OVER-PLANTING FEARED IN POTATOES AND CABBAGE

The potato and cabbage acreages for 1931 will likely be larger than in 1930, and may even be overdone if the planting intentions of growers are carried out.

According to the Outlook for 1931, as prepared by P. E. McCall of the Wisconsin College of agriculture, planting intentions indicate that acreages in both the late and early potato producing sections will be increased over those of last year.

In the 19 late potato producing states, the increase is estimated at 10 per cent, while for the southern early potato producing states an increase of 18 per cent is indicated. Potato acreages for the years 1928 and 1929 were considered as heavy potato acreage years but due to unfavorable growing conditions reduced yields generally maintained.

Should 1931 prove to be a normal year the increased production due to normal yields and still larger acreages may cause a production of from 425 to 430 million bushels, the Outlook predicts. The total potato production for 1930 was 361 million bushels. Cabbage growers also are likely to increase their acreages.

Early cabbage growers are planning slightly larger acreages with a prospect of 10 percent larger yield per acre than in 1930. This makes it likely that the total production of early cabbage will be 20 per cent greater than in 1930. Growers of late cabbage, although they have not already indicated their intentions for the year will undoubtedly be influenced by the fact that the 1930 returns on cabbage were better than for most crops.

Early reports are that for late cabbage there will be an increase of two per cent over last year which was the largest on record. Potato growers as well as cabbage growers should therefore carefully consider 1931 possibilities before increasing their acreages, McCall suggests, for even with no increase in acreage, should yields be normal, the total increase in production may be sufficiently large to cause distinctly lower prices than were received last year.

ORGANIZE BASE BALL TEAM

At a meeting held at the Kewaskum Opera House last week Friday evening by the young men and business men of Kewaskum, a baseball team was organized. According to reports received at this office, there seems to be lots of good timber for the making of a good ball team. This, indeed is good news for local fans to know.

That Kewaskum is in want of a ball team, was evidenced by the liberal donations made by the Kewaskum business men when a subscription was taken around, enough money was donated in one day to buy all the supplies necessary for a team. The newly organized ball team will go under the name of Kewaskum Athletics, and will join a league just organized at a meeting recently held at Fond du Lac, known as the "Wau-Fond-Du Lac league, signifying Washington, Dodge and Fond du Lac counties. The league consists of six teams from the following places: Kewaskum, Ashford, Armstrong, Brownsville, Campbellsport and Eden, and will be strictly home talent.

At a meeting held on Monday evening at the Opera House, the following officers were elected: President—William Endlich; vice-president—John F. Schaefer; secretary—Norbert Becker; treasurer—Arnold Martin; manager—Anthony P. Schaefer; assistant manager—Marvin Martin; custodian and mascot—Harold Claus and acting coach—John F. Schaefer. Next Sunday afternoon, April 19th, the players so far signed up will turn out for practice at the high school, where all games of the season will be played. Manager Schaefer, asks all those who are interested in joining, to report at the grounds.

FIND STILL IN CHEESE FACTORY

Dry agents last Thursday afternoon raided an abandoned cheese factory near Neno, in the western part of this county. They found a 1,000-gallon cooking kettle with copper coils, 115 barrels of mash, each of 50 gallons capacity, five 10-gallon cans of low proof alcohol, a 15 horse power boiler, condenser, and 2,500 pounds of sugar, all of which equipment, products and supplies were confiscated.

Two men who gave their names as Joe Braun and John Wust were found at the place and were put under arrest. This is the second abandoned cheese factory that was raided by prohibition agents in Washington county. The other cheese factory was that near Nabob where a wildcat brewery was raided and destroyed some time last fall. The cheese factory, in which the still was found, was formerly known as the Five Corners cheese factory. It had not been operated as such for the past ten years. The building last summer was sold to the moonshiners, and they occupied it since.—West Bend News.

SAVE THE CHILDREN'S LIVES

"The lives of the 136 Wisconsin boys and girls between the ages of 11 and 19, which were taken by tuberculosis in 1930, probably could have been saved if the available information on preventing, discovering and treating the disease had been applied," declare the physicians of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association.

"If we are to cut down this toll, which is greater in that age group than that of any other disease, certain common sense ways of living must be followed.

"First, children must be kept away from persons who have tuberculosis. The tuberculous person should enter a sanatorium for treatment, not only for his own good, but for the sake of the children he may infect with the disease if he does not.

"Second, getting plenty of rest, good food, sunshine, fresh air, and the right kind and amount of exercise builds up a child's resistance to the tubercle bacillus, the germ which causes the disease.

"Third, take your child to the doctor now for a thorough physical examination and have the child re-examined at least once a year."

Cease Police West Indies

Chinese peons, trained for generations, are the police of the West Indies. When enemies approach, their shrill, raucous cry will awaken an entire neighborhood. They are now being used as watchmen at the Washington National Zoo.

LOCAL STUDENTS CAPTURE PLACES

The Tri-County Forensic Contest was held at Oakfield on Wednesday afternoon and evening. The extemporaneous and the oratorical contests were held in the afternoon. Seven schools were represented, and when the judge's decision was announced, Kewaskum was successful in carrying home two first honors. In the oratorical contest Henry Lay competing against ten other orators won first place and in the extemporaneous speaking contest in which not all of the schools had representation, Elizabeth Martin was awarded first place. Kewaskum was the only school in the league to win more than one first place. The other member schools of the Tri-County league are those of Slinger, Campbellsport, North Fond du Lac, Oakfield, Lomira and Rosendale.

McCORMICK CENTENNIAL WELL ATTENDED

The McCormick Reaper Centennial celebration and power farming entertainment, held at the Kewaskum Opera House on Wednesday afternoon, was largely attended and proved to be quite an interesting and educational affair. A full-size, working reproduction of the original 1831 reaper was on display, and created quite an interesting sight to see. It was quite a contrast to the present day reaper. A five reel motion picture "Romance of the Reaper," especially filmed to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the invention of the McCormick reaper, was shown. The celebration here was sponsored by the A. G. Koch firm, Inc., and was a success in every way.

NEW BUS LINE TO START SOON

The new bus line, to be operated by the Chicago & North Western railway, which was to have started operations April 15th, will be started soon. The reason for the delay, is that the company is having trouble getting a certain franchise in Milwaukee, as soon as this is cleared up operations will begin. Station Agent Anthony P. Schaefer informs us that for the present, the service of this new line will be inter-state only, and will have nothing to do with local traveling. The route from Milwaukee to Fond du Lac will be along State Trunk Highway 55. Mr. Schaefer has also informed us that the company is considering taking off some more passenger trains on this division, just how soon or how many will be taken off he is unable to say at this time.

JOHN SEIL HAS CHANCE TO RECOVER

John Seil, residing two miles north-east of Beechwood, who was severely injured last week Wednesday while blasting stones on his farm, now has a chance to recover, providing no infection sets in. As the result of his accident, he will be minus his right eye and his left one so badly injured that if he recovers, he will only have a faint vision. Since the accident Mr. Seil has gained enough strength to be able to relate the story of how it all happened. He states that after he had placed the dynamite stick in the rock and lit the fuse he walked a short distance away where he waited for the explosion, after waiting for about twenty-five to thirty minutes, and no explosion had occurred, he walked back to investigate, thinking everything was safe, he reached down to pull out the fuse with a pair of pliers, as he did so the explosion occurred. Mr. Seil can certainly congratulate himself that he is still alive and able to tell the story of his most thrilling experience.

New Fireproof Wood
One of the most important uses to which straw has been put is that of making a new kind of wood called solomite. The straw is compressed, under a pressure of 200 pounds to the square inch, in a machine which interlaces it with wire. The machine can turn out four thousand square feet of board a day, and a remarkable feature of the wood is that it is fireproof.

DEATH OF ALFRED A. SCHAEFER

The many friends in this community were grieved to learn of the untimely death of Alfred A. Schaefer, beloved son of Mr. and Mrs. August Schaefer, which occurred at Pewaukee, Wis., on Thursday morning, April 9, 1931, after an illness of fifteen months with tuberculosis. About four weeks prior to his death he contracted pleurisy, which it is thought hastened the end. Alfred was born on September 10, 1904 in the town of Kewaskum, in which township he spent his boyhood days and where he attended elementary school. Later he enrolled as a student in the Kewaskum High School from which institution he graduated with the class of 1922. He then attended the University Extension Division at Milwaukee. Upon completion of this course he was employed in the A. & P. laboratory at West Bend, after which he worked for the Standard and Eagle Oil companies, and the last few years at the Amity Pocket Book factory in the above named city, where he worked until sickness overtook him. In school Alfred was a good student and scholar, a cheerful and true companion, kind and a favorite among his fellow students. In his work at his various places of employment, he was faithful to the end, willing to go ahead and do, no matter how difficult the problems of that particular field of occupation may have appeared to be. At home he possessed all the qualities of a true and loyal son and brother. He was a member of the Evangelical Peace congregation choir of Kewaskum and Reformed church at West Bend. A member of the West Bend Moose band and fire department of that city. Besides general routine of work he was a lover of outdoor sports.

LIFE OF H. G. DAVIS THREATENED

H. G. Davis, president of the Wisconsin Cheese Exchange, Monday received a letter threatening death by machine gun bullets if he did not raise the price of cheese to 25c, it was revealed today. Mr. Davis took the letter as a joke, but has placed it in the hands of postal authorities, who will make an attempt to find the writer.

The communication, in the form of a card enclosed within an envelope mailed from Sheboygan on April 6, bore on one side the inscription, "H. G. Davis, Plymouth, Wis., Watch our smoke." On the other side, the sender threatened death by machine gun bullets if Mr. Davis did not raise the price of cheese to 25c.

Mr. Davis, in an interview this noon, stated that he believes the communication might have been sent by a crank, stirred to action by newspaper articles published some time ago in many newspapers of the country, purporting to be an interview with Charles Hill, commissioner of agriculture and markets, with regards to the Cheese Board investigation.

The article is alleged to have contained the statement that prices of cheese on the board were fixed by a group of dealers before the board met. Members of the board emphatically deny this charge and have placed the matter in the hands of their attorneys. Mr. Hill has denied issuing any such statement and the matter is being thoroughly investigated. The board threatens legal action unless some form of retraction is made.—Jolly-mouth Reporter.

WISCONSIN HOSPITAL FACILITIES LACKING

Social Workers Report on Condition at Institutions.

Madison, Wis.—Virtually no hospital facilities are to be found in the Wisconsin state prison, the reformatory at Green Bay, the industrial school for boys and the Southern Wisconsin Colony for the Feebleminded, according to a report issued by the Wisconsin conference of social work.

At the state prison at Waupun there are 35 active cases of tuberculosis, which require isolation and special care, with only a ward of five beds to take care of them, the report continues.

It is also pointed out that all state institutions are overcrowded, the state prison and reformatory having 600 and 200, respectively, more inmates than they were built for, while the central hospital for the insane at Waupun has a population of 259, with a rated bed capacity of 125.

The conference likewise reports that the state home for orphans at Sparta is trying to care for 545 children, with a bed capacity of 357 and that the Northern Wisconsin Colony and Training school at Chippewa Falls, which is now overcrowded, has a waiting list of 400.

Reporting on the study made of the probation and parole departments, the conference maintains that the number of probationers increased from less than 300 in 1924 to more than 1,000 at the beginning of 1931. It also states that three months ago there were 200 men in the prison and reformatory who were ready to be paroled, but were kept in the institutions because of the lack of sufficient opportunities and supervisory services outside the walls.

At the state industrial school for boys at Waukesha, according to the statement, nine of the buildings now used as dormitories were constructed immediately after the Civil war and are of the barrack type.

Penna. R. R. to Spend $100,000,000 During 1931

Washington.—The Pennsylvania railroad intends to spend "well over $100,000,000" for additions and betterments to its properties and those of subsidiary companies during the current year, according to a letter to the interstate commerce commission from A. J. County, the road's vice president.

The 1931 expenditures proposed are a part of a general improvement plan of the road which it is estimated will involve the expenditure of more than $175,000,000, and cover a period of approximately two and one-half years.

In connection with this program, the commission has just authorized the carrier to issue $50,000,000 of its general mortgages 4 1/2 per cent gold bonds, series D.

"The making of these improvements," it was said, "will obviously involve new financing, but the Pennsylvania railroad regards the present and near future as most favorable occasions for the necessary financing. Plans have been made accordingly."

DROUGHT CRISIS IS ALMOST FORGOTTEN

Secy. of Agriculture Makes Report to President.

Washington.—The drought crisis, long an element in the general depression, has been successfully met and overcome, Secretary of Agriculture Hyde announced for President Hoover, following a survey of the stricken area.

At a press conference President Hoover asked Secretary Hyde to do the talking for him, while he prompted him with an occasional question. The procedure was practically unprecedented.

Secretary Hyde had just returned from an extensive survey of the drought region and reported he found conditions so satisfactory that he is confident this problem will have been eliminated when the next crop comes, provided even normal weather follows in the several states. He said he found no human suffering or want of nourishment.

Secretary Hyde visited the main offices of the drought relief at Memphis and St. Louis and later personally toured the states. He found the farmers everywhere had secured enough federal aid to put in new crops, he said.

To date 186,632 loans have been granted, the total being $27,472,000, or about $153 a family, he said. Although this is only about half the sum available, he said that in most of the regions it would approximate at least 90 per cent of the total required for rehabilitating the farmer and giving him a new start.

"Are those loans made on collateral?" Mr. Hyde was asked.

"The only collateral with them is the crop to be made," he replied. "No, we have been very lenient in scanning all loans for a $100 or less, and have indulged in rather hopeful optimism about the crop they are going to have."

One of the hopeful signs, Secretary Hyde said, is that in extending the loans the government required the planter to plant a section of garden truck. Almost without exception the farmers have already planted these gardens, he said.

Spring rains general over the eastern portion of the United States have virtually broken the drought in that area, Dr. J. B. Kincer, meteorologist, and the Department of Agriculture, announced. Spring planting conditions were described as good east of the Mississippi and in most regions west of the river.

treme means in an endeavor to save his life, oxygen being used from the beginning of the speaker's illness with the fatal disease.

Washington.—A six-year term as speaker culminated the service of Nicholas Longworth in the house of representatives during 13 congresses.

But three speakers in the history of the house occupied longer the chair to which Mr. Longworth was elevated by his Republican colleagues after 20 years' apprenticeship as a "boy" representative from Ohio, distinguished service on the powerful ways and means committee and one term as majority floor leader.

He was the Republican candidate for speaker of the next house, in which that party now holds a majority of only one. Prophetically, Mr. Longworth told the last assembly of the Seventy-first house:

"Perhaps this is the last time I will address you from this rostrum. It is only an all-wise Providence who is going to determine which of the two major parties will organize the next house.

"If I am to retire from this office I do so with profound gratitude to my colleagues, not so much for having elevated me to this, the greatest office in any legislative branch in any government of the world, but more for the evidence of the esteem and confidence you have had in me."

Born with wealth and position on November 5, 1869, in Cincinnati, Ohio, his home ever since, Mr. Longworth, after attending Franklin school there, was graduated in 1891 from Harvard. He spent one year in Harvard law school, then transferred to the Cincinnati Law school, graduating from that institution in 1894.

Although admitted to the bar, he did not practice to any extent. Instead, he became interested in civic affairs and soon was immersed in politics in the city over which "Boss" Cox then held sway. Despite his persistent inclination to remain "regular" in political controversies, he declined to take dictation from the Cox organization and never was closely identified with it.

Automobile Accidents Often Can Be Avoided

Practically every automobile accident that occurs today is avoidable, according to W. S. Isherwood, president of the Flint Automobile club and well known figure in safety work.

"Never before in the history of the automobile industry," Mr. Isherwood said, "have cars been made so stable and with such a degree of safety as those of today. In fact, cars are made so well that many owners neglect to have them properly serviced and this very negligence is really one of the major contributing factors of traffic mishaps. The motorist who takes good care of his car and is a careful driver seldom, if ever, figures in an accident or is to blame for one.

"With the increased traffic of today quick deceleration and acceleration are paramount requisites of the modern car. Good deceleration is attained by keeping the brakes, especially the front ones, in good working order and well balanced. This is particularly important when driving on a slippery pavement as it eliminates side swerving and minimizes traffic mishaps.

"Good acceleration can be improved if the car's ignition system is in good working order. Sixty-five per cent of the cars towed in by service cars are stalled due to faulty ignition. Unreliable deceleration and poor acceleration are conducive to traffic accidents. If brakes, the ignition system, horns, lights, windshield wipers and steering mechanism are kept in good condition fewer mishaps will occur.

"The press has done much good work in promoting motor safety; in educating car owners on driving with care everywhere. Equally good work can be done in educating motorists to keep their cars in good mechanical condition through periodic inspection at the various service stations.

"Periodic inspection means prevention of mishaps as well as prevention of undue depreciation—it is preventive service. Besides the benefits of preventive service from a safety standpoint, there is a definite pecuniary value to the car owner. A car properly cared for is easy to sell. The owner often gets a better allowance when he turns it in on a new car as

NETTA AND HER HUSBAND

By FANNIE HURST

IF SHE had ever thought about it at all in that light, Netta would probably have thought the problem of her marriage unique. As a matter of fact, it was such a universal problem that it is not at all unlikely that in the 45 identical houses, five rooms, sleeping porch, built-in washbuds, that occupied the little suburban street where she had her home and being there was a startling repetition of her self-same problems. Netta had been married for six years. There were no children. Her husband was an architect, with offices in the city. He was junior partner in a growing but not large concern and was a nice, clean, average example of a little community of men who get the 8:10 train at the little stucco station, six mornings a week.

If he was a rather deadly average as to his politics, his religion, his creeds, his pastimes, his home life, neither he nor Netta realized it.

The fly that fell into the ointment of the average married life of this average American couple, living the standardized routine of the hundreds of thousands of other couples, appeared rather suddenly in the sixth year of what might well be called a congenial marriage. Suddenly it came over Netta, whose interests in her pretty little home were normal ones, whose activities in her little suburban community were neighborly ones, whose prettiness had rather increased since her marriage than diminished—suddenly it came over this energetic little wife in her snug little home, in her snug little suburban development, that she was married to a husband.

It came over Netta one morning as she stood in front of her little dressing table, with her bare arms raised in the act of brushing her smooth coiffure of bobbed hair, that she had no lover. It was five and one-half years since the young architect, Frazier Mangum, to whom she was married, had so much as commented on any of the personable qualities that had seemed to capture him during the period of their engagement and the brief subsequent term of the honeymoon.

Almost immediately Frazier had committed the error that is typical of thousands of American men of his class. In the terms of his own father, who had once been rebuked by his own mother for a similar defection and had replied: "After you have run for a car, you sit down," Frazier had "sat down." He had begun the dangerous, the disillusioning mental habit of taking Netta for granted.

What was taking place between Netta and her husband was taking place in practically every one of those 45 identical houses on the standardized street of that standardized town.

The women used to talk about it at their bridge parties, at their afternoon gatherings, as they rode into town on their shopping expeditions. They talked about it wistfully and vicariously. The patter that took place among them was of starvelings. Motion picture heroes who engulphed their women in pleasant superlatives across the screen fascinated them. They were fond of saying among themselves that foreign men were so fascinating. It was wonderful to have your hand kissed. Fancy John kissing one's hand! He would explode all over with laughter. Ah, me, yes, foreign men did have that something—

Bitterly, there came welling up into the little heart of Netta one day the realization that Frazier's morning kiss was a peck; that Frazier's evening kiss was a peck that sometimes actually skidded and hit her on the top of her nose. Demonstration between them had ceased. They no longer even walked the streets arm in arm. Let Netta come downstairs for a dinner party and a bridge in the neighborhood, radiant in a new little frock she had assembled for herself, and not so much as a cheep out of Frazier unless in the key of, "Say, you better go upstairs and put on a petticoat," or, "Rub some of that circus paint off your lips."

Never a tribute to her skill, her economy, her prettiness. Just rub-a-dub-dub of routine. Just lovelessness. Sometimes it seemed to Netta that her heart was dying of starvation. More and more bitterly she withdrew into herself, and yet, so far as Frazier was concerned, there was never a ripple on the equality of his consciousness.

His life together had just become routine. There was no romance, no demonstrativeness. No unexpected show of interest and appreciation. Just one day after another of placid acceptance of things as they were by Frazier. One day after another of increasing bitterness and resentment on Netta's part.

It was Frazier's calm acceptance of things that was so maddening to Netta.

Netta was there to see to it that his dinner was hot and well served, that it consisted of the things he liked, that they were cooked to his taste.

Crisp were his shirts. His clothes in orderly array. Spotless his abode. All things arranged as he liked them, with neatness, cleanliness and—only he was blind to it—charm. Netta was a good housekeeper, a good home maker, a woman who imposed her personality on her surroundings.

Because of Netta, Frazier started off to work each morning with cheerfulness and a feeling of well-being that good breakfast gives. And Netta was there to be pecked good-by in the morning.

In other words, Netta was always there, Frazier took her as much for granted as he did his morning paper spread before his plate at breakfast, or his comfortable chair placed wherever the weather made it most comfortable—before a cheerful fire when the weather was raw, where it caught such breeze as there was when the evenings were warm.

Curious, but as the months stalked by there crept into the festering little soul of this woman a rebellion and even a sullen hatred of this sharer of her destiny. She used to turn her cheek for him to kiss in the morning as if it were so much leather. She used to stand within a radius of the embrace of his arms, glorifying in her anger at the stupidity of the man.

And still Frazier went his way, rejoicing, attending his baseball games, doing his eighteen holes on Saturday afternoon, shelling the little two-seated sedan, trailing bushes up the garden trellis. If he noticed a change that had come over this woman of his choice, he noticed it without comment. He took it all apparently as the normal procedure of two people whose lives have become welded.

Slowly there took shape in Netta's mind the determination to estrange herself from this so-called sharer of her woes and joys; to withdraw into herself; to let the circumstances of their alienation reach a climax. She yearned for admiration, the kind of admiration to which her Linc loveliness was entitled. She was not yet ready to be finished with the exilir of youth.

One Saturday afternoon, however, something happened that tipped her whole plan of procedure in the bud. A trivial incident and yet it was to open Netta's eyes. In the end, it was to lessen her terrific disappointment in Frazier's inability to keep life a much fairer thing than he had succeeded in doing, it revealed to Netta that she had builded her judgment on superficial sands.

The estrangement which she had contemplated was never to happen—all because of this trifling incident.

On the Saturday afternoon in question, Frazier was crouching on the lowmest step of the veranda, sprinkling the rose bed with a garden hose. Netta, sullen, heavy-hearted, was sitting upstairs in a crisp organdie frock which she had just made for herself, reading a novel.

There came up to Frazier a door-to-door woman canvasser. From her window, Netta could overhear the conversation. She knew the scheme. It was an old one. A city photographer would make a life-sized copy of a cabinet photograph for a nominal sum, provided you paid the canvasser a deposit of two dollars. Then you would receive a twelve-dollar portrait upon an additional payment of three dollars.

"I am not interested," said Frazier.

"Surely," said the canvasser, "there is some member of the family whom you would like to surprise with a portrait. How about your wife?"

"Nonsense," said Frazier.

Upstairs, anger smoldered in Netta. "It won't cost you anything to let me see a picture of your wife," said the canvasser, a well-setup woman of intelligence.

"I don't know where one is," said Frazier.

"You don't know where there's a photograph of your own wife?"

"I hate them."

Upstairs, in her pretty frock, hot, swollen tears formed in Netta's eyes. "Well," said the canvasser, "that's a confession. And you don't want a picture, then, I take it."

"No," said Frazier, "you're right, I don't. There never was a portrait could get her coloring or the kind of something that's caught up in her blue eyes or the expression around her mouth that no woman in the world ever had but Netta. I should say there isn't a portrait that could do her justice."

After the canvasser had gone, Netta, with bright pink spots on her beautiful cheeks, came downstairs, cool, crisp and radiant.

"Go upstairs," said her husband, who was sprinkling the lawn, "and put on a petticoat."

Columbia University Now Looking to Vets to Win Baseball Championship

Andy Conkley, who was a famous baseball pitcher on Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics several years before the present generation of college men were born, faces another baseball season at Columbia university with as much enthusiasm and optimism as ever, confident that his Blue-and-White varsity will be one of the strongest contenders for the championship of the Eastern Intercollegiate baseball league.

At the start of his seventeenth season as Columbia's baseball coach he is looking forward complacently to having a veteran team on the field this spring. Columbia has lost only one regular from last year—Second Baseman and Captain Jimmy Morrison. The other eight young men and the entire pitching staff have remained in the fold, reinforced by several promising men from last year's freshman squad.

son as Columbia's baseball coach he is looking forward complacently to having a veteran team on the field this spring. Columbia has lost only one regular from last year—Second Baseman and Captain Jimmy Morrison. The other eight young men and the entire pitching staff have remained in the fold, reinforced by several promising men from last year's freshman squad.

Conkley will have no trouble filling the vacancy at second base, for he calculates that either Manuel Rivero, flashy little Cuban halfback of last year's football team, or Bob McCoy, second highest scorer in the Intercollegiate Basketball league this season, will fill the bill acceptably.

But promising as these youngsters are, the greatest addition to the team this spring will be a young right-handed pitcher named Ray White, formerly of Richmond Hill high school, New York, and captain of last year's freshman nine, who Conkley says will be the best twirler that Columbia has had in many years.

As a freshman last season White showed signs of unusual talent. He has a good fast ball and an effective curve, and he has the physique and the head to go with these other assets.

Attracted by the presence of Chief Bender, in the camp of the New York Giants as a coach, members of three Indian tribes who live near San Antonio, went in one day to watch the Giants work out and get a glimpse of the famous pitching chief of days gone by.

Frank Healey, the young Giant catcher who lives in Massachusetts, had heard a lot about the Indians of the Wild West, but he was a bit doubtful about the aborigines that assembled at the Giant training grounds.

"They don't look like Injuns to me," piped Healey. "Why, those fellows haven't even got a tommyhawk."

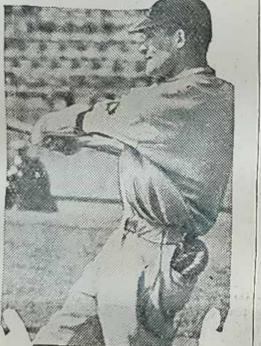

Hans Wagner played the outfield before becoming one of the greatest shortstops of all time; Hat Chase, though left-handed, used to play second base occasionally; George (Peaches) Graham, another major leaguer of 20 years ago, was also a jack of all trades. He used to catch for the Boston Braves, pitch, go to the outfield or play any infield position.

But I guess the greatest all-around player of all time was Roger Bresnahan. He is best remembered as a catcher, no holds barred, but old Rajah was much more than that. He could play any position and wital was a fair to middlin' pitcher.

Horace Greeley's Advice Is Followed by Golfers
Horace Greeley's advice to "Go West," has finally been followed by the National Intercollegiate Golf association, which succeeded in placing its 1931 championship at Olympia fields. Only twice since 1897, the inaugural year, has the event strayed as far as Pittsburgh. The coming season, therefore, marks the first invasion of the West.

Playing dates are the week of June 22-27, when the team and individual titles are decided. Princeton holds both.

Suhr Is Big Star

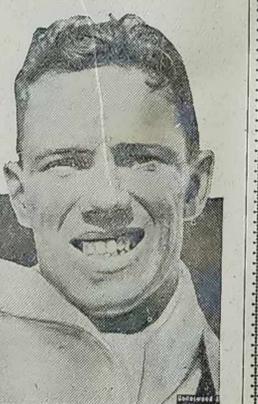

Gus Suhr, the big first sacker for the Pittsburgh Pirates, who has played a whole of a game during spring practice, is expected to prove a tower of strength for his team this season. His fielding has been marvelous and his hitting hard.

Simpson Defeated

James Carlton, brilliant New South Wales sprinter, who defeated George Simpson of Ohio State university (U. S.), holder of the world's record of 9.25 seconds for the 100-yard dash, in the 100 and 220-yard runs at the Athletic park before 8,000 spectators, at Wellington, N. Z. The time for the "100" was 10.25 seconds and 22.15 seconds for the "220."

Cause and Remedy for Over-Heating

- When the thermo gauge or heat indicator, shows that the engine is over-heating, the owner can seek the cause and remedy from the following service information contained in an engineering bulletin:
1. Lack of water: Keep radiator full of clean water.
 2. Water circulation retarded: Inspect water hose; if stopped up, or if radiator water frozen, over-heating will result.
 3. Water pump: If not working, causes over-heating.
 4. Fan belt: When broken or out of order, fan belt may cause motor to over-heat. Repair or replace belt.
 5. Incorrect mixture: Too lean a mixture. Change carburetor adjustment.
 6. Oil: Inspect the motor oil level; use oil of correct viscosity.
 7. Brakes: Over-heating sometimes is caused by brakes dragging; inspect brake adjustment.
 8. Carbon: Excessive carbon deposits may cause over-heating. Remove carbon.
 9. Retarded spark: Advance spark as far as possible without causing motor to knock.

My Greatest Thrill in Sport

By BARNEY OLDFIELD
World's Greatest Auto Racing Driver

Barney Oldfield.

Shaking dice with death and skirting the rim of eternity was my profession for so many years that I almost lost count of the days when life was uneventful.

Thrills of all kinds have come to me. I have crashed through fences and plunged into groups violating rules for spectators. I have been cut and bruised and smashed until death seemed on the job. Yet these things have not furnished my greatest thrill.

Many would think the climax was reached years ago when the world was astonished through my being the first man ever to drive a car faster than a mile a minute. Or again, years later, when I hurtled along the Daytona beach for a new world's record at nearly three miles a minute. Or again when I beat the notable Vanderbilt in a match race. Or some of the other outstanding events of my younger racing days.

But not so. It seems to me now that my greatest thrill came with a victory in the last few years of my active competition over the greatest pilots of the modern juggernaut in the 301-mile Grand Prix race at Los Angeles. For I had to use all my skill and judgment in this event and ended it in first place by just a few seconds.

It was a nip and tuck race from start to finish, with thrills piling one upon another and the crowd being brought to its feet with an intense display of emotion time after time.

Many tasters of racing cars were in the struggle and one after another forged to the front at times. Always I maintained a dogged chase, but never got near the leadership until the final push. Luck and fate came to me near the end.

I ran through the gears to high immediately after the getaway and from that moment until the checkered flag was waved I never touched the levers of my car. I never let myself get far from the leaders and as the end came along I shot after those in front with all I had. With two laps to go it seemed that I could never win, for

Highest Paid Short Fiction Writer

FANNIE HURST is the highest paid short story writer in the world today. There's a good reason for that. She knows human nature and under the magic of her touch, the people about whom she writes become real people, not mere literary creations. The plots of her stories are based on incidents from real life as it is lived every day by the common people.

Such are the stories which are appearing in this newspaper. Be sure to read them and talk to your friends about them, for they like interesting stories, too. And Fannie Hurst's stories are interesting stories.

—What is thought to be one of the largest if not the largest carp ever caught in the Milwaukee river here, was captured by Roman Smith last week Wednesday. Mr. Smith in company with Fred Andrae were on the mill dam, each in a separate boat, and it was while rowing along that Mr. Smith came upon the large fish, quick to conceive what kind of a fish it was, Roman threw his spear at it and was successful in capturing him. The carp weighing 21 1/2 pounds and powerful, gave Mr. Smith quite a tussle before he could finally land him. Messrs Smith and Andrae, have so far this season bagged a large number of carp and suckers. The average weight of the carp was from five to 16 pounds while the suckers averaged from one to four and five pounds. The two fishermen are getting quite a "kick" out of their favorite sport. Roman now lays claim to the belt and dares anyone here to bag a larger carp for some time to come.

Takes Victim on Fantastic Ride

Murderer Carries on Weird Conversation With Body of Woman.

Elizabeth, N. J.—A tale of a murderer's moonlight ride across the frosty countryside, with the nude body of the sweetheart he killed propped beside him, the weird conversation he had with her, and the eerie disappearance of both killer and victim, left New Jersey police with an unique murder mystery to solve.

Their only hope of solution seemed to lie in the bullet pierced body of a woman found near Steery Dossell, Va., recently.

Meanwhile a search for the fantastic night riding murderer is on in three states.

Swabbing War Vet.

The man sought is William Frazer, thirty-one, swabbing World War veteran. His philandering with the maids of Rahway, N. J., have proved one of the liveliest subjects of gossip here recently, according to the authorities.

The slain victim is thought to be Mrs. Phoebe Stader, vivacious grass widow.

Frazer abandoned his wife and children in the Frazer home at Rahway, Elizabeth suburb.

Details of the ghostly ride came from Ira Jansen, a cousin of Frazer.

Recently Frazer drove to Jansen's home in Rahway just before dawn. He insisted that Jansen come out to the car.

"Meet the girl friend," was Frazer's way of introducing his cousin to his ghastly crime. Jansen told Prosecutor David.

"I stuck out my hand. I thought the woman was beautiful there in the dark shadows," Jansen said. "Then I noticed she did not move. I saw she was dead and was horrified. But Frazer only laughed."

"Get into the car," he told me. He looked terrifying and wild. I got in. He laughed in a way that chilled my blood. He turned a flashlight full on her. I saw she had been undressed. I saw she was Mrs. Stader and I almost screamed. Frazer just cackled: 'The girl friend. Fine girl friend.'"

Lost His Nerve.

"He chuckled her under the chin. Then he told me to 'move the girl friend in the back seat.' I wouldn't touch her, I was too frightened. We drove out into the country. Then he pulled out a gun and said he would kill himself. He made some passes around with the gun and I thought he would kill me. But he lost his nerve and did not kill himself."

"We drove back to my house. He picked the body up and put it in the back seat himself and put the blanket over it."

"He went inside with me and went to sleep. I dozed off. When I woke up he was gone. He left a note telling me to send him money to the Sir Walter hotel at Raleigh, N. C."

"I got $260 of Frazer's money and went to Raleigh and gave the money to Bill. He was nasty. I said to him:

"What did you do with that woman's body? He answered: 'None of your business. I got rid of it.'"

Corroborative evidence that Frazer killed Mrs. Stader came from the war veteran's wife, Mrs. Frazer, who has abandoned the Frazer home, placed a for sale sign on it and has taken her two small daughters to the home of relatives, said:

"Some time during that night my husband came bursting into the house crying: 'I've just killed Mrs. Stader.' But he was such a chronic liar that I did not believe him."

Plan $600,000 Home for Aged Unmarried Women

York, Pa.—A $600,000 home for spinsters, a retreat for elderly unmarried women of culture and refinement, will be erected here during 1931.

The home, to be known as the Hahn Home, is in accordance with the will of Miss Anne L. Gardner, who endowed the project as a memorial to her mother, Mrs. Anna Hahn Gardner.

Experiencing during her life the discomforts of a gentlewoman suddenly deprived of the income to which she was accustomed, Miss Gardner planned the home so that similarly unfortunate spinster might spend the declining years in comfort.

The home will be available to spinster-women of Pennsylvania, fifty or more years old. An admission fee of $1,000 will be required for a home for life.

Miss Gardner left $300,000 at her death, 16 years ago and this sum has more than doubled in a trust fund. Her will specified that in 15 years the Hahn Home corporation should be organized.

Foreign Talks Help Students of Languages

Chapel Hill, N. C.—Education of youths through means of talks has been put into operation here by E. Carrington Smith, manager of the Carolina theater. Regular programs of foreign language pictures are presented each week.

So far, the pictures have been mostly in Spanish, French, and German. Most of the pictures are filmed in foreign lands. Foreign language professors of the University of North Carolina are enthusiastic about the plan.

Wooden Clock of 1640 Still Runs Perfectly

Ludwigshafen.—The publication Praelzisches museum has discovered that a clock made in 1640 and now owned by the clockmaker, Michael Mass in Anweiler, is still in perfect running order, although its works are entirely of wood, including all the wheels. The only bit of metal in it is the weights.

ENVOY FROM CANADA

Maj. William Duncan Herridge, who was recently named by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett as the new Canadian minister to the United States. Since the appointment Major Herridge has been reported as being engaged to Miss Mildred Bennett, daughter of the premier.

Benedictines Working to Save Holy Cave

Rome.—The holy cave is in great danger owing to the crumbling of the cliff, and the Benedictines are doing all they can to raise funds for its restoration.

A religious center, a place of pilgrimage and of great natural beauty, the Sacro Speco has in addition a claim to fame through its connection with history, legend, art and culture. Only a footpath leads to it up the steep gorge of the torrential river Anio, where twelve little monasteries once sheltered the twelve disciples of the young Benedict.

The monasteries have disappeared and only the cave of the saint remains, which is reached higher up the gorge through a dark wood whose twisted larches belong to Benedict's time. A monastery, an upper and lower church and a labyrinth of chapels supported on arches against the cliff cluster round the cave, forming what is called the Sacro Speco.

In the gorge may be seen also the remains of a brick villa built by Nero where he used to fish with a golden net, 400 years before the Benedictines came.

"Were't you in favor of my suggestion?" asked the colleague.

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum. "But you didn't say a word in its behalf."

"Why confuse matters? What you needed was more votes, not more argument."—Washington Star.

Cat's Grief for Owner Leads to Starvation

Newman, Ill.—Devotion of animals toward human beings is not restricted to dogs and horses, as a recent incident in which a cat died of grief because of the death of its mistress disclosed.

"Andy," a large Persian cat, was so devoted to an elderly woman that it followed her wherever she went. When his mistress died recently "Andy" grieved, refused to eat and was removed to another home. He walked from room to room, frequently jumping on the bed, scanning each new face, searching for his mistress, but he continued to refuse to eat and finally died of starvation.

LETTING WELL ENOUGH ALONE

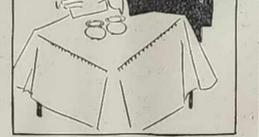

"There is a man outside," said the secretary, "who acts as if he really has something important on his mind."

"I don't believe we'd better encourage him," said Mr. Dustin Stax. "He probably wants to finance something."

"What he has might make a lot of money."

"It might. But supposing we were to take a chance on him, I already have abundant wealth and nothing much to think about. He has a lot to think about and maybe he'll be happier if we leave him that way."

JUST A TEASER

Customer—How is it that the quail on your bill of fare is always struck off?

Waiter—That's just a fancy touch. We never had a quail in the joint.

Optical Illusion

Philosophers have methods deep Which keep us others blinking. They may look wise, though fast asleep, And make us think they're thinking.

Strictly Practical

"Were't you in favor of my suggestion?" asked the colleague.

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum. "But you didn't say a word in its behalf."

"Why confuse matters? What you needed was more votes, not more argument."—Washington Star.

HE WAS THE CALF

The Old Man—So you're the prodigal son and are going home, eh? I suppose your father will kill the fatted calf.

The Young Man—I hope not—for I think I've been the calf.

Importance of the Trivial

Beware the mood which is not sure It's passing speech to heed And let a trivial word obscure The call to some good deed.

Sad Aftermath

"I must take a course in memory training."

"Why?"

"Last night I dreamed of a beautiful girl and when I woke up I forgot her name."

Not Always Crazy

"I never worry about my husband paying attention to other women—he's crazy about me."

"But he must have lucid intervals—what then?"

One of Them

Mrs. Nagger—It says here in the paper that there are six million slaves in the world today.

Hubby—Huh! No one can tell me there aren't more married men than that!

Bad Actor

"What are you bawling about, Robert?"

"We were playing at North pole explorers, and I had to be the Eskimo and drink Jackie's cod liver oil."

A Happy Thought

Judge—The witness says you raced past on your motorcycle as quick as thought.

Accused—Yes, I knew him in school—he always thought very slowly.—Flegetende Blaeter, Munich.

Would Put Himself Out

Vera (to her boy friend)—Would you put yourself out for me, Ernest?

Ernest—I certainly would, Vera.

Vera—Then do it. It's after midnight and I'm tired.

The Kitchen Cabinet

Everyone now believes that there is in a man an animating, ruling characteristic essence, or spirit, which is himself. This spirit, dull or bright, petty or grand, pure or foul, looks out of the eyes, sounds in the voice, and appears in the manners of each individual. It is what we call personality.—Charles W. Elliot.

CULINARY SUGGESTIONS

The following may be found helpful to many young housewives:

No woman who practices trading at the fancy grocer's or the delicatessen can call herself a thrifty housewife. We have too many of these stores supplying food that should be prepared at home at half the expense. Any woman with the strength to walk to a store and shop should be ashamed if she be equipped with a stove and kitchen of her own. In the large cities there is a reason for these markets and they are of course a great convenience for those able to pay for the delicacies which the stores prepare and sell. We had enough instruction during the late war to use up every bit of food advantageously; but it is needed that this knowledge be passed along each year to those young housekeepers who still are in need of it.

Simple things, nicely served, are most enjoyed. Trills may entertain, but the average person likes good, well-cooked and seasoned food, hot or hot plates if it should be hot and cold if it should be cold.

Coffee and most fruit stains are removed by pouring boiling water through the cloth at an elevation to give it force when falling. However, if cream is present, that must be removed with cold water and soap. With material which cannot be treated with boiling water, rub the stain gently with glycerine, rinse in warm water and press on the wrong side.

In making toast remember that quickly made toast browned on the outside has driven all the moisture into the center and has made the crumb soft and not good for those who have indigestion. A dry crisp piece of toast is made by first heating the bread very hot in the oven, then toasting quickly. It browns more evenly and is much more digestible.

He Was Wise

Smith—Do you think marriage is a yoke?

Yonson—Ya, marriage ban da funniest yoke! Ay ain't going to let no girl play a yoke like that on me!

It is not foolish to save if one saves for an object—and who doesn't?

Use of Window Glass

Glass was once common in the houses of the well-to-do; then it seems to have been forgotten. The Romans had it and the Romanized Britons must have had it after them. Window glass has been discovered in the ruins of a Roman villa in Kent, having lain buried and unknown for perhaps 1,500 years in a windowless land.—London Mail.

Acid-Forming Foods

The foods which contain benzoic acid are, namely, plums, prunes and cranberries. They are acid-forming because benzoic acid is not oxidized or broken down in the process of digestion. Other fruits, even though they taste acid, are not acid-forming in the blood because their acid content is oxidized.

About Sweatbands

The best sweatbands for hats are cut from goatskin. The purpose of the band is not to absorb perspiration but to keep it from reaching or discoloring the body of the hat and its trimmings. In the cheaper grades of hats olecloth sometimes is substituted for a leather sweatband.

One Kind of Efficiency

An efficiency expert strikes us as the kind of fellow who, before trying to put a large lump of coal in the furnace, would carefully measure it to see whether it would go through the door.—Louisville Times.

"Universal" Language

Esperanto is an international language invented by Doctor Zamenhof, an oculist of Warsaw, in 1887. It has no irregular inflections, and the most common stems or roots of the different languages are used as the basis.

Color in the Atmosphere

We see the sun as yellow; but if you could rise clear beyond the envelope of gas which we call our atmosphere, the sky would be black and the sun bright blue.

Live in Harmony

The fox and the badger, both burrowing animals, sometimes have an arrangement whereby the badger excavates a burrow and then both fox and badger occupy it.

First Seaplane Flight

The first seaplane, the Loon, was tried out by its builder, Glenn Curtiss, in December, 1908, but it was not until 1911 that the pontoon attachment was perfected and the first flight made from water.

Punishing Autoists Old-fashioned punishments for careless motorists are being advocated by farmers, according to Country Home. They urge that persons who violate traffic laws are mostly just like a lot of thoughtless schoolboys. Adopting their plan, a Detroit judge has penalized many autoists by making them stay for an hour in the police pen until they've written "I passed a traffic light," or "I passed a standing street car" or many hundreds of times. Most of them admit they'd rather be spanked.

No man ever respects a woman who does not respect herself.

Fretful DAYS Restless NIGHTS ... give child Castoria

FUSSY, fretful, can't sleep, won't eat... It isn't always easy to find just where the trouble is with a young child. It may be a stomach upset; it may be sluggish bowels.

But when little tongues are coated and there is even a slight suspicion of bad breath—it's time for Castoria!

Castoria, you know, is a pure vegetable preparation especially made for babies and children. When Baby cries with colic or is fretful because of constipation, Castoria brings quick comfort, and, with relief from pain, soothes him to restful sleep. For older children—up through all the school years, Castoria is equally effective in helping to right irregularities. Just give it in larger doses. What a comfort Castoria is to mothers!

Get the genuine, with Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on wrapper and the name Castoria that always appears like this:

Why love your enemies if they are not worth it? Only a just tolerance may be enough.

When You CAN'T QUIT

A headache is often the sign of fatigue. When temples throb it's time to rest. If you can't stop work, you can stop the pain. Bayer Aspirin will do it, every time. Take two or three tablets, a swallow of water, and carry on—in comfort.

Don't work with nerves on edge or try all day to forget a nagging pain that aspirin could end in a jiffy! Genuine aspirin can't harm you; just be sure it's Bayer.

In every package of Bayer Aspirin are proven directions for headaches, colds, sore throat, neuralgia, neuritis, etc. Carry these tablets with you, and be prepared. To block a sudden cold on the street-car; quiet a grumbling tooth at the office; relieve a headache in the theatre; spare you a sleepless night when nerves are "jumping."

And no modern girl needs "time out" for the time of month! Bayer Aspirin is an absolute antidote for periodic pain.

Take Bayer Aspirin for any ache or pain, and take enough to end it. It can't depress the heart. That is medical opinion. That is why it is only sensible to insist on the genuine tablets that bear the Bayer cross. The pocket tin is a convenient size. The bottle of 100 tablets is most economical to buy.

POPE'S PERSONAL PHONE INSTALLED IN 30-DAY JOB

Telephone Engineers Encounter Many Difficulties in Ancient Vatican Buildings.

New York.—The difficulties of installing a modern telephone system in the century old Vatican City in Rome, especially as complicated by ancient walls four feet thick and the fear of destroying Michelangelo frescoes and other priceless masonry, were related by Pliade Leon, engineer of the International Telephone and Telegraph company, who returned recently from the Holy city.

Mr. Leon, who passed 14 months in the Vatican City constructing the system which provides 450 telephones for Pope Pius XI, and the 408 people in the Holy city, said that the most painstaking performance of all was the installation of the telephone in the pope's personal apartment. Only 20 minutes each morning, while the pontiff attended mass, were allotted

The engineer said it was not unusual for his men to descend two or three stories underground, open some ancient door and find themselves in a dark dungeon. Another troublesome impediment was the thickness of the walls, often four feet through, in which the stone and mortar were so solidified by passing centuries that it was like trying to drill through steel.

Old News Item Tells of Queer Wooden Clock

Augusta, Me.—Augusta residents are wondering what kind of a clock they had in a church at Frankfort three-quarters of a century ago. Their bewilderment resulted from the following news item, which appeared 75 years ago in the Kennebec Journal: "In the Congregational church at Frankfort there is an old clock made of apple trees by an ambitious citizen of Monroe. It cost so much to grease the clock that it was found advisable to let it rest. A levee is to be held to raise funds for a new town clock that will not require so much oil."

The White Leghorn Yards & Hatchery

Chickens of Superior Quality

The White Leghorn Yards and Hatchery on Route No. 1 in Port Washington specialize in White Leghorns from egg-producing strains of high quality, and the chicks represent the healthiest that it is possible to produce.

Being from healthy strains, they are sturdy and easier to raise than those from ordinary strains. They carry a line of poultry supplies also for their customers. Telephone 219-J for any desired information, and to place orders for chicks.

Thousands of chicks are hatched there every year and the chicks are sent for great distances to those who desire to make a new start from these flocks.

Wide experience in the chicken busness has made them proficient, and special study of the problems of chicken nature and breeding has taught them how to best serve their customers and produce the best results.

If any information is desired as to the proper way to care for chicks it is freely given. It will pay to follow their instruction as to the best methods to pursue in raising a sturdy flock.

The public is always invited to make inspection of their grounds, and to witness the processes by which this business is conducted.

In this review we are glad to speak our appreciation of the service being rendered by The White Leghorn Yards and Hatchery to the people of the community.

TIME FOR SPRING CLEAN-UP

A clean home or shop seldom burns. How about your home, shop, store or factory? Is the basement filled with useless boxes, barrels, crates, excelsior and other packing materials? Is the attic of your house littered with broken furniture, play things, papers, magazines and other useless stuff? Are closets and nooks filled with rags, old clothes or hats, newspapers and rubbish? Are there any oily rags, paint cloths, floor mops or open paint cans around your premises? Is there still straw packing around your buildings or dead leaves in nooks and corners?

Rubbish is unsightly and unhealthful. It destroys individual and civic pride. In rubbish fires some times start spontaneously, others from carelessly thrown matches, cigars or cigarettes.

Spring is the time for a thorough clean-up in cellars, garrets, closets, yards and outbuildings. Why not proclaim the week of May 4 to 7 as Clean-Up-Week? A well organized clean-up movement will work wonders. The fire departments, health departments and civic bodies must lead in this work.

Section 66.05 (4) authorizes cities and villages to remove ashes, garbage and rubbish at public or private expense. A notice should be published in advance that city trucks will remove rubbish placed along streets or alleys on a certain designated date.

School children, boy scouts and girl scouts can be enlisted to clean up parks, river banks, school grounds and pleasure drives. They need only the guidance of older heads.

Start such a movement now. The prudent property owner will attend to other things also. He will replace the dry, moss-grown, punky wooden shingles with incombustible roof covering to eliminate all possibility of a roof fire; he will close up needless wall openings where sparks may enter and use paint and white-wash liberally; he will examine and repair chimneys, if needed, and clean them thoroughly; he will inspect and replace rust-eaten dangerous smoke-pipes; he will plant grass, flowers, shrubs or vegetables in place of unsightly weeds.

Take up this matter now with municipal authorities and civic bodies and make plans for a busy week. It will pay in safety, health and looks. The work is for all. "It's the everlasting team work of every blooming soul that wins the day."

CO-OPS TAKING FARMERS' CASH

Charging that in his opinion the Pure Milk association is a racket, at the head of which should be Al Capone, Steve Miller, manager of the Central Cheese and Cold Storage Co., of Marshfield told members of the Marshfield Commercial club Thursday noon at the Hotel Charles, that co-operative marketing may be a beautiful dream but is so impractical and impossible that it can never succeed.

Wisconsin farmers are losing millions of dollars a year in their dealings with co-operative marketing organizations, such as the National Cheese Producers Federation because, he said, independent buyers, such as the company which he represents, last year paid from one-half to three-quarters of a cent a pound more for cheese than the federation.

Business Men Interested "You may think that you, as business men are not interested in this proposition," said Mr. Miller, "and you may believe that it is out of place for me to present the facts to you, but let me tell you that the farmers' prosperity is our prosperity and anything that injures the farmers injures us directly. That is why I believe you should interest yourselves in the dairy industry, so as to know what is going on."

Mr. Miller prefaced his remarks by announcing that his company had been named in a suit against a cheesemaker who was charged with making cheese of inferior quality. His company, he said, became involved only because it was custodian of the cheese. He said the suit had been dismissed some time ago. He said he regretted that his company's name had been drawn into the case because he said his firm handled only quality cheese.

Co-ops Pay Less Going into statistics, Mr. Miller showed that co-operative marketing organizations continually paid less to the farmers for dairy products than the independent dealers. Figures he quoted were from the Pure Milk association plant at Junction City and from independent plants at Spencer, Vesper, Milladore and Stratford. In one month, he said, the Junction City plant underpaid its patrons at the rate of approximately $1,200 after it joined the Pure Milk association.

H. R. Lathrop, Wood county agent came in for much criticism in the speaker's remarks. The county agent, he said, is urging farmers to enter into the co-operative marketing movement and yet he "knows less about marketing than I do about flying and that is nothing." He quoted from the county agent's report to the board of supervisors in which the county agent pointed out that for each drop of one cent a pound in the price of cheese, Wisconsin farmers lose $3,000,000 a year.

At this rate, said Mr. Miller, Wisconsin farmers lost $2,500,000 last year by dealing with the National Cheese Producers Federation because independent dealers paid on an average of from one-half to three-quarters of a cent a pound more than the federation during 1930.

Explains Plymouth Board "These are facts in which you merchants should be vitally interested," said Mr. Miller. "This is money that is taken away from the farmers whose prosperity is your prosperity." And here he charged that the federation factories held back the milk producers' money six weeks, whereas the independent dealers pay each week.

The attack made on the Plymouth cheese board was declared by Mr. Miller to be so unjust as to be indefensible. The Plymouth cheese board, he said, was established "before I was born" and has always dealt fairly and uprightly. Approximately 15 cheese dealers make up the board. They meet at Plymouth about 11:30 a. m. on Friday, have lunch, discuss conditions but they do not attempt to fix prices in advance.

The National Cheese Producers Federation is a member of the board and has every right to bid up prices as high as is wished, but no such attempt is ever made. In fact, the only time the federation ever bid, it lowered the price three cents. All this, he said, in spite of the fact that the federation is always represented at board sessions.

Could Establish Price "If the federation bid cheese up to 20 cents a pound, I, and every other independent cheese dealer would pay 20 cents during that week for cheese," said Mr. Miller. "The fact is that cheese prices are governed by the law of supply and demand, and all the legislation and price-fixing that laws can devise cannot overturn or supersede this natural law of supply and demand."

Asked if the surplus of cheese at this time was greater than a year ago, Mr. Miller said that he believed that the government report, due Friday afternoon, would show the surplus to be less. Asked if the National Cheese Producers Federation had a large surplus on hand, he said that it had. The federation has consistently said that when it controlled the cheese situation, it would fix prices as high as 40 cents a pound, said Mr. Miller. It now controls a large percentage and yet it is doing nothing to increase cheese prices.—Marshfield News.

FRUIT GROWERS OFFERED HELP

In an attempt to reach the amateur fruit growers and owners of farm orchards in Wisconsin with the much needed information for the satisfactory control of the insect pests and diseases attacking their fruit, E. L. Chambers, State Entomologist of the Wisconsin department of agriculture and markets, announced that a special tag carrying the information has been prepared and is being distributed in cooperation with the nurserymen of the state. These tags, he says, will be furnished with fruit trees distributed by the nurserymen and carry information concerning methods of growing sound fruit.

The information is prepared in the form of a simple yet complete spray schedule with colored illustrations showing the more important stages of development of the buds and the proper time of applying the various sprays.

Like all other plants, Mr. Chambers says, our fruit trees are subject to attack by certain insects pests and plant diseases. Fortunately, however, he says satisfactory control measures have been worked out to permit the growing of sound fruit in spite of these enemies. If the amateur orchardist will follow the directions he can produce fruit just as sound as that grown by our commercial growers. He advises that care should be taken not to spray fruit trees in full bloom because of the danger of killing the bees which play such an important part in the fertilization of their crops.
