'Diamonds may be white, or yellow or tinted with almost any shade of alnost any color, but each is usually of the same color throughout. The There sa diamond was remarkable because it was white on one side and almost a cream color on the other. The crystal was almost perfect sphere with its yellow and white sides separated by a

"The son reported that the Theresa consin diamond, so far as is known which has been cut. It had been cut in 1918 by a New York firm into 10 small stones, some white, some cream to yellow in color.

"The Theresa diamond could not be cut into one large stone because of several imperfections or inclusions in it, but, due to its pecularity of color and the location of the flaw it was easily separated with little loss. By having it cut into 10 small stones much of the diamond was saved, the accumulated weights of the 10 stones being 9.27 carats, whereas but one-third of the original weight of a rough diamond is usally preserved in the cut and polished stone. The approximate cost of having the Theresa diamond cut was $400 The small stones have been distributed among members of the Endlich family."

NCE there was an unmistakable Reuben Glue who 'stood on a busy Corner in the Big Settlement, just where he was a Hazard for all Pedestrians. He wore a Linen Duster and carried a Carpet Bag with Red Flowers on it. The bristly Gosh-ding-its forked straight out from the Sub-maxillary and he sported a droopy Straw Hat with a Shoe-string around it. Knowing that he was under Observation by the City Folks he started in to live up to his Reputation. After rubbering at a Tall Building, with the mouth open, he exclaimed: "Gosh all Firewood! Majolica Ware First Produced in Majorca It is generally claimed that the word "majolica" was derived from the island of Majorca, whence the first pieces of this ceramic ware were imported to Italy. The term majolica has become a very confused and indefinite expression and used with different meanings. The term, in its first application, referred only to the early Italian luster-ware, made (Fifteenth century) with transparent siliceous glaze and outer surface of metallic sheen in imitation of the luster-ware of Hispano-Moresque creation. Later the boy." early enamel-covered and color-decorated wares of Italy were called ma- the spending." jolica regardless of metallic luster surface, and the luster-ware having oriental style of form and treatment was termed mezza-majolica. The term in modern times has been vulgarized into a broader definition, including practically everything in ceramics having the usual coating of glaze, and painted decoration.

World War President Deeply Concerned With Necessity for Religious Faith

Woodrow Wilson was "a conservative orthodox Presbyterian." Son of Rev. Joseph R. Wilson, it is said that his election to the Presidency was predicted for him by his parent. The boy was born and reared in a parsonage. His first teacher was his mother, Janet or Jessie Woodrow, daughter and grand-daughter of Presbyterian clergymen. Later he went to school to his father, than to Davidson college and Princeton university. Deciding upon teaching as his life work. he lectured after graduation at Bryn Mawr, Wesleyan and Princeton. He became president of his alma mater in 1902, the first layman ever to hold that position. When at last he was elected to the highest office in the gift of the American people he found his faith a necessity; without it, he said, he could not go on. Also a Bit of Inside Information on Pie Making.

By EDITH M. BARBER

"Can I really have pie, mother?" was the delighted and astonished question the other day, asked by a child at the dinner table when dessert was served and he was allowed to have a slice from the family dessert, instead having his own special custard. The crust, you see, was made of plain vanilla wafers ground so fine that they could be pressed into a pie pan to form

The filling in this case was that quick lemon custard made of condensed milk and egg yolks which needs no cooking. The whites were used for a meringue which was put over the ple and baked fifteen minutes in a slow oven, and then the pie was chilled geveral hours in the refrigerator.

By the way, a reader writes to ask how she can make a tender fluffy meringue. This depends on two things -the amount of sugar and the tem perature of browning. One table spoon of sugar-1 prefer granulatedto each egg white makes a fluffy high meringue if it is baked at a temperature not higher than 325 degrees F It will do just as well if the temperature is lowered to 300 degrees F., but it takes somewhat longer to brown. The addition of more sugar makes a meringue with more flavor-more like a frosting but it will not be so high.

Several readers have asked for more information about cracker pie crust. A very good, fool-proof crust can be made of almost any cracker or cookie which is not too rich but most of them need the addition of melted butter and sugar to make them hold together. Do no worry if your mixture doesn't look like the usual pastry-it isn't supposed to! It will look much too soft, but you will find that you can press it into your pan quite easily. I think I like particularly well the graham cracker crust, which is so popular with a cream filling or with fruit covered with whipped cream. These crusts which have sugar added are quite like the pastry which is known as Viennese. A successful crust can also be "Do you think it was any Snap to made by mixing the rolled crumbs earn to smoke these Cigarettes made | with condensed milk. Ginger wafers a whipped cream filling. He might not have missed them, he explained, as he sat in his favorite chair at the Lambs club, but his physician thought he had pneumonia. He made his first stage appearance the night of November 4, 1878, as Talbot Champney in the Criterion Comedy company's production of "Our Boys." He was the backer of the company. His favorite part of the many he has played was Old Bill in "The Better 'Ole," in which he appeared during the war. His most successful play was the comic opera "Wang," in which he starred during the '90s. Four years ago, he played to the largest house in his career. He was the star in a musical spectacle, which caused 41,000 people to crowd into the Atlantic City auditorium.

"I'll show you," said Moses, who did not understand the greater part of this speech but felt it, on the whole, unimportant whether he did or not. Removing the cover from his dinnerpail, and depositing on the seat beside him two apple cores, half a doughnut, a package of gum, a yard or so of twine, a jackknife and a Second Reader, he finally pulled out a piece of blue paper on the outside of which was written in large letters, "Two Poimes. "Moses and I were under the sofa, playing lion, only Mary and Thomas didn't know it," said Algy, in an illuminating aside.

"She shook hands, nice and polite, like she's taught us to do it." continued Moses. "I don't know what more was wanted. But there was something. He said so."

"Twice," volunteered Algy. "And then he said, 'Mary, isn't there any chance for me at all?' and she said, 'No, I'm sorry, but there isn't." "And Thomas," continued the faithful chorus, "said, 'Wasn't there ever any chance for anyone except Paul?" and Mary stiffened up and said, 'Paul threw his chance away."

"What happened next?" asked Gale, feeling very much as if he had been eavesdropping himself.

"Thomas spoke right up as if he was kinder mad. 'Well,' he said, 'are you goin' on rememberin' that all the rest of your life, 'stead of that he tried good and hard and plenty to find it again?" "Ah!" remarked Gale.

"And then Mary told him she couldn't discuss it with him. He was home just for a few hours, before he went to France. That was most a year ago. No one's tried it on her since." "Suppose," said Gale, producing a crisp dollar bill, "that you boys go to Wallacetown with Morrison and have a spree? You might enjoy it and Ier-wouldn't run the risk of having any lions under the sofa while I was there!" Mary was very glad to see Gale Hamlin, and she did not attempt to disguise the fact. He told her a good deal of Boston news that pleased and interested her, while he drank the tea and ate the cookies that she brought him, before he asked her any questions. "How is Mrs. Starr? I want to see her, too!" "Oh, she's wonderful! So well, and so busy, and so happy with the baby! He's the loveliest little creature! Cousin Jane worships him, too. You must see him before you go. He isn't like a Manning at all-he's the image of his father."

"I am very glad she has him. Does she have good news of her brother,

"She doesn't have any."

Gale did not answer immediately. "I'm sorry if I've made a stupid mistake," he said at last. "You didn't mention any bad news, the last time you were in Boston."

"No-I don't often talk about Paul." "So I have observed," remarked Gale dryly.

Mary flared instantly. "Men are not fair to women," she said bitterly. "I'm sorry to say that's often true. But it's no reason why women shouldn't be fair to men. Two wrongs never made a right, you know."

"Are you trying to tell me what is right for me to do?" "I'm trying to tell you what is means "happiness."

wrong, it would be wicked if you never married."

"Wicked!" "For you-not for every woman."

"Why for me especially?" "You ought to guess. And I've seen you with men- I know how much charm you have, no matter how you try to hide it and how much power, no matter how little you choose to use it. And I've seen you with children-your patience and your wisdom and your loving kindness. Philip Starr has done wonderful things for the place-and the woman-he loved -by his death. But they're nothing to what you can do for the place and the man you may love by your life -if you only will." The girl rose suddenly and turned away from him. Gale crossed to her quickly, and put his hand on her shoulder. "So you refused Thomas Gray?" he asked quietly. "Yes. There was never any question of Thomas."

"Or of me?" "Yes, there was some question of you. I thought you knew that." "Will-could you answer it any dif-

"No "Or ever, do you think?" "No. I-I'm sure I never could."

"Then how are you going to answer Paul when he comes home?" "Paul isn't ever coming home," said Mary steadily -- so steadily, in fact, that a man who knew her less well than Gale Hamlin did would have been completely deceived by her tone, "What happened, Mary?" he asked gently. "Please tell me." "He was wounded last May," she said in a hard voice. "Not seriously. Cousin Violet had a letter, written by Paul himself in the hospital, saying the juvenile style parades which leadthe wound was just a scratch-that ing establishments through the counhe'd be out again for the next 'big try are presenting this season.

For Mary was weeping with the abandonment, the utter hopelessness, that marks the ultimate despair of those strong souls whose fortitude enables them to restrain their grief until it reaches its culmination, and the shattering of whose spirit is all the more tragic because it is so sudden. Gale Hamlin's heart twisted in his breast at the sight of her unrestraint and the thought of her agony. He knew he was powerless to help her except by surrounding her with the sense of his infinite compassion. It was a long time before she raised her head, and as she did so, still far from composed, the door was flung unceremoniously open and Algy and Moses entered noisily.

about to snatch much of the glory | tumes in the picture tell a story of last word chic when it comes to what the little miss of six or thereabouts will be wearing during the coming months. The first little girl has on a jacket-and-dress costume which will measure up in matter of "style" to mother's newest spring outfit. It is made of a two-tone red checked crepe of bemberg and rayon mixture. A perfectly stunning material this, which will endure any amount of hard wear. It's all "dolled up" with organdy fixings, too, as it should be to be stylish. The diminutive ocean pearl buttons on the collar and the pocket are just too cunning for words.

The demure little lady, seated in the enter of the picture, has on a frock which most any mother will be want ing to copy. The material for this darling dress is dotted chiffon of bemberg. Knitted costumes for sports and street are among the newest things shown in our move up and coming shops. And the big favorite now, the smart, "string knit," two and threepiece sports outfits made out of knitted twine in natural color have a knowing air that has taken the town by storm. And it's really twine-the kind you use to tie up packages. Its neutral color and its smart dull surface makes it one of the most popular fabrics for current sports costumes. Usually there is a touch of color-

Smart Frocks for Miss Six-Year-Old Fine Art of Soup Making Success or Failure in Preparation.

Soups are always a subject of controversy and discussion and they certainly do vary in quality.

They depend for flavor a good deal upon the appreciation of this point by the cook who makes them, as seasoning them properly is an art. I can give the foundation recipe but flour and butter. Cook the tomatoes the final touch of flavor is up to the with seasoning until tender, and rub person who prepares them.

Russian borscht, that vegetable soup add the tomatoes to the white sauce, whose principal ingredients are cab- stirring constantly. Serve at once, bage and beets. It takes its special character, however, from the sour cream, sometimes whipped, which is added at serving time. It is a deliclous soup for luncheon, where it practically provides a full course. With it are sometimes served small pastry turnovers stuffed with wellseasoned meat.

Another request was for recipes for split pea, Danish bean and lima bean soups. All of these soups are made on the same principle. The til light brown. Add to meat stock peas or beans are soaked, cooked un- with other vegetables. Simmer two til very tender, and passed through hours, season with vinegar, salt and a sieve. During the cooking, sliced pepper. Serve and add to each servonion, celery stalks, leaves, or seed, ing one tablespoon sour cream. a bit of bay leaf and thyme may be added. At this point there are a number of things which can be done to differentiate the soup one time from another. Meat stock, including ham stock, water or milk can be added. Sometimes a little vinegar or sliced lemon or horseradish may be added to the soup stock. Often a little "binder" of butter, mixed with flour, is added at the last moment to nold the soup smoothly together

Still another requested recipe was for a tomato soup-a very general request-for there are at least half a dozen different kinds, from a clear tomato bouillon to a thick potage. Probably the request refers to the favorite tomato bisque, which is made like all cream soups, with one exception. Cream soups are made by flavoring a smooth white sauce with strained cooked vegetable pulp, and please note-seasoning it very well. A bit of onion, a bay leaf, or a few cloves may be cooked with the tomato. After the tomatoes are strained and before they are added to the cream sauce, a dash of soda and a little sugar should be added. This prevents the sauce's separating.

After the soup is blended, add additional seasoning to taste. Here is where the last touch of seasoning makes the soup interesting. This applies, of course, to all soups as well as to tomato. Look at your pantry shelf and put those bottles of sauces and boxes of spices to good use to give the soup that extra flavor, del icate but individual.

To help the boys and girls in the 1,952 Wisconsin clubs last year, 2,334 men and women volunteered their services. In addition to that, 1,382 junior leaders assisting in supervising the

After the business and work are laid aside, the boys and girls in Wisconsin 4-H clubs organize recreation and amusement activities such as music clubs, drama groups, baseball leagues and the like. 2.5

At least 70 per cent of several trust funds administered by the state annulty and investment board must be invested hereafter in Wisconsin under a new law which Gov. Albert G. Schmedeman signed. The law specified that small loans on improved farm property be given preference, setting five per cent as the maximum interest rate on such loans maturing within 50 years and exempting farmers from paying installments on principal for the first three years.

With preference in the order named, the board is required to make loans to co-operative and mutual organizations and town mutual insurance companies on mortgages they hold.

Without a record vote, the assembly engrossed a bill reducing the interest rate on mortgage foreclosure judgments from 6 per cent to 3 per cent. As introduced by Assemblyman Donley, the bill scaled down the rate to 4 per cent but an assembly amendment made it 3 per cent. The Donley bill does not set a time limit and thus is not classed as an emergency measure. Some members opposed it, fearing the low interest rate might harm farmers' credit.

The senate killed two bills to revise the present highway law, one of which would have cut motor vehicle licenses in half beginning next January.

The bill to reduce license fees was killed, 25 to 3, after the rejection of an amendment which would have made the reduction effective only for an emergency period of two years. The other bill proposed that interest as well as principal on county highway bond issues be paid out of the state highway fund. It was defeated, 23 to 6.

The governor's veto of 12 items in the 1933-35 biennial budget bill was sustained by the Wisconsin senate. The governor's vetoes added $160,000 to the appropriations voted by the legislature making a total of $41,771,421 for all purposes during the two years beginning July 1.

Without a record vote the senate passed a bill to prohibit use of fats or oils other than those derived from milk in cheese compounds and would require labels on all such cheese compound containers.

The assembly refused to adopt legislation to make legal the apportionment of state aid to elementary schools as certified by John Callahan, state superintendent of public instruction, for the last two school years.

By a vote of 60 to 36 the house killed a committee bill which sought to restore the apportionment to a maximum of $850 a school, as it existed before 1931 when the legislature reduced the maximum to $600.

Callahan continued to certify school aids on the $850 basis, and this certification was held by the attorney general to be in violation of the statute. A recent resolution by Senator John Cashman, Denmark, brought out that 1,233 schools had been paid on the basis of the $850 maximum and that more than $340,000 of state aids had been incorrectly apportioned for 1933 alone.

The Peterson bill exempting tobacco stemming plants and canning factories from the provisions of the minimum wage and unemployment insurance laws for an emergency period of two years was killed by the assembly by a vote which represented a complete reversal of a previous action taken by

The bill was engrossed, 47 to 39, on May 4, but that action was reconsidered and the measure was ordered indefinitely postponed, 60 to 27.

Opponents see in the bill an attempt to undermine the minimum wage laws, but friends contend it would give work to many women not now employed and would broaden the market for Wisconsin tobacco growers.

By a vote of 26 to 1 the senate concurred in the Conway resolution which instructs town, county and state highway officials to insert requirements in contracts that hand labor be substituted for machine labor wherever practicable in state highway construction to afford unemployment relief.

The Tombleson bill to permit payment of taxes in installments of not less than $10 or multiples of $5 was concurred in by the senate and goes to the governor. The bill would permit 80 per cent of the previous year's property tax to be paid in this manner.

The senate gave final legislative approval to an assembly measure to permit dip net fishing any time from the mouth of the Pigeon and Sheboygan rivers 10 miles inland.

Madison-The statewide milk strike conducted for six days by the Wisconsin Milk Pool came to an end at midnight May 18 following a conference here between Gov. Schmedeman and pool officials. The governor directed immediate disbandment of 2,500 state guardsmen who had been on duty in the strike areas as special deputies. Hundreds of strike pickets were in jails and temporary prison camps when the strike ended; one farmer was killed by falling from a milk truck he had attempted to board, and scores were sucering from injuries received In battles between officers and pickets. Milk pool officials condemned the numerous acts of violence, which they laid at the doors of communists and agitators not connected with their organization. The governor will name a committee of five, three of whom shall be practical farmers, to study the demands of the pool.

Milwaukee.-Frank J. Jess, extor tionist, was shot in the back when he walked into a trap set by police for 90,000 pairs of shoes within five for death threat writers seeking $25,days, Vice-President H. C. Freeman an- 600 from Lloyd R. Smith, millionaire manufacturer, and died in the General hospital.

Police later seized Oscar Miller, twenty-seven years old, who was said price, reed deck chairs at 25 cents, to have confessed he and Jess engineered the plot. Miller told police he and his partner, heavily in debt in a garage business in Wauwatosa, Milwaukee suburb, developed the extortion plot as a means of raising money.

For five weeks the Smith family had been in terror. Mr. Smith received five letters, each a week apart, warning him he would be kidnaped or killed if he did not comply with demands for $25,000. Mr. Smith is president of the A. O. Smith corporation, makers of welded pipes and automobile parts.

Mr. Smith turned the first letter over to the police April 17. There was nothing in the note to indicate where the $25,000 should be left. The next three letters also failed to set a rendezvous. Then Mr. Smith received the fifth and last note, giving instructions to leave the money in bills of small denomination under a signpost in Sunnyside road 200 feet south of Bluemont road.

Detective John Riley, who resembles the manufacturer somewhat, dressed in Smith's clothes, drove the Smith car to the designated spot and left $25,000 in marked bilis in a can under the signpost. Riley retired to a discreet distance. Police surrounded

Attached to the can was a wire exending 75 feet into an adjoining field. It was the plan of the extortionist to conceal himself in the field and draw the can to him after the money had been deposited in it.

Shortly after Riley left the can be gan to move. Police waited until Jess seized the contents of the can and started to flee. They called on him to halt. When he continued his flight, the policemen fired and Jess

STEEL CARGO LEAVES CHICAGO FOR TEXAS

Down Illinois Waterway and River to Gulf.

Chicago.-A cargo of 500 tons of steel left the mouth of the Chicago iver for Houston, Texas, via the new Illinois waterway, the Mississippi river and the Gulf of Mexico. Coincident with this establishment of water freight connections with Texas, it was announced by the Colombian Steamship line that fast freight service between Chicago and New York would e inaugurated early in June.

The steel bound for Texas was loaded on a 200-foot barge pushed by the stern wheeler Patricia Lou Watson of Ottawa. Two fishing tugs assisted the pusher and barge through the Chicago river to the sanitary canal.

The new water freight service between New York and Chicago will be started with the sailing of the steamer Baracoa from New York on June 6, it was announced by C. H. C. Pearsall, vice president and general manager of the Colombian line. Regular fortnightly sailings will be maintained thereafter by the Baracoa and her siser ship, the Bolivar.

The running time between the two principal cities of the nation, via the St. Lawrence river and the Great Lakes, will be only ten days, the company announced. This service will enable the shipping concern to handle cargoes from the West Indies to the Middle West, landing them at New York and reloading on the Baracoa and the Bolivar.

The two ships are lake type vessels built by the United States shipping board. Acquired several years ago, they have been operating in the New York-West Indies service.

PRESIDENT PLEADS FOR WORLD PEACE

Message of Warning Sent to 54 Other Nations.

Washington. - President Roosevelt asked the world to give up offensive weapons of war and unite for peace and economic recovery.

In a message immediately interpreted on Capitol hill as constituting particularly plain speaking to Germany, the President admonished all foreign potentates to give up "petty" national aims, or the civilized world would know where to place the blame. Dispatched unheralded to 54 for-whatsoever should hereafter cross any are eighteen months old. frontier save when a neighbor has offended by breaking her armament been found to vary from 5 to 60 per diplomatic sensation of first magniagreements. It backed the MacDonald proposal which the United States heretofore had shunned and which France much desires, but it also proposed that all nations hold armament within treaty to occur also among chicks raised in limits, which France has been accused of failing to do.

It mentions no names, but denounced foreign invasion at a time when the Japanese advance in China is in full swing.

For the United States, the plain words of the declaration point to abstention from further incursions by American marines into any Latin-American country. They hint at a status quo with respect to the American forces now stationed, by treaty, in portions of China.

As an immediate goal, the President asked success for the Geneva arms conference and the economic conference soon to meet in London. He proposed:

Adoption at Geneva of the MacDonald plan to reduce the armaments, of France, stabilize those of Germany and set up a consultative pact to promote peace. Agreements upon the time and place of a later conference to carry these steps still further. An agreement meantime that no nation shall increase its existing armaments. And a promise by all nations, pro vided the terms of arms limitation are faithfully kept, "that they will send no armed force of whatsoever nature across their frontiers."

The message, contrary to long-standing diplomatic practice, was addressed directly to the kings, potentates and Presidents of all of the 54 nations to be represented at London, including Russia. It was signed just "Franklin D. Roosevelt."

It went forward in direct language. without the usual protection of diplomatic code. Since the President's admonitions seemed directed especially toward Germany, the response of Chancellor Hitler was eagerly awaited. This came in the form of an address to the reichstag and was a qualified accept ance of the Roosevelt plan. Hitler said Germany would enter a nonaggression pact and would gladly disarm if all other nations agreed to do the same, but he insisted on the German demand for equality of armament and revision of the treaty of Versailles. He said Germany had no wish to inflict on others the "insanity of war" and denied that his nation contemplated invasion of either France or Poland. He agreed with Mr. Roosevelt that lasting economic reconstruction depended on settlement of the question of disarmament, but refused to adhere to any arms agreement unless the German demand for equality were fully recognized. Otherwise he said, Germany would withdraw from the League of Nations.

Most of the nations to which the Roosevelt message was sent indicated their full approval of his plan, but France was rather cool toward it, and Japan put off any definite reply, intimating that its course in Manchuria could not be included. Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain praised the President's proposals almost extravagantly, but the British press and public seemed to feel that they offered no real solution of the problems involved.

Value of Good Hen Is Found in Egg Record While all hens cannot be expected to lay as many eggs as a few of the most outstanding individuals, nevertheless, the exceptional individuals show the possibility of improvement, so it is worth while to occasionally call attention to some of the better records. O. A. Barton, of the poultry department of the North Dakota experiment station, reports the record made by a single Rhode Island hen in a two-year period. This hen produced 542 eggs in two years, or 284 eggs the first year and 258 the second year.

This hen consumed 190 pounds of feed during the two years, or only about twice as much feed as the weight of the eggs produced. The market value of the eggs was $10 for the two years, while the feed cost was $2. In other words, this hen made a gross profit above feed cost of $4 per year. Her average feed consumption was about four pounds for each dozen eggs produced. Thus, her feed cost was less than 5 cents per dozen eggs. Figures of this sort should encourre poultry producers to keep egg re ords and continue breeding from their most precious hens, mated with males from high producing stock.-Wallace's

Colds and Roup

Colds and roup in chickens are frequently present. An outbreak of these diseases cannot always be prevented. Therefore, one has to resort occasionally to individual treatment. Applying an ointment to the head, face, comb and wattles of the affected chickens is often recommended. Such an ointment may be made as follows: Eight ounces of olive oil, one ounce of gum camphor, one ounce of carbolic acid. In making this ointment the olive oil is heated and the gum camphor dissolved in same. The mixture is permitted to cool before adding the carbolic acid. Unless the mixture is cook at the same time the carbolic acid is added, an explosion will occur. To be safe it is usually desirable to have the druggist make the ointment

The ointment may be applied every second or third day until it is no longer needed. In severe cases it is desirable to place a small quantity of the ointment in the opening in the roof of the mouth at the time the head and face are massaged.-Missouri Farmer.

Cater to Appetites

When birds are cut of condition, feed should be given according to their appetites. When they regain their health and appetites, the regular feeds and schedule of feeding can be gradually resumed. Even with layers in the prime of condition, it pays to cater to their appetites as no two flocks are likely to have the same tastes. One flock will prefer one kind of grain or mash and another will prefer something else. It pays to give them what they want.

Cross-Breeding

Poultry raisers who have stock of the lighter weight breeds and wish to produce table birds often find it profitable to cross some of their hens with males of heavier breeds. In this way they may increase the weight of the chickens from one to two pounds each. If their own breeds are very heavy layers the cross-bred pullets will probtwenty-four, was electrocuted on a ably not equal them, but will still farm here as he grasped a barbed prove profitable layers through the wire fence which had become charged winter and spring. Sex of Geese The sex of geese can be determined in various ways. One method is to go in the pen and drive them about, getting them in a corner. You will generally find the ganders on the outside of the flock, lowering their heads and hissing. The voice is also different in the gander, being hoarser, and as a rule the male is larger in the head and thicker in the neck. If you have a dog with you the ganders will always keep to the outside of the flock to protect their mates.

Wrote 'Battle Hymn of the Republic"

THE Civil war days of 1861 Mrs. Howe was visiting the army camps near Washington when she received the inspiration for the verses which were to live long after she was dead. Blending the emotions of religion and patriotism she wrote the "Battle Hymn of the Republic." Then the words were set to the music of "John Brown's Body" and immediately the song was heard throughout the North.

successful attack at Chancellorsville came by mistake from some of his own men. Eight days after being wounded (having borne up under the amputation of an arm) he passed away in delirium; and history has recorded the things he said as he died: "Order A. P. Hill to prepare for bat-

. Tell Major Hawks to advance the commissary train . Let us cross the river and rest in the shade.'

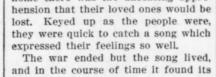

It was a stubborn battle, a hot fight, with quick strategy and high and rapid thinking. And when it was over he crossed to the other side. He must have entered into peace riding at the head of a victorious army, for certainly if it had not been a victory he would not have given that order to cross the river and rest in the shade.

Here was a truly Shakespearean passing. It is great drama written by life itself. If Shakespeare had found it standing thus in Plutarch he would have kept it and made no alteration -a thing he was great enough to do. Jackson's death was a greater shock to the South than is easy to conceive.

It was an event that filled the Southerners not only with sorrow, but with forebodings of defeat; for his victories had been so notable, and so almost certain, that they had learned to depend upon him as on some newly invented engine of war.

Time and again I am told---by my own organization and by others --- that I penalize myself by quality.

Friendly critics protest our putting into the Ford V-8 what they call "twenty-year steel." They say such quality is not necessary; the public does not expect it; and that the public does not know the difference anyway.

But I know the difference.

I know that the car a man sees is not the car he drives-he drives the car which the engineer sees. The car which is seen, comprises beauty of design, color and attractive accessories, --- all desirable, of course. The best evidence that we think so is that they are all found on the Ford V-8.

But these are not the car. The car proper, which is the basis of all the rest, is the type of engine and its reliability; the structure of chassis and body, ruggedly durable; the long thought and experiment given to safety factors; the steady development of comfort, convenience and economy. These make the car.

A car can be built that will last two or three years. But we have never built one. We want the basic material of our car to be as dependable the day it is discarded as the day it is bought. Ford cars built 15 years ago are still on the road. It costs more to build a durable car-but two items we do not skimp are cost and conscience. A great many things could "get by"---the public would never know the difference. But we would know.

The new Ford V-8 is a car that I endorse without any hesitancy. I know what is in it. I trust our whole thirty years' reputation with it. It is even better than our previous V-8. It is larger, more rugged and mechanically a better job all round.

I readily say this in an advertisement because I know the car will back it up.

The fact of the matter is the message was addressed more to the than to the people of our country Nothing that has come from the White House in years has been fraught with such vast significanse, or has created such world wide comment as the Pres ident's appeal the past week to the world to disarm and to join together to keep the peace. Of course, peace has always been the motto of our country. Our sword has never been drawn in a war of aggression; in fact the voice of our country has always

This message brought an unexpected and gratifying response from the Nations of the world, particularly from Chancellor Hitler of Germany. The German Chancellor declared that the Fresident's message deserved the warm thanks of his Nation, and promised that Germany would cooperate in any non-aggressive agreement.

Germany, of course at the present time is not armed comparable to th other European Nations, but there has been indications lately that the German Government has been planning t increase its armaments comparable to the other European Nations, Germany one hundred thousand men, and the Fresident in his peace plan contemplates the equalizing of all the armie of Europe, which program would un doubtedly result in giving Gerfany the privilege of increasing her army about two hundred thousand men

The danger of the present Europea situation from the standpoint of arma ments is that Germany because of h armament situation might feel the es, so that she would be on a wal hasis with her neighbors and thereby would begin again the mad European race for armaments that undoubtedly was a principle factor in bringing of the World War.

It is possible that as a result of the trial of this emergency program radical changes in our economi world may result, when the emergency is over, a change it is hoped that will result in the stabilizing of industry in cur country, and the preventing, if possible, the recurring of future economic breakdowns. It is the President's idea that capital

ANSWER: When bread has a grayish-white color rather than the desirable creamy-white color, poor quality flour or insufficient mixing is usually the cause of Bread is soggy when too much liquid is used in proportion to the flour. Insufficient rising and insufficient baking will also cause sogginess.

Poor quality ingredients are, of course, the chief reason for poorly flavored bread. Careful cooling and storing improve the flavor of the bread. Shortening helps imemergency prove the taste of the bread, too.
