Large Banks Are Sound, Says Comptroller Pole

Washington—John W. Pole, comptroller of the currency, in his annual report emphasized the soundness of the large metropolitan banks in the ten-year period including the depression years of 1930 and 1931...

Out of 8,000 bank failures in the period from January 1, 1921, to September 30, 1931, inclusive, Comptroller Pole reported that only 37 banks with capital of $1,000,000 or more in the larger cities suspended. Of the total number, 4,800, or 60 per cent, were banks of $25,000 capital or less...

About the same ratio was maintained in the 12 months ended October 31, 1931, the comptroller reported, during which 2,342 banks with aggregate deposits of $2,008,729,000 failed. This, he said, was the largest number of failures ever reported for a similar period but "the character of the banks and the underlying causes of failure are not fundamentally different from the failures in the years immediately preceding..."

Madison—Wisconsin is gradually controlling diphtheria, according to figures announced by the state board of health. From Jan. 1 to Oct. 31 this year 41 Wisconsin persons died from diphtheria as compared with 60 during the same period in 1930, a decrease of 29 per cent, the board said. Forty years ago the death rate in Wisconsin from the malady was 50 to 130 for each 100,000 persons, while the rate has been less than two for each 100,000 during the last 10 months of this year.

Madison—The senate has rejected the $16,000,000 La Follette-Toms-Nelson tax bill and approved the Nelson $6,000,000 compromise tax bill, 17 to 15. The Nelson bill levies an emergency surtax of 30 per cent of the normal tax on individuals and 15 per cent of the normal tax on corporations, for 1931 and 1932. It wipes out the drastic increases in income taxes proposed in the La Follette bill, eliminates the chain store tax, the corporation tax and the gifts tax. The Nelson tax bill would immediately take $6,000,000 from the general fund surplus for unemployment relief to be administered exclusively through local units. It would be distributed on a basis of the number of the unemployed, according to compilations of the industrial commission. The bill also extends from one to two years the redemption period on mortgage foreclosures. The senate had previously adopted an amendment by Senator Polakowski to the La Follette-Toms bill placing the administration of emergency relief in the hands of the industrial commission.

Madison—Organization of a canning crop growers co-operative has begun at Gratiot, Ozaukee county, among pea growers of that section. It is estimated that the annual canning pea crop in Wisconsin is worth more than $9,000,000. Snap beans are grown on 8,580 acres.

Oshkosh—Severe headaches sent Benjamin Hungerford, Oshkosh, to the hospital for X-ray examination. Physicians found the pain had been caused by part of a .32 caliber bullet in his skull. Hungerford searched his brain for an explanation. Suddenly he remembered having accidentally shot himself 35 years ago.

Madison—Without debate the senate killed the La Follette-Rush anti-chain bank bill and dealt the administration of Gov. La Follette its first major defeat of the special session. The senate voted, 13 to 12, for passage of the bill, with four members paired, but the state constitution requires 22 senate votes for the enactment of a banking measure.

Milwaukee—Marquette university will meet the University of Wisconsin football eleven Oct. 1, 1932, at Camp Randall, Madison. It was announced jointly by the respective athletic directors, Conrad Jennings and George Little. This contest will mark the resumption of gridiron relations between the two universities after a lapse of twelve years.

Madison—George E. Little, athletic director of the University of Wisconsin since 1925, has offered his resignation to President Glenn Frank today to be effective at the close of the 1931-1932 school year. Resignation of Little as director and professor of physical education came as a surprise in the move to cut the university athletic budget and the controversy over whether or not Glenn Thisted, head of football coach, should be retained.

Old Timer Showed Boys

Old Game of Football

Both on the stage and in the field of sport, there are those who long for the good old days and claim that the modern performance is but the shell of the real thing. This has been claimed more than once by old-time football fans and at Yale, for one, it is believed that the old-timers may be right.

It was the old, giant guard, Fridge Herfflinger, who put doubt in the mind of Old Eli. He returned to the campus at the age of fifty and after watching the Yale varsity for awhile turned to Tad Jones, coaching at that time, and complained: "They don't charge the line properly."

"Well, why don't you go in there and show them the way you used to charge?" Jones suggested with a smile.

"I'll do it," said the fifty-year-old Fridge, earnestly. He charged the Yale varsity line the way he used to when he was a guard, back in the good old days and in a few minutes had ripped the Yale team to shreds and had Tad pleading with him to get out of the game before he ruined the team beyond repair.

The old boy, went away at last, mumbling that football had become a children's game. It is a matter of record that he was never again invited to charge a Yale line.—Exchange.

Supreme Sacrifice
A very gallant deed was performed by a chemist named Zurbriggen. He was employed at a chemical works in Switzerland. There was an explosion, and poison gas began to pour out upon the 20 men who were at work. Herr Zurbriggen, knowing only too well the penalty he must pay, forced his way into the room where the explosion occurred, found the leakage, and stopped it. All the workers were saved, through the swift courage of the chemist, but he himself was so severely gassed that he died soon afterwards.

Swearing Off and Taking On

PEOPLE who do not wish to better themselves are few.

It is not hard for the average person to see all about him the privileges, opportunities and facilities for advancement which would place him in a position he does not but would like to occupy.

Altogether too often these advantages are allowed to go unemployed and why?

In many cases there seems to be a sort of equilibrium between desire and lack of motive power, which some slight thing or incident might incline forward.

A salesman had talked for hours with a customer whom he did not wish to leave without the order. There was an impasse. Finally, opening his grip in the hope of finding a folder, card picture or other thing which would upset the situation in his direction, he spied a couple of apples which he had brought from home. He rolled one across the desk to the customer and retained the other for himself. The customer took a bite, munched it for a moment, then said, "Well, we'll just let 'er come that way." The deal was closed, the order signed and an important deal into the salesman's lap.

The custom of adopting New Year resolutions is the apple which tips many a man's course toward an improved program of living. It may be the "swearing off" of habits which he no longer feels are creditable to him, or it may be the taking on of others which he believes will develop his mental, moral, spiritual and physical capacities, and gain for him greater respect, if not admiration, among those whose regard he would like to keep.

A comparatively small part of our population avails itself of the superb facilities of the public library in associating with the best minds of all ages and gleaning the treasures of history, biography, philosophy, poetry, religion and the sciences to be found there; the opportunities for physical improvement afforded by municipal golf courts, baseball grounds; frequent lectures, concerts and occasional operatic performances; the priceless capability of constructive thinking.

If you are standing at equilibrium, New Year's day is a good time to bite into the apple.

Calling on New Year's Morning

THE young matron was looking back over some old magazines shortly before the holidays, when she ran across a picture showing an old-fashioned New Year's day reception. A great steaming bowl of hot fruit punch stood on one table and on another a pot of hot coffee. New Year's callers stood about, with glasses and cups held high, exchanging good wishes and toasts for the New Year.

"What a pretty, friendly custom that was!" she exclaimed to her suburban husband. "And what a pity that it has died out! Watching the old year out is a jolly ceremony, but how nice to welcome the New Year in on the afternoon of the day itself, with all one's neighbors dropping in to share it with one."

"Well, let's revive the custom," suggested her lord idly, through his pipe. "Let's send out a general alarm that we'll hold open house all afternoon. I'd like that."

The Happy Day.
"All right," agreed the young matron enthusiastically, "I'll have a big bowl

Year's End and Its Beginning

WHOEVER it was that invented the year as a division of time should share in the blessings invoked by Sancho Panza upon the man who invented sleep. With the latter comes increase from the cares and worries of the day and a renewal of spirits for the struggles of the morrow. The year's end is also not only a sleep and a forgetting of things fled beyond redemption, but with its passing hours come the many-hued hopes that keep over fresh and buoyant the human soul and make radiant again the paths of the unknown future.

The old year falls from our hands like the stem of a rose whose leaves, one by one, month by month, have silently dropped away into the void of time, some laden with the fragrance of pleasant memories, some with the pallid tints and withered aspects of misfortunes and griefs inescapable and irreparable and some with dust of dreams shattered beyond recall. But, at the birth of another New Year, Time brings to the hands of each of us a fresh bud from its eternal tree, the secrets of whose close-folded leafage no eye can penetrate, no conjecture of wisdom fathom. Yet within its depths we can scent the sweet and inspiring aromas of the hopes that spring eternal in the human breast, of hidden joys that hold fresh promises of full blossoming, of good deeds to be done for us and by us, of the blessings of peace, good will and prosperity again made possible for us, and of the gardens of opportunity whose gates are swinging wide open for us.

Always in the cycle of human affairs the Spring of Hope follows the Winter of Discontent. And New Year's day is the symbol of human renovation—spiritual as well as utilitarian—and of the clearing process of the soul's past accumulations, making ready for the building of its "more stately mansions." It may be Fate that guides the hand of "Time in plucking in our grasp the new bud of promise, but each of us may do much to further its proper blossoming, to keep fresh its fragrance, to shape into full fruition the enjoyment of the unfolding, month by month, and day by day, of the flower of the year whose unopened months lie before us.—Kansas City Star.

Future Is Ours
Amid all the welter of talk about the New Year, one great fact remains. What is past is past, beyond our alteration; but the future is always just ahead, and it is ours.—Collier's Weekly.

New Year's Is Birthday for All Babies in Japan

The American who chances to be in Tokyo on New Year's day remarks that the rikishas, bobbing along behind sturdy little kurumiya, have about them an unwonted air of festivity. Each one that passes fairly bristles with gay papier mache animals carried by the people riding. On closer observations these are recognized as large and small specimens of the toy animal found in Japanese shops in America, which does not exactly resemble either a dog or a cat, but has the characteristics of both.

Upon inquiry the visitor learns that the papier mache animals are, indeed, a sign of a special festivity. New Year's day, he is told, is the birthday of all babies in Japan. The anniversary is the occasion for visits by adoring relatives and friends. The favorite gift is the harl lunko, or "puppy cat," as the engaging papier mache animals have been called by an American artist.

The attention paid to children on New Year's day is typical of the affection lavished upon them at all seasons

Land of Cherry Blossoms. In many ways Japan is a paradise for children. Toys are charming and inexpensive enough for poorest families. Corporal punishment is practically unknown, and discipline as it is exercised by American parents is undreamed of. Automobiles in Tokyo literally dodge the children instead of the children having to dodge the automobile mobs, as they do on American streets. Frequently the automobilist has to halt his car while a small boy chasing a cat across the street captures his quarry, or while a group of excited children continues a game of battledore and shuttlecock.

WELCOME NEW YEAR
LITTLE New Year at the gate,
Come you in, the night is late;
Come you in and share our cheer!
Candles gleam, and fires burn clear.
Welcome, welcome, gay New Year!

Little New Year at the Door,
Linger in the cold no more.
Come you in, the feast is here;
Come you in, to comrades dear.
Welcome, welcome, glad New Year.

Tiny Island Is First to Greet the New Year

Two hundred shepherds and fishermen on the Chatham islands, 414 miles southeast of New Zealand, welcome in the New Year while Europe and America are still winding up the business of 1931.

The tiny colony in the southern Pacific will be the first place in the world to greet 1932. When the bell in the little church on Hanson island peals out at midnight, the bells of Westminster abbey in London will be chiming noon.

The Chatham islands lie near enough the starting point of time to see the New Year born. The admiralty dateline, an arbitrary line made to curve east and west of the 180th meridian in such a way that it lies always in the ocean, is the starting point of every day. The islands lie just to the east of this line.

From the islands the New Year speeds westward at 1,000 miles an hour along the equator. By the time it reaches New York, the islanders will be thinking about their New Year's day supper.

Bees Made Cough Mixture
A colony of bees—three hives—kept by a farmer in the neighborhood of Campbelltown, Scotland, last summer made their cells and cell covers of a mixture of tar and wax, the former, which they collected on the main road near at hand, predominating. As might be expected, the honey in the three hives was impregnated with tar, but the bees were not in any way affected by feeding on a mixture of tar and honey. Coal tar contains among other things, saccharine, the natural food of bees. This is vouched for by Doctor Morrison in a letter to Country Life.

Unbreakable Spectacles
Unbreakable spectacle lenses are a recent invention. Two pieces of glass with a piece of celluloid between them are cemented together under pressure, forming one solid piece. This glass sandwich is slightly thicker than ordinary glass, but it is just as transparent, the celluloid being invisible. Unbreakable glass has for some time been employed in the windshields of motor vehicles and airplanes and in goggles, but this is believed to be its first use in spectacles.

Land of Many Children
Farming is the occupation of 65 per cent of the people of Poland, so children are welcomed. In 1931 the population of that country was increased by more than 500,000, the increase in Great Britain in the same period being 250,000.

Highest Paid Short Fiction Writer

FANNIE HURST is the highest paid short story writer in the world today. There's a good reason for that. She knows human nature and under the magic of her touch, the people about whom she writes become real people; not mere literary creations. The plots of her stories are based on incidents from real life as it is lived every day by the common people.

Such are the stories which are appearing in this newspaper. Be sure to read them and talk to your friends about them, for they like interesting stories, too. And Fannie Hurst's stories are interesting stories.

That's an old saying but it isn't true any more. At least, it hasn't been true since F. O. Alexander added "Finney of the Force" to the list of famous comic strip characters. For "Finney", with his twinkling humor and his shrewd comment on people and the common everyday events of life, is a lovable character, as thousands of newspaper readers who have followed him through his various adventures will testify.

"Finney of the Force" is a regular feature in this newspaper with whom our subscribers are acquainted, and all enjoy him. Then tell your friends about him, for they will enjoy him as much as you do.

Up-to-the-Minute and Practical

Every woman wishes to be as well-dressed as possible without spending too much time or money on her clothes. That is why so many women in this community turn first to the page in this newspaper which contains the illustrated fashion articles by Miss Cherie Nicholas. For Miss Nicholas is an authority on fashions—not the freak models and the extreme styles, but the fashions in dress which the modern woman demands, those which are up-to-the-minute and at the same time economical and practical.

Be sure to look for these articles in each issue of this newspaper and then tell your women friends about them. They will be glad to know how they, too, can wear clothes which carry the message of the well-dressed woman.
