KEWASKUM HIGH SCHOOL COLUMN

With the completion of the Class tournaments this week, the 1932-1933 basketball season comes to a close. Kewaskum High School sponsors two major sports in its inter-scholastic competition throughout the school year.

In the fall and spring seasons basketball is the game played with other high schools in our league and the neighboring schools outside the Tri-County.

During the winter season, from November until March, the greatest of all indoor winter games, basketball, is played.

During the present season we played two non-league games and twelve league games of the former one was won and one lost, of the latter four were won and eight lost. Of the seven league games played, five were won and two lost. The home losses were to Campbellport and North Fond du Lac.

As measured by games won and lost our season could have been much more successful. However, further benefits are derived from athletic contests than the winning of games. Every normal boy is imbued with a competitive spirit, a certain amount of surplus energy which must somehow be released. How better can he spend his efforts than by participating in some such vigorous health-developing exercise?

Not only have the boys who represent our school as a team in contests with other schools derived these benefits and pleasure but also those who are not on the first team but make up the remainder of the squad.

The boys on the team deserve much credit for the fine spirit of sportsmanship, the ever-present determination and fight to win against opponents that has been manifest throughout the entire year.

With graduation in June, we lose one of our finest players, Harold Marx. Harold has always put the success of the team ahead of self. Not on the entire squad have we a young man who fought harder, with more determination to win than Harold. In spite of the fact that Harold was a marked man who always had one or two of the opponents best defensive players watching him, he could always be relied upon to score heavily. We will miss you much Harold.

Every member of the entire squad deserves credit for the way he has worked and what he has accomplished this season.

The following boys will be awarded official basketball "K's" for their achievements on the basketball court: Harold Marx, Otto Stenschke, Harold Claus, Joseph Miller, Harold Smith, Fred Klein, Egidius Schoofs and Albert Hron.

The boys on the squad but not on the team, those who come out and practice night after night that our first team may be made better, deserve a great deal of credit for their work. The names of these boys follow: Otto Weddig, Kilian Honeck, Herbert Hopkins, Delbert Backus, Earl Bantke, Sylvester Mueckerheide, Robert Rosenheimer, Marlin Kocher and Sylvester Volm.

This series of games was started last Friday afternoon, when the Sophomores defeated the Freshmen 37-20. The publishers are sorry that for lack of space they are unable to publish the box scores.

The Junior-Senior basketball game on Monday. It was a competitive battle from the initial until the final whistle. Never was the lead of either team more than six points, and the final score indicates it was anybody's game until the game was over. The game was won by the Juniors 15-13.

BABY WANDERS ON HIGHWAY AT NIGHT

Vernon, the two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Peters, town of Trenton, who was staying with his grandmother, Mrs. Mary Schludweller, in the town of Farmington, sometime between 10 p.m. and midnight last Saturday night, slipped out of the house thinly clad and wandered on the highway. Fortunately the baby was noticed by Arthur Peters and Miss Cora Degner, near the Orchard Grove Cheese Factory, about 1 mile west of Mrs. Schludweller's home. The two were enroute to their respective homes in the town of Kewaskum.

It was first believed that the child was abandoned by occupants of a blue sedan car. Mr. Peters, after finding the child, immediately notified Sheriff Jos. Kirsch at West Bend, who together with Arthur Juech, chief of police of West Bend, went to the scene and placed the child to West Bend and placed in charge of Mrs. Kirsch, wife of the sheriff.

Mrs. Schludweller, frantic over the missing of the child, early on Sunday morning cleared up the mystery when she appeared at the sheriff's home and claimed the child. She stated that before retiring Saturday night about 10 o'clock, she went to the boy's room and found him soundly asleep, but when she awoke the next morning at 5 o'clock the boy was missing. Just imagine how frantic Mrs. Schludweller must have been. To get out of the house the boy had to unlock two doors.

With the Wisconsin Legislature

The Wisconsin legislature authorized a state scrip issue when two bills were rushed through assembly and senate with unanimous approval of the joint finance committee to meet the immediate needs of the economic crisis. One provided for scrip issues by the state banking commissioner for the state banks, and by the state, counties and municipalities to meet their obligations. The other legalized the recent bank holiday and extended the governor's power to close or limit banking in any future emergency.

Acting Gov. O'Malley, in the absence of Gov. Schmiedeknecht, signed the Fox bill calling a state convention for ratification of the Blaine resolution repealing the eighteenth amendment.

The bill, passed by the legislature, provides for placing the names of 15 wets and 15 dries on the Apr. 4 ballot, the 15 winners to go to the convention on Apr. 25. The signing virtually assured Wisconsin of being one of the first states to vote on repeal.

The candidates must be chosen by petition, with the right to appear on the ballot limited to the 15 wets and 15 dries obtaining the highest number of signers.

A separate repeal ballot will be handed voters at the polls. It will contain two columns of names, those favoring repeal and those against.

A bill empowering the state to bond itself up to $50,000,000 to provide emergency relief loans to localities was introduced in the Wisconsin senate by Sen. Goodland, Racine.

The proposed bonds would bear five per cent interest, maturing in 1933. Repayment would be made through a special property tax.

Funds resulting from sale of the bonds would be loaned to municipalities and building and loan associations under direction of a special board comprised of the highest elective and appointive state officials and seven citizens representing important economic interests of the state.

The Conway bill to compel the state to pay from gasoline tax revenues the cost of administering maintenance of county highways was killed. The cost now is assessed against the property on the county tax rolls.

A proposal to close the hunting season on deer in Wisconsin for five years was defeated in the assembly, 75 to 18.

Immediate distribution of $100,000,000 in cash relief is demanded of the Wisconsin legislature by representatives of farm and unemployed organizations. Demands of the workers and farmers were resolved in a united front conference held here.

Other demands include: Substitution of an unemployment insurance system for the Groves plan, with expense of operation to be borne by the state and employers; abolishment of wage cuts and the stagger system; tax exemption and no foreclosures against the property of unemployed, part-time workers and impoverished farmers, and a graduated tax on corporation and individual incomes over $5,000, instead of a general property or turnover tax.

Assemblyman William H. Moore, Sawyer, presented the only opposition in a hearing before the assembly conservation committee on the proposed $1 resident, adult, rod-and-reel fishing license. Numerous representatives of the Izaak Walton League, and Upper Wisconsin Association of Conservation Clubs, supported the measure as a means of financing conservation of Wisconsin's wild life.

Repeal of Wisconsin's 84-year-old "blue law" against Sunday work and amusements has been voted by the state assembly. The bill had been introduced by Assemblyman Palmer Daugs of Fort Atkinson. Senate action is necessary before the repeal, previously ordered by an almost two-to-one vote in a statewide referendum, can be effected.

The state senate voted its first permanent pay cuts when by the narrow margin of one vote it sent to a third reading the Seward bill amended to cut the salary of supreme court justices from $10,000 to $8,500 a year and the salary of circuit court judges from $8,000 to $7,000 a year.

Representative-elect George W. Blanchard pleaded for a balanced budget in his "farewell address" to the Wisconsin senate. Blanchard resigned from the senate to become a representative from the first Wisconsin district.

Legislative committees are out to shorten their work as much as possible by holding joint hearings of committees of both houses in an effort to avoid hearings on the same bills twice.

Season of Daring Color Schemes

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WHATEVER you do, be colorful. Evidently this is the message which fashion aims to convey for the coming months. It's like seeing things through multi-colored glasses to look at the gay spring clothes which are out on style parade. No kaleidoscope could do better than designers of this day and age are doing in this matter of producing unexpected yet withal startlingly beautiful color effects.

You get the idea first of all from the new tailored suits, so many of which combine plaids, checks or stripes with bright monotonous. For instance, an ensemble is apt to be worked out with a Tartan plaid wool in green, vivid blue and orange combining with a plain blue diagonal weave. Other equally as intriguing contrasts could be recited by the hundred.

The new gaily striped and plaided tinfetts, likewise scarf-prints, are working wonders in the way of contributing vital color to street clothes. If it isn't a giant-sized bow of plaid tinfetta tied at the throat then, perchance, the lining is of gay tinfetta with the coat lining of say ditto or possibly all three will flaunt their colorful scheme before your eyes. Then there are the new smart tweed travel suits of the swagger variety which boast a refreshing variety of color in their checks. Sometimes it is the skirt which is the check or chequered and the jacket of a plain color. Then again it is the jacket of the chequered and the skirt of a plain color.

As to skirt and sweater schemes, they fairly hit the eye with their riot of color. When it comes to simple daytime frocks of wearable type, most every costume is worked out in multi-color or bi-color ways. The illustration tells the story in part as to how some of the color problems are solved. At most every turn the eye is greeted with a blouse of plaid or a bow or a little of some shade. The model to the left conveys the idea. Navy with white is almost outrivalling black with white for spring. The costume centered is done in navy and white. Black with turquoise is the color combination for the model pictured to the right.

Formal modes likewise yield to the mania of color which is taking possession of the fashionable world. At Paris restaurants and night clubs a great deal of white is being worn with a light-colored velvet jackets or perhaps a white gown will have vivid red velvet straps which develop into a huge bow at the back. Fashion creates an enchanting formal which involves a tri-color of pale lime green, dark olive and a touch of ripe raspberry.

Even the newest lace gowns are worked with the idea that two colors are better than one.

As to millinery, in its realm bi-color and tri-color schemes are ruling rampant. Not only are colors worked together in the making of the hat, but plaided and striped ribbons are among the season's smartest trimmings.

JACKET OF FELT

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

It seems that Alpine playgrounds are lending inspiration for present-day fashions. You can detect in the smart broadened waist-depth jackets which Tyrolean men wear when mountain climbing. Then too the jaunty beret with its perky tuft of colorful felt at its top crown looks as if the original of its kind may have been worn by some gay mountaineer. In the picturesque Alps. This beret and sleeveless jacket are of pastel blue felt, worn with a tailor-finished knitted frock.

Wide Shoulders
Frocks, coats and suits launched by Maggie Rouff show widened accented shoulders tapering to a slender normal waist with such broadening effects as tiny pockets at the hip line.

Hats Low in Back
Coming down on hats in the back, says Orry Kelly, Hollywood designer, who also looks for deeper crowns in the near future.

Some Tips on What's to Be Spring Style
Blouses are stepping up on the bandwagon of color. Straight and narrow silhouette for day, voluminous for night is the rule for skirts. Fur-cuffed jacket suits, likewise bordered cape suits will frequent the spring picture. Wide-toe silhouette achieved via full sleeves and other shoulder arrangements interprets good style.

Fullness both for dresses and skirts is given by means of low-placed pleats. The school girl neckline is here to stay and has a trim, also prim, little turned-down collar. Browns and navy are more apt to be worn without relief than black, but even an all-brown street costume often reveals a colored dress where the coat is seen.

Good Taste Today

By EMILY POST
Author of "Etiquette, the Blue Book of Social Usage," "The Personality of a House," Etc.

TROUSSEAU AND HOPE CHESTS

The most practical way to make a personal trousseau list is to take a complete inventory of your present wardrobe, and star the items you like best and have you most. Cross off those which have been of least use and therefore wasteful. Remember that the clothes that give greatest satisfaction to Mary Jones are the future Mrs. Brown. With your list to go by, you obviously add to or replace the starred items and avoid duplicating those crossed off. Which is enough about clothes.

And now let us consider the real subject of this article, which is your household linen list—whether you think of it as packed in a chest or stacked on shelves. On a sheet of paper write BED LINEN, and as sub-headings Sheets, and on the same line, Pillow-cases. And then, at a distance below, list mattress covers, blankets, blanket covers, quilts. Make another heading, BATH LINEN. Under this, list face towels, hand towels, bath towels, bath mats and shower curtains. Under TABLE LINEN list damask tablecloths, fancy tablecloths, centerpieces, and place mats, runners, tea cloths, breakfast-tray cloths. And then list NAPKINS: dinner napkins, lunch napkins, breakfast napkins, tea napkins, cocktail napkins. Under SERVICE write pantry towels, kitchen towels, kitchen cloths, roller towels, dust cloths. At the bottom of the page add bed, bath and table linen for one maid, or for whatever sized household you expect to have.

From this whole catalogue you estimate your own items. For example, beginning at the top of the page in the space below SHEETS, you write one or many varieties; linen, percale or silk; double or single; plain ones, ungrammed or initialed. As to quantity, this is solely a question of how you intend to dispense the items in your linen closet? Shall each fresh sheet serve first for an upper, and then as an under? Or are upper sheets and under ones to be of two varieties? To be changed—how often? Much as you may like two fresh sheets every day, this will mean fourteen sheets a week for each bed, a total supply of about three times the minimum. On the other hand, the minimum of one fresh upper sheet a week would total only four sheets for each bed. The most typical sheet allowance (when the upper sheet also serves as a lower) is six sheets for each bed, and four slips for each pillow. This would allow fresh top sheet and fresh pillow-case on Wednesday and on Saturday for each bed, and each pillow. In addition to a minimum requirement for each bed, you should have at very least two sheets and four pillow-cases extra in case of illness—unless you have plenty of guest room linen. The number of linen is sold. Italian linen napkins and all varieties of towels are very good looking when cross-stitched in a color—which any woman should be able to do easily herself. Cross-stitch letters look best when very small—still easier to do. There are several varieties of machine marking, which when well done look well on some things. Also there are letters which one may buy and sew on. The best of these, however, cost almost as much as the hand embroidered they simulate.

napkins varies in the same way, from one a week for each member of the family, with extra ones for company, to a fresh one at every meal for each person. Count towels and service equipment, exactly the same way. Remember in counting to allow for those in the clothes hamper as well as those in use or waiting on the shelves—and above all, count company! Napkins and towels, sheets and pillow-cases, gathered in the clothes basket in direct proportion to the gathering of friends in your house.

And now, marking! Face towels, hand towels, sheets, pillow-cases and napkins without marking are exactly like a street dress worn without gloves, and the question of marking is rather serious because expensive when better done. If your purse is deep, then mark them with monogram or initials in full. Otherwise, on napkins, a single Old English initial five-eighths of an inch high makes the best effect at least cost. For sheets and pillow-cases there are many single letter designs to choose from wherever

Business Always Looks Dark to He Who Waits

Easy chairs went out of style almost two years ago. Getting business today requires action. Business staffs are too small and the business man does not have hours enough to personally go out after every piece of business to be had—through hustling. That is where the printed word works most effectively for him. And the cost of selling is so much less—upon strained budgets. Printing prices in our shop are also down, but there's no let down in the quality of the work. Prompt service too. We are geared for speed. No waiting here.

PAWNBROKER'S SIGN

Why does a pawnbroker display three brass balls over the door of his place of business? The insignia was taken from that of the Italian bankers, generally called Lombards, who were the first to open pawn-shops in England for the relief of temporary distress. The greatest of the Lombards was the celebrated and eventually princely house of the Medici of Florence. They bore pills on their shields. From the pills came the pawnbroker's brass balls.

The use of a roller or other ground compactor to press the soil firmly around seeds after they are planted is found by many to aid alfalfa in quick germination and in getting ahead of weeds and other competing plants.

BANK OF KEWASKUM OPEN FOR BUSINESS

On Wednesday officials of the Bank of Kewaskum received a telegram from the state banking department at Madison, authorizing that the bank may at once open pending, however, an examination. How soon the state will have examiners at the bank to examine same is hard to say. In the meantime business will be done under a restriction of 25 per cent withdrawals of old deposits.

Practically every bank in Wisconsin is now open for business. Banks in this locality which have been authorized to open under restrictions of 25 per cent of old deposits are: Adell State Bank, Allenton State Bank, The Bank of Jackson, State Bank of Newburg, and State Bank of Mayville.

The Bank of West Bend and the First State Bank of West Bend have been permitted to open under a ten per cent restriction.

The National Bank of West Bend was permitted to resume its normal banking functions, the restrictions being of anti-hoarding nature and for the gold retention.

Look for proper seals and labels when buying Grimm alfalfa seed. Genuine Grimm seed is tagged and sealed by state authorities where the seed is grown. It is unlawful to distribute in Wisconsin any alfalfa seed named Grimm unless it is certified and state sealed.

NEW CURRENCY TO END BANK CRISIS

Congress Passes Law Asked by the President.

Washington.—Responding immediately to the requests of President Roosevelt, the new congress, called in extraordinary session, enacted legislation to end the banking crisis and enable the banks to reopen. The bill proposed by the administration and passed by the house and senate with only a few dissenting votes. The first ratified the President's holiday proclamation and all that had been done thereunder. This was necessary for the reason that government lawyers doubted the authority of the enemy trading act under which Mr. Roosevelt suspended gold payments, embargoed gold exports and declared the banking holiday. They held the act had expired by limitation.

The second section granted the President sweeping powers to continue to deal with the banking crisis. The third section provided for new currency in the form of billions of dollars to be issued by banks based not on gold but on the "liquid assets" of the banks. This new currency is called federal reserve bank notes to distinguish it from federal reserve notes which are backed by gold.

To what extent, if any, inflation of the currency would be produced by this increase in the volume of money was one of the big questions involved in the Roosevelt plan. That inflation would be the consequence is a conclusion widely reached in financial and commercial circles, with the result that a leap upward of commodity and security prices was looked for.

It was explained that one result of this legislation creating new currency would be to unify the banking system. Only member banks of the federal reserve system are able to avail themselves of the privileges accorded to convert into currency assets previously ineligible. State banks are compelled to join the federal system in order to obtain the funds that enable them to reopen.

Furthermore, weak banks will be weeded out, for institutions that are unable to furnish liquid assets for currency are unable to reopen. Others are permitted to remain open to the extent of their liquidity pending at least a recovery of general public confidence in banks.

In his brief message to congress the President advised that after passing the necessary emergency legislation a recess be taken to give time for the formulation of a program of permanent legislation for reforming banking practices and reorganizing the banking system of the country.

Congress also began consideration of anti-hoarding measures and the administration made a start in that direction by having the federal reserve board order all federal reserve banks to send by March 13 lists of all persons who had withdrawn gold since February 1 and had not redeposited it.
Henry T. Rainey of Illinois, having been elected speaker of the house by the Democratic majority, presided over that body in the extraordinary session. Vice President John N. Garner was the presiding officer in the senate. The other new officers of senate and house all elected by the Democrats, were in their places.

Reds and Socialists Join Forces in War on Fascism

Moscow.—Two bitter political antagonists, the Communists and the Social Democrats, have joined forces temporarily in an effort to present a uniform fighting front against their common Fascist enemy in Germany and throughout the world. The action was signalled by the acceptance by the Comintern (the third Communist International) of a proposal to take a united stand against what is described as the strengthening of the Fascist reaction as exemplified by recent events in Germany.

Women's Golf Tourneys Awarded to West Coast

Chicago.—The Women's Western Golf association awarded its 1934 tournaments to the Pacific coast. The major championship tournament was awarded to the Los Angeles Country club, with the open tournament going to Portland, Ore. Dates will be set at a meeting of the association in October. Selection of the club to hold the open championship was left to the Portland committee.

DANIEL C. ROPER

Daniel C. Roper of South Carolina, secretary of commerce in the Roosevelt cabinet, has held many public offices, his last previous one being commissioner of internal revenue.

HITLER PLANS RULE WITHOUT REICHSTAG

Victory in Elections Gives Nazis Full Power.

Berlin.—Backed by his overwhelming victory in the reichstag election, Chancellor Adolf Hitler attacked the task of reshuffling his government, which official circles predicted, will rule Germany unimpeded by any reichstag session for two years.

In all likelihood Hitler will be the next premier of Prussia, the largest state of the reich, at the same time continuing as chancellor, one of his close advisers said.

The cabinet met to set the date for the first meeting of the new reichstag, in which the combined National Socialists and Nationalists have a majority. After a brief session the national legislature was expected to shut up shop for two years.

Whatever happens the chancellor's advisers said, Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen will not assume the premiership of Prussia, but probably will become foreign minister, succeeding Baron Konstantin von Neurath. The Nazi swastika emblem was hoisted on one of the four flagpoles of the reichstag, but was removed on orders from the house inspector.

At Karlsruhe Nazis demanded immediate resignation of the Baden government and appointment of a Hitlerite to head a new administration.

Munich, Bavaria.—Two waiters were arrested here on a charge of having plotted the assassination of Chancellor Hitler.

State Funeral Held in Senate for T. J. Walsh

Washington.—The dignity befitting a state funeral and the colorful ritual of the Roman Catholic church marked the services held in the senate chamber for the late Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, who, but for his sudden death, would have been attorney general in the Roosevelt cabinet.

President Roosevelt sat in a seat of honor close by the silver coffin where it reposed, banked with flowers, in front of the presiding officer's rostrum.

On the rostrum itself Archbishop Curley of Baltimore, in the magenta vestments of his churchly office, read the service.

The black robed justices of the United States supreme court and the gold headed commanders of the military and naval services formed a background for the family and friends of the late senator grouped beside the coffin.

The services over, the casket was taken to the train for the journey to Helena, Mont., where Senator Walsh was to be buried among the people he had represented for 20 years.

Maniac in Cleveland Kills Two, Wounds Ten

Cleveland.—Three men were killed, ten wounded here as Herman Klink, twenty-nine, a maniac, spread death with an automatic rifle. He killed Louis Kelley, a tailor and Roy Kneale, a street car inspector. Klink was slain by a fusillade of police bullets.

It was learned later that Klink had brooded over the belief that the United States was persecuting him for not paying an income tax when he had no money.

Fires scattered over the countryside added to the night of terror.

Death loss was heaviest from Santa Ana across the greater metropolitan Los Angeles area to Long Beach.

Long Beach bore the brunt of the shocks. Sixty-five bodies were reported recovered from ruins in the business and waterfront areas. Authorities estimated the death toll in Long Beach would reach nearer 100 and the injured 1,000.

In Los Angeles, twelve were known dead. Hospitals were filled with 3,000 injured.

Sixteen major shocks were reported with several hundred minor ones.

Relief Mobilized.

Under order of Governor James Rolph, Jr., relief was mobilized from all over the state. President Roosevelt, in Washington, extended the aid of the government to relieve distressed.

Terrific convulsion extended from San Diego to Santa Barbara, some 200 miles, and from the coast inshore for some thirty miles.

A mighty upheaval in the ocean, southwest of Long Beach, was believed to have been the center of the disturbance.

The spearhead of death and destruction reached from Santa Ana, in Orange county, to Hermosa Beach, in Los Angeles county, with its point in the downtown district of Los Angeles.

Chinese Troops Form Last Line of Defense

Peiping, China.—The defeated Chinese army, driven back from Jehol City, has formed a defense line against possible invasion of China proper and will make its last stand 20 miles south of Koupeikow, Marshal Chang Hsiao-Liang's headquarters said.

Koupeikow guards a gate through the Great Wall, 65 miles northeast of here and 50 miles south of Jehol City. Jehol province troops clashed at Hsifengkuo Pass, 45 miles southeast of Jehol city, and at Weichang, near Chihfeng.

Chang's headquarters received word that Tang Yu-Lin, governor of Jehol, had been seen near Koupeikow. A detachment of troops was sent there to arrest him for desertion.

The conquest of Jehol puts the Japanese within 70 miles of Peiping.

Rebellion in Cuba Is Reported and Denied

Havana, Cuba.—Private advices report that the three eastern provinces, Santa Clara, Camaguey, and Oriente, are in rebellion. The government insists there is no official news.

Communication is cut off beyond Matanzas, next province east of Havana. Havana military censorship is enforced and the department of the interior has ordered the closing of all newspapers in the eastern provinces to prevent publication of news "harmful to government interests."

However, reports from private sources and from refugees arriving in Havana tell of intermittent guerrilla warfare which is spreading towards Matanzas, Havana, and Pinar Del Rio provinces.

Joined Her in Looking for the Fire Escape

Two lady school teachers from Brookline, spending their summer year exploring western Canada, stopped at a small and old-fashioned hotel in Alberta recently.

One of the pair was inclined to be worrisome when traveling, and she couldn't rest until she had made a tour of the corridors to hunt for fire exits in case of fire. The first door she opened, unfortunately, turned out to be that of the public bath, occupied by an elderly gentleman taking a shower.

"Oh, excuse me," the lady stammered, flushed, "I'm looking for the fire escape." Then she ran for it.

To her dismay, she hadn't got along the corridor when she heard a shout from behind her and, looking around, saw the gentleman, wearing only a towel, running after her. "Where's the fire?" he bellowed. Washington Labor.

All-Conquering Motor to Supersede Railway?

Can old railway tracks, no longer required for their original purpose, be made useful as a motorway?

It is a question which railway engineers are asking, and as old tracks are being abandoned owing to lack of traffic it becomes a very practical one.

An answer to it has been found in the United States, where experiments are being made to convert old railway tracks into a modern road.

LIGHTS OF NEW YORK by WALTER TRUMBULL

It was when Rudolph Bischoff, now of New York's Westbury, ran the Tri-annon palace at Versailles, that there arrived a short man, with a pointed reddish beard and a head as free from hair as a large, pink pearl.

"I like," he explained, "to change the color of my room in accordance with my moods."

But it became evident that the mind of the fish fancier was not at ease.

A week after his departure, Mr. Bischoff received a telegram. It said that d'Annunzio had a presentment that the fish was dying and asked for a report on its health.

Back came another telegram from d'Annunzio. It thanked Mr. Bischoff for his sympathy and asked him to bury the goldfish in the garden.

In some ways this is reminiscent of the Manhattan man and the canary bird, to which his wife was extremely attached.

PREPARING RICE AND MERINGUES

Problem Not Hard Once You Learn the Secret.

I am going to let the reader of this column see the answer to a number of questions which have come to me by letters during the last few weeks.

"HOME-AGAIN"

We've never had any children—no one but each other. We've always been poor, all our lives, so we didn't mind. At the home, he lives in the 'Men's Building.' I live in the 'Women's Building.' We saw each other for two hours every Sunday," remarked Nancy. "What are you going to do with us?" asked John.

"I don't know. You must wait here until I return. I am a new member, you see, and my pleas for you might not have much effect. When the board met yesterday, there was much comment going on over your disappearance. I begged them to let me try to find you—and here I am," replied Miss Ross.

"What will you do now?" Nancy again repeating John's question. "You must wait and see," Miss Ross exclaimed, as she rose to leave.

John took Miss Ross to the door and again begged her to tell the board to leave them spend the remainder of their old days in their cottage. Nancy could not move from the chair. She seemed to be paralyzed. John could be seen pacing the floor—up and down—as the long hours passed slowly. He also kept looking and watching out the window for their approaching fate.

Finally they could see the car appear at a distance. Would Miss Ross be alone? Or would there be someone else who would try and take them away?

She was not alone. A man sat beside her. John's face had a look of despair as he turned to Nancy. Her eyes were closed. At the sound of footsteps outside the door, Nancy opened her eyes. Just then John admitted Miss Ross, and a man in a uniform.

"No police in the land can take me," Nancy whispered, with dry, white lips. The man in the uniform was carrying a large covered basket, which Miss Ross took from him saying.

"Thank you Jones. You needn't wait. Come back for me later as I informed you."

Miss Ross, then handed the basket to John Hogan. He looked at Miss Ross—at Nancy—and at the heavy basket.

"Ah!" John said. "It's a ton of bricks you brought us."

"Why, what a thought," exclaimed Miss Ross.

"What are you going to do with us?" Until Nancy had that question settled, she could say no other words.

In but a short time Miss Ross started emptying the things from the basket. John surely could see now why he thought the basket contained bricks.

"See,"—said Miss Ross, "I have brought you pork, potatoes, cranberries, oranges, biscuits, jelly and a mince pie. I also have something much better."

Nancy forgetting all her troubles exclaimed, "What could be better in all the world, then the basket of food which you brought us?" remarked Nancy.

Nancy's old spirit was returning. She was beginning to feel much stronger and her courage had returned again.

"Now I will tell you about the message from the board members," said Miss Ross. "I went to the man who owns this cottage, and he has agreed to let you live here for the rest of your days. So everything has been arranged."

"Oh, M'am. Oh, you darling," Nancy's hoarse voice exclaimed. Both John and Nancy were so happy that they could live at their cottage the rest of their days, that they were not able to express their feelings in words.

"This is a great pleasure for me," explained Miss Ross, "to be able to tell you that you can remain in your cottage and I'll see that you get all the provisions you need."

"That's not necessary," remarked Nancy. "We can manage very nicely about the food, John and I. Just a bit of bread, potato, and a nip of tea is all that is necessary for us."

Nancy and John were not worrying about food. They were rejoicing over the fact that they were able to spend the rest of their days together in their cottage. Nancy's plan surely did work out after all.

THE END

HOW INFLATION AFFECTS US

The value of money is high, which means that in terms of goods, gold is dear and prices low.

Most indebtedness is contracted during a period of high prices.

If the dollars with which the farmer hopes to pay his debts grow to twice their value when the debt was incurred, he is going to be obliged to produce twice as much as he had planned in order to pay his obligation.

So far as meeting the demands of creditors is concerned, the farmer, like every other debtor, would profit immediately by inflation.

Farmers have often favored inflation for two principal reasons: first farm prices go lower than any prices during a period of depression; second, farmers are rather heavily in debt and their indebtedness is of a long time character.

Economic Highlights

Happenings That Affects the Dinner Pails, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual. National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare.

Headline news has surrounded the widespread bank holidays which spread from Michigan and Louisiana to Oregon, California, New York and other states, and finally culminated with the general holiday declared by the President. In no instances were these accompanied by any widespread public uneasiness. There has been nothing remote resembling panic. Holidays were declared to give time to prepare and pass legislation designed to protect deposits.

Immediately preceding the general bank holiday trade reviews reported steady improvement in the business picture. Favorable factors outnumbered the unfavorable—a very definite change from conditions of a few months ago. Bradstreet's pointed to better bank clearings, as compared with a year ago, the decline in business failures, signs of stability in the wholesale food price index and the evident satisfaction of industry in general over action taken to repeal prohibition.

A noticeable strengthening of the public morale—shown, for example, in improved security prices—accompanied the inauguration of President Roosevelt. Further strengthening of confidence resulted from the constructive inaugural address in which the President made a flat-footed stand for sound money.

A note of hopefulness is sounded by leaders of the oil industry. Advances in prices, especially in the mid-continent field, are expected in the immediate future. Good signs is the concerted effort by the industry and state officials to keep illegal oil out of the market.

Bad sign, so far as the industry and most motorists are concerned, is that higher gas taxes—which now range from 3 to 12 cents a gallon—are contemplated in 18 states.

While the wage commission is still deadlocked in the anthracite coal industry's wage dispute, a movement has been gaining momentum among the miners to increase employment and markets through lower wages.

Since 1912 wages of hard coal miners have increased, on the average, 310 per cent. In addition, the eight-hour day has replaced the ten-hour day. It is widely believed that anthracite can regain its lost market if the price is lowered—wages must then drop accordingly.

In connection with this, it is interesting to note that a division of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers forecasts that use of oil and gas for energy production will double within 20 years and that use of coal will steadily decline.

Farm prices have been steady. Changes have been small, with cotton, grain and cattle up, and eggs, butter, veal calves, hides and potatoes down.

Agricultural credit extended by the three banking systems under the supervision of the Federal Farm Loan Board increased by over $36,000,000 last year. Late proposed plan to aid agriculture is that the government lease 50,000,000 acres of land and keep them out of production for a year.

Late reports on major industries show: RAILROADS—Car loadings good early in 1933.

LUMBER—Leaders hopeful of slight improvement in next two months.

STEEL—Immediate outlook uncertain, due to almost complete absence from market of the railroads and the indefinite future of the purchasing by motor industry.

TOBACCO—First effect of price-cutting by "big four" 15c cigarette makers, was shown in January figures, when sales of "roll-your-own" declined 9.2 per cent as against 3.8 per cent in "ready-mades."

AUTOMOBILES—Sales fairly satisfactory for this time of year. Seasonal decline in production has occurred.

Unemployment in GERMANY now smaller than a year ago, with business fairly stable on low level. Production index has strengthened in FRANCE.

SWISS business marking time; unfavorable trade balance rose last year. CANADIAN business quiet. Business stagnant in PHILIPPINES. Business trend is strong in AUSTRALIA, with government finances improved. INDO-CHINESE foreign trade slightly improved.

To sow seed in a soil of unknown fertility, is much like investing money in securities of unknown values. Before seeding alfalfa, soils workers urge that the soil be tested to determine whether the soil can properly grow the crop.

Weekly News Letter From Washington

By Michael K. Reilly, M. C.

The fourth of March, 1933, was a great day in Washington, notwithstanding the hard times. In the opinion of old observers never before in our history have so many people come to Washington to be present at the beginning of a new Administration.

It was the privilege of the writer to witness the inauguration of Woodrow Wilson on two occasions. Wilson's first Inauguration was likewise the beginning of a new political Era in Washington, but the crowds which came to Washington on last Saturday far exceeded the gathering on March 4th, 1913.

President Roosevelt was sworn in on the east steps of the Capitol. It is probably true that in delivering his Inaugural Address, President Roosevelt had the privilege of addressing and standing in full view of the largest audience that any man has ever had the privilege of addressing in the whole history of recorded time.

It is estimated that between one hundred and twenty-five to one hundred and fifty thousand people were in a position to see and also to hear the newly elected President as he spoke, not to them alone, but to practically the whole civilized world, through a world wide radio hook-up.

Early in the morning, as the writer was on his way to the House Office Building, people were gathering with blankets, cushions and camp chairs to patiently await the hour of one o'clock, when they would have the privilege of seeing the next President of the United States, and hearing what he had to say in the way of plans and remedies for the bringing about of a brighter economic day.

The parade which followed shortly after the completion of the Inaugural Address required about four hours to pass the reviewing stand occupied by the President and other notables.

From the standpoint of comfort and the taking care of the visitors who desired seats, the preparation for this Inaugural far exceeded the preparation of any former fourth of March goings.

Heretofore uncovered seats which sold for two dollars a piece were the only conveniences offered to those who wished a little comfort in viewing the long parade, but the Inaugural Committee, having in charge the proceedings on last Saturday, constructed huge covered stands, and there were only a few uncovered seats. The seats ranged in price from two to seven dollars, and all were sold out, except a few of the seven dollar seats.

Four years ago the large crowd that viewed the inauguration of President Hoover stood or sat for hours in a drenching rain and most of them had to spend a part of the day afterwards drying their clothes.

Washington in March is not a very good place for outdoor doings, because no one can tell when it will rain, and with the result that on Inauguration Days, no matter what Party's candidate was in the spotlight, the Heaven's frequently wept.

It is altogether probable that the inauguration held on last Saturday will be the last outdoor Inaugural ceremonies, which will ever be held in this country. Hereafter the President will be inaugurated on the twentieth of January, and as a general proposition weather conditions are not such at that time as to permit outdoor ceremonies.

Washington and the whole country will always look back to the week following Mr. Roosevelt's inauguration as a time of stress, when events moved so swiftly as almost to be beyond understanding. Inauguration on Saturday, the new President, because of the banking and finance situation, after a conference with the political, financial and industrial leaders, exercised powers granted to the President by a war statute of 1917, declared a gold embargo, and a bank holiday for the whole country. Such powers in time of peace have never before been necessary to be exercised by a President of the United States, but while these are peace times, as far as the world is concerned, they are in fact war times as regards the turmoil and trouble that wrecks our industrial and financial world.

The first session of the 73rd Congress, which assembled on Thursday of this week at the call of the President has already proved to be an epoch making session. In the first place this session convened at a time the likes of which have never occurred in all our history, except during and proceeding war periods. The convened Congress received a message from the President asking for powers only conferred upon a chief executive in times of war, such demand for powers being as the result of economic conditions, such as our country has never experienced.

On Thursday the day on which Congress convened, the House and Senate passed in five hours without a recess vote, a bill setting up a bank dictatorship for the benefit of the country. Congress is of the opinion that this is not a time for discussion, but it is a time for action, and that the way to get action is to entrust power to an individual. Of course, it is understood that that individual will take counsel and advice from the best sources which he can command, but the idea is that when he calls for action, our mind only will have to be convinced.

MAKE THE BANKS SAFE

It takes a long time for a democracy like ours to get into action. Once it does get into action, however, it is sometimes pretty fast, which has been the case the past two weeks. It took the people a long time to make up their minds that the war which began in Europe in 1914 was our war. But after we had reached that decision no nation in the world ever moved as unitedly and as speedily in carrying out its purpose.

It has taken the people of the United States and their leaders a long time to come to realization of the fact that the banking and financial structure of the nation should be completely overhauled and reorganized. A great many people have been saying that for years, but in a Government like ours it requires the general agreement of practically all the people to bring about any important and radical change in any part of our governmental system.

We think that general agreement has now been reached in regard to the banking situation. We think the new Congress and the new Administration have the people of the United States solidly behind them in their purpose to put into effect such changes in the banking and fiscal laws of the nation as will not only straighten out the present difficulties, but prevent their recurrence in the future.

We do not think that the time has come for the Federal Government to go into the commercial banking business, but we do think there is a good deal of merit in the idea that all banks should be under Federal supervision and control. It may be a constitutional amendment to take the states out of the banking business and we are doubtful whether such a proposal could be adopted.

The function of a bank is to furnish short term credits for productive business purposes. Practically all of the banking troubles of today are due to the banks' departure from that sound elementary principle. They have just money on real estate, or on securities based on real estate, or on securities of other kinds of highly inflated valuation, with the result that the money of their depositors has been frozen in loans which cannot be collected.

If the new Administration can speedily enact measures which will restore confidence in the banks and eliminate from control all men who have not a high sense of trustworthiness, that will do more to expiate confidence than anything else that could be done. Some of the speedy action that the present Administration has already taken the past two weeks has brought back the confidence of the people and as quick as the sound local banks are given permission to open, people in the respective countries will again flock back to the bank to re-deposit their money. Great things can be looked forward to. The smiles on everyone's face today shows that prosperity is near.

Canned vegetables, with the exception of tomatoes, do not enter extensively into foreign trade channels, either as imports or exports. The canned industry, therefore, is directly dependent upon the domestic market.
