The secret of making good pie crust is largely a matter of not over-mixing, declares Mrs. Luella Mortenson, of the home economics department at the University of Wisconsin. The fat particles are about the size of a navy bean, and then a flak, tender pie crust will result.

KEWASKUM HIGH WINS FIRST GAME

In the local high school gymnasium on Friday, November 18, the Kewaskum High School basketball team defeated the Sheboygan Falls basketweavers by a score of 16 to 14.

Early in the game it was evident that the score would be small for either team, since both teams were guarding closely, and due to inexperience, the offenses were not functioning smoothly.

Kewaskum was the first to score from the free throw line and added two more points from the field. This lead was soon lost, however, as Falls counted for six points and the quarter ended 6 to 3 with Falls in the lead.

The second quarter saw the local boys add six points to bring their score to 9 at the end of half, while Falls was held scoreless. The score at all time, Kewaskum 9, Falls 6. Well into the second half Kewaskum held a 14 to 9 advantage, but carelessness saw three of these advantage points disappear. In the remaining minutes both teams counted but once. The final score, Kewaskum 16, Falls 14.

For the local team Marx was a standout on offense garnering a major part of his team's points.

Much credit is due the other members of the squad who saw action, namely: Albert Hron, Fred Klein, Harold Claus, Joseph Miller and Harold Smith.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MEETS

A very interesting meeting of the local Chamber of Commerce was held in the rooms above the former Farmer & Merchants Bank building last Monday evening with a very good attendance.

One of the important questions that was brought up was that of the closing of the Creamery Street railroad crossing, now known as First Street. After considerable discussion the contention of the meeting was that said crossing should be kept open, and that these contentions be conveyed to the village board, who will make the final decision. The closing of the crossing has been requested and urged by the officials of the Chicago & Northwestern railway Company.

At the meeting a petition was started appealing to the railroad company to have the 5:55 p.m. northbound passenger train a flag stop at Kewaskum. It now passes through the village without stopping, and very often at a high rate of speed. It was this train that last spring struck an automobile at the Creamery Crossing and instantly killed three of Kewaskum's young boys. If the train would stop at the station, no such accident could again occur. The same petition also asks that the northbound passenger train due here at about 9:30 o'clock every evening, instead of being a flag stop to let off passengers from Milwaukee or points south of Milwaukee to make same a regular stop. The committee in charge is now at work circulating the petition among the citizens. Let every one sign it.

The committee appointed at a recent meeting to investigate the possibilities of a skating rink reported favorably, stating that such a rink could be located on the Herbert Backhaus property, just north of John Tiss' residence. As this is a village proposition the question was referred to the Village Board with a favorable recommendation.

The Community Christmas Tree this year will be sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, a committee consisting of Prin. F. E. Skalsky, E. H. Rosenheimer, Edw. E. Miller, Myron Perschbacher, Walter Schneider and Herman Belger, was appointed by President Arthur Koch to be presented shortly before Christmas.

SOCIAL GATHERING A GREAT SUCCESS

The social gathering held in the basement of the Peace Evangelical church last Thursday evening was a social success and was attended by a large representation of the members of the congregation.

The opening consisted of a short talk by Rev. Richard M. A. Gadow, the pastor, which was followed by a short program by the children of the Sunday school. Mrs. Augusta Clark, and the male quartette, consisting of Rev. Gadow, Clifford Rose, Mark Dav. Rosenheimer and Fred H. Buss, rendered several vocal selections. Principal E. E. Skalsky of the local High School was the principal speaker. His talk was very interesting and well received by all present. After the program games were played by both old and young. Before the gathering adjourned all indulged in a basket lunch, with coffee being served by the Ladies Aid Society. The affair was such a social success that it was unanimously voted to hold such gatherings every month.

BASKET BALL SPONSORED BY ATHLETIC CLUB

City Basketball activities this year will be sponsored by the Kewaskum Athletic Club instead of a separate organization as during previous years. A committee consisting of Carl Schaefer, John Muckerheide and Norbert Becker will have complete charge of the teams affairs. Adolph L. Rosenheimer Jr., has been chosen manager and is now arranging a schedule of games for the season.

Active work of practicing was commenced under the leadership of Bert Elliott, who will again be the coach. Mr. Elliott needs no introduction to the local fans. He is a high rated basketball player, and has the reputation of being one of the stars in this particular sport of the state. His knowledge of the game is so far reached that if those who are going to play under his coaching will take heed, Kewaskum should have a very strong lineup.

In the first practice held last week fifteen candidates responded to the call. Coach Elliott has as yet not made his choice for the first string team and with the material he has to choose from, he will make no decision until he is fully satisfied that the men he picks are well qualified.

It is expected that two games a week will be played, one on the home floor and the other out of town.

EUROPE ASKS CUT IN ITS WAR DEBTS

Hoover Invites Roosevelt to Confer on Problem.

Washington.—Great Britain and France, in nearly identical notes, have asked the government of the United States to consent to postponement of the war debt installments due in December and to a readjustment of the debts, Belgium and the other small debtor nations have made similar requests. The concerted drive is based on the Lausanne pact which stipulated the cancellation of the German reparations provided the United States would take suitable action.

These requests having been transmitted to President Hoover while he was returning to Washington from California, he immediately notified President-Elect Roosevelt and invited him to a conference on the subject at the White House asking him to bring with him the Democratic leaders of congress. Governor Roosevelt, not willing to shoulder responsibilities in advance of his inauguration, accepted the invitation "in principle" only, asking that the conference be "informal and personal" and reminding the President that the question was one for the present administration to handle.

The sentiment among the senators and representatives now here is so strong against the action asked by the European nations that it is considered certain the scheme is doomed to failure so far as the short session of congress is concerned. Consequently the debtors nations probably will have to pay the December 15 installments or default. Great Britain is almost sure to pay, having already arranged for the necessary credits in New York. It may be President Hoover will merely recommend to congress another moratorium of one year, which would solve the problem along into the Roosevelt administration.

By Democratic leaders Governor Roosevelt is represented as opposed to any reduction of the debts, which, it is pointed out, constitute only 3 or 4 per cent of the budgets of the debtors. Through an economic conference freeing trade channels of tariff barriers and exchange restrictions he would make it possible for the debtors to pay more easily.

Dispatches from London said the best opinion there was that Mr. Hoover may be thinking of bribing Europe to disarm by forgiving a part of the debt on stringent conditions of arms limitation. If this is so, Britain will be willing to do a small share, at any rate. Her disarmament plan was laid before the Geneva conference by Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon, and it proposed drastic cuts in armament, especially in aircraft.

Madison—Frank Lloyd Wright, famous architect, was under the protection of armed guards at his estate near Spring Green, following the receipt of a blackmail note demanding $5,000. The note threatened that Wright would be kidnapped and his ears cut off unless the money was forthcoming.

Janesville—Henry Vance, Beloit Negro, arrested Nov. 5 while carrying a crowbar along the railroad tracks shortly before President Hoover's special train passed through here, admitted to authorities that he planned to remove a number of spikes from the right of way and then notify police in order of earning a reward.

Medford—A foreclosure sale of the farm of Emil Gietler was halted at the court house here by protests of a crowd of about 500 farmers. The land, consisting of two parcels of forty acres each, were bid in for $2,782.55, but the mortgage holders agreed to allow Gietler to live on the farm until next April, with the privilege of buying it back at the sale price.

Cedarburg—Two armed men held up the Citizens' bank at Germantown and got away with about $1,500 after carrying Cashier B. W. Bellin and Rene Cardinal, a bond salesman, a short distance out of the village in their car. Albert E. Bruss, president, whose 12-year-old adopted daughter recently ran away with $1,000 of the bank's money, was not present during the holdup.

Madison—Edward R. Branigan, Beloit councilman whose pardon application from a six months jail sentence is pending before the governor, remains at liberty under a respite of several weeks. The Wisconsin supreme court in October affirmed the sentence imposed on Branigan on a charge of criminally libeling Judge George Grinn of Rock county circuit court and later accepted a motion for re-hearing.

Milwaukee—Wort and malt syrup provided the most revenue for the federal government from Wisconsin under the new tax law which became effective July 1, A. H. Wilkinson, collector of internal revenue, reports. Of $1,250,000 collected in the state from July 1 to October 31, the wort and malt syrup tax yielded $416,000. Other taxes were collected as follows: Deposit boxes, bank checks, $250,000; electrical energy, $137,000; long distance telephone calls, $50,000; automobile tires and tubes, $71,000; automobiles and parts, $90,000; candy, $16,000; admissions, $47,000; club dues, $36,000; soft drinks, $50,000.

Madison—County boards throughout Wisconsin are confronted at their annual sessions with insistent demands for reductions in governmental expenditures to make possible lower taxes. In Monroe county, citizens have petitioned for a 20 per cent cut in salaries of county offices and in Racine county reduction of supervisors' pay from $5 to $4 per day is asked. Highway expenditures seem due for heavy cuts in many localities. The Barron county board contemplates omitting the highway appropriation altogether, with the idea of letting gasoline tax revenues carry the department through 1933. Dunn county may also slash highway funds from $42,000 to $18,000.

Milwaukee—The combined city and county tax rate for Milwaukeeans in 1932 is to be $32.93 for each $1,000 of assessed valuation, which is 63.4 cents below last year's rate. The 1933 county budget is $21,300,554, which includes $9,754,888 for outdoor relief and pensions.

Milwaukee—Federal prohibition officers were active in Wisconsin during October, making arrests in 145 cases. They raided 62 stills and breweries and seized 24 automobiles used in the rum traffic that month.

Sturgeon Bay—Floyd Jacobs, 18, who escaped from the Door county jail in September and made his getaway by swimming the Sturgeon bay ship canal, has been returned here to complete his sentence on a charge of robbery. He was apprehended in Milwaukee after returning to that city from Texas.

Waukesha—Robert G. Morley, 61, a prominent resident of this county and an early advocate of scientific farming, was killed by an auto while walking on Highway 59 near here.

Legion Officials Plan Relief During Winter

Indianapolis, Ind.—Aid for disabled and needy veterans, co-operating with existing agencies, is the principal program of the American Legion posts this winter, national and state officers decided at a meeting at national headquarters here. Louis A. Johnson, national commander, said the Legion would not equivocate but would go "squarely down the line" for prohibition repeal and payment of bonus as favored at the national convention in Portland, Ore., last summer.

Bowman Elder and Remster Bingham, both of Indianapolis, were re-elected national treasurer and national judge advocate. Frank E. Samuel, as national adjutant, and Eben Putnam of Massachusetts, national historian, were re-elected.

Co-operation of the Forty and Eight in caring for disabled and unemployed veterans and their families was pledged by John A. Elden of Cleveland.

Turner Makes Fastest Coast to Coast Flight

Burbank, Calif.—Breaking the transcontinental east-west speed record by two hours and seventeen minutes, Roosevelt Turner set his airplane down at the United States airport at 5:15 p. m. Pacific standard time, 12 hours and 23 minutes out of New York.

The previous New York-Los Angeles speed record of 14 hours 50 minutes was set by Frank Hawks on August 6, 1930.

Turner said he averaged 199.2 miles an hour against strong headwinds the entire distance.

FINDS BOTH HOUSES HAVE WET MAJORITY

Washington.—Modification of the prohibition laws at the short session of congress was predicted by the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform on the basis of a poll of the membership of the lame duck session.

The count, according to Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, chairman of the women's wet organization, indicated a wet strength of 55 votes in the senate and 265 votes in the house in the short session. Forty-nine votes constitute a majority in the senate and 218 is a majority in the house.

Results of the poll substantiated in actual figures the assertions made by wet congressional leaders that wet gains in both houses have virtually insured passage of lower legislation at the lame duck session—possibly before Christmas. From various sections of the country and from their offices in Washington wet leaders of both houses have urged modification at the short session.

At the same time evidence began to pile up that the radical diehard dries in congress will fight to the last ditch to prevent passage of beer or repeal legislation at this session.

Under the leadership of Senator William E. Borah (Rep., Idaho), the prohibition forces are planning an attempt to block passage of wet legislation by a senate filibuster.

Backed by the tremendous blow struck at prohibition on election and by the urgent need for new revenue, the leaders of the wet forces are certain that enough votes will rally to their support to defeat any such tactics on the part of the dries.

Noted Wisconsin Lawyer and Banker is Dead

Oshkosh, Wis.—Death brought to a close the long and active career of Moses Hooper, one of the most remarkable men in Wisconsin. He died in his ninety-seventh year, reputed the oldest national bank director in the United States and regarded as dean of the American bar association.

Although he had not been actively engaged in the practice of law during the last two years, he appeared before the United States Supreme court as recently as 1927 when he was ninety-three and continued to practice until he was ninety-five. He became a stockholder and director in the First National bank 64 years ago and continued in that capacity until his death.

Colorado River Turned Into Diversion Tunnel

Boulder City, Nev.—The muddy waters of the mighty Colorado river were turned through a hole in one of its mile high canyon walls—a man-made hole burrowed in one year to remove the river from the bed it has been carving deeper, year by year, for ages.

The diversion of the river is the first step in the $165,000,000 project to harness it definitely, through the construction of the Hoover dam, to work for the good of man.

Big Fire in Fur Factory

U. S. LANDLORD TO CANAL ZONE BARS

Startling Facts Laid Before Shannon Committee.

Chicago.—A contrast on prohibition—Uncle Sam spending vast sums on enforcement in the United States and serving as landlord for night clubs and speakeasies and for a full line of night life activities, wine, women and song, in the Panama Canal Zone—was portrayed here by witnesses before the Shannon congressional committee which is investigating government competition with private enterprise.

Roy C. Jones of Kansas City, a radio station manager who spent three years on the isthmus, brought members of the committee up in their seats by declaring that barrooms and a red light district, legalized by the Panama government, are operated on land owned by the United States government.

"The Panama Railroad company, owned and operated by the United States," he said, "owns 90 per cent of the land in the city of Colon. This city is controlled by the Republic of Panama. The Panama Railroad company rents this land to individuals and concerns, refusing to sell or turn over its rights to Panama. In renting this land the Panama railroad or United States government has no jurisdiction over the class of building or to what use it is put.

"Consequently on United States government land there are countless bars and disorderly houses and cheap hotels of the lowest class.

"All these activities are legalized by the Panama government, but take place on land owned by the United States through the Panama Railroad company."

The portrayal of the government as landlord for the underworld came as the climax to testimony from several witnesses to the effect that cut-throat rivalry by the government is driving private taxpaying business men to the wall on the isthmus. With club-houses, soda fountains, lunchrooms, department stores, they declared, the federal government, with no overhead and no taxes to pay, is underselling private concerns.

Abolition of the federal farm board as a "tragic government experiment in agriculture" may be recommended by the Shannon committee in its report to the "lame duck" session of congress which meets next month.

This was indicated by members of the committee after hearing witnesses who dwelt on the activities of the farm board and its subsidiaries as an effort to establish a governmental dictatorship in foodstuffs. The board was declared to have established by coercion a "reign of terror" among many co-operatives and to have driven on the rocks established middlemen agencies and growers, while upwards of half a billion dollars of tax money has been squandered in a "rice fixing gamble" which has seen prices slump to record lows.

After she sat down at the piano and played several Chopin themes all difficulties were quickly straightened out. She was admitted.

Fable of the Corrupting Influences

By GEORGE ADE

ONCE there was a tall-browed Sociologist, a Statistial Shark and a card-index Hound who wanted to find out why so many Mortals wander from the Straight and Narrow and run afoul of the Law. Instead of investigating the Miracle of Anyone complying with All of the 8,000 harsh restrictive Measures passed by wide ranging Legislators during the last Ten Years, he elected to prepare a wise Magazine Article and point out the particular and definite Causes of Delinquency.

So he went to a jail where a lot of hardened Offenders were caged up and proceeded to quiz them and get their Life Histories and find out why they had turned out to be Tough Nuts instead of respected Rotarians.

In the first Call he came across a rather good-looking Young Chap who wore a Blue Sweater and was pulling at a loud-smelling Fag and seemed rather bored, not to say annoyed, to find himself under such unpleasant Duress.

"What have they got on you?" asked the Scientific Researcher.

"They say I'm a Stick-Up Guy and Hijacker, but I've been Framed," was the courteous Reply. "Whenever anything rough is pulled the Bulls have to hang it on to some Patsy with a Record. I happened to come along and they pitched me."

"Humble Beginnings."

"I should like to inquire as to the Circumstances leading up to your present unhappy Predicament," said the Investigator. "Tell me something about your Environment during the Formative Period."

"I came on an Orphan that was hard-boiled," replied the Juvenile Crook. "The Old Man was a Bar Fly and all the Training I ever got from him was to keep my Guard up and duck Right Hand Swings. Mother's Conception of keeping House was to put something on the Stove and let it boil for Hours and Hours while she read Love Stories to be continued in our Next. As you know, a Woman who is keeping Track of a dozen Serials dealing with the Divine Passion and the Eternal Triangle, cannot spare any Time for her Family. We lived in a Dump back of the Switch Yards. I did not see a Tree until I was Eight but I owned a pair of trained Dice when I was Six. No one ever gave me any Moral Guidance.

"My first definite Ambition was to kill a Copper. The Drag Net Got me while I was in Grammar School and I learned in the Police Court that I was a Gangster. Since then I have been arrested every time I spit. Now I'm hooked for a Stretch just because I went out for an Automobile Ride with some Baddies who had saved-off Shotgun in the bottom of the Car, to be used in case they were interfered with."

"Exactly as I surmised," said the Visitor. "You are the Innocent Victim of Heredity and Evil Influences. The only Reason our Malefactors want to Malfeas is that they have been denied access to the ethical Refinements of Modern Civilization."

The next Inmate to claim the Attention of the Seeker after Truth needed only a Clean Shave and a White Tie to make him look like the Valedictorian at a first-rate Theological Seminary. It seems that he had been yanked up for Swindling, Forging and Kiting Checks. He looked as honest as Henry Ford and his Blue Eye was very candid and the Investigator knew that here was a Bird who would have gone Straight if he had been given a Chance.

"The Big Reason."

"Was your Main Parent a Soak or did he just go on a Bat once in a While?" asked the Student of Criminology.

"Father never put his Nose into anything harder than Butter-milk," was the Reply. "He had Side-Whiskers hanging straight down, passed the Contribution Basket and is said to have been the first Reformer to hit upon that Happy Expedient known as the Eighteenth Amendment."

"Then we must hang it all on your mother. To what kind of Frivolity was she addicted that she should have failed to keep Tab on the offspring?" "You are not guessing well today. The dear old Mater lectured to Clubs on the Training of Youth. She came out of Harvard for over a Century. She and Dad were the intellectual Arc Lamps of the Town in which I was coached for the Ministry. They had me tutored so that I would not come in contact with the Foreign Spawn in the Public Schools. I was the Prize Exhibit of our Sunday School and sat in the Lap of every Prominent Lady in our State. It took them two Years to pick out a College good enough for me. I could show

"If you won't let it go any further, I will put you Hep," said the Prisoner. "I needed the Money."

When the Investigator tackled the next Case he was somewhat dazed, imagine his Surprise when the Warden told him that the Maiden with the pensive Smile, the neat but elegant Toggery and the simple Personality of a Quaker Milkmaid had done nothing whatever but bring out a large blue Cannon and proceed to bump off Friend Husband.

By the Beautiful Sea.

The Researcher told her that his Heart was bleeding because he could see that she never should have been incarcerated.

"Possibly you had to shoot because he was brutal to the Children?" suggested the Visitor.

"One cannot have Children without giving up One's Afternoons," was the Reply. "Besides, we lived in an Apartment."

"Did he ever drag you around by the Hair of pot Black and Blue Marks on your Arms?"

"I can't be sure until I talk to my Story again. He is working on my Story and says that if we get an emotional Jury of confirmed Bachelors I will be acquitted on the First Ballot. They had no Business locking me up at all. This Gink that I was hooked up with wore striped shirts and had a fierce line of Low Comedy and I just had to kill him."

"Probably you acquired a Streak of Lawlessness because you were permitted to run wild during your Girlhood," suggested the Psycho-Analyst.

"Say, I am and always have been a Perfect Lady. I spent four years in a Finishing School and if you don't think I am in the Class for Poise, Politeness and Pronunciation, come over to the Criminal Court next week and watch me on the Witness Stand. I will make a Humming Bird seem loud and uncouth."

The Investigator retired to a Corner and looked over his Notes and began to feel dizzy in the Head. He didn't like to quit cold on any of his beautiful Theories so he approached another Cell and accosted a middle-aged Prisoner of serious Mien and noble Countenance.

"How come?" asked the Expert.

"They seem to be almost sure that I am guilty of Bigamy," was the Reply. "Up to Date they have found Emma, Louisa, and Marcella. I am sitting here and hoping that Luella, Genevieve, Therese and Natalie do not happen to see my picture in the Paper. If too many show up the Case will begin to look dark."

"I suppose you went off your Bean about Wimmen because you were such a licentious Rake in your early Manhood?"

"From 1892 to 1917 I was Keeper of a Light-House which rose abruptly from the Sea about six miles from the Mainland," replied the Prisoner. "During all these Years I read Books sent to me by pious Relatives. So you see, I am not to Blame."

The Magazine Writer changed his Plans and instead of doing a Piece which accounted for increased Lawlessness he prepared an Article, with Sketches, showing how Any One who has a File and a Pair of Pliers can make his own Radio Set.

Early Egyptian Rulers

The Hyksos were, according to the Egyptian annals, a conquering nomadic race from the East, who, under Salatis, their first king, took Memphis and rendered the whole of Egypt tributary. Their name probably means foreign kings, the explanation shepherd kings, being of later origin. The date of their invasion and conquest was about 1700 B. C. The seat of their rule was the strongly garrisoned fortress of Avaris, on the northeast border of the Delta. They followed Egyptian customs, and their six monarchs took Egyptian names. It seems likely also that a great part of Syria was subject to them. The only detailed account of them by any ancient writer is an unreliable passage of a lost work of Manetho, cited by Josephus in his rejoinder to Apion.

Love

The greatest thing in the world. It is the cornerstone of happiness. Loyalty goes with it. It enfolds the cradle with protecting arms; it shelters the old; it gives courage and strength to the breadwinner; and enables the tired mother to sing. The love from mother's heart is wonderful. It reaches out to her offspring without limit. It conveys its objection in innocence and endures to the end. The binding between mother and child is the source of love. It gives perfection to human endeavor, because we like that which we love.—Exchange.

Future Houses May Be Warmed by Wall Paper

A new kind of wall paper which warms the rooms in which it is used has passed successfully through a series of tests. It was fitted to the cell-ings of some of the cabins in the Canadian Pacific railway's liner Duchess of Richmond. Occupiers of the cabins found that in the coldest weather they were able to keep them at a pleasant temperature.

The wall or ceiling covering, which is a British invention, is constructed rather on the lines of the suits worn by airmen in very cold weather or

Child Training

"The shilly-shally parent who side-steps every responsibility or decision is just about as bad as the heavy parent who decides everything for every one. But save your decisive, snappy 'Yes, you must! No, I forbid!' for something worth the backing of your whole forceful personality," advises Eleanor Hubbard Garst in an attempt to solve some of the trying problems of child training, in Hygeia Magazine.

Checkers Old Pastime

The game of draughts or checkers is said to be of the greatest antiquity. Pieces of checker boards and men have been found in tombs of Egyptian rulers of a day not later than 1000 B. C. Some of these are at present preserved in the British museum. Homer in his "Odyssey" speaks about this game being played by the suitors of Penelope.

Novel Furs Styled in Novel Ways

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FUR fashions are holding the center of the stage. The program they are presenting is not only spectacular, but it is interesting because it makes use of novel peltry in novel ways. The fact that designers are showing so venturesome a spirit to do and to dare makes fur artistry almost breathtaking this season in its exploitation of the unusual.

This flair for clever fur arrangements is evidenced in the models pictured. The very good looking costume to the left emphasizes the entry of panther skin in the list of fashionable new furs. The younger set adore this flattering fur. The rich green of the cloth which fashions this coat contrasts the tawny tones in the fur most effectively.

Speaking of spotted furs, an outstanding play is being made in this direction, smart Parisiennes wearing not only dresses and coats trimmed in either panther, leopard or ocelot, but touches discreetly on their hats as well as being made up in such accessories as belts and pocketbooks. A leading couturier goes so far as to create a stunning evening gown of white satin bordering the decollete neckline with a band of leopard.

In trimming the black wool coat shown to the right in the picture the designer does that which is being repeatedly done this season—works two kinds of fur together. In this instance black astrakhan and snowy ermine make a striking combination, thus accenting the black-and-white theme which is as popular as it ever was, and perhaps even more so. The casual grace of the ermine scarf-and intrigues the eye at a glance. The high-standing astrakhan collar is topped with a jaunty beret which has a drape of matching fur encircling its crown. The placing of myriads of little cloth ruffles row and row from above the elbow to the wristline is characteristic of the trend to make sleeves an outstanding feature of every costume. Incidentally we might mention that the dress underneath this modish coat is made of printed satin, the same being a fashion highlight in the realm of fabrics this season.

In describing the charming muff and capulet set which centers this attractive trio there is not much needed to be said as it speaks volumes for itself in the way of chic. You may vision it as of gray curly lamb of highest grade, if you wish, contrasting velvety brown cloth for brown with gray as a featured combination. Metal buttons, of course, and a metal belt, for metal accessories are fashion's boast at present.

IF YOU CROCHET

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Victorian charm is the keynote of this winter's fashion. One of the ideas which prevailed in those days of yore was that of "crochet edgings." Well, it's crochet edging which trims this dainty little bedjacket. All you need is a ball (150 yards) of mercerized cotton, a number eight croch hook and three-fourths of a yard of that crepe, for it is made of two pieces of silk tacked together at the shoulders and sides. Cut the silk in two straight pieces (19½ by 27 inches) with the selvages running the long way. These can be used at the bottom and so avoid hems. On the other three edges of both pieces baste hems as narrow as possible. The first row of crochet will hold them in place. Crochet directions are available at most any fancywork department where you buy the crocheted cotton. The quaint little clerical bib is also crocheted of mercerized cotton, in an open mesh pattern with tightly crocheted border. It is simply and quickly made, and now that young girls are wearing uncollared and similar neckpieces a collar crocheted as here illustrated will add chic to the silk or woolen costume.

CORDED WEAVING LEADS IN FAVOR

There is a distinct corduroy influence in the winter's fashions. Wool, silk, velvet and mixtures all show a tendency to corded weaving.

It is not confined only to clothes for sports wear, as formerly, but appears in clothes of all varieties. Many of the newest evening dresses are of a corded velvet which approaches corduroy in weave, but is sheer in texture. Corded woens, launched in Paris last season, are already established as classic materials. They are favorites for the sturdy type of coat or suit which is destined for wear in difficult weather.

Dressmakers like the possibilities they offer in design, for a slight change in the direction of the cords, by means of adroit cutting, can work a whole design into a costume without the addition of any ornament.

Change Hairdressing to Follow Dress Style

Changes in dress styles, and especially those that have taken place this season, demand a decided change in hairdressing.

An inferiority complex of the worst sort is lying in wait for the woman who attempts to wear those charming shallow-crowned hats that leave almost the entire back of the head bare, unless she speeds with winged feet to an authority on hairdressing, one well-schooled and of long experience in making the hair conform to fashion and beauty.

To enhance the charm of a woman's hair and face, and to blend them with her clothes into a picture of beauty, requires unusual talent—a sculptor's knowledge of plastic form and a painter's feeling for delicate colors.

Waffle Weave Is Latest for Street and Sports

In street and sports dresses the material is the new thing. Silk crepes again resemble rough woollens. This season one new material is known as "triple sheer," being three times the thickness of georgette crepe. The waffle weave, modeled after that well-known breakfast dish, is new and smart.

Light and Dark

Strong contrasts of light and dark are inevitably effective—light collars on dark dresses, dark collars on light dresses; dark jackets with white skirts; white coats with dark dresses.

What Women Want to Know About Fashions

By all means wear a fur-trimmed suit. It is dressy and smart.

Bows and buckles of Edwardian inspiration trim the newest pumps.

Done to a crisp are the ruffles accenting many of the new frocks. Of course, you'll be wearing velvet turbans for formal wear this year.

A sure prophecy is the success that will come to the feather turban this winter.

Striped velvets are here for evening wear.

Generally speaking, skirts are growing narrower, and straighter.

Colored hair is being worn in Paris. Actresses are using bouques that harmonizes with their evening frocks.

A suit of black diagonal wool with a gay plaid scarf to match its blouse is one of the smart things shown for young girls.

LIFE'S LITTLE JESTS

STRATEGY

Customs Inspector—Hold on, young lady, what have you to declare?

Sweetness—Oh, Mr. Inspector, I declare you are handsomer than any man I saw during my two months' stay abroad.

Inspector—Er—ah—hurry up, madam; move along and give some one else a chance.—Border Cities Star.

GOOD PRACTICE

"Where did Bones get his stroke?"
"Beating rugs."

The Error

The owner of the cheap watch brought it into the jeweler's shop to see what could be done to it.

"The mistake I made was in dropping it," he explained.

The jeweler shook his head sadly as he picked up the little heap of wheels and screws.

"Well, I don't suppose you could help that," he said, "but the mistake you made was in picking it up again."

Unnecessary Fuss

"Tommy," said his mother, "be sure to come in early this afternoon to get your bath before going to the Browns to supper."

"But mother," he protested, "I don't need a bath for that. They said it was to be most informal."—Boston Transcript.

The Reason

Wife—Why, Fred, you've got one hand browner than the other.

Husband (getting suntanned while on holiday with large family)—Can you wonder at it, Alice? I've always got one hand in my pocket.—London Humorist.

Perhaps

The little boy was seeing the sea for the first time. He gazed at it earnestly for a while and then, turning to his mother, remarked gravely:
"I specs it's the fishes that make it wobble."—Pearson's.

Divet Birds

"Terrible lot of birds on this course, caddie."
"Yes, they're following us up for the worms, sir."—Cape Argus.

Making Sure

"I wish to marry your daughter."
"Can you support a family?"
"Yes."
"But there are eight of us!"—All for Alla (Stockholm).

AGREEABLE

Beggar—Beg pardon, sir, but I've er—er—seen better days, sir.

Mr. Krusty—So have I—lots of 'em. This is the worst weather I've struck in five years.

Sedentary Exercise

Bookkeeper—I need a vacation, sir. I don't get much exercise keeping books.

Scotch Employer—Mon, are ye no rummup and doon the columns all day?—Vancouver Province.

Daniel Preferred

"Why did you give up the stage after appearing in the old Roman play?"
"The audience wanted me to be thrown to them instead of to the lions."—Smith's Weekly, Sydney.

Same Result

"My father is mayor," bragged the small boy, "and when he rides in a parade the motor cops go ahead and he doesn't have to pay any attention to traffic rules."
"That's nothing," sniffed his friend. "My father is a truck driver."

Constant Reminder

"Did you ever hear anything of that money you lent your neighbor?"
"Rather! He bought a phonograph with it."—Nebelspalter (Zurich).

Enough Is Enough

She—I don't think much of men's love. They all want to marry women with money.

He—You are unjust—they would be satisfied with money without the woman.—Flegelberg, Blaetter, Munich.

Disappointed

Vicar (at choir outing)—Well, Tom, my now we're at sea, what do you think of it?
Tommy (gloomily)—Not much. At a no wrecks.—Vancouver Province.

Treasure-Finder in Demand

Just back from Rhodesia, where he astonished scientists, Frederick Stone is preparing to leave London for India at the invitation of a ruler who wishes him to locate hidden treasures for him. Treasure-finding is Stone's business, and with the aid of an ordinary steel clock spring he is said to locate it every time. In a test in Rhodesia the directors of the geological survey department showed him six sacks of sand, three of which contained gold. Stone quickly picked out those containing the metal, then discovered gold in a pit the company thought bare.

CATARRH

Can Now Be Washed Away

Get a little nasal douche and an economical bottle of SINASIPTEC from your druggist and in a few minutes your eyes, a wash away every trace of matter caused by nasal catarrh. It is a simple, safe, and in warm water and soon all stiffness disappears, catarrh pressure is gone and your nose, head and throat feel mysteriously clear. Fear this out. SINASIPTEC is pronounced Sina-sip-tec.

Putting Sense into It

When Thomas Hudson (1701-1770), famous British portrait painter, completed a picture of a Miss Irons, society girl, the latter returned it to him with complaint that it did not do her justice. She suggested that he pretty up the face. Several months later Miss Irons received the portrait back, this time with the face of Thomas Mudze, educator, painted over her own and a polite note saying that was the only way the author could "put some sense into her head somewhere." But Hudson could afford it; he was already a success.

Excellent Reason

"How could you let that young Frenchman kiss you?"
"Well, he asked me in French, and I wanted to show him I understood."

No family album goes back to par-taltees.

Next to having money is knowing how to keep it.

Her Only Chance
"Did you marry the man of your choice?" asked the inquisitive one. "No," sighed the other one, "it was Hobson's choice."

Flying Into a Temper
Touchy... irritable! Everything upsets her. She needs Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to soothe her nerves and build up her health by its tonic action.

The Confirmed Student
"When our son has completed his studies, what will he be?"
"A very old man."

BACK TO WORK

The tumult and the shouting have died. The speeches have all been made. The votes have been counted.

The campaign is history, and it's time to go back to work.

The great problems of today are not political problems. They are economic, financial, social. They are completely non-partisan. All any President can do to solve them is to give his very best efforts, according to his lights, to assist the people with the power of government. Legislation will be passed, official suggestions will be offered, no matter how good they are, they will be worthless unless the people stand shoulder to shoulder and work for their own salvation.

Almost all observers agree that the bottom of depression has been touched. The work of restoration has begun. It will be a long, arduous work, requiring the utmost each of us can give. Partisanship must be forgotten. Labels must be forgotten. Never in the history of the country has non-political leadership, and non-political thought, been so essential to the future.

So -- back to work.

Physic the bladder as you would the bowels. Drive out impurities and excessive acids that cause irritation burning and frequent desire. Get a 25c test box of BU-KETS, the bladder physic, from any drug store. After four days if you are not relieved of getting up nights go back and get your money. BU-KETS, containing such leaves, juniper oil, etc., acts pleasantly and effectively on the bladder similar to castor oil on the bowels. If you are bothered with backache, or leg pains caused from bladder disorders you are bound to feel better after this cleansing and you get your regular sleep. Otto B. Graf says BU-KETS is a best seller.

Experiments with barn ventilation shows that cows kept in properly ventilated barns yield more milk and suffer less from disease than cows kept in poorly ventilated barns. Efficient barn ventilation is a good investment in production and health, authorities assert.

Battered Gray Fedora—Still In The Ring

President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt tossed his hat into the presidential ring several moons ago. It was kicked about quite a lot but it came through, battered a bit 'tis true. Now it rests secure in a safe at Albany, awaiting a jaunt to Washington. The President-elect is mighty particular about that hat... a gray fedora which came to be known throughout the land. One of his first acts on November 9th, was to place it away.

Lights of New York

An actress, who lives in an old house which has been converted into apartments, was annoyed by blasting and other construction activities in the lot next door.

People in New York think that business is picking up a bit. Taxi drivers say that the going isn't quite so hard as usual and a lumber agent tells me that he has just received his first real orders in over a year.

COURTESIES

1. Gentlemen always walk on the outside when accompanying a lady, that is, the side nearest the street. This custom originated from the days of early chivalry when there was need for protection.

2. A gentleman always precedes a lady down the aisle of a public building unless an ushers precedes them both. This custom also originated in the days of chivalry and protection was needed.

3. Gentlemen take off their hats when meeting a lady they know or when a lady with whom they are walking speaks to anyone she knows. This custom originated in the days before the custom of handshaking came into being.

4. A lady rises when an older person enters the room, just as a man does. This is a custom coming from the days when age was venerated even ahead of fame and was given always the place of distinction and honor. It is still a pretty custom today, showing graciousness, deference and respect.

5. A lady is always mindful of the comfort of her guests, keeping the conversation moving in pleasant and happy channels, seeing to their physical comfort. This is an obligation handed down through the ages to offer protection to anyone who is under one's roof, whether or not one personally likes him.

6. A gentleman does not offer to shake hands with a lady when he is introduced to her unless she first extends her hand. This custom is to permit the lady the privilege of being friendly or not as she chooses.

CITY THAT ALMOST "GOT" THE CAPITAL

Carrollsburgh's Dream of Greatness Brief.

In a rather remote and somewhat neglected part of the area now occupied by the capital city of the nation there once stood the Maryland town of Carrollsburgh. It was a Potomac river landing. Although having a superior natural situation—at the point where what is now known as the Anacostia river flows into the Potomac—the town seems never to have greatly prospered.

The Kitchen Cabinet

Seasonable Foods

A GOOD dish which will be ready to serve from the kitchen, dish and is sufficiently satisfying is the following:

Casserole Dish. Put a layer of thinly sliced potatoes, a layer of corn cut from the cob (canned corn will do), a layer of tomatoes and a layer of canned peas, season each layer, and on top place meat balls seasoned with salt, pepper and chopped onions. Bake one and one-half hours.

Liver Loaf. Take two pounds of calf's liver, chop fine, add two tablespoonsfuls of chopped parsley, two small onions also chopped. The whole amount may be put twice through the meat grinder; add one pint of milk, two beaten eggs, celery salt, salt and pepper and sprinkle with three tablespoonsfuls of flour. Make into a loaf and bake in a moderate oven until the loaf rolls in the pan.

Salmon Loaf. Remove skin and bones from one large can of salmon, add salt, pepper, paprika, two tablespoonsfuls of lemon juice, one-half cupful each of cracker crumbs and hot milk, three egg-whites beaten stiff. Mix all together with the yolks of two eggs and when well blended fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Bake in a loaf.

Eggs in Ramekins. Cook a can of tomatoes or fresh ones with one tablespoonful of flour, one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper, one small onion chopped, one teaspoonful salt. To six eggs add one cupful of grated cheese and one and one-half cupfuls of bread crumbs; add the tomato mixture in ramekins and cover with an egg to each; over the tops sprinkle grated cheese and the buttered crumbs. Bake until the eggs are set.

Rice Pudding Baked. A most tasty pudding which the family will like may be prepared and baked some time when the oven range is not too full. Take one-half cupful of rice, a quart or more of milk, brown sugar, raisins and nutmeg or cinnamon to flavor, add a little salt and put into the oven to bake slowly, stirring often at first; bake three to four hours. Serve with a hard sauce. Cream, butter, add sugar and any flavoring desired.

My Neighbor Says: DRIED apples, apricots, prunes, etc., should be soaked over night in cold water before cooking, so as to "plump" them and soften the dried tissues.

Raw ammonia will remove paint spots from a door. Be careful not to allow the ammonia to remain on too long, as it will eat the wood.

The safest way to melt chocolate is to put it into a small frying pan or saucapan over a low fire, or in the oven. If it is to be mixed with a liquid, the best way is to melt it with a little of that liquid first and stir to a cream.

New Patents Reflect Social Condition Trend Washington.—New trends in social conditions are being reflected in applications made to the patent office.

Despite a 12 per cent decrease in all the applications, there has been a noticeable increase in requests for patents on air conditioning apparatus, refrigeration, oil burners, automobiles, alloys, electric clocks and devices designed to improve railroad travel.

Excessive Taxes Cuts Down Autos in Finland Helsinki.—Finnish automobile organizations have addressed a communication to the Finnish government pointing out that the number of people using automobiles in Finland has decreased over 30 per cent in one year.

Pennsylvania Leads in Tree Planting on Farms Harrisburg, Pa.—Pennsylvania led the nation in 1931 in farm forest planting, according to the state department of forests. Of the 25,500,000 trees planted on farm forests during 1931 in the United States, Pennsylvania planted 6,000,000 trees. New York was second with 4,800,000, Ohio third with 1,743,000.

Today, states the writer in the "People," "the only basic problem that stands between earthbound man and the vast intoxicating dream of inter-stellar travel is power."

"Mankind is now tackling that problem with all the skill and knowledge of the chemist, the astronomer, the Professor Piccards and all the aviation pioneers."

Briefly Told Birds with bright plumage do not always make good pie.

According to a scientific writer in the "People": "A projectile designed to travel into inter-stellar space has to rise above the earth's atmosphere envelope and to cancel the gravitational pull. This is one of the major problems confronting the rocket experts."

"To be shot free of the earth's pull, it must be discharged at the rate of speed of about seven miles per second; that is a hundred times the speed of an airplane. But if that speed is attained at the start of the discharge, the density of the atmosphere will turn the projectile into an incandescent mass.

"Briefly, a rocket designed for such is an engine composed of four parts. Firstly, the fuel compartments, then the combustion chamber, next the payload compartment (in which the inter-stellar traveler will pilot his craft), last the rocket shell.

"The fuel problem is divided into two divisions—solid fuel such as gunpowder—and liquid fuel—a combination of hydrogen and liquid oxygen."

How It Started

"Make a Memo!" MAKE a memo of this, we are apt to say, carelessly perhaps, to the office boy or to the maid.

In either instance, the usual significance of our request is "write this down" with the added thought not ordinarily expressed thought "so I won't forget it."

It is this latter sense that we find embodied in the story of this expression.

We have the phrase from the word memorandum, which means "that which must be borne in mind" which is derived from the Latin "memoria" meaning "to remember."

Many American Women Are Adrift in Paris Paris.—The adventurous spirit which generally is associated only with the more daring of womankind, such as Amelia Earhart, is rapidly developing a distinct class of feminine gentlemen who leave America and travel about the world.

At present there are in Paris several hundred young American women who are living by their wits or existing on a small income from home. The greater part of them are American women between twenty and thirty years of age, mostly of the so-called "artistic type."

TAKES PASSENGERS ON LONG NATION-WIDE FLIGHT

Maj. James H. Doolittle, America's premier flyer, has undertaken a 9,000-mile nation-wide flight in a new transport plane filled with passengers, maintaining an average speed of 230 miles per hour throughout the tour.

The Desert's Price

SYNOPSIS

Wilson McCann, young Arizona ranchman, is called to help an old friend, Jim Yerby, with a broken leg. Julia Stark, daughter of Matthew Stark, inveterate enemy of the McCanns, is with him. Taking a note from Julia to her father, Wilson is fired on by Jasper, Julia's brother. Ann Gifford, with her young sister, Ethel, are sheep raisers, and on that account unpopular with the cattlemen. "Night riders" shoot a McCann rider, Peter McCann. Wilson's father, offers a reward for the disclosure of their identity. Wilson McCann horsewhips Jasper, he making practically no resistance. Matthew draws his son for his cowardice, and posts notice he will kill Wilson McCann on sight. Ann Gifford's tragedy is the fate of her dead sister, Nora, strayed and murdered by her lover Jasper Stark and Carl Gintner, known as a "killer," hold secret conferences. A Stark rider, Tom McArdle, is believed by the Starks to have been killed by the McCanns, but rumor links his name with that of Nora Gifford. Matthew Stark is shot and killed, from ambush. Julia finds him dead, with Wilson McCann stooping over him. She and Phil, her younger brother, both accuse McCann of the killing, despite his vehement denial. Wilson is shot from the chapparal while standing over Matthew Stark's body. Believing him dying, the Starks have him taken to their home.

To the Flying VV man Raftery put a blunt question: "What d'you want here?"

"I drapped in to see if we couldn't fix things up an' to get the correct facts. I'm hopin' the story we've heard ain't true." Tapscott replied amiably. "We've heard stories and o' course we're not lookin' for trouble, so we figured I'd better come to head-quarters an'—"

Raftery ripped out a sudden savage oath. "That lowdown mazy coyote Wils McCann would'n kill a Mart Starks this mornin', sayin' you're here for facts."

Mildly Tapscott protested. "I don't reckon Wils would waylay anyone, Nick. Who says he waylaid him? I know for a fact that Wils wasn't lookin' for trouble."

Phil's voice broke shrill and high. "Wasn't he? Well, he's found it. You go back an' tell them so that sent you."

"Meanin' he's been hurt?"

"Meanin' he's lyin' in the house here shot through an' through."

"That's bad."

"Bad for the McCanns," retorted Raftery. "I reckon you ain't worryin' none about Matt."

"His bad, too," Tapscott replied. "I was hopin' we could patch up this range war before it got too late."

"You can't," Phil interrupted, with a touch of hysteria in his boyish voice. "Not till we've got two three McCanns."

The foreman of the Flying VV ignored this. He had not come to make or receive a declaration of war. "What does Doc Sanders say about Wils?" he asked.

"Gives him a day—or maybe two," Gintner cut in triumphantly, with a raucous laugh.

Tapscott looked through the Texan without apparently seeing him. But the blank hardness of his gaze softened as he turned to Julia. He had an appeal to make and he hoped that she would back it.

"How can I go back an' tell his old dad that? It'll sure break his heart. He sets the world an' all that boy. What can we do? His old dad is out there in the mesquite waitin' for me to bring him news of his son. What am I to tell him, ma'am?"

Julia's eyes were on a sudden lit with wells of brimming tears. She thought of her own father and of how he would have felt if she had been dying in the house of an enemy. She hated the McCanns, every last one of them. They had struck at her a mortal blow from which she would never recover. All her life she would cherish revenge. But even so she could not keep a father from the son whose life was ebbing. If she did that she would always despise herself.

"Tell him he can see his boy."

"If he feels like he wants to take the chance," Gintner added with an evil sneer.

For the first time Stone spoke, in the low drawl of the Southland. "If Miss Julia says Pete McCann can come here, way I reckon I'll be all right with you an' me, Carl, won't I?"

Gintner's eyes met his reluctantly. There was something compelling in the cool steady gaze of the little man.

Her Dark Eyes Flashed Defiantly Into the Light Ones of the Cattlemen.

Something that was a menace if not a threat in the even murmur of the voice. The big Texan said no more.

Julia drew her brother aside and urged upon him impetuously her point of view. He listened, half resentful, half consenting. The youth in him, the milk of his tenderness, had not yet dried up, appreciated and shared her feeling. But he had to remember his loyalty to the dead father within.

Would it be construed as weakness for him to let Peter McCann into the house? Did his honor not rather demand that he shoot the man on sight?

The boy in him was for the moment dominant. "All right. Have it your own way. I know you will anyhow," Phil said, a little sullenly. "Tell Tapscott to have him come down."

"No, that won't do, Phil. I don't trust that Carl Gintner. We'd better go and meet him, you and I. We'll ride one on each side of him."

To this Phil assented, the three rode up to the pass and Tapscott waved his bandanna as a signal to the McCanns. There was an answering handkerchief, and presently Peter McCann and his son Lyn came out of the brush to meet them.

"Meet Miss Julia, Pete—Mr. McCann, Miss Julia. Her brother, Mr. Phil Stark—Lyn McCann."

Thus Tapscott, as self-elected master of ceremonies, by way of breaking the ice of a cold silence.

None of those named acknowledged the introduction in words or by an inclination of the head. They looked at each other with cold and bitter hatred. But as the elder McCann looked at Julia, there came a change in his face. Beneath the snaggy brows she caught a glimpse for an instant of his soul. It was there, during the beat of a pulse and was gone, a look that had amazingly softened the grim countenance. Later she was to puzzle over it and wonder at it.

"Well?" demanded Peter harshly. "Doc Sanders is lookin' after the boy," Tapscott said.

"How is Wils?"

"Pretty bad, Doc says. Shot through the lung and in the side."

Not a muscle of the old cattlemen's face twitched. "Can he be moved?"

"Not a chance. He's—a mighty sick boy, Pete."

"I'll go to him—right now."

Instantly Phil bristled. He would show McCann whether he could ride roughshod in this high-handed way to his end. "I'll have something to say about that. You'll go unarmed if you go."

There was a moment of significant silence while the eyes of the old and the young man clashed.

"Let's get this right," McCann said. "If I go, do I go as a prisoner? Or am I free to leave when I want to?"

Phil's boyish voice lifted to a high note that was almost a wail. "My father's lyin' dead down there, killed by the son you're going to see. Some day we'll wipe you whole d—d outfit off the map. But not today. If you go in now you can walk out when you've a mind to."

"How do we know you'll play fair? How do we know some of your killers won't shoot me?" Lyn asked.

"You don't." There was a flare of insolence in young Stark's scornful eyes. "We're not askin' him to come. It's his own say-so. If he's scared why he can stay away."

For the first time Julia spoke, eyes flashing, lips tremulous. "We're not murderers, like you."

"Now folks," interposed Tapscott hurriedly. "This is a mighty bad business all round. One thing's sure. We can't make it any better by that kind of talk. I'm disappointed sorry myself, Miss Julia, but I'll bet my boots they ain't the way you think they are. I know Wils McCann, you don't. That's the difference. Now I reckon we got this all fixed up. You ride along with these young people, Pete, an' we'll stick around till we hear from you. So-long."

They rode down from the pass in silence, the hearts of all three bitter with anger. But as they came into the valley the Starks fell back till McCann was almost abreast of them. They drew their ponies close to his so that it would be difficult for anybody to take a shot at him without danger of hitting one of them.

Peter understood the maneuver and smiled sardonically. There was something amusing in this solicitude to protect him. In a day or two this boy and his allies would be laying plans to shoot him at sight.

In close formation they moved to the porch and dismounted. Together they went into the house.

Julia led the way to the room where Wilson McCann lay. After stepping aside to let his father enter she left at once without a word. A Mexican woman was taking care of the sick man under instructions from Doctor Sanders.

McCann moved forward and looked down at the restless figure on the bed. The young man's face was flushed. He was in a high fever and the glazed eyes showed no recognition of his father.

"Is—so awful bad, Doc? Peter asked, when he was sure of his voice.

"Mighty sick, McCann," the doctor answered gently. "If he wasn't an Arizona product, tough as cactus rind and clean-blooded as a young antelope, I'd say he hadn't a chance in the world. But he's liable to fool me yet."

"Don't you let him die, Doc," the father begged.

"Not if I can help it. If he lives you can thank Miss Julia. She looked after him real good."

"You'll stay right here with him?"

"Till morning anyhow. We'll see how he is then."

"How about sending for a doctor from Los Angeles or El Paso? It's not that I don't trust you, but if he'd have a better chance, why—"

"All right. Wire for Doctor Elder from El Paso. He's a first-rate man."

Peter turned to the nurse and asked her in Spanish to bring Miss Stark.

Julia came. She stood in the doorway, straight as an arrow. Her dark eyes flashed defiantly into the light ones of the cattlemen. She waited for him to speak, but saying what he wanted. And again, for an instant, she saw in his face the expression that had puzzled her before. She knew him to be hard and fierce as the Painted Desert. What was back of this look in his eyes, almost wistful and yearning, that broke through the cold mask? If it had not been for her father's body lying in the next room it would have disarmed her, for it undermined her prejudices. She did not want to believe it, but she knew that there was a side of him human and probably likable.

"Miss Stark, I want to send to El Paso for another doctor, an' I want to stay here all night with my boy," he said.

It was on her tongue tip to tell him that he could not possibly stay, that neither she nor her brother would consider it. But her eyes were drawn past him to the stricken figure on the bed. Something in her that was deeper than hate, than the demand in her for revenge, stirred within her heart. She resented it bitterly, but she could not refuse.

"If you'll give me the message to your son I'll take it myself," she said. Doctor Sanders wrote the telegram so that there might be no mistake in verbal transmission.

Julia took it and walked out of the room without another look at either of the McCanns. Her pony was still saddled in front of the house. She rode out of the valley toward the pass, her body shaken with anguished sobs. Never before today had life seemed to her so empty and so futile.

A sound started her. She turned, to see Stone riding just behind.

"Thought maybe I'd better drift along," he drawled. "You never can sometimes tell."

She choked down a sob and nodded thanks.

"I don't reckon I could help you any way?" he suggested gently.

"No, it's—just the way things are. We have to let those McCanns stay here after—after what they did—"

The little Texan studied her a moment before he spoke. "If ain't been proved, Miss Julia, that Wils McCann did it?"

"If he didn't, who did?"

"I'm not offerin' any opinion on that."

"Then why do you say maybe he didn't?"

His stony eyes were opaque. "Only a notion of mine."

"Oh well! If he didn't do it he knows who did. It's all the same. They were lyin' in wait for Dad—he and his friends. What's it matter who fired the shot?"

Stone looked at her, strangely, she thought, and looked away. "Maybe so."

CHAPTER VI

Friendship Rejected

After Julia had delivered McCann's message to his son she returned with Stone to the ranch. The Texan left her there and jogged down the valley along the road which Matthew Stark had followed a few hours earlier.

Out of the brush a man rode to meet Stone.

"Lo, Sam," the Texan said. "I asked you to be here because I want you to show me just where the old man was standin' when he was shot."

"Sure," agreed Sharp. Five minutes later he was showing Stone where they picked up the body of his employer.

"Here's where he lay—an' Wils McCann was right over there. Miss Julia, she was lookin' after Wils. Say, I'm right sorry for that ill girl. She must be a sure enough Christian, her hatin' that McCann like she does an' havin' to save his life after he'd shot her paw."

"If he shot Stark," the Texan amended. "Looks to me like McCann heard the shot an' went to see who'd been hurt."

"Some one shot the old man. It don't look like if some of the rest of the McCann outfit did it they'd go away an' leave Wils wounded without lookin' after him."

"That's a bull's eye shot, Sam. They wouldn't. So we know Wils was alone."

"I reckon."

"Another point. Who shot Wils? Matt Stark didn't. Phil didn't. Miss Julia didn't. You hadn't got here, so you didn't."

Sam scratched his head. If this was a riddle he did not know the answer. "Blamed if I know. Who did it?"

"I don't claim to know—yet. But I'll say one thing. It ain't proved to my satisfaction that the same man didn't shoot both the old man an' Wils McCann."

"Now looky here, Dave. I ain't talkin' about the fellow who shot McCann. But take the old man. He gives it out in cold type that he aims to kill Wils McCann on sight. All right. He hears Wils is fixin' up this head gate an' he lights out hell-for-leather to get him. We all figure there's liable to be trouble between them an' we get busy to head it off. But we're too late. When we get here the old man's dead an' Wils McCann is standin' over him with a rifle in his hands."

"An open-an'-shut case, a fellow would say first off," the little Texan agreed with a smile. "But look at the other side. McCann's rifle was full up with shells. Not one gone. Are you askin' me to believe that he was packin' one extra shell in his pocket an' that he waited to put it in the magazine after he had shot Stark before he fired the shot?"

"Hardly likely, does it? Now looky here, McCann. I size him up a fighter but a game one. If he killed Stark it was in the open, an' I don't reckon the old man was give a chance for his white ally. He was plugged when he wasn't expectin' it."

"We don't even know that. Maybe they met right here an' Wils beat him to it."

"No. He was shot from that ditch likely."

"Why from the ditch an' not from the brush?"

Stone showed his companion a slump of pecky pear standing on a sand bluff. "Through two of the chick leaves a neat small hole had been bored."

"Here's where the bullet went after it passed through Matt's head."

"Great snakes! I'll bet you're right." The wrangler's forehead wrinkled in thought. "An' if it did the fellow must a-been lyin' in the ditch over there or mighty close to it."

They walked over to the irrigation ditch.

"Water runnin' in it," commented Stone. "D'you happen to notice whether there was any in it when you drove across with the buckboard?"

"Nary a drop. The ditch was dry as tha, was there."

"Funny. Who opened the lateral headgate do you reckon? An' why? Here's the point, Sam, an' it sticks out like a sore thumb. The ill-eyed son-of-a-gun that shot the old man left a heap of tracks here in the soft sand at the bottom of the ditch an' in the clay just above. He had to light a stuck real sudden when Phil an' Miss Julia drapped in on him unexpected. But he was a heap worried about them foot-prints. So he beats it back later an' turns the water into the ditch so nobody can cut sign on him."

"You figure maybe the McCanns?"

"Did I mention the McCanns?" the little Texan asked in a soft drawl. He went over the sandy soil and studied it almost in microscopic detail. He spent nearly an hour at this before he remounted and rode away.

Jasper Stark appeared at the Circle Cross toward evening. He swaggered into the house with the manner of a master.

Julia met him and drew him into the big room that served as the family gathering place.

"Oh Jas," she wailed. "Isn't it awful?"

"I just heard," he told her. "Been roundin' up cattle all day to sell. Fellow told me when I got back to Mesa. I came right out."

Her memories flashed back to what her younger brother had said. "Phil thought he saw you near the Three Cottonwood. Were you up that way?"

He swept her face with a look of quick and sullen suspicion. "No, I wasn't. Nowhere near there. Why?"

"That's where Dad was killed. Some one shot Wils McCann there afterward. We thought maybe—"

"Well, you thought wrong," he interrupted harshly. "But I hope whoever shot him did a good job."

"H's alive, but awfully badly hurt. He was shot through the lung and the side. Doctor Sanders thinks he hasn't much chance."

"Bully. Where is he at?"

"He's here."

"Here! Where's here?"

"I mean he's here in the house, too sick to move."

"Who brought him here?"

"I did."

He exploded in a roar of rage. When for a moment he ceased to bellow Julia mentioned more information that added fuel to his fury. "His father's here looking after him."

"Pete McCann?"

"Yes. And there's no use shoutin', Jas. Dad's lyin' in the next room, you know." She spoke quietly, looking straight at him.

He stamped up and down shaking his big fist. It was not till he came to a specific threat that she interrupted.

"No, you won't, Jas. You'll not touch him. I told him he might come and stay."

"You told him. Goddameighty, what you got to do with it? Claim you're boss here now, do you? I'll show you about that."

Phil had come into the room and was standing beside his sister. "Gettin' down to cases, just what d'you mean, Jas?" he asked.

"Mean? Why, ain't I the oldest son? Ain't I runnin' the Circle Cross now? You can bet your boots I am. I'm boss here now an' don't you forget it."

"Are you? The eyes of the boy consulted those of his sister before he fired his bomb. "I reckon you're mistaken, Jas. Mr. Fletcher sent his black boy Tom out here last night with Dad's will. Right here in this room Dad signed it before witnesses. Jule an' I tried to get him to put it off, but he wouldn't listen to a word."

Jasper's face had turned a sickly yellow. "Cut me out of it, did he?"

POULTRY

HENS THRIVE WHEN GIVEN GREEN FEED

Essential Vitamins in the Poultry Ration.

By C. J. MAUPIN, Poultry Extension Specialist, North Carolina State College, WNU Service.

When green feed is added as a supplement to the regular poultry ration, the birds grow better and lay more eggs. All the vitamins essential for growth and health can be made available at a variety of green feed is used.

Legumes and the tender green crops of the garden are all rich in vitamins and food for poultry. Alfalfa, clovers, lespedeza, rape, soybeans, lettuce, tender cabbage, collards, kale, and young oats, wheat, barley or rye are some of the crops liked by poultry and valuable to them in developing growth and increasing egg production. We have found that young lettuce, for instance, has cured a "rag-dog" condition in hens. Green alfalfa, fed liberally, has been reported as checking the deaths of poultry due to poor feeding. Where the birds are given white corn, they need the food properties found in legumes and other green stuff.

I recommend curing some legume hay for the birds to feed upon in winter. Well-cured alfalfa, clover, or lespedeza hay is very valuable. This hay should be cured bright green in color, with no rain allowed to fall on it during the curing process.

Battery Brooding Not by Any Means Perfect

Battery brooding has attracted many to broiler production, as very little experience is required in this work. The difficulty with it is that the feathering of the birds so handled is often poor, top market prices being seldom obtained for the broilers for that reason. In addition to poor feathering, the birds have soft meat and the shrinkage in body weight on express shipments is a loss. When birds are to be killed at the farm, battery rearing is desirable, but if live-weight shipments are to be made it should not be followed, according to the New Jersey experiment station. A combination of battery and floor brooding is said to be desirable, as practically all of the advantages of both systems can be utilized. By using the battery brooders for the first four weeks the details of early chick brooding are eliminated, and then the growth is finished on the floor. The heating and feeding of birds after the fourth week is a simple matter compared with the attention these items require during the early period of growth.

Chick Feeding Notes

Cup flats used for packing eggs in cases make excellent hoppers for chicks during the first week after they are hatched. The inner surface of the cup flats holding the mash and reducing the amount of waste.

Water fountains for the chicks should be so constructed that they may be easily cleaned and not upset. The most satisfactory fountain for the first ten days is the earthenware bell jar with the flower pot saucer, a type of fountain suitable for 100 chicks. Large metal fountains should be used when the chicks are four weeks old.

The piping of water to the range and the installation of automatic fountains will reduce labor and young stock will be assured of a constant supply of fresh water.—American Agriculturist.

Make Study of Turkeys

Turkeys are a subject for study this year for the first time by the poultry department of the Ohio State university. So great has become the interest in turkey raising in Ohio that the university has started demonstrations in methods of rearing poulters and methods of feeding. Three breeds, the Bronze, the White Holland and the Narragansett are represented in the 776 poulters now being raised in confinement in permanent brooder houses. The method of rearing is similar in the case of turkeys as with baby chicks, and the confinement system is in vogue on most large turkey farms in Ohio.—Ohio Farmer.

Not Too Much Shade

Some shade is necessary for growing pullets but do not provide too dense a growth, as it keeps the sun shine from striking the soil and it will become more contaminated. Some poultry men use insulation or straw lofts in all their houses. This keeps the houses cool and they furnish shade. On the general farm an apple orchard adjacent to poultry houses make healthful conditions for the hens and makes the business more enjoyable for the caretaker.—Exchange.

Increasing Egg Production

It is claimed that the extra egg production gained in the winter months when the prices of eggs are higher is not obtained at the expense of production during the spring and summer months, but may be generally considered as additional production. Observations of birds under lights show that an average flock of good capacity responds favorably to lights in seven to ten days. Well-developed pullets may be expected to increase egg production from 50 to 100 per cent.

Artificial Light

At the University of Delaware experiment station, based on a three-year average production, pullets under artificial illumination laid fourteen more eggs per bird from November 1 to April 1, than did pullets under natural conditions. It was found that the use of lights is effective in transferring a portion of the usual heavy spring production to the fall and winter months when egg prices are high or. Trials indicated that after April 1, lights are of no value.

A World's Record

MORE than three thousand births without a single loss of either mother or child! That is the official Platt County record of Dr. W. B. Caldwell, in fifty years' family practice in Illinois.

No wonder mothers have such entire confidence in giving little ones Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin!

If you have a baby, you have constant need of this wonderful preparation of pure pepsin, active senna, and fresh herbs. A child who gets this gentle stimulant for the stomach, liver and bowels is always healthier. It keeps children's delicate systems from clogging. It will overcome the most stubborn condition of constipation. It builds them up, and is nothing like the strong cathartics that sap their strength and energy.

A coated tongue or bad breath is the signal for a spoonful of Syrup Pepsin. Children take it readily, for it is really delicious in flavor. Taste it! Take Syrup Pepsin yourself, when sluggish or bilious, or you are troubled with sick headaches and no appetite. Take some for several days when run-down, and see how it picks you up.

It is a prescription preparation which every drug store has ready; in big bottles, just ask anywhere for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

DO YOUR CHRISTMAS MAILING EARLY

Shop now and mail early for early delivery is the by-word of Postmaster Edwin Koch. According to Mr. Koch the post offices will make every effort to handle the Christmas mails without congestion and delay, but owing to the enormous volume this can be done only with the cooperation of the public. Compliance with the following suggestions will greatly aid the Post Office and insure the prompt handling of your mail.

Mail early for delivery before Xmas Day. Register or insure valuable mail.

During the holiday time the volume of mail increases approximately 200 per cent. It is a physical impossibility to handle this great mass of mail matter efficiently and promptly within a few days. Therefore to assure delivery of their Christmas presents, cards and letters by Christmas Day the public should Shop and Mail Early. Do your Christmas shopping so that you can mail your gifts, greetings, and letters to relatives, friends and loved ones at least a week or 10 days before Christmas, according to the distance. This will not only make it certain that they are received before Christmas Day, but will be a great aid to your postal service and to postal employees and enable them to spend the Christmas holidays with their families.

All parcels must be securely wrapped or packed. Use strong paper and heavy twine. Articles easily broken or crushed must be securely wrapped and crated and boxed. Use liberal quantities of excelsior, or like material, in, around, and between the articles and the outside container.

Parcels containing perishable articles shall be marked "Perishable."

Addresses should be complete, with house number and name of street, post-office box or rural-route number, and typed or plainly written in ink. A return card should be placed in the upper left corner of every piece of mail.

Postage must be fully prepaid on all mail. Affix the required amount of postage in the upper right corner.

No parcel may be more than 100 inches in length and girth combined nor exceed 70 pounds in weight. Valuable domestic third and fourth class mail should be insured.

For further information on any of the above subjects or concerning any other postal matter, inquire at the post office or see the postmaster or one of his assistants.

SENATOR CLIFFORD IN STRONG POSITION

Senator Eugene Clifford of Juneau, now the only Democrat in the state senate, bids fair to hold a strategic position in the 1933 state senate. When the new Senate convenes it will contain eight Democrats, who, it is prophesied, will select Mr. Clifford as their leader, and as their candidate for president pro tempore. Clifford, it is anticipated, will be the Democratic choice for a member of the committee on committees, which in the state senate makes the assignment of members to the various committees.

Going further into the political situation of the coming senate, we learn that the eight Democrats will hold the balance of power between the evenly divided conservatives and progressives. Thus they can secure the election of their candidate for president pro tempore by winning the support of the progressives. This support is the more assured since in the last legislature Sen. Clifford voted with the progressives on virtually all measures, contending that in doing so he was fulfilling the principles of Jeffersonian democracy.—Hartford Times. Mr. Clifford represents Washington and Dodge counties in the senate.

LET'S COUNT THE BLESSINGS

The institution of our American Thanksgiving Day dates back almost to the beginning of the settlement of North America by newcomers from Europe. The first Thanksgiving Day was celebrated by the Pilgrims of Plymouth in 1623. After a day of prayer and fasting the Pilgrims feasted and gave thanks to Almighty God for the bountiful harvest which enabled them to look forward to a winter of ample food.

All of the New England colonies and some of the others continued this custom of an annual day of thanksgiving, and in his first year as the first President of the United States of America George Washington himself made Thanksgiving Day a national feast by proclaiming Thursday, November 26, 1789, as the day for its celebration.

There has never been a year since, in spite of wars, internal stress and calamity in which we, the people of the United States of America, have not had genuine occasion to give thanks for blessings received. For in spite of all that has occurred in our history the American spirit has never been daunted and we have grown steadily in spiritual strength.

In this year of 1932 we see many things to be thankful for. We have come through the three most trying years we have experienced in more than half a century. We have come through them safely, with far less suffering, far less permanent injury to our national institutions and our national welfare than have any of the other peoples of the world. On every hand there is evidence so plain that we can see that the worst is past, and that we are coming again into material prosperity with renewed courage and with our national moral still unshaken.

That, it seems to us, is sufficient reason why Thanksgiving Day this year was more than a mere holiday, why it was a day upon which every American should have actually given thanks to the God he worships for having led us safely through the slough of despond to the verge of the promised land again.

B. J. HUSTING SLATED FOR EXECUTIVE SECRETARY

Attorney B. J. Husting of Mayville is the likely choice for executive secretary to the Governor-elect, A. J. Schmiedeman.

Mr. Husting was defeated for the nomination for Congressman of the Second District of Wisconsin in the primaries. His opponent, Dr. C. W. Henney, a democrat, of Portage, was the successful candidate at the general election from aforesaid district.

Attorney Husting is a brother of the late United States Senator, Paul O. Husting, who defeated Francis E. McGovern in 1914. He is at present law at Mayville. Mr. Husting is very well known in this community.

THE NEW PLYMOUTH "SIX" HERE

Gessert Brothers proprietors of the Kewaskum Auto Service and dealers for the Plymouth automobiles, this week received a new 1933 Plymouth "Six", which they are now ready to demonstrate. FOND DU LAC COUNTY TO BORROW $150,000

To meet the expenses of Fond du Lac county it was necessary for the County Board of Supervisors to take steps in borrowing $150,000 from the Commercial National Bank of Fond du Lac until such time as the taxpayers of said county start paying their 1932 taxes.

Explaining the situation as it now stands, Chairman H. S. Northrup of the Board of Supervisors stated:

"There is at the present time $158,000 outstanding in unpaid taxes for 1932, while $87,000 in unpaid taxes for previous years is still on the books. It is estimated that it will take from $25,000 to $50,000 to carry the general fund expenses until 1933 tax money is received, while the highway department is requesting the return of $100,000 which it loaned from the highway fund to the general fund. It does not mean that $100,000 will be expended in carrying the highway department through the balance of the year.

"The situation is not very pleasant because the sum we are borrowing must be paid back and taken from the funds that ordinarily would be made available for operation expenses during the year 1933. It means that the county board will have to be extremely careful in making appropriations for the ensuing year, in fact no large appropriations should be made.

"Our budget system adopted some time ago worked out satisfactorily but the emergency created when the delinquent taxes ran up so high this could not be anticipated.

ENTHUSIASTIC 4-H CLUB MEETING HELD

An enthusiastic achievement day for the 4-H Club members was held at the West Bend High School Auditorium last Friday night. Over two hundred parents of the members were present.

The significance of the meeting was stressed by County Agent Elmer Lyons. The program was continued by the Wayne Center Club of fifteen members. They were led by Mrs. Alvin Petri. Mrs. Petri is to be congratulated for the inspiration and guidance she gave to her club members. It was their first year and they did excellent work. Mr. Elmo Rosenheimer of Jackson representing the County Bankers Association said that the bankers of the County heartily approved this work and were more than pleased to show their appreciation by furnishing the evening's lunch. He concluded his short talk by saying, "If you give the same interest to the work of life that you have given to our club work it will be crowned with success."

Then the Moon-Light club of Germantown sang three pretty songs that went over big with the audience. Art East is their club leader.

Mrs. Belle Albright, who has been identified with Club Work in this county for several years and who has received honorary recognition by the state organization, spoke briefly. She very fittingly gave recognition to those institutions and people that make possible, club work.

The group that brought the house down was the Radermacher children of Freiss Lake Club. They presented music that captured encores again and again. Mrs. George Neu is their leader.

This was followed by two alert young girls of the Allenton Club, the Volesky children who sang two pretty songs. The Club members part of the program was completed by two well rendered piano solos by Mary Jane Jecranee of the same club. Mrs. Geo. Volesky is the Club Leader.

Mr. W. C. McNeel gave an inspiring address or club work, and Mr. Guido Schroeder, president of the Agricultural Society, presented the achievement pins to the various Club members. He very earnestly urged the members to continue their work and assured them of repetition of this program next year.

Miss Luella Smith, who is now home economics teacher at Shullsburg and who was employed by the County Agricultural Society last summer was introduced to the audience. She indicated that she was happy to again meet the young people with whom she worked. She complimented them upon the interest they displayed and assured them that such work would have a very positive influence on their lives.

A delightful lunch was served in Cafeteria style which was enjoyed by everybody.

SALARIES OF HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT LISTED

The salary schedule of various employees in the highway department of Fond du Lac county was presented to the county board of said county last week, which are as follows: Commissioner-Engineer, $4,500 per year; assistant engineer, $2,400.00 per year; patrol superintendent, $2,300.00 per year; shop mechanic, $170.00 per month; foreman at the bulk gas station, $135.00 per month; inspectors, $5.50 and 55 cents per hour, patrolmen, truck drivers, 40 cents per hour for former employees, 25 cents per hour for new men; laborers, new men 30 cents per hour.

E. E. SKALISKEY APPOINT'D CHAIRMAN

Mr. E. E. Skalskey will direct the sale of tuberculosis Christmas seals in Kewaskum the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association announced on November 17.

The association annually conducts the seal sale throughout Wisconsin to raise funds to combat the Great White Plague -- tuberculosis -- which last year took the lives of 1,146 persons in this state. Fifty-six per cent of these persons were between the ages of 15 and 45.

"Tuberculosis is communicable, preventable and curable," the W.A.T.A. doctors say. "It should not be permitted to continue taking its tremendous toll in Wisconsin. If a gunman shot down a young man on the street, public indignation would run high and all the forces of law and order would be brought into play. The public would demand that the murdered be captured and punished.

"Tuberculosis in 1930 took the lives of 107 boys and girls between the ages of 15 and 19 in Wisconsin.

"It is estimated that there are approximately 13,000 active cases of tuberculosis in the state at the present time. These cases must be found early and properly treated. Healthy persons must be taught how to avoid the disease and how to remain well and strong. Above all the children must be protected."

Hundreds of free chest clinics, to facilitate the early discovery of tuberculosis, are held in all parts of the state each year by the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association. Approximately 16,000 persons are examined annually. Detailed studies to protect children have been made in orphanages and schools.

Christmas seals make possible these studies and clinics; promote the building of sanatoria and preventoria for the care of the tuberculosis; train public health nurses; finance preventive health work in Wisconsin schools and carry on the program of dissemination, through various publicity methods, of facts on the prevention, cure and treatment of tuberculosis.

PURAL NORMAL SCHOOL AT FOND DU LAC VOTED TO BE ABANDONED

The Fond du Lac County Board of Supervisors at a session held last Friday voted 40 to 15 to discontinue the County Rural Normal School. This school was started twelve years ago. The overwhelming vote in favor of abandoning the school was a great surprise to the citizens of Fond du Lac county. An effort was made by Supervisor M. V. Adkins to re-open the issue by offering a motion that the school be continued without expense to the county. He was over-ruled.

J. H. Kleinbans, supervisor from the village of Campbellsport, was one of the main spokesmen against the continuation of the school. It is his belief that the school was an expense which could be avoided during the present economic depression. Mr. Kleinbans is chairman of the Salary and Bonds Committee.

In as much that the County Board provided that the school be abandoned, said institution will close at the close of the present term.

LATER—We have been informed on Monday that a movement was started by voluntary committees organized in various sections of the county to save the Rural Normal School. The leaders of this movement have made arrangements whereby they will appear before the county board to-day, Friday, to induce the board to reconsider their action of last week, and vote in favor that the school be maintained as heretofore.

That the board intends to make further drastic reductions in their governmental expenditures was shown when they also last Friday got out their pruning knife and voted against an appropriation towards the county fair.

The county nurse was retained as was the Highway Commission. It was first suggested that the latter commission be reduced to three members instead of the present committee of five. However, to economize in this department it was mentioned that the commission should meet only once a month instead of twice.

After a spirited debate on Saturday the county agent was retained by a vote of 32 to 24. The salary for the coming year was not determined.

ARRESTED FOR SPREADING FALSE BANK RUMORS

Mike Lenzer, barber at Port Washington, will face trial at Port Washington this morning on the charge of circulating false rumors about the condition of one of the banks at Port Washington. It is alleged that Lenzer made a statement about the bank in question to a member of a stockholder's family. Under the law this is a very serious offense because of the danger such false rumors invoke in causing a bank run. The minimum sentence under the law is one year in prison.

Later—Lenzer was sentenced to one year in Waupun this morning, and his sentence was suspended and he was placed on probation.—Cedarburg News.

CONVENTION OF CHAMPION BOYS AND GIRLS

The very pick of the finest specimens of the best products of farms of America were gathered in Chicago the past week. We do not refer particularly to the magnificent specimens of horses, cattle, sheep and swine, which competed for blue ribbons at the International Livestock Exposition, which opened on November 26th and continues until December 3rd. Splendid as these examples of the best products of American husbandry are, they are of trifling consequence compared with the boys and girls of the 4-H Clubs who are competing at Chicago for the national championships in their particular fields of endeavor.

These boys and girls chosen for the annual 4-H Congress by a process of elimination are the finest specimens of American youth which their respective states have produced. They are the hope of our nation's future. They are the ones who will become the solid, substantial citizens of tomorrow. Their destiny is to become themselves leaders in their communities, their counties and their states, and to become fathers and mothers of a generation which carry the development of agriculture and rural life to higher and better planes than it has even yet reached.

We know of no organization or movement which has contributed so much to the present welfare and future prosperity of our nation than the 4-H Clubs. They serve the double purpose of elevating the economic standards of the farmer, and at the same time of developing in farm life higher standards of culture, beauty and of contentment.

These young state champions assembled at Chicago have already learned how to get the greatest amount of happiness and satisfaction out of life on the farm.

ROCKY KNOLL SAVES TAXPAYERS $10,000

Due to action of the trustees of Rocky Knoll sanatorium, taxpayers of Sheboygan county will be saved $10,000 next year, according to the sixth annual report which was submitted to the county board by W. F. Hubert, president of the board of trustees.

According to the report, maintenance for Sheboygan county patients during the past year cost $43,850.87. However, there is due from the state a credit of $16,294, leaving the net amount due the sanatorium from the county $27,456.87, from which the trustees ask the county board to deduct $10,000, which is being returned to relieve the taxpayers.—Plymouth Review.
