in his "English Etymological Dictionary" (1872): "A surloyne beeff viid," the story of its origin, through a king's whim to confer the dignity of knighthood on a round of beef, that was first told in 1655, even after sponsorship by Dean Swift in 1732, fails to impress modern etymologists. The true source of surloin, as it should be spelled, is French sur. "above," and longe, "loin," but the common belief of the legend has established the erroneous spelling in the language. It is interesting to note, however, that when the story was first told, Oliver Cromwell was lord protector of England !- Literary Digest.

"The workman who got the sketch was John Kruesi. I didn't have much faith that it would work, expecting that I might possibly hear a word or so that would give hope of a future for the idea. Krusei, when he had nearly finished it, asked what it was for. I told him I was going to record talking, and then have the machine talk back. Trace Negro Spirituals to Christian Teaching

For several years Prof. N. G. J. Balanta, a native of West Africa, has been engaged in an effort to trace the sources and history of negro spirituals. His findings were recently published by the commission on interracial co-operation. The spiritual now in vogue is based on primitive African rhythm, but its present form and development are due largely to Christianity. "Christianity," says Professor Balanta, "was the force that breathed life into the innate musical talent of the African in his new environment. Far from his native land, despised by those among whom he lived, knowing the hard taskmaster, feeling the lash, the negro seized Christianity, the religion of compensations in the life to come for the ills suffered in the present existence. The result was a body of songs voicing all the cardinal virtues of Christianity-patience, forbearance, love, faith and hope-through a modified form of primitive African music."-Pathfinder Magazine.

Few Insect Fighters Ahle to Defeat Spider

The wasp and the hornet may be reckoned as formidable foes, but it would appear that the spider, for his size and weight, at least, is equal to anything he may come across. In a recent experiment a spider was pitted against a wasp in an inverted tumbler. The wasp scored the first point, biting off one of its opponent's legs; but in the next round the spider got in an infective bite, and the wasp died in a few minutes. Two other contests followed, and in each the spider came off victorious. The strong feature of the spider is its agility, and even in the uncongenial environment of a tumbler it evades attack with apparent ease. With the added advantage of a web, which provides not only lines of retreat and attack, but also serves to entangle and embarrass the enemy, the spider is a foeman whom even the boldest spirits in the insect world hesitate to attack.

The Financier

The great flurry in Wall street did reach deep, all right. Someone was about to call the operator from a drugstore phone booth in upper Broadway when the bell rang. A clerk came from behind the counter and answered it. "I'll see if I can get him," he said, and he went out on the sidewalk and gesticulated. The traffic cop out in the street nodded and came to the phone. "Down to nine, eh?" said the cop. "What would you advise me to do? . . Huh? . . . Put in an order to sell at market? . . . Okay, go ahead and get me out." He hung up and went back to his intersection .-- Boston Globe.

Island May Be Abandoned Lanzarote, the most easterly of the Canary islands, may be abandoned because of the drought which has prevailed there for more than six years. No rain has fallen in that time, and all the water supply on the island has been exhausted. Many farmers are preparing to leave. Cereals and white wine are the chief products of Lanzarote, which is said to have been named in honor of Lancelot Malocello, who re-discovered it in 1270, and is one of the "Islands of the Blessed" of the ancient Greeks.

It is the miguelete also who takes charge of the savings bank accounts, and so great is the confidence he inspires among the peasantry that old and young hand over their hard-earned reales and pesetas to this red-legged cop. Milwaukee-A federal grand jury returned 92 indictments in Milwaukee of which 71 involved violations of the national prohibition laws. The jury deliberated for six days and considered slightly more than 100 cases.

Neenah-Thieves entered the junior high school building here, stole a small amount of money and various articles. A window and inner doors were smashed to gain entrance to offices and classrooms. Practically every room in the building was ransacked.

Milwaukee-Mrs. Ellen Neuman, 21, West Allis, died in a hospital from injuries received when she was struck accidentally by a golf club wielded by her husband, Harold R. Neuman, on the Blue Mound golf course here. She was the mother of a three months old daughter.

Ashland-Fear of an epidemic of rables in the city of Mellen and the township of Morse led the state department of agriculture and markets to order a 90-day quarantine on dogs. An analysis by state chemists revealed that a dog which bit a horse at Mellen recently had hydrophobia.

Waupaca-A state potato crop shortage unrivaled in Wisconsin history is certain to result this year because of the summer's terrific heat and drouth, in the opinion of leading dealers and growers here. Nothwithstanding, only a fair price is expected because economic conditions point to a curtailment of consumption.

Chilton-Fourtten cattle, owned by Albert Hernke, town of Rantoul, were seriously burned in a marsh fire along the Manitowoc river. The cattle had gone into the marsh to feed, were cut off and driven in deeper by the fire which forced them into burning peat bogs. Many of them would have to be killed, Mr. Hernke said.

Madison-The 1930 enrollment at Wisconsin's nine normal schools has increased 11 per cent over 1929, E. G. Doudna, secretary of the normal school regents, announced here. At the end of the first week of school in 1929 the total enrollment was 5.181. Reports made to Mr. Doudna at the end of the first week this year give a total of 5,743, an increase of 562.

Milwaukee-Damage of $2,000 to electrical wiring in an apartment house under construction here was laid to labor difficulties by investigators from the police department. The electrical contractors for the building said that they had had no labor trouble but reports persisted that Chicago union men had protested because work was being done under an open shop policy.

Spooner-Four-H club exhibits made a fair in themselves at the Washburn county fair. A total of 425 boys and whibits whi than two-thirds of all exhibitors showing. Boys and girls showed 102 calves, 12 sheep, 200 chickens, 60 exhibits of potatoes, 29 of corn, 30 of canning, 126 of baking, 250 of sewing, 56 of gardening, 44 of forestry and nine of home beautification.

London .- Summoned by a group of leading industrialists, 200 representatives of British trade and industry held a conference in London and resolved to form a "council of industry and commerce," with the object of promoting a protectionist policy for this country and reducing national expenditures. A large number of other business men from all parts of the country attempted to attend the conference, but were disappointed to learn that admittance was by invitation only.

This caused many protests and indignation meetings were held on the doorsteps of the building housing the conference.

The meeting lasted nearly three hours under the chairmanship of Sir William Morris, the motor car manufacturer. In his opening speech he described England as "the dumping ground of the world" and expressed astonishment that, with conditions as unfavorable as they are, industry had

WILL CALL HALT ON WHEAT MARKET RULE

Secy. of Agriculture Intimates Federal Action.

Washington .- Intervention by the federal government to prevent deliberate manipulation of the American wheat market, either by Soviet agents or private gamblers, was intimated by Arthur M. Hyde, secretary of agriculture, as likely to follow if the Chicago Board of Trade does not adopt protective regulations of its OWD.

Secretary Hyde permitted this inference to be known after he, Robert P. Lamont, secretary of commerce, and Alexander Legge, chairman of the federal farm board, had conferred without avail with a delegation from the board of trade, consisting of Silas H. Strawn, general counsel to the board; James Norris, vice president, and Peter P. Carey and Siebel C. Harris, members.

Mr. Strawn and the visiting delegation, it was announced, asked Secretary Hyde to submit specific recommendations as to what the government thought the board should do in view of his charge that Soviet agents had sold at least 7,500,000 bushels of Russian wheat futures in the American market for the purpose of further depressing badly sagging grain prices. Secretary Hyde announced that he had refused flatly to comply with the request out had told the board officials that it was a matter the orthem, the secretary asserted, that the board of trade should make the domestic grain market fair to the seller and buyer alike and stop deliberate manipulation of prices.

"We are not asking them to do anything but clean their own house." he added. "If they don't do something, then, as Kipling said, that is another story."

The Chicago delegation gave no assurance that the board would or could correct the situation, nor were they in a position to state when a program of reform might be submitted. There are 1,600 members of the board, it was pointed out, who must be consulted if any radical changes in regulations are to be attempted.

Secretary Hyde said that the meeting had been entirely amicable, but fruitless as far as progress toward a solution was concerned. His own position, Mr. Hyde added, was unchanged and he expressed hope that the board would see its way clear to go ahead and take the necessary measures "to protect the American farmer against competition that is not legitimate."

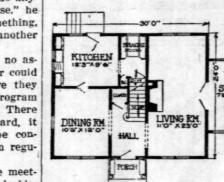

During the conference the board of trade officials stated their organization was considering calling a referendum on a regulation which would eliminate futures trading on all nonmillable grades of wheat and stop the custom of accepting orders for a house or even a room the atmos-"deliveries on-track." Fuel Causes Priming Probably no other problem of oper- 1 jected into the inlet manifold, is ation for the motorist is so universal in its application, affecting alike the lordly twelve and the humble flivver, as that of securing ease of starting. There is a basic reason for this condition and it is found in the grade of gasoline that is now produced. The fact that our oil refiners now include in "gasoline" heavier components than in the old days renders the motor fuel hard to vaporize and needing heat for efficient action. This is why cold weather makes it hard to start the cold motor. There is not a section of the country, even the sunny

Low Grade Automobile

Southland, where the colder months do not bring difficulties in starting. Unquestionably the best way of securing easy starting is by priming with some fuel lighter, more volatile and more easily fired than the ordinary gasoline that serves very well after the engine has been warmed up.

An equipment for this purpose is easily installed on any car. It consists usually of a small air-tight tank holding about a quart of the priming fluid and this is generally located under the hood. A pipe leads from this tank to the inlet manifolds and another pipe to a pump or other control on the dash. By operating the control a small quantity of the lighter fuel from the auxiliary tank is insucked out of the combustion chambers and fires at the first spark. A number of different fluids are used for priming. What is known as 76 degrees gasoline is entirely satisfactory. This is simply a gasoline of the sort that we used to get years ago, before demand caught up with supply and passed it, forcing the oil refiners to lower the grade of the fuel. This high-test gasoline may be procured from any of the big oil companies or from drug shops of the better sort. Within the last year or two some of the oil companies have been producing what is known as petroleum ether. This is simply a lighter product from the crude base, differing little from high-test gasoline. It makes an admirable priming compound and with a tank of this on hand an easy start may be secured even in the coldest weather, 20 or 30 degrees below zero.

Lefty Grove Possesses Two Admirable Baseball Assets

Robert Moses (Lefty) Grove could | in a fair way to get more and better not be bought now for twice the price service from Grove than any of the be cost Connie Mack-$105,000 and a others. Perhaps the reason is that Grove has the speed and stuff of record for pitching talent anywhere. Waddell, the control and easy-going temperament of Plank, a rare combination.

Grove seems certain to sustain the spring suggestion that 1930 would be the best year the lean left-hander has had in the American league.

He was around the 20 mark in victories by the middle of August, with six weeks in which to beat his best record of 24 triumphs, made in 1928, and an outside chance to be the first American league flinger to touch 30 victories since Sergeant Jim Bagby did it for the Cleveland team in the year 1920.

McGRAW LUCKY WITH FIRST BASEMEN

FIRST base seems to be a lucky position for Jawn McGraw. Since he became manager of the Giants back in the condition. he became manager of the Giants back in the good old days of 1902, first base has given him less worry than any other position on his ball club. When he quit Baltimore that year and went to New York, he brought along Dan McGann and "Dangerous Dan" in his day was one of the best first basemen in the country.

At the present moment, McGraw's first baseman is none other than William Harold Terry, big property man of Memphis, Tenn. In between McGann and Terry there were Fred Tenney, Fred Merkle, Walter Holke, Hal Chase and Long George Kelly.

Of these great first basemen only Tenney and Chase failed to play on a McGraw pennant winning team. McGann was at first base when the "Master Mind" won his first pennant in 1904 and again in 1905, the year that Matty pitched three straight shut-out games against the Athletics in the World's series.

After 1905, McGraw did not win again until 1911.

Merkle, who lost the pennant in 1908 by failing to touch second base against the Cubs, was the first baseman on the pennant winning teams of 1911, 1912 and 1913. Holke was at first when McGraw and the Giants won in 1917, while Kelly was a member of the famous team that established a new record for the "Master Mind" by winning four straight pennants, 1921, 1922, 1923 and 1924.

Of McGraw's first basemen, Chase, of course, was a marvelous fielder and was ranked by many smart baseball men as the greatest first baseman of all times. Tenney was another wonderful fielder, while McGann and Merkle were both steady and sure, but neither was as spectacular as Chase or Tenney. Kelly was another spectacular first baseman because of his height, long reach and his powerful throwing arm.

As for Terry, he is just about the best first baseman at the present time. McGraw says so, and so do a lot of other baseball players who have played and fought against "Memphis Bill." Not as powerful a hitter as Jimmy Foxx of the world's champion Athletics. Terry is one of the best batters in either the city or country, and is far ahead of his rival first basemen in fielding.

"Well," answered the misanthrope, "it is said that he is still doing business entirely with other people's dollars."
