WISCONSIN CHEESE EXCHANGE
Plymouth, Wis., April 14.—On the Wisconsin Cheese Exchange today 170 boxes of cheese were offered for sale and all sold as follows: 120 Twins at 3-4c and 50 Daisies at 10-14c, State Brand. One-half cent less was suggested for Standard Brand. The sales a year ago today were 495 Twins at 3½c and 50 daisies at 5c.

Several farms in a Wisconsin county discovered that their clover fields were heavily infested with Doeder. The seed was purchased from strangers who peddled from farm to farm. The state feed laboratory is suggesting that to avoid similar trouble farmers buy their seeds from well established and reliable seedsmen.

Economic Highlights

Happenings That Affect the Dinner Pails, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual, National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare.

Among the most significant and outstanding developments of the moment is the continued improvement in the banking situation. The return flow of gold, reduction in circulation (when money in circulation is unusually high it means widespread hoarding and is of course an unfavorable sign) and decline in borrowings from the Federal Reserve have been little short of sensational. Banks which were kept closed after the holidays, or which operated on a restricted basis, are reopening in all parts of the country. In 10 days ending March 25, 265 national banks with $350,000,000 in deposits had been reorganized or strengthened so that they could reopen their doors.

Bankers are preparing to meet revolutionary changes in practices. These, according to present indications, will have two main phases: First, the separation of banking functions by divorcing investment and trust banking from commercial banking; second, unifying of commercial banking under a national system, either through forcing all banks into the Federal Reserve or by legislating State banks out of existence. Bulk of leading bankers are favorable to these proposals.

Beer has become legal in states comprising about 69,000,000 people. It will become legal at various dates within the next four months in a group of other states. States which are still unfriendly to beer and are regarded as likely to remain so, comprise but about 12,000,000 of our population.

The principal reasons for immediate legalization of beer were the jobs it would provide, the money it would put to work. Indications are, shortly after its appearance, that it is living up to expectations.

First result has been a sharp jump in employment, sizable revenues to the federal, state and local governments, and an increase in spending—not only for beer, but for other articles. Railroads have hired additional crews to man beer trains. Related businesses—such as the manufacture of bottles and mugs—report a sharp pickup. Thousands of men are working at remodeling old breweries and building new.

Reliable figures will be difficult to obtain for some time—until the novelty of "beer is back" has worn off and stabilization of the industry sets in. It seems, however, that it will do much in helping the causes of employment, purchasing power and governmental revenue.

In accord with President Roosevelt's habit of doing the exceptional, is his calling of the leaders of the principal powers to Washington. Invitations have been sent Hitler, Mussolini, Mc Donald and the presidents and premiers of France, China, Japan, Brazil and other countries. Others, it is said, will follow later. Subject will be world recovery, and international cooperation for achieving it. The representatives of the governments will not hold round-table discussions—they will talk separately with Mr. Roosevelt.

Importance of world trade was the subject of a statement by Secretary Hull which at once followed the Presidential announcement. He said it is high time, to call a halt to existing world tariff policies, pointed to the fact that America's share of the world trade that has been lost in the last few years totals about $6,000,000,000—a volume of business which means the difference between depression and comparative prosperity.

The industrial picture is mixed. However, it is much improved over what it was a few months ago, even disregarding the favorable consequences of the legalization of beer. Retail trade is improving. During a recent week electric power production made the most favorable comparison with 1932 for some time.

During the last few days in March and early April a definite sales upturn in the automobile industry was registered. The industry sees this as an indication of a normal month during April now that banking difficulties are settling and financing can continue unimpeded. Increased requirements have already reflected in substantial gains in steel ingot production.

On the black side is the gradual shutting down of American copper mines—indeed when this is read there may not be a single one in production. Producers are simply unable to operate at present price levels. It is believed that a temporary complete shut-down would improve the picture.

The railroad's net profit is appreciably below the 1932 level, which was extremely low. Much hope is placed in the working out of the Administration's railroad program.

Fork liver, beef liver, and lamb liver have such the same food value as calf liver, even though they are not nearly so expensive, reports from the home economics department at the University of Wisconsin say.

Business Always Looks Dark to He Who Waits

Easy chairs went out of style almost two years ago. Getting business today requires action. Business staffs are too small and the business man does not have hours enough to personally go out after every piece of business to be had—through hustling. That is where the printed word works most effectively for him. And the cost of selling is so much less—upon strained budgets. Printing prices in our store are also down, but there's no let down in the quality of the work. Prompt service too. We are geared for speed, waiting here.

Hunt for Gold in Old Mining Camps

Helena, Mont.—The search for gold has carried many present-day prospectors back to the boom camps of early Montana. The Dexter lode, on which a survey was filed in 1898, has been the scene of extensive prospecting lately.

Many other camps, long since abandoned and their buildings destroyed or moved away, are busy with new gold seekers these days.

fray—if one there is to be—shabbily equipped. In its last annual statement, the Chase National bank reported resources totaling $1,856,200,000 as of December 31 last, with deposits to the amount of $1,403,000,000.

In addition to these mighty resources of the bank itself must be reckoned the vast wealth of the Rockefeller, including their holdings in the great Standard Oil concerns.

Wall Street gossip has it that the Rockefeller have been girding "for eventualities," such as that envisioned in the present situation for the last two years.

On the other hand the value of the so-called "Morgan stocks," have been melting down steadily in the long receding sweep of the share market for the last two and one-half years.

Winthrop Aldrich was born in the purple in America's plutocracy. His father was the late Nelson W. Aldrich, senator from Rhode Island from 1881 to 1911 and popularly rated as the senatorial custodian of capitalistic enterprise.

Big Battle of Bankers Looming in Wall Street

New "Man of Hour" Defies Power of Morgan.

New York—It looks like the banker's "battle of the century" may be brewing in the Wall Street financial district.

A new "man of the hour" has arisen to challenge the supremacy of the great house of Morgan, long king-pin of the country's banking system and nearby observers are predicting the greatest struggle of money titans in the history of American finance before the smoke of battle has cleared away.

The author of the startling def is Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the governing board of the biggest individual bank in the world, the Chase National, and a front rank captain of the Rockefeller industrial-financial dynasty, generally acknowledged as the only worthy competitors of the Morgans on this side of the Atlantic.

The challenge was couched in the form of a program designed to purge the commercial banking business of the taint of speculative leadership, aiming at the complete separation of deposit banking and investment banking even to the extent of forbidding private bankers to take deposits or to be directors of banks of deposit.

Aimed at Morgan.

It did not take a second glance for Wall Street to recognize the Aldrich program which was promulgated directly in the wake of some of the most sensational exposures of the senate's investigation into banking practices here as a blow aimed directly at the position of J. P. Morgan & Co., the members of which are directors of some of the largest commercial banks of the city and who hold important foreign and domestic deposits.

Three measures for curbing the power of the large private investment banking firms were proposed by Aldrich. 1. By depriving private investment banking firms of the right to accept deposits, make it necessary for the private banks to obtain credit from the commercial banks in financing their security flotations. 2. By doing away with the security affiliates of the commercial banks, the proposed regulations would take away from the private banks outlets for the syndication of their securities which in the past have been of such tremendous importance. 3. By removing all private bankers from their positions as directors of the commercial banks the changes would greatly reduce the prestige, influence, and "inside information" available to the partners of investment houses at present.

Well informed students of the situation say that legislation applying these innovations to Morgan & Co. and similar private bankers would virtually strip them of the control they have so long wielded over the commercial banking system.

J. P. Morgan & Co. does not accept individual deposits but specializes rather in big corporation accounts for foreign governments. At one time it is reported to have held as much as a billion of United States Steel corporation money. Other so-called Morgan banks, like the Guaranty Trust company, Bankers' Trust company, and the First National also attract big deposits and wield tremendous power in the financial world.

Obviously the "Morgan crowd" will not lack ammunition for any defense it may be called upon to make of its politics, at least none that money can command.

Nor will its opponents go into the

Slump Brings Out Rare Pennies, Good and Bad

New York.—Penny wisdom among unemployed here, plus the help of two young men, has resulted in one of the most unusual depression sports on record. The young men have given the game a trick monicker, numismania.

The game began some months ago when W. T. Dudley and Francis P. Cashiers at one of the three penny restaurants run for unemployed and newly discovered that some of the money turned in was unusual. The cashiers started collecting these pieces until now they have more than 400, many worthless, some of nominal numismatic value, but all interesting.

The collectors are the most proud of two coins that are of no commercial worth. One is an imitation penny, dated 1863, and a perfect Indian head in design, save that on its back is the frank legend, "Not One Cent."

The other is an Indian head penny whose top design has been obliterated to be replaced by the etched figure of a Chinese mandarin beneath whose feet are the words, "So Long"—some one's good luck piece that the depression brought into general circulation.

Next War Will End Speedily

New Devices Add to Horrors, Says Noted General.

London.—The next war will take as many weeks as the last war took years and civilization will be blotted out. That is the picture Gen. Sir Ian Hamilton, a famous British military leader and chief of the British legion, drew in a speech to the British veterans of the World war.

"As you, being soldiers, probably know," he reminded them, "I made—first after the South African war and next after the Manchurian war—some pretty good shots about the World war and foreheaded big guns, trench warfare, tanks, and the disappearance from European battlefields of shock cavalry.

"So now," he said, "I hope to gain your credence for my forecast of the course of the next war which won't be long in coming if the disarmament conference breaks down.

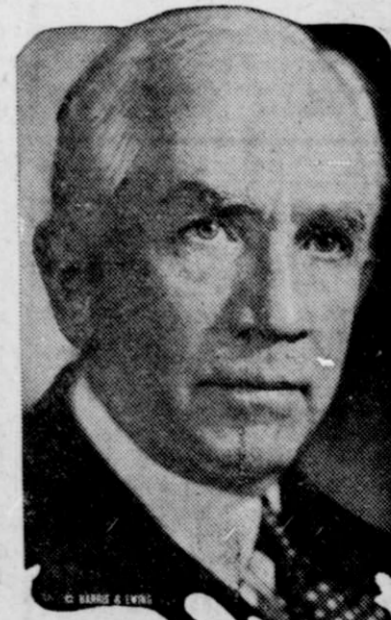

"The war will be over in as many weeks as your war took years. The huge masses of infantry on either side will never get into contact.

"The whole of the mechanized motor-driven forces of either side will meet at once under the sea, in the air, and on the land.

"Each will be, must be, rushing forward to seize an advanced base for their airdromes and oil depots on enemy soil. That first encounter will almost certainly decide the war. The victorious tanks and airplanes will eat up the hostile infantry and artillery as half a dozen heavily armored knights of the wars of the Jacquerie could and did eat up a thousand armed, but unarmored, peasants.

"Then they will begin to lap up the civilian population as a cat laps up cream, and perhaps the worst of all these evils will be the civilian plane laden with chemicals.

Burns Baby to Death, Attempts to Kill Wife

Allegan, Mich.—Cecil Dostie, twenty-seven years old, apparently becoming suddenly insane, stuffed his eight-month-old son in a kitchen stove at their home at Dumont Lake and burned him to death.

Dostie attempted to strangle his wife when she returned from the home of a neighbor and was told by her three other children that the baby had been killed. She was saved by two fishermen who heard her screams and overpowered her husband.

Prospecting for Old Ivory Tusks Lucrative

Wrangell, Alaska.—Prospecting for "white gold"—fossil ivory tusks of the hairy mammoth—is still a lucrative enterprise in parts of Alaska and Siberia.

It is estimated that select tusks from about 20,000 mammoths have reached ivory markets of the world since the conquest of Siberia by the Russians.

Eskimo hunters and white miners in Alaska have added many more. Due to their finer texture and peculiar "old ivory" pallor well preserved tusks of the mammoth are more valuable than elephant ivory.

Burglar Apes Rabbit

Portland, Ore.—This burglar's ruse was almost like a rabbit running into a hole and pulling it in after him. For several days he entered through a cleverly sawed hole in a floor, stole $1,800 worth of goods from the store, and replaced the "lid" so that no one could find his place of entry.

Introducing the Hindu to Unfertilized Eggs

Hindu eggs, or eggs without life, saved the appropriation for a poultry experiment station in India, because of the sudden recognition of a practice with which Americans are familiar. The American produces fertile eggs, not because the eggs are more holy but because unfertilized eggs keep better. W. H. Wisner, a former missionary and now a student of the New York state college of agriculture, explains the dilemma of the experiment station director because the Hindus refuse to eat either chickens or their eggs. Eating an egg would be destroying life.

The station director set aside a number of hens in a separate pen and kept the roosters away from them so the hens would lay unfertilized eggs, or eggs that would not hatch. A number of Hindu officials were invited to the station and were shown the various breeds and crosses, and even the famous fighting breed, the Assels; the trap-nest birds where hens were tested for egg laying records interested the officials. But the pen which, it was explained, laid Hindu eggs amazed the crowd.

"You see, there are no roosters in this yard," but the Hindus questioned as to how that could be. They were shown eggs, set under hens for weeks, that would not hatch.

Although the Hindu officials would not eat the eggs, they felt that they would be happy to do so, and at least they might have cake made with them. Anyway, Mr. Wisner says, the recollection of unfertilized eggs breaks down one more superstition and the experiment station continues its work.

Everyone accepts the fact that Bayer Aspirin is the swiftest form of relief for headaches, neuralgia, meningitis, periodic pain, and other suffering. If you've tried it, you know. But one need hesitate to take these tablets because of their speed. They are perfectly safe. They will not depress the heart. They have no effect of any kind. The rapid relief they bring is due to the rapidity with which they dissolve.

So, keep these tablets handy, to keep your engagements—free from pain or discomfort. Carry the pain for emergencies; buy the lot of 100 for its economy. The reduced price has removed the last reason for trying any substitute for genuine Bayer Aspirin—each tablet stamped with this cross:

That's the Trouble

Backbone requires so much rest of us than wishbone.

Lost Vital Nerve Force

YOU lose vital nerve force if you allow your stomach to distress you. Acid stomach, indigestion, gas or flatulence, and "constitiveness," cause the blood to be poisoned and will eventually destroy health and nerve force.
