The school ball team added two more victories to its credit during the past week when it defeated Slinger in the first Tri-County game 13 to 1 and Lomira 9 to 3. In the game against Slinger, Marx, pitching for the locals, struck out fourteen batters and allowed only two hits. Stenschke pitching against Lomira on Tuesday allowed five hits, but kept them well scattered. Three home runs, one by 35. Stenschke and two by Marx, added spice to the game. In four trips to the plate Claus made three safe connections to materially raise his batting average for the season. Kohler playing center sfield had a busy spot in the outfield making three putouts and assisting in a double play. Klahn was on the receiving end in both of the games. On Friday the team goes to North Fond du Lac for what promises to be one of the hardest games of the season, North Fond du Lac has a strong ball team. They have an enrollment of over two hundred which gives them a larger choice of material than that of the other Tri-County schools. They will spare no efforts to avenge the 4 to 0 defeat given them on the local Schroeder 11. diamond last spring. To win this | game will add much to the Tri-County standing of the local team.

On Tuesday of next week the Waldo am will play here. Waldo has a strong team and a real contest is anticipated. Come and see it.

Every member responded with a short talk. All look forward to an other successful baseball year in 1933

The Dodge County Fair will hold the forty-fifth annual fair next week at Beaver Dam. The fair has reduced, both gate and grandstand admission to twenty-five cents and for that price will offer a great fair show. Horse racing, grandstand attractions, the Union Stockyard famous 8-horse hitch in daily demonstrations, fine exhibits of livestock and farm and dairy pro duce will be offered daily, followed each night with Schooley's Revue "The Sensations of 1932" with a change of program the last two nights.

The fair officials claim that no fair in America will offer as much good show for as little money. The Royal-American Shows and rides on the midway are new, up to date and worth while. A day at the fair ought to be worth while, with the attractions offered at the low price of a quarter.

Madison-There were 97 victims of homicide in Wisconsin last year, almost double the number a decade ago, the state board of health has announced. There were 41 homicides in 1920. In 1925 it was 59 and in 1926 and 1927 it was 67 and 72, respectively. State records show that in 1928 and 1929 the majority of homicides were committed in the urban district. In 1930, however, 51 of the 89 cases occurred in rural Wisconsin and in 1931 the rural homicides comprised 61 of the 97.

Madison-The western trunk lines committee, in session at Excelsior Springs, Mo., has agreed to a substantial reduction in freight rates on hay and grain moving into Wisconsin's drouth area. The committee authorized a cut of 50 per cent in the rates on hay and a one-third reduction in the rates on grain. The drouth area includes Langlade, Marathon, Lincoln, Barron, Rusk and Polk counties. Bankers have been urging the farmers to refrain from dumping their livestock on the market to avoid feeding in the hope that reduced freight rates will enable them to obtain feed for the winter cheaply.

Madison-The completion of paving of five primary Wisconsin federal and state highways this fall or early next spring will give the state 1,413 miles of through paved highways. Two of the roads run north and south, two east and west and one, United States highway 12, runs 351 miles diagonally across the state from Lake Geneva to Hudson. The mileage and connections of the other highways are: U. S. highway 10, Manitowoc to St. Paul, 325 miles; highway 29, Green Bay to Prescott on the Mississippl, 275; U. S. highway 141, Illinois line to Iron Mountain, Mich., 262; highway 42, Illinois line to Egg Harbor, 200 miles. Only five of the 48 states will have a longer concrete mileage than Wisconsin.

Milwaukee-The city of Milwaukee, with some $67,000 tied up in closed banks, has called upon the state of Wisconsin to pay over the money in accordance with provisions of a statute enacted at the special session of the legislature.

Milwaukee - Smarting under the mandatory 10 per cent salary slash ordered by the school board, the Milwaukee Teachers' association has passed resolutions sanctioning court action to block the salary cut. The teachers express themselves as being willing to give up 10 per cent of their salaries in the form of voluntary contributions, but they claim that the mandatory slash is illegal.

Baraboo - The killing of William Paske, 30, a Sauk county farmer, on highway 12 between here and Reedsburg, is laid to his connection with a ring of liquor law violators. Paske became a liquor runner after his farming operations proved unprofitable and it is charged that he engineered the recent hijacking of 600 gallons of alcohol from a Reedsburg storehouse. Owners of the liquor are believed to have shot him in revenge. The body of Paske was found in his auto and when authorities left the scene to notify Paske's wife the car containing the body was pushed along the highway for five miles by unknown parties.

Wisconsin Rapids - A huge alcohol plant, the value of which was estimated at $25,000, was raided by prohibition agents near Pete-En-Well Rock on the east bank of the Wisconsin river, about five miles east of Necedah. Two men who gave their names as Carl Mucha and C. Burbat were Adventurers searching for gold have settled continents, but the lasting prosperity of nations rests on structural material and baser ores-coal. iron, oil, copper, limestone, and the humble clay and sand. Pennsylvania and West Virginia, and in some years Kentucky, produce more coal than Illinois, but they rank below it in untouched deposits of bituminous.

Mills and furnaces are built near coal, the base of the state's industrial prosperity. Iron and copper come from across the Great Lakes by thecheapest transportation in the world. In the value of its mineral products, Illinois ranks seventh among the states.

Our automobile highway now crosses the almost-forgotten trail followed by Col. George Rogers Clark in 1778. Patrick Henry sent this youth of twentyfive and a band of Kentucky frontiersmen to establish the vast Northwest territory as part of Virginia. They came down the Ohio and unfurled the Stars and Stripes, for the first time in Illinois, over Fort Massac, now a park near Metropolis.

Grain and Oil.

Fields of wheat and oats alternate with corn, and oil replaces coal under the surface, as the road runs north through Centralia. Oil was discovered in Clark county 26 years ago, and ence the state produced more oil than Pennsylvania. It still produces some 6,000,-000 barrels a year, but it is as a refining and distribution center that Illinois is most important to the oil industry. The pipe line radiate to the Atlantic, the gulf, and Canada from Wood river and Roxana.

One of these lines follows the old trail of the covered wagon between Vincennes and Cahokia. The first mail in Illinois came along this route in 1805. Towns were spaced off every 25 miles, which then was a good day's journey.

At Olney is one of the five game havens in the state and the home of the late Robert Ridgway, formerly curator of the division of birds in the United States National museum, and a world authority on these feathered creatures. With 365 varieties, he rated Illinois rich in bird life. Among the many volumes of which he was the author was one book which few of the industries accepting it as a world standard realize was created to describe birds. For 21 years Doctor Ridgway devoted his spare time to preparing "Color Standards and Color Nomenclature," distinguishing some 4,000 colors and shades, 1,115 of which are named and the variations between designated by symbols.

Returning to the north-to-south highway, we come to Vandalia, due north of Centralia. Here is the old State Capitol building of 1820-1837, later a county courthouse, and now a museum. Its architecture of a past age contrasts with the drab two-story buildings around the Vandalia city square.

KEWASKUM STATESMAN, KEWASKUM, WIS.

@, 1932, Bell Syndicate.-WNU Service. NCE there was a Lone Man who was compelled to take a ride on the new kind of Bus which is helping the Zinc Elizabeth to make a Joke out of the average Passenger Train. This Conveyance looked like a Battle Ship with Wheels. It breathed Blue Smoke and made a Noise like Niagara Falls, and when it came surging along a rural Highway the Chickens would beat it for behind the Barn and remain there for Days.

The Traveler, who had planted himself in one of the springy Seats, had a couple of fresh Magazines in his Lap and counted on finding out how all of the Butter-and-Egg Men started as Weed-Pullers and got their Kale by hiring Employees who were too dumb to steal. Like many other Readers, he was keen for these Confessions of the Successful, little suspecting that most of the Strong-Arms who have taken it away from the Common People, hide their Black Jacks and Masks after they become Bank Directors and, after that, want to talk about Paintings, and the Opera.

He had just started to eat up a thrilling Piece entitled, "How it feels to be Red Headed" when his Attention was directed to two Pearls of Young Womanhood planted directly across the Aisle.

Claudine's Porous Eats.

They were Regulars and had overlooked Nothing. They were clipped high and had been dipped in Flour and had large rolling Eyes and wore One-Piece Gowns which did not seem to be securely fastened. The exposure included a long vertical Stretch of Shin-Bone.

This Traveler had no Desire to pry into the Secrets of these Cuties, who probably came of Refined People, no matter what they looked like. He was She could get away with all that Murno Eavesdropper, Interloper or Buttinsky. If he could have kept out of their Confidence he would have done so. But his only Chance would have been to get off the Bus.

Because he could not help himself, he heard the whole Story, involving an undramatic Prologue, a treacherous Betraval, Scandal and Dirt, Plot and Counterplot, the dissolution of Friendships and the bust-up of Love's Young Dream. That is to say, he got it in a General Way. Some of the Intrigues were a bit turgid and the Details became jammed in the Talking Machinery but, as nearly as he could gather it up and sort it out and unravel it, here was the whole Seismic Disturb-

Everything had been O. K. between Edna and Claudine up to the time of the Picnic. It must have been, because the two of them packed in the after he didn't get to be Captain, that he would have been all right if Edna hadn't queered him by going to the Superintendent and some of the Boys and shooting off her Mouth and getting everybody sore at her. All of which was a Pack of Lies, becuz Edna never opened her Face about Basket Ball unless she was asked and then said, in a Nice Way, that she hoped Raymond would be Captain becuz that was before he had gone Blooey, in the Bean and fallen for the pinheaded Wiggler and Giggler. Probably Raymond was a Goner unless somebody could get to him and give him the Low-Down and Inside on the Trouble-Maker. Becuz, say what you will, Raymond wasn't such a Bad Scout. Just weak, that's all. Claudine had sewed Buttons on him becuz the Simp believed everything she passed out to him. It was only a Question of Time until he got wise to all that Apple Sauce she was feeding him and then he would walk out on her and leave her flat. You know it. Sooner or later he would find out what she had told Mr. Finch, who ran the Picture Show. It seems that she had been waiting out in Front for the poor Egg to show up and take her in to see "Unprotected Women" and Mr. Finch in a joshing Way, started to kid her about Raymond and she said that he was nothing in her Young Life but she couldn't give him the Air becuz he was Nuts about her and tagging at her Heels every Minute. Those were the very identical Words she had used, becuz Mr. Finch had told Mrs. Finch, who had imparted the Big Sensation to Alberta Wilcox.

Swiping the Old Greek Badge.

The very Idea of her saying that Raymond had been chasing her when everybody in Town knew that she had been making Googy-Eyes at him for a Year and doing a lot of other Things that no Girl who had been well brought up would think of doing ! For one Thing, he couldn't back the Car out of the Garage without her being on the Corner, all diked up like a Horse and Buggy, to flag him. Every time she pulled the Old One about just happening to be there. It's funny where they went riding at Night. Her mother didn't seem to have the slightest Control over her. der for a While but sooner or later she would get such a Hard Name that she wouldn't be able to break into a Public Dance with a letter of Introduction from President Hoover.

If Raymond wasn't such a Goose he'd remember what she pulled on George Spelvin while he was home from the Academy. She told around that he gave her the Frat Pin, but it was purty well known that she just the same as swiped it and then gave him the Old One about losing it, which is awful Coarse Work, if anyone should ask. Kit Lawrence had told Effie Dusenberry that she knew Claudine still had the Badge. If that didn't make a Thief out of her, what would you call it? I ask you.

As for having a Chance to go to first upward swing. He paced the Hollywood and be in a Picture, all that floor happily but obviously jumpy. Chatter just proved that she was Crazy in the Head. Somebody had asked a patron

WISE WOMAN

"Why did you pick out such a pretty cook?"

"My husband is away a great deal, and I wanted to have police protection."

Just Like a Woman

"John," said the missus, who had dragged him along on her quest for a new hat, "hold this one. It's the first I've tried on and I'm going to take it."

"Well, then, for the love of Mike, pay for it and let's go !" he growled. "Not on your life," she retorted. "I'm going to try on all the others before I'll admit this one suits me."-Sam Hill, Cincinnati Enquirer.

WARNING

TODAY a letter came to my desk that deeply impressed me. It was written by a woman - the mother in a typical American family. Her little home had been saved from foreclosure by a coat of new paint, for which a part of their meager savings had been paid.

Those few gallons of fresh paint had so revived the appearance and enhanced the paying many times the cost of paint to repair the damage done by rot, rust and decay this winter.

Even at the sacrifice of other things, have your house or buildings completely repainted now. No investment you can make will pay better dividends. And nothing you can buy will make you and your family feel so uplifted and cheerful.

same Basket, and it was understood, from the Beginning, that they would eat with Raymond and Ollie, but nothing was said before the Picnic about Claudine's Boob Cousin from Springfield who was nothing but a Ringer and had an Appetite like a Horse.

It wouldn't have been so had if Claudine had come through Fifty-Fifty, but she was always looking for a Chance to make a Splurge with somebody else's Chow. For one Thing, she didn't bring any Pickles or Thousand Island Dressing, after promising, and her Sandwiches were so thin the Sun could shine through them. Just the same, she told Everybody where to sit and let on as if it was her Party, all the time telling Edna what to open next.

Elmer the Goof.

All of that Rough Stuff at the Picnic might have been forgotten if she hadn't traipsed all over Town the next Week telling Everybody that Edna had told Alma that Raymond was going to be Captain of the Basket Ball Team instead of Elmer. Always trying to start something. Her Middle Name was certainly War. Edna had told Alma, right in front of the Public Library, or it might have been more in Front of the Service Garage, that she hoped Raymond would be Captain, because everyone knew he was the best player, but she hadn't even mentioned Elmer's Name and wouldn't have, for the World, becuz she had always been friendly with Elmer and liked him, in a Way, even if he was a Goof to look at, but Anybody who said that Elmer had any License to be Captain of the Team must have Mush in the Coco, to say the least, coming right down to it, as far as that's concerned.

It was a Funny Thing that Claudine would knock Raymond the way she had and then go out to vamp him. And get away with it! Right from the Start Claudine had misrepresented, in every Way, Shape, Manner and Form, everything that Edna had said about the Basket Ball Team, even going so far as saying to Raymond, Star.

Normal Eyes Unhurt by Watching the "Movies"

your eyes are wrong and not the moving pictures, points out a recent bulletin of the Better Vision institute. Normal eyes are not strained by the movies from any position in the thea ter, while eyes that are subnormal aging or overworked feel the burden of several hours of focused attention on the screen.

"A moving figure on the screen should not strain our eyes any more than any other moving object," says the bulletin. "We actually see in a series of short, rapid jerks. That is the reason that sleight-of-hand performers can do their tricks, for their hands actually move faster than our eyes. value of the property that the mortgagee had consented to renew the loan . . . and the little home was saved.

I could not help thinking of the thousands of homes and buildings that are shabby and unattractive today due to several years of neglected painting; of the millions of home owners who, because of reduced incomes and enforced economy, have been obliged to sacrifice painting for taxes, interest, assessments, to say nothing of food, clothing, heat and other essentials of comfort and health.

You have seen these paint-starved houses and buildings, as have I. They are everywhere about you. Perhaps your home is included.

Do you understand what they signify? Do you realize what will happen to wood or metal that is literally naked of paint if these houses and buildings face the attack of another season of rain, snow, ice, and frost?

Never in the history of our country has the situation been paralleled. Property owners face an added burden of expense amounting to millions of dollars for repairs and replacements next spring.

And the crisis, in my opinion, will be reached this coming winter when paint of four, five, and even six years exposure to the weather will be unable to resist the elements -when badly weathered wood and metal will be easy prey for rot, rust and decay.

Today the big question facing thousands of property owners is plain. It is "paint or pay." Either you must invest a little this fall in new paint or you must take the risk of

If you cannot arrange to do a complete repainting job now, at least give the badly weathered places a coat or two of protecting paint.

Look especially, to the window sills, thresholds, outdoor porches and steps; the joints of porch railings and palings; the bases of pillars; the edges of eaves; the roof; the gutters and down spouts. These are the vital spots where water lodges-where ice and frost settle-where rot and rust attack first.

A few dollars' worth of good paint, applied now, will protect these vital spots-will tide you over this crucial winter. And it will probably save you a much greater expense for repairs and replacements next spring and summer.

Under existing conditions, you may be tempted to buy a cheap paint because of its low price. I hope you will not make this costly mistake.

Even on sound lumber, inferior paint is a poor bargain. But on weathered wood. which is very porous, such paint is worse than useless. It gives you a false feeling of security and leaves you without protection.

Prices of well-known, established brands of paint are now the lowest in fifteen years. Enough good, dependable paint can be purchased for a few dollars to protect all the badly weathered surfaces on your building.

Again I repeat, do a complete job this fall if you can. But at least do the vital exposed places before it is "too late."

CHAPTER X-Continued -15-

"Nia! nia!" cried the excited Sarah, opening the door for the half-frozen Jim. "You are back; all well?"

Jim patted the broad back of the solicitous Ojibwa. "Cold and hungry, Sarah!" he laughed.

"Ah, you not get hurt by dose wild 'Jibwa? Good !" sputtered the bustling Sarah, brushing the melting snow from Jim's coat.

"No, we've won, Sarah! We've beaten Paradis!"

"Nia! n'go! You find de shaman, Jingwak?" cried the startled cook, her small eyes, black as buttons, snapping with excitement.

"Yes, Esau's medicine was too strong for him."

While Sarah busied herself with a hot supper for her returned master, Jim stepped across to the tradehouse. He closed the slab door against the drive of wind and light snow to find Omar and Esau smoking beside the sheet-iron stove.

"Somet'ing dere for you," announced the half-breed with a nod of his black head toward the trade counter.

On the hand-hewn spruce planks lay a white envelope.

Aurore! She had written before she went south and sent it by an Indian! Jim's tanned face was radiant with the joy of the surprise. Her writing! He had never seen it! Aurore had left him her first love letter !

Conscious of the scrutiny of two pairs of black eyes at the stove, Jim thrust the letter, unread, into his pocket and left the room with a mumbled: "I'm starved-goin' to eat!"

Loath to read the letter before the curious eyes of his men, Jim crossed to his quarters and entered the living room. "She hasn't forgotten; she's written me! And I've won, Aurore! I've come back, black-eyed sorceress of mine, they can't take you away from me, now!" he said aloud, his voice thick with emotion, as he opened the letter.

"Dear Jim:" it ran,

"You've been gone three weeks and I've been so lonely, oh, so lonely for the big-gray-eyed boy who made love so beautifully that day, years ago, on the island."

Then a look, dazed, uncomprehending, drove the joy from his eyes as he read:

Breaking a lane with their poles through the half-inch ice sheathing the winding inlet of Expanse, the voyageurs who had barely nosed out ahead of the fast following freeze-up, at last paddled in to the beach at the headquarters of the company.

At their appearance in the door of the trade-house, the whiskered jaw of Andrew Christie dropped. "Well, I'll be skinned!"

"Good day, Mr. Christie," said Jim casually. "There was a matter of business that couldn't wait for sledtravel, so Omar and I took a chance."

As the inspector perfunctorily gave Jim a gripless hand, his face betrayed curiosity mingled with disapproval. Business, eh? Odyssey of the three friends to the Sturgeon valley and many a new moon was to swing above the white desert of Lake Expanse before Andrew Christie heard the story. Until the pelts of the Pipestone and the Sturgeon country packed the fur-loft of Sunset House, the lips of three men were closed.

When the ice grew strong enough for sledding on the great lake, and the snow deepened in the forest, Jim and Omar would start back with the dogs; until then, they were held prisoners at the post. One windless day. a lead-hued sky blanketed the sun and the air slowly went white. The "long snows" had come.

By the early dusk six inches had fallen. Outside the trade-house two toboggan sleds, their loads covered with tarpaulin wrappers and lashed. waited for the early start, before dawn, under the stars.

At Christie's house Jim, the clerk. McComb, and the inspector sat at their supper. Following her custom, Mary had served the men and retired to the kitchen. "Yeh have plenty of fish on yer cache, Stuart?" demanded Christie. "Two extra teams'll make a hole in yer supply and I don't want my dogs underfed." "We made a big haul of whitefish and lake trout this fall; there's plenty. I'll have your dogs back here in good shape before Christmas-" "What's all that noise about over at the trade-house?" broke in Mc-Comb. The three men stopped eating to listen. "I hear dog bells," said Jim, rising. "Don't suppose they've sent a packet through from the railroad?" "That's just what it is," agreed Christie, rising with a mouth full of food.

Leaving the house, the three men walked through the falling snow toward the yellow glow of the tradehouse windows. In front of the building the post dogs circled and snarled around a panting team, whose driver held off Christie's huskies with a heavy whip while he talked to two company Indians.

"Mail packet !" Jim surmised. "She'll get my letter, then, next week."

While the driver led his tired dogs off to be fed, the mail pouch was brought into the trade-room and eagerly opened.

Hoping against the inevitable, Jim waited as the inspector, squinting leisurely at the addresses, went through the pile of letters and papers dumped on the trade-counter. Pitying him, possibly regretting the raw brutality

But it was beautiful-that day of ours on the island; I'll never forget it.

> "Good-by, Jim! "AURORE."

The unseeing eyes of Stuart lifted to stare cut at the fast darkening lake. His nerveless fingers opened and the letter fell to the floor. It had come like a knife-thrust in the dark. With his heart quick with love for her she had struck him. So it had been make-believe, that day on the island? Her eyes, her lips-had fied. For the pleasure of an August day her vanity had demanded the soul of a man, to destroy. Had he stayed, it would have been no different, she would have played the game, and then, as now, cast him aside. After all, there was no heart in her. Red blood, charm, reckless courage, yes; but heart, there was none.

His lips curled bitterly at the memory of her radiant face-her kisses. Again her arms circled his neck in parting. The scent of her dark hair was in his nostrils.

But to wound him this way! Leave this farewell for a man who had tolled and fought through the weeks with only the thought of her-the love of her, to buoy him!

Her first letter-and her last!

CHAPTER XI

Late in the night the body, which days of drudgery with pole and paddle in the face against the freeze-up had numbed with weariness, brought the surcease of sleep to the tortured brain of Jim Stuart. It had been a will-o'-the-wisp, a phantom, the vision of the girl which had companioned him into the heart of Kiwedin. He had had his dream, now he once more faced reality.

In the trade-room, the following morning, Essu, Omar and Jim sat in a council of war.

"Did LeBlond send Paradis to the Sturgeon country?" demanded Jim of his swart connselors, who scowled in thought as their mouths emitted smoke like wet wood. "And if we think he did, do we face him with it pr lie low?"

Omar filled his capacious mouth with smoke, and slowly emptied it, before replying: "We lie lak' de fox een bees hole."

Esau nodded in agreement.

"I think that's the game," agreed Jim. "If he thinks Paradis went to Nipigon he won't hear what happened at Sturgeon lake until the Christmas trade. Now Esau and I start north to get the early fur the first week in December. We'll need two more dog teams. We'll start this morning, Omar, for Expanse, and bring them up on the first sledding."

Omar stared in amazement at his didn't you? "Yes! And I don't mind tellin' yeh that your successor's hin nicked"

Jim's wind-burned face stiffened For an instant the deep-set gray eyes grew dark with the anger he fought to control. "This," he thought, "this is my reward for losing her." Then, buttressed with the knowledge of his sure victory, he said mildly, "Thanks for your expression of confidence." Evidently ashamed of the frank speaking into which his anger had led him, Christie compromised with: "What in thunder d'yeh want of these dogs?"

Briefly Jim told of his promise to the Indians to visit the Pipestone lakes in early December. "So ye bin up there this fall, eh?"

"Yes. It's a long story. I'll tell you later. Do I get the dogs, Mr. Christie?"

"Well, if yeh can't get 'em down for the Christmas trade, I suppose ye'll have to go after 'em."

"So, it's agreed I get two dog teams?"

"Yes." "Thanks. I think I'll drop over and see Mary."

"Ahem !" The inspector scratched his bearded chin as he coughed. He seemed embarrassed, to the man who waited for him to speak. "I-I wouldn't bother Mary-now. A-hem!" Again he cleared his throat. "Y'see, she's always thought pretty well of you-but we've had some news. She-ye'd better wait and go over to supper with me." "What could she have heard?" Jim wondered, as he followed Christie into the house. "Poor Mary, if she only knew the truth !"

But the desolation in his heart numbed him to indifference to the attitude of the daughter of Andrew Christie. It mattered little to Jim Stuart what rumor the moccasin telegraph had brought from Mitawangagama. Grave faced, she met him at the door and gave him an unresponsive hand, patently avoiding his eyes, and, when she had served the men their supper, returned to the kitchen. Doubtless a highly colored version of the rescue of Aurore and his trip with Omar and Pierre to LeBlond's had reached Expanse. In his misery, however, he ignored her coolness.

After supper, in the trade-house, when he told of the ambush on the Woman river and of the banishment of Paradis, the red face of Christie beamed with satisfaction. "Now we've got something to hold over Meester LeBlond !" chuckled the inspector, rubbing his bony hands. "Yes, but I don't think he knew anything about this ambush." "Maybe not; but I've me own idea about that. Now yeh learned up on the Pipestones what's been keeping the trade from yeh?"

Behind a cloud of tobacco smoke the small eyes of Omar twinkled as he waited eagerly for Jim's reply.

"Why, the friendly Indians told us that Sunset House was supposed to be pestered with evil spirits-devils!" "Well, I'll be skinned!" The thin lipped mouth of Christie stretched in a loud laugh. "Deevils! That's pretty | its use of the note she had sent to Sunset

Jim turned away to hide his disappointed face from the light of the lamp. She had done with him. He was a fool to think that Aurore Le-Blond carried pity in that wild heart of hers-pity for a former plaything of a fur trader buried far in the forest. Opening the sheet-iron stove, he dropped the letter he had written into the flames.

They returned to the inspector's quarters where Christie and McComb greedily read papers weeks old, while Stuart smoked apart with his thoughts. He had finished his pipe and was about to turn in for the sleep he would need before the early start; when he suddenly looked up to surprise Mary Christie watching him from the doorway leading to the kitchen. The eyes of the girl, which for days had worn the cold indifference of a stranger. were now soft with pity-gentle with the sympathy of a friend. She beckoned to him, and rising. ill at ease, he followed her to the kitchen, where she closed the door. Then he noticed that she held a Winnipeg paper.

Without a word Mary handed the sheet to the man who vainly strove to fathom her swift change of mood. "I'm so sorry, Jim," she said, quietly, "that it has come to you as well as to me."

He glanced at the sheet he held in his hands, and there, laughing up at him, was the face of Aurore LeBlond. Under it he read: "Miss Aurore LeBlond, daughter of Louis LeBlond, of the North-West Trading company, who is to marry Bruce MacLauren, well-known Winnipeg business man." Jim let the paper slide to the floor. So it was MacLauren, all the time? MacLauren, the smooth city man, her father's financial backer. While the three from Sunset House went north to search for Jingwak, MacLauren had wasted no time with the girl who doubted the love of a man who could leave her.

Her eyes soft with compassion, Mary Christle watched the stricken face of Stuart.

After a space, he raised his eyes to hers. "Thank you, Mary," he said thickly. "We're getting an early start. I think I'll-turn in." Insensible to his surroundings, like one in a dream, he stood staring at the floor; then, with a deep breath, said: "Good-night! Good-by, Mary!" Like a blind man he groped his way from the room.
