FIELD TRIALS CLOSED SATURDAY

The annual field trials of the Wisconsin Beagle club, which were held here last week, came to a close last week Thursday. The trials this year were bigger and better than ever, and were pronounced a decided success by all the members present. All were particularly pleased with the fine hospitality shown them while in our midst. The accommodations given them were pronounced par excellence. This being an ideal place to hold their trials, it was, by a unanimous vote decided to hold the annual event here again next year. The officers of the club and members present wish to thank the different farmers on whose land they were permitted to hold the trials for the use of same. The winners are as follows:

MILWAUKEE BOOSTERS HERE TODAY, FRIDAY

The Milwaukee Junior Association of Commerce is sponsoring a booster tour, on October 16, 17 and 18. Kewaskum is one of the places through which the auto caravan carrying the boosters will pass, they will arrive here today, Friday at 10:00 a. m., for a short stay during which time they will distribute advertising of the leading industries in Milwaukee. This will be the tenth annual tour of its kind conducted by the young business men of Milwaukee, for the purpose of creating a lasting good will among the cities of the state. Village President Theo. R. Schmidt, requests that all business houses and others display the national colors, to show our appreciation of their visit to our beautiful little city and extend the glad hand of welcome to them.

LIONS CLUB HOLDS REGULAR MEETING

The members of the Kewaskum Lions Club, held their regular semi-monthly meeting and luncheon at the Republican House on Tuesday evening. Lion President L. P. Rosenheimer not being able to be present, vice-president John Marx, presided. After the luncheon Secretary Theo. Schmidt gave a very interesting report of the meeting held at Fond du Lac recently. Rev. Sterling and Harry Radtke, members of the Hartford Lions club, were present at the meeting and extended a personal invitation to the local organization to attend their charter night which will be held at the Schwartz pavilion on Tuesday evening, November 10th. The local club gladly accepted the invitation. Much interest is being manifested by the members of the local organization, who were nearly all present at the meeting.

COURTEOUS CAUSE OF ACCIDENT

In order to avoid splashing mud upon school children walking upon the highway, two high school lads, Alvin Mueller, 15, and Eddie Schorenberg, 15, were the sufferers in an auto accident Wednesday morning, in which the former sustained a broken collar bone, a broken nose and gashes upon his body. Mueller, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Mueller and Schorenberg, who is the son of Mrs. Eddie Schorenberg, residing four miles northeast of this city, were on their accustomed morning trip to the Hartford high school, where both boys are sophomores. Upon reaching the S curve on Highway 83, about a half mile north of this city, in front of the New home, they came upon some children headed in the same direction that they were and walling upon the right side of the road caused the driver, Mueller, to turn to the extreme left side of the road to avoid splashing the children. The car hit the soft shoulder, and skidded down a steep incline. Before the auto could be stopped, the top hit a telephone pole and was crushed in. Mueller receiving full force of the blow.—Hartford Times.

CHICKEN DINNER AND BAZAAR AT ST. KILIAN

St. Kilian parish, St. Kilian, will hold a parish festival Sunday, October 18. The Married Ladies' Society will serve a chicken dinner at the new school auditorium from 12 to 8 p. m. A bazaar in connection with the festival will continue all day and evening. Various booths and games will be in charge of the Married Ladies' Society, the Young Ladies' Sodality and the men of the parish.

STATESMAN ENTERS 37th YEAR

With this issue, the Statesman enters upon its 37th year as a weekly newspaper. The owners and publishers, Harbeck & Schaefer, who at all times have been trying their very best to give the citizens of Kewaskum and the many readers of the Statesman a newsy paper, wish to thank all who patronized them, same is heartily appreciated, and trust that they may continue to enjoy the patronage given them in years to come.

DEAN CHRISTENSEN AT FOND DU LAC

Farmers in Fond du Lac county will welcome the opportunity to hear Chris L. Christensen, Dean of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture next week at a big farmers' meeting, which will be held at the Hamilton Community Hall, Fond du Lac, at 7:30 o'clock Friday evening, October 23. Mr. A. B. Nyström of the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, will also be a speaker on the evening program.

LEGION HAS INTERESTING MEETING

The monthly meeting of the Kewaskum Post of the American Legion was held at the regular meeting place Monday evening. The meeting was in charge of the newly elected officers, and same was well attended. All present showed lots of interest over the business transacted. The members decided to hold another poultry show on Saturday, November 21st. Post Commander Wilmer Prost appointed a committee who will make arrangements for this annual show to be sponsored by the Legion. Another committee was appointed to try and enter into some kind of an agreement for the purpose of purchasing a strip of land on the east and north side of the high school campus and baseball park and donate same to the school. If this is accomplished, Kewaskum can boast of having an ideal ball park one which will make a real place for the Tri-County league of which the local school is a member, to hold their annual athletic field trials every year.

LADIES' AID WILL SERVE COFFEE

The Ladies' Aid of the Peace Evangelical church will serve coffee on Thursday afternoon, October 29, from 2 to 5 o'clock in the Modern Woodman Hall. All are cordially invited.

ATTENTION

The G. U. G. Verein No. 50 invites all its members and those married to bring their women to a card party, on Sunday, October 25, 1931. Music will be furnished by the "Happy Badgers". Refreshments will be served.—The Committee.

CARD OF THANKS

The Kewaskum Athletic club wishes to thank all those who helped to make the now closed season a success. Kewaskum Athletic Club.

CREAMERY BUTTER PRODUCTION CUT

Wisconsin creamery butter production cut nearly two million pounds as result of unusually hot, dry weather conditions announced by state and federal crop reporting agencies. August production estimates that Wisconsin production slightly less than 12 million pounds as compared with the 15 million pound production for August 1930, a decline of 13 per cent. July production was 10 per cent under a year ago.

Butter production for the United States estimated at 126,700,000 pounds, slightly below the August production of 127,400,000 pounds. Production has been reduced in many important butter producing states of the upper Mississippi valley, states affected by the 1930 drought show large increases in production. Iowa butter production was 14 per cent below August 1930, Nebraska 16 per cent, and South Dakota 18 per cent. Minnesota's production was nearly up to 1930 levels, while North Dakota and Michigan, Indiana, Kansas and Arkansas exceeded the manufacture of last year.

Butter production for the first four months of the year is nearly 5 million pounds larger than for the same period in 1930, an increase of 14 per cent. Heavy production during the first four months will have more than offset the decrease of recent months.

SCHICK TESTS

Children who received toxin-antitoxin last spring are to receive the test to determine whether they are immune from diphtheria. Diphtheria may be prevented by the simple administration of toxin-antitoxin. Children over six months of age who have not had the treatment should well to consult their family doctors about it. Toxin-antitoxin may be administered through the school this year.

The schedule showing the time and the hour that the doctors will be at the schools. Schedules for Kewaskum and Kewaskum communities will appear in their local papers. It will be necessary in order that the doctors may arrive at such centers on schedule time.

WILL HOLD BENEFIT DANCE

The Wayne Flashers, will sponsor a big basket ball dance in Wietor's hall on Sunday, October 25, 1931. Music will be furnished by the "Happy Badgers". Admission 50 cents. All are cordially invited to attend.

KEWASKUM WINS CLOSE GAME

In the closing game of baseball played here Sunday, Kewaskum won the most interesting and thrilling game of the season. A game which in the way it was played, was a regular big league exhibition of baseball, when the locals defeated Batavia, members of the Kettle Moraine league, by a score of 2 to 1. Kewaskum squeezed in their two runs in the first inning, and from there on were held scoreless for the remainder of the game by N. Bruesewitz, who did the twirling for the visitors, allowing but two hits, pitching a shutout game. Batavia got their only run in the sixth inning which came true only by an error. Lehman, who was on the mound for the locals, allowed no hits, and must be credited for pitching a shutout game. Both pitchers were in great form and it was a battle between the two from start to finish. The support given both twirlers by their respective team mates was way above par.

With the 1931 baseball season now brought to a close for the Wa-Fon-Do league, we wish to state that the league of which Frank Heppel of Kewaskum, is president, has closed a very successful year taking everything into consideration. The games played between the various teams in the league were at all times interesting, close and full of thrills, snap and pep, and the support given the ball clubs at their various places, went beyond expectations. The officers of the league are to be congratulated upon the manner they so ably managed the affairs of the organization.

The Kewaskum Athletic Club of which William Endlich is president, John F. Schaefer vice-president, Norbert Becker secretary and Arnold Martin, treasurer, has closed a very successful year. The officers in charge deserve not only to be highly complimented for their untiring efforts in so efficient work in handling the business affairs of the club, but are deserving of an unanimous vote to be re-elected to their respective offices for the 1932 season. Their task for the season just closed was by no means an easy one. To organize a base ball club, the first of its kind for the past ten or fifteen years, meant that the club started with nothing, no equipment what-so-ever. But by liberal donations of business men and the loyal support of the fans, made it possible for the officers to go ahead with the proposition. While there were many ups and downs, trials and tribulations during the season, the officers met the problems face to face, studied them to the best and economical advantages of the club, with the result that the organization can close the books with a nice balance in the treasury to start out the next year's ball club.

To the baseball team proper of which Anthony P. Schaeffer was the manager and Norton Koerble coach, to every member of the team, those in the regular lineup, substitutes, umpires, down to the mascot, Harold Claus or "Red", as he is familiarly known, are deserving of high praise and congratulations for the splendid, wholesome and social pastime they recorded the fans the past season. Each member of the ball club went into the game with the right spirit, to give the best there was in him, with one object in mind, to win. To win fifteen games out of twenty-three, for the first year of playing is not a bad record at all. That their good work was heartily appreciated by the fans can best be understood by the loyal support given them. It must be borne in mind that the Kewaskum ball club was the best drawing card of any team in the league, no matter whether they played at home or not. This fact was openly admitted by one of the managers of a team in the league when the season was about half over.

Kewaskum will again be represented by a team next year, as a number of good players have already signed up for next year. Applications of players are coming in fast. President Endlich states that it is not a question as to where we can go to find players, but who shall we pick out of the group that will be the right men for the making of a good team next year.

In conclusion we wish to say that this year's ball team has, in every detail, answered the purpose for which it was intended, to revive baseball in Kewaskum; it has created a new spirit and enthusiasm in that national sport here, not only among the older class but by the younger people as well especially among the high school students, who under the able coaching of Prin. E. E. Skalsky, made a good ball club and are credited with having made a most creditable showing this fall, this usually is a forerunner of what the fans can expect this winter in basket ball, a team which deserves watching and should be given the loyal

WILL HOLD COMMUNITY CARD PARTY

A Community card party will be held at the Boltonville grade school, Wednesday evening, Oct. 28, 1931, at 8:00 o'clock. All the popular games will be played and a delicious lunch will be served. You are cordially invited to attend and win some of the cash prizes.

fellows and don't want you stuck for what would be on the clock."

The driver, inexperienced, was scared to death. He pictured himself involved in some holdup or shooting, but was afraid to take a chance of stopping beside a policeman and jumping out. The chances were, he thought, that the men might shoot them both. But they were not on that kind of expedition. They made him drive them to a number of obscure speakeasies, and each time they took him in with them. The boy doesn't drink, but was afraid to refuse. He took beer, because he heard that was not so intoxicating. Finally they ordered him to drive to a town 100 miles away. He pleaded with them.

"Give me a break," he said. "I have driven you fellows around most of the night and lost any money I might have made. I have a wife and baby. If I drive you there, the man who owns this car may think I've stolen it, and my wife will be scared to death, because it would make me until some time tomorrow to get home."

One of them told him to shut up, but the one who seemed to be the leader asserted that the driver had been a good guy and that they would give him a break. He told him to draw up at the curb. There they waited until another taxi came along, hailed it and transferred. It may not have been such a break for the other taxi driver, but between the strain and the beer, the first one didn't consider that. He drove back to the garage; he had a terrible time making the boss believe his story. Then he went home; his wife smelled his breath and doesn't believe him yet.

LIGHTS OF NEW YORK

by WALTER TRUMBULL

What is the use of seeking adventure in Amazon or Congo country when you can drive a taxicab in New York? The dark continent is a Great White Way compared to some of our shady spots. And you may have noticed that every time there is a street battle—things we have in our town—some taxi driver is sure to be in it. If the gunmen don't commandeer his car, the police do. Take our recent war, in which six were killed on supposedly peaceful streets in a civilized country, and men, women and children were wounded, and you will remember that at least three taxicabs were concerned in the chase and acquitted themselves with credit. It is true that one of them, a youngster, said that he had been in the taxi game just four days and now expected to spend the remainder of his life in some other pursuit, but he cannot deny that he got a lot of action for one in business such a short time. What is adventure except seeing life and death, and going places? And a taxi driver does all that.

The police are a bit tired of having gunmen speed through our fair Tammany precincts shooting people up, especially policemen; so they are suggesting many things, such as short-wave radio sets and an augmented force. Lack of policemen scarcely appears to be the trouble. Plenty of them joined in the pursuit of these latest killers, without thought of personal danger. Our policemen, when it comes their time to look in the bright face of danger, do not blink. Many of them have walked steadily into blazing guns and gone out in the smoke. They have plenty of courage, but they do not appear to be properly equipped. If radio will help them, they should have radio. At any rate, it is about time the citizens of New York did something to stop the slaughter of little children, even if we have to get the marines back from comparatively peaceful Nicaragua.

But, speaking of taxi drivers, they were young, new on the job, and driving the night trick. That is, the day man came in about five in the afternoon, turned the cab over to him, and he did the best he could with it until morning. He was cruising on Broadway, where the lights keep customers up late, when three men hailed him and told him to take them to Columbus circle. After he started, one of his fares leaned through the window and told him to put his flag up. He protested that he couldn't do that; it would mean a summons, if he was caught at it, or perhaps the loss of his license. A hand came through the window, holding a gun.

"Don't argue," said the man. "Do as you're told. We are going to use you for a long time, but we are good able skill astonished and pleased the man.

One Sunday morning he allowed George to play a voluntary at the end of the service. The duke was in the chapel that morning. The beautiful sounds that the boy drew from the organ thrilled and amazed him; and after the service he sent for George and his father.

While they stood before him, he said to Herr Handel: "It is a remarkable son you have here! I have heard him play. His playing is cultured. He has abnormal gifts! He must be trained."

The father moistened his lips. "But, your highness," he replied nervously, "it is a lawyer I would have my son become."

"A lawyer?" repeated the duke severely. "Bah! I tell you the boy has remarkable gifts."

The duke drew a quantity of coins from his pocket and placed them in George's hand. "Your father must provide a competent teacher for you," he said in a tone of command.

George could hardly speak, so great was his joy.

The Kitchen Cabinet

Bechamel Sauce.—Cook one and one-half cups of stock, using veal or chicken, or a combination of veal and beef, with one slice each of carrot, onion, a leaf of bay, six peppercorns, a sprig of parsley, then strain; this should now be a cupful. To this stock add one-fourth of a cupful each of flour and butter well cooked together and one cupful of milk. Season with salt and pepper and serve hot. An egg may be added just as the sauce is taken from the heat, well beaten in, as this adds to the flavor as well as appearance and nutriment.

Curry of Lamb.—Put three tablespoonfuls of butter into a saucepan with half a minced onion. Cook slowly until the onion is brown, add two tablespoonfuls of flour and one teaspoonful of curry powder, cook until smooth. Add two cupfuls of stock and cook for five minutes. Season with salt and pepper and pour very hot over sliced roast lamb. Serve with a border of hot cooked rice around the lamb.

Spaghetti Pompeian.—Cook half a pound of spaghetti until tender, drain. Fry one medium sized onion and one-half pound of chopped lean beef in one tablespoonful of olive oil and two tablespoonfuls of butter. Cook five minutes, then add a can of tomato sauce, simmer ten minutes more, add

Uncle Sam Gives 90,000

Lessons in Geography
Washington.—It may sound strange to say that 90,000 persons in the United States—and merely in a small section of the United States—took geography lessons during the month of June. But that is the case.

Ninety thousand persons went on field trips and attended lessons in Yellowstone National park during the month of June. This was just twice the number that attended last year's courses.

The ranger-naturalist service of the national parks, which conducts the lessons and field trips, is the outgrowth of the constant demands by park visitors for authentic information concerning the scientific value of the parks.

Velvet in Favor for Milady's Hat

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IF YOU get the idea as leading Paris designers would convey it via their fall and winter collections, there is only one type of hat to wear successfully with a velvet dress, suit or wrap, and that is a velvet hat. Wherefore, seeing that fashion is advancing by leaps and bounds toward a "velvet season"—here's the glory of the velvet chapeau!

Then, too, when one stops to think how charming and flattering is the hat made of velvet, small wonder is it that the world of fashion is so enthusiastically going velvet-hatted this season. The new velvet hats are the sort every woman "loves to wear"—so utterly feminine, so reminiscent of the quaint and romantic fashions which flourished in periods of the past, yet withal so chic and brought up to the minute in feeling, they make instant appeal to the most modern minded.

The models pictured are five "reasons why" a definite and persistent call for the velvet hat is assured for the coming months. Dark green velvet fashions the first stunning chapeau, for green in every degree, from vivid to deepest tones, are prominent in the present style picture. Other colors spotlighted for fall and winter are browns and wine tones, with emphasis placed on rust and capucine shades, with now and then a call for bright blue. The importance of black is outstanding.

The black velvet hat which is featured throughout latest collections is for the most part metal-trimmed or it sports a perky feather, for the trailing, drooping ostrich is not as popular as it was. Indeed, some of the newest hats are extremely plain bows and twists of self-velvet, or velvet in a contrasting color, being used in simple fashion. Coque spirals trim many a hat, and Paris modistes are exploiting considerable osprey and paradise. A wise owl-head of beige and green tiny feathers blinks its beady eyes to admiring observers as it adorns the side of the little cap-shaped green velvet hat shown at the top to the right in the illustration. The opposite side of this youthful model comes down low over the ear in chic berea fashion. It is one of Madoux' smartest fall hats.

It's trimmed with a pink rose, is the cunning black velvet chapeau below to the left in the picture. It is just such shapes as this, so startling a departure from what we have been wearing, that call for an artful hairdress of curls, wavelets and even a "bow-catcher" over the forehead, if you please. Of course, the hat must be worn "just so" to get the proper effect—titled over one eye, exposing the coiffure at one side.

Black velvet, with a shower of bird of paradise plumage, tells the story of the handsome profile hat to the right, which is voguish for the smart Parisienne, but when it comes to American women osprey and bird of paradise trimmings are by order of the court taboo, and so milliners on this side of the water are using glycerized ostrich and vulture feathers, likewise pheasant tails after the manner here pictured.

There's a lot to be said in regard to the fetching little hat shown in the circle, for it is highly typical of the newest millinery trend. It is of brown velvet. The ruche at the side is a nice green velvet, thus adding a dramatic note of color.

LADIES NOT STOUT, JUST "JUNOESQUE"

There are still a lot of generously proportioned ladies in the world, but they are no longer stout ladies. They are merely "Juno-esque," according to Baron de Meyer, famous French stylist and designer.

That's the only way to refer to the woman of ample avoirdupois now, the baron insists in Harper's Bazaar. And going back into Roman mythology a little, he points out that Juno, a heavy-weight goddess, was as much admired in her way as the slimmer Venus.

And for such ladies as are best described by his newly-coined classical term, the French designer recommends the bolero, a short jacket with or without sleeves. This garment, when it is adroitly cut and hangs loose about the hips, makes it difficult to ascertain whether the wearer is a Juno or a Venus, he declares.

Short Jackets Will Be Popular Again This Fall

Coats in astrakhan or ponyskin have large collars of the same fur. Short jackets which will be popular again, fit the figure snugly, usually with a belt, made of closely-cut fur. Lelong is showing one in summer ermine with stripes of white giving it a pattern. The collar rises at the back of the neck and descends in revers and there is a belt of brown catskin.

Worth makes a smart sports jacket of leopard fur in double-breasted oton cut with revers and cuffs of golden-brown flannel jersey. It has short sleeves and is worn with long gloves of golden-brown glace kid, the newest shade for hand-covering here.

Yves is making novel little fur polka-dots with frocks or slim coats. The back is cut in an upward curve to suggest a yoke, so the pieces which fall over the arms give a broad-shouldered effect and the front is finished with a scarf.

Suggestions Gathered in Fashion Centers

Jackets of cotton, or silk and of wool are fastened with big flat steel buttons, shiny and smooth. The "touch of white" on tailored dresses still holds, but it is usually in a conservative and tailored handling.

Most collections, whether for the child or the older girl, give the one-piece frock more prominence than the jacket type.

Sheer linen frocks are making their appearance on debutantes noted for their chic.

Carved ivory jewelry is offered as well as the French colonial influence, in pendants, also in rock-ished necklaces.

Included in evening fashions are gowns developed in broadcated satins that give the appearance of a simple metal brocade, especially in gold.

Hindenburg Idol of Germany

Berlin, Germany.—In all Germany today there is only one "most popular man," only one who is so loved by the masses that no other can approach his hold on them. Paul von Beneckendorff and von Hindenburg, president of the German republic and former field marshal in public and former field marshal of the imperial armies, a weary old man of eighty-three, probably longs for the day when he can retire, yet is kept going by his one passion—the burning desire to save the fatherland at all sacrifice.

One has to see the president at close range in order to realize just how his age is beginning to tell, and to realize the determination to carry on despite the shortcomings of the body.

It is said of President Hindenburg that he displays no emotion by his facial expression. But he does. When he is angry, his right eyelid droops.

The influence of soldier life are apparent in the president's executive office in the palace in Wilhelmstrasse.

The room is somewhat dark. The massive carved desk is placed by the window overlooking the palace gardens. There are a few pictures. Several leather chairs are there for guests, although most visitors never get to that comfortable stage, for the president usually stands during the brief audience.

No picture of Hindenburg would be

Hindenburg is not a good listener. Even in receiving diplomats he often breaks the conversation with short, pertinent questions, giving it a new turn abruptly, without, however, losing the thread of the message, or taking the man from his subject.

Although his great age is beginning to tell, Hindenburg still maintains his rigorous day's schedule. He rises at 6 in the morning and goes for a walk in the palace gardens, accompanied by his shepherd dog, Rolf.

HEATING PLANT FIRES

Is your heating plant ready and safe for early use?

Approximately one-fourth of the state's ten million annual fire loss is due to heating plant defects and neglects.

Defective chimneys, burning out of unclean chimneys, woodwork embedded into or in contact with chimney walls, rusted smokepipes, defective stoves, furnaces and boilers, stoves, furnaces and smokepipes too near unprotected woodwork and placing ashes in cardboard or wooden containers are the main causes of this needless loss. All such defects are readily discovered and remedied easily. The careful property owner who wants his home safe for his family will carefully inspect the entire heating plant installation before heavy winter fires are needed, and will remedy any defects discovered and protect with heavy asbestos and metal all exposed wood-work.

Local fire department inspectors, in their October inspections, should pay special attention to heating plant hazards, and see that they are eliminated. Such a check-up on heating plants in residences would be valuable, but the inspections must be made with the consent of the owners. The law does not give fire inspectors the right of entrance into private residences. Most home owners, however, would welcome such an inspection.

Gathered news items advise us of 61 deaths and 148 serious injuries through Wisconsin fires in 1930. Many of these deaths and injuries were due to night fires in homes. Often these news items bear the telltale headings of "burned while they slept," "overcome by smoke," "escaped in their night clothes."

Such fires, deaths, injuries and trying experiences are unnecessary and inexorable. When too late, no doubt, they will torment the guilty conscience of the careless home owner.

The average householder protects himself against property loss through fire by carrying insurance, but neglects the simplest safety measures to protect the lives of those dear to him. To them he owes a SAFE HOME. INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION.

During construction work, services will be held in the M. W. A. hall.

—Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kern, well known citizens of Kewaskum, residing in the Rosenheimer Addition, can boast of having two peach trees on their lawn which are now bearing fruit. The trees are about the size of an ordinary apple tree and are bearing about fifty full grown peaches each. It is quite an interesting sight to see, and attracts the attention of all who happen to walk or drive by their place of residence. This office acknowledges the receipt of an excellent specimen of the delicious fruit.

—John Louis Schaefer, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Schaefer, who is a sophomore at the University of Wisconsin at Madison, has been selected as a member of the University Glee Club. John Louis has a good tenor voice and there is no doubt in our minds that he will make good in the glee club. The closest to Kewaskum that the club will put on one of their entertainments, while on their annual tour this year, will be Chicago, just on what date this will be we have as yet been unable to learn. We wish to congratulate him upon his success and wish him good luck.

NEST-EGG FOR LOTTIE'S EDUCATION

By FANNIE HURST

SIBBIE was one of those women who had married early (a first-love elopement), had spent the subsequent years bemoaning the fact that she had not availed herself of the opportunity for a college education.

The stage had all been set for Sibbie to attend a state university when she eloped instead. It had been no great blow however to her parents, the idea of college, which in a modest way they had been able to afford, had been to them more of a new-fangled notion than a project of value. So when Sibbie eloped with a nice local boy, with prospects in his father's machinery shop, it had seemed more of a blessing than a calamity.

In a way this was true, because the pretty Sibbie was to enjoy three years of complete marital happiness before her husband succumbed to influenza during an epidemic.

It had been a splendid sledding after that. Her little girl was just two when the father died. Her father-in-law's machine shop was destined to bankruptcy, her own parents had passed on meanwhile, leaving assets that were chiefly in the form of mortgages.

There had not been a time after those first three years of married happiness when Sibbie had not been harassed, pressed and burdened with the responsibilities of the struggle for existence of herself and little girl. And through all the driven, work-ridden years the regret that had lain uppermost in the mind of Sibbie was her failure to avail herself, when a girl, of the opportunity of a college education. Lack of it seemed the fundamental explanation of so many of the handicaps that oppressed her. It was humiliating when she thought of her little daughter Lottie, that she, Sibbie, instead of earning their living by some such activity as teaching or professional work, should be obliged to accept a salesladyship in a dry goods store or sit behind the wire cage of a cashier's desk in a lunch room.

A college woman happened to run one of these lunch rooms in which Sibbie was employed as cashier. The very books she kept on her desk were a sign of reproach to the mother of little Lottie. They were the kind of books Sibbie was not only unprepared to read herself, but was unprepared to pass along and discuss with her daughter. Books of psychology; science; collections of essays.

Because her mind had never been sufficiently trained, Sibbie had not the patience for reading anything except the most superficial magazines and the tabloid newspapers.

And so Sibbie found herself going through life, branded, as it were, by this outstanding lack; branded by the fact that as an uneducated woman she was fettered to walks of life that otherwise might have been roads to a higher destiny. Try as she would to excuse herself, Sibbie was forced at last to realize that her intellectual curiosity had simply never been awakened.

The proprietor of the restaurant was the sort of college woman whose tastes had been stimulated back in the formative years. Sibbie realized that same need within herself.

And, of course, this regret began gradually to be offset by an ambition. Before Lottie was in her teens, a gleaming resolution had already lit Sibbie's eyes. Lottie would never know the bitter pangs of regret that had eaten their way through the life of her mother.

When Lottie was thirteen, the fund for her college education already amounted to three figures in Sibbie's little bank book.

And delightfully enough, Lottie showed promise of a distinct appetite for learning. She was the sort of child to whom going to school was a pleasure. Her teacher liked her; her reports were excellent and to Sibbie's delight, it was not unusual to find the little girl, after school hours, curled up on a couch reading a book, instead of playing out of doors with the neighborhood children. And good books they were. Dickens. When Lottie was sixteen, she spoke French almost as well as the graphophone records from which she had learned it. By this time her application was in for admission into a large eastern college for girls, and Sibbie's nest-egg was already large enough to account for the first two years of Lottie's college life.

Even in her choice of companions, Lottie brought graduation to her mother's heart. She was not only a member of the high school literary society, but vice president as well, and presided when the president of the organization, Lon Brown, son of the principal of the high school, was obliged to be absent. She had a fine executive quality and once or twice it had been Sibbie's privilege to sit in at one of these sessions and see her young daughter, pert, slim, alert, and intelligent, conduct the affairs of this cultural organization with manner and precision.

Sometimes the literary society, or the dramatic club of which Lottie was also a member, met in the modest little home where Sibbie took great pains to serve excellent refreshments. There was a girl named Edda May, of wealthy parents, who had come to be a great chum of Lottie's. Sometimes they practiced their dramatics together, while Sibbie held the book and prompted them. Lottie and Edda were bound for the same college. Once, too, Lottie was chosen to play Juliet opposite Lon Brown's Romeo in the school production of that play, and it seemed to Sibbie, sitting there beholding, that no fulfillment could be finer than this vicarious one that was hers. Compared to the joys of the fruition of her own stunted and blunted desires, the years of struggle, grief and despair, were as naught.

In a way, Sibbie used to argue with herself, it was a blessed dispensation that she had been too silly and ignorant a girl to realize the incalculable advantages of an education. Otherwise, she might never have realized thus keenly how essential were the cultural attributes she desired so passionately in her daughter.

The world was filled with women who had suddenly found themselves in the routine rut of homes, without having had time to equip themselves for life; women without the capacity to desire the better things. Sibbie had been such a woman. The avenues of good reading, of foreign languages, of art were closed to her, because she had never prepared her mind to understand or love them.

There came to be something horrible to Sibbie in the news that this and that young girl of Lottie's acquaintance had married.

Too soon, too soon, was what her heart tolled when tidings such as these came to her. These young girls, just out of high school, had not time to prepare themselves for the better things; the banquet-things of life's table.

When Lottie was eighteen, she was graduated with honors from her high school. There were three months between her and the time she was to enter college; months that were heart-breaking and terrible to Sibbie in many ways, as the time of her separation from this child approached, and yet months that were lit with the flame of fulfillment.

To add to the excitement and the fine quality of her anticipations, Lottie won a traveling scholarship of two months in Europe, on the strength of an essay she wrote for a local newspaper. It came out of a clear sky, because Sibbie had not even known that her daughter had entered the competition. Two months in Europe! Two months among the art galleries, the palaces and the capitals of England, France, Germany and Italy. Why, that in itself was enough to give a girl a running start in a cultural life that was limitless in its possibilities.

More than that, think what it would do to jerk the pretty Lottie, tired from the arduous activities of her graduation, out of the apathy which had come over her of late.

But as a matter of fact, the effect was just the contrary. Like a flower drooping of its own weight, Lottie somehow failed to respond to the inevitable good fortune that had befallen her and for some reason, all the old enthusiasm about her entrance into college had flowed out of her, leaving her a wan and listless girl who was puzzling to her mother.

After all, it was impossible to account for a lassitude so deeply rooted as Lottie's, merely by the strenuous activities attending her graduation. Something fundamental was to be reckoned with in Lottie.

It all became startlingly clear, just one week before she was to sail for Europe. She eloped with Lon Brown. The effect upon her mother, the subsequent happy setting-up of the two young people into a small homestead, and the resultant years of good fortune and tribulation, happiness and heartache, are precisely what would be expected. Sibbie, with the un conquerable resiliency of the human being, recovered from the shock of her disappointment and learned to accept in good faith the really pleasant destiny that had overtaken her daughter. Lon was a good fellow, industrious, ambitious and capable. Their first child was born on Lottie's birthday.

She is six years old now, her name is Sibbie. The nest-egg toward her college education has already been started in the savings bank.

Reduce the Acid

STICK stomachs, sour stomachs and indigestion usually mean excess acid. The stomach nerves are over-stimulated.
Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines sour. Alkali kills acid instantly. The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, because one harmless dose neutralizes many times its volume in acid. For 50 years the standard with physicians everywhere.
Take a spoonful in water and your unhappy condition will probably end in five minutes. Then you will always know what to do. Crude and harmful methods will never appeal to you. Go, prove this for your own sake. It may save a great many disagreeable hours.
Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians in correcting excess acids.

Band of Rescuers
The Craig Rats of Hood River, Ore., is a group whose avocation is the rescue of persons lost on mountains. It was organized in 1926, although the idea of such a rescue group had been suggested by a young lumberman, A. L. Anderson, some 12 years ago. In that locality scarcely a month passed that some one was not lost on some of the mountain peaks, so Anderson and other experienced mountain climbers formed their organization. In five years they have averaged six notable rescues annually and many others of lesser note.

Made specially for BABIES and CHILDREN

Physicians tell us that one condition is nearly always present when a child has a digestive upset, a starting cold or other little ailment. Constipation. The first step towards relief is to rid the body of impure wastes. And for this nothing is better than genuine Castoria! Castoria is a pure vegetable preparation made specially for babies and children. This means it is mild and gentle; that it contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics. Yet it always gets results! You never have to coax children to take Castoria. Real Castoria always bears the name;

"Wait a minute, Charles, Jr., he can't walk yet!"
"Well, what's the matter with his legs?" came the reply.

"More genuine satisfaction than any car I ever owned"

THE FORD is good-looking. It is safe. Comfortable. Speedy. Reliable. Long-lived. Economical. Everything a good car should be.

There is, too, an added something about it that brings enthusiastic comments from every one who has ever driven a Ford . . . the joy it puts in motoring.

"I have been a car owner continuously for nearly 20 years," writes a motorist connected with a leading university. "During this period I have bought eleven new automobiles. Eight of the eleven were in the middle-price field, one cost three thousand dollars, and the last is a Ford I purchased thirteen months ago.

"In the light of this experience I can say in all sincerity that I have derived more genuine satisfaction from the Ford than any car I ever owned. In saying this, I am thinking in terms of comfort, safety, driving pleasure, ease of control and economy. My next car will also be a Ford because it will give me what I want at a price I can afford to pay."

When you get behind the wheel of the Ford and drive it yourself you will know it is a truly remarkable car at a low price. You will like it when you first buy it. You will become more and more enthusiastic the longer you drive it.

After thousands of miles of driving you will say "it's a great car." Its economy will save you many dollars.

QUALITY SPEAKS!

The good merchant—the good product—the good service—make the real gains!

The policy of the good business man is to be consistent in quality throughout his business.

Making new contacts—opening new channels—is part of your business—a part where first impressions count. Good printing consistent in quality with your product will convey the impression of high quality as a characteristic of your business.

A leaflet—booklet—letter-head—broadside will produce results in proportion to its quality. Poor printing—poor results; quality printing—gain!

Call 281 for estimates on high quality commercial printing.

Up-to-the-Minute and Practical

- Every woman wishes to be as well-dressed as possible without spending too much time or money on her clothes. That is why so many women in this community turn first to the page in this newspaper which contains the illustrated fashion articles by Miss Cherie Nicholas.
- For Miss Nicholas is an authority on fashions—not the freak models and the extreme styles, but the fashions in dress which the modern woman demands, those which are up-to-the-minute and at the same time economical and practical.
- Be sure to look for these articles in each issue of this newspaper and then tell your women friends about them. They will be glad to know how they, too, can wear clothes which carry the message of the well-dressed woman.

KETNER

WHEN you see that signature on a cartoon in these columns look carefully at the cartoon. It will have been drawn by M. G. Kettner, one of the leading cartoonists of America. We are proud of the fact that he is numbered among the contributors to our columns, and know that his work appeals to all of our readers. In a kindly way he pictures our kind of "folk" and his cartoons are never of the offensive type. Call them to the attention of your friends.

Penny an Old Coin
It is curious, but true, that that most common coin, the penny, is the most ancient of our coinage, and is the only one left which was known to our Anglo-Saxon ancestors. They called it "penig," which has been corrupted into "penny."

Story Interrupted
Marvin, age five, is in Sunday school. The teacher, to enlist the children's attention, began a story: "A little boy had a dog—" when Marvin interjected: "I've got a dog, too, an' she's got fleas!"—Indianapolis News.
