ALEX. UTTENDORFER AT WORK AGAIN

The notorious Alex Uttendorfer who is at large in connection with the robbing of the Richfield State Bank was again at work in his criminal profession last week according to Dodge county police officials, they suspecting that he was the lone bandit, who staged recent hold-ups in the village and town of Hustisford.

At one place in Hustisford he forced the owner of a store and his daughter to hold up their hands while he rifled the cash register, taking $25. At another place the same evening he entered a farmers home near the village and demanded the owner to turn over his cash, which was $7.00. Before leaving the house took a fur coat valued at $1.50 and jewelry valued at $147.00.

UNCLE SAM GETTING READY FOR CHRISTMAS

Christmas is less than two months away but the postoffice department has already launched its mail early program. The plan is directed particularly to persons who expect to send parcels to foreign countries, according to word received last week by Postmaster, Erwin Koch, from the department at Washington.

The overseas holiday period of mailing commences about November 15," Mr. Koch said, "and in anticipation of an increased number of international parcel post packages being mailed from that time until the end of the season makes it necessary that persons living considerable distance from ports of departure get their parcel ready early.

It is not possible to state when parcel post packages will be delivered due to custom formalities that must, in most cases, be complied with before actual delivery is made to addressees. All parcels, however, should be mailed as early as possible.

The following shows a list of the latest articles should reach Atlantic and Pacific coast ports in order to be delivered by Christmas in the foreign countries indicated, but if mail is ready it should not be held lest congestion prevent delivery until after Christmas.

- Latest mailing dates include, Argentina Nov. 26, Austria Dec. 3, Bahamas Dec. 17, Belgium Dec. 15, Bermuda Dec. 21, Brazil Dec. 20, Canal Zone Dec. 16, Chile Dec. 2, Costa Rica Dec. 15, Cuba Dec. 21, Czechoslovakia Dec. 9, Denmark Dec. 15, Egypt Dec. 7, England Dec. 15, Finland Dec. 9, France Dec. 15, Greece Dec. 9, Haiti Dec. 16, Guatemala Dec. 17, Hungary Dec. 9, India Nov. 30, Ireland Dec. 15, Italy Dec. 14, Jamaica Dec. 17, Netherlands Dec. 15, Newfoundland Dec. 17, Nicaragua Dec. 14, Palestine Dec. 7, Paraguay Nov. 26, Panama Dec. 16, Persia Nov. 30, Poland Dec. 15, Siberia Nov. 30, South Africa Nov. 23, Spain Dec. 9, Australia Nov. 23, China Dec. 2, Japan Dec. 10, Manchuria Nov. 26, Hawaii Dec. 17, New Zealand Nov. 23, Philippine Islands Nov. 26 and Siam Nov. 19.

TELEPHONE CO. TO MAKE SERVICE SURVEY

A service survey is to be conducted by the local telephone company beginning next Monday and lasting ten days. All subscribers within the city limits are to be visited by local employees, who will inspect the telephone equipment, report any repairs needed, and receive any complaints or suggestions for improvement of the service. Accurate reports will be made of each inspection and interview, and the company expects to remedy any faults discovered.

Along with the survey will be a short campaign to gain new subscribers or to sell extension telephones or other service to present subscribers. As advertised in this issue of the Statesman the company offers to give ten days free service on all new telephones or extensions ordered during the short campaign. This will apply to farmers as well as city residents, and no charge will be made for installing the service.

Employees of the local exchange are competing with the other exchanges of the company in the survey and sales effort. Officials of the company express the belief that the time has come to go after business and are using the newspapers to help tell about their offer.

STRAW VOTE TAKEN AT HIGH SCHOOL

Last Monday a straw ballot was taken by the local high school students. This voting without a question is one of the best indications as to what the results of the voting in the village will be next Tuesday. The vote showed a big majority for Franklin Roosevelt as President. He was the only Democrat to receive a majority of the votes cast. Of the 96 votes cast, Roosevelt received 62 and Hoover 33. Kohler was the favorite for Governor, he received 56 and Schmedeman 39. For United States Senator Chapple defeated Duffy, the former receiving 53 and the latter 40. For Congressman Fellenz defeated Reilly, 53 to 42.

For County offices, the Republicans won handily, and the home candidates won almost unanimously. Clem Reinders, polled the largest vote, he defeated his opponent H. Meyer Lynch 55 to 9. While John H. Klessig was an easy victor over Jos. P. Wenninger, 83 to 13. Other results on the county tickets were: For Assembly, Russell, Dem., 24; Huber, Rep., 67; For County Clerk, Monroe, Dem., 23; Kramer 71; For Treasurer, Kircher, Dem., 27; Johnson, Rep., 68; For Sheriff, Kirsch, Dem., 34; Peters, Rep., 59; For Dist. Attorney, Buckley, Dem., 37; Cannon, Rep., 55; For Register of Deeds, Pick, Dem., 44; Leins, Rep., 59.

DODGE COUNTY TO APPLY FOR RELIEF FUNDS

A group of local authorities consisting of Mayor W. H. Markham of Horicon, Mayor Rae Weaver of Beaver Dam, Mayor A. A. Novak of Juneau, and Chairman H. J. Cundy of town of Hubbard, Dodge County, have been in conference with the Industrial Commission relative to an allotment to the Dodge County Relief Committee from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Funds for unemployment and poor relief.

Mayor Markham as Spokesman adviser, Commissioner Wilcox and Miss Florence Peterson, Secretary of the Bureau of Unemployment Relief of the Industrial Commission that 1000 Dodge County families will require assistance in the next twelve months and that $200,000 will be needed, of which $100,000 should be allotted to Dodge County from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Funds, unless there is a more rapid improvement in farm prices and a general pick up in the industries of the county.

Mr. Markham also drew the attention of the Commission to the serious plight of the farming communities of the County. He stated that large numbers of farm owners will be unable to pay interest on encumbrances and surely are in no position, having regard to their resources to meet any tax for poor relief purposes. He stated that while the situation does not require aid for as many families in the different towns as in the cities, the need for assistance in taking care of those families is proportionately just as great as in the cities.

The commission indicated that the application of the local authorities of Dodge County through their relief committees will receive attention at an early date.

A new machine has just been invented and placed on the market which manufactures moly bottles from paper. This machine makes the container, fills it with milk, then seals it all in one operation so that neither milk nor container is touched by human hands. This is simply one evidence of the efforts which are being made to produce milk, which through its healthfulness, will be more valuable to the consuming public. The best methods of accomplishing these results are explained to students in the winter dairy course at the University of Wisconsin which begins November 7 and lasts for a period of twelve weeks.

LANK HOLD-UP AT WEST BEND

WEST BEND, WIS., NOV. 1—(Special)—Having completely baffled pursuit, five bank bandits who nonchalantly took $15,000 from the First National bank of West Bend, were observed safely back in their Chicago or Milwaukee hideout Tuesday night. Washington county deputies however were not overlooking the possibility the robbers may have slipped to some lake cottage far off the heavily traveled highways.

Reports to the sheriff indicated the trail vanished at a point near Cedar Lake where the bandit car was abandoned.

Most of the loot seized had been received from Milwaukee about an hour before the big black sedan drew up at the bank as the bank opened Tuesday morning.

Seven officers and employees were in the bank when the robbers entered at 9:10 a.m. One man remained at the wheel of the car at the curb. Another apparently the leader, remained at the door where he could watch both street and lobby.

FIVE IN ROBBER GANG

The others pushed in back of the cages. One jabbed, H. E. Schacht, the cashier, with a pistol, and made him lie down. The robbers then resumed up Louis Kuehlthau, acting president; G. J. Schmidt, assistant cashier; C. A. Collins, manager of the trust department; Mrs. Alice Mitter, bookkeeper; Virginia Bothwell and Marion Knipfel, stenographers; Mrs. George Schwabenanner, a customer, and Walter Gumm, cashier of the West Bend State bank, who walked in while the robbery was in progress.

Two men grabbed money in the cages. Kuehlthau then was ordered to arise and accompany one man to the vault. In the vault this man took all cash in sight.

The gang ran to the automobile and Kuehlthau immediately set off the burglar alarm.

BARBER TAKES SHOT

Carl O. Guth, barber and a special policeman, stopped shaving a customer in his shop near by. He darted to the door with a rifle and fired from the curb. One of the men in the front seat slumped to one side, Guth reported, and this impression was witnessed by others on the street.

The robbers' car careened around a corner into Highway 33 and a short distance from the corner stopped. Albert Beck, a farmer, reported that one man transferred from the rear to the front seat, took the wheel and started off. An hour later the automobile was found on a side road near Cedar Lake.

Authorities expressed belief the robbers had information that the bank was to receive about $20,000 from Milwaukee.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

THE COUNTRY PAPER SPEAKS

I am the oldest business in this town; Old mills have been abandoned; I persist.

Old houses, old hotels of great renown Have gone their ways, but I, I still exist;

Upon my inky pages there appears The story of this place throughout the years.

I told of youth and war, of girls who wed, Of rich and poor alike, of thief and sage,

And how they lived - though most of them are dead While ageless I am of the present age;

Man's varied acts have always been my text - What happened long ago, and what comes next.

Though I am old, in truth I still can say Nothing can be so nearly up-to-date Both yesterday's and morrow I survey, Of ne'er-do-wells and those of high estate.

I lived because I served, and still shall live Because, of all I have, to all I give! --Bristow Adams as said that some Day or other she wanted Jennie to have all of them.

"Well, Old-Timer, slip me the Bad News." "To begin with," said Ed, "my little Playmates' Idea is to go up to the House and pick out whatever she fancies, and when she gets her, your Wife can take away the Leavings."

"What, may I ask, is to be done?" "It is against the Law to poison our Wives so I think we had better burn down the House."

"Did you tell him just what Aunt Hester always expected me to have?" "I sure did, Honey," he replied. "I had the Stuff listed and he knows now that we absolutely refuse to stand for any Monkey Business."

"What did he say?" "He said he'd have another Talk with Elizabeth. Leave everything to me."

"You tell him that Aunt Hester left Everything in your Hands and you are going to stand on your Rights and have the Say-So," said Elizabeth.

"Make it strong, because Rodney is a Weak Character and is absolutely dominated by Jennie, who has a lot of good Qualities but is very, very headstrong."

"Come another day and another Conference, impended," Mrs. Derflinger was giving Rod the Low Down and Inside on the fearful Crisis.

"I love my Brother," quoth she, "but Candor compels me to say that the Upstart who chloroformed him and carried him to the Altar had got the Indian Sign on him."

"I gathered all the Silver and the Family Gallery on the Landing and the Chippendale and the Old Silver and don't forget the Side-Board. She can have Everything in the Laundry. She'll know what to do with a Wringer."

"Depend on me, Kid," said Mr. Derflinger. "I never lost a Battle." Down at the Office he found Ed painfully working on a Sheet of Foolscap.

"I handed the Old Lady's Affairs for Years," said Edward, "and I know her Writing like a Book. I am now preparing a Codicil dated September 15th, 1922, and witnessed by Mr. Snyderker and Ernest Bismuth, both of whom died last Year, bequeathing the Home and Contents to the Colonial Dames, to be used as a Club House."

"Friendship can go no further than that!" exclaimed Rodney Derflinger. "Can you get it through the Probate Court?" "It's a Cinch. The Judge is one of us."

Moth Lives on Flowers The hawk-moth, or the humming-bird-moth as it is sometimes called, is peculiarly fitted by nature to draw substance from flowers which, under ordinary circumstances, would be beyond the powers of an insect's size to feed upon.

It is usually seen about dusk, and its habit of hovering over plants emitting a humming sound gave it the name of the humming-bird moth.

Hearty Breakfasts in Days of Samuel Pepys An insight into the menus of American Colonial days is had in the immortal diary of Samuel Pepys, written 40 years after the Pilgrims had established their colony on the Atlantic coast.

There were no "breakfast foods" in Samuel's time. Fruit juices were not considered as having food value, and were taken on rare occasions as the average person today takes an ice cream soda.

Old English Saying A midden is a domestic rubbish heap. Archeologists refer to the kitchen middens left by prehistoric peoples. According to an old English saying, "better marry over the midden than over the moor" meaning better seek a wife among your neighbors whom you know than among strangers of whom you know nothing.

New Wool Weaves Are Irresistible

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

YOU couldn't if you tried resist the lure of the new wool weaves with which human ingenuity has blessed us this season. In days of yore it would not have been thought possible that woolen could be made so unbelievably sheer, and lacy and spongy and lightweight and colorful and designful and novel in weave and altogether such as you "love to wear" as they now are.

In view of the subtleties of color and weave which have transformed wool into super-fabrics, small wonder is it that a hue and a cry for wool material has been set up which extends the length and breadth of all fashiondom. So much so, that woolens of the idyllic modern type have become a necessary luxury for morning, noon and night wear. Yes, we said "night," for some of the most swagger evening gowns are made of sheerest woolens this season. Monotone versions which introduce checks, squares, circles and other geometrics in daintiest of lacy weaves are high-spots in the fabric realm.

An idea which Paris backs up is that of plaid woolens. There is nothing smarter for daytime wear than a plaid wool one-piece dress with metal accents in the way of buttons, clips, belts and buckles.

If you are not keen on having your dress all of plaid, but we think you will be before the season is far-spent, then compromise on a costume which goes half-and-half on plaid and plain. We would suggest along this line a handsome ensemble such as is here pictured to the right. This nifty sports outfit is in autumn browns and beige with cream white. It is one of the latest among Parisian fashions. Other of the not-to-be-resisted woolens which you will be invited to consider when you start out on a shopping tour in search of likable media for the new suit, the ensemble, the frock, blouse or coat which is in the planning stage, is rabbit's soft, or possibly you will like the wool ostrich cloth better. For the casual spectator frock these weaves are wonderfully good looking. You will like the new tweeds, too, with their striped and often indeterminate patterning. Soft shadow-striped wool is an excellent fabric item and it comes in glorious autumn colorings. The jacket suit illustrated to the left is red in tone. The attractive neckpiece and sleeve adornment exemplifies a theory which many designers are supporting this season that it is not the amount of fur which is used but a "tricky" handling of it which conveys the message of ultra chic. The belt is of ruby suede to which the little velvet hat is accurately color matched. Ob longer length.

Other interesting woolens in the newest collections place accent on homespun and simple tweeds for town, college and general wear. The return of cashmere and similar materials is cited, though in pastel colorings receiving special mention as pleasing and modish for negligee costumes.

PLEATED SKIRT

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

In Paris there is a decided movement in the direction of pleated skirts for formal evening dresses. The thought back of this trend is to use soft supple materials and the slightly sunburst silhouettes is favored instead of straight up-and-down lines. The dress here shown is of violet colored dull-surfaced crepe, and it has the new slashed sleeve and the back-bow treatment which so frequently is employed in connection with the latest low-cut décolletage.

Hints Gathered From Centers of Fashion

Higher necklines are appearing even in sweaters. Brown hats, gloves, bags and shoes are high style with gray fur coats. The severity of many of the new dresses calls for the brightness of jeweled clips. Velvet, satin, wool, and crepe are back in new guises—they're crinkly, dull and deep-piled, furry, glittering, brocaded.

Cape effects mark many of the new evening gowns. There are to be higher necklines, broader shoulders, richer fabrics. Practical and pretty with white or black frocks is a velvet coat with all over shirring. Purple and ombre Persian lamb or gray astrakhan are used together with great effectiveness, in suits, coats or dresses.

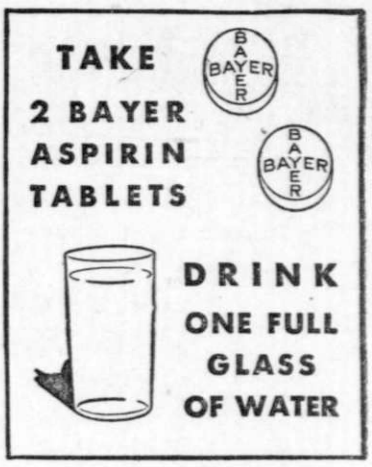

What Can You Do For The Pains Of Rheumatism?

Pain Ended In Few Minutes, This Way

It has now been discovered by thousands of rheumatic sufferers that the pains of that distressing disorder can be eased in as little as a few minutes... relief and comfort in almost as little time as it takes to tell!

Doctors advise two tablets of Bayer Aspirin taken with a full glass of water. Then a rest of a few minutes... and that is all. Pain is eased quickly—sometimes almost unbelievably.

Relief comes so fast because of the peculiar quick-dissolving property of Genuine Bayer Aspirin. The tablets you take dissolve almost INSTANTLY in your stomach. And thus you get practically instant relief. The fastest, safe relief—it is said.

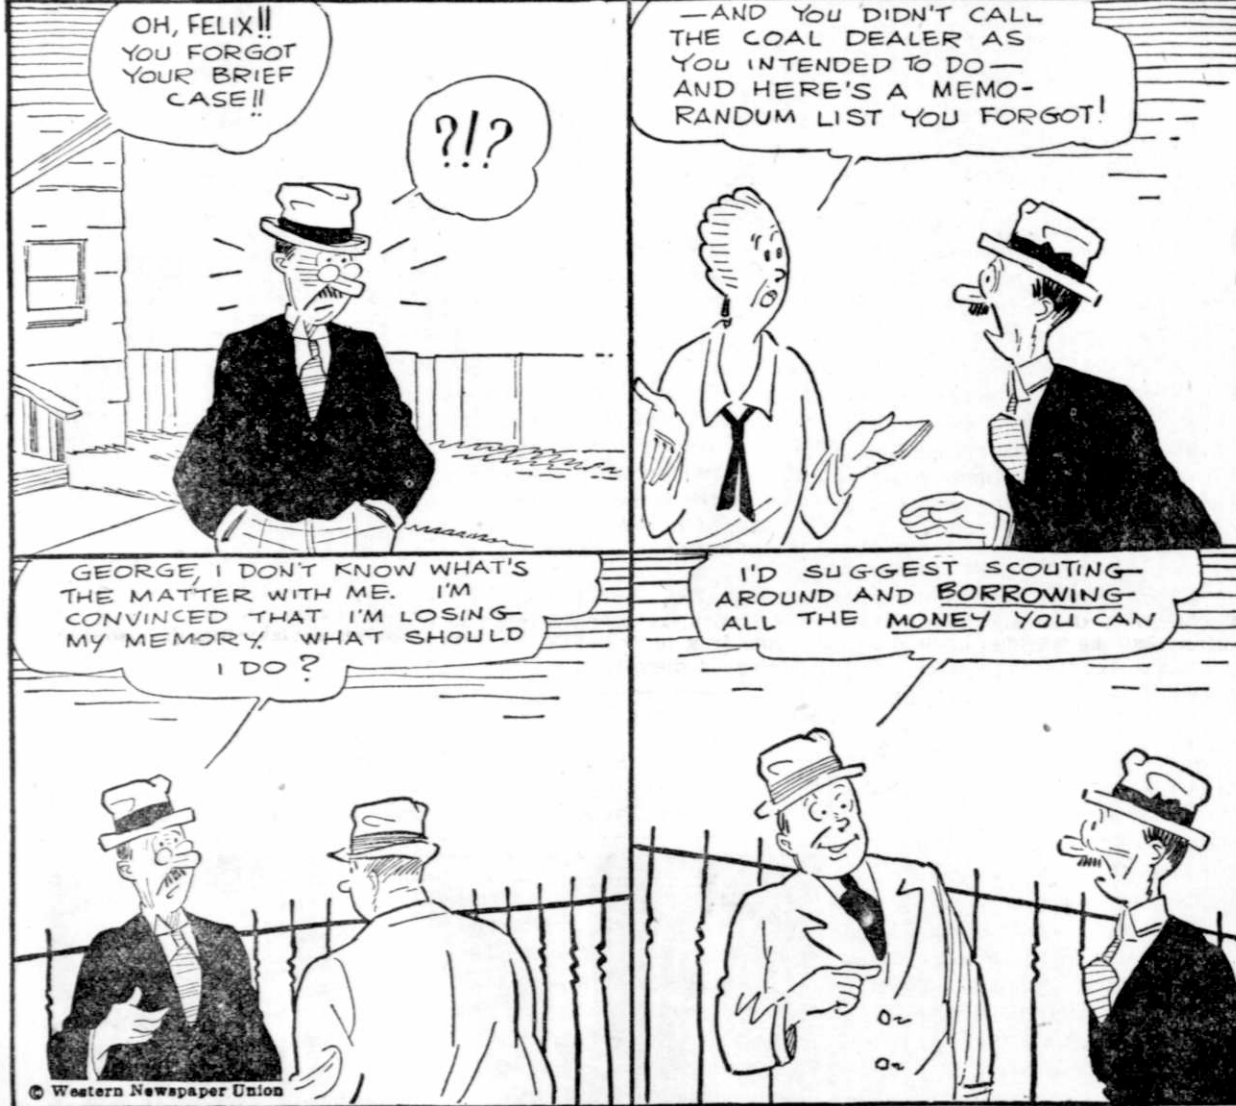

Remember it is Genuine Bayer Aspirin which claims this quick-dissolving, quick-acting property. So be careful that you get the real article when you buy. See that any box or bottle you purchase is clearly marked "Genuine Bayer Aspirin." And that any tablet you take has the name "Bayer" stamped on it in the form of a cross. Then you will get quick relief.

Remember that when you buy. And remember, too, that Genuine Bayer Aspirin Does Not Harm the Heart.

Soldier Husband Freed

by "Patriotic" Suicide
One of the essentials of military patriotism is the hero. A campaign without heroes will not take long to exhaust the public interest. Yet the rounding up and shooting down of bandits by forces superior in equipment, supplies and organization is not likely to provide a sufficiency of heroes for the stimulation of the masses. Fortunately for the moral effect of the Manchurian campaign on Japan, a woman leaped into the breach.

On the eve of his departure for Manchuria, a lieutenant attached to the ambulance corps of the Fourth division returned home to find a note pasted to the door. It told all callers to find him at his regimental headquarters. "Hurrying into his wife's sitting room... he found his spouse dead in an extremely orderly manner," says the Osaka Mainichi. She had put on her best costume, written the usual note, and then cut her own throat with a dagger, "which her soldier-husband has treasured."

The note explained that her suicide would leave him free to serve the emperor without worrying about his wife. "My words fail to describe my joy to leave you before your heroic march to Manchuria tomorrow." The affair of the "Samurai Wife" not only gave the shreik press a splendid opportunity; this female version of General Nogi's harakiri, as the plodin papers dubbed it, set up an example of martyrdom that bids fair to burn like Latimer's candle. It has been followed by dozens of attempts at patriotic suicide.—New Statesman and Nation, London.

Joan of Arc Flag Flies

Once more the flag of Joan of Arc is flying in Rheims cathedral, where she ended her mission. It was a member of her Scottish bodyguard who designed her original battle flag, a reproduction of which has been presented to the archbishop of Rheims by Scottish and English friends of France. The designer of the original was Hamish Polworth, who after serving with Joan's warriors, became a monk and died at Dunfermline abbey.

Every child's stomach, liver, and bowels need stimulating at times, but give children something you know all about.
Follow the advice of that famous family physician who gave the world Syrup Pepsin. Stimulate the body's vital organs. Dr. Caldwell's prescription of pure pepsin, active senna, and fresh herbs is a mild stimulant that keeps the system from getting sluggish.
If your youngsters don't do well at school, don't play as hard or eat as well as other children do, begin this evening with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This gentle stimulant will soon right things! The bowels will move with better regularity and thoroughness. There won't be so many sick spells or colds. You'll find it just as wonderful for adults, too, in larger spoonfuls!

Get some Syrup Pepsin; protect your household from those bilious days, frequent headaches, and that sluggish state of half-health that means the bowels need stimulating. Keep this preparation in the home to use instead of harsh cathartics that cause chronic constipation if taken too often. You can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store; they have it all ready in big bottles.

GRONENBURG

Ambrose Fellenz is at present employed at Eugene Fellenz's place. Miss Celesta Branson of West Bend spent Sunday under the parental roof. Miss Veronica Staehler of Milwaukee is spending a week here with her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Jake Schaeffer visited with Tony Schaeffer and wife at Kewaskum Sunday.

NOTICE—No hunting is allowed on my farm under penalty of the law.—Edward Schladweiler.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Partum of Milwaukee a bright baby girl last week Saturday. Congratulations. Mr. and Mrs. Anton Schaeffer attended the funeral of Mrs. Barbara Schaeffer at Campbellsport Thursday.

Louis Mellinger, who was employed at Mrs. Klockebush's place for the summer returned to his home Monday. Joe Schladweiler, who visited the summer months with his brother, returned to his home at West Bend last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Math. Schladweiler and son Tony of Random Lake spent Sunday with Mrs. Anna Mellinger and children.

It has been announced that the marriage of Miss Lucy Krell to Lawrence Staehler will take place on Saturday, November 12.

Mr. and Mrs. Syl. Fellenz, Joe and Math. Schladweiler and Miss Angelina Leck, all of West Bend, and Mr. and Mrs. Edw. Schladweiler and children visited at Holy Hill Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Casper Klunke, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Klunke, Joe and Math. Schladweiler, all of West Bend, and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Arndts of Barton attended the procession Tuesday afternoon at St. Michaels.

The following attended the funeral of Mrs. Anna Obenauf at Mundelein, Ill., last Thursday: Mr. and Mrs. John Schladweiler from here, Joe and Math. Schladweiler, Mrs. Syl. Fellenz, Mrs. Joe Wiskerchen and Mrs. Clarence Weiland, all of West Bend, and Mr. and Mrs. John Van Beek of Barton.

The death of Mrs. Anna Obenauf of Mundelein, Ill. is a great shock to her many relatives and friends in this community. She was better known here as Miss Anna Meeth, and was a resident from near St. Michaels until after her marriage. She was ill only two weeks with pneumonia. She was taken to a hospital where everything possible was done to save her life. She was a good mother and wife, and liked by all who knew her. She is survived by her widower and ten children. They are Adolph, Otto, Leo, Martin, Bernard, Mary (Mrs. Joe Ben), Thekla (Mrs. Henry Peem), Michael, Carl and Anna at home. The funeral was held at 7 o'clock last Thursday at the Fremont Center last Thursday at eleven o'clock. Burial was made in the same village.

We now have a Tariff Commission, a fact finding commission, and the Democratic party pledges itself not to have any more log rolling tariff bills, but to follow the findings of the Tariff Commission.

The fact of the matter is, this Tariff Commission is of Democratic creation. When this Tariff Commission was first established under Democratic administration, it was intended to take the tariff out of politics and politics out of the tariff.

If Mr. Roosevelt is elected and given a Democratic Congress, he will do something to the Grundy Tariff Bill written during Mr. Hoover's administration. This tariff bill was denounced at the time it was passed, not by Democrats alone, but by Republicans all over the country as a legislative monstrosity, and some of the best and clearest thinkers of the country, Republicans and Democrats, hold that Tariff Bill partly responsible for our present industrial depression. Immediately after that Tariff Bill was passed, forty nations, incensed at its high prohibited rates, passed retaliatory tariff acts that brought serious injury to our export trade.

Some other legislation besides tariff, that the farmer has had so much of, must be written to help agriculture. Mr. Roosevelt has proposed a legislative farm program that appeals to the leaders of the agricultural forces of this country and, according to these leaders, he is the only man in years who has been able to talk the language of agriculture, and to give to the stricken farmers of the country hope that Congress will finally do something to put agriculture on an equality with industry.

Rudolph Hoepner was at Theresa on Sunday where he helped celebrate the 77th birthday anniversary of Mr. William Bartel.

Mrs. Joe Lasky and daughter, Jane, and Miss Catharine Jonas of Milwaukee spent Sunday and Monday at the Armand Mertz home.

Mrs. Frank Jonas of Milwaukee and Miss Elsie Mertz of Kewaskum spent the forepart of the week with the Armand Mertz family.

We erred in last week's issue stating that Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Leue have a baby girl. It should have read a baby girl. Beg your pardon.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Boerig, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Jaeger, Mrs. Henry Gritzmacher, son Hilbert, and Leo Wietor spent Tuesday evening at the Wm. Foerster home.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Kullman were dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Eisenbach at Campbellsport Sunday. The occasion being the former's 25th wedding anniversary.

Sunday, Nov. 6th, English services at 10:00 o'clock and Sunday school after the services at the Spelms' Reformed church. In the afternoon the Ladies Aid will meet at the home of Mrs. Ralph Petri.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Jossie and family, and Mrs. Al. Struebing and Mrs. Regina Kleinhaus spent Tuesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kleinhaus and family.

Mrs. W. Seidl, who is confined to the St. Agnes hospital, where she underwent a goner operation, is reported to be improving.

The Elmore school was closed on Thursday and Friday, while the teacher, Miss Anna Flood, attended the Teachers' convention at Milwaukee.

Charles Corbett, daughters Frances and Anna, of Random Lake, Mrs. Gertrude White and son Warren of Sundee, Mr. and Mrs. Justin DeVoy and son Billy of South Byron, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Mathieu Sunday.

ARMSTRONG

A son was born last week to Mr. and Mrs. Ben Ditter.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Foy and family visited in Fond du Lac Sunday.

Wm. Alber and George R. Twobig were in Fond du Lac Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Shea had their infant daughter baptized Sunday.

James Cavanaugh of Henry, S. D. is visiting his brother, Henry Cavanaugh.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Twobig are visiting relatives at Appleton and Sugarbush.

Mrs. Wm. Monk of Minneapolis is spending a few weeks at the M. P. Shea home.

John Schamp of Rathburn is employed at the Alber cheese factory and and grocery.

Mrs. Emil Rach and son, Billy, of Chicago spent last week at the Wm. C'Brien home.

Mrs. Nora Sullivan of Fond du Lac is spending sometime with her niece, Mrs. Katherine Burns.

Miss Laura Twobig of Fond du Lac was a week-end guest at the home of her brother, George Twobig.

Miss Mary Shea and nephew, Shergin Shea, visited at the McNamara home in Fond du Lac Sunday.

Mr. Casper and family of St. Joe are moving into the place of business formerly operated by Arleigh Piper.

Mr. and Mrs. James Prindeville of Geneseo spent the week-end at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rolten Jr.

Miss Irene Twobig was among the guests at a birthday party for Henry Grabl and his grand daughter held at the Grabl home in Eden Sunday eve.

The teacher, Miss Nora Twobig, and pupils of Armstrong school enjoyed a Halloween party Monday afternoon. After games and contests refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Cavanaugh, Geo. R. Twobig, George Steck, Bernard Gannon, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. O'Brien, George O'Brien, Mrs. Joseph Rolten Sr., Mrs. Mae O'Connor, Miss Carrie Sullivan, Mrs. James Weiss, Dan and John Sullivan and Morris Morarity attended the funeral services for Dr. David Cavanaugh held at Montello on Thursday.

Special devotions were conducted on Sunday afternoon at Our Lady of Angels' church, it being the feast of Christ, the King. On Tuesday, All Saints Day, masses were at 7:30 a.m. and 10 a.m. On Wednesday, All Souls Day, masses were at 8:00 a.m. and 9:00 a.m., followed by a procession to the adjoining cemetery and to Sacred Heart cemetery at Dundee, where blessings were administered and prayers recited.

REILLY DEFENDS ROOSEVELT'S TARIFF POLICY

Congressman Michael K. Reilly, in a speech at Menasha, Wisconsin, on Tuesday evening, spoke in part as follows:

An effort is being made by the Republican splinterers to convince the farmer again, as they have in the past, that his sole hope for high prices is the tariff, the Republican tariff. The statement is made that if Mr. Roosevelt is elected, tariff rates on agricultural products will be cut down. This statement is absolutely untrue. Mr. Roosevelt has never said anything about taking tariff off agricultural products. Of course, anybody who knows even a little about the tariff and agriculture, knows that the tariff does not effect agriculture in any way except on farm products that are imported, which are very few. The farmer buys in the nearest market in the world and sells in the cheapest.

Tariff on wheat is now more than the farmers are getting for their wheat and so with many other articles that the farmer raises.

We now have a Tariff Commission, a fact finding commission, and the Democratic party pledges itself not to have any more log rolling tariff bills, but to follow the findings of the Tariff Commission.

The fact of the matter is, this Tariff Commission is of Democratic creation. When this Tariff Commission was first established under Democratic administration, it was intended to take the tariff out of politics and politics out of the tariff.

THREE BALLOTS TO BE VOTED UPON NEXT TUESDAY

At next Tuesday's election there will be three ballots to be voted upon a national ballot, a state and county ballot, and a ballot containing four questions on constitutional amendments.

You will find opposition for every office except county surveyor in both counties. In Washington county Milton Schaefer is the sole candidate, and in Fond du Lac county George W. Marshall is the only contestant.

Two of the four questions to be submitted to the voters relate to the salaries of the governor and the lieutenant governor, which are now established by the constitution. Both questions propose repeal of the salary article so that the compensation of their offices may be fixed by law.

The third question concerns substitution of words in the constitution article on impeachments while the fourth question is a proposal to permit public utilities to mortgage their incomes or property instead of incurring a general indebtedness to be paid from taxes.

On the state and county ballot the first row is given over to the regularly nominated Democratic candidates, the second row to the prohibition candidates, the third to the Republicans, the fourth to the Socialists and the remaining column to the independent candidates.

In Fond du Lac county, Morris T. Cleary, candidate for Coroner, is the only independent county candidate.

In both Washington and Fond du Lac counties, the Democrats and Republicans are the only parties having complete state and county tickets.

On the national ballot to vote for president and vice-president only one cross is necessary.

When voting never make a check mark, it must be a cross, and inserted in the space provided after the name of the party you wish to vote for.

DANGEROUS DRIVING MONTHS

The fall and winter months are the most dangerous of the year for automobile driving.

Rain, snow, sleet, hail and ice, early darkness, haste to reach home and escape the cold, tightly closed doors and low visibility, all contribute to the hazards.

Skidding is a chief danger of cool weather driving. The motorist must confront not only a visible wet or icy surface, but one hidden under a bed of fallen leaves. Last year 1,740 persons were killed and 51,720 injured in 44,719 accidents due to skidding cars.

"The automobilist cannot carry the driving practices of the late spring and summer over to the fall and winter without running a great risk of accident," says Maxwell Halsey, Traffic Engineer of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters.

"Conditions become vastly different in the last three months of the year, and the driver must take them into consideration," Mr. Halsey lays down certain rules for the dangerous driving months.

"Have your car thoroughly inspected for any mechanical defects that may have developed during the summer."

"Be especially sure your brakes are effective; be sure your tires are in first-class condition, also your lights and your windshield wiper."

"Cut down on your summer speed."

"Allow for early darkness and for decreased visibility."

"If you find your car going into a skid, do not jam on your brakes."

Available statistics indicate that automobile fatalities in the United States decreased about 12 per cent the first 7 months of this year. If that record were to be maintained up to, and including December 31st, it would mean that the number of human lives taken by motor cars during the year would fall below 30,000 for the first time since 1918. However, the supreme test is now being applied. Every agency nowadays is endeavoring to bring about a reduction in automobile insurance rates. A winter driver should realize that he can contribute most to the success of this movement by driving which will decrease the number of accidents.

"If 7000 Wisconsin farmers, who are really good horsemen and who have not been raising colts regularly, will each determine to raise four colts a year, Wisconsin can soon be back on a self sufficient basis, and keep in the state nearly two million dollars which are now being sent out of the state for work animals."—Wayne Dinsmore Secretary of the Horse Association of America.

The Desert's Price

SYNOPSIS

Drawn by the desert signal of distress, Wilson McCann, young Arizona ranchman, finds an old friend, Jim Yerby, with a broken leg. Julia Stark, daughter of Matthew Stark, inveterate enemy of the McCanns, signaled and is rendering first aid. Taking a note from Julia to her father, Wilson is fired on by Jasper Stark, who had just propped against the wall. He was a good-looking lad, sheep rancher, and on that account unpopular with the cattlemen, turns down Wilson's offer of help.

His glance picked up the figure of a young girl in the doorway, a soft round little person with dimpled cheeks in and out of which the pink could pour at the least excuse. The mouth was childishly sweet, the hair abundant and fluffy. Men instinctively grew tender and protective when they looked at shy-eyed Ethel Gifford.

Again McCann bowed, this time to the girl in the doorway.

Ann faced him, inflexibly hostile. She did not speak.

"Well, so long."

Jim-Dandy felt the rein on his neck and turned toward the trail. From the ridge above McCann looked down on the low buildings of the sheep ranch. Ethel was still standing where he had last seen her. She seemed to him a lonely and pathetic figure robbed of the joys of youth.

Yerby was inclined to be querulous. "Doc's been worryin' for fear you wouldn't come, boy. What's been keepin' you?"

"Had to fix a fence. Pedro bring my roll an' some grub last night?"

"Sure did. Well, son, now you're here, come on in."

Wilson turned Jim-Dandy into the corral. He saddled Doctor Sanders' horse and brought it to the door.

"Yore hoss is served, Doc." McCann called in. "Course I don't aim to drag you away from any hampered-down horse you may have for a patient. Take yore time. He can't more'n talk an arm off you."

The old-timer snorted. "Ever see the beat of them kids, Doc? They don't know sic' 'em, an' they don't want to learn from them that does know."

The doctor Sanders laughed. He knew Yerby enjoyed round repartee. "You act like a pair of kids. If you ask me, don't let your kid give Jim one of these powders every four hours, Wils." He added his "So long" and bustled out to the horse.

Before he left, McCann offered a suggestion. He did not quite know the spring of the impulse that impelled it. "What you gonna say anything about that gunplay at Tincup pass, Doc. No use startin' trouble before it has to come."

Sanders assented.

McCann's eyes followed him as he slipped into the arroyo that would bring him to the mesa upon which was the sheep ranch. The young man smiled ruefully. He was thinking about the Gifford sisters.

It seemed to him that their lives were involved in tragedy. Why should they be pariahs, outcasts from the society of those living near? What had they done to deserve it? That they ran sheep was an unfortunate incident and had nothing to do with that. There were no wolder Ann had become embittered at the destiny that pressed upon them. Nora had vanished, the bloom brushed from her life, if the dark rumors he heard were true. But his thoughts dwelt on Ethel, so unfr to cope with the harshness of this dry and cruel land.

CHAPTER III

Wils McCann Uses His Quirt

On the porch in front of Basford's emporium, which was also the post office, Mesa and the adjoining country met to discuss the news and formulate views.

"Eday conversation was engrossin' but guarded. Ever the feud between the Starks and the McCanns had broken out again. Dering the night a cabin far from the main ranch house of the Flying VY, had been raided and burned by armed horsemen. Two punchers had been sleeping there, and in trying to escape through the window one had been wounded. He had slipped away into the chaparral and hidden. After daybreak his companion had brought help from the Flying VY and carried him to the ranch."

Peter McCann, two of his sons, and his foreman, Was Tapscott, were in town. They had come in force, so the story ran, to find out what the sheriff intended to do about it.

Curt Quinn, two safe friends confidentially summed up public opinion. "Old man McCann ain't expectin' Hank to do anything. I don't reckon Hank got elected sheriff to pick a row with the Starks. He won't look onoc at the Circle Cross ranch, an' I don't blame him. Nor will old Pete won't blame him either. He come to the law to make the proper bluff, but he'd be plumb disappointed if it interfered in his own little private feud. The McCanns will play out the hand their own selves."

The town looked with respect and awe upon the four lean brown men who dismounted at the sheriff's office. All of them carried rifles as well as side arms. Peter, hard-eyed and imperious, a fighter from his youth, asked no odds of any man. If he was a leader it was not by chance, but by reason of the dominant force in him. Hawk-nosed and shaggy-browed, the chief of the McCanns bore in his face the look of heady and ungovernable temper. One glance at the three was enough to show from whom his lithe and keen-eyed sons had inherited. "Chips of the old block, Wils an' Lyn are—about as tough propositions to bump into as a fellow's liable to meet," Simp Shell commented as he watched the four riders leave the sheriff's office. He was a middle-aged man with no business except everybody's business. "Except the old man. He's got a leetle the edge of the boys yet. When he gets on the hook I ce'tainly want to be lookin' for a tree to climb."

"How about exceptin' Matt Stark an' them Texans, Stone an' Gitter?" Basford murmured significantly. "They're no pilgrims," admitted Simp. The quartette of riders swung from the porch and grouted the reins. Peter McCann nodded grimly to those on the porch and walked into the store. Tapscott followed him. The others stayed to exchange a word with Quinn and Shell.

Lyn sat on his heels and from his hip pocket drew the "makings." There was nothing to show he was not at perfect ease with the world—except the long rifle he had just propped against the wall. He was a good-looking lad, just turned twenty, slender and graceful as one of Praxiteles' models.

The talk drifted. Then from out of the store came Peter McCann with a square of wrapping paper, a hammer, and some tacks. To the wall he nailed the coarse paper. Those on the porch watched him silently and read the notice roughly printed there.

REWARD

For information identifying All or any of the Night Riders who Shot Joe Walters at the Cass Cabin Will be paid by PETER McCANN.

This called for comment. After a long moment of waiting Quinn spoke.

"How is Joe?"

"He'll make it, Doc says."

"Good. He's one tough customer. Joe is. I kinda figured he'd fool 'em. Nell was allowin' to ride over today on 'see if they was anything she could do."

"Not a thing, Curt. But tell her much obliged."

That was all. McCann's spurs jingled down the steps. His sons and his foreman followed. They swung into their saddles and rode away.

"Short an' sudden," commented Simp. "The old man don't orate much, but his actions talk mighty loud. I notice he ain't offerin' no reward for the arrest an' conviction of them night riders. Not none. He aims to do all the arrestin' that's needed an' he don't reckon any convictin' will be required."

Quinn nodded. He was of the same opinion. McCann would go his own way, regardless of the law. If anyone protested he could point out how he had first appealed to it for protection. But there would be a grim ironic light in his eyes when he mentioned the fact.

The McCanns had not been out of Mesa ten minutes when another group of horsemen were seen approaching by the Tincup Pass road in a cloud of dust. They drew up in front of the Gilt Edge saloon.

Jasper Stark straddled into the gambling house, his brother Phil and Carl Gitter at his heels. Stone stood on the porch and looked round leisurely in his cool measured way before he passed through the door into the Gilt Edge. Killer he might be, but he was an individual first. He did not follow at any man's beck.

"Come an' wash the dust outa yore throat, Dave," invited Jasper, in no subdued voice. "It's on me today. Bet yore boots."

Stone's cold blue eyes looked at Jasper with no warmth in them. As a boy the Texana had ridden with Mosby in his border raids. There were rumors that at one time he had been one of Quantrill's guerrillas. The habit of his life was to consort with danger. It seemed to him child's play and worse, an indication of arrant weakness, to wear such a manner of exuberant triumph as Jasper Stark displayed. What had they done but drive two frightened cowpunchers into the chaparral, wound one, and fire an empty cabin? If the faction with which he was allied called this a victory there would surely be trouble ahead. The McCanns were fighters.

"I wouldn't choose to drink," he said.

"Different here," retorted Jasper. "Set 'em up, Hans. The lid's off today."

The older of the Stark brothers was large and muscular, but he carried himself slouchily. His physical strength was not convincing because it had back of it no mental or moral force. The younger man was of a different type. Phil was only eighteen, but he had been brought up in the school of the frontier which has no vacations. Stone judged that he would go through when the call came.

The Gilt Edge was the usual resort of the Stark faction as the Legal Tender was of the other side. Hans now gave information to Jasper as he set out glasses and bottles.

"The McCanns was in town today already yet."

Jasper stopped, glass poised. "How many of 'em?"

"Four. Old Peter, Tapscott, and two of the boys."

"Hmp! What they doin' here?" Hans shrugged his shoulders and lifted the palms of his hands. He had told all he knew.

"Got out, eh? Musta known we were headin' this way," Jasper boasted. Stone laughed, softly, ironically. "Where do you get that line of talk, Hans? Ever hear of old Pete McCann givin' the middle of the road to anybody? He's there both ways from the ace, if you ask me."

"Well show him how much he's there before we're through."

"Yes?" drawled the Texan, lazily and insolently.

"I'll tell him so, right off the reel, him or any of his outfit soon as I meet up with 'em," the young man bragged.

He was irritated at Stone. Was the gunman on the Stark side of the feud? He was taking old Matt's money. Well then why did he talk like that?

"Better tell 'em kinda how, so's they don't hear, Jas. A few of 'em are curly wolvers. Leastways they've got that rep."

"You scared of 'em, Dave?" Jasper was alarmed at his own question. His eyes fell before the chill steady regard of the little man.

After a moment the Texan spoke. His words lessened the tension. "I reckon my six-gun will have to talk for me when the times comes, Jas."

After some time of rapid refreshment at the bar the Circle Cross riders moved out again to the main street of the little town. Stone had already departed temporarily to buy a shirt. Gitter and Phil Stark had business at the blacksmith shop. Jasper strolled across to Basford's for the mail. Inside, he caught a glimpse of the little Texan at the dry goods counter.

Public opinion, represented by Quinn, Shell, and others, still sat on the porch and awaited developments. It watched Jasper Stark now to see what he would do about the placard on the wall. It had watched Stone, too. The Texan had read it with an expressionless face and offered no comment.

Jasper swelled, evidently steaming up to blow off. He could not resist taking the center of the stage. In the safe middle states he might have been a ward boss. Unfortunately for him leadership in the Southwest demanded, first of all, gameness. He was always trying to fill a place he had not the stark courage to hold.

"Hmp! Wants information, does he? An' he'll pay a thousand dollars. What's he aim to do with his information when he gets it?"

Jasper's voice was heavy, his manner abusive as he turned to Quinn. The cattleman did not look at him. His expressionless eyes were on a cloud of dust far down the road ribbon. A rider was cantering toward Mesa.

"Why he didn't tell me, Jas. Yore guess is as good as mine," Quinn answered evenly.

Jasper was "wilding up," as Simp Shell expressed it later. He was full of bad whisky and a sense of his own importance. He strutted, moving up and down the porch as he boasted.

"Don't amount to a hill of beans, this don't." The drink-excited man snapped his fingers contemptuously at the poster. "Say he knew. What then? What then?"

His back was toward the man coming down the road. If he had been observant he might have seen an odd change in the gray eyes of Quinn, a flicker of subdued and wary excitement.

"I'll show Peter McCann where he gets off," Stark went on, vainly overruling caution. "I'll sure learn that hombre not to run on the rope." He took two swift strides forward and with one sweeping gesture ripped the reward placard from the wall. Tearing the paper into fragments, he flung them down and ground them under his heel.

At the same instant a rider pulled up in front of the store and swung from the saddle. Stark turned, the anger he had worked up burning in him.

On the lower step a man was standing, his quirt dangling by the loop from his wrist.

Under his ribs the heart of Jasper Stark died within him. For the man looking at him was Wilson McCann. He had a feeling as though the ground were falling from his feet, a shocked certainty that he had been delivered into the hand of his enemy. His arm made a motion toward the revolver at his side, a hesitant and indefinite gesture.

"Don't you!" warned McCann. Stark dropped his hand. In his eyes was the look of the trapped rat. His brother and Gitter were nearly half a mile away, but Stone was here, not twenty yards from him. The Texan would pump lead into McCann if he got gay. With the thought came a resurgence of courage. He had nothing to fear.

His voice was loud, to attract the attention of his companion. "You'll pull yore freight, Wils McCann, if you know what's good for you. Get me. Poco tiempo."

McCann came up the steps toward him, evenly and without haste. There was that in his face at which Jasper took alarm.

"Keep back. Hear me? Keep back, or I'll—" Jasper retreated to the door, his voice rising to a shriek. "Don't you dase lay a hand on me."

His enemy plucked him from the shelter of the store as though he had been a child. The quirt in the hand of McCann rose and fell, rose and fell again. Jasper cursed, threatened, wept. He called to Stone for help, tried to break away from that iron grip and escape, did all he could to save himself except stand up and fight. The swinging lash burned like a rope of fire. The tortured man howled in agony and begged shamelessly for mercy.

He flung himself to the floor and McCann released him. The man with the quirt was panting from his exertions. He looked down scornfully at the quivering mass of wheals at his feet.

"You'll learn to—let my father's placards alone. Understand? An' not to shoot at me from the brush, you d—d jayhawk."

McCann looked up. From the windows, from the door, from both sides of him the eyes of silent men were focussed upon him and Stark. Against the jamb of the door Stone was leaning, muscles at indolent ease, only his cold eyes warily intent. At the first glance McCann knew that the Texan had elected not to take up Jasper's quarrel.

To Medford, the store clerk, Wilson spoke. "Father forgot the mail. Left it in the store. Get it for me."

Presently the clerk appeared with a package of letters and newspapers. "Much obliged."

The Flying VY man turned. Jim-Dandy was standing near the porch, parallel to it. With one quick leap McCann was in the saddle. His feet found the stirrups and the pony went pounding down the road at a gallop.

Presently Simp eased himself out of his chair and waddled across to the braggart huddled on the floor.

"Better get up, Jas. He's gone," Simp said.

He lent a hand to get the other to his feet. Jasper looked round, furtive-eyed, knew he had been weighed and found wanting.

"If I hadn't slipped—" he began, and stopped. His breath was still ragged with dry sobs. "He took advantage—with his quirt."

"Yes. You only had a gun," Stone answered contemptuously. "A gun an' yore fists."

"Tell you he took advantage. I slipped," whined Jasper.

"You sure done so when you picked on this Wils McCann to raise a ruckus with?" Stone asked.

Jasper limped painfully into the store and sank down into a chair. "I'm sick," he whimpered.

Medford brought him water. After a time he was helped to the hotel. He was not able to ride home and in any event he had not the nerve to face Matt Stark with even a doctored story of his humiliation.

The old man would be in a blaze of fury at him.

Matthew Stark was game to the marrow and inordinately proud. That a Stark should show the white feather to a McCann, that he should be whipped like a peon without offering fight, filled him with a bitter despair he could not endure. If Jasper had gone to his death with guns blazing he would have sorrowed for him and been proud of him. But this degradation was unendurable.

He was ordered to saddle his horse and rode to town alone. He craved action drastic and swift. First, a settlement with the weakling who had dishonored him, then battle with his enemies to revenge himself upon them. He would have Wilson McCann's blood. Nothing less would satisfy him.

The old man strode through the hall of the Mesa house and into the room that served as an office.

"What room is Jas in?" he demanded of the proprietor.

"Why he's in the front room upstairs, Mr. Stark. Doc Sanders has been lookin' after him."

Stark was already taking the stairs. The man lying on the bed heard a heavy tread. The door burst open and his father stood before him, the fires of eruptive wrath blazing in his eyes. Jasper knew his day of judgment had come.

Matt Stark stood, feet well apart, leathery jaw clamped tight, and looked at his unworthy son. "Well?" he asked harshly at last.

"I slipped. He got me down," Jasper whined.

"Don't lie to me. I've seen Stone." "I was kinda dazed. He hit me first off with the loaded end of his quirt an' I didn't know what I was doing. He 'most killed me."

"I wish he had," the father retorted bitterly. "If anyone had told me I'd rake a coward for a son—" He broke off, to deny his own claim. "But I knew it. I've known it for years, only I wouldn't let myself believe it. You were always a piling quitter. No sand in yore core. Never was. The first time I ever knew without guts, I'd rather you'd died—a hundred times rather. But I'm through with you. No son of mine can stand up an' take a thrashin' without fightin' like a wild-cat."

"I was sick anyhow, an' I wasn't noctin' when he knocked me kinda senseless," Jasper whimpered.

"You're lying. An' what if he did? Pack a gun, don't you? After he'd taken the hide off, you still had yore forty-five, didn't you? Think Phil would have let him get away with it an' not pumped lead? Not for a minute. But you—you're gunshy. All you can do is drink an' brag. Why, you habby weakling they'll laugh at me all over the county. The McCanns'll never quite grinnin' about it. By G—d. I couldn't a-believed it—even about you."

"I'm through with you—absolutely. Right now I'm going over to Fletcher's office to change my will. You don't get a cent—not a cent. An' you get out of Arizona. I'll give you a week to settle yore affairs. You'll pull yore freight an' change yore name. From now on you're no Stark. Understand?"

"I've got to sell my stock," Jasper said sulkily. Already he was sketching a campaign to mitigate the old man's wrath. Julia was his favorite. She could do anything with him. He would have her talk to her father and get him to be reasonable.

"I'll buy it. Name yore price. See Fletcher about it. I don't want any dealings with you myself. Don't you ever cross my track or I'll make you think this Wils McCann was only playin' at quirtin' you."

Matthew Stark left the room and the hotel. He walked down the street to Fletcher's office and found the lawyer was in Phoenix and would not be back for several days. The owner of the Circle Cross hesitated. He was half of a mind to go to Tucson and have a new will made at once. Any kind of delay annoyed him. But he had reasons for not wanting to leave the valley just now. The new will would have to wait till Fletcher returned.

Across the street he could see the editor of the Mesa Round-Up sitting at his desk. Stark strode across through the dust and entered the little frame building. He brushed aside the greetings of the newspaper man and ordered brusquely what he wanted.

Within the hour printed posters had been tacked up in each of the saloons, on the wall of the post office inside and out, on the door of the false-front town hall and at a dozen other conspicuous places. They bore this simple legend in blackface type.

This Is To Serve NOTICE That I will kill Wilson McCann on sight.

MATTHEW STARK

This attended to, Stark mounted and rode out of town. From his favorite chair on the porch of Basford's store Simp Shell watched him go, a grim and menacing figure of wrath. To Basford and another crony Simp offered the opinion that hell was liable to pop mighty soon. It was agreed that Matthew Stark and either Wilson or Peter McCann would clash at their first meeting and that from it one or both would be carried away dead or mortally wounded.

HOOVER DIRECTS TARIFF INQUIRY

To Relieve Industries and Provide Jobs.

Washington.—Accompanied by President Hoover's request for quick action, the tariff commission has a list of 15 industries in 30 states before it for investigations into the adequacy of existing import duties.

The President had submitted the list "of industries and localities where there has been actual increase of unemployment or alternately where it is inevitable that it will increase from importations" and directed Chairman O'Brien to investigate the tariff rates in connection with depreciated currencies abroad. He added in his letter to O'Brien:

"If it shall prove that the difference in cost of production between here and abroad in these industries has altered the basis of the tariff duties I wish to receive recommendations of the tariff commission at the earliest possible moment."

The President had told an audience in Charleston, W. Va., that he had asked the commission to investigate tariff rates in the light of depreciated foreign currencies.

Commodities included in the list submitted by the President for investigation were:

Rag and grass rugs, tooth and hair brushes, electric light bulbs, cutlery, pottery, rubber boots and shoes, leather gloves, silverware, jewelry, canned vegetables, dried beans, iron and steel products, metal goods, canned fish, lumber products, chemical products.

The President's list named points in the following states as locations of these industries:

New York, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Maine, Vermont, New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia, Georgia, Alabama, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Utah, Arkansas, California, Washington, Oregon, Missouri, Louisiana and Texas.

Pana's Only Blacksmith Is Mysteriously Slain

Pana, Ill.—Pearl Carroll, fifty, Pana's only blacksmith and horse-shoer was found mysteriously slain, with a bullet wound through the brain, in an open field on his goat farm, one mile south of Pana.

Carroll's wife and daughter were in Mattoon, Ill., and he left his home in Pana shortly after noon to go to his farm to attend his goats. Three hours later his body was found by his brother, Charles Carroll, who went to the farm to seek him.

He had been dead two hours when found. No revolver or rifle was found near Carroll and no footprints showed near where his body was discovered. The bullet apparently had been fired from a distance. It passed entirely through his head.

Minister Convicted of Poisoning First Wife

Muskogee, Okla.—Rev. S. A. Berrie, fifty-two-year-old unfringed Cumberland Presbyterian minister, was convicted by a jury of poisoning his first wife, Mrs. Fannie Berrie, who died after taking a capsule at a church service. The verdict carries a life prison sentence.

Berrie appeared calm when he was returned to his cell. His comely nineteen-year-old second wife, the former Ida Bess Bright, and a Sunday school teacher in his church, also apparently was unmoved.

Woman Says War Veteran Shot Her and Himself

Seattle, Wash.—A woman who identified herself as the wife of Col. William M. Inglis, fifty-eight, World war veteran prominent in Republican state politics, declared he had shot her and then killed himself in his apartment because he was "dissatisfied" with life.

The woman, known as Miss Mary C. Nash, a government employee, was at a hospital in a critical condition with two bullet wounds. The body of Inglis was found sprawled across a bed with a bullet wound in the head.

MORE FLOGGINGS BY GANGS IN FLORIDA

Jacksonville Police Have a List of Nineteen.

Jacksonville, Fla.—With three additional reports of floggings, authorities pushed their search for members of a whipping band reported to have beaten at least 19 persons here recently.

Officers said they believed the floggers are members of one gang, "self-identified guardians of the public morals."

To date the records in the police department and the sheriff's office showed 19 persons had fallen victim to the lash, including five white women.

One of the men told the police he was beaten so badly he had to lie on his face for a week. He said the mob informed him he was not taking proper care of his family. That was last June, he said, and he had been out of a job for months before and ever since.

Meanwhile the Duval grand jury has been called into special session to investigate the lawlessness. Five men have been arrested, and were identified, police said, by Mrs. Sallie Geringer and her twenty-year-old daughter, Ola Bell Gilstrap.

These women told the police they were forced from their home, taken six miles into the country, and flogged with a leather strap by eight white men. The mob, they said, accused them of selling whisky.

The police have withheld the names of other victims on the ground that it might hinder their investigation to make names and details public.

A paid advertisement appearing in a newspaper over the signature of George J. Garcia, grand dragon of the Ku-Klux Klan, said that organization was "in no way responsible for the recent epidemic of whippings or floggings that have occurred in this vicinity." The advertisement pledged the Klan's co-operation with authorities in arresting those responsible.

Thirty-two Moros Killed in the Philippines

Jolo, P. I.—Deaths of thirty-two Moros, including eight women and six children, in recent attacks on the Sulu outlaws by the Philippine constabulary, were revealed here when fighting was suspended for two days to permit officers to bury the dead natives.

The women and children were killed because they refused to leave their men despite parleys in which officials negotiated for the removal of non-combatants before attacking the Josiah Bartlett was a signer of the Declaration of Independence. His descendants were owners of New England mills. But the mills of the Bartletts found out one member of the family who was different. His name was Edward A. Bartlett VI, and he was not interested in spinning, although he was willing to toil. Changing his name to Michael Bartlett, he became an actor and a singer. Old Josiah Bartlett might not have thought so much of that. In his day, actors were not objects of especially high regard. But the boy did well. Recently he succeeded Georges Metaxa, the Hungarian, in the lead of a Broadway musical show. But they tell me that a Broadway musical show is not the height of Michael Bartlett's ambition. He once toured Italy with an opera company and has been taking vocal culture ever since. Some day he plans to become a grand opera star.

This has been a bad year for vice presidents and office boys, many of whom have joined the ranks of the unemployed. There is a rumor that a certain suburb of New York, formerly considered wealthy, is completely filled with destitute former vice presidents of banks and corporations. Now that the tide appears to be turning, some of them may drift back to work.

At the time of the eclipse of the sun in 1925, an editor of a New York paper was living on Long Island. He figured that a certain train would get him into the city in time to see the eclipse. The train was late and the sky had begun to darken just as it entered the tunnel, leading into the Pennsylvania station. Hurrying

How It Started

By Jean Newton

"Chestnut"

A READER inquires about the origin of the saying, "That is an old chestnut," for a story that has been heard many times.

While authorities differ somewhat as to the origin of "chestnut" connoting a bewildered anecdote, it is generally accredited to an incident connected with Ervin Abbey, the painter of the famous coronation picture.

Abbey, while a member of a Philadelphia club, used to tell a story about a man who had a chestnut farm. According to his story, this farm owner never made any money out of his land, because he always gave his chestnuts away.

Abbey was extremely fond of telling this story—so fond of it that in order to have his say, he would, to disguise it, begin it differently at each retelling, exhibiting considerable ingenuity, so that his fellow clubmen at first would not recognize it.

However, before long, they would invariably get the drift of it; whereupon they would break in, exclaiming, "Chestnut!" This always stopped the indefatigable story-teller short.

Professor Discovers Aid for Winter Driving

Chicago.—The serious problem of starting motors in cold weather, when more wear and damage is done in the first few minutes of operation than in miles of driving, due to congealed oils and greases not covering metal surfaces until they are warmed up, has apparently been solved by a new type of fluid that establishes a practically indestructible lubricating film upon gears and bearings, according to A. J. Diakoff, assistant professor of mechanical engineering of the University of North Dakota, at Grand Forks.

The fluid, which contains a liquefied substance of a highly lubricative nature, is added to the regular oil and grease used in the crankcase, transmission, differential, free-wheeling and steering mechanisms, as well as to the gasoline. As this liquefied ingredient is claimed to be heat resisting by its inventor, the process of conditioning motors with it has become known as "pyrolizing," from the Greek form meaning fire oiling.

The first is made from an ordinary grocery carton of wood, about the size of a sugar box. It must have the cover with it. When turned on its side as you see it makes a very attractive house with sloping roofs. A tiny flat board nailed at the doorway for a perch is all you need to add. Of course you will paint it to make it look its best.

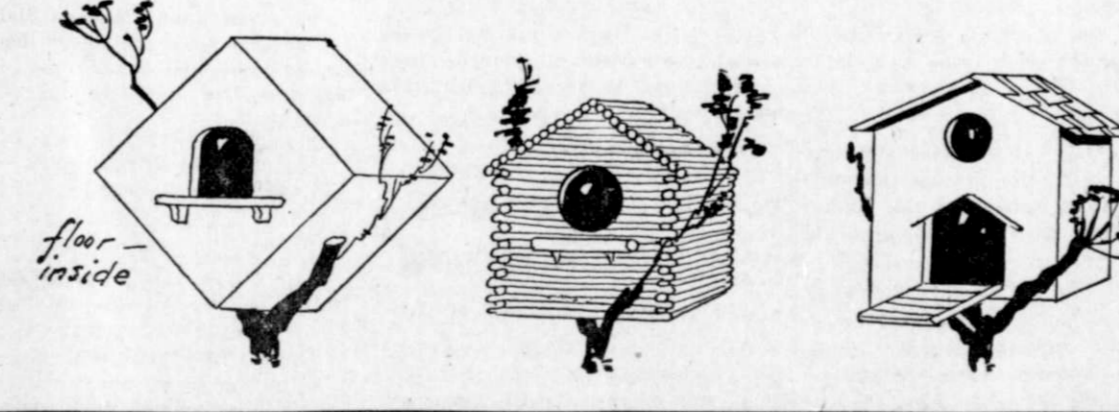

The second is made of large round twigs, sawed off the fruit trees at pruning time and cut into even lengths. Any boy knows how to join logs together to make a log house and this one is a small log

FOR YOUR NEXT PARTY

Better begin now to make yourself some peanut favors. The odd shapes of peanuts lend themselves well and easily to the making of animals to set on the table as placemarkers or favors or decorations. Toothpicks are used for legs as you have guessed. These stuck carefully through the shell and held in place by a bit of plasticine you will find very effective and quite substantial.

The peanuts can be painted to look like the animals that they have been made into and to cover up the plasticine.

Special Subscription Offer

As announced last week, and due to the fact that with this week's issue of the STATESMAN, we are celebrating our birthday and entering upon our thirty-eighth year of existence in Kewaskum, we are going to offer this paper for fifteen months for $2.00, the regular price of the STATESMAN for one year. In other words, come in now, enroll your name, pay the regular subscription rate of $2.00 and we will send you the paper for fifteen months for that sum. This practically makes the subscription rate $1.50 for the first year to new subscribers.

Furthermore, in order to be fair with the old subscribers, who, between now and January 1st, 1933, come in and pay their subscription one full year in advance, we will likewise give them three months' subscription free, making the rate, likewise to renewals, $1.50 per year. You must pay the regular rate of $2.00 and upon doing so, get the paper for fifteen months—regular year for $2.00 and the extra three months free.

Upon renewals, the subscriber, in order to benefit from this concession, must pay up all arrears and one year in advance. If you are already paid in advance, by paying an extra $2.00 between now and January 1st, 1933, you too, will be given the same offer—namely: receive an additional three months' subscription free.

Owing to the fact that old man depression has hit this country a terrific body blow, and everyone is trying to reduce expenses, this offer should appeal to the majority of the people of this vicinity. A vast number of readers feel that they cannot afford to keep the home paper at the former price. By taking advantage of this offer now, you get the STATESMAN for fifteen months for $2.00, where formerly you paid the same amount for twelve months. You cannot afford to be without your Home Paper at this amazing offer.

ADVERTISERS ALSO BENEFIT

We also desire to bring our advertising space charge within the reach of each and every one of our business houses in this village and outlying community, and have decided to reduce our advertising rates, so that all may well afford to advertise and at no great outlay of expense.

Beginning with this issue of October 14th, 1932, our foreign advertising rate for display advertising will be 25 cents per column inch, less 15% and 2% to authorized advertising agencies; 20 cents per inch to transient advertisers; and 15 cents per inch to local business firms and industries; classified ads 1 cent per word per issue; reader ads 5 cents per line per issue.

EVERY VOTERS RESPONSIBILITY

Next Tuesday, for the fortieth time, the United States will elect a president. Thirty-one men have held this high office, nine having been twice elected. Only thirty-two of the Presidential elections, however, have been decided by popular vote, in our present fashion. For that matter, there is no provision in the constitution of the United States under which the people are either requested or permitted to vote for Presidential electors.

In the early days of the republic the idea that everybody should have a vote for President never occurred to the gentlemen who conducted the Revolution and framed the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States. Those things were left to the states, and the Constitution reads that "each state shall appoint, in such manner as its Legislature may direct", the required number of Presidential electors. If any state Legislature wished to, it could pass a law repealing the privilege of its citizens to vote for Presidential electors and have them appointed by the Governor or chosen by the Legislature.

Presidents Washington, Adams and Jefferson were elected under the old provision of the constitution, changed in 1804, whereby the candidate who got the most votes was president, and the one who got the next highest number was Vice-President.

The present party convention system of nominating candidates and pledging Presidential Electors to their support is only a little over a hundred years old. In that hundred years state after state has constantly extended the privilege of voting for President until it has become such a commonplace, everyday affair that few, especially of the younger voters, realize that it is not an inherent Constitutional right, but distinctly a privilege. It is a honor conferred upon the ordinary man and woman—a honor which carries with it a corresponding responsibility. It is not a privilege to be exercised lightly. The presumption is that every voter will go to the polls with the feeling that he is discharging a solemn duty, for which he has prepared himself by intelligent thought and examination of the program and policies of the opposing parties.

We fear that few voters in these days take their responsibility as seriously as they should. We urge everyone to go to the polls next Tuesday, November 8th, and vote in the light of his or her own deepest and innermost convictions.

Out of every one hundred pounds of butter made in Wisconsin creameries, four pounds are sold to the creamery's patrons, four pounds are sold to the local trade, thirty pounds are sold to distant markets within the state, and 62 pounds are shipped to other states.

SIXTY DISASTERS IN 1932 ADD TO NATION'S DISTRESS

Red Cross Spends $2,760,000
To Help Victims of Catastrophes.

In a year of great misfortune caused by economic depression, in which the American Red Cross assumed heavy burdens of relief for the unemployed, the organization also responded to emergency needs in 60 disasters in the United States and its insular possessions.

During the twelve months ending June 30, 1932, the Red Cross gave aid to 75,000 families totalling 338,000 individuals, with expenditures of $2,760,786. These people were in distress because of drought, flood, forest fire, tornado, snowstorm, mine explosion, or other similar great disaster.

Prolonged drought caused the Red Cross to go with help to 58,000 families in the northwest. Here in 144 counties in North and South Dakota, Montana, Nebraska, Washington and Iowa the Red Cross spent $1,980,000 from its own treasury to feed and protect people through the winter and spring.

Other grave disasters were floods in southeastern states, where the organization spent $192,000 from its treasury and $68,000 local contributions to help 13,000 persons.

More than 50,000 people were homeless from floods in tributaries of the Mississippi river and again the Red Cross faced a long relief task, aiding these people. The national organization gave $168,000 and local contributions were $10,000.

The Red Cross always maintains a state of readiness to meet these sudden emergencies, and funds and other essentials to this work are supplied, in part, by the annual roll call, held each year from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving Day. Every citizen can support this worthy activity through joining as a member in the local Red Cross chapter.

GESSERT BROS. ANNOUNCE NEW PLYMOUTH SOON

Persistent rumors that a new Plymouth car shortly to be announced would be a six cylinder automobile of lower price than that of current Plymouth models, was confirmed by the Gessert Bros. of the Kewaskum Auto Service.

Although no definite date was named, Gessert Bros. stated that the new cars would make their appearance here within a few weeks.

At the request of factory officials, the local dealer is not yet announcing the specific features of this new Plymouth. However, he stated the new Plymouth Six is a full-size, full-truck car and it retains the features which distinguished its predecessor namely, Floating Power, automatic clutch, free wheeling, easy-shift silent second transmission, all-steel body, rigid-X frame and a six-cylinder engine of Chrysler Motor exclusive design and build.

"The new Plymouth Six" said Gessert Bros. is moreover, a beautiful car, skillfully designed to combine the most popular beauty and style elements found ordinarily only in cars of a much higher price range.

ENDORSEMENT FOR MONROE

(From The Hartford Times)
Washington county presents a candidate for county clerk whose qualifications for that office are so good that we feel that the voters are fortunate to have an opportunity to vote for him. This man is M. W. Monroe of the town of Erin. His neighbors affectionately call him "Mart."

Mr. Monroe has been identified with all community programs in connection with agricultural progress for the last twenty-five years in this county. Being a man of excellent judgement and virtually well informed on co-operative farm movements his advice and counsel were sought on any program of farm promotion. He is naturally diplomatic, has large powers of initiative, just the characteristics required in position of trust. He brings to every office and industry intelligence that are sure to make his work successful. His fellow-townsmen elected him for twenty years to the office of town clerk, and this experience fits him admirably for the office of county clerk, the position to which he aspires. The voters can feel assured that if elected to this office the duties pertaining thereto will be transacted accurately and efficiently. He has made a good impression wherever he went in the county and the Hartford Times feels perfectly secure in endorsing him for this important office.

Elect "Mart" Monroe county clerk and the duties will be in safe hands.

FREE OFFER

Ten days free service will be given on all telephones or extensions ordered between November 7th and 17th. There will be no installation charge.

Lots of folks around
KEWASKUM are wasting dimes to save pennies

Getting along without a telephone saves a few cents a day in telephone rent, but it usually wastes more than that in extra travel, in time, in trouble, in annoyance of neighbors.

A telephone in your name is not an expense; it's a means of saving other expense.

If the actual money value of every telephone call were placed in a separate purse as the calls are made, the purse would hold enough every month to pay the telephone bill and leave a tidy sum over.

It's not a question of "can I afford a telephone?" The question is "can I afford to do things the old way which a telephone will do faster and better and cheaper?"

24 hour service—as many calls as you like—others calling you— instant call for help in emergencies—your name in the phone book—all for the price of a cold drink or a smoke, a few cents a day. It's a bargain!

Read the offer at the top of this ad, and place your order for telephone service next week. Any employee will gladly take your order.
