desirable from the realty value point to Della. All in a fortnight it hapof view, Mr. and Mrs. Isaiah Moore pened, the opportunity, the sale, the old-fashioned green grocer's establishan awning over the wooden sidewalk, supported by wooden props for pillars. There were three inverted barrels standing outside the Moore grocery store for loiterers; probably the only three such barrels in the state.

Mr, and Mrs. Moore lived in a twostory frame house one block removed from this place of business. It was a typical frame house; six box-like rooms, no modern improvements, truck garden in the side yard, a picket fence closing it in from the wooden sidewalk, a pump with a tin dipper dangling, a woodshed which contained a dilapidated flivver, used chiefly for grocery deliveries, a dog house, a summer kitchen and some beautiful old plane and maple trees.

Mrs. Moore, who divided her days In the grocery store with her husband, did not have a great deal of time for housekeeping; but just the same her spring crocuses and summer roses and late dahlias could vie with the best in Delia. So could the primness of the Interior of her little frame house. Spick, span, rigid, filled with the cold smell of matting, horse-hair covered furniture and unaired front parlor. But the Moores had a dream. It had begun back in the days when young Isaiah Moore, evenings off from his father's grocery store, had wooed the pretty Abby Ross in the stiff front parlor of her father's house in Delia. Even back there, Isaiah was full of the dream of the "wide-open spaces." Every pre-nuptial plan of theirs, even that which had to do with the immediate reality of Moore's grocery store and taking up residence in the little frame house in which they were to live for a subsequent thirty years, was tinged with that sunny vision of the remote "wide-open spaces."

Of course, the usual happened. Quick tides of life caught up Abby and Isalah and carried them along to a destiny not planned by themselves. A year after their marriage, the father of Isaiah died, leaving him the some what doubtful legacy of the debt-encumbered grocery store. The next year, Abby's twins were born, to die five years later in a local epidemic. It is probable that, more than any thing that had ever happened to them this unseemly catastrophe frustrated the ambition of Abby and Isaiah, or at least inhibited it for the period of the next five or ten years.

The Moores found themselves clutched by circumstance, restrained by routine, saddened by calamity. And so during the years that this erstwhile vision of the "wide-open spaces" lay fallow, thirty springtimes swung around into the little garden surrounding the frame house. Thirty winters, many of them bitter and cold, with thick layers of snow on the slat roofs and the runty cornfields of Delia: thirty autumns that minted into gold and russet the fine old oak trees and plane trees and maple trees that lined the leisurely streets of Delia; thirty summers that warmed Abby's roses into life and kept the three barrels in front of Moore's grocery store crowded with loiterers.

Intense seasons, all of them, filled with too much rain or too much snow or too much heat or too much wind. The hard, chapped face of Isalah Moore, when he came out of the groery store to survey a snow scape, or to watch the blasting heat dance across the cornfields of the outlying country, automatically, even after thirty years, turned to the west. There was something almost fanatical in his craving for the milder, sunklased "open spaces." He yearned for the relaxation of kindlier climates, for the gandeur of mountains and the brilliant and cozy security of the farfamed bungalows of the western coast. So dld Abby. When sleet beat against the little wooden box of the winds roared in through the windows I to talk with!"

In the last year many new hotels have been erected to be run by members of the fair sex, and many of the old ones have changed hands to have female Bonffaces. Even where the men are tenants the hotels are being conducted by women. The new managers have made great changes in the places which they run. They have introduced "the feminine touch" even into the bars in a way that would cause the host of the old coaching days of 100 years ago to turn over in his grave. or spring rains tapped dainty fingers nlong the sills, Abby was given to taking out the great box of travel folders, real estate prospectuses and maps that Isaiah kept tucked on a closet shelf, to pore over them.

There was one picture of a bungalow colony on a sunny coast. A row of adorable-looking Spanish houses, drenched in sunlight, backed in mountain tops and surrounded by gardens that took your breath away.

As they grew older, and a little more tired, this old dream of the Moores began to resuscitate itself. The Moores knew better. The dream within their grasp was too incredibly good to be true. For the first months of setting up their household goods in one of the pale-pink Spanish bungalows, surrounded by color and backed by mountain, the unreality of their happiness had been the only flaw in the ointment. It was impossible to wake up and quite believe yourself lying out in this cradle of botanical beauty. The old pair pottered about two-thirds of the day in their brilliant garden, walked about the wide streets of their little community, or sat gazing upon the rhinoceros-like hide of the towering mountain so easily within their view. The sun beat ceaselessly; winds were warm and drowsy; rain was so rare that you reckoned with it

At the end of the first year a consciousness of this for the first time took concrete form in the mind of Abby. To her amazement she found herself hankering for the sweetness of the springlike tapping of rain on the window sills, or the solemn gray respite of a steady downpour that used to wash the landscape in mist. Abby found herself yearning for a day cold enough to wind a good old woolen scarf about her neck and scurry along the road to keep the blood warm and going. And, to her surprise, when she explained this fact to Isaiah, he admitted to a longing that was older than Abby's for some of the sterner stuff of those sterner days back home. The Moores were sunshine-glutted; satiated with brightness; their eyes ached with the torrents of cerulean light that poured over their days. There came the time when they contemplated the brilliant fury of each noonday with a certain antagonism to the relentless consistency of the sun. The geometry of the new wide streets, the pink imitation Spanish bungalows, the narrow shade of the eucalyptus trees and the treeless flank of mountain began to pall on eyes accustomed to a fluctuating climate and geography of their own state. A new dream began to form in the Moores, After all, they were too young to withdraw from life in this tedious fashion. The idea of going back into the grocery business was pretty firm in Isaiah's old mind.

The site they finally chose as the scene of the new enterprise was a town called Delia.

Austrian Invented Postcard?

One of the facts of life not often wondered about is the penny postcard. says a dispatch from Vienna. People imagine the postcard as something more or less traditional-as traditional, say, as a letter. But such is not the case. The postcard was invented only in the middle of the Nineteenth century, and it took many years before governments permitted its use with cheap postage. The inventor, Emanuel Hermann, was an official of the Vienna post office; he died in 1902. He turned the Austrian civil service upside down by his demand for permission to send printed or written communications without an envelope. His postcard was introduced and spread immediately all over the world.—De-

In 1696 a man named Richard Johnson was hanged at Shrewsbury. He hung for half an hour and still showed signs of life, so the hangman went up to see what was the matter. Noticing two books at the back of Johnson's neck, he took him down, pulled off his shirt, and discovered that the hooks were secured by a rope wound around and under the culprit's body, the whole device taking the strain off his neck, The ropes were cut off and he was put up again, when the job was effectively completed, Johnson had previously applied to the undersheriff for the privilege of being buried in his full garb, and if he had concealed the hooks properly and been more adept in simulation he would no doubt have lived to tell the tale. Short Fiction Writer

CANNIE HURST is the L highest paid short story writer in the world today. There's a good reason for that. She knows human nature and under the magic of her touch, the people about whom she writes become real people, not mere literary creations. The plots of her stories are based on incidents from real life as it is lived every day by the common people.

Such are the stories which are appearing in this newspaper. Be sure to read them and talk to your friends about them, for they like interesting stories, too. And Fannie Hurst's stories are interesting stories.

In a dizzy burst of speed, the assembly passed the Loomis power district bill without debate and thereby brought to conclusion a battle that tied up the senate and its committees for many days. The passage of this measure marks the first complete major achievement of the La Follette administration. The roll call on concurrence followed, resulting in a vote of 82 to 6. The dissenting members were Labar, W. A. Meyer, Murray, E. G. Smith, Westfahl and Young.

After passage of the measure, it was found that the bill had not been sent to the joint finance committee as the rules require on all measures with a finance angle. This delayed final action for a few days. mit the state to issue bonds to finance offense. the acquisition of power plants and distribution lines. The measure must be passed by the next legislature and approved in a referendum before it will become effective.

* * * After two hours' delberation, the senate passed the executive budget bill, 23 to 10, carrying appropriations of $43,000,000 for the blennium. Last minute amendments added about $550,-(x)O and caused a rupture of party lines. As the bill stands it is about 8990,000 over the limit set by the joint finance committee,

The budget bill was recently passed by the assembly after $339,000 had been added to the joint finance committee's appropriations of $41,985,000. Concurrence in the senate amendments is now necessary before the bill goes to the governor.

The senate acted to throttle the sale of oleomargarine and similar products in Wisconsin when it adopted the drastic Loomis license bill. The assembly must concur in the measure. No oleomargarine, butterine or similar product may be kept for sale or manufactured without a license from the department of agriculture and markets, the bill provides.

The assembly has concurred in four senate measures that will broaden the field of investment in building and loan associations. Under the measures insurance funds, life insurance funds, trust funds and the deposits of mutual savings banks may be invested in the interest bearing notes of building and loan associations.

Gov. La Follette signed the Severson bill increasing the state license of domestic life insurance companies. The measure, it was estimated will bring in an additional $250,000 revenue to the state.

Substitution of a department of credit for the present commissioner of banking was outlined in a bill introduced by Assemblyman Rewlands of Cambria. The proposed department would include the securities division now under administration of the railroad commission.

Stifling opposition from eastern and southern counties, the assembly passed, by a vote of 63 to 32, the Cashman highway bill which has as its important features a 4 cent gasoline tax and repeal of the personal property tax on automobiles.

It already has been passed by the senate, but because three amendments were tacked on by the assembly, the measure must go back to the upper house, where it is expected to be approved.

The bill, introduced by Senator John E. Cashman, Denmark, administration leader, is thus far Gov. La Follette's chief answer to the unemployment problem, Under its provisions the increased revenue from auto owners will be used for the elimination of 60 to 90 railroad agrade crossings, giving employment to 6,000 to 10,000 men.

bribe a senator has been adopted by the senate,

In the report, Senators Severson, Jole, and Clifford, Juneau, recommended that further action be left to the attorney general and the district atturney of Dane county. Prosecution also was recommended.

The minority report, written by Senstor Goodland, Hacine, was less severe, and it did not find any evidence of bribery. Senator Goodland's report was rejected, 17 to 16.

By an overwhelming vote, the assembly killed a bill by Assemblyman Don V. Smith, Jefferson, which would exclude legislators' salaries from garnishment actions. The assembly judiciary committee had previously recommended the bill for passage.

Joliet, Ill.-Officials now rule Illinois' two state prisons with a hand two horses were burned to death in a of iron to prevent a repetition of the most recent rlot in which five buildings at Stateville penitentiary were burned by some of 1,800 milling prisoners, three of whom were wounded, one fatally, before the insurrection could be put down.

Warned that the smoldering resentment of the convicts might flare into a new uprising in the older of the two prisons, penitentlary authorities posted extra guards in the dining room. They had the support of the state government at Springfield, which Indicated the slogan for discipline would be "more guns and less talk."

In addition to 200 National Guardsmen, a like number of state highway police, under command of their chief, done and three guards were beaten.

One prisoner, Raymond Barney, is dead. He was wounded, along with Edward Devaney and Michael Farrare, when they and hundreds of other convicts refused to obey orders from the warden to return to their cells after the rioting had begun.

At that hour 180 convicts in the chair factory attacked three guards, lit torches of inflammable material and ran into the prison yard.

Almost simultaneously there was an outpouring of convicts from adjoining buildings. Seizing torches they applied them to the laundry, the shoe and carpenter shop, the garage and the dining rooms, and then, under cover of the smoke, assembled in the open yard. Efforts of Rev. Eligius Weir, the Catholic chaplain, to stop the men resulted in nothing but hoots and cries against the Illinois parole

Another chorus of jeers greeted Warden Hill when he walked unarmed into the yard and ordered the convicts back to their cells. As he spoke armed guards from the prison walls were gathering, but the prisoners stood their ground.

At the warden's direction two shots were fired by them over their heads, but still they refused to move. There was another order for the men to disperse. This likewise was refused and the guards fired. Three fell wounded The shooting put an end to the affair and the prisoners hastened to their cells to escape the fumes of tear bombs, hurled by the guards. The prison gates then were opened to admit members of the Joliet fire department, who put out the flames.

The rule of sternness invoked by the officials included a bread-and-water diet at Stateville, which they planned to keep in effect for ten days, In addition to which all except trusted men will be kept in their cells until there is no further sign of trouble.

Neither will any of them receive new clothes for weeks, as the supply depot as well as the bakery were burned. Water had to be brought from Joliet, five miles distant, as the supply was exhausted in fighting the fire. Thousands of loaves of bread had to be brought from Chicago because of the damage to the bakery.

The President and his party left Washington by train on the first leg of a journey which will carry him through 3,000 miles of the Caribbean. It is his first vacation in a year.

Awaiting the Chief Executive here were officers of the Arizona, artillery officers from Fortress Monroe and a guard of honor from the fort. Twentyone guns fired the usual salute twice as President Hoover had to cross the military reservation of Fortress Monroe in order to reach the small boat taking him alongside the Arizona. An other customary salute was given his arrival aboard the big fighting ship. Much of the formality of a Presiden-tlal visit was dispensed with aboard the Arizona, the President having sent word he wanted as little ceremony as possible without disturbing the rules and traditions of the navy.

The party left the capital on a spe cial train. Big army trucks were at the little station to transport baggage to a launch tied up at the nearby dock. Before the President departed from Washington he learned the Porto Rican insular legislature had declared him ferring to the Executive as "our great fellow citizen." At the same time, the new governor of the Virgin islands, Dr. Paul M. Pearson, took office, a civil administration replacing that under Capt. Waldo Evans of the navy.

Washington,-With initial reports to the bureau of internal revenue showing substantial decreases in income tax returns throughout the country. the treasury was notified by Brig. Gen. Frank T. On the basis of this, Andrew W. congress. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, announced that additional treasury financing probably would be necessary to take care of these loans in advance of the regular May financing

While the decrease will be substantial, as compared with last year, officlals said that it probably would not be quite as great as was first estimated. Whereas early estimates of the drop went as high as $125,000,000, early reports indicated a decrease in the neighborhood o $90,000,000.

In a letter to Secretary Mellon, General Hines said applications for soldier bonus loans to March 14 totaled 1,372,006 out of a total of 3,400.-000 veterans holding adjusted service certificates, against which the loans are authorized. While General Hines said it was impossible to say how many more requests would be received, he expressed the belief that his original estimate that 75 per cent would demand loans would prove correct.

"It appears from this letter," the treasury added in a statement, "that for the purpose of making the loans applied for up to March 14, the treasury will be called upon to furnish approximately $500,000,000 by April 11, including the $100,000,000, more or less, loaned since the new law went into effect."

Employment Conditions Improved, U. S. Reports

Washington. - Improved industrial conditions, with increasing employment, were outlined by the United States employment service and by the bureau of labor statistics of the Department of Labor.

The monthly announcement of the bureau of labor statistics was based on reports from 42,383 establishments in 15 major industrial groups. It showed a slight general increase in employment, amounting to less than 0.1 per cent, but an advance of 4.7 per cent in payroll totals in February as compared with January. The payroll increase, considered in connection with the relatively smal general increase in the number of emthe guest of honor in a resolution re- | ployees, was taken to mean that thousands of workers who have been forced to get along on part-time employment are being given more work. More significance was attached to the increases in the manufacturing industries than to the general figures. In this group, employment increased 25 per cent and payrolls 7.5 per cent It represented 13,377 of the 42,383 establishments from which returns were drawn accounted for 2,772,219 of the 4,575,140 employees reported at work and for $66,567,283 of the combined earnings in one week of $113,623,246.

A procession of penitents, composed of thousands of clergy and laymen, wends its way to Santa Croce in Gerusalemme, where a comparatively large piece of what is said to be the cross of Calvary has been kept for centuries.

Between the hours corresponding to the time that Christ is supposed to have suffered his agony, all business is at a standstill, and traffic largely suspended.

Holy Staircase Goal.

In the city of Rome the scala santa, or holy staircase, enshrined in the church just across the way from St. John Lateran, is the goal of thousands of penitents, both Italian and foreign. The tradition is that the staircase is the same that Christ ascended in the praetorium of Pontius Pilate in Jerusalem, on his way to appear before the Roman governor. The steps, all of marble, are assumed to have been brought to Rome by St. Helena, mother of Constantine, the first Christian' emperor.

All day the pilgrims ascend those stairs on their knees, praying at each pause. When they reach the top they are permitted a view through a lattice of the chapel known as the sancta sanctorum, or holy of holles, an early picture of Christ and some precious In every one of Rome's 400 churches

Veneration of Cross.

Thereafter comes the ceremony of the veneration of the cross. The veiled crucifix is taken down from above each altar and gradually uncovered, the clergy chanting the "Ecce Lignum Crucis," whose first line, translated, is "Behold the wood of the cross, on which hung the salvation of the world." The priests then remove their shoes in sign of reverence, kneel and bow three times and kiss the crucifix, placed on the altar steps. Thereupon the laity are permitted to approach and perform the same act of homage. In the evening the devotion to "Maria Desolata" (Mary Desolate) takes

REFORE the advent of Christianity, spring was always celebrat-

Some authorities tell us that it was only as early as A. D. 354 that the feast of the Nativity was celebrated on the twenty-fifth of December, while Easter in its origin goes back to the Sunday itself. Among the early Christians every Sunday was a joyful celebration of the resurrection of Jesus. She remembered what her father had said of the punctilious sense of honor of the Japanese noblity, and for a moment she suspected that he bad been enrolled in a conspiracy to bring his daughter to the standard of conduct described in the newspaper elipping; but only for a moment did she harbor such distrust. The plece she had been about to play was one of Hya's favorfres. She had slept for many nights after their visit to Loris, and now retired early, but not niways to sleep. For a most tasty luncheon dish, try the following when it is convenient: Casserole of Noodles and Tuna Fish.-Take two cupfuls of uncooked noodles, one pound can of tuna fish, one-fourth of cupful of chopped pimiento, two cupful of drained, canned peas, two cupfuls of thin white sauce and buttered crumbs. Cook the noodles until tender in three quarts of boiling water to which one tablespoonful of salt has been added. Drain and place a layer of noodles in the bottom of a buttered baking dish, then a layer of fish, pimiento and peas. Season well and repeat until all the ingredients are used. Pour over the white sauce and top with a thick layer of buttered crumbs. Bake until brown.

Chicken Pie Supreme.-Cut up a cooked chicken and arrange in a large casserole in layers with uncooked rice, add small onions, broken mushrooms and a few peas. Dot each layer with butter, using two layers of chicken. Pour over well-seasoned chicken broth, season well, cover and cook until the rice is done. Uncover and place very small baking powder biscuits over the top or well-browned croutons.

Orange Tapioca .- Take four tablespoonfuls of quick cooking tapioca, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, one and one-third cupfuls of boiling water and cook in a double boiler for 15 minutes, or until the tapioca is transparent, stirring frequently. Add onehalf cupful of sugar, and when well mixed a cupful of orange juice and the grated rind of half an orange. Stir until cool. When cool fold in one-half cupful of whipped cream. Pile in sherbet glasses and serve.

Spanish Sandwich .- Chop enough green pepper and onion to make two tablespoonfuls each. Cook until a light brown, in one tablespoonful of butter. Hot School Lunches and Balanced Rations Given to Drought Victims-Seed Programs Instituted on Wide Scale

More than 1,000,000 persons in $62 drought-stricken counties of 20 States came under the care of the American Red Cross in what developed into the most extensive relief operations in half a century of ministering to stricken humanity. Measures to lessen the severity of the blow inflicted by drought were taken as early as last September, when seed was distributed to more than 58,-000 families for the planting of rye and other pastures, and to more than 27,-000 families for the planting of kitchen gardens. The expenditure for this pur liegue. pose amounted to $826,800. Green vegetables were made available up to the

Early in February another Red Cross garden program got under way and church. 507,000 packages of seed were distributed in 15 states. Quarter-acre plots were planted to beans, beets, cabbage, carrols, collard, sweet corn, kale, lettuce, mustard, okra, onions, peas, spinach, squash, tomatoes and turnips, Once again were farm families given the opportunity to participate in their own salvation. A comparatively mild winter contributed to the success of the Spring and Fall seed campaigns. Many habitual single-croppers were introduced to the advantages of kitchen gardens, balanced cropping and balanced diet. Numerous land-owners have expressed the opinion that this constitutes the one apparent blessing to come out of the drought catastrophe. The United States Department of Agriculture and the local county agricultural agents and home demonstration agents co operated in making this part of the relief operations outstandingly success-

Balanced Meals Served

Red Cross feeding was aimed at adequacy and scientific correctness, as well as simple economy. In large numbers of schools, where children were found to be attending with fittle or mothing in their lunch boxes, hot meals were served at noon. A typical menu consisted of vegetable soup and bread one day; thick beef soup or stew with vegetables another day; cocoa or milk and cheese, peanut butter, or jam sandwiches, a third day.

In some places where lunches were not served in the schools, but were prowided for in the regular food orders, each family having school children received extra staples for school lunches including peanut butter, raisins, prunes and tomatoes. Red Cross nutritionists | beth of Flint, Mich. instructed mothers in the preparation of lunches.

County health officers and private physicians commended the adequacy of rations procured on orders issued by Red Cross chapters, which were filled at local stores. Besides the usual staples, such as corn meal, flour, lard, meat, beans and potatoes, such items as canned salmon, cabbage, tomatoes, vegetables and milk were provided, each order being adapted to the special needs of the family for whom it was issued. Where pellagra threatened, eggs, yeast and other preventives were

Thousands of Volunteer Workers

Many thousands of volunteers, through their local Red Cross chapters, gave freely of their time, experience and efforts, as in other Red Cross disaster operations. They searched out needy cases in their communities, many persons being restrained from asking assistance because of pride. Chapter committees investigated circumstances, distributed food and cloth-

More than 500 carloads of foodstuffs were contributed. These were given free haulage by railroads. Farmers of more fortunate sections embraced the opportunity to help their pastoral cousins of the affected area. Shipments ranged from live poultry to fish, from grain to grapefruit. Carloads of flour, eggs, beans, vegetables, onions, rice, corn and mixed vegetables were included.

As the result of co-ordinated Red Cross chapter efficiency, not one authenticated case of starvation as a result of drought has been uncovered.

Large quantities of new and used clothing were distributed. In direct consequence many school children resumed their studies who had been kept at home for lack of sufficient protection from the elements. In some instances, rural schools that had been closed were enabled to reopen as a result of Red Cross relief work.

States involved were: Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia,

Many of these States had been hard hit by a succession of floods, crop failures, low prices and economic depression, and drought constituted a climax to the cycle of distress,

"Wherever I went," wrote one observer, "I made a point of asking what would have happened if the Red Cross had not been able to respond. PROTECTION OF YOUTH AIM OF TB CAMPAIGN

Because tuberculosis causes more deaths among Wisconsin youth in the 'teen age than any other disease, the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association and its affiliated organizations throughout the state are marshalling forces for a month's educational campaign to enlist the aid of the youths themselves and their parents in cutting down this tremendous toll. The campaign begins April 1.

"Tuberculosis is a mortal foe of youth," declares the physicians of the W. A. T. A. "But youth little knows it, or knowing, seldom heeds the dan-

"In the life period from 12 to 20 the boy grows into young manhood and the girl into young womanhood. This is a strenuous period. Youth discovers the world and the wonders of life. The result usually is a heedless enthusiasm that takes no count of health.

Youth Needs Guidance

"Society, too, contributes to this 'burning the candle at both ends' by requiring of the youth school work, athletics and part-time work in excess of what the growing body may do in

"All of this saps the vitality of youth and exposes him to a host of evils, among which tuberculosis Misses Cecelia and Lorraine Pesch stands foremost. The youth needs the guidance of parents at this time as much as ever.

"The tubercle bacillus gets into the body in at least 25 per cent of the children before they reach the age of 15. In most cases, the resistance of the body keeps the upper hand and no severe damage results.

Spark Is Warning.

"In other cases, some injury has been done, but during the 'teens it is as yet so slight as to cause no signs o symptoms. This is called the childhood type of tuberculois-it is not necessarily a disease but might be regarded as a glowing spark, harmless enough in itself but a warning that a serious flame may be kindled.

In that brief span of years from 12 to 20, profound physical changes take place which make the child into the adult.

"At the same time many responsibilities of the parents are gradually with Math. Schladweiler and family transferred to the shoulders of the youth himself. The combined effects Mrs. Joe Schiltz, Mrs. John Klug, of these severe strains tend to fan the spark of tuberculosis into a flame of

Precautions Curb Danger

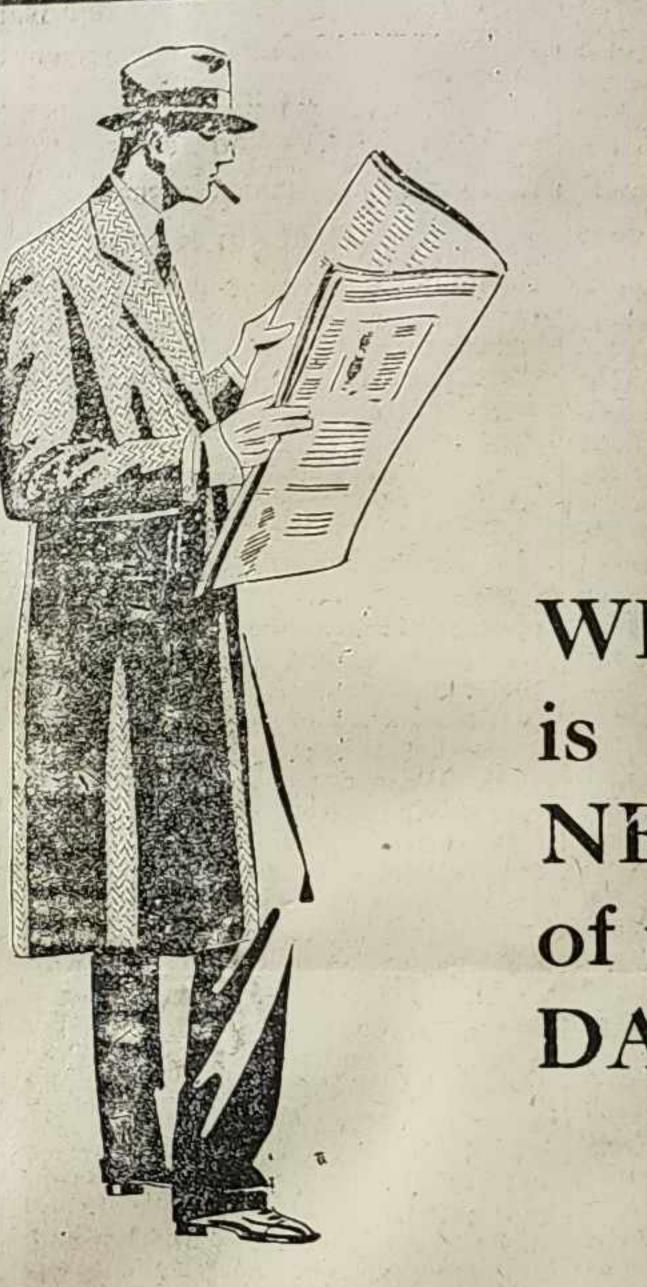

"Whether or not that dangerous spark is there can be discovered only by means of the tuberculin test and the X-ray. Knowing the dangerous spark to be there need cause no alarm if the proper precautions are taken.

"Children should be kept away from those who are sick, they should avoid overwork and overplay they should get plenty of rest, good food and sunshine, and they should have periodic physical examinations by the family physician.'

It is through these things that the excessively high death rate among Wisconsin children of the 'teen age can be cut down.
